

THE H I S T O R Y OF THE DECLINE AND FALL OF THE R O M A N E M P I R E.

5

VOLUME THE SIXTH.

1 1 1

HISTORY

ÖF THE

1 Limo 33.3 Usl 6

DECLINE AND FALL

OF THE

ROMAN EMPIRE.

By EDWARD GIBBON, Efq;

VOLUME THE SIXTH.

LONDON:

2575

PRINTED FOR A. STRAHAN; AND T. CADELL, IN THE STRAND. MDCCLXXXVIII.

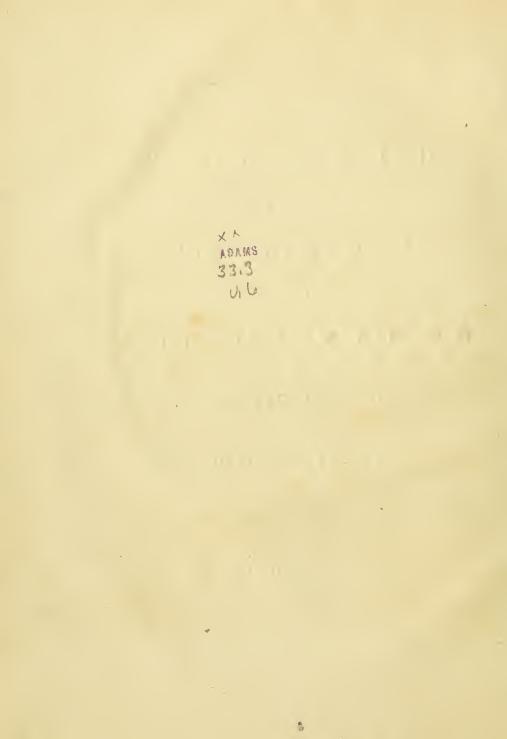

TABLE OF CONTENTS

OFTHE

SIXTH VOLUME.

CHAP. LVIII.

Origin and Numbers of the First Crusade. Characters of the Latin Princes.—Their March to Constantinople.—Policy of the Greek Emperor Alexius.—Conquest of Nice, Antioch, and Jerusalem, by the Franks.—Deliverance of the Holy Sepulchre.—Godsrey of Bouillon, First King of Jerusalem.—Institutions of the French or Latin Kingdom.

A. D.	Page
1095-1099. THE first Crufade -	1
Peter the Hermit -	ib.
1095 Urban II. in the Council of Placentia	3
Council of Clermont -	6
Juffice of the Crufades -	9
Spiritual Motives and Indulgences -	11
Temporal and carnal Motives -	14
Influence of Example -	16
1096 Departure of the first Crufaders -	17
Their Destruction in Hungary and Afia	19
The Chiefs of the first Crufade -	21
I. Godfrey of Bouillon -	22
Vol. VI.

A. D.	Page
II. Hugh of Vermandois, Robert of Normandy, Robert of Flanders, Stephen of Chartres, &c	23
III. Raymond of Tholoufe -	24
IV. Bohemond and Tancred -	25
Chivalry	26
1096, 1097. March of the Princes to Conftan-
tinople	29
Policy of the Emperor Alexius Comnenus	32
He obtains the Homage of the Crufaders	34
Infolence of the Franks -	37
1097 Their Review and Numbers -	38
Siege of Nice	40
Battle of Dorylæum -	42
March through the Leffer Afia -	44
1097-1151. Baldwin founds the Principality of Edeffa	45
1097, 1098. Siege of Antioch -	- 46
1098 Victory of the Crufaders -	49
Their Famine and Diffress at Antioch	ib.
Legend of the Holy Lance -	51
Celeftial Warriors -	53
The State of the Turks and Caliphs of Egypt	55
1098, 1099. Delay of the Franks -	56
1099 Their March to Jerusalem -	57
Siege and Conquest of Jerusalem -	ib.
1099, 1100.	Elec-

C O N T E N T S.

A. D.		Page
1000,	1100. Election and Reign of Godfre	ey of
	Bouillon	61
1099	Battle of Afcalon	62
1099-	-1187. The Kingdom of Jerufalem	63
1099-	-1369. Affife of Jerufalem -	66
	Court of Peers	67
	Law of judicial Combats -	68
	Court of Burgeffes -	70
	Syrians	ib.
	Villains and Slaves -	71

C II A P. LIX.

Prefervation of the Greek Empire.—Numbers, Paffage, and Event, of the Second and Third Crufades.—St. Bernard.— Reign of Saladin in Egypt and Syria.— His Conquest of Jerufalem.— Naval Crufades.—Richard the First of England.—Pope Innocent the Third; and the Fourth and Fifth Crufades.—The Emperor Frederic the Second.—Louis the Ninth of France; and the Two last Crufades.—Expulsion of the Latins or Franks by the Mamalukes.

A. D.	Page
1097-1118. Succefs of Alexius -	72
Expeditions by Land -	75
1101 The first Crusade	ib.
1147 The fecond, of Conrad III. and Louis VII.	ib.
1189 The third, of Frederic I	ib.
Their Numbers	ib.
Paffage through the Greek Empire	77
Turkifh Warfare	80
Obflinacy of the Enthuliafm of the Crufades	s 82
1091-1153. Character and Miffion of St. Bernard	83
Progrefs of the Mahometans -	85
The Atabeks of Syria -	86
1127-1145. Zenghi	ib.
1145-1174. Noureddin -	87
1163-1169. Conquest of Egypt by the Turks	88
1171 End of the Fatimite Caliphs -	91
1171-1193. Reign and Character of Saladin	92

A.D.	Page
1187 His Conqueft of the Kingdom -	95
And City of Jerufalem -	98
1188 The third Crufade, by Sea -	100
1189-1191. Siege of Acre -	102
1191, 1192. Richard of England, in Palestine	103
1192 His Treaty and Departure -	106
1193 Death of Saladin	108
1198-1216. Innocent III	ib.
1203 The fourth Crufade -	109
1218 The fifth	ib.
1228 The emperor Frederic II. in Palestine	110
1243 Invation of the Carizmians -	113
1248-1254. St. Louis, and the fixth Crufade	ib.
1249 He takes Damietta -	115
1250 His Captivity in Egypt -	ib.
1270 His Death before Tunis, in the feventh
Crufade	117
1250-1517. The Mamalukes of Egypt	ib.
1268 Lofs of Antioch -	118
1291 The Lofs of Acre and the Holy Land	119

CHAP. LX.

Schifm of the Greeks and Latins.—State of Conftantinople.—Revolt of the 'Bulgarians.—Ifaac Angelus dethroned by his Brother Alexius.—Origin of the Fourth Crufade.—Alliance of the French and Venetians with the Son of Ifaac.—Their naval Expedition to Conftantinople.— The Two Sieges and final Conqueft of the City by the Latins.

A. D.		Page
	Schifm of the Greeks -	121
	Their Aversion to the Latins -	ib.
	Procession of the Holy Ghost -	I 2 2
	Variety of ecclefiaftical Difcipline	123
857	-886. Ambitious Quarrels of Photius, Patriarch of Conftantinople, with the Popes	5 124
1054	The Popes excommunicate the Patriarch	1
	of Conftantinople and the Greeks	126
1100-	-1200. Enmity of the Greeks and Latins	ib.
	The Latins at Conflantinople -	128
1183	Their Maffacre	129
5	1185-1195. 1	Reign

С 0 NT E N

A.B.		Fage
1185	-1195. Reign and Character of Ifaac An	-
-	gelus	130
1186	Revolt of the Bulgarians -	131
1195	-1203. Usurpation and Character of Alexius Angelus	132
1198	The fourth Crufade -	134
	Embraced by the Barons of France	135
697.	-1200. State of the Venetians -	137
1201	Alliance of the French and Venetians	139
1202	Affembly and Departure of the Crufade
	from Venice	141
	Siege of Zara	143
	Alliance of the Crufaders with the Greek
	Prince, the young Alexius -	144
1203	Voyage from Zara to Constantinople	146
	Fruitless Negociation of the Emperor	149
	Paflage of the Bofphorus -	150
	First Siege and Conquest of Constantinople by the Latins -	153
	Restoration of the Emperor Isaac Ange-lus, and his fon Alexius -	156
	Quarrels of the Greeks and Latins	158
1204	The War renewed -	160
	Alexius and his Father depofed by Mour-zoufle	162
	Second Siege	ib.
	Pillage of Conftantinople -	165
	Division of the Spoil -	167
	Mifery of the Greeks -	168
	Sacrilege and Mockery -	169
	Destruction of the Statues -	170

CHAP. LXI.

Partition of the Empire by the French and Venetians .- Five Latin Emperors of the Houses of Flanders and Courtenay .-Their Wars against the Bulgarians and Greeks .- Weakness and Poverty of the Latin Empire.-Recovery of Constantinople by the Greeks .- General Confequences of the Crusades.

		n
A	۰.	υ	٠

1204 Election of the Emperor Baldwin I. D

A. D.	Fage
1204 Revolt of the Greeks	180
1204-1222. Theodore Lascaris, Emperor of
Nice -	181
The Dukes and Emperors of Trebizond	182
The Defpots of Epirus
1205 The Bulgarian War	183
	184
Defeat and Captivity of Baldwin	186
Retreat of the Latins -	187
Death of the Emperor _	188
1206-1216. Reign and Character of Henry	ib.
1217 Peter of Courtenay, Emperor of Con-
ftantinople	192
1217-1219. His Captivity and Death
1221-1228. Robert, Emperor of Constantinople	193
	194
1228-1237. Baldwin II. and John of Brienne,
Emperors of Constantinople -	196
1237-1261. Baldwin II	198
The Holy Crown of Thorns -	200
1237-1261. Progress of the Greeks -	202
1259 Michael Palæologus, the Greek Emperor	203
1261 Conftantinople recovered by the Greeks	204
General Confequences of the Crufades	206

Digression on the Family of Courtenay.

A. D.	Page
1020 Origin of the Family of Courtenay	211
1101-1152. I. The Counts of Edeffa	212
II. The Courtenays of France _	213
1150 Their Alliance with the Royal Family	214
III. The Courtenays of England	217
The Earls of Devonshire -	218

CHAP. LXII.

The Greek Emperors of Nice and Constantinople .- Elevation and Reign of Michael Palæologus .- His false Union with the Pope and the Latin Church.-Hoftile Defigns of Charles of Anjou.-Revolt of Sicily .- War of the Catalans in Afia and Greece. - Revolutions and prefent State of Athens.

Page	A. D.	Page
174	Refloration of the Greek Empire	221
177	1204-1222. Theodore Lafcaris -	ib.
a	2 1222-1255.	ohn

T

S.

A.D.		Page
1222-	-1255. John Ducas Vataces -	222
1255-	-1259. Theodore Lascaris II	224
1259	Minority of John Lafcaris -	225
	Family and Character of Michael Palæo-
1	logus	226
	His Elevation to the Throne -	228
1260	Michael Palæologus Emperor -	231
1261	Recovery of Constantinople -	ib.
	Return of the Greek Emperor -	232
	Palæologus blinds and banifhes the young
	Emperor	234
1262-	-1268. Is excommunicated by the Patriarch Arfenius	235
1266.	-1312. Schifm of the Arfenites -	236
1259-	-1282. Reign of Michael Palæologus	237
1273-	-1332. Reign of Andronicus the Elder	ib.
1274-	-1277. His Union with the Latin Church	238
1277-	-1282. His Perfecution of the Greeks	240
1283	The Union diffolved -	242
1266	Charles of Anjou fubdues Naples and Sicily	ib.
1270	Threatens the Greek Empire -	244
	Palæologus inftigates the Revolt of Sicily	245
1282	The Sicilian Vefpers -	247
	Defeat of Charles -	248
1303-	-1307. The Service and War of the Ca-	+
	talans in the Greek Empire -	ib.
1204.	-1456. Revolutions of Athens -	253
	Prefent State of Athens ~	255

C H A P. LXIII.

Civil Wars, and Ruin of the Greek Empire.—Reigns of Andronicus, the Elder and Younger, and John Palæologus.— Regency, Revolt, Reign, and Abdication of John Cantacuzene.—Establishment of a Genoese Colony at Pera or Galata.—Their Wars with the Empire and City of Constantinople.

A.D.				Page

1282-1320. Superfition of Andronicus and the Times - 257 1320 First Difputes between the Elder and Younger Andronicus - 260

3

A. D.	Page
1321-1328. Three Civil Wars between the two Emperors	262
1325 Coronation of the Younger Andronicus	ib.
1328 The Elder Andronicus abdicates the Government	263
1332 His Death	265
1328-1341. Reign of Andronicus the Younger	ib.
His two Wives	ib.
1341-1391. Reign of John Palæologus	267
Fortune of John Cantacuzenus -	ib.
He is left Regent of the Empire	268
1341 His Regency is attacked -	ib.
By Apocaucus, the Empress Anne of Savoy, and the Patriarch -	269
Cantacuzene affumes the Purple -	270
1341-1347. The Civil War -	272
Victory of Cantacuzene -	ib.
1347 He re-enters Conftantinople -	274
1347-1355. Reign of John Cantacuzene	275
1353 John Palæologus takes up Arms againft him	277
1355 Abdication of Cantacuzene -	ib.
1341-1351. Difpute concerning the Light of Mount Thabor -	278
1261-1347. Establishment of the Genoese at
Pera or Galata	280
Their Trade and Infolence -	282
1348 Their War with the Emperor Cantacuzene – –	283
1349 Deftruction of his Fleet -	284
1352 Victory of the Genoefe over the Venetians

3

S.

CHAP. LXIV.

Their Treaty with the Empire

285

287

and Greeks

Conquests of Zingis Khan and the Moguls from China to Poland.—Efcape of Constantinople and the Greeks.—Origin of the Ottoman Turks in Bithynia.— Reigns and Vistories of Othman, Orchan, Amurath the First, and Bajazet the First.—Foundation and Progress of the Turkish Monarchy in Asia and Europe.— Danger Danger of Constantinople and the Greek Empire.

A.D.	Page
1206-1227. Zingis Khan, first Emperor of the Moguls and Tartars -	289
His Laws	290
1210-1214. His Invasion of China -	293
1218-1224. Of Carizme, Tranfoxiana, and Perfia	294
1227 His Death	296
1227-1295. Conquests of the Moguls under the Succeffors of Zingis -	2 96
1234 Of the Northern Empire of China	2 97
1279 Of the Southern -	298
1258 Of Perfia, and the Empire of the Caliphs	2 99
1242—1272. Of Anatolia -	301
1235-1245. Of Kipzak, Ruffia, Poland, Hungary, &c	ib.
1242 Of Siberia	304
1227-1259. The Succeffors of Zingis	305
1259-1368. Adopt the Manners of China	306
1259-1300. Division of the Mogul Empire	307
1240-1304. Escape of Constantinople and the Greek Empire from the Moguls	308
1304 Decline of the Mogul Khans of Perfia	310
1240 Origin of the Ottomans -	ib.
1299-1326. Reign of Othman -	311
1326-1360. Reign of Orchan -	312
1326-1339. His Conqueit of Bithynia	313
1300 Division of Anatolia among the Turkish Emirs	ib.
1312 Lofs of the Afiatic Provinces -	314
1310-1523. The Knights of Rhodes -	ib.
1341-1347. First Passage of the Turks into Europe	315
1346 Marriage of Orchan with a Greek Princess	316
1353 Establishment of the Ottomans in Europe	317
Death of Orchan and his Son Soliman	319
1360-1389. The Reign and European Conquests of Amurath I	ib.
The Janizaries	320
1389-1403. The Reign of Bajazet I. Ilderim	321
His Conquests, from the Euphrates to the	*1
Danube	ib.
1396 Battle of Nicopolis -	323
1396-1398. Crufade and Captivity of the French Princes -	324

ENTS.

A. D.	Page
1355-1391. The Emperor John Palæologus	327
Difcord of the Greeks -	ib.
1391-1425. The Emperor Manuel .	328
1395-1402. Dittrefs of Constantinople	329

CHAP. LXV.

Elevation of Timour or Tamerlane to the Throne of Samarcand.—His Conquests in Persia, Georgia, Tartary, Russia, India, Syria, and Anatolia.—His Turkish War.—Defeat and Captivity of Bajazet. —Death of Timour.—Civil War of the Sons of Bajazet.—Restoration of the Turkish Monarchy by Mahomet the First. —Siege of Constantinople by Amurath the Second.

A. D.	Page
Histories of TIMOUR, or Tamerlane	331
1361—1370. His first Adventures -	.333
1370 He afcends the Throne of Zagatai	335
1370-1400. His Conquests -	ib.
1380—1393. I. Of Perfia -	ib.
1370-1383. II. Of Turkestan -	337
1390—1396. Of Kipzak, Russia, &c	338
1398, 1399. III. Of Hindoftan -	339
1400 His War against Sultan Bajazet -	34z
Timour invades Syria -	344
Sacks Aleppo – –	346
1401 Damafeus	347
And Bagdad	348
1402 Invades Anatolia –	ib.
Battle of Angora	349
Defeat and Captivity of Bajazet	351
The Story of his Iron Cage difproved by the Perfian Historian of Timour	352
Attested, 1. by the French _	353
, 2. by the Italians -	354
, 3. by the Arabs -	ib.
, 4. by the Greeks -	355
, 5. by the Turks -	ib.
Probable Conclusion -	356
1403 Death of Bajazet	ib.
Term of the Conquests of Timour	357
1404, 1405.

CONTENTS.

1
A. D.	Page
1404, 1405. His Triumph at Samarcand	359
1405 His Death on the Road to China	360
Character and Merits of Timour	361
1403-1421. Civil Wars of the Sons of Bajazet	364
1. Muftapha	ib.
2. Ifa	365
1403-1410. 3. Soliman -	ib.
1410 4. Moufa	366
1413-1421. 5. Mahomet I	ib.
1421-1451. Reign of Amurath II	367
1421 Re-union of the Ottoman Empire	ib.
1402—1425. State of the Greek Empire	369
1422 Siege of Constantinople by Amurath II.	371
1.425-1448. The Emperor John Palæologus II.	ib.
Hereditary Succession and Merit of the Ottomans	372
Education and Difcipline of the Turks	373
Invention and Ufe of Gunpowder	375

CHAP. LXVI.

Ap	plications of the Eastern Emperors to the Popes Visits to the West, of John the First, Manuel, and John the Second, Palæologus. — Union of the Greek and Latin Churches, promoted by the Council
1	of Bafil, and concluded at Ferrara and FlorenceState of Literature at Constantinople.—Its Revival in Italy by the Greek Fugitives Curiofity and Emulation of the Latins.

Fage
0 378
n 379
-
381
)-
383 at .
385 387
ib.
388

A.D.	Page
Of England	389
1402 His Return to Greece -	390.
Greek Knowledge and Defcriptions	ib.
Of Germany	391
Of France	ib.
Of England	392
1402-1417. Indifference of Manuel towards the Latins	394
1417-1425. His Negociations -	ib.
His private Motives -	395
His Death	396
1425-1437. Zeal of John Palæologus II.	ib.
Corruption of the Latin Church -	397
1377-1429. Schifm	398
1409 Council of Pifa -	ib.
1414-1418. Of Conftance -	ib.
1431-1443. Of Bahl	399
Their Opposition to Eugenius IV.	ib.
1434-1437. Negociations with the Greeks
	400
1437 John Palæologus embarks in the Pope's Gallies	ib.
1438 His triumphal Entry at Venice -	404
into Ferrara -	405
1438, 1439. Council of the Greeks and Latins at Ferrara and Florence -	406
Negociations with the Greeks -	410
1438 Eugenius depofed at Bafil -
	412
Re-union of the Greeks at Florence	ib.
1440 Their Return to Conftantinople -	413
1449 Final Peace of the Church -	414
1300-1453. State of the Greek Language at Confrantinople -	ib.
Comparison of the Greeks and Latins	416
Revival of the Greek Learning in Italy	417
1339 Leffons of Barlaam -	418
1339-1374. Studies of Petrarch -	419
1360 Of Boccace	42 I
1360 - 1363. Leo Pilatus, first Greek Professor at Florence, and in the Weft -	ib.
1390-1415. Foundation of the Greek Language in Italy by Manuel Chryfo-loras	122
	423
1400-1500. The Greeks in Italy -	425
Cardinal Beffarion, &c	ib.
Their Faults and Merits -	426
The Platonic Philofophy -	427
Emulation and Progress of the Latins	429
1447-1455. Ni

CONTENTS.

A.D.	Page
1447-1455. Nicholas V	429
1428-1492. Cofmo and Lorenzo of Medicis	430
Use and Abuse of ancient Learning	43 I

CHAP. LXVII.

Schifm of the Greeks and Latins.—Re	ign A.E
and Character of Amurath the Second.
Crusade of Ladislaus King of Hungary.	145
His Defeat and Death John Huniac
- Scanderbeg Constantine Palæo	010-
gus last Emperor of the East.	145
A. D.	Page
Comparison of Rome and Constantinople	434
1440-1448. The Greek Schifm after the Coun-	145
cil of Florence	437
Zeal of the Orientals and Ruffians	439
1421-1451. Reign and Character of Amu-rath II. – –	440 145
1442-1444. His double Abdication -	442
1443 Eugenius forms a League against the	145
Turks	443
Ladiflaus, King of Poland and Hungary, marches against them -	445
The Turkish Peace -	446
1444 Violation of the Peace " -	447
Battle of Warna	449
Death of Ladiflaus -	450
The Cardinal Julian -	451
John Corvinus Huniades -	452
1456 His Defence of Belgrade, and Death	453
1404-1413. Birth and Education of Scander-beg, Prince of Albania -	454
1443 His Revolt from the Turks -	456
His Valour	457
1467 And Death	458
1448-1453. Constantine, the last of the Roman or Greek Emperors -	459
1450-1452. Embassies of Phranza -	460
State of the Byzantine Court -	462

CHAP. LXVIII.

Reign and Character of Mahomet the Second .- Siege, Affault, and final Con-2 quest of Constantincple by the Turks .--Death of Constantine Palæologus .- Servitude of the Greeks .- Extinction of the Roman Empire in the East .- Consternation of Europe .- Conquests and Death of Mabomet the Second.

4. D.		Page
	Character of Mahomet II	464
1451-	-1481. His Reign -	466
451	Hoftile Intentions of Mahomet -	468
1452	He builds a Fortrefs on the Bofphorus	471
	The Turkish War -	472
1452,	1453. Preparations for the Siege of Con-	.,
	ftantinople	473
	The great Cannon of Mahomet -	475
453	Mahomet II. forms the Siege of Conftan-	., ,
.,,,,	tinople	477
	Forces of the Turks -	478
	of the Greeks -	479
1452	False Union of the two Churches	480
.,	Obstinacy and Fanaticism of the Greeks	481
1453	Siege of Constantinople by Mahomet II.	484
.))	Attack and Defence -	485
	Succour and Victory of four Ships	487
	Mahomet transports his Navy over Land	490
	Diftress of the City -	492
	Preparations of the Turks for the general
	Affault	493
	Last Farewel of the Emperor and the
	Greeks	495
	The general Affault -	496
	Death of the Emperor Constantine Palæ-
	logus – –	500
	Loss of the City and Empire -	ib.
	The Turks enter and pillage Conftantinople
	Captivity of the Greeks -	502
	Amount of the Spoil -	504
	Mahomet II. visits the City, St. Sophia,	2.4
	the Palace, &c	505
	His Behaviour to the Greeks -	507
	He repeoples and adorns Constantinople	508
	Extinction of the Imperial Families of Comnenus and Palæologus	511
1460	Loss of the Morea -	512
1461	- of Trebizond	513
	Grief and Terror of Europe -	514
1481	Death of Mahomet II	516
		Δ́Ρ

CHAP. LXIX.

State of Rome from the Twelfth Century.— Temporal Dominion of the Popes.—Seditions of the City.—Political Herefy of Arnold of Brefcia.—Reftoration of the Republic.—The Senators.—Pride of the Romans.—Their Wars.—They are deprived of the Election and Prefence of the Popes, who retire to Avignon.— The Jubilee.—Noble Families of Rome. —Feud of the Colonna and Urfini.

A. D.	Pag
1100-1500. State and Revolutions of Rome	518
800-1100. The French and German Empe-	- rors of Rome -	519
Authority of the Popes in Rome -	521
From Affection	ib
Right	ib
Virtue	522
Benefits	ib
Inconftancy of Superfition -	523
Seditions of Rome against the Popes	524
1086-1305. Succeffors of Gregory VII.	529
1099—1118. Pafchal II	520
1118, 1119. Gelafius II	ib
1144, 1145. Lucius II	527
1181-1185. Lucius III	ib
1119-1124. Califtus II	528
1130-1143. Innocent II	ib
Character of the Romans by St. Bernard	ib
1140 Political Herefy of Arnold of Brefeia	520
1144-1154. He exhorts the Romans to reftore
the Republic -	53
1155 His Execution	53
1144 Refloration of the Senate -	ib
The Capitol	53
The Coin	530
The Przfect of the City -	53
Number and Choice of the Senate	53
The Office of Senator -	53
1252-1258. Brancaleone -	54
1265-1278. Charles of Anjou -	54
1281 Pope Martin IV	54
1328 The Emperor Lewis of Bavaria -	1.5

A. D.		Page
	Addreffes of Rome to the Emperors	542
1144	Conrad III	543
1155	Frederic I	544
	Wars of the Romans against the neighbouring Cities -	547
1167	Battle of Tufculum -	549
1234	of Viterbo	ib.
	The Election of the Popes -	550
1179	Right of the Cardinals established by Alexander III	ib.
1274	Inftitution of the Conclave by Gregory X.	551
	Abfence of the Popes from Rome	553
1294-	-1303. Boniface VIII	554
1309	Translation of the Holy See to Avignon	555
1300	Inftitution of the Jubilee, or Holy Year	557
1350	The fecond Jubilee -	559
	The Nobles or Barons of Rome -	560
	Family of Leo the Jew -	561
	The Colonna	562
	And Urfini	565

S.

CHAP. LXX.

566

Their hereditary Feuds

Charatter and Coronation of Petrarch.— Refloration of the Freedom and Government of Rome by the Tribune Rienzi.— His Virtues and Vices, his Expulsion and Death.—Return of the Popes from Avignon.—Great Schism of the West.—Reunion of the Latin Church.— Last Struggles of Roman Liberty.—Statutes of Rome.—Final Settlement of the Ecclestate.

A.D.	Page
1304-1374. Petrarch	567
1341 His poetic Coronation at Rome -	570
Birth, Character, and patriotic Defigns of
Rienzi	572
1347 He affumes the Government of Rome	574
With the Title and Office of Tribune	576
Laws of the good Estate -	ib.
Freedom and Prosperity of the Roman Republic	578
	The

E.N T

A. D.		Pag
	The Tribune is respected in Italy, &c.	580
	And celebrated by Petrarch -	581
	His Vices and Follies -	ĩb
$347	The Pomp of his Knighthood -	58:
547	And Coronation	589
	Fear and Hatred of the Nobles of Rome	ib
	They oppofe Rienzi in Arms -	587
•	Defeat and Death of the Colonna -	588
	Fall and Flight of the Tribune Rienzi	589
1347	-1354. Revolutions of Rome -	590
	Adventures of Rienzi -	591
1351	A Prifoner at Avignon -	592
1354	Rienzi, Senator of Rome -	593
	His Death	595
1355	Petrarch invites and upbraids the Emperor
	Charles IV	ib.
	He folicits the Popes of Avignon to fix their Refidence at Rome -	596
	-1370. Return of Urban V	597
1377	Final Return of Gregory XI	598
1378	His Death	599
	Election of Urban VI	ib.
	Election of Clement VII	боо
1378-	-1418. Great Schifm of the Weft	601
	Calamities of Rome -	60z
1392-	-1407. Negociations for Peace and Union	603
1409	Council of Pifa	604
1414-	-1418. Council of Constance -	605
	Election of Martin V	606
	Martin V	ib.
1431	Eugenius IV	ib.
	Nicholas V	ib.
	Laft Revolt of Rome -	607
1452	Last Coronation of a German Emperor,
	Frederic III	608
	The Statutes and Government of Rome	ib.
1453	Confpiracy of Porcaro -	610
	Last Diforders of the Nobles of Rome	612

CONTENTS.

A. D.				Page
1500	The Popes acquir	e the absolute	Dominion of Rome	-	-	613
	The Ecclefiaffical	Government	-	616
1585-	-1590. Sixtus V.	-		617

CHAP. LXXI.

Prospect of the Ruins of Rome in the.	Fifteenth Century.—Four Caufes of Decay and DestructionExample of the C	- feum Renovation of the City ( clusion of the whole Work.
, ,
A.D.	Page
1430 View and Difcourfe of Poggius from the Capitoline Hill -	619
His Description of the Ruins -	620
Gradual Decay of Rome -	622
Four Causes of Destruction -	623
I. The Injuries of Nature -	ib.
Hurricanes and Earthquakes -	ib.
Fires	624
Inundations	625
II. The hoftile Attacks of the Barbarians and Christians -	626
III. The Ufe and Abufe of the Materials	628
IV. The domestic Quarrels of the Romans	632
The Colifeum or Amphitheatre of Titus	635
Games of Rome -	637
1332 A Bull-feast in the Colifeum -	ib.
Injuries	639
And Confectation of the Colifeum	640
Ignorance and Barbarism of the Romans	ib.
1420 Reftoration and Ornaments of the City	643
Final Conclusion	645

VOL. VI.

b

THE

THE
HISTORY
OF THE DECLINE AND FALL OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

LVIII. CHAP.

Origin and Numbers of the First Crusade.-CharaEters of the Latin Princes.-Their March to Constantinople. -Policy of the Greek Emperor Alexius.-Conquest of Nice, Antioch, and Jerusalem, by the Franks.-Deliverance of the Holy Sepulchre.-Godfrey of Bouillon, First King of Jerusalem .- Institutions of the French or Latin Kingdom.

BOUT twenty years after the conquest of Jerufalem by the C H A F. Turks, the holy fepulchre was vifited by an hermit of the name of Peter, a native of Amiens, in the province of Picardy' in France. His refentment and fympathy were excited by his own injuries and the oppreffion of the Christian name; he mingled Peter the his LVIII. The first crufade. A. D. 1095-1099. Hermit.

[&]quot; Whimfical enough is the origin of the which does not date earlier than A. D. 1200. name of Picards, and from thence of Picardie, It was an academical joke, an epithet first VOL. VI. applied

LVIII. ----

C H A P. his tears with those of the patriarch, and earnestly enquired, if no hopes of relief could be entertained from the Greek emperors of the Eaft. The patriarch exposed the vices and weakness of the fucceffors of Conftantine. " I will roufe," exclaimed the hermit, " the " martial nations of Europe in your caufe;" and Europe was obedient to the call of the hermit. The aftonished patriarch dismiffed him with epiftles of credit and complaint, and no fooner did he land at Bari, than Peter haftened to kifs the feet of the Roman pontiff. His stature was small, his appearance contemptible; but his eye was keen and lively; and he poffeffed that vehemence of fpeech, which feldom fails to impart the perfuasion of the foul². He was born of a gentleman's family (for we must now adopt a modern idiom), and his military fervice was under the neighbouring counts of Boulogne, the heroes of the first crufade. But he foon relinquished the fword and the world; and if it be true, that his wife, however noble, was aged and ugly, he might withdraw, with the lefs reluctance, from her bed to a convent, and at length to an hermitage. In this auftere folitude, his body was emaciated, his fancy was inflamed; whatever he wifhed, he believed; whatever he believed, he faw in dreams and revelations. From Jerufalem, the pilgrim returned an accomplifhed fanatic; but as he excelled in the popular madnefs of the times, pope Urban the fecond received him as a prophet, applauded his glorious defign, promifed to fupport it in a general council, and encouraged him to proclaim the deliverance of the Holy Land. Invigorated by the approbation of the pontiff, his zealous miffionary traverfed, with fpeed and fuccefs, the provinces of Italy and France. His diet was abstemious, his prayers long and fervent, and the alms which he received with one hand, he diftri> those students, in the university of Paris, who occulum habens perspicacem gratumque, et came from the frontier of France and Flan- fponte fluens ei non deerat eloquium. See ders (Valefii Notitia Galliarum, p. 447. Longuerue, Description de la France, p. 54.). ² William of Tyre (l. i. c. 11. p. 637, 638.) thus defcribes the hermit: pufillus, > applied to the quarrelfome humour of perfona contemptibilis, vivacis ingenii, et Albert Aquenfis, p. 185. Guibert, p. 482. Anna Compena in Alexiad, 1. x. p. 284, &c. with Ducange's notes, p. 349.

> > buted

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

buted with the other : his head was bare, his feet naked, his meagre C H A P. body was wrapt in a coarfe garment; he bore and difplayed a weighty crucifix; and the afs on which he rode, was fanctified in the public eye by the fervice of the man of God. He preached to innumerable crowds in the churches, the ftreets, and the highways: the hermit entered with equal confidence the palace and the cottage: and the people, for all was people, was impetuoufly moved by his call to repentance and arms. When he painted the fufferings of the natives and pilgrims of Paleftine, every heart was melted to compaffion; every breaft glowed with indignation, when he challenged the warriors of the age to defend their brethren and refcue their Saviour : his ignorance of art and language was compenfated by fighs, and tears, and ejaculations; and Peter fupplied the deficiency of reason by loud and frequent appeals to Christ and his Mother, to the faints and angels of paradife, with whom he had perfonally converfed. The most perfect orator of Athens might have envied the fuccels of his eloquence: the ruftic enthuliast inspired the paffions which he felt, and Chriftendom expected with impatience the counfels and decrees of the fupreme pontiff.

The magnanimous spirit of Gregory the seventh had already em- Urban II. braced the defign of arming Europe against Afia; the ardour of his cil of Plazeal and ambition still breathes in his episitles: from either fide of centia, the Alps, fifty thousand Catholics had enlifted under the banner of March. St. Peter 3; and his fucceffor reveals his intention of marching at their head against the impious sectaries of Mahomet. But the glory or reproach of executing, though not in perfon, this holy enterprife, was referved for Urban the fecond *, the most faithful of his disciples. He undertook the conquest of the East, whilst the larger portion of Rome was poffeffed and fortified by his rival Guibert of

in the coun-A. D. 1095,

³ Ultra quinquaginta millia, fi me pof- 31. in tom. xii. p. 322. concil.). funt in expeditione pro duce et pontifice habere, armata manu volunt in inimicos Dei Pandulphus Pifanus and Bernardus Guido, in infurgere et ad sepulchrum Domini ipso Muratori, Rer. Ital. Script. tom. iii. pars i. ducente pervenire (Gregor. vii. epift. ii. p. 352, 353.

Ravenna,

B 2

LVIII.

^{*} See the original lives of Urban II. by

LVIII.

Land

C H A P. Ravenna, who contended with Urban for the name and honours of the pontificate. He attempted to unite the powers of the Weft, at a time when the princes were feparated from the church, and the people from their princes, by the excommunication which himfelf and his predeceffors had thundered against the emperor and the king of France. Philip the first, of France, supported with patience the cenfures which he had provoked by his fcandalous life and adulterous marriage. Henry the fourth, of Germany, afferted the right of inveftitures, the prerogative of confirming his bifhops by the delivery of the ring and crofier. But the emperor's party was crushed in Italy by the arms of the Normans and the counters Mathilda ;. and the long quarrel had been recently envenomed by the revolt of his fon Conrad and the fhame of his wife 5, who, in the fynods of Conftance and Placentia, confessed the manifold profitutions to which fhe had been exposed by an hufband regardlefs of her honour and his own". So popular was the caufe of Urban, fo weighty was his influence, that the council which he fummoned at Placentia⁷ was composed of two hundred bishops of Italy, France, Burgundy, Swabia, and Bavaria. Four thousand of the clergy, and thirty thousand of the laity, attended this important meeting; and, as the most spacious cathedral would have been inadequate to the multitude, the feffion of feven days was held in a plain adjacent to the

> ⁵ She is known by the different names of Praxes, Eupræcia, Eufrafia, and Adelais; and was the daughter of a Ruffian prince, and the widow of a margrave of Brandenburgh. Struy. Corpus Hift. Germanicæ, p. 340.

6 Henricus odio eam coepit habere: ideo incarceravit eam, et concessit ut plerique vim ei inferrent; immo filium hortans ut eam subagitaret (Dodechin, Continuat. Marian. Scot. apud Baron. A. D. 1093, Nº 4.). In the fynod of Conftance, fhe is defcribed by Bertholdus, rerum infpector: quæ fe tantas et tam inauditas fornicationum fpurcitias, et a tantis passam fuisse conquesta est, &c. and again of Placentia, Concil. tom. zii. p. 821, &c. at Placentia: fatis mifericorditer suscepit, eo quòd ipfam tantas spurcitias non tam commisfiffe quam invitam pertulise pro certo cognoverit papa cum fancta fynodo. Apud Baron. A. D. 1093, Nº 4. 1094, Nº 3. A rare fubject for the infallible decision of a pope and council. These abominations are repugnant to every principle of human nature, which is not altered by a difpute about rings and crofiers. Yet it fhould feem, that the wretched woman was tempted by the prieftsto relate or subscribe some infamous stories of herfelf and her hufband.

7 See the narrative and acts of the fynod city.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

city. The ambaffadors of the Greek emperor, Alexius Comnenus, C H A P. were introduced to plead the diffrefs of their fovereign and the danger of Constantinople, which was divided only by a narrow fea from the victorious Turks, the common enemies of the Christian name. In their fuppliant addrefs they flattered the pride of the Latin princes; and, appealing at once to their policy and religion, exhorted them to repel the Barbarians on the confines of Afia, rather than to expect them in the heart of Europe. At the fad tale of the mifery and perils of their Eastern brethren the affembly burft into tears : the most eager champions declared their readiness to march ; and the Greek ambaffadors were difmiffed with the affurance of a fpeedy and powerful fuccour. The relief of Conftantinople was ineluded in the larger and most distant project of the deliverance of Jerufalem; but the prudent Urban adjourned the final decifion to a fecond fynod, which he propofed to celebrate in fome city of France in the autumn of the fame year. The fhort delay would propagate the flame of enthuliafm; and his firmest hope was in a nation of foldiers⁸, ftill proud of the pre-eminence of their name, and ambitious to emulate their hero Charlemagne°, who, in the popular romance of Turpin", had atchieved the conquest of the Holy Land. A latent motive of affection or vanity might influence the choice of Urban : he was himfelf a native of France, a monk of Clugny, and the first of his countrymen who ascended the throne

⁸ Guibert himfelf, a Frenchman, praises the piety and valour of the French nation, the author and example of the crufades : Gens nobilis, prudens, bellicofa, dapfilis et nitida ... Quos enim Britones, Anglos, Ligures, fi bonis eos moribus videamus, non illico Francos homines appellemus? (p. 478.) He owns, however, that the vivacity of the French degenerates into petulance among foreigners (p. 483.), and vain loquaciousness (p. 502.).

9 Per viam quam jamdudum Carolus Mag-C.P. (Gesta Francorum, p. 1. Robert. Monach. Hift. Hierof. 1. i. p. 33, &c.).

10 John Tilpinus, or Turpinus, was archbishop of Rheims, A. D. 773. After the year 1000, this romance was composed in his name, by a monk of the borders of France and Spain : and fuch was the idea of ecclefiastical merit, that he deferibes himfelf as a fighting and drinking prieft! Yet the book of lies was pronounced authentic by pope Calixtus II. (A. D. 1122), and is refpe&fully quoted by the abbot Suger, in the great Chronicles of St. Denys (Fabric. nus mirificus rex Francorum aptari fecit ulque Bibliot. Latin. medii Ævi, edit. Manfi, tom. iv. p. 161.).

LVIII.

5

of 17

C H A P. of St. Peter. The pope had illustrated his family and province; nor

Council of Clermont, A. D. 1095, November.

LVIII.

is there perhaps a more exquisite gratification than to revisit, in a confpicuous dignity, the humble and laborious fcenes of our youth. It may occafion fome furprife that the Roman pontiff should erect, in the heart of France, the tribunal from whence he hurled his anathemas against the king. But our furprife will vanish fo foon as we form a just estimate of a king of France of the eleventh century". Philip the first was the great-grandfon of Hugh Capet the founder of the prefent race, who, in the decline of Charlemagne's posterity, added the regal title to his patrimonial effates of Paris and Orleans. In this narrow compass, he was posseffed of wealth and jurifdiction; but in the reft of France, Hugh and his firft defcendants were no more than the feudal lords of about fixty dukes and counts, of independent and hereditary power 12, who difdained the control of laws and legal affemblies, and whofe difregard of their fovereign was revenged by the difobedience of their inferior vaffals. At Clermont, in the territories of the count of Auvergne¹³, the pope might brave with impunity the refentment of Philip; and the council which he convened in that city was not lefs numerous or refpectable than the fynod of Placentia ". Befides his court and council of Roman cardinals, he was fupported by thirteen archbishops and two hundred and twenty-five bifhops; the number of mitred prelates was computed at four hundred; and the fathers of the church were bleffed by the faints, and enlightened by the doctors of the age. From the adjacent kingdoms, a martial train of lords and knights of power and 11 See Etat de la France, by the Count de drian Valef. Notitia Galliarum. Boulainvilliers, tom. i. p. 180-182. and the fecond volume of the Obfervations fur l'Histoire de France, by the Abbé de Mably.

12 In the provinces to the fouth of the Loire, the first Capetians were fcarcely allowed a feudal supremacy. On all fides, Normandy, Bretagne, Aquitain, Burgundy, Lorraine, and Flanders, contracted the name and limits of the proper France. See Ha- Concil. tom. xii. p. 829, &c.

13 These counts, a younger branch of the dukes of Aquitain, were at length defpoiled of the greatest part of their country by Philip Augustus. The bishops of Clermont gradually became princes of the city. Melanges, tirés d'une grande Bibliotheque, tom. xxxvi. p. 288, &c.

14 See the acts of the council of Clermont, renown,

renown, attended the council ", in high expectation of its refolves; C H A P. LVIII. and fuch was the ardour of zeal and curiofity, that the city was filled, and many thousands, in the month of November, erected their tents or huts in the open field. A feffion of eight days produced fome ufeful or edifying canons for the reformation of manners; a fevere cenfure was pronounced against the licence of private war; the truce of God " was confirmed, a fuspension of hostilities during four days of the week; women and priefts were placed under the fafeguard of the church; and a protection of three years was extended to hufbandmen and merchants, the defenceless victims of military rapine. But a law, however venerable be the fanction, cannot fuddenly transform the temper of the times; and the benevolent efforts of Urban deferve the lefs praife, fince he laboured to appeafe fome domeftic quarrels that he might fpread the flames of war from the Atlantic to the Euphrates. From the fynod of Placentia, the rumour of his great defign had gone forth among the nations : the clergy on their return had preached in every diocefe the merit and glory of the deliverance of the Holy Land; and when the pope afcended a lofty fcaffold in the market-place of Clermont, his eloquence was addreffed to a well prepared and impatient audience. His topics were obvious, his exhortation was vehement, his fuccefs inevitable. The orator was interrupted by the shout of thousands, who with one voice, and in their ruftic idiom, exclaimed aloud, " God wills it, God wills it "."

¹⁵ Confluxerunt ad concilium e multis regionibus, viri potentes et honorati, innumeri quamvis cingulo laicalis militiæ fuperbi (Baldric, an eye witnefs, p. 86-88. Robert. Mon. p. 31, 32. Will. Tyr. i. 14, 15. p. 639-641. Guibert, p. 478-480. Fulcher. Carnot. p. 382.).

¹⁶ The Truce of God (Treva, or Treuga Dei) was first invented in Aquitain, A.D. 1032; blamed by fome bishops as an occafion of perjury, and rejected by the Normans as contrary to their privileges (Ducange, Gloff. Latin. tom. vi. p. 682-685.).

17 Deus wult, Deus wult! was the pure acclamation of the clergy who underflood Latin (Robert. Mon. 1. i. p. 32.). By the illiterate laity, who fpoke the Previncial or Limoufn idiom, it was corrupted to Deus lo wolt, or Diex el wolt. See Chron. Cafinenfe, l. iv. c. 11. p. 497. in Muratori, Script. Rerum Ital. tom.iv. and Ducange (Differtat. xi. p. 207. fur Joinville, and Gloff. Latin. tom. ii. p. 690.), who, in his preface, produces a very difficult fpecimen of the dialed of Rovergue, A. D. 1100, very near, both in time and place, to the council of Clermont (p. 15, 16.).

" It

C H A P. " It is indeed the will of God," replied the pope; " and let this " memorable word, the infpiration furely of the Holy Spirit, be for " ever adopted as your cry of battle, to animate the devotion and " courage of the champions of Chrift. His crofs is the fymbol of " your falvation ; wear it, a red, a bloody crofs, as an external mark " on your breafts or fhoulders, as a pledge of your facred and irre-" vocable engagement." The propofal was joyfully accepted ; great numbers both of the clergy and laity impreffed on their garments the fign of the crofs 18, and folicited the pope to march at their head. This dangerous honour was declined by the more prudent fucceffor of Gregory, who alleged the fchifin of the church, and the duties of his paftoral office, recommending to the faithful, who were difqualified by fex or profession, by age or infirmity, to aid, with their prayers and alms, the perfonal fervice of their robuft brethren. The name and powers of his legate he devolved on Adhemar bifhop of Puy, the first who had received the cross at his hands. The foremoft of the temporal chiefs was Raymond count of Thouloufe, whofe ambaffadors in the council excufed the abfence, and pledged the honour, of their mafter. After the confession and absolution of their fins, the champions of the crofs were difmiffed with a fuperfluous admonition to invite their countrymen and friends; and their departure for the Holy Land was fixed to the feftival of the Affumption, the fifteenth of August, of the enfuing year ". So > gold, or filk, or cloth, fewed on their garments. In the first crufade, all were red : in the third, the French alone preferved that colour, while green croffes were adopted by the Flemings, and white by the English (Ducange, tom ii. p. 651.). Yet in England, the red ever appears the favourite, and, as it were, the national, colour of our military enfigns and uniforms.

19 Bongarfius, who has published the original writers of the crufades, adopts, with much complacency, the fanatic title of Gai-

18 Most commonly on their shoulders, in bertus, Gesta DEI per Francos; though some critics propofe to read Gesta Diaboli per Francos (Hanoviæ, 1611, two vols. in folio). I shall briefly enumerate, as they stand in this collection, the authors whom I have ufed for the first crufade. I. Gesta Francorum. II. Robertus Monachus. III. Baldricus. IV. Raimundus de Agiles. V. Albertus Aquenfis. VI. Fulcherius Carnotenfis. VII. Guibertus. VIII. Willielmus Tyrienfis. Muratori has given us, IX. Radulphus Cadomenfis de Gestis Tancredi (Script. Rer. Ital. tom.v. p. 285-333.), and, X. Bernardus Thefau-

8

LVIII.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

So familiar, and as it were fo natural to man, is the practice of vio- C H A P. lence, that our indulgence allows the flighteft provocation, the moft difputable right, as a fufficient ground of national hoftility. But the crufades? name and nature of an holy war demands a more rigorous ferutiny ; nor can we haftily believe, that the fervants of the Prince of peace would unsheathe the fword of destruction, unless the motive were pure, the quarrel legitimate, and the neceffity inevitable. The policy of an action may be determined from the tardy leffons of experience; but, before we act, our confcience should be fatisfied of the juffice and propriety of our enterprife." In the age of the crufades, the Chriftians, both of the East and West, were perfuaded of their lawfulnefs and merit; their arguments are clouded by the perpetual abuse of scripture and rhetoric; but they seem to infift on the right of natural and religious defence, their peculiar title to the Holy Land, and the impiety of their Pagan and Mahometan foes²⁰. I. The right of a just defence may fairly include our civil and fpiritual allies : it depends on the exiftence of danger ; and that danger must be estimated by the two-fold confideration of the malice, and the power, of our enemies. A pernicious tenet has been imputed to the Mahometans, the duty of estirpating all other religions by the fword. This charge of ignorance and bigotry is refuted by the Koran, by the hiftory of the Mufulman conquerors, and by their public and legal toleration of the Christian worship. But it cannot be denied, that the Oriental churches are depressed under their iron

C

Thesaurarius de Acquistione Terræ Sanctæ into the first anonymous writer of Bongarsius. was unknown to a late French hiftorian, who has given a large and critical lift of the writers of the crufades (Efprit des Croifades, tom. i. p. 13-141.), and most of whose judgments my own experience will allow me to ratify. It was late before I could obtain a fight of the French historians collected by Duchefne. I. Petri Tudebodi Sacerdotis though vigorous mind, greedy of every pre-Sivracenfis Hiftoria de Hierofolymitano Itinere tence to hate and perfecute those who diffent (tom. iv. p. 773-815.), has been transfused from his creed.

(tom. vii. p. 664-848.). The last of these II. The Metrical History of the first Crufade, in vii books (p. 890-912.), is of fmall value or account.

20 If the reader will turn to the first fcene of the first part of Henry the Fourth, he will fee in the text of Shakspeare the natural feelings of enthufiafm; and in the notes of Dr. Johnson, the workings of a bigotted

VOL. VI.

voke;

LVIII. Juffice of the

0

C H A P. yoke; that, in peace and war, they affert a divine and indefeafible claim of universal empire; and that, in their orthodox creed, the unbelieving nations are continually threatened with the lofs of religion or liberty. In the eleventh century, the victorious arms of the Turks prefented a real and urgent apprehenfion of these loss. They had fubdued in lefs than thirty years the kingdoms of Afia, as far as Jerufalem and the Hellespont; and the Greek empire tottered on the verge of destruction. Besides an honeft sympathy for their brethren, the Latins had a right and intereft in the fupport of Conftantinople, the most important barrier of the West; and the privilege of defence must reach to prevent, as well as to repel, an impending affault. But this falutary purpofe might have been accomplished by a moderate fuccour; and our calmer reafon muft difclaim the innumerable hofts and remote operations, which overwhelmed Afia and depopulated Europe. II. Paleftine could add nothing to the ftrength or fafety of the Latins; and fanaticifm alone could pretend to juftify the conqueft of that diftant and narrow province. The Chriftians affirmed that their inalienable title to the promifed land had been fealed by the blood of their divine Saviour : it was their right and duty to refcue their inheritance from the unjust posseffors, who profaned his fepulchre, and oppreffed the pilgrimage of his difciples. Vainly would it be alleged that the pre-eminence of Jerufalem, and the fanctity of Paleftine, have been abolifhed with the Mofaic law; that the God of the Chriftians is not a local deity, and that the recovery of Bethlem or Calvary, his cradle or his tomb, will not atone for the violation of the moral precepts of the gofpel. Such arguments glance afide from the leaden shield of superstition; and the religious mind will not eafily relinquish its hold on the facred ground of mystery and miracle. III. But the holy wars which have been waged in every climate of the globe, from Egypt to Livonia, and from Peru to Hindoftan, require the support of some more general and flexible tenet. It has been often fuppofed, and fometimes affirmed, ' 8 firmed, that a difference of religion is a worthy caufe of hollility; C H A P. that obffinate unbelievers may be flain or fubdued by the champions of the crofs; and that grace is the fole fountain of dominion as well as of mercy. Above four hundred years before the first crufade, the eaftern and western provinces of the Roman empire had been acquired about the fame time, and in the fame manner, by the Barbarians of Germany and Arabia. Time and treaties had legitimated the conquests of the Christian Franks; but in the eyes of their subjects and neighbours, the Mahometan princes were still tyrants and ufurpers, who, by the arms of war or rebellion, might be lawfully driven from their unlawful poffeffion 21.

10

As the manners of the Christians were relaxed, their discipline of Spiritual mopenance 22 was enforced; and with the multiplication of fins, the dulgences. remedies were multiplied. In the primitive church, a voluntary and open confession prepared the work of atonement. In the middle ages, the bifhops and priefts interrogated the criminal; compelled him to account for his thoughts, words, and actions; and prefcribed the terms of his reconciliation with God. But as this diferetionary power might alternately be abufed by indulgence and tyranny, a rule of difcipline was framed, to inform and regulate the spiritual judges. This mode of legiflation was invented by the Greeks; their penitentials 23 were translated, or imitated, in the Latin church; and, in the time of Charlemagne, the clergy of every diocefe were provided with a code, which they prudently concealed from the knowledge of the vulgar. In this dangerous effimate of crimes

22 The penance, indulgences, &c. of the middle ages are amply difcuffed by Muratori (Antiquitat. Italiæ medii Ævi, tom. v. differt. Ixviii. p. 709-768.), and by M. Chais (Lettres fur les Jubiles et les Indulgences, oran. ii. lettres 21 & 22. p. 478 -- 555.), with petrated at Worms.

21 The vith Difcourfe of Fleury on Eccle. this difference, that the abufes of fuoerflition are mildly, perhaps faintly, exposed by the learned Italian, and peevifuly magnified by the Dutch minister.

> 23 Schmidt (Histoire des Allemands, tom.ii. p. 211-220. 452-462.) gives an abstract of the Penitential of Rhegino in the ninth, and of Burchard in the tenth, century. In one year, five-and-thirty murders were per-tives and in-

C 2

LVIII. -----

11

and

fiattical Hiltory (p. 223-261.) contains an accurate and rational view of the caufes and effects of the crufades.

C H A P. and punifhments, each cafe was fuppofed, each difference was re-LVIII. marked, by the experience or penetration of the monks; fome fins ~~~ are enumerated which innocence could not have fufpected, and others which reason cannot believe; and the more ordinary offences of fornication and adultery, of perjury and facrilege, of rapine and murder, were explated by a penance, which, according to the various circumftances, was prolonged from forty days to feven years. During this term of mortification, the patient was healed, the criminal was abfolved, by a falutary regimen of fafts and prayers : the diforder of his drefs was expressive of grief and remorfe; and he humbly abstained from all the bufinefs and pleafure of focial life. But the rigid execution of thefe laws would have depopulated the palace, the camp, and the city: the Barbarians of the Weft believed and trembled; but nature often rebelled against principle; and the magistrate laboured without effect to enforce the jurifdiction of the prieft. A literal accomplishment of penance was indeed impracticable; the guilt of adultery was multiplied by daily repetition; that of homicide might involve the maffacre of a whole people; each act was feparately numbered; and, in those times of anarchy and vice, a modeft finner might eafily incur a debt of three hundred years. His infolyency was relieved by a commutation, or indulgence : a year of penance was appreciated at twenty-fix folidi 24 of filver, about four pounds sterling, for the rich; at three folidi, or nine shillings, for the indigent: and these alms were foon appropriated to the use of the church, which derived, from the redemption of fins, an inexhauftible fource of opulence and dominion. A debt of three hundred years, or twelve hundred pounds, was enough to impoverish a plentiful fortune; the fcarcity of gold and filver was fupplied by the alienation of land; and the princely donations of Pepin and Charlemagne are expressly given for the remedy of their ²⁴ Till the xitth century, we may fupport the weight of filver, about the pound flerling. clear account of xii denarii, or pence, to the Our money is diminified to a third, and the folidus, or fhilling; and xx folidi to the pound French to a fiftieth, of this primitive flandard foul.

foul. It is a maxim of the civil law, that whofoever cannot pay C H A P. with his purfe, must pay with his body; and the practice of flagellation was adopted by the monks, a cheap, though painful, equivalent. By a fantastic arithmetic, a year of penance was taxed at three thousand lashes²⁵; and such was the skill and patience of a famous hermit, St. Dominic of the Iron Cuirafs²⁶, that in fix days he could difcharge an entire century, by a whipping of three hundred thousand stripes. His example was followed by many penitents of both fexes; and, as a vicarious facrifice was accepted, a flurdy disciplinarian might explate on his own back the fins of his benefactors 27. These compensations of the purse and the person introduced, in the eleventh century, a more honourable mode of fatisfaction. The merit of military fervice against the Saracens of Africa and Spain, had been allowed by the predeceffors of Urban the fecond. In the council of Clermont, that pope proclaimed a plenary indulgence to those who should enlist under the banner of the crofs; the absolution of all their fins, and a full receipt for all that might be due of canonical penance²³. The cold philosophy of modern times is incapable of feeling the impreffion that was made on a finful and fanatic world. At the voice of their paftor, the robber, the incendiary, the homicide, arofe by thousands to redeem their fouls, by repeating on the infidels the fame deeds which they had exercifed against their Christian brethren; and the terms of atonement were eagerly embraced by offenders of every rank and 25 Each century of lashes was fanctified Sancho Panza was a cheaper, and possibly with the recital of a pfalm; and the whole Pfalter, with the accompaniment of 15,000 fripes, was equivalent to five years.

²⁶ The Life and Atchievements of St. Dominic Loricatus, was composed by his friend and admirer, Peter Damianus. See Fleury, Hift. Ecclef. tom. xiii. p. 96-104. Baronius, A. D. 1056, Nº 7. who observes from Damianus, how fashionable, even among ladies of quality (fublimis generis), this explation (purgatorii genus) was grown.

27 At a quarter, or even half a rial a lash, not a more difhonest, workman. I remember in Pére Labat (Voyages en Italie, tom. vii. p. 16-29.) a very lively picture of the dexterity of one of these artills.

28 Quicunque pro folà devotione, non pro honoris vel pecuniæ adeptione, ad liberandam ecclefiam Dei Jerufalem profectus fuerit, iter illud pro omni pœnitentia reputetur. Canon. Concil. Claromont. ii. p. 829. Guibert styles it novum falutis genus (p. 471.), and is almost philosophical on the fubject.

denomina-

13

LVIII.

LVIII. -----

C II A P. denomination. None were pure; none were exempt from the guilt and penalty of fin; and those who were the least amenable to the justice of God and the church, were the best entitled to the temporal and eternal recompence of their pious courage. If they fell, the fpirit of the Latin clergy did not helitate to adorn their tomb with the crown of martyrdom 29; and flould they furvive, they could expect without impatience the delay and encreafe of their heavenly reward. They offered their blood to the Son of God, who had laid down his life for their falvation : they took up the crofs, and entered with confidence into the way of the Lord. His providence would watch over their fafety; perhaps his visible and miraculous power would fmooth the difficulties of their holy enterprife. The cloud and pillar of Jehovah had marched before the Ifraelites into the promiled land. Might not the Chriftians more reasonably hope that the rivers would open for their paffage; that the walls of the ftrongeft cities would fall at the found of their trumpets; and that the fun would be arrefted in his mid-career, to allow them time for the deftruction of the infidels?

Temporal and carnal motives.

Of the chiefs and foldiers who marched to the holy fepulchre, I will dare to affirm, that all were prompted by the fpirit of enthufiafm; the belief of merit, the hope of reward, and the affurance of divine aid. But I am equally perfuaded, that in many it was not the fole, that in fome it was not the leading, principle of action. The use and abuse of religion are feeble to ftem, they are ftrong and irrefiftible to impel, the ftream of national manners. Against the private wars of the Barbarians, their bloody tournaments, licentious loves, and judicial duels, the popes and fynods might ineffectually thunder. It is a more eafy tafk to provoke the metaphyfical difputes of the Greeks, to drive into the cloifter the victims of anarchy or defpotifm, to fanctify the patience of flaves and cowards, or to affume the merit of the humanity and benevolence of modern Christians. War and C H A P. exercife were the reigning pathons of the Franks or Latins; they were enjoined, as a penance, to gratify those paffions, to visit distant lands, and to draw their fwords against the nations of the East. Their victory, or even their attempt, would immortalife the names of the intrepid heroes of the crofs; and the pureft piety could not be infenfible to the most splendid prospect of military glory. In the petty quarrels of Europe, they fhed the blood of their friends and countrymen, for the acquifition perhaps of a caffle or a village. They could march with alacrity against the distant and hostile nations who were devoted to their arms: their fancy already grafped the golden fceptres of Afia; and the conqueft of Apulia and Sicily by the Normans might exalt to royalty the hopes of the most private adventurer. Chriftendom, in her rudeft flate, must have yielded to the climate and cultivation of the Mahometan countries; and their natural and artificial wealth had been magnified by the tales of pilgrims, and the gifts of an imperfect commerce. The vulgar, both the great and fmall, were taught to believe every wonder, of lands flowing with milk and honey, of mines and treasures, of gold and diamonds, of palaces of marble and jafper, and of odoriferous groves of cinnamon and frankincenfe. In this earthly paradife, each warrior depended on his fword to carve a plenteous and honourable eftablishment, which he measured only by the extent of his withes 30. Their vaffals and foldiers trufted their fortunes to God and their mafter: the fpoils of a Turkith emir might enrich the 'meaneft follower of the camp; and the flavour of the wines, the beauty of the Grecian women", were temptations more adapted to the nature,

14

 $^{^{22}}$ Such at leaft was the belief of the cru- p. 477); but the prayers for the repofe of faders, and fuch is the uniform flyle of the therr fouls, is inconfident in orthodox theo-hidorians (Efprit des Croifades, tom. iii. logy with the merits of martyrdom.

³⁰ The fame hopes were difplayed in the letters of the adventurers ad animandos qui in Francia refiderant. Hugh de Reitefte could boalt, that his fhare amounted to one abbey and ten cafiles, of the yearly value of 1500 caftles by the conquest of Aleppo (Guibert, men were handsomer than those of France. P. 554, 555.).

38 In his genuine or fistitious letter to the count of Flanders, Alexius ming'es with the danger of the church, and the relics of faints, the auri et argenti amor, and pulcherrimarum foeminarum voluptas (p. 476.); as if, marks, and that he should acquire an hundred fays the indignant Guibert, the Greek wo-than

LVIII.

^C H A P. LVIII. LVIII. than to the profefion, of the champions of the crofs. The love of freedom was a powerful incitement to the multitudes who were opprefied by feudal or ecclefiaftical tyranny. Under this holy fign the peafants and burghers, who were attached to the fervitude of the glebe, might efcape from an haughty lord, and transform themfelves and their families to a land of liberty. The monk might releafe himfelf from the difcipline of his convent : the debtor might fuspend the accumulation of ufury, and the purfuit of his creditors ; and outlaws and malefactors of every caft might continue to brave the laws and elude the punifhment of their crimes²².

Influence of example.

Thefe motives were potent and numerous : when we have fingly computed their weight on the mind of each individual, we must add the infinite feries, the multiplying powers of example and fashion. The first profelytes became the warmest and most effectual miffionaries of the crofs: among their friends and countrymen they preached the duty, the merit, and the recompence, of their holy vow; and the most reluctant hearers were infensibly drawn within the whirlpool of perfuafion and authority. The martial youths were fired by the reproach or fuspicion of cowardice; the opportunity of vifiting with an army the fepulchre of Chrift, was embraced by the old and infirm, by women and children, who confulted rather their zeal than their ftrength; and those who in the evening had derided the folly of their companions, were the most eager, the enfuing day, to tread in their footfteps. The ignorance, which magnified the hopes, diminished the perils, of the enterprise. Since the Turkish conqueft, the paths of pilgrimage were obliterated ; the chiefs themfelves had an imperfect notion of the length of the way and the ftate of their enemies; and fuch was the ftupidity of the people, that, at the fight of the first city or castle beyond the limits of their knowledge, they were ready to afk whether that was not the Jeru-

³¹ See the privileges of the Crucefignati, free- &c. The pope was their perpetual guardian dom from debt, ufury, injury, fecular justice, (Ducange, tom. ii. p. 651, 652.).

falem,

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

falem, the term and object of their labours. Yet the more prudent C H A P. of the crufaders, who were not fure that they fhould be fed from heaven with a flower of quails or manna, provided themfelves with those precious metals, which, in every country, are the reprefentatives of every commodity. To defray, according to their rank, the expences of the road, princes alienated their provinces, nobles their lands and caffles, peafants their cattle and the inftruments of hufbandry. The value of property was depreciated by the eager competition of multitudes; while the price of arms and horfes was raifed to an exorbitant height by the wants and impatience of the buyers 33. Those who remained at home, with fense and money, were enriched by the epidemical difeafe : the fovereigns acquired at a cheap rate the domains of their vallals; and the ecclefiaftical purchafers completed the payment by the affurance of their prayers. The crofs, which was commonly fewed on the garment, in cloth or filk, was inferibed by fome zealots on their fkin : an hot iron, or indelible liquor, was applied to perpetuate the mark; and a crafty monk, who shewed the miraculous impression on his breast, was repaid with the popular veneration and the richeft benefices of Paleftine 34.

The fifteenth of August had been fixed in the council of Clermont Departure of for the departure of the pilgrims: but the day was anticipated by faders, the thoughtlefs and needy crowd of plebeians; and I fhall briefly March, May, difpatch the calamities which they inflicted and fuffered, before I enter on the more ferious and fuccefsful enterprife of the chiefs. Early in the fpring, from the confines of France and Lorraine, above fixty thousand of the populace of both fexes flocked round the first mif-

the first cru-A. D. 1096, &c.

33 Guibert (p. 481.) paints in lively co- videre miraculum caro omnes emere, atque lours this general emotion. He was one vili vendere, &c. of the few contemporaries who had genius

3+ Some instances of these figmata are given enough to feel the aftonishing scenes that in the Esprit des Croisades (tom. iii. p. 169, were paffing before their eyes. Erat itaque &c.), from authors whom I have not feen.

. VOL. VI.

D

fionary

17

LVIII.

C H A P. fionary of the crufade, and prefied him with clamorous importunity LVIII. to lead them to the holy fepulchre. The hermit, affuming the character, without the talents or authority, of a general, impelled or obeyed the forward impulse of his votaries along the banks of the Rhine and Danube. Their wants and numbers foon compelled them to feparate, and his lieutenant, Walter the Pennylefs, a valiant though needy foldier, conducted a vanguard of pilgrims, whofe condition may be determined from the proportion of eight horfemen to fifteen thousand foot. The example and footsteps of Peter were clofely purfued by another fanatic, the monk Godefcal, whole fermons had fwept away fifteen or twenty thousand peafants from the villages of Germany. Their rear was again preffed by an herd of two hundred thousand, the most stupid and favage refuse of the people, who mingled with their devotion a brutal licence of rapine, proftitution, and drunkennefs. Some counts and gentlemen, at the head of three thousand horfe, attended the motions of the multitude to partake in the fpoil; but their genuine leaders (may we credit fuch folly?) were a goofe and a goat, who were carried in the front, and to whom thefe worthy Chriftians afcribed an infufion of the divine spirit 35. Of these, and of other bands of enthusiasts, the first and most easy warfare was against the Jews, the murderers of the Son of God. In the trading cities of the Mofelle and the Rhine, their colonics were numerous and rich; and they enjoyed, under the protection of the emperor and the bishops, the free exercise of their religion³⁶. At Verdun, Treves, Mentz, Spires, Worms, many > congregatione pedettris populi flulti et vefanæ levitatis, anserem quendam divino fpiritû afferebant afflatum, et cafellam non minus rodem repletam, et has fibi duces fecundæ viæ fecerant, &c. (Albert. Aquenfis, l. i. c. 31. p. 196.) Had these peasants founded an empire, they might have introduced, as in Egypt, the worthip of animals, which about A. D. 1170) they had recovered from their philosophic descendants would have these massacres.

35 Fuit et aliud scelus detestabile in hac glossed over with some specious and subtle allegory.

36 Benjamin of Tudela describes the state of his lewish brethren from Cologne along the Rhine : they were rich, generous, learned, hospitable, and lived in the eager hope of the Meffiah (Voyage, tom. i. p. 243-245. par Baratier). In feventy years (he wrote thousands

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

thousands of that unhappy people were pillaged and maffacred": C H A P. nor had they felt a more bloody ftroke fince the perfecution of Hadrian. A remnant was faved by the firmnels of their bifhops, who accepted a feigned and transient conversion ; but the more obstinate Jews opposed their fanaticism to the fanaticism of the Christians, barricadoed their houfes, and precipitating themfelves, their families, and their wealth, into the rivers or the flames, difappointed the malice, or at least the avarice, of their implacable foes.

Between the frontiers of Austria and the feat of the Byzantine Their demonarchy, the crufaders were compelled to traverse an interval of fix Hungary and hundred miles; the wild and defolate countries of Hungary 23 and Alia, A.D. 1096. Bulgaria. The foil is fruitful, and interfected with rivers; but it was then covered with moraffes and forefts, which fpread to a boundlefs extent, whenever man has ceafed to exercife his dominion over the earth. Both nations had imbibed the rudiments of Christianity; the Hungarians were ruled by their native princes; the Bulgarians by a lieutenant of the Greek emperor; but, on the flighteft provocation, their ferocious nature was rekindled, and ample provocation was afforded by the diforders of the first pilgrims. Agriculture must have been unskilful and languid among a people, whose cities were built of reeds and timber, which were deferted in the fummer feafon for the tents of hunters and shepherds. A fcanty supply of provifions was rudely demanded, foreibly feized, and greedily confumed; and on the first quarrel, the crufaders gave a loofe to indignation and revenge. But their ignorance of the country, of war, and of difeipline, exposed them to every fnare. The Greek præfect of Bulgaria commanded a regular force; at the trumpet of the Hungarian

Jews, which were renewed at each crufade, are coolly related. It is true, that St. Ber- Hungary in Otho of Frifingen, 1. ii. c. 31. in nard (epift. 363. tom. i. p. 329.) admonishes Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. vi. the Oriental Franks, non funt persequendi p. 665, 666. Judzi, non funt trucidandi. The contrary 37 Thefe maffacres and depredations on the doftrine had been preached by a rival monk. ³⁸ See the contemporary defcription of

D 2

ftruction in 19

LVIII.

king,

C H A P. king, the eighth or the tenth of his martial fubjects bent their bows and mounted on horfeback ; their policy was infidious, and their retaliation on these pious robbers was unrelenting and bloody 39. About a third of the naked fugitives, and the hermit Peter was of the number, efcaped to the Thracian mountains; and the emperor, who respected the pilgrimage and fuccour of the Latins, conducted them by fecure and eafy journies to Conftantinople, and advifed them to await the arrival of their brethren. For a while they remembered their faults and loffes; but no fooner were they revived by the hospitable entertainment, than their venom was again inflamed; they flung their benefactor, and neither gardens, nor palaces, nor churches, were fafe from their depredations. For his own fafety, Alexius allured them to pafs over to the Afiatic fide of the Bofphorus; but their blind impetuofity foon urged them to defert the flation which he had affigned, and to rufh headlong against the Turks, who occupied the road of Jerufalem. The hermit, confcious of his fhame, had withdrawn from the camp to Conftantinople; and his lieutenant, Walter the Pennylefs, who was worthy of a better command, attempted without fuccels to introduce fome order and prudence among the herd of favages. They feparated in queft of prey, and themfelves fell an eafy prey to the arts of the fultan. By a rumour that their foremost companions were rioting in the spoils of his capital, Soliman tempted the main body to defcend into the plain of Nice; they were overwhelmed by the Turkish arrows; and a pyramid of bones 4° informed their companions of the place of their defeat. Of the first crufaders, three hundred thousand had already > fade, which they involve in a fingle paffage. Hungariæ, tom. iii. p. 19-53.). Katona, like ourselves, can only quote the Mallevilla, Zemlin; Fluvius Marce, Savus; felves as the materials of a wall. 6 39 The old Hungarians, without excepting Lintax, Leith; Mefebroch, or Merfeburg, Ouar, Turotzius, are ill informed of the first cru- or Mofon; Tollenburg, Pragg (de Regibus

4º Anna Comnena (Alexias, 1. x. p. 287.) writers of France; but he compares with local defcribes this os wy xohuro; as a mountain it whow fcience the ancient and modern geography. 201 βαθος και πλατος αξιολογωτατον. In the fiege Ante portam Cyperon, is Sopron or Pofon; of Nice, fuch were used by the Franks them-perished.

20

perished, before a fingle city was refcued from the infidels, before C H A P. LVIII. their graver and more noble brethren had completed the preparations of their enterprife ".

None of the great fovereigns of Europe embarked their perfons in The chiefs of the first crufade. The emperor Henry the fourth was not difposed fade. to obey the fummons of the pope: Philip the first of France was occupied by his pleafures; William Rufus of England by a recent conqueft; the kings of Spain were engaged in a domeftic war against the Moors; and the northern monarchs of Scotland, Denmark 42, Sweden, and Poland, were yet ftrangers to the paffions and interefts of the South. The religious ardour was more ftrongly felt by the princes of the fecond order, who held an important place in the feudal fystem. Their fituation will naturally cast under four distinct heads the review of their names and characters; but I may efcape fome needlefs repetition, by obferving at once, that courage and the exercife of arms are the common attribute of these Christian adven-

41 To fave time and space, I shall represent, in a short table, the particular references to the great events of the first crufade.

The Crowd.	The The Road to Chiefs. Conftantinople.		Nice and Afia Minor.	Edeffa.	Antioch.	The Battle.	The Holy Lance.	Conquest of Je- rufalem.
II. Robertus Monachus p. 33, 34. p. III. Baldricus - p. 89. IV. Raimundus des 7	. 2. . 35, 36. p. 36, 37. p. 91-93. p. 139, 140.	p. 37, 38.	p. 5-7. p. 39-45. p. 94-101.	Ξ	p. 45-55.		p. 61, 62. p. 116-119.	p. 26-29. p. 74-81. p. 130-138. p. 173-183.
Agiles - S V. Albertus Aquenfis 1. i. c. 7-31.	l. ii. c. 1-8.	{ 1. ii. c. } 9—19. }	{1.ii.c.20-43. 1.iii.c.1-4.}	$ \begin{cases} l. iii.c. 5-32. \\ l. iv. 9. 12. \\ l. v. 15-22. \end{cases} $	$ \left\{ \begin{array}{c} 1. \text{iii. c. 33} \\ -66. \text{iv.} \\ 1-26. \end{array} \right\} $	{1.iv. c. } 7-56. }	l. iv. c. 43.	{ 1.v. c. 45:46. { I.vi.c.150. }
VI. Fulcherius Car- nctenfis - P. 384. VII. Guibertus - P. 482. 485. VIII. Willermus 7	- p. 385, 386. - p. 485. 489.	p. 485-490.	{ P.491493. }	p. 496, 497.	p. $390 - 392$. $\left\{ p. 498. \\ 506. 512. \right\}$	p. 512-523.	{ p. 520. }	p. 396—400. p. 523—537. S l.vii. c. 1-25. 7
Tyrenfis 51-1. c. 13-30. 1. 1X. Radulphus Ca- {	• i• • • 17• } 13.17• 22. 5	{c.8-13. 18,19.}	21-47. 21-47.			c. 72-91.	c. 100—109.	{l.viii.c.1-24. } c. 111—138.
X. Bernardus The- } c. 7-11.	- c. 11-20.	C. 11-20.	C. 21-25.	c. 26	c. 27-38.	c. 39—52.	c. 45.	c. 54-77.

has doubted, and might have difbelieved, still lives in the poem of Tasso (tom. iv. the crufade and tragic death of prince Sueno, p. 111-115.). with 1500 or 15,000 Danes, who was cut off

42 The author of the Esprit des Croifades by sultan Soliman in Cappadocia, but who turers.

21

the first cru-

C H A P. turers. I. The first rank both in war and council is justly due to Godfrey of Bouillon; and happy would it have been for the cru-I. Godfrey of faders, if they had trufted themfelves to the fole conduct of that accomplished hero, a worthy representative of Charlemagne, from whom he was defcended in the female line. His father was of the noble race of the counts of Boulogne: Brabant, the lower province of Lorraine 43, was the inheritance of his mother; and by the emperor's bounty, he was himfelf invefted with that ducal title, which has been improperly transferred to his lordfhip of Bouillon in the Ardennes⁴⁴. In the fervice of Henry the fourth, he bore the great ftandard of the empire, and pierced with his lance the breaft of Rodolph, the rebel king: Godfrey was the first who ascended the walls of Rome; and his fickness, his vow, perhaps his remorfe for bearing arms against the pope, confirmed an early resolution of vifiting the holy fepulchre, not as a pilgrim, but a deliverer. His valour was matured by prudence and moderation; his piety, though blind, was fincere; and, in the tumult of a camp, he practifed the real and fictitious virtues of a convent. Superior to the private factions of the chiefs, he referved his enmity for the enemies of Chrift; and though he gained a kingdom by the attempt, his pure and difinterefted zeal was acknowledged by his rivals. Godfrey of Bouillon 45 was accompanied by his two brothers, by Euftace the elder, who had fucceeded to the county of Boulogne, and by the younger, Baldwin, a character of more ambiguous virtue. The duke of Lorraine was alike celebrated on either fide of the Rhine: from his birth and education he was equally converfant with the French and Teutonic

> 43 The fragments of the kingdoms of Lo- logne, part i. p. 54. Brabant, part ii. Meufe; the first has preferved its name, which in the latter has been changed into that of Brabant (Valef. Notit. Gall. p. 283-288.). in William of Tyre, l. ix. c. 5-8.; his pre-the Abbe de Longuerue, the articles of Boutharingia, or Lorraine, were broken into the p. 47, 48. Bouillon, p. 134. On his detwo duchies, of the Mofelle, and of the parture, Godfrey fold or pawned Bouillon to the church for 1300 marks.

45 See the family character of Godfrey, 45 See, in the Defcription of France, by vious defign on Guibert (p. 485.), his ficknefs and vow, in Bernard. Thetaur. (c. 78.). languages :

22

LVIII.

Bouillon.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

languages: the barons of France, Germany, and Lorraine, affembled C H A P. their vaffals; and the confederate force that marched under his banner was composed of fourfcore thousand foot and about ten thousand horse.

II. In the parliament that was held at Paris, in the king's prefence. II. Hugh of about two months after the council of Clermont, Hugh count of Robert of Vermandois was the most confpicuous of the princes who affumed the crofs. But the appellation of the great was applied, not fo much to his merit or poffeffions (though neither were contemptible), as to Chartres, &c. the royal birth of the brother of the king of France 46. Robert duke of Normandy was the eldeft fon of William the Conqueror; but on his father's death he was deprived of the kingdom of Eugland, by his own indolence and the activity of his brother Rufus. The worth of Robert was degraded by an exceffive levity and eafrnefs of temper: his cheerfulnefs feduced him to the indulgence of pleafure; his profuse liberality impoverished the prince and people; his indifcriminate clemency multiplied the number of offenders; and the amiable qualities of a private man became the effential defects of a fovereign. For the trifling fum of ten thoufand marks he mortgaged Normandy during his abfence to the English usurper 47; but his engagement and behaviour in the holy war, announced in Robert a reformation of manners, and reftored him in fome degree to the public efteem. Another Robert was count of Flanders, a royal province, which, in this century, gave three queens to the thrones of France, England, and Denmark : he was furnamed the fword and lance of the Christians; but in the exploits of a foldier, he fometimes forgot the duties of a general. Stephen, count of Chartres, of Blois, and of Troyes, was one of the richeft princes of the age;

46 Anna Comnena fuppofes, that Hugh was proud of his nobility, riches, and power (1. x. p. 288.): the two last articles appear more equivocal; but an suyma, which feven hundred years ago was famous in the palace of Conflantinople, attefts the ancient dignity of the Capetian family of France.

673. in Camden. Normanicis. He pawned the duchy for one hundredth part of the prefent yearly revenue. Ten thoufand marks may be equal to five hundred thoufand livres, and Normandy annually yields fifty-feven millions to the king (Necker, Administration des Finances, tom. i. p. 287.).

23

LVIII.

Vermandois. Normandy. Robert of Flanders, Stephen of ⁴⁷ Will. Gemeticenfis, 1. vii. c. 7. p. 672, 10

and

LVIII.

III. Raymond of Tholoufe.

C H A P. and the number of his caftles has been compared to the three hundred and fixty-five days of the year. His mind was improved by literature; and in the council of the chiefs, the eloquent Stephen43 was chosen to discharge the office of their prefident. These four were the principal leaders of the French, the Normans, and the pilgrims of the British isles: but the lift of the barons who were poffeffed of three or four towns, would exceed, fays a contemporary, the catalogue of the Trojan war 49. III. In the fouth of France, the command was affumed by Adhemar, bifhop of Puy, the pope's legate, and by Raymond, count of St. Giles and Tholoufe, who added the prouder titles of duke of Narbonne and marquis of Provence. The former was a respectable prelate, alike qualified for this world and the next. The latter was a veteran warrior, who had fought against the Saracens of Spain, and who confecrated his declining age, not only to the deliverance, but to the perpetual fervice, of the holy fepulchre. His experience and riches gave him a ftrong afcendant in the Christian camp, whose distress he was often able, and sometimes willing, to relieve. But it was eafier for him to extort the praife of the Infidels, than to preferve the love of his fubjects and affociates. His eminent qualities were clouded by a temper, haughty, envious, and obstinate; and, though he refigned an ample patrimony, for the caufe of God, his piety, in the public opinion, was not exempt from avarice and ambition⁵⁰. A mercantile, rather than a martial fpirit, prevailed among his provincials 51, a common name, which included the natives of Auvergne and Languedoc⁵², the vaffals

of

45 His original letter to his wife, is inferted in the Spicilegium of Dom. Luc. d'Acheri, tom. iv. and quoted in the Efprit des Croifades, tom. i. p. 63.

49 Unius enim, duûm, trium feu quatuor oppidorum dominos quis numeret? quorum tanta fuit copia, ut non vix totidem Trojana obfidio coegiffe putetur (Ever the lively and interesting Guibert, p. 486.).

5° It is fingular enough, that Raymond of hiftory of the crufades, fhould fhine as the first of heroes in the writings of the Greeks (Anna Comnen. Alexiad, I. x, xi.) and the Arabians (Longueruana, p. 129.).

52 Omnes de Burgundiâ, et Alverniâ, et Vasconia, et Gothi (of Languedoc), provinciales appellabantur, cæteri vero Francigenæ et hoc in exercitu; inter hoftes autem Franci dicebantur. Raymond des Agiles, p. 144.

52 The town of his birth, or first appanage, St. Giles, a fecond character in the genuine was confectated to St. Ægidius, whofe name, 33 of the kingdom of Burgundy or Arles. From the adjacent frontier C H A P. of Spain, he drew a band of hardy adventurers; as he marched through Lombardy, a crowd of Italians flocked to his flandard, and his united force confifted of one hundred thousand horse and foot. If Raymond was the first to enlift and the last to depart, the delay may be excufed by the greatness of his preparation and the promile of an everlafting farewell. IV. The name of Bohemond, the IV. Bohefon of Robert Guiscard, was already famous by his double victory Tancred. over the Greek emperor : but his father's will had reduced him to the principality of Tarentum, and the remembrance of his Eaftern trophies, till he was awakened by the rumour and paffage of the French pilgrims. It is in the perfon of this Norman chief that we may feek for the cooleft policy and ambition with a fmall allay of religious fanaticism. His conduct may justify a belief that he had fecretly directed the defign of the pope, which he affected to fecond with aftonishment and zeal: at the fiege of Amalphi, his example and discourse inflamed the paffions of a confederate army; he inftantly tore his garment to fupply croffes for the numerous candidates, and prepared to vifit Conftantinople and Afia at the head of ten thousand horse and twenty thousand foot. Several princes of the Norman race accompanied this veteran general; and his coufin Tancred 33 was the partner, rather than the fervant, of the war. In the accomplished character of Tancred, we discover all the virtues of a perfect knight⁵⁴, the true spirit of chivalry, which inspired the generous as early as the first crufade, was corrupted by the French into St. Gilles, or St. Giles. It is fituate in the Lower Languedoc, between Nifmes and the Rhône, and still boasts a collegiate church of the foundation of Raymond (Melanges tirés d'une grande Bibliotheque, tom. xxxvii. p. 51.).

24

fifter of the great Robert Guiscard; his father, poem, and in the first crusade, a fabulous the marquis Odo the Good. It is fingular hero, the brave and amorous Rinaldo (x. 75. VOL. VI. E enough, that the family and country of fo illustrious a perfon should be unknown ; but Muratori reafonably conjectures that he was an Italian, and perhaps of the race of the marquiffes of Montferrat in Piedmont (Script. tom. v. p. 281, 282.).

54 To gratify the childifh vanity of the 53 The mother of Tancred was Emma, house of Este, Tasso has inferted in his xvii.

mond and

C H A P. generous fentiments and focial offices of man, far better than the LVIII. bafe philosophy, or the bafer religion, of the times. ------

> Between the age of Charlemagne and that of the crufades, a revolution had taken place among the Spaniards, the Normans, and the French, which was gradually extended to the reft of Europe. The fervice of the infantry was degraded to the plebeians; the cavalry formed the ftrength of the armies, and the honourable name of miles, or foldier, was confined to the gentlemen^{ss} who ferved on horfeback, and were invefted with the character of knighthood. The dukes and counts, who had usurped the rights of fovereignty, divided the provinces among their faithful barons : the barons diftributed among their vaffals the fiefs or benefices of their jurifdiction; and these military tenants, the peers of each other and of their lord, composed the noble or equestrian order, which difdained to conceive the peafant or burgher as of the fame fpecies with themfelves. The dignity of their birth was preferved by pure and equal alliances; their fons alone, who could produce four quarters or lines of anceftry, without fpot or reproach, might legally pretend to the honour of knighthood; but a valiant plebeian was fometimes enriched and ennobled by the fword, and became the father of a new race. A fingle knight could impart, according to his judgment, the character which he received; and the warlike fovereigns of Europe derived more glory from this perfonal diffinction, than from the luftre of their diadem. This ceremony, of which fome traces may be xvii. 66-94.). He might borrow his name not less chimerical than the hero of Taffo froma Rinaldo, with the Aquila bianca Estenfe, who vanquished, as the standard-bearer of the Roman church, the emperor Frederic I. (Storia Imperiale di Ricobaldo, in Muratori Script. Ital. tom. ix. p. 360, Ariofto, Orlando Furiofo, iii. 30.). But, 1. The diftance of fixty years between the youth of the two Rinaldos, destroys their identity. 2. The Storia Imperiale is a forgery of the conte Boyardo, at nonymous with ingenuus. Selden inclines to the end of the x1th century (Muratori, p.281-289.). 3. This Rinaldo, and his exploits, are as probable.

(Muratori, Antichità Effenfe, tom.i. p. 350.). ss Of the words gentilis, gentilhomme, gentleman, two etymologies are produced : 1. From the Barbarians of the fifth century, the foldiers, and at length the conquerors of the Roman empire, who were vain of their foreign nobility; and, z. From the fenfe of the civilians, who confider gentilis as fythe first, but the latter is more pure, as well found

Chivalry.

4

found in Tacitus and the woods of Germany⁵⁶, was in its origin C H A P. fimple and profane; the candidate, after fome previous trial, was invefted with his fword and fpurs; and his cheek or fhoulder were touched with a flight blow, as an emblem of the laft affront, which it was lawful for him to endure. But fuperflition mingled in every public and private action of life; in the holy wars, it fanctified the profession of arms; and the order of chivalry was affimilated in its rights and privileges to the facred orders of priefthood. The bath and white garment of the novice, were an indecent copy of the regeneration of baptifm : his fword, which he offered on the altar, was bleffed by the ministers of religion; his folemn reception was preceded by fasts and vigils; and he was created a knight in the name of God, of St. George, and of St. Michael the archangel. He fwore to accomplish the duties of his profession; and education, example, and the public opinion, were the inviolable guardians of his oath. As the champion of God and the ladies (I blufh to unite fuch difcordant names), he devoted himfelf to fpeak the truth ; to maintain the right ; to protect the diftreffed; to practife courtefy, a virtue lefs familiar to the ancients; to purfue the infidels; to defpife the allurements of eafe and fafety: and to vindicate in every perilous adventure the honour of his character. The abufe of the fame fpirit provoked the illiterate knight to difdain the arts of industry and peace; to effeem himfelf the fole judge and avenger of his own injuries; and proudly to neglect the laws of civil fociety and military difcipline. Yet the benefits of this inftitution, to refine the temper of Barbarians, and to infuse fome principles, of faith, juffice, and humanity, were ftrongly felt, and have been often obferved. The afperity of national prejudice was foftened; and the community of religion and arms fpread a fimilar colour and generous emulation over the face of Chriftendom. Abroad, in enterprife and pilgrimage, at home in martial exercife, 56 Framea scutoque juvenem ornant. Tacitus, Germania, c. 13.

E 2

the

C H A P. the warriors of every country were perpetually affociated; and im-LVIII. partial tafte must prefer a Gothic tournament to the Olympic games of claffic antiquity 57. Inftead of the naked spectacles which corrupted the manners of the Greeks, and banifhed from the ftadium the virgins and matrons; the pompous decoration of the lifts was crowned with the prefence of chafte and high-born beauty, from whofe hands the conqueror received the prize of his dexterity and courage. The skill and strength that were exerted in wrestling and boxing, bear a diftant and doubtful relation to the merit of a foldier; but the tournaments, as they were invented in France, and eagerly adopted both in the Eaft and Weft, prefented a lively image of the bufinels of the field. The fingle combats, the general fkirmish, the defence of a pass, or castle, were rehearsed as in actual fervice; and the contest, both in real and mimic war, was decided by the fuperior management of the horfe and lance. The lance was the proper and peculiar weapon of the knight: his horfe was of a large and heavy breed; but this charger, till he was roufed by the approaching danger, was ufually led by an attendant, and he quietly rode a pad or palfrey of a more eafy pace. His helmet, and fword, his greaves, and buckler, it would be fuperfluous to defcribe; but I may remark, that at the period of the crufades, the armour was lefs ponderous than in later times; and that, inftead of a maffy cuirafs, his breaft was defended by an hauberk or coat of mail. When their long lances were fixed in the reft, the warriors furioufly fpurred their horfes against the foe; and the light cavalry of the Turks and Arabs could feldom ftand against the direct and impetuous weight of their charge. Each knight was attended to the field by his faithful fquire, a youth of equal birth and fimilar hopes; he was folsheir authority and reafons, the reader may

57 The athletic exercises, particularly the weigh the apology of Lucian, in the characcceftus and pancratium, were condemned by ter of Solon. See Weft on the Olympic Lycurgus, Philopœmen, and Galen, a law. Games, in his Pindar, vol. ii. p. 86-96. giver, a general, and a phyfician. Againft 245-248.

lowed

28

3

lowed by his archers and men at arms, and four, or five, or fix C H A P. foldiers, were computed as the furniture of a complete lance. In the expeditions to the neighbouring kingdoms or the Holy Land. the duties of the feudal tenure no longer fubfilted; the voluntary fervice of the knights and their followers was either prompted by zeal or attachment, or purchased with rewards and promifes; and the numbers of each fquadron were meafured by the power, the wealth, and the fame of each independent chieftain. They were diftinguifhed by his banner, his armorial coat, and his cry of war; and the most ancient families of Europe must feek in these atchievements the origin and proof of their nobility. In this rapid portrait of chivalry, I have been urged to anticipate on the ftory of the crufades, at once an effect, and a caufe, of this memorable inftitution 58.

Such were the troops, and fuch the leaders, who affumed the crofs March of the for the deliverance of the holy fepulchre. As foon as they were relieved by the abfence of the plebeian multitude, they encouraged each other, by interviews and meffages, to accomplish their vow and haften their departure. Their wives and fifters were defirous of partaking the danger and merit of the pilgrimage; their portable treafures was conveyed in bars of filver and gold; and the princes and barons were attended by their equipage of hounds and hawks to amufe their leifure and to fupply their table. The difficulty of procuring fubfiftence for fo many myriads of men and horles, engaged them to feparate their forces; their choice or fituation determined the road; and it was agreed to meet in the neighbourhood of Conftantinople, and from thence to begin their operations against the Turks. From the banks of the Meufe and the Mofelle, Godfrey of Bouillon followed the direct way of Germany, Hungary, and Bulgaria : and, as long as he exercifed the fole command, every ftep princes to Constantinople, A. D. 1096, August 15-A. D. 1097, May.

58 On the curious subjects of knighthood, c. 1. 3. 5. 8.), Ducange (Gloff. Latin. knights-fervice, nobility, arms, cry of war, tom. iv. p. 398-412, &c. Differtations fur banners, and tournaments, an ample fund of Joinville (i. vi-xii, p. 127-142, p. 165-information may be fought in Selden (Opera, 222.), and M. de St. Palaye (Memoires fur la tom. iii. part i. Titles of Honour, part ii. Chevalerie).

29

LVIII.

afforded `

C H A P. afforded fome proof of his prudence and virtue. On the confines LVIII. of Hungary he was stopped three weeks by a Christian people, to whom the name, or at leaft the abufe, of the crofs was juftly odious. The Hungarians still smarted with the wounds which they had received from the first pilgrims: in their turn they had abused the right of defence and retaliation; and they had reafon to apprehend a fevere revenge from an hero of the fame nation, and who was engaged in the fame caufe. But, after weighing the motives and the events, the virtuous duke was content to pity the crimes and misfortunes of his worthlefs brethren; and his twelve deputies, the meffengers of peace, requefted in his name a free paffage and an equal market. To remove their fufpicions, Godfrey trufted himfelf, and afterwards his brother, to the faith of Carloman king of Hungary, who treated them with a fimple but hofpitable entertainment: the treaty was fanctified by their common gofpel; and a proclamation, under pain of death, reftrained the animofity and licence of the Latin foldiers. From Auftria to Belgrade, they traverfed the plains of Hungary, without enduring or offering an injury; and the proximity of Carloman, who hovered on their flanks with his numerous cavalry, was a precaution not lefs ufeful for their fafety than for his own. They reached the banks of the Save; and no fooner had they paffed the river, than the king of Hungary reftored the hoftages, and faluted their departure with the faireft wifnes for the fuccefs of their enterprife. With the fame conduct and discipline, Godfrey pervaded the woods of Bulgaria and the frontiers of Thrace; and might congratulate himfelf, that he had almost reached the first term of his pilgrimage, without drawing his fword against a Chriftian adverfary. After an eafy and pleafant journey through Lombardy, from Turin to Aquileia, Raymond and his provincials marched forty days through the favage country of Dalmatia ⁵⁹ and Sclavonia. The

> ⁵⁹ The Familiæ Dalmaticæ of Ducange hiftorians are recent and fabulous, the Greeks are meagre and imperfect; the national remote and carelefs. In the year 1104, Coloman

The weather was a perpetual fog; the land was mountainous and C H A P. defolate; the natives were either fugitive or hoftile: loofe in their religion and government, they refused to furnish provisions or guides: murdered the ftragglers; and exercifed by night and day the vigilance of the count, who derived more fecurity from the punifhment of fome captive robbers than from his interview and treaty with the prince of Scodra 6°. His march between Durazzo and Conftantinople was haraffed, without being ftopped, by the peafants and foldiers of the Greek emperor; and the fame faint and ambiguous hoftility was prepared for the remaining chiefs, who paffed the Adriatic from the coaft of Italy. Bohemond had arms and veffels, and forefight and difcipline; and his name was not forgotten in the provinces of Epirus and Theffaly. Whatever obftacles he encountered were furmounted by his military conduct and the valour of Tancred; and if the Norman prince affected to fpare the Greeks, he gorged his foldiers with the full plunder of an heretical caftle ". The nobles of France preffed forwards with the vain and thoughtlefs ardour of which their nation has been fometimes accufed. From the Alps to Apulia the march of Hugh the Great, of the two Roberts, and of Stephen of Chartres, through a wealthy country, and amidft the applauding Catholics, was a devout or triumphant progrefs: they killed the feet of the Roman pontiff; and the golden ftandard of St. Peter was delivered to the brother of the French Coloman reduced the maritime country as Militare del Impero Ottomano, p. 128.). far as Trau and Salona (Katona, Hift. Crit. tom. iii. p. 195-207.).

60 Scodras appears in Livy as the capital and fortrefs of Gentius king of the Illyrians, arx munitifima, afterwards a Roman colony (Cellarius, tom. i. p. 393, 394.). It is now called Iscodar, or -Scutari (d'Anville, Geographie Ancienne, tom. i. p. 164.). The Baldric adds, as a praise, Omnes siquidem fanjiak (now a pasha) of Scutari, or Schendeire, was the viiith under the Beglerbeg of Romania, and furnished 600 soldiers on a revenue of 78,787 rix-dollars (Marfigli, Stato monarch.

61 In Pelagonia caftrum hæreticum spoliatum cum suis habitatoribus igne combuffere. Nec id eis injuria contigit : quia illorum deteitabilis fermo et cancer ferpebat. jamque circumjacentes regiones suo pravo dogmate fædaverat (Robert. Mon. p. 36, 37.). After coolly relating the fact, the archbishop illi viatores, Judeos, hæreticos, Saracenos æqualiter habent exofoe; quos omnes appellant inimicos Dei (p. 92.).

LVIII. -----

C H A P. monarch ". But in this vifit of piety and pleafure, they neglected to fecure the feafon, and the means, of their embarkation : the winter was infenfibly loft ; their troops were feattered and corrupted in the towns of Italy. They feparately accomplished their paffage, regardless of fafety or dignity: and within nine months from the feast of the Affumption, the day appointed by Urban, all the Latin princes had reached Conftantinople. But the count of Vermandois was produced as a captive ; his foremost veffels were fcattered by a tempeft; and his perfon, against the law of nations, was detained by the lieutenants of Alexius. Yet the arrival of Hugh had been announced by four-and-twenty knights in golden armour, who commanded the emperor to revere the general of the Latin Chriftians, the brother of the King of kings 63.

Policy of the emperor AlexiusComnenus, A. D. 1096, December-A. D. 1097, May.

In fome Oriental tale I have read the fable of a fhepherd, who was ruined by the accomplifhment of his own wifhes: he had prayed for water; the Ganges was turned into his grounds, and his flock and cottage were fwept away by the inundation. Such was the fortune, or at leaft the apprehenfion, of the Greek emperor Alexius Comnenus, whofe name has already appeared in this hiftory, and whole conduct is fo differently reprefented by his daughter Anne⁶⁴, and by the Latin writers⁶⁵. In the council of Placentia, Πετς 8 σημαιαν (Alexiad, 1. x. p. 288.).

63 Ο Βασιλευς των βασιλεων, και αρχηγος τυ Φραγγικε ερατευματος απαντος. This Oriental pomp is extravagant in a count of Vermandois; but the patriot Ducange repeats with much complacency (Not. ad Alexiad. p. 352, 353. Differt. xxvii. fur Joinville, p. 315.), the paffages of Matthew Paris (A. D. 1254.) and Froiffard (vol. iv. p. 201.), which ftyle the king of France, rex regum, and chef de tous les rois Chretiens.

December, A. D. 1083, indiction vii. (Alexiad, l. vi. p. 166, 167.). At thirteen, the time of the first crufade, she was nubile, and per- that of a Jesuit.

62 Αναλαβομενος απο Ρωμής την χουσην το 'Αγιο haps married to the younger Nicephorus Bryennius, whom the fondly flyles TOV EMON Kairaca (1. x. p. 295, 296.). Some moderns have imagined, that her enmity to Bohemond was the fruit of disappointed love. In the transactions of Conftantinople and Nice, her partial accounts (Alex. 1. x, xi. p. 283-317.) may be oppofed to the partiality of the Latins, but in their fubsequent exploits she is brief and ignorant.

65 In their views of the character and conduct of Alexius, Maimbourg has favoured 64 Anna Comnena was born the 1st of the Catholic Franks, and Voltaire has been partial to the fchi/matic Greeks. 'The prejudice of a philosopher is less excusable than his ambafiadors had folicited a moderate fuccour, perhaps of ten C H A P. thousand foldiers : but he was aftonished by the approach of so many potent chiefs and fanatic nations. The emperor fluctuated between hope and fear, between timidity and courage; but in the crooked policy which he miftook for wifdom, I cannot believe, I cannot difcern, that he maliciously conspired against the life or honour of the French heroes. The promiscuous multitudes of Peter the hermit, were favage beafts, alike deftitute of humanity and reafon : nor was it was possible for Alexius to prevent or deplore their destruction. The troops of Godfrey and his peers were lefs contemptible, but not less fuspicious, to the Greek emperor. Their motives might be pure and pious; but he was equally alarmed by his knowledge of the ambitious Bohemond, and his ignorance of the Transalpine chiefs: the courage of the French was blind and headftrong; they might be tempted by the luxury and wealth of Greece, and elated by the view and opinion of their invincible ftrength; and Jerusalem might be forgotten in the prospect of Constantinople. After a long march and painful abstinence, the troops of Godfrey encamped in the plains of Thrace; they heard with indignation, that their brother, the count of Vermandois, was imprisoned by the Greeks; and their reluctant duke was compelled to indulge them in fome freedom of retaliation and rapine. They were appealed by the fubmiffion of Alexius; he promifed to fupply their camp; and as they refufed in the midft of winter, to pass the Bosphorus, their quarters were affigned among the gardens and palaces on the fhores of that narrow fea. But an incurable jealoufy ftill rankled in the minds of the two nations, who defpifed each other as flaves and Barbarians. Ignorance is the ground of fufpicion, and fufpicion was inflamed into daily provocations : prejudice is blind, hunger is deaf; and Alexius is acculed of a defign to flarve or affault the Latins in a dangerous post, on all fides encompassed with the waters 66. Godfrey founded his 66 Between the Black Sea, the Bosphorus, summer, and runs fifteen miles through a flat and the river Barbyfes, which is deep in meadow. Its communication with Europe VOL. VI. and

32

LVIII.

1

C H A P. his trumpets, burft the net, overfpread the plain, and infulted the fuburbs: but the gates of Conftantinople were ftrongly fortified; the ramparts were lined with archers; and after a doubtful conflict, both parties liftened to the voice of peace and religion. The gifts and promifes of the emperor infenfibly foothed the fierce fpirit of the western strangers; as a Christian warrior, he rekindled their zeal for the profecution of their holy enterprife, which he engaged to fecond with his troops and treasures. On the return of fpring, Godfrey was perfuaded to occupy a pleafant and plentiful camp in Afia; and no fooner had he paffed the Bofphorus, than the Greek veffels were fuddenly recalled to the opposite flore. The fame policy was repeated with the fucceeding chiefs, who were fwayed by the example, and weakened by the departure, of their foremost companions. By his skill and diligence, Alexius prevented the union of any two of the confederate armies at the fame moment under the walls of Conflantinople; and before the feaft of the Pentecoft not a Latin pilgrim was left on the coaft of Europe.

He obtains the homage of the crufaders.

The fame arms which threatened Europe, might deliver Afia, and repel the Turks from the neighbouring fhores of the Bofphorus and The fair provinces from Nice to Antioch were the Hellespont. recent patrimony of the Roman emperor; and his ancient and perpetual claim still embraced the kingdoms of Syria and Egypt. In his enthusiasm, Alexius indulged, or affected, the ambitious hope of leading his new allies to fubvert the thrones of the Eaft: but the calmer dictates of reafon and temper diffuaded him from expofing his royal perfon to the faith of unknown and lawlefs Barbarians. His prudence, or his pride, was content with extorting from the French princes an oath of homage and fidelity, and a folemn promife, that they would either reftore, or hold, their Afiatic conquefts, as the humble and loyal vaffals of the Roman empire. Their indeand Conftantinople is by the flone bridge of Bolphoro Thracio, 1. ii. c. 3. Ducange, the Blacherna, which in fucceffive ages was C. P. Christiana, 1. iv. c. 2. p. 179.). reftored by Justinian and Bafil (Gyllins de pendent

8

LVIII.

Lang

pendent spirit was fired at the mention of this foreign and voluntary C H A P. fervitude : they fucceflively yielded to the dextrous application of gifts and flattery; and the first profelytes became the most eloquent and effectual miffionaries to multiply the companions of their shame. The pride of Hugh of Vermandois was foothed by the honours of his captivity; and in the brother of the French king, the example of fubmiffion was prevalent and weighty. In the mind of Godfrey of Bouillon every human confideration was fubordinate to the glory of God and the fuccefs of the crufade. He had firmly refifted the temptations of Bohemond and Raymoud, who urged the attack and conquest of Constantinople. Alexius esteemed his virtues, defervedly named him the champion of the empire, and dignified his homage with the filial name and the rites of adoption 67. The hateful Bohemond was received as a true and ancient ally ; and if the emperor reminded him of former hostilities, it was only to praife the valour that he had difplayed, and the glory that he had acquired, in the fields of Durazzo and Lariffa. The fon of Guifcard was lodged and entertained, and ferved with Imperial pomp: one day, as he paffed through the gallery of the palace, a door was carelefsly left open to expose a pile of gold and filver, of filk and gems, of curious and cofly furniture, that was heaped in feeming diforder, from the floor to the roof of the chamber. " What conquefts," exclaimed the ambitious mifer, " might not be atchieved by the poffeffion of " fuch a treafure ?" " It is your own," replied a Greek attendant who watched the motions of his foul; and Bohemond, after fome hesitation, condescended to accept this magnificent prefent. The Norman was flattered by the affurance of an independent principality, and Alexius eluded, rather than denied, his daring demand of the office of great domeflic, or general, of the Eaft. The two Roberts, the fon of the conqueror of England, and the kinfman of three queens,

⁶⁷ There were two forts of adoption, the Ducange (fur Joinville, diff. xxii. p. 270.) one by arms, the other by introducing the fuppofes Godfrey's adoption to have been of fon between the fhirt and fkin of his father. the latter fort.

C H A P. queens⁶⁵, bowed in their turn before the Byzantine throne. A private letter of Stephen of Chartres attests his admiration of the emperor, the most excellent and liberal of men, who taught him to believe that he was a favourite, and promifed to educate and eftablifh his youngeft fon. In his fouthern province, the count of St. Giles and Tholouse faintly recognized the supremacy of the king of France, a prince of a foreign nation and language. At the head of an hundred thousand men, he declared, that he was the foldier and fervant of Chrift alone, and that the Greek might be fatisfied with an equal treaty of alliance and friendship. His obstinate refistance enhanced the value and the price of his fubmiffion; and he fhone, fays the prince's Anne, among the Barbarians, as the fun amidst the ftars of heaven. His difgust of the noise and infolence of the French, his fufpicions of the defigns of Bohemond, the emperor imparted to his faithful Raymond; and that aged flatefman might clearly difcern, that however falfe in friendship, he was fincere in his enmity⁶⁹. The fpirit of chivalry was laft fubdued in the perfon of Tancred; and none could deem themfelves difhonoured by the imitation of that gallant knight. He difdained the gold and flattery of the Greek monarch; affaulted in his prefence an infolent patrician; escaped to Afia in the habit of a private foldier; and yielded with a figh to the authority of Bohemond and the interest of the Christian caufe. The beft and most oftenfible reason was the impossibility of paffing the fea and accomplishing their vow, without the licence and the veffels of Alexius; but they cherifhed a fecret hope, that as foon as they trod the continent of Afia, their fwords would obliterate their fhame, and diffolve the engagement, which on his fide might not be very faithfully performed. The ceremony of their homage was grateful to a people who had long fince confidered pride as the fubftitute of power. High on his throne, the emperor fat mute and immovable: his majefty was adored by the Latin princes; and C H A P. LVIII. they fubmitted to kifs either his feet or his knees, an indignity which their own writers are ashamed to confess and unable to deny 7°.

⁶⁸ After his return, Robert of Flanders the first act in Rymer's Foedera. became the man of the king of England, ⁶⁹ Senfit vetus regnandi, falfos in amore, for a penfion of four hundred marks. See odia non fingere, Tacit. vi. 44. immovable:

Private or public intereft fuppreffed the murmurs of the dukes and counts; but a French baron (he is supposed to be Robert of Infolence of Paris") prefumed to afcend the throne, and to place himfelf by the fide of Alexius. The fage reproof of Baldwin provoked him to exclaim, in his barbarous idiom, " Who is this ruftic, that keeps " his feat, while fo many valiant captains are ftanding round " him ?" The emperor maintained his filence, diffembled his indignation, and queflioned his interpreter concerning the meaning of the words, which he partly fuspected from the universal language of gesture and countenance. Before the departure of the pilgrims, he endeavoured to learn the name and condition of the audacious baron. " I am a Frenchman," replied Robert, " of the pureft and " most ancient nobility of my country. All that I know is, that " there is a church in my neighbourhood ", the refort of those who " are defirous of approving their valour in fingle combat. Till an " enemy appears, they address their prayers to God and his faints. " That church I have frequently vifited, but never have I found " an antagonist who dared to accept my defiance." Alexius difflide and flumble over this humiliating flep. Yet, fince the heroes knelt to falute the emperor as he fat motionlefs on his throne, it is clear that they must have kissed either his feet or knees. It is only fingular, that Anna should not have amply supplied the filence or ambiguity of the Latins. The abafement of their princes, would have added a fine chapter to the Ceremoniale Aulæ Byzantinæ.

⁷¹ He called himfelf Φ_{payyos} xa θ_{apos} raw $_{vy}$ raw (Alexias, l. x. p. 301.). What a title of nobleffe of the xith century, if any one could now prove his inheritance! Anna relates, with vifible pleafure, that the fwelling Barbarian, Aatwos Terupaperos, was killed, or ⁷⁰ The proud historians of the crusades wounded, after fighting in the front in the battle of Dorylæum (l. xi. p. 317.). This circumstance may justify the fufpicion of Ducange (Not. p. 362), that he was no other than Robert of Paris, of the diffrict most peculiarly ftyled the Duchy or 1sland of France (L'Isle de France).

72 With the fame penetration, Ducange difcovers his church to be that of St. Draufus, or Drofin, of Soiffons, quem duello dimicaturi folent invocare: pugiles qui ad memoriam ejus (his tomb) pernoctant invictos reddit, ut et de Burgundia et Italia tali necessitate confugiatur ad eum, Joan, Sariberienfis, epift, 139.

miffed

the Franks.

LVIII. ~~~

C H A P. miffed the challenger with fome prudent advice for his conduct in the Turkish warfare; and history repeats with pleasure this lively example of the manners of his age and country.

Their review and numbers. A. D. 1007, May.

The conquest of Asia was undertaken and atchieved by Alexander. with thirty-five thousand Macedonians and Greeks"; and his beft hope was in the ftrength and discipline of his phalanx of infantry. The principal force of the crufaders confifted in their cavalry; and when that force was muftered in the plains of Bithynia, the knights and their martial attendants on horfeback amounted to one hundred thousand fighting men, completely armed with the helmet and coat of mail. The value of these foldiers deferved a strict and authentic account; and the flower of European chivalry might furnish, in a first effort, this formidable body of heavy horfe. A part of the infantry might be enrolled for the fervice of fcouts, pioneers, and archers; but the promifcuous crowd were loft in their own diforder; and we depend not on the eyes or knowledge, but on the belief and fancy, of a chaplain of count Baldwin⁷⁴, in the effimate of fix hundred thousand pilgrims able to bear arms, befides the priefts and monks, the women and children, of the Latin camp. The reader ftarts; and before he is recovered from his furprife, I shall add, on the fame testimony, that if all who took the crofs had accomplished their vow, above SIX MILLIONS would have migrated from Europe to Afia. Under this oppreffion of faith, I derive fome relief from a more fagacious and thinking writer 75, who, after the fame review of the cavalry, accufes the credulity of the prieft of Chartres, and even doubts whether the Cifalpine regions (in the geography of a Frenchman) were fufficient to produce and pour forth fuch incre-

74 Fulcher. Carnotenfis, p. 387. He enumerates nineteen nations of different names and languages (p. 389.); but I do not clearly tom. xii. p. 731.).

73 There is fome diverfity on the numbers apprehend his difference between the Franci and Galli, Itali and Apuli. Elfewhere (p. 385.) he contemptuoufly brands the deferters.

75 Guibert, p. 556. Yet even his gentle opposition implies an immense multitude. By Urban II, in the fervour of his zeal, it is only rated at 300,000 pilgrims (epift. xvi. Concil.

dible

of his army: but no authority can be compared with that of Ptolemy, who states it at five thousand horse and thirty thousand foot (fee Usher's Annales, p. 152.).

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

dible multitudes. The cooleft fcepticifm will remember, that of thefe C H A P. religious volunteers great numbers never beheld Conftantinople and Nice. Of enthufialin the influence is irregular and transient : many were detained at home by reafon or cowardice, by poverty or weaknefs; and many were repulfed by the obftacles of the way, the more infuperable as they were unforeseen to these ignorant fanatics. The favage countries of Hungary and Bulgaria were whitened with their bones : their vanguard was cut in pieces by the Turkish fultan; and the lofs of the first adventure by the fword, or climate, or fatigue, has already been stated at three hundred thousand men. Yet the myriads that furvived, that marched, that preffed forwards on the holy pilgrimage, were a fubject of aftonifhment to themfelves and to the Greeks. The copious energy of her language finks under the efforts of the princess Anne⁷⁶: the images of locusts, of leaves and flowers, of the fands of the fea, or the ftars of heaven, imperfectly reprefent what the had feen and heard ; and the daughter of Alexius exclaims, that Europe was loofened from its foundations. and hurled against Afia. The ancient hosts of Darius and Xerxes labour under the fame doubt of a vague and indefinite magnitude; but I am inclined to believe, that a larger number has never been contained within the lines of a fingle camp than at the fiege of Nice, the first operation of the Latin princes. Their motives, their characters, and their arms, have been already difplayed. Of their troops, the moft numerous portion were natives of France : the Low Countries, the banks of the Rhine, and Apulia, fent a powerful reinforcement : fome bands of adventurers were drawn from Spain, Lombardy, and England"; and from the diftant bogs and mountains dious delicacy complains of their ftrange and inarticulate names, and indeed there is fcarcely. ne that the has not contrived to disfigure the year 1130) has inferted in his hiftory with the proud ignorance, fo dear and fami- (1. iv. p. 130-154.) a narrative of the first liar to a polifhed people. I shall felect only crufade : but I with that, instead of listening ¹⁶ Alexias, l. x. p. 283. 305. Her faffi- one example, Sangeles, for the count of St. Giles.

> 77 William of Malmfbury (who wrote about to

39

C H A P. tains of Ireland or Scotland" iffued fome naked and favage fanatics, ferocious at home but unwarlike abroad. Had not fuperstition condemned the facrilegious prudence of depriving the pooreft or weakeft Chriftian of the merit of the pilgrimage, the useles crowd, with mouths, but without hands, might have been flationed in the Greek empire, till their companions had opened and fecured the way of the Lord. A fmall remnant of the pilgrims, who paffed the Bofphorus, was permitted to vifit the holy fepulchre. Their northern conftitution was fcorched by the rays, and infected by the vapours, of a Syrian fun. They confumed, with heedlefs prodigality, their ftores of water and provision : their numbers exhausted the inland country; the fea was remote, the Greeks were unfriendly, and the Chriftians of every feet fled before the voracious and cruel rapine of their brethren. In the dire neceffity of famine, they fometimes roafted and devoured the flefh of their infant or adult captives. Among the Turks and Saracens, the idolaters of Europe were rendered more odious by the name and reputation of cannibals: the fpies who introduced themselves into the kitchen of Bohemond, were shewn feveral human bodies turning on the fpit; and the artful Norman encouraged a report, which encreafed at the fame time the abhorrence and the terror of the infidels 79.

Siege of Nice, A. D. 1097, May 14-June 20.

I have expatiated with pleafure on the first steps of the crufaders, as they paint the manners and character of Europe: but I shall abridge the tedious and uniform narrative of their blind atchieve-to the tenue murmur which had paffed the British ocean (p. 143.), he had confined himfelf to the numbers, families, and adventures of his countrymen. I find in Dugdale, that an English Norman, Stephen earl of ¿lbemarle and Holderneffe, led the rearguard with duke Robert, at the battle of Antioch (Baronage, part i. p. 61.).

78 Videres Scotorum apud se ferocium alias imbellium cuneos (Guibert, p.471.): the crus insectum, and bispida chlamys, may fuit the High- Robert Baldric, and Raymond des Agiles, landers ; but the finibus aliginofis, may rather in the fiege and famine of Antioch.

apply to the Irish bogs. William of Malmsbury expressly mentions the Welsh and Scots, &c. (l. iv. p. 133.) who quitted, the former venationem faltuum, the latter familiaritatem pulicum, 79 This cannibal hunger, fometimes real, more frequently an artifice or a lye, may be found in Anna Comnena (Alexias, l. x. p. 288.), Guibert (p. 546.), Radulph. Cadom. (c. 97.). The firatagem is related by the author of the Gefta Francorum, the monk ments,

40

LVIII.

ments, which were performed by ftrength and are deferibed by C H A P. ignorance. From their first station in the neighbourhood of Nicomedia, they advanced in fucceffive divisions; paffed the contracted limit of the Greek empire; opened a road through the hills, and commenced by the fiege of his capital, their pious warfare against the Turkish fultan. His kingdom of Roum extended from the Hellespont to the confines of Syria, and barred the pilgrimage of Jerusalem: his name was Kilidge-Arslan, or Soliman", of the race of Seljuk, and fon of the first conqueror; and in the defence of a land which the Turks confidered as their own, he deferved the praife of his enemies, by whom alone he is known to posterity. Yielding to the first impulse of the torrent, he deposited his family and treasure in Nice; retired to the mountains with fifty thousand horfe; and twice descended to affault the camps or guarters of the Chriftian beliegers, which formed an imperfect circle of above fix miles. The lofty and folid walls of Nice were covered by a deep ditch, and flanked by three hundred and feventy towers; and on the verge of Christendom, the Moslems were trained in arms and inflamed by religion. Before this city, the French princes occupied their stations, and profecuted their attacks without correspondence or fubordination : emulation prompted their valour; but their valour was fullied by cruelty, and their emulation degenerated into envy and civil difcord. In the fiege of Nice, the arts and engines of antiquity were employed by the Latins; the mine and the batteringram, the tortoife, and the belfrey or moveable turret, artificial fire, and the catapult and balift, the fling, and the crofs-bow for the cafting of ftones and darts ⁸¹. In the fpace of feven weeks, much labour and is used by the Latins, and his character is in the Mahometan writers, who are dry and highly embellished by Tasso. His Turkish fulky on the subject of the first crusade (de name of Kilidge-Arflan (A. H. 485-500. A.D. 1192-1106. See de Guignes's Tables, tom. i. p. 245.) is employed by the Orien- fieges of the middle ages, fee Muratori (Antals, and with fome corruption by the Greeks: tiquitat. Italiæ, tom. ii. differt. xxvi. p. 452-²⁰ His Musulman appellation of Soliman but little more than his name can be found Guignes, tom. iii. p. ii. p. 10-30.).

VOL. VI.

84 On the fortifications, engines, and 524.).

LVIII.

C H A P. and blood were expended, and fome progrefs, effectially by count Raymond, was made on the fide of the befiegers. But the Turks could protract their refiftance and fecure their efcape, as long as they were mafters of the lake ⁸² Afcanius, which ftretches feveral miles to the weftward of the city. The means of conqueft were fupplied by the prudence and industry of Alexius; a great number of boats was transported on fledges from the sea to the lake; they were filled with the most dextrous of his archers; the flight of the fultana was intercepted; Nice was invefted by land and water; and a Greek emiffary perfuaded the inhabitants to accept his mafter's protection, and to fave themfelves, by a timely furrender, from the rage of the favages of Europe. In the moment of victory, or at leaft of hope, the crufaders, thirfting for blood and plunder, were awed by the Imperial banner that ftreamed from the citadel; and Alexius guarded with jealous vigilance this important conquest. The murmurs of the chiefs were fliffed by honour or intereft; and after an halt of nine days, they directed their march towards Phrygia under the guidance of a Greek general, whom they fufpected of a fecret connivance with the fultan. The confort and the principal fervants of Soliman had been honourably reftored without ranfom; and the emperor's generofity to the miscreants 83 was interpreted as treason to the Christian cause.

Battle of Dorylæum, A. D. 1097, July 4.

Soliman was rather provoked than difmayed by the lofs of his capital : he admonifhed his fubjects and allies of this ftrange invafion of the western Barbarians; the Turkish emirs obeyed the call of loyalty or religion; the Turkman hords encamped round his ftandard; and his whole force is loofely flated by the Chriftians at 83 Mecreant, a word invented by the French its primitive fenfe. It fhould feem, that the zeal of our anceflors boiled higher, and that they branded every unbeliever as a rafcal. A fimilar prejudice still lurks in the minds of many who think themfelves Christians.

42

7

^{524.).} The belfredus, from whence our belfrey, was the moveable tower of the ancients crufaders, and confined in that language to (Ducange, tom. i. p. 608.).

⁸² I cannot forbear remarking the refemblance between the fiege and lake of Nice, with the operations of Herman Cortez before Mexico. See Dr. Robertfon, Hift. of Ametica, l. v.

two hundred, or even three hundred and fixty, thousand horse. Yet C H A P. he patiently waited till they had left behind them the fea and the Greek frontier; and hovering on the flanks, obferved their carelefs and confident progrefs in two columns beyond the view of each other. Some miles before they could reach Dorylæum in Phrygia, the left, and leaft numerous, division was furprised, and attacked, and almost opprefied, by the Turkish cavalry⁸⁴. The heat of the weather, the clouds of arrows, and the barbarous onfet, overwhelmed the crufaders; they loft their order and confidence, and the fainting fight was fuftained by the perfonal valour, rather than by the military conduct, of Bohemond, Tancred, and Robert of Normandy. They were revived by the welcome banners of duke Godfrey, who flew to their fuccours with the count of Vermandois, and fixty thousand horfe; and was followed by Raymond of Tholoufe, the bifhop of Puy, and the remainder of the facred army. Without a moment's paufe, they formed in new order, and advanced to a fecond battle. They were received with equal refolution; and, in their common difdain for the unwarlike people of Greece and Afia, it was confeffed on both fides, that the Turks and the Franks were the only nations entitled to the appellation of foldiers⁸⁵. Their encounter was varied and balanced by the contraft of arms and discipline; of the direct charge, and wheeling evolutions; of the couched lance, and the brandifhed javelin; of a weighty broad-fword, and a crooked fabre; of cumbrous armour, and thin flowing robes; and of the long Tartar bow, and the arbalist or cross-bow, a deadly weapon, yet unknown to the Orientals⁸⁶. As long as the horfes were fresh and the quivers full, Soliman 84 Baronius has produced a very doubtful letter to his brother Roger (A. D. 1098, Nº 15.). The enemies confifted of Medes, Perfians, Chaldæans: be it fo. The first attack was cum noftro incommodo; true and tender. But why Godfrey of Bouillon and Hugh brothers? Tancred is flyed filius; of whom? certainly not of Roger, nor of Bohemond.

85 Veruntamen dicunt se esse de Francorum generatione; et quia nullus homo naturaliter debet esse miles nisi Franci et Turci (Gefta Francorum, p. 7.). The fame community of blood and valour is attefted by archbishop Baldric (p. 99.).

86 Balista, Balestra, Arbalestre. See Muratori, Antiq. tom. ii. p. 517-524. Du-G 2 cange, March through the Leffer Afia, July-September.

C H A P. Soliman maintained the advantage of the day; and four thousand Chriftians were pierced by the Turkish arrows. In the evening, fwiftness yielded to ftrength; on either fide, the numbers were equal, or at leaft as great as any ground could hold, or any generals could manage; but in turning the hills, the last division of Raymond and his provincials was led, perhaps without defign, on the rear of an exhaufted enemy; and the long contest was determined. Befides a namelefs and unaccounted multitude, three thousand Pagan knights were flain in the battle and purfuit; the camp of Soliman was pillaged; and in the variety of precious fpoil, the curiofity of the Latins was amufed with foreign arms and apparel, and the new afpect of dromedaries and camels. The importance of the victory was proved by the hafty retreat of the fultan: referving ten thoufand guards of the relics of his army, Soliman evacuated the kingdom of Roum, and haftened to implore the aid, and kindle the refentment, of his Eastern brethren. In 'a march of five hundred miles, the crufaders traverfed the Leffer Afia, through a wafted land and deferted towns, without finding either a friend or an enemy. The geographer ⁸⁷ may trace the polition of Dorylæum, Antioch of Pifidia, Iconium, Archelais, and Germanicia, and may compare those claffic appellations with the modern names of Eskishehr the old city, Akshehr the white city, Cogni, Erekli, and Marash. As the pilgrims paffed over a defert, where a draught of water is exchanged for filver, they were tormented by intolerable thirft; and on the banks of the first rivulet, their haste and intemperance were still more pernicious to the diforderly throng. They climbed with toll and danger the fteep and flippery fides of mount Taurus : many of

> In the time of Anna Comnena, this weapon, which fhe defcribes under the name of tzangra, was unknown in the East (l. x. p. 291.). By an humane inconfiftency, the pope frove to prohibit it in Chriftian wars. *2 The curious reader may compare the cange, Gloff. Latin. tom. i. p. 531, 532. claffic learning of Cellarius, and the geographical fcience of d'Anville. William of Tyre is the only historian of the crufades who has any knowledge of antiquity; and M. Otter trod almost in the footsteps of the Franks from Conftantinople to Antioch (Voyage en Turquie et en Perfe, tom. i. p. 35-88.).

X

- the

the foldiers caft away their arms to fecure their footfteps; and had C H A P. not terror preceded their van, the long and trembling file might have been driven down the precipice by an handful of refolute enemies. Two of their most respectable chiefs, the duke of Lorraine and the count of Tholoufe, were carried in litters : Raymond was raifed, as it is faid by miracle, from an hopelefs malady; and Godfrey had been torn by a bear, as he purfued that rough and perilous chace in the mountains of Pisidia.

To improve the general confernation, the coufin of Bohemond Baldwin founds the and the brother of Godfrey were detached from the main army with principality of Edessa, their respective squadrons of five, and of seven, hundred knights. They over-ran in a rapid career the hills and fea-coaft of Cilicia, from Cogni to the Syrian gates: the Norman flandard was firft planted on the walls of Tarfus and Malmistra; but the proud injuffice of Baldwin at length provoked the patient and generous Italian; and they turned their confecrated fwords against each other in a private and profane quarrel. Honour was the motive, and fame the reward, of Tancred ; but fortune imiled on the more felfish en- . terprife of his rival 83. He was called to the affiftance of a Greek or Armenian tyrant, who had been fuffered under the Turkish yoke to reign over the Chriftians of Edeffa. Baldwin accepted the character of his fon and champion ; but no fooner was he introduced into the city, than he inflamed the people to the maffacre of his father, occupied the throne and treasure, extended his conquests over the hills of Armenia and the plain of Mefopotamia, and founded the first principality of the Franks or Latins, which subfifted fifty-four years beyond the Euphrates ⁸⁹.

reprefented by Fulcherius Carnotenfis, or of countered by the partiality of Radulphus Chartres (in the collections of Bongarfius, Cadomenfis, the foldier and hiftorian of the Duchefne, and Martenne), the valiant chap- gallant marquis. lain of count Baldwin (Efprit des Croifades, tom. i. p. 13, 14.). In the disputes of that p. 456.

88 This detached conquest of Edessa is best prince with Tancred, his partiality is en-

89 See de Guignes, Hift. des Huns, tom. i.

Before

45

LVIIL

A. D.

1097-1151-

LVIII. Siege of Antioch, A. D. 1097, October 21-A. D. 1098, June 3.

CHAP.

Before the Franks could enter Syria, the fummer, and even the autumn, were completely wafted : the fiege of Antioch, or the feparation and repofe of the army during the winter feafon, was ftrongly debated in their council: the love of arms and the holy fepulchre urged them to advance; and reafon perhaps was on the fide of refolution, fince every hour of delay abates the fame and force of the invader, and multiplies the refources of defensive war. The capital of Syria was protected by the river Orontes; and the iron bridge, of nine arches, derives its name from the maffy gates of the two towers which are constructed at either end. They were opened by the fword of the duke of Normandy : his victory gave entrance to three hundred thousand crusaders, an account which may allow fome fcope for loffes and defertion, but which clearly detects much exaggeration in the review of Nice. In the defcription of Antioch ⁹⁰, it is not eafy to define a middle term between her ancient magnificence, under the fucceffors of Alexander and Augustus, and the modern afpect of Turkish defolation. The Tetrapolis, or four cities, if they retained their name and polition, must have left a large vacuity in a circumference of twelve miles; and that measure, as well as the number of four hundred towers, are not perfectly confiftent with the five gates, fo often mentioned in the hiftory of the fiege. Yet Antioch must have still flourished as a great and populous capital. At the head of the Turkish emirs, Baghisian, a veteran chief, commanded in the place : his garrifon was composed of fix or feven thousand horse, and fifteen or twenty thousand foot: one hundred thousand Moslems are faid to have fallen by the fword; and their numbers were probably inferior to the Greeks, Armenians, and Syrians, who had been no more than fourteen years the flaves of the house of Seljuk. From the remains of a folid and stately wall, it appears

⁹⁰ For Antioch, fee Pococke (Defcription Otter's notes), the Index Geographicus of of the Eaft, vol. ii. p. i. p. 188-193.), Schultens (ad calcem Bohadin. Vit. Saladin.), Otter (Voyage en Turquie, &c. tom. i. and Abulfeda (Tabula Syrix, p. 115, 116. p. 81, &c.), the Turkifh geographer (in verf. Reifke).

appears to have arifen to the height of threefcore feet in the vallies; C H A P. and wherever lefs art and labour had been applied, the ground was fuppofed to be defended by the river, the morafs, and the mountains. Notwithstanding these fortifications, the city had been repeatedly taken by the Perfians, the Arabs, the Greeks, and the Turks; fo large a circuit must have yielded many pervious points of attack; and in a fiege that was formed about the middle of October. the vigour of the execution could alone juftify the boldnefs of the attempt. Whatever ftrength and valour could perform in the field was abundantly difcharged by the champions of the crofs ; in the frequent occasions of fallies, of forage, of the attack and defence of convoys, they were often victorious; and we can only complain, that their exploits are fometimes enlarged beyond the fcale of probability and truth. The fword of Godfrey " divided a Turk from the shoulder to the haunch; and one half of the infidel fell to the ground, while the other was transported by his horfe to the city gate. As Robert of Normandy rode against his antagonist, " I de-" vote thy head," he pioufly exclaimed, " to the damons of hell ;" and that head was inftantly cloven to the breaft by the refiftlefs ftroke of his defcending faulchion. But the reality or the report of fuch gigantic prowefs " must have taught the Moslems to keep within their walls; and against those walls of earth or stone, the fword and the lance were unavailing weapons. In the flow and fucceffive labours of a fiege, the crufaders were fupine and ignorant, without skill to contrive, or money to purchase, or industry to use, the artificial engines and implements of affault. In the conqueft of scapularum, tanta virtute intorsit ut quod pectus medium disjunxit fpinam et vitalia interrupit, et fic lubricus enfis fuper crus dextrum integer exivit; ficque caput integrum cum dextra parte corporis immersit gurgite, partemque quæ equo præfidebat remifit civitati (Robert. Mon. p. 50.). Cujus ense trajectus, Turcus duo factus est Turci ; ut inferior alter in urbem equitaret, alter arcitenens in flu-

91 Enfem clevat, eumque a finistra parte mine nataret (Radulph. Cadom. c. 53. p. 304.). Yet he juffifies the deed by the flubendis viribus of Godfrey; and William of Tyre covers it by oftupuit populus facti novitate mirabilis (l.v. c.6. p:701.). Yet it must not have appeared incredible to the knights of that age.

92 See the exploits of Robert, Raymond, and the modeft Tancred, who impofed filence on his fquire (Radulph. Cadom. c. 53.).

Nice,

C H A P. Nice, they had been powerfully affifted by the wealth and knowledge of the Greek emperor: his abfence was poorly fupplied by fome Genoefe and Pifan veffels, that were attracted by religion or trade tothe coaft of Syria: the flores were fcanty, the return precarious, and the communication difficult and dangerous. Indolence or weaknefs had prevented the Franks from invefling the entire circuit; and the perpetual freedom of two gates relieved the wants and recruited the garrifon of the city. At the end of feven months, after the ruin of their cavalry, and an enormous lofs by famine, defertion, and fatigue, the progrefs of the crufaders was imperceptible, and their fuccefs remote, if the Latin Ulyffes, the artful and ambitious Bohemond, had not employed the arms of cunning and deceit. The Christians of Antioch were numerous and difcontented : Phirouz, a Syrian renegado, had acquired the favour of the emir and the command of three towers; and the merit of his repentance difguifed to the Latins, and perhaps to himfelf, the foul defign of perfidy and treafon. A fecret correspondence, for their mutual interest, was soon eftablished between Phirouz and the prince of Tarento; and Bohemond declared in the council of the chiefs, that he could deliver the city into their hands. But he claimed the fovereignty of Antioch as the reward of his fervice; and the propofal which had been rejected by the envy, was at length extorted from the diffrefs, of his equals. The nocturnal furprife was executed by the French and Norman princes, who afcended in perfon the fcaling-ladders that were thrown from the walls: their new profelyte, after the murder of his too fcrupulous brother, embraced and introduced the fervants of Chrift; the army rufhed through the gates; and the Moflems foon found, that although mercy was hopelefs, refiftance was impotent. But the citadel still refused to furrender; and the victors themselves were fpeedily encompaffed and befieged by the innumerable forces of Kerboga, prince of Moful, who, with twenty-eight Turkish emirs, advanced to the deliverance of Antioch. Five-and-twenty days the Chriftians

Christians spent on the verge of destruction ; and the proud lieu- C H A P. tenant of the caliple and the fultan left them only the choice of fervitude or death 92. In this extremity they collected the relics of Victory of their strength, fallied from the town, and in a fingle memorable A. D. 1098, day annihilated or difperfed the hoft of Turks and Arabians, which they might fafely report to have confifted of fix hundred thousand men 94. Their fupernatural allies I shall proceed to confider : the human caufes of the victory of Antioch were the fearlefs defpair of the Franks; and the furprife, the difcord, perhaps the errors, of their unskilful and prefumptuous adversaries. The battle is defcribed with as much diforder as it was fought ; but we may observe the tent of Kerboga, a moveable and fpacious palace, enriched with the luxury of Afia, and capable of holding above two thousand perfons; we may diffinguish his three thousand guards, who were cafed, the horses as well as the men, in complete fteel.

In the eventful period of the fiege and defence of Antioch, the Theirfamine crufaders were alternately exalted by victory or funk in defpair; at Antioch. either fwelled with plenty or emaciated with hunger. A fpeculative reasoner might suppose, that their faith had a strong and ferious influence on their practice; and that the foldiers of the crofs. the deliverers of the holy fepulchre, prepared themfelves by a fober and virtuous life for the daily contemplation of martyrdom. Experience blows away this charitable illufion : and feldom does the hiftory of profane war difplay fuch fcenes of intemperance and profitution as were exhibited under the walls of Antioch. The 93 After mentioning the diffrefs and humble petition of the Franks, Abulpharagius adds the haughty reply of Codbuka, or Kerboga; non evafuri estis nisi per gladium (Dynast. p. 242.).

H

94 In describing the host of Kerboga, most of the Latin historians, the author of the p. 318-320.). The numbers of the Turks Gesta (p. 17.), Robert Monachus (p. 56.), are fixed by Albert Aquensis at 200,000 Baldric (p. 111.), Fulcherius Carnotenfis (l. iv. c. 10. p. 242.), and by Radulphus (p. 392.), Guibert (p. 512.), William of Cadomenfis at 400,000 horfe (c. 72. p 309.).

VOL. VI.

Tyre (l. vi. c. 3. p. 714.), Bernard Thefaurarius (c. 39. p. 695.), are content with the vague expressions of infinita multitudo, immenfum agmen, innumeræ copiæ or gentes, which correspond with the pitz auxpilianton xiradar of Anna Comnena (Alexias, l. xi.

grove

LVIII.

the crufaders, June 28.

and diffrefs

LVIII. Lon

C H A P. grove of Daphne no longer flourished; but the Syrian air was still impregnated with the fame vices; the Chriftians were feduced by every temptation 95 that nature either prompts or reprobates; the authority of the chiefs was defpifed; and fermons and edicts were alike fruitlefs against those fcandalous diforders, not lefs pernicious to military discipline, than repugnant to evangelic purity. In the first days of the fiege and the possession of Antioch, the Franks confumed with wanton and thoughtlefs prodigality the frugal fubfiftence of weeks and months: the defolate country no longer yielded a fupply; and from that country they were at length excluded by the arms of the befieging Turks. Difeafe, the faithful companion of want, was envenomed by the rains of the winter, the fummer heats, unwholefome food, and the clofe imprifonment of multitudes. The pictures of famine and peftilence are always the fame. and always difguftful; and our imagination may fuggeft the nature of their fufferings and their refources. The remains of treafure or fpoil were eagerly lavished in the purchase of the vilest nourishment; and dreadful must have been the calamities of the poor, fince, after paying three marks of filver for a goat and fifteen for a lean camel³⁶, the count of Flanders was reduced to beg a dinner, and duke Godfrey to borrow an horfe. Sixty thoufand horfes had been reviewed in the camp : before the end of the fiege they were diminished to two thousand, and scarcely two hundred fit for fervice could be mustered on the day of battle. Weakness of body, and terror of mind, extinguished the ardent enthusiasm of the pilgrims; and every motive of honour and religion was fubdued by the defire of

95 See the tragic and fcandalous fate of a kid or lamb, from one fhilling to eighteen an archdeacon of royal birth, who was flain of our prefent money: in the fecond famine, by the Turks as he reposed in an orchard, a loaf of bread, or the head of an animal, fold for a piece of gold. More examples might be produced; but it is the ordinary, not the extraordinary, prices, that deferve

life.

playing at dice with a Syrian concubine.

⁹⁶ The value of an ox role from five folidi (fifteen fhillings) at Chriftmas to two marks (four pounds), and afterwards much higher: the notice of the philosopher.

life ". Among the chiefs, three heroes may be found without fear C H A P. or reproach : Godfrey of Bouillon was fupported by his magnanimous piety ; Bohemond by ambition and intereft ; and Tancred declared, in the true fpirit of chivalry, that as long as he was at the head of forty knights, he would never relinquish the enterprise of Paleftine. But the count of Tholoufe and Provence was fufpected of a voluntary indifpofition; the duke of Normandy was recalled from the fea-fhore by the cenfures of the church; Hugh the Great, though he led the vanguard of the battle, embraced an ambiguous opportunity of returning to France; and Stephen count of Chartres bafely deferted the flandard which he bore, and the council in which he prefided. The foldiers were difcouraged by the flight of William viscount of Melun, furnamed the Carpenter, from the weighty ftrokes of his axe; and the faints were fcandalifed by the fall of Peter the Hermit, who, after arming Europe against Afia, attempted to escape from the penance of a necessary fast. Of the multitude of recreant warriors, the names (fays an historian) are blotted from the book of life; and the opprobrious epithet of the rope-dancers was applied to the deferters who dropt in the night from the walls of Antioch. The emperor Alexius 93, who feemed to advance to the fuccour of the Latins, was difmayed by the affurance of their hopeless condition. They expected their fate in filent despair; oaths and punishments were tried without effect; and to roufe the foldiers to the defence of the walls, it was found neceffary to fet fire to their quarters.

For their falvation and victory, they were indebted to the fame Legend of fanaticifm which had led them to the brink of ruin. In fuch a Lance, caufe, and in fuch an army, vifions, prophecies, and miracles, were

H 2

the Holy

97 Alii multi, quorum nomina non tenemus, quia deleta de libro vite præfenti operi treat of Alexius, the victory of Antioch, and non funt inferenda (Will. Tyr. l. vi. c. 5. the conquest of Jerufalem, in the Alexiad, p. 715). Guibert (p. 518. 523.) attempts 1. xi. p. 317-327. Anna was fo prone to to excufe Hugh the Great, and even Stephen exaggeration, that the magnifies the exploits of Chartres.

98 See the progrefs of the crufade, the reof the Latins.

frequent

51

LVIII.

CHAP. frequent and familiar. In the diffress of Antioch, they were repeated with unufual energy and fuccefs: St. Ambrofe had affured a pious ecclefiaftic, that two years of trial must precede the seafon of deliverance and grace; the deferters were ftopped by the prefence and reproaches of Chrift himfelf; the dead had promifed to arife and combat with their brethren; the Virgin had obtained the pardon of their fins; and their confidence was revived by a vilible fign, the feafonable and fplendid difcovery of the HOLY LANCE. The policy of their chiefs has on this occasion been admired, and might furely be excufed; but a pious fraud is feldom produced by the cool confpiracy of many perfons; and a voluntary impostor might depend on the fupport of the wife and the credulity of the people. Of the diocefe of Marfeilles, there was a prieft of low cunning and loofe manners, and his name was Peter Bartholemy. He prefented himfelf at the door of the council-chamber, to disclose an apparition of St. Andrew, which had been thrice reiterated in his fleep, with a dreadful menace, if he prefumed to suppress the commands of heaven. " At Antioch," faid the apoftle, " in the church of my " brother St. Peter, near the high altar, is concealed the fteel head " of the lance that pierced the fide of our Redeemer. In three days, " that inftrument of eternal, and now of temporal, falvation, will " be manifested to his difciples. Search and ye shall find : bear it " aloft in battle; and that myflic weapon fhall penetrate the fouls of " the milcreants." The pope's legate, the bishop of Puy, affected to liften with coldnefs and diffruft; but the revelation was eagerly accepted by count Raymond, whom his faithful fubject, in the name of the apofile, had chofen for the guardian of the holy lance. The experiment was refolved; and on the third day, after a due preparation of prayer and fasting, the prieft of Marscilles introduced twelve trufty fpectators, among whom were the count and his chaplain; and the church-doors were barred against the impetuous multitude. The ground was opened in the appointed place; but the workmen, workmen, who relieved each other, dug to the depth of twelve feet C H A P. without discovering the object of their fearch. In the evening, when count Raymond had withdrawn to his poft, and the weary affiftants began to murmur, Bartholemy, in his fhirt, and without his fhoes. boldly defcended into the pit; the darkness of the hour and of the place enabled him to fecrete and deposit the head of a Saracen lance; and the first found, the first gleam, of the steel, was faluted with a devout rapture. The holy lance was drawn from its receis, wrapt in a veil of filk and gold, and expofed to the veneration of the crufaders; their anxious fuspense burft forth in a general shout of joy and hope, and the defponding troops were again inflamed with the enthusiasm of valour. Whatever had been the arts, and whatever might be the fentiments of the chiefs, they fkilfully improved this fortunate revolution by every aid that difcipline and devotion could afford. The foldiers were difmiffed to their quarters with an injunction to fortify their minds and hodies for the approaching conflict, freely to beftow their last pittance on themfelves and their horfes, and to expect with the dawn of day the fignal of victory. On the feftival of St. Peter and St. Paul, the gates of Antioch were thrown open; a martial pfalm, "Let the Lord arife, and let his " enemies be feattered !" was chaunted by a proceffion of priefts and monks; the battle array was marshalled in twelve divisions, in honour of the twelve apofiles; and the holy lance, in the abfence of Raymond, was entrusted to the hands of his chaplain. The influence of this relic or trophy was felt by the fervants, and perhaps by the enemies, of Chrift 99; and its potent energy was heightened by an accident, a stratagem, or a rumour, of a miraculous complexion. Three knights, in white garments and resplendent arms, either Celefial iffued, or feemed to iffue, from the hills : the voice of Adhemar, the warriors.

pope's

5

⁹⁹ The Mahometan Aboulmahasen (apud pharagius: the Greek princes confounds it de Guignes, tom. ii. p. ii. p. 95.) is more with a nail of the crofs (1 xi. p. 326); the correct in his account of the holy lance than Jacobite primate, with St. Peter's staff (p. 242.). the Chrislians, Anna Comnena and Abul-

LVIII. Land

C H A P. pope's legate, proclaimed them as the martyrs St. George, St. Theodore, and St. Maurice; the tumult of battle allowed no time for doubt or fcrutiny; and the welcome apparition dazzled the eyes or the imagination of a fanatic army. In the feafon of danger and triumph, the revelation of Bartholemy of Marfeilles was unanimoufly afferted; but as foon as the temporary fervice was accomplifhed, the perfonal dignity and liberal alms which the count of Tholoufe derived from the cuftody of the holy lance, provoked the envy, and awakened the reafon, of his rivals. A Norman clerk prefumed to fift, with a philosophic spirit, the truth of the legend, the circumftances of the difcovery, and the character of the prophet; and the pious Bohemond afcribed their deliverance to the merits and interceffion of Chrift alone. For a while, the Provincials defended their national palladium with clamours and arms; and new visions condemned to death and hell the profane fceptics, who prefumed to ferutinife the truth and merit of the difcovery. The prevalence of incredulity compelled the author to fubmit his life and veracity to the judgment of God. A pile of dry faggots, four feet high, and fourteen long, was erected in the midft of the camp ; the flames burnt fiercely to the elevation of thirty cubits; and a narrow path of twelve inches was left for the perilous trial. The unfortunate prieft of Marfeilles traverfed the fire with dexterity and fpeed ; but his thighs and belly were fcorched by the intenfe heat; he expired the next day; and the logic of believing minds will pay fome regard to his dying protestations of innocence and truth. Some efforts were made by the Provincials to fubflitute a crofs, a ring, or a tabernacle, in the place of the holy lance, which foon vanished in contempt and oblivion "." Yet the revelation of Antioch is gravely > menfis, the one attached to the count of firenuous. Thouloufe, the other to the Norman prince.

10° The two antagonists who express the Fulcherius Carnotensis presumes to fay, aumost intimate knowledge and the strongest dite fraudem et non fraudem! and afterconviction of the miracle, and of the fraud, are wards, invenit lanceam, fallaciter occultatam Raymond des Agiles, and Radulphus Cado- forfitan. The reft of the herd are loud and

afferted

afferted by fucceeding hiftorians; and fuch is the progress of cre- C H A P. dulity, that miracles, most doubtful on the spot and at the moment, will be received with implicit faith at a convenient diftance of time and fpace.

The prudence or fortune of the Franks had delayed their inva- The flate of fion till the decline of the Turkish empire "". Under the manly and calipha of Egypt. government of the three first fultans, the kingdoms of Afia were united in peace and justice; and the innumerable armies which they led in perfon were equal in courage, and fuperior in difcipline, to the Barbarians of the Weft. But at the time of the crufade, the inheritance of Malek Shaw was difputed by his four fons; their private ambition was infenfible of the public danger; and, in the viciffitudes of their fortune, the royal vaffals were ignorant, or regardlefs, of the true object of their allegiance. The twenty-eight emirs, who marched with the flandard of Kerboga, were his rivals or enemies; their hafty levies were drawn from the towns and tents of Mesopotamia and Syria; and the Turkish veterans were employed or confumed in the civil wars beyond the Tigris. The caliph of Egypt embraced this opportunity of weakness and difcord, to recover his ancient poffeffions; and his fultan Aphdal belieged Jerufalem and Tyre, expelled the children of Ortok, and reftored in Paleftine the civil and ecclefiaftical authority of the Fatimites 102. They heard with aftonishment of the vast armies of Christians that had passed from Europe to Afia, and rejoiced in the fieges and battles which broke the power of the Turks, the adverfaries of their fect and monarchy. But the fame Chriftians were the enemies of the prophet ; and from the overthrow of Nice and Antioch, the motive of their enterprife, which was gradually underftood, would urge them for-101 See M. de Guignes (tom ii. p. ii. p. 223, Hift. Patriarch. Alexandrin. p. 478. de &c.); and the articles of Barkiarok, Mohammed, Guignes, tom. 1 p. 249. from Abulfeda and Sangiar, in d'Herbelot.

Jerusalem and Tyre, A. H. 489 (Renaudot, the Fatimite ambahadors.

Ben Schounah). Jerufalem ante adventum 102 The emir, or fultan Aphdal, recovered veilrum recuperavimus, Turcos ejecimus, say wards

the Turks

LVIII.

LVIII. _

56

C H A P. wards to the banks of the Jordan, or perhaps of the Nile. An intercourfe of epiftles and embaffies, which rofe and fell with the events of war, was maintained between the throne of Cairo and the camp of the Latins; and their adverfe pride was the refult of ignorance and enthufiafm. The ministers of Egypt declared in an haughty, or infinuated in a milder, tone, that their fovereign, the true and lawful commander of the faithful, had refcued Jerufalem from the Turkish yoke ; and that the pilgrims, if they would divide their numbers, and lay aside their arms, should find a fafe and hospitable reception at the sepulchre of Jefus. In the belief of their loft condition, the caliph Moftali defpifed their arms and imprifoned their deputies : the conquest and victory of Antioch prompted him to folicit those formidable champions with gifts of horses and filk robes, of vafes, and purfes of gold and filver; and in his effimate of their merit or power, the first place was affigned to Bohemond. and the fecond to Godfrey. In either fortune, the anfwer of the crufaders was firm and uniform : they difdained to enquire into the private claims or poffeffions of the followers of Mahomet: whatfoever was his name or nation, the usurper of Jerufalem was their enemy; and inftead of prefcribing the mode and terms of their pilgrimage, it was only by a timely furrender of the city and province. their facred right, that he could deferve their alliance, or deprecate their impending and irrefiftible attack 103.

Delay of the Franks, A. D. 1098, July-A. D. 1099, May.

Yet this attack, when they were within the view and reach of their glorious prize, was fufpended above ten months after the defeat of Kerboga. The zeal and courage of the crufaders were chilled in the moment of victory : and, inftead of marching to improve the confternation, they hastily difperfed to enjoy the luxury, of Syria. The caufes of this ftrange delay may be found in the want of ftrength

and

¹⁰³ See the transactions between the caliph Aquenfis (1. iii. c. 59.), who are more fenof Egypt and the crufaders, in William of fible of their importance, than the contem-Tyre (l. iv. c. 24. l. vi. c. 19.) and Albert porary writers.

and fubordination. In the painful and various fervice of Antioch, C II A P. LVIII. the cavalry was annihilated; many thousands of every rank had been loft by famine, ficknefs, and defertion : the fame abufe of plenty had been productive of a third famine; and the alternative of intemperance and diffrefs, had generated a peftilence, which fwept away above fifty thousand of the pilgrims. Few were able to command, and none were willing to obey: the domeftic feuds, which had been flifled by common fear, were again renewed in acts, or at leaft in fentiments, of hoftility; the fortune of Baldwin and Bohemond excited the envy of their companions; the bravest knights were enlifted for the defence of their new principalities; and count Raymond exhaufted his troops and treafures in a idle expedition into the heart of Syria. The winter was confumed in difcord and diforder; a fenfe of honour and religion was rekindled in the fpring; and the private foldiers, lefs fufceptible of ambition and jealoufy, awakened with angry clamours the indolence of their chiefs. In the month of Their march May, the relics of this mighty hoft proceeded from Antioch to Laodicea; about forty thousand Latins, of whom no more than fifteen hundred horfe, and twenty thousand foot, were capable of immediate fervice. Their eafy march was continued between mount Libanus and the fea-fhore; their wants were liberally fupplied by the coafting traders of Genoa and Pifa; and they drew large contributions from the emirs of Tripoli, Tyre, Sidon, Acre, and Cæfarea, who granted a free paffage, and promifed to follow the example of Jerufalem. From Cæfarea they advanced into the midland country; their clerks recognifed the facred geography of Lydda, Ramla, Emaus, and Bethlem, and as foon as they defcribed the holy city, the crufaders forgot their toils and claimed their reward 104.

Jerufalem has derived fome reputation from the number and im- Siege and portance of her memorable fieges. It was not till after a long and Jerufalem, conqueft of obstinate

to Jerufalem, A. D. 1099, May 13-June 6.

¹⁰⁴ The greatest part of the march of the falem (p. 11-67.), un des meilleurs mor-Franks is traced, and most accurately traced, ceaux, fans contredit, qu'on ait dans ce genre in Maundrell's Journey from Aleppo to Jeru- (d'Anville, Memoire fur Jerufalem, p. 27.). VOL. VI.

C H A P. obflinate contest that Babylon and Rome could prevail against the obstinacy of the people, the craggy ground that might superfede the neceffity of fortifications, and the walls and towers that would have fortified the most acceffible plain ". These obstacles were diminished in the age of the crufades. The bulwarks had been completely deftroyed and imperfectly reftored: the Jews, their nation and worfhip, were for ever banished; but nature is less changeable than man, and the fite of Jerufalem, though fomewhat foftened and fomewhat removed, was ftill ftrong against the affaults of an enemy. By the experience of a recent fiege and a three years poffeffion, the Saracens of Egypt had been taught to difcern, and in fome degree to remedy, the defects of a place, which religion as well as honour forbade them to refign. Aladin or Iftikhar, the caliph's lieutenant, was entrusted with the defence : his policy strove to restrain the native Chriftians by the dread of their own ruin and that of the holy fepulchre; to animate the Moflems by the affurance of temporal and eternal rewards. His garrifon is faid to have confifted of forty thousand Turks and Arabians; and if he could muster twenty thoufand of the inhabitants, it must be confessed that the besieged were more numerous than the befieging army "." Had the diminished ftrength and numbers of the Latins allowed them to grafp the whole circumference of four thoufand yards (about two English miles and an half 107), to what useful purpose should they have descended citus himfelf at 600,000, and that the largest defalcation, that his accepimus can justify, will still leave them more numerous than the Roman army.

> ¹⁰⁵ See the masterly description of Tacitus (Hift. v. 11, 12, 13.), who supposes, that the Jewish lawgivers had provided for a perpetual flate of hoftility against the reft of mankind.

106 The lively scepticism of Voltaire is balanced with fense and erudition by the French author of the Esprit des Croifades (tom. iv. p. 386-388.), who observes, that according to the Arabians, the inhabitants of Jerufalem must have exceeded 200,000; traft. For the topography of Jerufalem, fee that in the fiege of Titus, Josephus collects Reland (Palestina, tom. ii. p. 832-360.). 1,300,000 Jews; that they are flated by Ta -.

107 Maundrell, who diligently perambulated the walls, found a circuit of 4630 paces, or 4167 English yards (p. 109, 110.): from an authentic plan, d'Anville concludes a measure nearly fimilar of 1960 French toifes (p. 23-29.), in his fcarce and valuable

58

A. D. 1099, June 7-July 15.

LVIII.

into

into the valley of Ben Himmon and torrent of Cedron 108, or ap- C H A P. proached the precipices of the South and Eaft, from whence they had nothing either to hope or fear? Their fiege was more reafonably directed against the northern and western fides of the city. Godfrey of Bouillon erected his ftandard on the first fwell of mount Calvary : to the left, as far as St. Stephen's gate, the line of attack was continued by Tancred and the two Roberts; and count Raymond established his quarters from the citadel to the foot of mount Sion, which was no longer included within the precincts of the city. On the fifth day, the crufaders made a general affault in the fanatic hope of battering down the walls without engines, and of fcaling them without ladders. By the dint of brutal force, they burft the first barrier, but they were driven back with shame and slaughter to the camp: the influence of vision and prophecy was deadened by the too frequent abuse of those pious stratagems; and time and labour were found to be the only means of victory. The time of the fiege was indeed fulfilled in forty days, but they were forty days of calamity and anguish. A repetition of the old complaint of famine may be imputed in fome degree to the voracious or diforderly appetite of the Franks; but the ftony foil of Jerufalem is almost deftitute of water; the fcanty fprings and hafty torrents were dry in the fummer feafon; nor was the thirft of the befiegers relieved, as in the city, by the artificial fupply of cifterns and aqueducts. The circumjacent country is equally deflitute of trees for the uses of shade cr building; but fome large beams were difcovered in a cave by the crufaders: a wood near Sichem, the enchanted grove of Taffo ", tom. i. p. 294, 300.). Both flrangers and Vit. Saladin. p. 238.). natives complained of the want of water, ¹⁰⁹ Gierufalemme Li a perennial fountain, an aqueduct, and cif- of the fiege.

¹⁰⁸ Jerufalem was poffessed only of the terns for rain water. The aqueduct was torrent of Kedron, dry in fummer, and of conveyed from the rivulet Tekoe or Etham, the little fpring or brook of Siloe (Reland, which is likewife mentioned by Bohadin (in 109 Gierusalemme Liberata, canto xiii. It which in time of war was studiously aggra- is pleasant enough to observe how Tasso has vated. Within the city, Tacitus mentions copied and embellished the minutest details je ...

was

1 2

LVIII.

C H A P. was cut down: the neceffary timber was transported to the camp by the vigour and dexterity of Tancred; and the engines were framed by fome Genoefe artifts, who had fortunately landed in the harbour of Jaffa. Two moveable turrets were constructed at the expence, and in the flations, of the duke of Lorraine and the count of Tholoufe, and rolled forwards with devout labour, not to the most accessible, but to the most neglected, parts of the fortification. Raymond's tower was reduced to ashes by the fire of the befieged, but his colleague was more vigilant and fuccefsful; the enemies were driven by his archers from the rampart; the draw-bridge was let down; and on a Friday at three in the afternoon, the day and hour of the Paffion, Godfrey of Bouillon flood victorious on the walls of Jerufalem. His example was followed on every fide by the emulation of valour; and about four hundred and fixty years after the conqueft of Omar, the holy city was refcued from the Mahometan yoke. In the pillage of public and private wealth, the adventurers had agreed to refpect the exclusive property of the first occupant; and the spoils of the great mofch, feventy lamps and maffy vales of gold and filver, rewarded the diligence, and displayed the generofity, of Tancred. A bloody facrifice was offered by his miftaken votaries to the God of the Chriftians: refiftance might provoke, but neither age nor fex could mollify, their implacable rage: they indulged themfelves three days in a promifcuous maffacre "; and the infection of the dead bodies produced an epidemical difeafe. . After feventy thoufand Moflems had been put to the fword, and the harmlefs Jews had been burnt in their fynagogue, they could ftill referve a multitude of captives, whom intereft or lassitude perfuaded them to spare. Of these favage heroes of the cross, Tancred alone betrayed fome fentiments of compaffion ; yet we may praife the more felfish lenity of Raymond, who granted a capitulation and fafe conduct to the garrifon

LVIII.

m

[&]quot; Besides the Latins, who are not ashamed and M. de Guignes (tom. ii. p. ii. p. 99.), of the maffacre, fee Elmacin (Hift. Saracen. from Aboulmahafen. p. 363.), Abulpharagius (Dynaft. p. 243.), ł

garrifon of the citadel ". The holy fepulchre was now free; and C H A P. the bloody victors prepared to accomplish their vow. Bareheaded and barefoot, with contrite hearts, and in an humble pofture, they afcended the hill of Calvary, amidft the loud anthems of the clergy ; kiffed the ftone which had covered the Saviour of the world; and bedewed with tears of joy and penitence the monument of their redemption. This union of the fiercest and most tender passions has been varioufly confidered by two philosophers; by the one¹¹², as eafy and natural; by the other 113, as abfurd and incredible. Perhaps it is too rigoroully applied to the fame perfons and the fame hour : the example of the virtuous Godfrey awakened the piety of his companions; while they cleanfed their bodies, they purified their minds; nor shall I believe that the most ardent in flaughter and rapine were the foremost in the procession to the holy fepulchre.

Eight days after this memorable event, which pope Urban did not live to hear, the Latin chiefs proceeded to the election of a king, to guard and govern their conquefts in Paleftine. Hugh the Great, and Stephen of Chartres, had retired with fome lofs of reputation, which they ftrove to regain by a fecond crufade and an honourable death. Baldwin was eftablished at Edeffa, and Bohemond at Antioch, and two Roberts, the duke of Normandy 114 and the count of Flanders, preferred their fair inheritance in the Weft to a doubtful competition or a barren sceptre. The jealousy and ambition of Raymond were condemned by his own followers, and the free, the just, the unanimous voice of the army, proclaimed Godfrey of 112 Hume, in his Hiftory of England, vol. i. p. 311, 312. octavo edition.

113 Voltaire, in his Effai fur l'Hiftoire Ge-

114 The English ascribe to Robert of Normandy, and the Provincials to Raymond of Tholoufe, the glory of refufing the crown; but the honeft voice of tradition has preferved the memory of the ambition and revenge (Villehardouin, Nº 136.) of the count of St. Giles. He died at the fiege of Tripoli, which was poffeffed by his defcendants. Bouillon Election and reign of Godfrey of Bouillon, A. D. 1099, July 23-A. D. 1100, July 18.

LVIII. ~

9

^{} The old tower Pfephina, in the middle ages Neblofa, was named Caftellum Pifa- nerale, tom. ii. c. 54. p. 345, 346. num, from the patriarch Daimbert. It is still the citadel, the refidence of the Turkish aga, and commands a prospect of the Dead Sea, Judea, and Arabia (d'Anville, p. 19-23). It was likewife called the Tower of David, πυργος παμμεγεθες ατος.

Battle of Afcalon, A. D. 1099, August 12.

C H A P. Bouillon the first and most worthy of the champions of Christendom. His magnanimity accepted a truft as full of danger as of glory; but in a city where his Saviour had been crowned with thorns, the devont pilgrim rejected the name and enfigns of royalty; and the founder of the kingdom of Jerufalem contented himfelf with the modest title of Defender and Baron of the Holy Sepulchre. His government of a fingle year "5, too fhort for the public happinefs, was interrupted in the first fortnight by a fummons to the field, by the approach of the vizir or fultan of Egypt, who had been too flow to prevent, but who was impatient to avenge, the lofs of Jerufalem. His total overthrow in the battle of Afcalon fealed the eftablishment of the Latins in Syria, and fignalized the valour of the French princes, who in this action bade a long farewel to the holy wars. Some glory might be derived from the prodigious inequality of numbers, though I shall not count the myriads of horse and foot on the fide of the Fatimites; but, except three thousand Ethiopians or blacks, who were armed with flails or fcourges of iron, the Barbarians of the South fled on the first onset, and afforded a pleasing comparison between the active valour of the Turks and the floth and effeminacy of the natives of Egypt. After fufpending before the holy fepulchre the fword and ftandard of the fultan, the new king (he deferves the title) embraced his departing companions, and could retain only with the gallant Tancred three hundred knights, and two thousand foot foldiers, for the defence of Palestine. His fovereignty was foon attacked by a new enemy, the only one against whom Godfrey was a coward. Adhemar, bifhop of Puy, who excelled both in council and action, had been fwept away in the last plague of Antioch: the remaining ecclefiaftics preferved only the pride and avarice of their character; and their feditious clamours had required that the choice of a bifhop fhould precede that of a king. The revenue and jurifdiction of the lawful patriarch were usurped by the

62

LVIII.

Lang

¹¹⁵ See the election, the battle of Afca- and in the conclusion of the Latin historians lon, &c. in William of Tyre, l.ix. c. 1-12. of the first crufade. 8 Latin

Latin clergy: the exclusion of the Greeks and Syrians was C H A P. justified by the reproach of herefy or schifm ""; and, under the iron voke of their deliverers, the Oriental Christians regretted the tolerating government of the Arabian caliphs. Daimbert, archbishop of Pifa, had long been trained in the fecret policy of Rome : he brought a fleet of his countrymen to the fuccour of the Holy Land, and was installed, without a competitor, the spiritual and temporal head of the The new patriarch "7 immediately grafped the fceptre church. which had been acquired by the toil and blood of the victorious pilgrims; and both Godfrey and Bohemond fubmitted to receive at his hands the investiture of their feudal possefilions. Nor was this fufficient; Daimbert claimed the immediate property of Jerufalem and Jaffa : instead of a firm and generous refusal, the hero negociated with the prieft; a quarter of either city was ceded to the church; and the modelt bishop was fatisfied with an eventual reversion of the reft, on the death of Godfrey without children, or on the future acquifition of a new feat at Cairo or Damafcus.

Without this indulgence, the conqueror would have almost been The kingftripped of his infant kingdom, which confifted only of Jerufalem and Jaffa, with about twenty villages and towns of the adjacent coun- 1099-1187.try "*. Within this narrow verge, the Mahometans were ftill lodged in fome impregnable caftles; and the hufbandman, the trader, and the pilgrim, were exposed to daily and domeftic hoftility. By the arms of Godfrey himfelf, and of the two Baldwins, his brother and coufin. who fucceeded to the throne, the Latins breathed with more eafe and fafety; and at length they equalled, in the extent of their dominions, though not in the millions of their fubjects, the ancient princes of 116 Renaudot, Hift. Patriarch. Alex. p. 479. 117 See the claims of the patriarch Daimbert, in William of Tyre (l. ix. c. 15-18. x. 4. 7. 9.), who afferts with marvellous candour the independence of the conquerors and the flate and conquefts of the Latin kingdom kings of Jerufalem.

118 Willerm. Tyr. 1. x. 19. The Hiftoria Hierofolimita of Jacobus à Vitriaco (l. i. c. 21-50.), and the Secreta Fidelium Crucis of Marinus Sanutus (l. iii. p. i.), defcribe of Jerusalem.

Judah

dom of Jerufalem, A. D.

63

LVIII.

LVIII.

C H A P. Judah and Ifrael ". After the reduction of the maritime cities of Laodicea, Tripoli, Tyre, and Afcalon 120, which were powerfully affifted by the fleets of Venice, Genoa, and Pifa, and even of Flanders and Norway'21, the range of fea-coast from Scanderoon to the borders of Egypt was poffeffed by the Christian pilgrims. If the prince of Antioch difclaimed his fupremacy, the counts of Edeffa and Tripoli owned themfelves the vaffals of the king of Jerufalem : the Latins reigned beyond the Euphrates; and the four cities of Hems, Hamah, Damafcus, and Aleppo, were the only relics of the Mahometan conquefts in Syria¹²². The laws and language, the manners and titles, of the French nation and Latin church, were introduced into thefe transmarine colonies. According to the feudal jurifprudence, the principal ftates and fubordinate baronies defcended in the line of male and female fucceffion 123; but the children of the first conquerors¹²⁴, a motley and degenerate race, were diffolved by > 119 An actual muster, not including the tribes of Levi and Benjamin, gave David an army of 1,300,000, or 1,574,000 fighting men; which, with the addition of women, children, and flaves, may imply a population of thirteen millions, in a country fixty leagues in length, and thirty broad. The honeft and rational Le Clerc (Comment. on 2^d Samuel xxiv. and 1st Chronicles xxi. æftuat angusto in limite, and mutters his fuspicion of a falle transcript; a dangerous sufpicion !

> *20 Thefe fieges are related, each in its proper place, in the great hiftory of William of Tyre, from the inth to the xviiith book, and more briefly told by Bernardus Thefaurarius (de Acquisitione Terræ Sanctæ, c. 89 -98. p. 732-740.). Some domestic facts are celebrated in the Chronicles of Pifa, Genoa, and Venice, in the vith, ixth, and xiith tomes of Muratori.

> 121 Quidam populus de infulis occidentis egreffus, et maxime de câ parte quæ Norvegia dicitur. William of Tyre (l. xi. c. 14. p. 804.) marks their course per Britannicum mare et Calpen to the fiege of Sidon.

122 Benelathir, apud de Guignes, Hift. des Huns, tom. ii. part ii. p. 150, 151. A.D. 1127. He must speak of the inland country.

*23 Sanut very fenfibly defcants on the mischiefs of female succession, in a land hoftibus circumdata, ubi cuncta virilia et virtuosa effe deberent. Yet, at the summons, and with the approbation, of her feudal lord, a noble damfel was obliged to chufe a hufband and champion (Affifes de Jerufalem, c. 242, &c.). See in M. de Guignes (tom. i. p. 441-471.) the accurate and ufeful tables of these dynasties, which are chiefly drawn from the Lignages d'Outremer.

124 They were called by derifion Poullains. Pullani, and their name is never pronounced without contempt (Ducange, Gloff. Latin. tom. v. p. 535. and Obfervations fur Joinville, p. 84, 85. Jacob à Vitriaco, Hift. Hierofol. 1. i. c. 67. 72. and Sanut, 1. iii. p. viii. c. 2. p. 182.). Illustrium virorum qui ad Terræ Sanctæ liberationem in ipfå manferunt degeneres filii in deliciis enutriti, molles et effæminati, &c.

the

the luxury of the climate; the arrival of new crufaders from Europe, C H A P. was a doubtful hope and a cafual event. The fervice of the feudal tenures 123 was performed by fix hundred and fixty-fix knights, who might expect the aid of two hundred more under the banner of the count of Tripoli; and each knight was attended to the field by four fquires or archers on horfeback 126. Five thousand and feventy-five ferjeants, most probably foot-foldiers, were supplied by the churches and cities; and the whole legal militia of the kingdom could not exceed eleven thousand men, a flender defence against the furrounding myriads of Saracens and Turks 127. But the firmeft bulwark of Jerufalem was founded on the knights of the hospital of St. John¹²⁵, and of the temple of Solomon¹²⁹; on the ftrange affociation of a monaftic and military life, which fanaticifm might fuggest, but which policy must approve. The flower of the nobility of Europe afpired to wear the crofs, and to profefs the vows, of thefe refpectable orders; their fpirit and difcipline were immortal; and the fpeedy donation of twenty-eight thousand farms, or manors'3°, enabled them to fupport a regular force of cavalry and infantry for the defence of Paleftine. The aufterity of the convent foon evaporated 125 This authentic detail is extracted from affumed the profession of arms about the year the Affifes de Jerusalem (c. 324. 326-331.). only 518 knights, and 5775 followers.

"20 The fum total, and the division, afcertain the fervice of the three great baronies at 100 knights each; and the text of the Affifes, which extends the number to 500, can only be justified by this supposition.

127 Yet on great emergencies (fays Sanut) the barons brought a voluntary aid, decentem comitivam militum juxta flatum fuum.

128 William of Tyre (l. xviii. c. 3, 4, 5.) relates the ignoble origin, and early infolence, of the Hofpitalers, who foon deferted their humble patron, St. John the Eleemofynary, Critica, A. D. 1099, Nº 14-18.). They dwelling.

VOL. VI.

1120; the Hofpital was mater, the Temple. Sanut (l. iii. p. viii. c. 1. p. 174.) reckons filia; the Teutonic order was founded A. D. 1190, at the fiege of Acre (Mofheim, Institut. p. 389, 390.).

129 See St. Bernard de Laude Novæ Militiæ Templi, composed A. D. 1132-1136, in Opp. tom. i. p. ii. p. 547-563. edit. Mabillon, Venet. 1750. Such an encomium, which is thrown away on the dead Templars, would be highly valued by the hiftorians of Malta.

"30 Matthew Paris, Hift. Major, p. 544-He affigns to the Hospitalers 19,000, to the Templars 9,000 maneria, a word of much higher import (as Ducange has rightly obfor the more august character of St. John the ferved) in the English than in the French Baptift (see the ineffectual ftruggles of Pagi, idiom. Maner is a lordship, maneir a

in

65

LVIII.

C H A P. in the exercise of arms: the world was scandalised by the pride. LVIII. avarice, and corruption of these Christian foldiers; their claims of immunity and jurifdiction diffurbed the harmony of the church and ftate; and the public peace was endangered by their jealous emulav tion. " But in their most diffolute period, the knights of the hospital and temple maintained their fearlefs and fanatic character : they neglected to live, but they were prepared to die, in the fervice of Chrift; and the fpirit of chivalry, the parent and offspring of the crufades, has been transplanted by this inflitution from the holy fepulchre to the ifle of Malta "".

Affife of Jerufalem, A. D. 1099-1369.

66

The fpirit of freedom, which pervades the feudal inftitutions, was felt in its ftrongeft energy by the volunteers of the crofs, who elected for their chief the most deferving of his peers. Amidst the flaves of Afia, unconfcious of the leffon or example, a model of political liberty was introduced : and the laws of the French kingdom are derived from the pureft fource of equality and juffice. Of fuch laws, the first and indispensable condition is the affent of those, whofe obedience they require, and for whofe benefit they are defigned. No fooner had Godfrey of Bouillon accepted the office of fupreme magistrate, than he folicited the public and private advice of the Latin pilgrims, who were the beft fkilled in the ftatutes and cuftoms of Europe." From these materials, with the counsel and approbation of the patriarch and barons, of the clergy and laity, Godfrey composed the ASSISE OF JERUSALEM¹³², a precious monument of feudal jurifprudence. The new code, attefted by the feals of the king, the patriarch, and the vifcount of Jerufalem, was deposited in the holy fepulchre, enriched with the improvements of fucceeding times, and Coutumes de Beauvoifis (Bourges and Paris, 1690, in folio), and illustrated by Gaspard Thaumas de la Thaumaffiere, with a comment and gloffary. An Italian version had been published in 1535, at Venice, for the use of the kingdom of Cyprus.

respect-

¹³¹ In the three first books of the Histoire French, were printed with Beaumanoir's des Chevaliers de Malthe, par l'Abbé de Vertot, the reader may amufe himfelf with a fair, and fometimes flattering, picture of the order, while it was employed for the defence of Paleftine. The fubfequent books purfue their emigrations to Rhodes and Malta.

^{*32} The Affifes de Jerufalem, in old law 7

respectfully confulted as often as any doubtful question arose in the C H A P. tribunals of Paleftine. With the kingdom and city, all was loft "33; the fragments of the written law were preferved by jealous tradition "34 and variable practice till the middle of the thirteenth century: the code was reftored by the pen of John d'Ibelin, count of Jaffa, one of the principal feudatories "35; and the final revision was accomplished in the year thirteen hundred and fixty-nine, for the use of the Latin kingdom of Cyprus 136.

The juffice and freedom of the conftitution were maintained by Court of two tribunals of unequal dignity, which were inflituted by Godfrey of Bouillon after the conquest of Jerufalem. The king, in perfon, prefided in the upper-court, the court of the barons. Of thefe the four most confpicuous were the prince of Galilee, the lord of Sidon and Cæfarea, and the counts of Jaffa and Tripoli, who, perhaps with the conftable and marshal "37, were in a special manner the competers and judges of each other. But all the nobles, who held their lands immediately of the crown, were entitled and bound to attend the king's court ; and each baron exercifed a fimilar jurifdiction in the fubordinate affemblies of his own feudatories. The connection of lord ¹³³ A la terre perdue, tout fut perdû, is Baruth (Berytus) and Rames, and died A.D. the vigorous expression of the Assis (c. 281.). Yet Jerufalem capitulated with Saladin; the queen and the principal Christians departed in peace; and a code fo precious and fo portable could not provoke the avarice of the conquerors. I have fometimes fuspected the existence of this original copy of the Holy Sepulchre, which might be invented to fanctify and authenticate the traditionary cuftoms of the French in Palestine.

³³⁺ A noble lawyer, Raoul de Tabarie, denied the prayer of king Amauri (A. D. 1195-1205), that he would commit his knowledge to writing, and frankly declared, que de ce qu'il favoit, ne feroit-il ja nul borjois son pareill, ne nul sage homme lettré (c. 281.).

*35 The compiler of this work, Jean d'Ibelin, was count of Jaffa and Afcalon, lord of 1266 (Sanut, 1. iii. p. ii. c. 5. 8.). The family of Ibelin, which defcended from a younger brother of a count of Chartres in France, long flourished in Palestine and Cyprus (fee the Lignages de deça Mer, or d'Outremer, c. 6. at the end of the Affifes de Ierufalem, an original book, which records the pedigrees of the French adventurers).

¹³⁶ By fixteen commiffioners chofen in the ftates of the ifland : the work was finished the 3d of November 1369, fealed with four feals, and deposited in the cathedral of Nicofia (fee the preface to the Affifes).

137 The cautious John d'Ibelin argues, rather than affirms, that Tripoli is the fourth barony, and expresses fome doubt concerning the right or pretention of the conftable and marshal (c. 323.).

K 2

and peers.

LVIII.

LVIII. -----

C H A P. and vaffal was lionourable and voluntary: reverence was due to the benefactor, protection to the dependent; but they mutually pledged their faith to each other; and the obligation on either fide might be fuspended by neglect or diffolved by injury. The cognizance of marriages and teftaments was blended with religion, and ufurped by the clergy; but the civil and criminal caufes of the nobles, the inheritance and tenure of their fiefs, formed the proper occupation of the fupreme court. Each member was the judge and guardian both of public and private rights. It was his duty to affert with his tongue and fword the lawful claims of the lord; but if an unjuft fuperior prefumed to violate the freedom or property of a vaffal, the confederate peers flood forth to maintain his quarrel by word and deed. They boldly affirmed his innocence and his wrongs; demanded the reftitution of his liberty or his lands; fufpended, after a fruitless demand, their own fervice; refcued their brother from prifon; and employed every weapon in his defence, without offering direct violence to the perfon of their lord, which was ever facred in their eyes 138. In their pleadings, replies, and rejoinders, the advocates of the court were fubtle and copious; but the ufe of argument and evidence was often superfeded by judicial combat; and the Affife of Jerufalem admits in many cafes this barbarous inftitution, which has been flowly abolished by the laws and manners of Europe.

Law of judicial combats.

The trial by battle was eftablished in all criminal cafes, which affected the life, or limb, or honour, of any perfon; and in all civil tranfactions, of or above the value of one mark of filver. It appears, that in criminal cafes the combat was the privilege of the accufer, who, except in a charge of treafon, avenged his perfonal injury, or the death of those perfons whom he had a right to represent; but wherever, from celle maniere que le feignor mette main ou fimplicity of freedom.

¹³⁸ Entre feignor et homme ne n'a que la face mettre au cors ou au fié d'aucun d'yaus foi;.... mais tant que l'homme doit à fon sans efgard et sans connoissance de court, feignor reverence en toutes chofes (c. 206.). que tous les autres doivent venir devant le Tous les hommes dudit royaume font par feignor, &c. (212.). The form of their re-ladite Affife tenus les uns as autres....et en monflrances is conceived with the noble

the

the nature of the charge, testimony could be obtained, it was necessary C H A P-LVIII. for him to produce witneffes of the fact. In civil cafes, the combat was not allowed as the means of establishing the claim of the demandant; but he was obliged to produce witneffes who had, or affumed to have, knowledge of the fact. The combat was then the privilege of the defendant; becaufe he charged the witnefs with an attempt by perjury to take away his right. He came therefore to be in the fame fituation as the appellant in criminal cafes. It was not then as a mode of proof that the combat was received, nor as making negative evidence (according to the supposition of Montesquieu ""); but in every cafe the right to offer battle was founded on the right to purfue by arms the redrefs of an injury; and the judicial combat was fought on the fame principle, and with the fame fpirit, as a private duel. Champions were only allowed to women, and to men maimed or paft the age of fixty. The confequence of a defeat was death to the perfon accufed, or to the champion or witnefs, as well as to the accufer himfelf; but in civil cafes, the demandant was punished with infamy and the loss of his fuit, while his witness and champion fuffered an ignominious death. In many cafes it was in the option of the judge to award or to refuse the combat : but two are fpecified, in which it was the inevitable refult of the challenge; if a faithful vallal gave the lie to his compeer, who unjuftly claimed any portion of their lord's demefnes; or if an unfuccefsful fuitor prefumed to impeach the judgment and veracity of the court-He might impeach them, but the terms were fevere and perilous: in the fame day he fucceffively fought all the members of the tribunal, even those who had been absent : a fingle defeat was followed by death and infamy; and where none could hope for victory, it is highly probable that none would adventure the trial. In the Affife of Jerufalem, the legal fubtlety of the count of Jaffa is more

laudably

²³⁹ See l'Efprit des Loix, l. xxviii. In the of enquiry which it has excited, is not the forty years fince its publication, no work has leaft of our obligations to the author. been more read and criticifed; and the fpirit

LVIII.

C H A P. laudably employed to elude, than to facilitate, the judicial combat, which he derives from a principle of honour rather than of fuperftition "*°.

Court of burgesses.

Among the caufes which enfranchifed the plebeians from the voke of feudal tyranny, the inftitution of cities and corporations is one of the most powerful; and if those of Palestine are coeval with the first crufade, they may be ranked with the moft ancient of the Latin world. Many of the pilgrims had efcaped from their lords under the banner of the crofs; and it was the policy of the French princes to tempt their flay by the affurance of the rights and privileges of freemen. It is expressly declared in the Affize of Jerufalem, that after inflituting, for his knights and barons, the court of peers, in which he prefided himfelf, Godfrey of Bouillon eftablished a second tribunal, in which his perfon was reprefented by his vifcount. The jurifdiction of this inferior court extended over the burgeffes of the kingdom; and it was composed of a felect number of the most difcreet and worthy citizens, who were fworn to judge, according to the laws, of the actions and fortunes of their equals 141. In the conqueft and fettlement of new cities, the example of Jerufalem was imitated by the kings and their great vaffals; and above thirty fimilar corporations were founded before the loss of the Holy Land. Another clafs of fubjects, the Syrians '*2, or Oriental Chriftians, were oppreffed by the zeal of the clergy, and protected by the toleration of the flate. Godfrey liftened to their reafonable prayer, that they might be judged

Syrians.

140 For the intelligence of this obscure 1108) after Godfrey of Bouillon (Affifes, and obsolete jurisprudence (c. 80-111.), I am deeply indebted to the friendship of a learned lord, who, with an accurate and difcerning eye, has furveyed the philofophic hiftory of law. By his fludies, pofterity might be enriched: the merit of the orator and the judge can be felt only by his contemporaries.

141 Louis le Gros, who is confidered as the father of this inflitution in France, did not begin his reign till nine years (A.D.

c. 2. 324.). For its origin and effects, fee the judicious remarks of Dr. Robertfon (Hiftory of Charles V. vol. i. p. 30-36. 251-265. quarto edition).

1+2 Every reader converfant with the hiftorians of the crufades, will understand by the peuble des Suriens, the Oriental Chriftians, Melchites, Jacobites, or Neftorians, who had all adopted the use of the Arabic language (vol. iv. p. 593.).

70

by their own national laws. A third court was inflituted for their C H A P. ufe, of limited and domeftic jurifdiction: the fworn members were Syrians, in blood, language, and religion; but the office of the prefident (in Arabic, of the rais) was fometimes exercifed by the viscount of the city. At an immeasurable diffance below the nobles, Villains and the burgeffes, and the ftrangers, the Affife of Jerufalem condefcends to mention the villains and flaves, the peafants of the land and the captives of war, who were almost equally confidered as the objects of property. The relief or protection of these unhappy men was not effeemed worthy of the care of the legiflator; but he diligently provides for the recovery, though not indeed for the punifhment, of the fugitives. Like hounds, or hawks, who had ftraved from the lawful owner, they might be loft and claimed : the flave and falcon were of the fame value; but three flaves, or twelve oxen, were accumulated to equal the price of the war-horfe; and a fum of three hundred pieces of gold was fixed, in the age of chivalry, as the equivalent of the more noble animal 143.

143 See the Affifes de Jerusalem (310, 311, ward I. I understand, from a late publica-312.). Thefe laws were enacted as late as tion (of his Book of Account), that the price the year 1350, in the kingdom of Cyprus. of a war-horfe was not lefs exorbitant in In the fame century, in the reign of Ed- England. LVIII.

flaves.

CHAP. LIX.

Prefervation of the Greek Empire.-Numbers, Paffage, and Event, of the Second and Third Crusades .- St. Bernard.-Reign of Saladin in Egypt and Syria.-His Conquest of Jerusalem .- Naval Crusades .- Richard the First of England .- Pope Innocent the Third; and the Fourth and Fifth Crusades.-The Emperor Frederic the Second.-Louis the Ninth of France; and the two last Crusades.-Expulsion of the Latins or Franks by the Mamalukes.

LIX. Success of Alexius, A. D. 1097-1118.

C H A P. TN a ftyle lefs grave than that of hiftory, I fhould perhaps coma pare the emperor Alexius' to the jackall, who is faid to follow the fteps, and to devour the leavings, of the lion. Whatever had been his fears and toils in the paffage of the first crufade, they were amply recompended by the fubfequent benefits which he derived from the exploits of the Franks. His dexterity and vigilance fecured their first conquest of Nice; and from this threatening station the Turks were compelled to evacuate the neighbourhood of Conftantinople. While the crufaders, with blind valour, advanced into the midland countries of Afia, the crafty Greek improved the favourable occafion when the emirs of the fea-coaft were recalled to the standard of the fultan. The Turks were driven from the isles of Rhodes and Chios: the cities of Ephefus and Smyrna, of Sardes,

> ¹ Anna Comnena relates her father's con-quefts in Afia Minor, Alexiad, l. xi. p. 321 lixity, l. xii, xiii, p. 345-406.; the death of -325. l. xiv. p. 419.; his Cilician war Bohemond, l. xiv. p. 419. against Tancred and Bohemond, p. 328-

Philadel-

Philadelphia, and Laodicea, were reftored to the empire, which C H A P. Alexius enlarged from the Hellespont to the banks of the Maander, and the rocky fhores of Pamphylia. The churches refumed their fplendour; the towns were rebuilt and fortified; and the defert country was peopled with colonies of Chriftians, who were gently removed from the more diftant and dangerous frontier. In these paternal cares, we may forgive Alexius, if he forgot the deliverance of the holy fepulchre; but, by the Latins, he was fligmatized with the foul reproach of treason and defertion. They had sworn fidelity and obedience to his throne; but he had promifed to affift their enterprife in perfon, or, at leaft, with his troops and treafures : his bafe retreat diffolved their obligations; and the fword, which had been the inftrument of their victory, was the pledge and title of their just independence. It does not appear that the emperor attempted to revive his obfolete claims over the kingdom of Jerufalem²; but the borders of Cilicia and Syria were more recent in his poffeffion. and more acceffible to his arms. The great army of the crufaders was annihilated or difperfed; the principality of Antioch was left without a head, by the furprife and captivity of Bohemond : his ranfom had oppreffed him with a heavy debt; and his Norman followers were infufficient to repel the hoftilities of the Greeks and Turks. In this diffrefs, Bohemond embraced a magnanimous refolution, of leaving the defence of Antioch to his kinfman, the faithful Tancred; of arming the Weft against the Byzantine empire, and of executing the defign which he inherited from the leffons and example of his father Guiscard. His embarkation was clandestine : and if we may credit a tale of the princefs Anne, he passed the hostile fea, closely fecreted in a coffin³. But his reception in France was ² The kings of Jerufalem fubmitted however to a nominal dependence, and in the dates of their inferiptions (one is still legible in the church of Bethlem), they respectfully placed before their own, the name of the reigning putrefaction. This abfurd tale is unknown emperor (Ducange, Differtations fur Joinville, to the Latins. xxvii. p. 319.).

³ Anna Comnena adds, that to complete the imitation, he was fhut up with a dead cock; and condefcends to wonder how the Barbarian could endure the confinement and dignified

VOL. VI.

L

73

LIX.

74

C H A P. dignified by the public applaufe, and his marriage with the king's daughter : his return was glorious, fince the bravest spirits of the age enlifted under his veteran command ; and he repaffed the Adriatic at the head of five thousand horse and forty thousand foot, affembled from the most remote climates of Europe⁴. The ftrength of Durazzo, and prudence of Alexius, the progress of famine, and approach of Winter, eluded his ambitious hopes; and the venal confederates were feduced from his ftandard. A treaty of peace ^s fuspended the fears of the Greeks; and they were finally delivered by the death of an adverfary, whom neither oaths could bind, nor dangers could appal, nor profperity could fatiate. His children fucceeded to the principality of Antioch; but the boundaries were frictly defined, the homage was clearly flipulated, and the cities of Tarfus and Malmistra were restored to the Byzantine emperors. Of the coaft of Anatolia, they poffeffed the entire circuit from Trebizond to the Syrian gates. The Seljukian dynasty of Roum ' was feparated on all fides from the fea and their Mufulman brethren; the power of the fultans was shaken by the victories, and even the defeats of the Franks; and after the loss of Nice, they removed their throne to Cogni or Iconium, an obfcure and inland town above three hundred miles from Conftantinople'. Inftead of trembling for their capital, the Comnenian princes waged an offenfive war against the Turks, and the first crufade prevented the fall of the declining empire.

⁶ See in the learned work of M. de Guignes (tom. ii. part ii.), the history of the Seljukians of Iconium, Aleppo, and Damafcus, as far as it may be collected from the Greeks, Schultens from Ibn Said).

4 Aπo Θυλης, in the Byzantine Geography, Latins, and Arabians. The last are ignorant or regardless of the affairs of Roum.

7 Iconium is mentioned as a flation by Xenophon, and by Strabo, with the ambiguous title of Kuptonohis (Cellarius, tom. ii. p. 121.). Yet St. Paul found in that place a multitude (πληθος) of Jews and Gentiles. Under the corrupt name of Kunijab, it is defcribed as a great city, with a river and gardens, three leagues from the mountains, and decorated (I know not why) with Plato's tomb (Abulfeda, tabul. xvii. p. 303. verf. Reifke; and the Index Geographicus of muft mean England; yet we are more credibly informed, that our Henry I. would not fuffer him to levy any troops in his kingdom (Ducange, Not. ad Alexiad, p. 41.).

3

In

⁵ The copy of the treaty (Alexiad, 1. xiii. p. 406-416.) is an original and curious piece, which would require, and might afford, a good map of the principality of Antioch.

In the twelfth century, three great emigrations marched by land C H A P. from the Weft to the relief of Paleftine. The foldiers and pilgrims of Lombardy, France, and Germany, were excited by the example and fuccels of the first crufade". Forty-eight years after the deliverance of the holy fepulchre, the emperor, and the French king, Conrad the third, and Louis the feventh, undertook the fecond crufade to fupport the falling fortunes of the Latins'. A grand division of the third crufade was led by the emperor Frederic Barbaroffa", the third, of who fympathifed with his brothers of France and England in the common lofs of Jerufalem. These three expeditions may be compared in their refemblance of the greatness of numbers, their passage through the Greek empire, and the nature and event of their Turkish warfare, and a brief parallel may fave the repetition of a tedious narrative. However splendid it may seem, a regular story of the crufades would exhibit the perpetual return of the fame caufes and effects; and the frequent attempts for the defence or recovery of the Holy Land, would appear fo many faint and unfuccefsful copies of the original.

I. Of the fwarms that fo closely trod in the footfleps of the first Their numpilgrims, the chiefs were equal in rank, though unequal in fame and merit, to Godfrey of Bouillon and his fellow adventurers. At their head were difplayed the banners of the dukes of Burgundy, Bavaria, and Aquitain : the first a descendant of Hugh Capet, the fecond a father of the Brunfwick line : the archbithop of Milan, a

* For this supplement to the first cru- nuel, 1. i. c. 4, 5, 6. p. 41-48. Cinnamus, fade, fee Anna Comnena (Alexias, I. xi. 1. ii. p. 41-49. p. 331, &c. and the viiith book of Albert Aquenfis).

9 For the fecond crufade of Conrad III. and Lewis VII. fee William of Tyre (l. xvi. c. 18-29.), Otho of Frifingen (l. i. c. 34-45. 59, 60), Matthew Paris (Hift. Major. p. 68.), Struvius (Corpus, Hilt. Germanicæ, and the Anonymus de Expeditione Afiaticâ, p. 372, 373.), Scriptores Rerum Francicarum Fred. I. (in Canifii, Antiq. Lection. tom. iii. à Duchefne, tom. iv. Nicetas, in Vit. Ma- p. ii. p. 498-526. edit. Bafnage).

10 For the third crufade, of Frederic Barbaroffa, see Nicetas in Isaac. Angel. 1. ii. c. 3-8. p. 257-266. Struv. (Corpus, Hift. Germ. p. 414.), and two hiftorians, who probably were spectators, Tagino (in Scriptor. Freher. tom. i. p. 406-416. edit. Struv.),

L 2

temporal

LIX. Expeditions by land : the first crufade, A. D. 1101. the fecond, of Conrad III. and Louis VII. A. D. 1147. Frederic I. A. D. 1189.

bers.

C H A P. temporal prince, transported, for the benefit of the Turks, the treafures and ornaments of his church and palace; and the veteran crufaders, Hugh the Great, and Stephen of Chartres, returned to confummate their unfinished vow. The huge and disorderly bodies of their followers moved forwards in two columns; and if the first confifted of two hundred and fixty thousand perfons, the fecond might poffibly amount to fixty thousand horse, and one hundred thousand foot". The armies of the fecond crufade might have claimed the conquest of Afia: the nobles of France and Germany were animated by the prefence of their fovereigns; and both the rank and perfonal characters of Conrad and Louis, gave a dignity to their caufe, and a discipline to their force, which might be vainly expected from the feudatory chiefs. The cavalry of the emperor, and that of the king, was each composed of feventy thousand knights and their immediate attendants in the field "; and if the light-armed troops, the peafant infantry, the women and children, the priefts and monks, be rigoroufly excluded, the full account will fcarcely be fatisfied with four hundred thousand fouls. The West, from Rome to Britain, was called into action; the kings of Poland and Bohemia obeyed the fummons of Conrad; and it is affirmed by the Greeks and Latins, that in the paffage of a ftreight or river, the Byzantine agents, after a tale of nine hundred thousand, defifted from the endless and formidable computation 13. In the third crufade, as the French and English preferred the navigation of the Mediterranean, the host of Frederic Barbaroffa was lefs numerous. Fifteen thoufand knights.

13 William of Tyre, and Matthew Paris, reckon 70,000 loricati in each of the armies.

13 The imperfect enumeration is mentioned by Cinnamus (EPVEYMEOITA MUDIAdes), and confirmed by Odo de Diogilo apud Ducange ad Cinnanum, with the more precife fum of 900,556. Why must therefore the version and comment fuppole the modelt and infufficient reckoning of 90,000? Does not Godfrey of Viterbo (Pantheon, p. xix. in Muratori, tom. vii. p. 462.) exclaim ?

---- Numerum fi pofcere quæras. Millia millena milites agmen erat.

and

LIX.

2

¹¹ Anne, who flates thefe later fwarms at 40,000 horfe, and 100,000 foot, calls them Normans, and places at their head two brothers of Flanders. The Greeks were ftrangely ignorant of the names, families and possessions of the Latin princes.

and as many fquires, were the flower of the German chivalry : fixty C H A P. thousand horse, and one hundred thousand foot, were mustered by the emperor in the plains of Hungary; and after fuch repetitions we shall no longer be startled at the fix hundred thousand pilgrims, which credulity has afcribed to this laft emigration ". Such extravagant reckonings prove only the aftonishment of contemporaries; but their aftonishment most strongly bears testimony to the existence of an enormous though indefinite multitude. The Greeks might applaud their fuperior knowledge of the arts and ftratagems of war, but they confeffed the ftrength and courage of the French cavalry and the infantry of the Germans's; and the ftrangers are defcribed as an iron race, of gigantic stature, who darted fire from their eyes, and spilt blood like water on the ground. Under the banners of Conrad, a troop of females rode in the attitude and armour of men; and the chief of thefe Amazons, from her gilt fpurs and bufkins, obtained the epithet of the Golden-footed Dame.

II. The numbers and character of the ftrangers was an object of Paffage terror to the effeminate Greeks, and the fentiment of fear is nearly Greek emallied to that of hatred. This averfion was fuspended or foftened by the apprehension of the Turkish power; and the invectives of the Latins will not biafs our more candid belief, that the emperor Alexius diffembled their infolence, eluded their hoftilities, counfelled their rafhnefs, and opened to their ardour the road of pilgrimage and conqueft. But when the Turks had been driven from Nice and the fea-coaft, when the Byzantine princes no longer dreaded the diftant Sultans of Cogni, they felt with purer indignation the free

14 This extravagant account is given by Albert of Stade (apud Struvium, p. 414.); my calculation is borrowed from Godfrey of Viterbo, Arnold of Lubeck, apud eundem, and Bernard Thefaur, (c. 169. p. 804.). The original writers are filent. The Mahometans gave him 200,000, or 260,000 men (Bohadin, in Vit. Saladin. p. 110.). -

¹⁵ I must observe, that in the second and third crufades, the fubjects of Conrad and Frederic are flyled by the Greeks and Orientals Alamanni. The Lechi and Tzechi of Cinnamus, are the Poles and Bohemians; and it is for the French, that he referves the ancient appellation of Germans. He likewife names the Epiltors Or Bpitanoi.

through the pire.

LIX.

C H A P. and frequent passage of the western Barbarians, who violated the majefty, and endangered the fafety, of the empire. The fecond and third crufades were undertaken under the reign of Manuel Comnenus and Ifaac Angelus. Of the former, the paffions were always impetuous, and often malevolent; and the natural union of a cowardly and a mischievous temper was exemplified in the latter, who, without merit or mercy, could punifh a tyrant, and occupy his throne." It was fecretly, and perhaps tacitly, refolved by the prince and people to deftroy, or at leaft to difcourage, the pilgrims, by every fpecies of injury and oppreffion; and their want of prudence and discipline continually afforded the pretence or the opportunity. The Weftern monarchs had flipulated a fafe paffage and fair market in the country of their Chriftian brethren; the treaty had been ratified by oaths and hoftages; and the pooreft foldier of Frederic's army was furnished with three marks of filver to defray his expences on the road. But every engagement was violated by treachery and injuffice; and the complaints of the Latins are attefted by the honeft confession of a Greek historian, who has dared to prefer truth to his country 16. Inftead of an hospitable reception, the gates of the cities, both in Europe and Afia, were clofely barred against the crufaders; and the feanty pittance of food was let down in baskets from the walls. Experience or forefight might excuse this timid jealoufy; but the common duties of humanity prohibited the mixture of chalk, or other poifonous ingredients, in the bread; and fhould Manuel be acquitted of any foul connivance, he is guilty of coining bafe money for the purpofe of trading with the pilgrims. In every ftep of their march they were ftopped or mifled : the governors had private orders to fortify the paffes and break down the bridges against them : the stragglers were pillaged and murdered ; the foldiers

³⁶ Nicetas was a child at the fecond cru- polis. Cinnamus is infected with national fade, but in the third he commanded againft prejudice and pride. the Franks the important poft of Philippo-

foldiers and horfes were pierced in the woods by arrows from an C H A P. invisible hand; the fick were burnt in their beds; and the dead bodies were hung on gibbets along the highways. These injuries exafperated the champions of the crofs, who were not endowed with evangelical patience; and the Byzantine princes, who had provoked the unequal conflict, promoted the embarkation and march of these formidable guests. On the verge of the Turkish frontier Barbaroffa fpared the guilty Philadelphia ", rewarded the hofpitable Laodicea, and deplored the hard neceffity that had flained his fword with any drops of Christian blood. In their intercourse with the monarchs of Germany and France, the pride of the Greeks was exposed to an anxious trial. They might boast that on the first interview the feat of Louis was a low ftool, befide the throne of Manuel 18; but no fooner had the French king transported his army beyond the Bosphorus, than he refused the offer of a fecond conference, unlefs his brother would meet him on equal terms, either on the fea or land. With Conrad and Frederic; the ceremonial was ftill nicer and more difficult : like the fucceffors of Conftantine, they ftyled themfelves emperors of the Romans '9; and firmly maintained the purity of their title and dignity. The first of these representatives of Charlemagne would only converfe with Manuel on horfeback in the open field; the fecond, by paffing the Hellespont rather than the Bofphorus, declined the view of Conftantinople and its fovereign. An emperor, who had been crowned at Rome, was reduced in the Greek epiftles to the humble appellation of Rex, or 17 The conduct of the Philadelphians is from fuch ignominy (fur Joinville, differtat. blamed by Nicetas, while the anonymous xxvii. p. 317-320.). Louis afterwards in-German accufes the rudeness of his countrymen (culpa nostra). History would be pleafant, if we were embarraffed only by fuch contradictions. It is likewife from Nicetas, that we learn the pious and humane forrow of Frederic.

works very hard to fave his king and country Iumsparop is fynonymous to Basilius.

fifted on a meeting in mari ex æquo, not ex equo, according to the laughable readings of fome MSS.

19 Ego Romanorum imperator fum, ille Romaniorum (Anonym. Canif. p. 512.). The 18 XOzuann idea, which Cinnamus tranf- public and historical style of the Greeks was lates into Latin by the word DERAION. Ducange Prof. ... princeps. Yet Cinnamus owns, that prince

79

LIX.

^C H A P. LIX. prince of the Alemanni; and the vain and feeble Angelus affected to be ignorant of the name of one of the greateft men and monarchs of the age. While they viewed with hatred and fufpicion the Latin pilgrims, the Greek emperors maintained a ftrict, though fecret, alliance with the Turks and Saracens. Ifaac Angelus complained, that by his friendfhip for the great Saladin he had incurred the enmity of the Franks; and a moſch was founded at Conftantinople for the public exercife of the religion of Mahomet³⁰.

Turkish warfare.

III. The fwarms that followed the first crufade, were destroyed in Anatolia by famine, pestilence, and the Turkish arrows : and the princes only escaped with fome squadrons of horse to accomplish their lamentable pilgrimage. A just opinion may be formed of their knowledge and humanity; of their knowledge from the defign of fubduing Perfia and Chorafan in their way to Jerufalem; of their humanity from the maffacre of the Christian people, a friendly city, who came out to meet them with palms and croffes in their hands. The arms of Conrad and Louis were lefs cruel and imprudent; but the event of the fecond crufade was still more ruinous to Christendom; and the Greek Manuel is accufed by his own fubjects of giving feafonable intelligence to the fultan, and treacherous guides to the Latin princes. Inftead of crushing the common foe, by a double attack at the fame time but on different fides, the Germans were urged by emulation, and the French were retarded by jealoufy. Louis had fcarcely paffed the Bofphorus when he was met by the returning emperor, who had loft the greateft part of his army in glorious, but unfuccessful, action on the banks of the Mæander. The contraft of the pomp of his rival haftened the retreat of Conrad: the defertion of his independent vaffals reduced him to his hereditary troops; and he borrowed fome Greek veffels to execute by fea the pilgrimage of Paleftine. Without fludying the leffons of experience,

²⁰ In the Epiftles of Innocent III. (xiii. 130.), fee the views of a pope and a cadhi on p. 184.), and the Hiftory of Bohadin (p. 129, this fingular toleration.

or

or the nature of the war, the king of France advanced through the C H A P. fame country to a fimilar fate. The vanguard, which bore the royal banner and the oriflamme of St. Denys ", had doubled their march with rafh and inconfiderate fpeed; and the rear which the king commanded in perfon no longer found their companions in the evening camp. In darknefs and diforder they were encompafied, affaulted, and overwhelmed, by the innumerable hoft of Turks, who in the art of war were fuperior to the Christians of the twelfth century. Louis, who climbed a tree in the general difcomfiture, was faved by his own valour and the ignorance of his adverfaries; and with the dawn of day he efcaped alive, but almost alone to the camp of the vanguard. But inftead of purfuing his expedition by land, he was rejoiced to fhelter the relics of his army in the friendly fea-port of Satalia. From thence he embarked for Antioch; but fo penurious was the fupply of Greek veffels, that they could only afford room for his knights and nobles; and the plebeian crowd of infantry was left to perish at the foot of the Pamphylian hills. The emperor and the king embraced and wept at Jerufalem ; their martial trains, the remnant of mighty armies, were joined to the Christian powers of Syria, and a fruitless fiege of Damafcus was the final effort of the fecond crufade. Conrad and Louis embarked for Europe with the perfonal fame of piety and courage; but the Orientals had braved these potent monarchs of the Franks, with whofe names and military forces they had been fo often threatened²². Perhaps they had ftill more to fear from the veteran genius of Frederic the first, who in his youth had ferved in Afia under his uncle Conrad. Forty campaigns in Germany and Italy had taught ²¹ As counts of Vexin, the kings of Joinville, differt. xviii. p. 244-253.). France were the vaffals and advocates of xiith to the xvth century (Ducange fur history.

22 The original French hiftories of the the monastery of St. Denys. The faint's fccond crufade, are the Gesta Ludovici VII. peculiar banner, which they received from published in the ivth volume of Duchefne's the abbot, was of a square form, and a red Collection. The same volume contains many or flaming colour. The oriflamme appeared original letters of the king, of Suger his at the head of the French armies from the minister, &c. the best documents of authentic

VOL. VI.

M

Barbaroffa

81

LIX.

C H A P. Barbaroffa to command; and his foldiers, even the princes of the LIX. empire, were accuftomed under his reign to obey. As foon as he loft fight of Philadelphia and Laodicea, the laft cities of the Greek frontier, he plunged into the falt and barren defert, a land (fays the historian) of horror and tribulation 23. During twenty days, every step of his fainting and fickly march was belieged by the innumerable hords of Turkmans²⁴, whofe numbers and fury feemed after each defeat to multiply, and inflame. The emperor continued to ftruggle and to fuffer; and fuch was the measure of his calamities, that when he reached the gates of Iconium, no more than one thousand knights were able to ferve on horseback. By a sudden and refolute affault, he defeated the guards, and ftormed the capital of the fultan²⁵, who humbly fued for pardon and peace. The road was now open, and Frederic advanced in a career of triumph, till he was unfortunately drowned in a petty torrent of Cilicia²⁶. The remainder of his Germans was confumed by ficknefs and defertion : and the emperor's fon expired with the greatest part of his Swabian vaffals at the fiege of Acre. Among the Latin heroes, Godfrey of Bouillon and Frederic Barbaroffa could alone atchieve the paffage of the Leffer Afia; yet even their fuccefs was a warning; and in the laft and most experienced age of the crufades, every nation preferred the fea to the toils and perils of an inland expedition 27.

Obstinacy of the enthusias of the crusades. The enthulialm of the first crulade is a natural and fimple event, while hope was fresh, danger untried, and enterprise congenial to ²³ Terram horroris et falfuginis, terram ficcam, flerilem inamænam. Anonym. Canif. p. 517. The emphatic language of a fufferer.

²⁴ Gens innumera, fylvestris, indomita, prædones fine ductore. The fultan of Cogni might fincerely rejoice in their defeat. Anonym. Canif. p. 517, 518.

²⁵ See in the anonymous writer in the collection of Canifus, Tagino, and Bohadin (Vit. Saladin. p. 119, 120.), the ambiguous conduct of Kilidge Arflan, fultan of Cogni, who, hated and feared both Saladin and Frederic. ²⁶ The defire of comparing two great men, has tempted many writers to drown Frederic in the river Cydnus, in which Alexander fo imprudently bathed (Q. Curt. l. iii. c. 4, 5.). But from the march of the ëmperor, I rather judge, that his Saleph is the Calycadnus, a fream of lefs fame, but of a longer courfe.

²⁷ Marinus Sanutus, A. D. 1321, lays it down as a precept, Quod fiolus Ecclefiae per terram nullatenus elt ducenda. He refolves, by the Divine aid, the objection, or rather exception, of the first crufade (Secreta Fidelium Crucis, I. ii. pars ii. c. i. p. 37.).

the

the fpirit of the times. But the obftinate perfeverance of Europe C H A P. may indeed excite our pity and admiration; that no inftruction fhould have been drawn from conftant and adverfe experience; that the fame confidence fhould have repeatedly grown from the fame failures; that fix fucceeding generations fhould have rufhed headlong down the precipice that was open before them; and that men of every condition fhould have ftaked their public and private fortunes, on the desperate adventure of possessing or recovering a tomb-ftone two thoufand miles from their country. In a period of two centuries after the council of Clermont, each fpring and fummer produced a new emigration of pilgrim warriors for the defence of the Holy Land; but the feven great armaments or crufades were excited by fome impending or recent calamity: the nations were moved by the authority of their pontiffs, and the example of their kings: their zeal was kindled, and their reafon was filenced, by the voice of their holy orators; and among thefe, Bernard 28, the monk, or the faint, may Character claim the most honourable place. About eight years before the St. Bernard, first conquest of Jerusalem, he was born of a noble family in Burgundy; at the age of three-and-twenty, he buried himfelf in the monaftery of Citeaux, then in the primitive fervour of the inftitution; at the end of two years he led forth her third colony, or daughter, to the valley of Clairvaux²⁹ in Champagne; and was content, till the hour of his death, with the humble station of Abbot of his own community. A philosophic age has abolished, with too liberal and indiferiminate difdain, the honours of thefe fpiritual heroes.

²⁸ The most authentic information of St. Bernard must be deawn from his own writings, published in a correct edition by Pére Mabillon, and reprinted at Venice 1750, in fix volumes in folio. Whatever friendship could recollect, or fuperfition could add, is contained in the two lives, by his disciples, in the vith volume: whatever learning and criticifm could afcertain, may be found in the prefaces of the Benedictine editor.

29 Clairvaux, furnamed the Valley of Abfynth, is fituate among the woods near Bar fur Aube in Champagne. St. Bernard would blush at the pomp of the church and monaftery; he would afk for the library, and I know not whether he would be much edified by a tun of 800 muids (914; hogsheads), which almost rivals that of Heidelberg (Melangés Tirés d'une Grande Bibliotheque, tom. xlvi. p. 15-20.).

M 2

and miffion of A. D. 1091-1153.

83

LIX.

C H A P. heroes. The meaneft among them are diffinguished by fome energies of the mind; they were at least fuperior to their votaries and difciples; and, in the race of fuperstition, they attained the prize for which fuch numbers contended. In fpeech, in writing, in action, Bernard flood high above his rivals and contemporaries; his compolitions are not devoid of wit and eloquence; and he feems to have preferved as much reafon and humanity as may be reconciled with the character of a faint. In a fecular life, he would have fhared the feventh part of a private inheritance; by a vow of poverty and penance, by clofing his eyes against the visible world 3°, by the refufal of all ecclefiaftical dignities, the abbot of Clairvaux becamethe oracle of Europe, and the founder of one hundred and fixty convents. Princes and pontiffs trembled at the freedom of his apofolical cenfures : France, England, and Milan, confulted and obeyed his judgment in a fchifm of the church : the debt was repaid by the gratitude of Innocent the fecond; and his fucceffor Eugenius the third was the friend and disciple of the holy Bernard. It was in the proclamation of the fecond crufade that he fhone as the miffionary. and prophet of God, who called the nations to the defence of his holy fepulchre³¹. At the parliament of Vezelay he fpoke before the king; and Louis the feventh, with his nobles, received their croffes from his hand. The abbot of Clairvaux then marched to the lefs eafy conqueft of the emperor Conrad : a phlegmatic people, ignorant of his language, was transported by the pathetic vehemence of his tone and geftures; and his progrefs, from Conftance to Cologne, was the triumph of eloquence and zeal. Bernard applauds his own fuccefs in the depopulation of Europe; affirms that cities and caffles > fannensem totius diei itinere pergens, penitus able landskip. non attendit aut se videre non vidit. Cum enim vespere facto de codem lacú socii col- 363. ad Francos Orientales, Opp. tom. i.

> 30 The disciples of the faint (Vit. 1ma, effet; et mirati sunt universi. To admire or 1. iii. c. 2. p. 1232. Vit. iida, c. 16. Nº 45. defpife St. Bernard as he ought, the reader, p. 1383.) record a marvellous example of like myfelf, should have before the windows his pious apathy. Juxta lacum etiam Lau- of his library the beauties of that incompar-

> 31 Otho Frifing. 1. i. c. 4. Bernard, Epift. loquerentur, interrogabat cos ubi lacus ille p. 328. Vit. 1ma, l. iii. c. 4. tom. vi. p. 1235. were were emptied of their inhabitants; and computes, that only one man C H A P. was left behind for the confolation of feven widows 32. The blind fanatics were defirous of electing him for their general; but the example of the hermit Peter was before his eyes; and while he affured the Crufaders of the divine favour, he prudently declined a military command, in which failure and victory would have been almost equally difgraceful to his character33. Yet, after the calamitous event, the abbot of Clairvaux was loudly accufed as a falfe prophet, the author of the public and private mourning; his enemies exulted, his friends blufhed, and his apology was flow and unfatisfactory. He justifies his obedience to the commands of the pope; expatiates on the mysterious ways of providence; im-. putes the misfortunes of the pilgrims to their own fins; and modefily infinuates, that his miffion had been approved by figns and wonders ³⁺. Had the fact been certain, the argument would be decifive ; and his faithful disciples, who enumerate twenty or thirty miracles in a day, appeal to the public affemblies of France and Germany, in which they were performed 35. At the prefent hour, fuch prodigies will not obtain credit beyond the precincts of Clairvaux; but in the preternatural cures of the blind, the lame, and the fick, who were prefented to the man of God, it is impossible for us to afcertain the feparate fhares of accident, of fancy, of imposture, and of fiction.

84

LIX.

Omnipotence itself cannot escape the murmurs of its discordant Progress of votaries; fince the fame difpenfation which was applauded as a deli- metans.

32 Mandastis et obedivi multiplicati funt fuper numerum ; vacuantur urbes et caftella ; et pene jam non inveniunt quem apprehendant feptem mulieres unum virum; adeo ubique viduæ vivis remanent viris. Bernard. Epift. p. 247. We must be careful not to construe pene as a substantive.

egrediar ante facies armatorum, aut quid tam remotum a professione mea, si vires, si peritia, &c. epift. 256. tom. i. p. 259. He. c. 5, 6. Opp. tom. vi. p. 1258-1261. l. vi. fpeaks with contempt of the hermit Peter, c. 2-17. p. 1286-1314. vir quidam, epist. 363.

34 Sic dicunt forfitan iste, unde fcimus quòd a Domino fermo egressius sit? Que figna tu facis ut credamus tibi? Non est quod ad ista ipfe respondeam; percendum verecundiæ meæ, refponde tu pro me, et pro te ipfo, fecundum quæ vidifti et audifti, et fecundum quod te inspiraverit Deus. Con-33 Quis ego sum ut disponam acies, ut solat. 1. ii. c. 1. Opp. tom. ii. p. 421-423.

35 See the testimonies in Vlta 1ma l. iv.

verance

the Maho-

LIX.

17

C H A P. verance in Europe, was deplored, and perhaps arraigned, as a cala-LIX. mity in Afia. After the lofs of - Jerufalem, the Syrian fugitives Land diffufed their confternation and forrow: Bagdad mourned in the dust; the cadhi Zeineddin of Damafcus tore his beard in the caliph's prefence; and the whole divan fhed tears at his melancholy tale³⁶. But the commanders of the faithful could only weep; they were themfelves captives in the hands of the Turks: fome temporal power was reftored to the laft age of the Abbaffides; but their humble ambition was confined to Bagdad and the adjacent province. Their tyrants, the Seljukian fultans, had followed the common law of the Afiatic dynasties, the unceasing round of valour, greatnefs, difcord, degeneracy, and decay : their fpirit and power were unequal to the defence of religion; and, in his diftant realm of Perfia, the Christians were strangers to the name and the arms of Sangiar, the laft hero of his race 37. While the fultans were in-The Atabeks of Syria. volved in the filken web of the haram, the pious tafk was undertaken by their flaves, the Atabeks³⁸; a Turkifh name, which, like the Byzantine patricians, may be translated by Father of the Prince. Afcanfar, a valiant Turk, had been the favourite of Malek Shaw, from whom he received the privilege of ftanding on the right-hand of the throne; but, in the civil wars that enfued on the monarch's death, he loft his head and the government of Aleppo. His do-Zenghi, A. D. 1127-1145. meftic emirs perfevered in their attachment to his fon Zenghi, who proved his first arms against the Franks in the defeat of Antioch:

des Huns, tom. ii. P. ii. p. 99.

37 See his article in the Bibliotheque Orientale of d'Herbelot, and de Guignes, tom. ii. P. i. p. 230-261. Such was his valour, that he was flyled the fecond Alexander; and fuch the extravagant love of his fubjects, that they prayed for the fultan a year after his decease. Yet Sangiar might have been made prisoner by the Franks, as well as by Atabeks and Noureddin, and the Dynafties of 36 Abulmahasen apud de Guignes, Hist. 1103-1152.), and was a munificent patron of Persian poetry.

³⁸ See the Chronology of the Atabeks of Irak and Syria, in de Guignes, tom. i. p. 254; and the reigns of Zenghi and Noureddin in the same writer (10m. ii. P. ii. p. 147 -221.), who uses the Arabic text of Benelathir, Ben Schounah, and Abulfeda; the Bibliotheque Orientale, under the articles the Uzes. He reigned near fifty years (A. D. Abulpharagius, p. 250-267. verf. Pocock.

> 18 thirty

thirty campaigns in the fervice of the caliph and fultan eftablished C H A P. his military fame; and he was invefted with the command of Moful, as the only champion that could avenge the caufe of the prophet. The public hope was not difappointed : after a fiege of twenty-five days, he flormed the city of Edeffa, and recovered from the Franks their conquests beyond the Euphrates 39 : the martial tribes of Curdiftan were fubdued by the independent fovereign of Moful and Aleppo: his foldiers were taught to behold the camp as their only country; they trufted to his liberality for their rewards; and their abfent families were protected by the vigilance of Zenghi. At the head of these veterans, his fon Noureddin gradually united Noureddin, the Mahometan powers; added the kingdom of Damafcus to that 1145-1174. of Aleppo, and waged a long and fuccefsful war against the Chriftians of Syria; he fpread his ample reign from the Tigris to the Nile, and the Abbaffides rewarded their faithful fervant with all the titles and prerogatives of royalty. The Latins themfelves were compelled to own the wifdom and courage, and even the juffice and piety, of this implacable adverfary ^{+°}. In his life and government, the holy warrior revived the zeal and fimplicity of the first caliphs. Gold and filk were banished from his palace; the use of wine from his dominions; the public revenue was for upuloufly applied to the public fervice ; and the frugal household of Noureddin was maintained from his legitimate fhare of the fpoil which he vefted in the purchase of a private estate. His favourite Sultana fighed for some female object of expence. " Alas," replied the king, " I fear God, " and am no more than the treasurer of the Moslems. Their pro-

33.) maximus nominis et fidei Christianæ the mouth of their enemies. persecutor ; princeps tamen jullus, vafer, pro-ligiofus. To this catholic witnefs, we may add the primate of the Jacobites (Abulpharag. p. 267.), quo non alter erat inter reges vitæ ratione magis laudabili, aut quæ pluribus juffitiæ experimentis abundaret. The true 4º Noradinus (fays William of Tyre, l. xx. praise of kings is after their death, and from

A. D.

87

LIX.

" perty

³⁹ William of Tyre (l. xvi. c. 4, 5. 7.) vidus, et fecundum gentis suæ traditiones redefcribes the lofs of Edeffa, and the death of Zenghi. The corruption of his name into Sanguin, afforded the Latins a comfortable allufion to his fanguinary character and end, fit fanguine fanguinolentus.

C H A P. " perty I cannot alienate; but I ftill peffefs three fhops in the city " of Hems: thefe you may take; and thefe alone can I beftow." His chamber of juffice was the terror of the great and the refuge of the poor. Some years after the fultan's death, an oppreffed fubject called aloud in the freets of Damafcus, " O Noureddin, Noureddin, " where art thou now? Arife, arife, to pity and protect us !" A tumult was apprehended, and a living tyrant blufhed or trembled at the name of a departed monarch.

By the arms of the Turks and Franks, the Fatimites had been deprived of Syria. In Egypt, the decay of their character and influence was still more effential. Yet they were still revered as the defcendants and fucceffors of the prophet; they maintained their invisible state in the palace of Cairo; and their perfon was feldom violated by the profane eyes of fubjects or ftrangers. The Latin ambaffadors 41 have defcribed their own introduction through a feries of gloomy paffages, and glittering porticoes : the fcene was enlivened by the warbling of birds and the murmur of fountains : it was enriched by a difplay of rich furniture, and rare animals; of the Imperial treafures, fomething was fhewn, and much was fuppofed; and the long order of unfolding doors was guarded by black foldiers and domeftic eunuchs. The fanctuary of the prefence chamber was veiled with a curtain; and the vizir, who conducted the ambaffadors, laid afide his fcymetar, and proftrated himfelf three times on the ground; the veil was then removed; and they beheld the commander of the faithful, who fignified his pleafure to the first flave of the throne. But this flave was his mafter: the vizirs or fultans had ulurped the fupreme administration of Egypt; the claims of the rival candidates were decided by arms; and the name of the moft worthy, of the ftrongest, was inferted in the royal patent of command.

Conqueft of Egypt by the Turks, A.D. 1163-1169.

a

⁴¹ From the ambaffador, William of Tyre weighing feventeen Egyptian drams, an eme-(l. xix. c. 17, 18.) defcribes the palace of rald a palm and an half in length, and many Cairo. In the caliphs treasure were found a vafes of chrystal and porcelain of China pearl as large as a pigeon's egg, a ruby (Renaudot, p. 536.).

mand. The factions of Dargham and Shawer alternately expelled C H A P. each other from the capital and country; and the weaker fide implored the dangerous protection of the fultan of Damafcus or the king of Jerufalem, the perpetual enemies of the feft and monarchy of the Fatimites. By his arms and religion, the Turk was most formidable; but the Frank, in an eafy direct march, could advance from Gaza to the Nile; while the intermediate fituation of his realm compelled the troops of Noureddin to wheel round the fkirts of Arabia, a long and painful circuit, which exposed them to thirst, fatigue, and the burning winds of the defert. The fecret zeal and ambition of the Turkish prince aspired to reign in Egypt under the name of the Abbaffides; but the reftoration of the fuppliant Shawer was the oftenfible motive of the first expedition; and the fuccefs was entrusted to the emir Shiracouh, a valiant and veteran commander. Dargham was oppreffed and flain; but the ingratitude, the jealoufy, the just apprehensions, of his more fortunate rival, foon provoked him to invite the king of Jerufalem to deliver Egypt from his infolent benefactors. To this union, the forces of Shiracouh were unequal; he relinquished the premature conquest; and the evacuation of Belbeis or Pelufium was the condition of his fafe retreat. As the Turks defiled before the enemy, and their general clofed the rear, with a vigilant eye, and a battle-axe in his hand, a Frank prefumed to alk him if he were not afraid of an attack? " It is doubtlefs in " your power to begin the attack," replied the intrepid emir; " but " rest affured, that not one of my foldiers will go to paradife till " he has fent an infidel to hell." His report of the riches of the land, the effeminacy of the natives, and the diforders of the government, revived the hopes of Noureddin; the caliph of Bagdad applauded the pious defign; and Shiracouh defcended into Egypt a fecond time with twelve thousand Turks and eleven thousand Arabs. Yet his forces were still inferior to the confederate armies of the VOL. VI. Franks N

C H A P. Franks and Saracens; and I can difeern an unufual degree of mili-LIX. tary art, in his paffage of the Nile, his retreat into Thebais, his mafterly evolutions in the battle of Babain, the furprife of Alexandria, and his marches and counter-marches in the flats and valley of Egypt, from the tropic to the fea. His conduct was feconded by the courage of his troops, and on the eve of action a Mamaluke42 exclaimed, " If we cannot wreft Egypt from the Chriftian " dogs, why do we not renounce the honours and rewards of the " fultan, and retire to labour with the peafants, or to fpin with the " females of the haram ?" Yet, after all his efforts in the field 43, after the obftinate defence of Alexandria 44 by his nephew Saladin, an honourable capitulation and retreat concluded the fecond enterprife of Shiracouh; and Noureddin referved his abilities for a third and more propitious occafion. It was foon offered by the ambition and avarice of Amalric or Amaury, king of Jerufalem, who had imbibed the pernicious maxim, that no faith fhould be kept with the enemies of God. A religious warrior, the great mafter of the hofpital, encouraged him to proceed; the emperor of Conftantinople, either gave, or promifed, a fleet to act with the armies of Syria; and the perfidious Christian, unfatisfied with spoil and subfidy, afpired to the conqueft of Egypt. In this emergency, the Moflems turned their eyes towards the fultan of Damafcus; the vizir, whom danger encompaffed on all fides, yielded to their unanimous wifhes, and Noureddin feemed to be tempted by the fair offer of one third of the revenue of the kingdom. The Franks were already at the > 42 Mamluc, plur. Mamalic, is defined by king of Jerusalem no more than 374 knights. Pocock (Prolegom. ad Abulpharag. p. 7.), and d'Herbelot (p. 545.), fervum emptitium, seu qui pretio numerato in domini poffeffionem cedit. They frequently occur in the wars of Saladin (Bohadin, p. 236, &c.); and it was only the Babartie Mamalukes that were first introduced into Egypt by his descendants.

43 Jacobus à Vitriaco (p. 1116.) gives the

Both the Franks and the Mollems report the fuperior numbers of the enemy; a difference which may be folved by counting or omitting the unwarlike Egyptians.

44 It was the Alexandria of the Arabs, a middle term in extent and riches between the period of the Greeks and Romans, and that of the Turks (Savary, Lettres fur l'Egypte, 10m. i. p. 25, 26.).

gates

gates of Cairo; but the fuburbs, the old city, were burnt on their C H A P. approach; they were deceived by an infidious negociation; and their veffels were unable to furmount the barriers of the Nile. They prudently declined a conteft with the Turks, in the midft of an hoffile country; and Amaury retired into Paleftine, with the fhame and reproach that always adhere to unfuccefsful injuffice. After this deliverance, Shiracouh was invefted with a robe of honour, which he foon flained with the blood of the unfortunate Shawer. For a while, the Turkish emirs condefcended to hold the office of vizir; but this foreign conqueft precipitated the fall of the Fatimites themfelves; and the bloodlefs change was accomplished by a meffage and a word. The caliphs had been degraded by their own weaknefs and the tyranny of the vizirs : their fubjects blufhed, when the defcendant and fucceffor of the prophet prefented his naked hand to the rude gripe of a Latin ambaffador; they wept when he fent the hair of his women, a fad emblem of their grief and terror, to excite the pity of the fultan of Damafcus. By the command of Noureddin, End of the and the fentence of the doctors, the holy names of Abubeker, Omar, liphs, and Othman, were folemnly reftored : the caliph Mofthadi, of Bagdad, was acknowledged in the public prayers as the true commander of the faithful; and the green livery of the fons of Ali was exchanged for the black colour of the Abbaffides. The laft of his race, the caliph Adhed, who furvived only ten days, expired in happy ignorance of his fate: his treafures fecured the loyalty of the foldiers and filenced the murmurs of the fectaries; and in all fubfequent revolutions, Egypt has never departed from the orthodox tradition of the Moflems 45.

45 For this great revolution of Egypt, fee naudot (Hift. Patriarch. Alex. p. 522-525. William of Tyre (1. xix. 5, 6, 7, 12-31. 532-537.), Vertot (Hift. des Chevaliers xx. 5-12.), Bohadin (in Vit. Saladin. p. 30 de Malthe, tom. i. p. 141-163. in 4^{to}), -39.), Abulfeda (in Excerpt. Schultens, and M. de Guignes (tom. ii. p. ii. p. 185 p. 1-12.), d'Herbelot (Bibliot. Orient. -215.). Adhed, Fathemah, but very incorrect), Re-

N 2

The

Fatimite ca-A. D. 1171.

LIX.

C H A P. LIX. Reign and character of Saladin, A.D. H171-1103.

The hilly country beyond the Tigris is occupied by the paftoral tribes of the Curds 46 : a people hardy, ftrong, favage, impatient of the yoke, addicted to rapine, and tenacious of the government of their national chiefs. The refemblance of name, fituation, and manners, feem to identify them with the Carduchians of the Greeks 47; and they still defend against the Ottoman Porte the antique freedom which they afferted against the fucceffors of Cyrus. Poverty and ambition prompted them to embrace the profession of mercenary foldiers: the fervice of his father and uncle prepared the reign of the great Saladin 48; and the fon of Job or Ayub, a fimple Curd, magnanimoufly finiled at his pedigree, which flattery deduced from the Arabian caliphs 49. So unconfeious was Noureddin of the impending ruin of his houfe, that he conftrained the reluctant youth to follow his uncle Shiracouh into Egypt : his military character was established by the defence of Alexandria; and if we may believe the Latins, he folicited and obtained from the Chriftian general the profane honours of knighthood 5°. On the death of Shiracouh, the office of grand vizir was bestowed on Saladin, as the youngeft and leaft powerful of the emirs; but with the advice of his father, whom he invited to Cairo, his genius obtained the ⁴⁶ For the Curds, fee de Guignes, tom. i. p. 416, 417. the Index Geographicus of Schultens, and Tayernier, Voyages, p. i. p. 303, 309. The Ayoubites defcended from the tribe of the Rawadirei, one of the nobleft; but as they were infected with the herefy of the Merempfychofis, the orthodox fultans infinuated, that their defcent was only on the mother's fide, and that their anceftor was a franger who fettled among the Curds.

⁴⁷ See the the ivth book of the Anabäfis of Xenophon. The ten thou[and fuffered more from the arrows of the free Carduchians, than from the fplendid weaknefs of the great king.

⁴⁸ We are indebted to the professor Schultens (Lugd. Bat. 1755, in folio) for the richeft and moft authentic materials, a life of Saladin by his friend and minifler the Cadhi Bohadin, and copious extracts from the hiftory of his kinfman the prince Abulfeda of Hamah. To thefe we may add, the article of Salabeddin in the Bibliotheque Orientale, and all that may be gleaned from the Dynaltics of Abulpharagius.

⁴⁹ Since Abulfeda was himfelf an Ayoubite, he may fhare the praife, for imitating, at leaft tacitly, the modefly of the founder.

⁵⁰ Hift. Hierofol. in the Gefta Dei per Francos, p. 1152. A fimilar example may be found in Joinville (p. 42. edition du Louvre); but the pious St. Louis refufed to dignify infidels with the order of Chriftian knighthood (Ducange, Obfervations, p. 70.).

afcendanz

afcendant over his equals, and attached the army to his perfon and C H A P. intereft. While Noureddin lived, thefe ambitious Curds were the most humble of his flaves; and the indifcreet murmurs of the divan were filenced by the prudent Ayub, who loudly protefted that at the command of the fultan he himfelf would lead his fon in chains to the foot of the throne. " Such language," he added in private, " was prudent and proper in an affembly of your rivals; but we " are now above fear and obedience; and the threats of Noureddin " fhall not extort the tribute of a fugar-cane." His feafonable death relieved them from the odious and doubtful conflict : his fon, a minor of eleven years of age, was left for a while to the emirs of Damafcus; and the new lord of Egypt was decorated by the caliph with every title " that could fanctify his usurpation in the eyes of the people. Nor was Saladin long content with the poffeffion of Egypt; he defpoiled the Christians of Jerufalem, and the Atabeks of Damafcus, Aleppo, and Diarbekir : Mecca and Medina acknowledged him for their temporal protector: his brother fubdued the diftant regions of Yemen, or the happy Arabia; and at the hour of his death, his empire was fpread from the African Tripoli to the Tigris, and from the Indian ocean to the mountains of Armenia. In the judgment of his character, the reproaches of treafon and ingratitude ftrike forcibly on our minds, impreffed, as they are, with the principle and experience of law and loyalty. But his ambition may in fome measure be excused by the revolutions of Afia³², which had erafed every notion of legitimate fucceffion; by the recent example of the Atabeks themfelves; by his reverence to the fon of his benefactor, his humane and generous behaviour to the collateral 51 In thefe Arabic titles, religionis muft always be underftood; Noureddin, lumen r.; ther of Saladin, obferves from many ex-Ezzodin, decus; Amadoddin, columen: our amples, that the founders of dynasties took hero's proper name was Jofeph, and he was the guilt for themselves, and left the refyled Salaboddin, falus; Al Malichus, Al ward to their innocent collaterals (Excerpto Nafirus, rex defensor; Abu Modaffir, pater p. 10.). victoriæ. Schultens, Præfat.

52 Abulfeda, who defcended from a bro-branches;

LIX.

C H A P. branches; by their incapacity and his merit; by the approbation of the caliph, the fole fource of all legitimate power; and, above all, ~ by the wifhes and interest of the people, whose happines is the first object of government. In bis virtues, and in those of his patron, they admired the fingular union of the hero and the faint; for both Noureddin and Saladin are ranked among the Mahometan faints; and the conftant meditation of the holy war appears to have thed a ferious and fober colour over their lives and actions. The youth of the latter 53 was addicted to wine and women; but his afpiring fpirit foon renounced the temptations of pleafure, for the graver follies of fame and dominion : the garment of Saladin was a coarfe woollen; water was his only drink; and, while he emulated the temperance, he furpaffed the chaftity, of his Arabian prophet. Both in faith and practice he was a rigid Mufulman; he ever deplored that the defence of religion had not allowed him to accomplifh the pilgrimage of Mecca; but at the flated hours, five times each day, the fultan devoutly prayed with his brethren: the involuntary omiffion of fafting was fcrupuloufly repaid; and his perufal of the Koran, on horfeback between the approaching armies, may be quoted as a proof, however oftentatious, of piety and courage 54. The fuperfitious doctrine of the fect of Shafei was the only fludy that he deigned to encourage: the poets were fafe in his contempt; but all profane fcience was the object of his averfion; and a philofopher, who had vented fome fpeculative novelties, was feized and ftrangled by the command of the royal faint. The juffice of his divan was acceffible to the meaneft fuppliant against himfelf and his ministers; and it was only for a kingdom that Saladin would deviate from the rule of equity. While the defcendants of Seljuk and Zenghi held his ftirrup and fmoothed his garments, he was affable and patient with the meaneft of his fervants. So boundlefs was his liberality,

⁵³ See his life and character in Renaudot, brated in the first chapter of Bohadin (p. 4-30.), himfelf an eye-witnefs, and an honeft p. 537-548.

⁵⁴ His civil and religious virtues are cele- bigot. 6

rality, that he diffributed twelve thousand horses at the fiege of Acre; C H A P. and, at the time of his death, no more than forty-feven drams of filver and one piece of gold coin were found in the treafury; yet in a martial reign, the tributes were diminished, and the wealthy citizens enjoyed without fear or danger the fruits of their induftry. Egypt, Syria, and Arabia, were adorned by the royal foundations of hospitals, colleges, and moschs; and Cairo was fortified with a wall and citadel; but his works were confectated to public ufe 55, nor did the fultan indulge himfelf in a garden or palace of private luxury. In a fanatic age, himfelf a fanatic, the genuine virtues of Saladin commanded the efteem of the Christians: the emperor of Germany gloried in his friendship⁵⁶: the Greek emperor folicited his alliance⁵⁷: and the conqueft of Jerufalem diffused, and perhaps magnified, his fame both in the East and West.

During its fhort existence, the kingdom of Jerufalem 58 was fup- His conquest ported by the difcord of the Turks and Saracens; and both the Fa- dom, timite caliphs and the fultans of Damafcus were tempted to facrifice July 3. the cause of their religion to the meaner confiderations of private and prefent advantage. But the powers of Egypt, Syria, and Arabia, were now united by an hero, whom nature and fortune had armed against the Christians. All without, now bore the most threatening aspect; and all was feeble and hollow in the internal state of Jerufalem. After the two first Baldwins, the brother and coufin of Godfrey of Bouillon, the fceptre devolved by female fucceffion to Melifenda, daughter of the fecond Baldwin, and her hufband Fulk, count of Anjou, the father, by a former marriage, of our English Plantagenets. Their two fons, Baldwin the third and Amaury, 57 Bohadin, p. 129, 130.

58 For the Latin kingdom of Jerusalem, folem. I. i. and Sanutus, Secreta Fidelium 56 Anonym. Canifii, tom. iii. p. ii. p. 504. Crucis, 1. iii. p. vi, vii, viii, ix.

waged

of the king-A. D. 1187,

95

⁵⁵ In many works, particularly Joseph's well in the caftle of Cairo, the fultan and fee William of Tyre, from the ixth to the the patriarch have been confounded by the xxiid book. Jacob. à Vitriaco, Hift. Hieroignorance of natives and travellers.

C H A P. waged a ftrenuous, and not unfuccefsful, war against the infidels; but the fon of Amaury, Baldwin the fourth, was deprived, by the leprofy, a gift of the crufades, of the faculties both of mind and body. His fifter Sybilla, the mother of Baldwin the fifth, was his natural heirefs : after the fufpicious death of her child, the crowned her fecond hufband, Guy of Lufignan, a prince of a handfome perfon, but of fuch bafe renown, that his own brother Jeffrey was heard to exclaim, "Since they have made him a king, furely they " would have made me a god !" The choice was generally blamed; and the most powerful vaffal, Raymond count of Tripoli, who had been excluded from the fucceffion and regency, entertained an implacable hatred against the king, and exposed his honour and confcience to the temptations of the fultan. Such were the guardians of the holy city; a leper, a child, a woman, a coward, and a traitor: yet its fate was delayed twelve years by fome fupplies from Europe, by the valour of the military orders, and by the diftant or domeftic avocations of their great enemy. At length, on every fide the finking flate was encircled and preffed by an hoftile line; and the truce was violated by the Franks, whole exiftence it protected. A foldier of fortune, Reginald of Chatillon, had feized a fortrefs on the edge of the defert, from whence he pillaged the caravans, infulted Mahomet, and threatened the cities of Mecca and Medina. Saladin condefcended to complain; rejoiced in the denial of juffice; and at the head of fourfcore thousand horse and foot, invaded the Holy Land. The choice of Tiberias for his first fiege was suggested by the count of Tripoli, to whom it belonged; and the king of Jerufalem was perfuaded to drain his garrifons, and to arm his people, for the relief of that important place 5%. By the advice of the perfidious Ray-

59 Templarii ut apes bombabant et Hofpi- hani de Expugnatione Kudíttica, p. 18. apud talarii ut venti flridebant, et barones fe exitio Schulten.); a specimen of Arabian eloquence, offerebant, et Turcopuli (the Christian light somewhat different from the style of Xemond,

96

troops) femet ipfi in ignem injiciebant (Ifpa- nophon ! 16

mond, the Chriftians were betrayed into a camp deftitute of water: C H A P. he fled on the first onset with the curses of both nations ": Lusignan was overthrown with the lofs of thirty thoufand men; and the wood of the true crofs, a dire misfortune! was left in the power of the infidels. The royal captive was conducted to the tent of Saladin; and as he fainted with thirst and terror, the generous victor prefented him with a cup of fherbet cooled in fnow, without fuffering his companion, Reginald of Chatillon, to partake of this pledge of hospitality and pardon. " The perfon and dignity of a king," faid the fultan, " are facred; but this impious robber muft inftantly acknowledge " the prophet, whom he has blafphemed, or meet the death which " he has fo often deferved." On the proud or confcientious refufal of the Christian warrior, Saladin struck him on the head with his fcymetar, and Reginald was difpatched by the guards 64. The trembling Lufignan was fent to Damafcus to an honourable prifon and fpeedy ranfom; but the victory was flained by the execution of two hundred and thirty knights of the hospital, the intrepid champions and martyrs of their faith. The kingdom was left without a head; and of the two grand mafters of the military orders, the one was flain and the other was a prifoner. From all the cities, both of the fea-coaft and the inland country, the garrifons had been drawn away for this fatal field : Tyre and Tripoli alone could efcape the rapid inroad of Saladin; and three months after the battle of Tiberias he appeared in arms before the gates of Jerufalem 62.

61 Renaud, Reginald, or Arnold de Chatillon, is celebrated by the Latins in his life Louis, p. 70.) alludes to the practice of Sala- plar.

VOL. VI.

" The Latins affirm, the Arabians in- din, of never putting to death a prifoner who had talled his bread and falt. Some flaughtered, and almost facrificed, in a valley of Mecca, ubi facrificia maclantur (Abulfeda, p. s2.).

62 Vertot, who well defcribes the lofs of and death; but the circumstances of the the kingdom and city (Hist. des Chevaliers latter are more diffinctly related by Bohadin de Malthe, tom. i. l. ii. p. 226-278.), inand Abulfeda; and Joinville (Hift. de St. ferts two original epifiles of a knight temfinuate, the treason of Raymond; but had he really embraced their religion, he would of the companions of Arnold had been have been a faint and a hero in the eyes of the latter.

He

97

LIX.

C H A P. LIX. and city of Jerufalem, A. D. 1187, October 2.

He might expect, that the fiege of a city, fo venerable on earth. and in heaven, fo interesting to Europe and Afia, would rekindle the laft fparks of enthuliafm ; and that, of fixty thousand Chriftians,. every man would be a foldier, and every foldier a candidate for martyrdom. But queen Sybilla trembled for herfelf and her captive hufband; and the barons and knights, who had escaped from the fword and chains of the Turks, difplayed the fame factious and felfish ipirit in the public ruin. The most numerous portion of the inhabitants was composed of the Greek and Oriental Christians, whom experience had taught to prefer the Mahometan before the Latin yoke "; and the holy fepulchre attracted a bafe and needy crowd, without arms or courage, who fubfifted only on the charity of the pilgrims. Some feeble and hafty efforts were made for the defence of Jerusalem; but in the space of fourteen days, a victorious. army drove back the fallies of the befieged, planted their engines, opened the wall to the breadth of fifteen cubits, applied their fcalingladders, and erected on the breach twelve banners of the prophet and the fultan. It was in vain that a bare-foot procession of the queen, the women, and the monks, implored the Son of God to fave his tomb and his inheritance from impious violation. Their fole hope was in the mercy of the conqueror, and to the first fuppliant deputation that mercy was fternly denied. " He had fworn to " avenge the patience and long-fuffering of the Moflems; the hour " of forgivenels was elapled, and the moment was now arrived to " explate in blood, the innocent blood, which had been fpilt by God-" frey and the first crufaders." But a desperate and successful ftruggle of the Franks admonished the fultan that his triumph was not yet fecure; he liftened with reverence to a folemn adjuration in the name of the common father of mankind; and a fentiment of human fympathy mollified the rigour of fanaticism and conquest. He confented to accept the city, and to fpare the inhabitants. The 63 Renaudot, Hift. Patriarch. Alex. p. 545.

Greek

Greek and Oriental Chriftians were permitted to live under his do- C'H A P. minion ; but it was flipulated, that in forty days all the Franks and -Latins should evacuate Jerufalem, and be fafely conducted to the fea-ports of Syria and Egypt; that ten pieces of gold thould be paid for each man, five for each woman, and one for every child; and that those who were unable to purchase their freedom should be detained in perpetual flavery. Of fome writers it is a favourite and invidious theme to compare the humanity of Saladin with the maffacre of the first crufade. The difference would be merely perfonal; but we fhould not forget that the Chriftians had offered to capitulate, and that the Mahometans of Jerufalem fuftained the laft extremities of an affault and ftorm. Juffice is indeed due to the fidelity with which the Turkifh conqueror fulfilled the conditions of the treaty; and he may be defervedly praifed for the glance of pity which he caft on the mifery of the vanquished. Instead of a rigorous exaction of his debt, he accepted a fum of thirty thousand byzants, for the ranfom of feven thoufand poor ; two or three thoufand more were difmified by his gratuitous clemency; and the number of flaves was reduced to eleven or fourteen thousand perfons. In his interview with the queen, his words, and even his tears, fuggefted the kindeft confolations; his liberal alms were diffributed among those who had been made orphans or widows by the fortune of war; and while the knights of the hospital were in arms against him, he allowed their more pious brethren to continue, during the term of a year, the care and fervice of the fick. In these acts of mercy the virtue of Saladin deferves our admiration and love: he was above the neceffity of diffimulation, and his ftern fanaticifin would have prompted him to diffemble, rather than to affect, this profane compaffion for the enemies of the Koran. After Jerufalem had been delivered from the prefence of the strangers, the fultan made his triumphant entry, his banners waving in the wind and to the harmony of martial mufic. The great mofch of Omar, which had been converted into 0 2 a church,

99

C H A P. a church, was again confectated to one God and his prophet Mahomet ; the walls and pavement were purified with rofe water ; and a pulpit, the labour of Noureddin, was erected in the fanctuary. But when the golden crofs that glittered on the dome was caft down, and dragged through the fireets, the Chriftians of every fect uttered a lamentable groan, which was answered by the joyful shouts of the Moslems. In four ivory chefts the patriarch had collected the croffes. the images, the vafes, and the relics, of the holy place: they were feized by the conqueror, who was defirous of prefenting the caliph with the trophies of Chriftian idolatry. He was perfuaded however to entrust them to the patriarch and prince of Antioch; and the pious pledge was redeemed by Richard of England, at the expence of fifty-two thousand byzants of gold 64.

The third crufade, by fea, A. D. 1188.

The nations might fear and hope the immediate and final expulfion of the Latins from Syria; which was yet delayed above a century after the death of Saladin 55. In the career of victory, he was first checked by the refistance of Tyre; the troops and garrifons, which had capitulated, were imprudently conducted to the fame port : their numbers were adequate to the defence of the place ; and the arrival of Conrad of Montferrat inspired the diforderly crowd with confidence and union. His father, a venerable pilgrim, had been made prifoner in the battle of Tiberias; but that difafter was unknown in Italy and Greece, when the fon was urged by ambition and piety to vifit the inheritance of his royal nephew, the infant Baldwin. The view of the Turkish banners warned him from the hoftile coaft of Jaffa; and Conrad was unanimoufly hailed as the prince and champion of Tyre, which was already befieged by the conqueror of Jerufalem. The firmness of his zeal, and perhaps 64 For the conquest of Jerufalem, Bohadin (p. 67-75.) and Abulfeda (p. 40-43.) are our Mollem witnesses. Of the Christian, Bernard Thefaurarius (c. 151-167.) is the most copious and authentic; fee likewife Matthew Paris (p. 120-124.).

65 The fieges of Tyre and Acre are most copioufly defcribed by Bernard Thefaurarius (de Acquisitione Terræ Sanctæ, c. 167-179.), the author of the Hiftoria Hierofolymitana (p. 1150-1172. in Bongarfius), Abulfeda (p. 43-50.), and Bohadin (p. 75-179.).

his

100

LIX.

his knowledge of a generous foe, enabled him to brave the threats C H A P. of the fultan, and to declare, that fhould his aged parent be expofed before the walls, he himfelf would difcharge the first arrow. and glory in his defcent from a Christian martyr 66. The Egyptian flect was allowed to enter the harbour of Tyre; but the chain was fuddenly drawn, and five gallies were either funk or taken: a thoufand Turks were flain in a fally; and Saladin, after burning his engines, concluded a glorious campaign by a difgraceful retreat to Damafcus. He was foon affailed by a more formidable tempeft. The pathetic narratives, and even the pictures, that reprefented in lively colours the fervitude and profanation of Jerufalem, awakened the torpid fenfibility of Europe: the emperor, Frederic Barbaroffa, and the kings of France and England, affumed the crofs; and the tardy magnitude of their armaments was anticipated by the maritime ftates of the Mediterranean and the Ocean. The skilful and provident Italians first embarked in the ships of Genoa, Pifa, and Venice. They were fpeedily followed by the most eager pilgrims of France. Normandy, and the Weftern Ifles. The powerful fuccour of Flanders, Frife, and Denmark, filled near an hundred veffels; and the northern warriors were diffinguished in the field by a lofty flature and a ponderous battle-axe 67. Their encreasing multitudes could no longer be confined within the walls of Tyre, or remain obedient to the voice of Conrad. They pitied the misfortunes, and revered the dignity, of Lufignan, who was releafed from prifon, perhaps, to divide the army of the Franks. He proposed the recovery of Ptolemais, or Acre, thirty miles to the fouth of Tyre; and the place was first invested by two thousand horse and thirty thousand foot under his nominal command. I shall not expatiate on the flory of ⁶⁶ I have followed a moderate and pro- infularum quæ inter occidentem et feptembable representation of the fact : by Vertot, who adopts without reluctance a romantic tale, the old marquis is actually exposed to the darts of the belieged.

67 Northmanni et Gothi, et cæteri populi trionem fitæ funt, gentes bellicofæ, corporis proceri, mortis intrepidæ, bipennibus armatæ, navibus rotundis quæ Yínachiæ dicuntur-advectæ.

this

101

LIX.

LIX. L----Siege of Acre, A. D. 1189, July-A. D. 1191, July.

C H A P. this memorable fiege; which lafted near two years, and confumed, in a narrow space, the forces of Europe and Asia. Never did the flame of enthuliafm burn with fiercer and more deftructive rage; nor could the true believers, a common appellation, who confecrated their own martyrs, refuse fome applause to the mistaken zeal and courage of their adverfaries. At the found of the holy trumpet, the Moflems of Egypt, Syria, Arabia, and the Oriental provinces, affembled under the fervant of the prophet 68 : his camp was pitched and removed within a few miles of Acre; and he laboured, night and day, for the relief of his brethren and the annovance of the Franks. Nine battles, not unworthy of the name, were fought in the neighbourhood, of mount Carmel, with fuch viciflitude of fortune, that in one attack, the fultan forced his way into the city; that in one fally, the Christians penetrated to the royal tent. By the means of divers and pigeons, a regular correspondence was maintained with the belieged : and, as often as the fea was left open, the exhaufted garrifon was withdrawn, and a fresh fupply was poured into the place. The Latin camp was thinned by famine, the fword, and the climate; but the tents of the dead were replenished with new pilgrims, who exaggerated the ftrength and fpeed of their approaching countrymen. The vulgar was aftonished by the report, that the pope himfelf, with an innumerable crufade, was advanced as far as Constantinople. The march of the emperor filled the East with more ferious alarms; the obftacles which he encountered in Afia, and perhaps in Greece, were raifed by the policy of Saladin; his joy on the death of Barbaroffa was meafured by his effeem; and the Chriftians were rather difmayed than encouraged at the fight of the duke of Swabia and his way-worn remnant of five thousand Germans. At length, in the fpring of the fecond year, the royal fleets

10

⁶³ The historian of Jerufalem (p. 1108.) and Getulians, fo that Afia and Africa fought adds the nations of the East from the Tigris against Europe. to India, and the fwarthy tribes of Moors

fleets of France and England caft anchor in the bay of Acre, and the C H A P. fiege was more vigoroufly profecuted by the youthful emulation of the two kings, Philip Augustus and Richard Plantagenet. After every refource had been tried, and every hope was exhausted, the defenders of Acre fubmitted to their fate; a capitulation was granted, but their lives and liberties were taxed at the hard conditions of a ranfom of two hundred thousand pieces of gold, the deliverance of one hundred nobles and fifteen hundred inferior captives, and the reftoration of the wood of the holy crofs. Some doubts in the agreement, and fome delay in the execution, rekindled the fury of the Franks, and three thousand Moslems, almost in the fultan's view, were beheaded by the command of the fanguinary Richard 69. By the conqueft of Acre, the Latin powers acquired a ftrong town and a convenient harbour ; but the advantage was most dearly purchased. The minister and historian of Saladin computes, from the report of the enemy, that their numbers, at different periods, amounted to five or fix hundred thousand; that more than one hundred thousand Christians were flain; that a far greater number was lost by difeafe or fhipwreck; and that a fmall portion of this mighty hoft could return in fafety to their native countries 7°.

Philip Augustus, and Richard the first, are the only kings of France and England, who have fought under the fame banners; but Paleitine, the holy fervice, in which they were enlifted, was inceffantly difturbed by their national jealoufy; and the two factions, which they protected in Paleftine, were more averse to each other than to the 7º Bohadin, p. 14. He quotes the judgment of Balianus, and the prince of Sidon, and adds, ex illo mundo quafi hominum paucifimi redierunt. Among the Chriftians who died before St. John d'Acre, I find the English names of de Ferrers earl of Derby (Dugdale, Baronage, parti. p. 260.), Mowbray (idem, p. 124.), de Mandevil, de Fiennes, St. John, Scrope, Pigot, Talbot, &c.

Richard of England, in A. D. 1191, 1192,

common

⁶⁹ Bohadin, p. 180.; and this maffacre is neither denied nor blamed by the Christian historians. Alacriter juffa complentes (the English foldiers), says Galfridus à Vinesauf (1. iv. c. 4. p. 346.), who fixes at 2700 the number of victims; who are multiplied to 5000 by Roger Hoveden (p. 697, 698.). The humanity or avarice of Philip Augustus was perfuaded to ranfom his prifoners (Jacob. à Vitriaco, l.i. c. 68. p. 1122.).

C H A P. common enemy. In the eyes of the Orientals, the French monarch was fuperior in dignity and power; and in the emperor's abfence, the Latins revered him as their temporal chief". His exploits were not adequate to his fame. Philip was brave, but the flatefinan predominated in his character; he was foon weary of facrificing his health and intereft on a barren coaft; the furrender of Acre became the fignal of his departure; nor could he justify this unpopular defertion, by leaving the duke of Burgundy, with five hundred knights and ten thousand foot, for the fervice of the Holy Land. The king of England, though inferior in dignity, furpaffed his rival in wealth and military renown72; and if heroifm be confined to brutal and ferocious valour. Richard Plantagenet will ftand high among the heroes of the age. The memory of Cœur de Lion, of the lion-hearted prince, was long dear and glorious to his English subjects; and, at the distance of fixty years, it was celebrated in proverbial fayings by the grandfons of the Turks and Saracens, against whom he had fought : his tremendous name was employed by the Syrian mothers to filence their infants; and if an horfe fuddenly flarted from the way, his rider was wont to exclaim, " Doft thou think king Richard is in that " bufh "?" His cruelty to the Mahometans was the effect of temper and zeal ; but I cannot believe that a foldier, fo free and fearlefs in the use of his lance, would have defcended to whet a dagger against his valiant brother Conrad of Montferrat, who was flain at Tyre by fome fecret affaffins⁷⁴. After the furrender of Acre, and the depar-

> 71 Magnus hic apud eos, interque reges eorum tum virtute, tum majestate eminens fummus rerum arbiter (Bohadin, p. 159.). He does not feem to have known the names either of Philip or Richard.

> 72 Rex Angliæ, præstrenuus....rege Gallorum minor apud eos censebatur ratione regni atque dignitatis; fed tum divitiis florentior, tum bellica virtute multo erat celebrior (Bohadin, p. 161.). A stranger might admire those riches; the national historians will tell with what lawlefs and wasteful oppreffion they were collected.

73 Joinville, p. 17. Cuides-tu que ce soit le roi Richart?

74 Yet he was guilty in the opinion of the Mollems, who atteft the confession of the affaffins, that they were fent by the king of England (Bohadin, p. 225.); and his only defence is an abfurd and palpable forgery (Hift. de l'Academie des Infcriptions, tom. xvi. p. 155-163.), a pretended letter from the prince of the affaffins, the Sheich, or old man of the mountain, who justified Richard, by affuming to himfelf the guilt or merit of the murder.

104

LIX.

ture

ture of Philip, the king of England led the crufaders to the recovery C H A P. of the fea-coaft; and the cities of Cæfarea and Jaffa were added to the fragments of the kingdom of Lufignan. A march of one hundred miles from Acre to Afcalon, was a great and perpetual battle of eleven days. In the diforder of his troops, Saladin remained on the field with feventeen guards, without lowering his flandard, or fuspending the found of his brazen kettle-drum : he again rallied and renewed the charge; and his preachers or heralds called aloud on the unitarians, manfully to fland up against the Christian idolaters. But the progrefs of thefe idolaters was irrefiftible : and it was only by demolifhing the walls and buildings of Afcalon, that the fultan could prevent them from occupying an important fortrefs on the confines of Egypt. During a fevere winter, the armies flept; but in the fpring, the Franks advanced within a day's march of Jerufalem, under the leading ftandard of the English king; and his active spirit intercepted a convoy, or caravan, of seven thousand camels. Saladin⁷⁵ had fixed his flation in the holy city; but the city was ftruck with confternation and difcord : he fasted ; he prayed ; he preached; he offered to fhare the dangers of the fiege; but his Mamalukes, who remembered the fate of their companions at Acre, preffed the fultan with loyal or feditious clamours, to referve bis perfon and their courage for the future defence of the religion and empire⁷⁶. The Moflems were delivered by the fudden, or, as they deemed, the miraculous, retreat of the Christians"; and the laurels of Richard were blafted by the prudence, or envy, of his compa-

76 Yet unless the fultan, or an Ayoubite Turcis, nec Turci effent obtemperaturi Cur- he was bribed by Saladin. dis (Bohadin, p. 236.). He draws afide

VOL. VI.

77 Bohadin (p. 237.) and even Jeffrey de Vinifauf (l.vi. c. 1-8. p. 403-409.) afcribe the retreat to Richard himfelf; and Jacobus à Vitriaco observes, that in his impatience to Yet Joinville, a French knight, accufes the envy of Hugh duke of Burgundy (p. 116.), prince, remained in Jerufalem, nec Curdi, without fuppoling, like Matthew Paris, that nions.

10;

30 14.

P

⁷⁵ See the diffrefs and pious firmnefs of a corner of the political curtain. Saladin, as they are defcribed by Bohadin (p. 7-9. 235-237.), who himfelf harangued the defenders of Jerusalem; their fears were not unknown to the enemy (Jacob. à Vitriaco, 1. i. c. 100. p. 1123. Vinifauf, depart, in alterum virum mutatus eft (p. 1123.). I. v. c. 50. p. 399.).

C H A P. nions. The hero, afcending an hill, and veiling his face, exclaimed LIX. with an indignant voice, " Thofe who are unwilling to refcue, are -----" unworthy to view, the fepulchre of Chrift !" After his return to Acre, on the news that Jaffa was furprised by the fultan, he failed with fome merchant veffels, and leaped foremost on the beach ; the caftle was relieved by his prefence; and fixty thoufand Turks and Saracens fled before his arms. The difcovery of his weakness provoked them to return in the morning; and they found him carelefsly encamped before the gates with only feventeen knights and three hundred archers. Without counting their numbers, he fuftained their charge; and we learn from the evidence of his enemies, that the king of England, grafping his lance, rode furioufly along

His treaty and departure, A. D. 1192, September.

During these hostilities, a languid and tedious negociation 79 between the Franks and Moflems, was flarted, and continued, and broken, and again refumed, and again broken. Some acts of royal courtely, the gift of fnow and fruit, the exchange of Norway hawks and Arabian horfes, foftened the afperity of religious war : from the -viciffitude of fuccefs, the monarchs might learn to fuspect that Heaven was neuter in the quarrel; nor, after the trial of each other, could either hope for a decifive victory *°. The health both of Richard and Saladin appeared to be in a declining flate; and they their front, from the right to the left wing, without meeting an adverfary who dared to encounter his career 78. Am I writing the history of Orlando or Amadis? The work , till , " inter 78 The expeditions to Afcalon, Jerufalem, clared his intention of returning with new and Jaffa, are related by Bohadin (p. 184-249.) and Abulfeda (p. 51, 52.). The author of the Itinerary, or the monk of St. Alban's, cannot exaggerate the Cadhi's account of the prowefs of Richard (Vinifauf, l.vi. c. 14-24. p. 412-421. Hift. Major, p. 137 -1+3.); and on the whole of this war, there is a marvellous agreement between the Chriftian and Mahometan writers, who mutually praife the virtues of their enemies.

79 See the progrefs of negociation and hostility in Bohadin (p. 207-260.), who was himfelf an actor in the treaty. Richard de-armies to the conquest of the Holy Land; and Saladin anfwered the menace with a civil compliment (Vinifauf, l. vi. c. 28. p. 423.).

80 The most copious and original account of this holy war, is Galfridi à Vinifauf Itinerarium Regis Anglorum Richardi et aliorum in Terram Hierofolymorum, in fix books, published in the iid volume of Gale's Scriptores Hift. Anglicanæ (p. 247-429.). Roger Hoveden and Matthew Paris afford likewife many valuable materials; and the former describes, with accuracy, the discipline and navigation of the English fleet.

refpectively

reforctively fuffered the evils of diftant and domeftic warfare : Plan- C H A P. tagenet was impatient to punish a perfidious rival who had invaded -Normandy in his abfence; and the indefatigable fultan was fubdued by the cries of the people, who was the victim, and of the foldiers. who were the inftruments, of his martial zeal. The first demands of the king of England were the reflitution of Jerufalem, Paleftine, and the true crofs; and he firmly declared, that himfelf and his brother pilgrims would end their lives in the pious labour, rather than return to Europe with ignominy and remorfe. But the conscience of Saladin refused, without some weighty compensation, to reftore the idols, or promote the idolatry, of the Christians: he afferted, with equal firmnefs, his religious and civil claim to the fovereignty of Paleftine; defcanted on the importance and fanctity of Jerufalem; and rejected all terms of the establishment, or partition, of the Latins. The marriage which Richard propofed, of his fifter with the fultan's brother, was defeated by the difference of faith: the princefs abhorred the embraces of a Turk; and Adel, or Saphadin, would not eafily renounce a plurality of wives. A perfonal interview was declined by Saladin, who alleged their mutual ;gnorance of each other's language; and the negociation was managed with much art and delay by their interpreters and envoys. The final agreement was equally difapproved by the zealots of both parties, by the Roman pontiff and the caliph of Bagdad. It was ftipulated that Jerufalem and the holy fepulchre should be open, without tribute or vexation, to the pilgrimage of the Latin Chriftians; that, after the demolition of Afcalon, they fhould inclusively poffels the fea-coaft from Jaffa to Tyre; that the count of Tripoli and the prince of Antioch should be comprised in the truce; and that, during three years and three months, all hoftilities fhould ceafe. The principal chiefs of the two armies fwore to the obfervance of the treaty; but the monarchs were fatisfied with giving their word and their right-hand; and the royal majefty was excufed from an oath, which always implies fome fufpicion of falfehood and difho-

LIX.

nour.

P 2

LIX. ladin, A. D. 1193, March 4.

C H A P. nour. Richard embarked for Europe to feek a long captivity and a premature grave; and the fpace of a few months concluded the Death of Sa- life and glories of Saladin. The Orientals defcribe his edifying death, which happened at Damafcus; but they feem ignorant of the equal diffribution of his alms among the three religions ", or of the difplay of a fhroud, inftead of a ftandard, to admonifh the Eaft of the inftability of human greatness. The unity of empire was diffolved by his death; his fons were oppreffed by the ftronger arm of their uncle Saphadin; the hoftile interefts of the fultans of Egypt, Damafcus, and Aleppo⁸², were again revived; and the Franks or Latins flood, and breathed, and hoped, in their fortreffes along the Syrian coaft.

Innocent III. A.D. 1198-1216.

The nobleft monument of a conqueror's fame, and of the terror which he infpired, is the Saladine tenth, a general tax, which was impofed on the laity, and even the clergy, of the Latin church for the fervice of the holy war. The practice was too lucrative to expire with the occafion; and this tribute became the foundation of all the tithes and tenths on ecclefiaftical benefices, which have been granted by the Roman pontiffs to Catholic fovereigns, or referved for the immediate use of the apostolic see 83. This pecuniary emolument must have tended to encrease the interest of the popes in the recovery of Paleftine; after the death of Saladin they preached the crufade, by their epiftles, their legates, and their miffionaries; and the accomplifhment of the pious work might have been expected from the zeal and talents of Innocent the third . * Under that 82 See the fuccession of the Ayoubites, in Abulpharagius (Dynaft. p. 277, &c.), and the tables of M. de Guignes, l'Art de Verifier les Dates, and the Bibliotheque Orientale.

83 Thomafin (Discipline de l'Eglife, tom. iii.

⁸¹ Even Vertot (tom. i. p. 251.) adopts p. 311-374.) has copioully treated of the origin, abufes, and reflrictions of thefe tenths. A theory was started, but not purfued, that they were rightfully due to the pope, a tenth of the Levites' tenth to the high prieft (Selden on Tithes; fee his Works, vol. iii. p. ii. p. 1083.).

84 See the Gefta Innocentii III. in Muratori, Script. Rer. Ital. (tom. iii. p. i. p. 486-568.).

9

young

the foolish notion of the indifference of Saladin, who profesfed the Koran with his laft breath.

young and ambitious prieft, the fucceffors of St. Peter attained the C H A P. full meridian of their greatnefs; and in a reign of eighteen years, he exercifed a defpotic command over the emperors and kings. whom he raifed and depofed; over the nations, whom an interdict of months or years deprived, for the offence of their rulers, of the exercife of Christian worship. In the council of the Lateran he acted as the ecclefiaftical, almost as the temporal, fovereign of the East and West. It was at the feet of his legate that John of England furrendered his crown; and Innocent may boaft of the two most fignal triumphs over fenfe and humanity, the eftablishment of tranfubftantiation, and the origin of the inquifition. At his voice, two crufades, the fourth and the fifth, were undertaken; but, except a king of Hungary, the princes of the fecond order were at the head of the pilgrims; the forces were inadequate to the defign; nor did the effects correspond with the hopes and wishes of the pope and the people. The fourth crufade was diverted from Syria to Con- The fourthftantinople; and the conquest of the Greek or Roman empire by A. D. 1203. the Latins will form the proper and important fubject of the next chapter. In the fifth ⁸⁵, two hundred thousand Franks were landed The fifth, at the eaftern mouth of the Nile. They reafonably hoped that Paleftine must be fubdued in Egypt, the feat and storehouse of the fultan; and, after a fiege of fixteen months, the Moflems deplored the lofs of Damietta. But the Chriftian army was ruined by the pride and infolence of the legate Pelagius, who, in the pope's name, affumed the character of general: the fickly Franks were encompaffed by the waters of the Nile and the Oriental forces; and it was by the evacuation of Damietta that they obtained a fafe retreat, fome conceffions for the pilgrims, and the tardy reflitution of the doubtful ss See the vth crufade, and the fiege of Fidel. Crucis, l. iii. p. xi. c. 4-9.), a dili-Damietta, in Jacobus à Vitriaco (1. iii. p. 1125 gent compiler ; and of the Arabians, Abul--1149. in the Gesta Dei of Bongarsius), an pharagius (Dynast. p. 294.), and the Exeye-witnefs, Bernard Thefaurarius (in Script. tracts at the end of Joinville (p. 533. 537.

Muratori, tom. vii. p. 825-846. c. 190- 540. 547, &c.). 207.), a contemporary, and Sanutus (Secreta

crufade,

A. D. 1218.

100

relic

C H A P. relic of the true crofs. The failure may in fome measure be afcribed to the abuse and multiplication of the crufades, which were preached at the fame time against the Pagans of Livonia, the Moors of Spain, the Albigeois of France, and the kings of Sicily, of the Imperial family 86. In thefe meritorious fervices, the volunteers might acquire at home the fame fpiritual indulgence, and a larger meafure of temporal rewards; and even the popes, in their zeal against a domestic enemy, were fometimes tempted to forget the diftrefs of their Syrian brethren. From the last age of the crufades they derived the occafional command of an army and revenue; and fome deep reafoners have fulpected that the whole enterprife, from the first fynod of Placentia, was contrived and executed by the policy of Rome. The fuspicion is not founded, either in nature or in fact. The fucceffors of St. Peter appear to have followed, rather than guided, the impulse of manners and prejudice; without much forefight of the feafons, or cultivation of the foil, they gathered the ripe and fpontaneous fruits of the fuperstition of the times. They gathered these fruits without toil or perfonal danger: in the council of the Lateran, Innocent the third declared an ambiguous refolution of animating the crufaders by his example; but the pilot of the facred veffel could not abandon the helm; nor was Paleftine ever bleffed with the prefence of a Roman pontiff⁸⁷.

The emperor Frederic II. in Palestine. A. D. 1228.

The perfons, the families, and eftates of the pilgrims, were under the immediate protection of the popes; and these spiritual patrons foon claimed the prerogative of directing their operations, and enforcing, by commands and cenfures, the accomplishment of their Frederic the fecond⁸⁸, the grandfon of Barbaroffa, was fucvow. ceffively

⁸⁶ To those who took the cross against Mainfroy, the pope (A. D. 1255) granted plenifimam peccatorum remissionem. Fideles mirabantur quod tantum eis promitteret pro fanguine Christianorum effundendo quantum pro cruore infidelium aliquando for the reafon of the xilith century.

^{$7} This fimple idea is agreeable to the good fense of Mosheim (Institut. Hist. Eccles. p. 332.) and the fine philosophy of Hume (Hift. of England, vol. i. p. 330.).

83 The original materials for the crufade (Matthew Paris, p. 785.). A high flight of Frederic II. may be drawn from Richard de ceffively the pupil, the enemy, and the victim, of the church. At C H A P. the age of twenty-one years, and in obedience to his guardian Innocent the third, he affumed the crofs; the fame promife was repeated at his royal and imperial coronations; and his marriage with the heirefs of Jerufalem for ever bound him to defend the kingdom of his fon Conrad. But as Frederic advanced in age and authority, he repented of the rash engagements of his youth : his liberal sense and knowledge taught him to defpife the phantoms of fuperstition and the crowns of Afia: he no longer entertained the fame reverence for the fucceffors of Innocent ; and his ambition was occupied by the reftoration of the Italian monarchy from Sicily to the Alps. But the fuccefs of this project would have reduced the popes to their primitive fimplicity; and, after the delays and excufes of twelve years, they urged the emperor, with intreaties and threats, to fix the time and place of his departure for Paleftine. In the harbours of Sicily and Apulia, he prepared a fleet of one hundred gallies, and of one hundred veffels, that were framed to transport and land two thousand five hundred knights, with their horses and attendants; his vaffals of Naples and Germany formed a powerful army; and the number of English crusaders was magnified to fixty thousand by the report of fame. But the inevitable, or affected, flownefs of thefe mighty preparations, confumed the ftrength and provisions of the more indigent pilgrims : the multitude was thinned by fickness and defertion, and the fultry fummer of Calabria anticipated the mifchiefs of a Syrian campaign. At length the emperor hoifted fail at Brundufium, with a fleet and army of forty thousand men; but he kept the fea no more than three days; and his hafty retreat, which was afcribed by his friends to a grievous indifpolition, was accufed by his enemies as a voluntary and obftinate difobedi-

LIX.

LIX.

de St. Germano (in Muratori, Script. Rerum Ecclef. tom. xvi.), Vertot (Chevaliers de Ital. tom. vii. p. 1002-1013.) and Mat- Malthe, tom. i. l. iii.), Giannone (Istoria thew Paris (p. 286. 291. 300. 302. 304.). Civile di Napoli, tom. ii. l. xvi.), and Mu-The most rational moderns are, Fleury (Hist. ratori (Annali d'Italia, tom. x.).

C H A P. ence. For fulpending his vow, was Frederic excommunicated by Gregory the ninth; for prefuming, the next year, to accomplish his vow, he was again excommunicated by the fame pope so. While he ferved under the banner of the crofs, a crufade was preached against him in Italy; and after his return he was compelled to afk pardon for the injuries which he had fuffered. The clergy and military orders of Palestine were previously instructed to renounce his communion and difpute his commands; and in his own kingdom, the emperor was forced to confent that the orders of the camp fhould be iffued in the name of God and of the Christian republic. Frederic entered Jerufalem in triumph; and with his own hands (for no prieft would perform the office) he took the crown from the altar of the holy fepulchre. But the patriarch caft an interdict on the church which his prefence had profaned; and the knights of the hospital and temple informed the fultan how easily he might be furprifed and flain in his unguarded vifit to the river Jordan. In fuch a flate of fanaticilin and faction, victory was hopelefs and defence was difficult; but the conclusion of an advantageous peace may be imputed to the difcord of the Mahometans and their perfonal effeem for the character of Frederic. The enemy of the church is accufed of maintaining with the mifcreants an intercourfe of hofpitality and friendship, unworthy of a Christian; of despising the barrennefs of the land; and of indulging a profane thought, that if Jehovah had feen the kingdom of Naples, he never would have felected Paleftine for the inheritance of his chofen people. Yet Frederic obtained from the fultan the reftitution of Jerufalem, of Bethlem and Nazareth, of Tyre and Sidon: the Latins were allowed to inhabit and fortify the city; an equal code of civil and religious freedom was ratified for the fectaries of Jefus and those of Mahomet; and, while the former worfhipped at the holy fepulchre, the latter > 89 Poor Muratori knows what to think, but knows not what to fay, " Chino qui " il capo," &c. p. 322.

> > might

might pray and preach in the moleh of the temple", from C H A P. whence the prophet undertook his nocturnal journey to heaven. The clergy deplored this fcandalous toleration; and the weaker Moslems were gradually expelled; but every rational object of the crufades was accomplifhed without bloodfhed; the churches were reftored, the monasteries were replenished; and, in the space of fifteen years, the Latins of Jerufalem exceeded the number of fix thousand. This peace and prosperity, for which they were ungrateful to their benefactor, was terminated by the irruption of the ftrange and favage hords of Carizmians". Flying from the arms of Invation of the Moguls, those shepherds of the Caspian rolled headlong on Syria; mians, and the union of the Franks with the fultans of Aleppo, Hems, and Damafcus, was infufficient to ftem the violence of the torrent. Whatever flood against them, was cut off by the fword, or dragged into captivity; the military orders were almost exterminated in a fingle battle; and in the pillage of the city, in the profanation of the holy fepulchre, the Latins confess and regret the modefty and discipline of the Turks and Saracens.

Of the feven crufades, the two last were undertaken by Louis the St. Louis, ninth, king of France; who loft his liberty in Egypt, and his life on crufade, the coaft of Africa. Twenty-eight years after his death, he was ca- 1248-1254. nonized at Rome; and fixty-five miracles were readily found, and folemnly attefted, to juftify the claim of the royal faint ". The voice of hiftory renders a more honourable testimony, that he united the virtues of a king, an hero, and a man; that his martial fpirit was tempered by the love of private and public juffice; and that Louis was the father of his people, the friend of his neighbours, and Corasmins, is related by Matthew Paris garet (p. 291-523. Joinville, du Louvre).

VOL. VI.

the

and the fixth A. D.

the Cariz-A. D. 1243.

II3

⁹⁰ The clergy artfully confounded the (p. 546, 547.), and by Joinville, Nangis, mosch or church of the temple with the and the Arabians (p. 111, 112, 191, 192. holy fepulchre, and their wilful error has 528. 530.). eccived both Vertot and Muratori. ⁹⁴ The irruption of the Carizmians, or of St. Louis, by the confession of queen Mardeceived both Vertot and Muratori.

C H A P. the terror of the infidels. Superfition alone, in all the extent of LIX. her baleful influence ⁹³, corrupted his underftanding and his heart; his devotion flooped to admire and imitate the begging friars of Francis and Dominic; he purfued with blind and cruel zeal the enemies of the faith; and the best of kings twice descended from his throne to feek the adventures of a spiritual knight-errant. A monkish historian would have been content to applaud the most defpicable part of his character; but the noble and gallant Joinville", who fhared the friendship and captivity of Louis, has traced with the pencil of nature the free portrait of his virtues as well as of his failings. From this intimate knowledge, we may learn to fufpect the political views of deprefling their great valials, which are fo often imputed to the royal authors of the crufades. Above all the princes of the middle ages, Louis the ninth fuccefsfully laboured to reftore the prerogatives of the crown; but it was at home, and not in the Eaft, that he acquired for himfelf and his pofterity; his vow was the refult of enthuliafin and fickness; and if he were the promoter, he was likewife the victim, of this holy madnefs. For the invafion of Egypt, France was exhausted of her troops and treafures; he covered the fea of Cyprus with eighteen hundred fails; the moft modeft enumeration amounts to fifty thousand men; and, if we might truft his own confession, as it is reported by Oriental vanity, he difembarked nine thousand five hundred horse, and one hundred and thirty thousand foot, who performed their pilgrimage under the fhadow of his power 55.

> ⁹³ He believed all that mother church taught (Joinville, p. 10.), but he cautioned Joinville againth difputing with infidels. "Comme lay (faid he in his old language) durant di to medie de la loy Creftienne, ne doit pas deffendre la loy Creftienne ne mais que de l'efpée, dequoi il doit donner parmi et le ventre dedens, tant comme elle y peut et entrer" (p. 12.).

s+ I have two editions of Joinville, the one (Paris, 1668) moft valuable for the obfervations of Ducange; the other (Paris au Louvre, 1.761) moit precious for the pure and authentic text, a MS. of which has been recently difcovered. The laft editor proves, that the hiftory of St. Louis was finished A.D. 1309, without explaining, or even admiring, the age of the author, which must have exceeded ninety years (Preface, p. xi. Obfervations de Ducange, p. 17.).

95 Joinville, p. 32. Arabic Extracts, p. 549.

In

114

In complete armour, the oriflamme waving before him, Louis C H A P. leaped foremost on the beach; and the strong city of Damietta, which had coft his predeceffors a fiege of fixteen months, was aban- Damietta, doned on the first affault by the trembling Moslems. But Damietta was the first and the last of his conquests; and in the fifth and fixth crufades, the fame caufes, almost on the fame ground, were productive of fimilar calamities ". After a ruinous delay, which introduced into the camp the feeds of an epidemical difeafe, the Franks advanced from the fea-coaft towards the capital of Egypt, and ftrove to furmount the unfeafonable inundation of the Nile, which oppofed their progrefs. Under the eye of their intrepid monarch, the barons and knights of France difplayed their invincible contempt of danger and difcipline : his brother, the count of Artois, ftormed with inconfiderate valour the town of Maffoura; and the carrier pigeons announced to the inhabitants of Cairo, that all was loft. But a foldier, who afterwards usurped the fceptre, rallied the flying troops: the main body of the Christians was far behind their vanguard; and Artois was overpowered and flain. A flower of Greek fire was inceffantly poured on the invaders; the Nile was commanded by the Egyptian gallies, the open country by the Arabs; all provisions were intercepted; each day aggravated the fickness and famine; and about the fame time a retreat was found to be neceffary and impracticable. The Oriental writers confels, that Louis might have escaped, if he would have deferted his fubjects : he was made prifoner, with the greateft part of his nobles; all who could not redeem their lives by fervice or ranfom, were inhumanly maffacred; and the walls of Cairo were decorated with a circle of Chriftian heads ". The king of France was loaded with chains; His captivity in Egypt, but

Qz l'Egypte, LIX.

A. D. 1249.

He takes

⁹⁶ The last editors have enriched their name of Redefrans. Matthew Paris (p. 683, Joinville with large and curious extracts from 684.) has defcribed the rival folly of the the Arabic hiftorians, Macrizi, Abulfeda, French and English who fought and fell at &c. See likewife Abulpharagius (Dynast. Massional Content of the second s p. 322-325.), who calls him by the corrupt 97 Savary, in his agreeable Lettres fur

LIX. A. D. 1250, April 5-May 6.

C H A P. but the generous victor, a great grandfon of the brother of Saladin. fent a robe of honour to his royal captive; and his deliverance, with that of his foldiers, was obtained by the reftitution of Damietta 98 and the payment of four hundred thousand pieces of gold. In a foft and luxurious climate, the degenerate children of the companions of Noureddin and Saladin were incapable of refifting the flower of European chivalry: they triumphed by the arms of their flaves or Mamalukes, the hardy natives of Tartary, who at a tender age had been purchased of the Syrian merchants, and were educated in the camp and palace of the fultan. But Egypt foon afforded a new example of the danger of prætorian bands; and the rage of thefe ferocious animals, who had been let loofe on the ftrangers, was provoked to devour their benefactor. In the pride of conqueft, Touran Shaw, the laft of his race, was murdered by his Mamalukes; and the moft daring of the affaffins entered the chamber of the captive king, with drawn fcymetars, and their hands imbrued in the blood of their fultan. The firmness of Louis commanded their respect"; their avarice prevailed over cruelty and zeal; the treaty was accomplifhed; and the king of France, with the relics of his army, was permitted to embark for Palestine. He wasted four years within the walls of Acre, unable to vifit Jerufalem, and unwilling to return without glory to his native country.

> The memory of his defeat excited Louis, after fixteen years of wildom and repole, to undertake the feventh and laft of the crufades.

98 For the ranfom of St. Louis, a million of byzants was asked and granted; but the fultan's generofity reduced that fum to 800,000 byzants, which are valued by Joinville at 400,000 French livres of his own time, and expressed by Matthew Paris by perhaps by a fecret Christian, in their tumult-100,000 marks of filver (Ducange, Differta- uous affembly. tion xx. fur Joinville).

99 The idea of the emirs to chufe Louis for their fultan, is ferioufly attefted by Joinville (p. 77, 78.), and does not appear to me fo abfurd as to M. de Voltaire (Hift. Generale, tom. ii. p. 386, 387.). The Mamalukes themselves were flrangers, rebels, and equals; they had felt his valour, they hoped his conversion; and fuch a motion, which was not feconded, might be made, l'Egypte, has given a description of Damietta (tom. i. lettre xxiii. p. 274-290.), and a narrative of the expedition of St. Louis (xxv. p. 306-150.).

His

His finances were reftored, his kingdom was enlarged; a new gene- C H A P. ration of warriors had arifen, and he embarked with fresh confidence. at the head of fix thousand horse and thirty thousand foot. The loss of Antioch had provoked the enterprife: a wild hope of baptifing the king of Tunis, tempted him to fleer for the African coaft; and the report of an immenfe treasure reconciled his troops to the delay of their voyage to the Holy Land. Inftead of a profelyte, he found a His death befiege; the French panted and died on the burning fands; St. Louis in the feventh expired in his tent; and no fooner had he clofed his eyes, than his crufade, fon and fucceffor gave the fignal of the retreat "". " It is thus," August 25. fays a lively writer, " that a Chriftian king died near the ruins of " Carthage, waging war against the fectaries of Mahomet, in a land " to which Dido had introduced the deities of Syria"."

A more unjust and absurd constitution cannot be devifed, than The Mamathat which condems the natives of a country to perpetual fervitude, under the arbitrary dominion of ftrangers and flaves. Yet fuch has been the flate of Egypt above five hundred years. The most illustrious fultans of the Baharite and Borgite dynasties 102, were themfelves promoted from the Tartar and Circaffian bands; and the fourand-twenty beys or military chiefs, have ever been fucceeded, not by their fons, but by their fervants. They produce the great charter of their liberties, the treaty of Selim the first with the republic ¹⁰³; and the Othman emperor still accepts from Egypt a slight acknow-

100 See the expedition in the Annals of the xvth century, by the fame M. de Guignes St. Louis, by William de Nangis, p. 270-287. and the Arabic Extracts, p. 545. 555. of the Louvre edition of Joinville.

²⁰¹ Voltaire, Hift. Generale, tom. ii. p. 391.

102 The chronology of the two dynafties of Mamalukes, the Baharites, Turks or Tartars of Kipzak, and the Borgites, Circaffians, is given by Pocock (Prolegom. ad Abulpharag. p. 6-31.) and de Guignes (tom. i. p. 264-270.); their hiftory from Abulfeda, Macrizi, &c. to the beginning of history.

(tom. iv. p. 110-328.).

103 Savary, Lettres fur l'Egypte, tom. ii. lettre xv. p. 189-208. I much queftion the authenticity of this copy; yet it is true, that fultan Selim concluded a treaty with the Circaffians or Mamalukes of Egypt, and left them in possession of arms, riches, and power. See a new Abregé de l'Histoire Ottomane, composed in Egypt, and' translated by M. Digeon (tom. i. p. 55-58. Paris, 1781), a curious, authentic, and national ledgment

A.D. 1270,

lukes of Egypt, Â.D. 1250-1517.

C H A P. ledgment of tribute and fubjection. With fome breathing intervals LIX. of peace and order, the two dynasties are marked as a period of 6----rapine and bloodshed 104: but their throne, however shaken, reposed on the two pillars of difcipline and valour; their fway extended over Egypt, Nubia, Arabia, and Syria; their Mamalukes were multiplied from eight hundred to twenty-five thousand horse; and their numbers were encreafed by a provincial militia of one hundred and feven thousand foot, and the oceasional aid of fixty-fix thousand Arabs 105. Princes of fuch power and fpirit could not long endure on their coaft an hoftile and independent nation; and if the ruin of the Franks was postponed about forty years, they were indebted to the cares of an unfettled reign, to the invalion of the Mogols, and to the occafional aid of fome warlike pilgrims. Among thefe, the English reader will observe the name of our first Edward, who affumed the crofs in the lifetime of his father Henry. At the head of a thouland foldiers, the future conqueror of Wales and Scotland delivered Aere from a fiege; marched as far as Nazareth with an army of nine thousand men; emulated the fame of his uncle Richard; extorted, by his valour, a ten years truce; and efcaped, with a dangerous wound, from the dagger of a fanatic affaffin 106. Antioch 107, whole fituation had been lefs expoled to the calamities of the holy war, was finally occupied and ruined by Bondocdar, or Bibars, fultan of Egypt and Syria; the Latin principality was extinguished; and the first feat of the Christian name was dispeopled by the flaughter of > 104 Si totum quo regnum occupârunt tempus respicias, presertim quod fini propius, reperies illud bellis, pugnis, injuriis, ac rapinis refertum (Al Jannabi, apud Pocock, p. 31.). The reign of Mohammed (A. D. 1311-1341) affords! an happy exception (de Guignes, tom. iv. p. 208-210.).

105 They are now reduced to 8500: but the expence of each Mamaluke may be rated at 100 louis; and Egypt groans under the avarice and infolence of thefe ftrangers (Voyages de Volney, tom. i. p. 89-187.).

106 See Carte's Hiflory of England, vol. ii. p.165-175. and his original authors, Thomas Wikes and Walter Hemingford (l. iii. c. 34, 35.), in Gale's Collection (tom. ii. p. 97. 589-592). They are both ignorant of the princefs Eleanor's piety in fucking the poifoned wound, and faving her hufband at the rifk of her own life.

107 Sanutus, Secret. Fidelium Crucis, 1. iii. p. xii. c. 9. and de Guignes, Hift. des Huns, tom. iv. p. 143. from the Arabic historians.

feventeen,

118

Lofs of Antioch, A. D. 1268, June 12.

feventeen, and the captivity of one hundred, thoufand of her inhabitants. The maritime towns of Laodicea, Gabala, Tripoli, Berytus, Sidon, Tyre, and Jaffa, and the ftronger caftles of the Hofpitalers and Templars, fucceffively fell; and the whole existence of the Franks was confined to the city and colony of St. John of Acre, which is fometimes deferibed by the more claffic title of Ptolemais.

After the loss of Jerufalem, Acre 108, which is diftant about feventy miles, became the metropolis of the Latin Christians, and was adorned with ftrong and flately buildings, with aqueducts, an artificial port, and a double wall. The population was encreafed by the inceffant ftreams of pilgrims and fugitives: in the paufes of hostility, the trade of the East and West was attracted to this convenient station; and the market could offer the produce of every clime and the interpreters of every tongue. But in this conflux of nations, every vice was propagated and practifed : of all the difciples of Jefus and Mahomet, the male and female inhabitants of Acre were efteemed the moft corrupt ; nor could the abufe of religion be corrected by the discipline of law. The city had many fovereigns, and no government. The kings of Jerufalem and Cyprus, of the house of Lusignan, the princes of Antioch, the counts of Tripoli and Sidon, the great mafters of the hospital, the temple, and the Teutonic order, the republics of Venice, Genoa, and Pifa, the pope's legate, the kings of France and England, affumed an independent command : feventeen tribunals exercifed the power of life and death; every criminal was protected in the adjacent quarter; and the perpetual jealoufy of the nations often burft forth in acts of violence and blood. Some adventurers, who difgraced the enfign of the crofs, compensated their want of pay by the plunder of the Mahometan villages : nineteen Syrian merchants, who traded under the public faith, were defpoiled and hanged by the Chriftians; and the denial

¹⁰⁸ The flate of Acre is reprefented in all Scriptores Rerum Italicarum, tom. xiii. p. 337, the chronicles of the times, and most accurately 338. in John Villani, l. vii. c. 144. in Muratori,

C H A P. denial of fatisfaction justified the arms of the fultan Khalil. He LIX. marched against Acre, at the head of fixty thousand horse and one ----hundred and forty thousand foot: his train of artillery (if I may ufe the word) was numerous and weighty; the feparate timbers of a fingle engine were transported in one hundred waggons; and the royal historian Abulfeda, who ferved with the troops of Hamah, was himfelf a spectator of the holy war. Whatever might be the vices of the Franks, their courage was rekindled by enthufiafm and defpair; but they were torn by the difcord of feventeen chiefs, and overwhelmed on all fides by the powers of the fultan. After a fiege The loss of of thirty-three days, the double wall was forced by the Moflems ; the principal tower yielded to their engines; the Mamalukes made a general affault; the city was flormed; and death or flavery was the lot of fixty thousand Christians. The convent, or rather fortrefs, of the Templars refifted three days longer; but the great mafter was pierced with an arrow; and, of five hundred knights, only ten were left alive, lefs happy than the victims of the fword, if they lived to fuffer on a fcaffold in the unjust and cruel profeription of the whole The king of Jerufalem, the patriarch, and the great mafter order. of the hofpital, effected their retreat to the fhore; but the fea was rough; the veilels were infufficient; and great numbers of the fugitives were drowned before they could reach the ifle of Cyprus, which might comfort Lufignan for the lofs of Paleftine. By the command of the fultan, the churches and fortifications of the Latin cities were demolished: a motive of avarice or fear still opened the holy fepulchre to fome devout and defenceless pilgrims; and a mournful and folitary filence prevailed along the coaft which had fo long refounded with the WORLD'S DEBATE "9.

> 109 See the final expulsion of the Franks, in Macrizi, &c. in de Guignes, tom. iv. p. 162. Sanutus, 1. iii. p. xii. c. 11-22. Abulfeda, 164. and Vertot, tom. i. l. iii. p. 407-428.

120

Acre and the Holy Land, A. D. 1291, May 18.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

CHAP. LX.

Schifm of the Greeks and Latins .- State of Constantinople.-Revolt of the Bulgarians.-Isaac Angelus dethroned by his Brother Alexius.-Origin of the Fourth Crusade.-Alliance of the French and Venetians with the Son of Isaac .- Their naval Expedition to Constantinople.-The two Sieges and final Conquest of the City by the Latins.

HE reftoration of the Western empire by Charlemagne, was C H A P. fpeedily followed by the feparation of the Greek and Latin churches'. A religious and national animofity fill divides the two the Greeks, largest communions of the Christian world ; and the schifm of Constantinople, by alienating her most useful allies and provoking her most dangerous enemies, has precipitated the decline and fall of the Roman empire in the East.

In the course of the prefent hiftory, the aversion of the Greeks for Their averthe Latins has been often visible and confpicuous. It was originally Latins. derived from the difdain of fervitude, inflamed, after the time of Conftantine, by the pride of equality or dominion; and finally exafperated by the preference which their rebellious fubjects had given to the alliance of the Franks. In every age, the Greeks were proud of their fuperiority in profane and religious knowledge : they had first received the light of Christianity; they had pronounced the dccrees of the feven general councils : they alone poffeffed the language

fion to the

In the fucceffive centuries, from the ixth partiality: the filioque (Inftitut. Hift. Ecclef. to the xviiith, Molheim traces the fchilm of p. 277.), Leo III. p. 303. Photius, p. 307, the Greeks, with learning, clearnefs, and im- 308. Michael Cerularius, p. 370, 371, &c. VOL. VI. R of Procession of the Holy Ghoft.

C H A P. of fcripture and philosophy; nor should the Barbarians, immersed in the darknels of the Weft², prefume to argue on the high and mysterious questions of theological fcience. Those Barbarians defpifed in their turn the reftlefs and fubtle levity of the Orientals, the authors of every herefy; and bleffed their own fimplicity, which was content to hold the tradition of the apoftolic church. Yet in the feventh century, the fynods of Spain, and afterwards of France, improved or corrupted the Nicene creed, on the myfterious fubject of the third perfon of the Trinity3. In the long controverfies of the Eaft, the nature and generation of the Chrift had been fcrupuloufly defined; and the well-known relation of father and fon feemed to convey a faint image to the human mind. The idea of birth was lefs analogous to the Holy Spirit, who, inftead of a divine gift or attribute, was confidered by the Catholics, as a fubftance, a perfon, a god; he was not begotten, but in the orthodox ftyle he proceeded. Did he proceed from the Father alone, perhaps by the Son? or from the Father and the Son? The first of these opinions was afferted by the Greeks, the fecond by the Latins'; and the addition to the Nicene creed of the word filioque, kindled the flame of difcord between the Oriental and the Gallic churches. In the origin of the difpute, the Roman pontiffs affected a character of neutrality and moderation*: they condemned the innovation, but they acquiefced in the fentiment, of their Transalpine brethren : they feemed defirous of caffing a veil of filence and charity over the fuperfluous refearch; and in the correspondence of Charlemagne and Leo the third, the pope affumes the liberality of

S

² Ανδρες δυσσεβεις και αποτροπαιοι, ανδρες εκ σκοτες αναδυντες, της γαρ Εσπεριο μοιρας υπηρχου yewnmara (Phot. Epift. p. 47. edit. Montacut.). The Oriental patriarch continues to apply the images of thunder, earthquake, hail, wild-boar, præcurfors of Antichrift, &c. &c.

³ The mysterious subject of the procession of the Holy Ghoft, is difcuffed in the hiftorical, theological, and controversial sense, or nonenfe, by the Jefuit Petavius (Dogmata received at Rome about the year 830.

Theologica, tom. ii. l. vii. p. 362-440.).

* Before the fhrine of St. Peter, he placed two shields of the weight of $94\frac{1}{2}$ pounds of pure filver; on which he infcribed the text of both creeds (utroque fymbolo), pro amore et cautela orthodoxæ fidei (Anastaf. in Leon. III. in Muratori, tom. iii. pars i. p. 208.). His language most clearly proves, that neither the filioque, nor the Athanafian creed, were a statesman.

a flatefman, and the prince descends to the paffions and prejudices C H A P. of a prieft'. But the orthodoxy of Rome fpontaneoufly obeyed the impulse of her temporal policy; and the filioque, which Leo withed to erafe, was transcribed in the fymbol and chaunted in the liturgy of the Vatican. The Nicene and Athanafian creeds are held as the Catholic faith, without which none can be faved; and both Papifts and Protestants must now fustain and return the anathemas of the Greeks, who deny the proceffion of the Holy Ghoft from the Son, as well as from the Father. Such articles of faith are not fusceptible of treaty; Variety of but the rules of difcipline will vary in remote and independent difcipline. churches; and the reafon, even of divines, might allow, that the difference is inevitable and harmlefs. The craft or fuperflition of Rome has imposed on her priefts and deacons the rigid obligation of celibacy; among the Greeks, it is confined to the bifhops; the lofs is compenfated by dignity or annihilated by age; and the parochial clergy, the papas, enjoy the conjugal fociety of the wives whom they have married before their entrance into holy orders. A queftion concerning the Azyms was fiercely debated in the eleventh century. and the effence of the Eucharift was fuppofed in the Eaft and Weft, to depend on the ufe of leavened or unleavened bread. Shall I mention in a ferious hiftory the furious reproaches that were urged against the Latins, who, for a long while remained on the defensive? They neglected to abftain, according to the apoftolical decree, from things ftrangled, and from blood : they fafted, a Jewish observance! on the Saturday of each week: during the first week of Lent they permitted the use of milk and cheese '; their infirm monks were indulged in the tafte of flefh; and animal greafe was fubRituted for the want

⁵ The Miffi of Charlemagne preffed him would leave a large loop-hole of falvation ! to declare, that all who rejected the filioque, 6 In France, after some harsher laws, the at least the doctrine, must be damned. All, ecclesiastical difcipline is now relaxed : milk, replies the pope, are not capable of reaching cheefe, and butter, are become a perpethe altiora mysteria; qui potucrit, et non ' tual, and eggs an annual, indulgence in voluerit, falvus effe non potest (Collect. Lent (Vie privéz des François, tom. ii. Concil. tom. ix. p. 277-286.). The fetuerit p. 27-38.).

ecclefiaftical

of

C H A P. of vegetable oil: the holy chrifm or unction in baptifm, was referved to the epifcopal order: the bifhops, as the bridegrooms of their churches, were decorated with rings; their priefts fhaved their faces, and baptized by a fingle immerfion. Such were the crimes which provoked the zeal of the patriarchs of Conftantinople; and which were juftified with equal zeal by the doctors of the Latin church'.

> Bigotry and national averfion are powerful magnifiers of every object of difpute; but the immediate caufe of the fchifm of the Greeks may be traced in the emulation of the leading prelates, who maintained the fupremacy of the old metropolis fuperior to all, and of the reigning capital, inferior to none, in the Chriftian world. About the middle of the ninth century, Photius^{*}, an ambitious layman, the captain of the guards and principal fecretary, was promoted by merit and favour to the more defirable office of patriarch of Conftantinople. In fcience, even ecclefiaftical fcience, he furpaffed the clergy of the age; and the purity of his morals has never been impeached: but his ordination was hafty, his rife was irregular: and Ignatius, his abdicated predeceffor, was yet fupported by the public compation and the obftinacy of his adherents. They appealed to the tribunal of Nicholas the first, one of the proudest and most aspiring of the Roman pontiffs, who embraced the welcome opportunity of judging and condemning his rival of the Eaft. Their quarrel was embittered by a conflict of jurifdiction over the king and nation of the Bulgarians; nor was their recent conversion to Christianity of much avail to either prelate, unless he could number the profelytes among the fubjects of his power. With the aid of his court the Greek patriarch was victorious; but in the furious conteft he deposed in his turn the fucceffor of St. Peter, and involved

⁸ The xth volume of the Venice edition of the Councils, contains all the acts of the fynods, and hiftory of Photius: they are abridged, with a faint tinge of prejudice or prudence, by Dupin and Fleury.

the 124

LX.

Ambitious quarrels of Photius, patriarch of Constantinople, with the $57-886.

popes, A. D.

⁷ The original monuments of the fchilm, prolix answer of cardinal Humbert). of the charges of the Greeks against the Latins, are deposited in the Epistles of Photius (Epift.Encyclica, ii. p.47-61.) and of Michael Cerularius (Canifii Antiq. Lectiones, tom. iii. p. i. p. 281-324. edit. Bafnage, with the

the Latin church in the reproach of herefy and fchilfm. Photius C H A P. facrificed the peace of the world to a fhort and precarious reign : he fell with his patron, the Cæfar Bardas; and Bafil the Macedonian performed an act of juffice in the reftoration of Ignatius, whofe age and dignity had not been fufficiently refpected. From his monaftery, or prifon. Photius folicited the favour of the emperor by pathetic complaints and artful flattery; and the eyes of his rival were fcarcely clofed, when he was again reftored to the throne of Conftantinople. After the death of Bafil, he experienced the viciffitudes of courts and the ingratitude of a royal pupil: the patriarch was again depofed, and in his laft folitary hours he might regret the freedom of a fecular and fludious life. In each revolution, the breath, the nod, of the fovereign had been accepted by a fubmiffive clergy; and a fynod of three hundred bishops was always prepared to hail the triumph, or to fligmatize the fall, of the holy, or the exectable, Photius". By a delufive promife of fuccour or reward, the popes were tempted to countenance thefe various proceedings; and the fynods of Conftantinople were ratified by their epiftles or legates. But the court and the people, Ignatius and Photius, were equally adverfe to their claims; their minifters were infulted or imprifoned; the proceffion of the Holy Ghoft was forgotten; Bulgaria was for ever annexed to the Byzantine throne; and the fchifin was prolonged by their rigid cenfure of all the multiplied ordinations of an irregular patriarch. The darkness and corruption of the tenth century. fufpended the intercourfe, without reconciling the minds, of the two nations. But when the Norman fword reftored the churches of Apulia to the jurifdiction of Rome, the departing flock was warned, by a petulant epiftle of the Greek patriarch, to avoid and abhor the errors of the Latins. The rifing majefty of Rome could no longer the year 869, is the vilith of the general years 867 and 879, which were, however, councils, the last affembly of the East which equally numerous and noify; but they were

brook

9

⁹ The fynod of Constantinople, held in jects the fynods of Constantinople of the is recognifed by the Roman church. She re- favourable to Photius.

LX. -----The popes excommunicate the patriarch of Conftantinople and the Greeks, A. D. 1054, July 16.

C H A P. brook the infolence of a rebel; and Michael Cerularius was excommunicated in the heart of Conftantinople by the pope's legates. Shaking the duft from their fcet, they deposited on the altar of St. Sophia a direful anathema 10, which enumerates the feven mortal herefies of the Greeks, and devotes the guilty teachers, and their unhappy fectaries, to the eternal fociety of the devil and his angels. According to the emergencies of the church and ftate, a friendly correspondence was fometimes refumed ; the language of charity and concord was fometimes affected; but the Greeks have never recanted their errors; the popes have never repealed their fentence: and from this thunderbolt we may date the confummation of the fchifm. It was enlarged by each ambitious flep of the Roman pontiffs : the emperors blufhed and trembled at the ignominious fate of their royal brethren of Germany; and the people was fcandalized by the temporal power and military life of the Latin clergy".

The averfion of the Greeks and Latins was nourifhed and manifefted in the three first expeditions to the Holy Land. Alexius Comnenus contrived the absence at least of the formidable pilgrims: his fucceffors, Manuel and Ifaac Angelus, confpired with the Moflems for the ruin of the greatest princes of the Franks; and their crooked and malignant policy was feconded by the active and voluntary obedience of every order of their fubjects. Of this hoftile temper, a large portion may doubtlefs be afcribed to the difference of language, drefs, and manners, which fevers and alienates the nations of the globe. The pride, as well as the prudence, of the fovereign, was deeply wounded by the intrufion of foreign armies, that claimed a right of traverfing his dominions and paffing under the walls of his capital : his fubjects were infulted and plundered by the rude ftrangers of the Weft; and the hatred of the pufillanimous Greeks tom. xi. p. 1457-1460.

33.) reprefents the abhorrence, not only of the hiftory compared with that of polemics! church, but of the palace, for Gregory VII.

¹⁰ See this anathema in the Councils, the popes, and the Latin communion. The ftyle of Cinnamus and Nicetas is still more " Anna Comnena (Alexiad, 1.i. p. 31- vehement. Yet how calm is the voice of Enmity of the Greeks and Latins. A. D. 1100-1200.

126

was

was tharpened by fecret envy of the bold and pious enterprifes of the C H A P. Franks. But thefe profane caufes of national enmity were fortified and inflamed by the venom of religious zeal. Inflead of a kind embrace, an holpitable reception from their Christian brethren of the Eaft, every tongue was taught to repeat the names of fchilinatic and heretic, more odious to an orthodox ear than those of pagan and infidel: inftead of being loved for the general conformity of faith and worfhip, they were abhorred for fome rules of difcipline, fome queftions of theology, in which themfelves or their teachers might differ from the Oriental church. In the crufade of Louis the feventh, the Greek clergy washed and purified the altars which had been defiled by the facrifice of a French prieft. The companions of Frederic Barbaroffa deplore the injuries which they endured, both in word and deed, from the peculiar rancour of the bifhops and monks. Their prayers and fermons excited the people against the impious Barbarians; and the patriarch is accused of declaring, that the faithful might obtain the redemption of all their fins by the extirpation. of the fchilmatics ". An enthuliaft, named Dorotheus, alarmed the fears, and reftored the confidence, of the emperor, by a prophetic affurance, that the German heretic, after affaulting the gate of Blachernes, would be made a fignal example of the divine vengeance. The paffage of these mighty armies were rare and perilous events; but the crufades introduced a frequent and familiar intercourfe between the two nations, which enlarged their knowledge, without abating their prejudices. The wealth and luxury of Conftantinople Afiat. Fred. I. in Canifii Lection. Antiq. wards: Hac eft (gens) qua Latinos omnes tom. iii. pars ii. p. 511. edit. Bafnage) nien- non hominum nomine, fed canum dignabatur ; tions the fermons of the Greek patriarch, quo- quorum fanguinem effundere pene inter memodo Græcis injunxerat in remiffionem pecca- rita reputabant (Gesta Innocent. 111. c. 92. in torum peregrinos occidere et delere de terra. Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum. tom. iii. Tagino observes (in Scriptores Freher. tom.i. pars i. p. 536.). There may be some ex-

demanded

¹² His anonymous hiftorian (de Expedit. of the emperor Baldwin fifteen years afterp. 409. edit. Struv.), Græci hæreticos nos aggeration, but it was as effectual for the appellant : clerici et monachi dictis et factis action and re-action of hatred. perfequentur. We may add the declaration

LX. The Latins at Constantinople :

C H A P. demanded the productions of every climate : these imports were balanced by the art and labour of her numerous inhabitants; her fituation invites the commerce of the world; and, in every period of her existence, that commerce has been in the hands of foreigners. After the decline of Amalphi, the Venetians, Pifans, and Genoefe, introduced their factories and fettlements into the capital of the empire : their fervices were rewarded with honours and immunities; they acquired the pofferfion of lands and houfes; their families were multiplied by marriages with the natives; and, after the toleration of a Mahometan mofch, it was imposfible to interdict the churches of the Roman rite". The two wives of Manuel Comnenus " were of the race of the Franks; the first, a fister-inlaw of the emperor Conrad; the fecond, a daughter of the prince of Antioch: he obtained for his fon Alexius a daughter of Philip Auguftus king of France; and he beftowed his own daughter on a marquis of Montferrat, who was educated and dignified in the palace of Conftantinople. The Greek encountered the arms, and afpired to the empire, of the Weft; he efteemed the valour, and trufted the fidelity, of the Franks's; their military talents were unfitly recompenfed by the lucrative offices of judges and treafurers; the policy of Manuel had folicited the alliance of the pope; and the popular voice accufed him of a partial bias to the nation and religion of the Latins ". During his reign, and that of his fucceffor Alexius, they > 13 See Anna Comnena (Alexiad, I. vi. p. 161, 162.), and a remarkable passage of Nicetas (in Manuel, l. v. c. 9.), who obferves of the Venetians, Rara ounon has opaτριας την Κωνσαντινυ πολιν της οικειας ηλλαξαντο, &C.

> 14 Ducange, Fam. Byzant. p. 186, 187. 15 Nicetas in Manuel. 1. vii. c. z. Regnante enim (Manuele) apud eum tantam Latinus populus repererat gratiam ut neglectis Græculis fuis tanquam viris mollibus et effœminatis, folis Latinis grandia committeret negotia erga cos profuía liberalitate abundabat...ex omni orbe ad eum tanquam ad benefactorem nobiles et ignobiles concurrebant. Willerm. Tyr. xxii. c. 10.

16 The fufpicions of the Greeks would have been confirmed, if they had feen the political epiftles of Manuel to pope Alexander III. the enemy of his enemy Frederic I. in which the emperor declares his wifh of uniting the Greeks and Latins as one flock under one fhepherd, &c. (See Fleury, Hift. Ecclef. tom. xv. p. 187. 213. 243.)

were

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

were exposed at Conftantinople to the reproach of foreigners, here- C H A P. tics, and favourites; and this triple guilt was feverely expiated in the tumult, which announced the return and elevation of Andronicus ". The people role in arms; from the Afiatic shore the tyrant their matdifpatched his troops and gallies to affift the national revenge; A.D. 1183. and the hopeless refistance of the strangers ferved only to justify the rage, and fharpen the daggers, of the affaffins. Neither age, nor fex, nor the ties of friendship or kindred, could fave the victims of national hatred, and avarice, and religious zeal: the Latins were flaughtered in their houfes and in the ftreets; their quarter was reduced to afhes; the clergy was burnt in their churches, and the fick in their hospitals; and some estimate may be formed of the slain from the clemency which fold above four thoufand Chriftians in perpetual flavery to the Turks. The priefts and monks were the loudeft and most active in the destruction of the schifmatics; and they chaunted a thankfgiving to the Lord, when the head of a Roman cardinal, the pope's legate, was fevered from his body, fastened to the tail of a dog, and dragged, with favage mockery, through the city. The more diligent of the ftrangers had retreated, on the first alarm, to their veffels, and escaped through the Hellespont from the scene of blood. In their flight, they burnt and ravaged two hundred miles of the fea-coaft; inflicted a fevere revenge on the guiltlefs fubjects of the empire; marked the priefts and monks as their peculiar enemies; and compenfated, by the accumulation of plunder, the lofs of their property and friends. On their return, they exposed to Italy and Europe the wealth and weaknefs, the perfidy and malice, of the Greeks, whole vices were painted as the genuine characters of herefy and fchifm. The fcruples of the first crufaders had neglected the fairest opportunities of fecuring, by the pollession of Conftantinople, the way to the Holy Land : a domeftic revolution invited,

S

VOL. VI.

¹⁷ See the Greek and Latin narratives in the first fost and concise, the second loud, Nicetas (in Alexio Comneno, c. 10.) and copious, and tragical. William of Tyre (l. xxii. c. 10, 11, 12, 13.);

C H A P. vited, and almost compelled, the French and Venetians to atchieve LX. the conquest of the Roman empire of the East.

Reign and character of lfaac Angelus, A. D. 1185-1195, Sept. 12.

In the feries of the Byzantine princes, I have exhibited the hypocrify and ambition, the tyranny and fall, of Andronicus, the laft male of the Comnenian family who reigned at Conftantinople. The revolution, which caft him headlong from the throne, faved and exalted Ifaac Angelus", who defcended by the females from the fame Imperial dynafty. The fucceffor of a fecond Nero might have found it an eafy talk to deferve the efteem and affection of his fubjects: they fometimes had reafon to regret the administration of Andronicus. The found and vigorous mind of the tyrant was capable of difcerning the connection between his own and the public intereft; and while he was feared by all who could infpire him with fear, the unfuspected people, and the remote provinces, might blefs the inexorable, justice of their master. But his fucceffor was vain and jealous of the fupreme power, which he wanted courage and abilities to exercife ; his vices were pernicious, his virtues (if he poffeffed any virtues) were uselefs, to mankind; and the Greeks, who imputed their calamities to his negligence, denied him the merit of any transient or accidental benefits of the times. Ifaac flept on the throne, and was awakened only by the found of pleafure : his vacant hours were amufed by come lians and buffoons, and even to these buffoons the emperor was an object of contempt; his feasts and buildings exceeded the examples of royal luxury; the number of his eunuchs and domeftics amounted to twenty thousand; and a daily fum of four thousand pounds of filver would fwell to four millions sterling the annual expence of his household and table. His poverty was relieved by oppreffion ; and the public difcontent was inflamed by equal abufes in the collection, and the application, ¹⁸ The hiftory of the reign of Ifaac An- and judge of the veil or palace, could not gelus is composed, in three books, by the bribe the impartiality of the historian. He fenator Nicetas (p. 228-290.); and his wrote, it is true, after the fall and death of offices of logothete, or principal fecretary, his benefactor.

of

of the revenue. While the Greeks numbered the days of their fer- C H A P. vitude, a flattering prophet, whom he rewarded with the dignity of patriarch, affured him of a long and victorious reign of thirty-two years ; during which he fhould extend his fway to mount Libanus. and his conquefts beyond the Euphrates. But his only ftep towards the accomplifhment of the prediction, was a fplendid and scandalous embaffy to Saladin', to demand the reftitution of the holy fepulchre, and to propose an offensive and defensive league with the enemy of the Christian name. In these unworthy hands, of Ifaac and his brother, the remains of the Greek empire crumbled into duft. The ifland of Cyprus, whofe name excites the ideas of elegance and pleafure, 'was usurped by his namefake, a Comnenian prince : and by a ftrange concatenation of events, the fword of our English Richard bestowed that kingdom on the house of Lüsignan, a rich compensation for the loss of Jerufalem.

The honour of the monarchy, and the fafety of the capital, were Revolt of the deeply wounded by the revolt of the Bulgarians and Walachians. A. D. 1186. Since the victory of the fecond Bafil, they had supported, above an hundred and feventy years, the loofe dominion of the Byzantine princes; but no effectual measures had been adopted to impose the yoke of laws and manners on thefe favage tribes. By the command of Ifaac, their fole means of fubfiftence, their flocks and herds, were driven away, to contribute towards the pomp of the royal nuptials; and their fierce warriors were exafperated by the denial of equal rank and pay in the military fervice. Peter and Afan, two powerful chiefs, of the race of the ancient kings 20, afferted their own rights and the national freedom : their dæmoniac impoftors proclaimed to the crowd, that their glorious patron St. Demetrius had 131. 226. verf. Schultens. 'The ambaffador 20 Ducange, Familiæ Dalmaticæ, p. 318,' of Isaac was equally versed in the Greek, 319, 320. The original correspondence of French, and Arabic languages; a rare in- the Bulgarian king and the Roman pontiff, is. stance in those times. His embassies were inscribed in the Gesta Innocent. III. c. 66received with honour, difmiffed without ef- 82.-p. 513-525.

1

19 See Bohadin, Vit. Saladin. p. 129- fect, and reported with fcandal in the Weft.

for

S 2

Bulgarians,

C H A P. for ever deferted the caufe of the Greeks; and the conflagration LX. fpread from the banks of the Danube to the hills of Macedonia and Thrace. After fome faint efforts, Ifaac Angelus and his brother acquiefced in their independence; and the Imperial troops were foon difcouraged by the bones of their fellow-foldiers, that were fcattered along the paffes of mount Hæmus. By the arms and policy of John or Joannices, the fecond kingdom of Bulgaria was firmly eftablished. The fubtle Barbarian fent an embaffy to Innocent the third, to acknowledge himfelf a genuine fon of Rome in defcent and religion 21; and humbly received from the pope, the licence of coining money, the royal title, and a Latin archbishop or patriarch. The Vatican exulted in the fpiritual conquest of Bulgaria, the first object of the fchifm; and if the Greeks could have preferved the prerogatives of the church, they would gladly have refigned the rights of the monarchy.

Usurpation and character of Alexius Angelus, A. D. 1195-1203, April 8. The Bulgarians were malicious enough to pray for the long life of Ifaac Angelus, the fureft pledge of their freedom and profperity. Yet their chiefs could involve in the fame indifcriminate contempt, the family and nation of the emperor. "In all the Greeks," faid Afan to his troops, "the fame climate, and character, and educa-"tion, will be productive of the fame fruits. Behold my lance," continued the warrior, "and the long ftreamers that float in the "wind. They differ only in colour; they are formed of the fame "filk and fafhioned by the fame workman; nor has the ftripe that "is ftained in purple, any fuperior price or value above its fel-"lows²²." Several of thefe candidates for the purple fucceffively

²¹ The pope acknowledges his pedigree, a nobili urbis Rome profapià genitores tui originem traxerunt. This tradition, and the frong refemblance of the Latin and Walachian idioms, is explained by M. d'Anville (Etats de l'Europe, p. 253-262.). The Italian colonies of the Dacia of Trajan, were fivept away by the tide of emigration from the Danube to the Volga, and brought back by another wave from the Volga to the Danube. Possible, but strange!

²² This parable is in the best favage flyle; but I with the Walach had not introduced the classic name of Mysians, the experiment of the magnet or loadstone, and the passage of an old comic poet (Nicetas, in Alex. Comneno, 1. i. p. 299, 300.).

rofe

role and fell under the empire of Ifaac: a general who had repelled C H A P. the fleets of Sicily, was driven to revolt and ruin by the ingratitude of the prince; and his luxurious repofe was diffurbed by fecret confpiracies and popular infurrections. The emperor was faved by accident, or the merit of his fervants : he was at length opprefied by an ambitious brother, who, for the hope of a precarious diadem. forgot the obligations of nature, of loyalty, and of friendship²³. While Ifaac in the Thracian vallies purfued the idle and folitary pleafures of the chace, his brother, Alexius Angelus, was invefted. with the purple, by the unanimous fuffrage of the camp : the capital and the clergy fubfcribed to their choice; and the vanity of the new fovereign rejected the name of his fathers, for the lofty and royal appellation of the Comnenian race. On the defpicable character of Ifaac, I have exhausted the language of contempt; and can only add, that in a reign of eight years, the bafer Alexius²⁴ was fupported by the malculine vices of his wife Euphrolyne. The first intelligence of his fall was conveyed to the late emperor by the hostile aspect and pursuit of the guards, no longer his own: he fled before them above fifty miles as far as Stagyra in Macedonia; but the fugitive, without an object or a follower, was arrefted, brought back to Constantinople, deprived of his eyes, and confined in a lonefome tower, on a fcanty allowance of bread and water. At the moment of the revolution, his fon Alexius, whom he educated in the hope of empire, was twelve years of age. He was fpared by the ufurper, and reduced to attend his triumph both in peace and war; but as the army was encamped on the fea-fhore, an Italian veffel facilitated the efcape of the royal youth ; and, in the difguife of a common failor, he eluded the fearch of his enemies, paffed the Hellespont, and found a fecure refuge in the isle of Sicily. After 23 The Latins aggravate the ingratitude not readily difcover it grounds in the Greek of Alexius, by supposing that he had been historians. releafed by his brother Ifaac from Turkish been repeated at Venice and Zara: but I do p. 291-352.

24 See the reign of Alexius Angelus, or captivity. This pathetic tale had doubtlefs Comnenus, in the three books of Nicetas, faluting

C H A P. faluting the threshold of the apoftles, and imploring the protection of pope Innocent the third, Alexius accepted the kind invitation of _ his fifter Irene, the wife of Philip of Swabia, king of the Romans. But in his paffage through Italy, he heard that the flower of Weftern chivalry was affembled at Venice for the deliverance of the Holy Land; and a ray of hope was kindled in his bosom, that their invincible fwords might be employed in his father's reftoration.

The fourth crufade. A. D. 1198.

About ten or twelve years after the loss of Jerusalem, the nobles of France were again fummoned to the holy war by the voice of a third prophet, lefs extravagant, perhaps, than Peter the hermit, but far below St. Bernard in the merit of an orator and a flatefman. An illiterate prieft of the neighbourhood of Paris, Fulk of Neuilly 25, forfook his parochial duty, to affume the more flattering character of a popular and itinerant miffionary. The fame of his fanctity and miracles was fpread over the land; he declaimed, with feverity and vehemence, against the vices of the age; and his fermons, which he preached in the fireets of Paris, converted the robbers, the ufurers, the proftitutes, and even the doctors and scholars of the univerfity. No fooner did Innocent the third afcend the chair of St. Peter, than he proclaimed in Italy, Germany, and France, the obligation of a new crufade 26. The eloquent pontiff defcribed the ruin of Jerufalem, the triumph of the Pagans, and the shame of Chriftendom : his liberality propofed the redemption of fins, a plenary indulgence to all who fhould ferve in Paleftine, either a year in perfon, or two years by a fubftitute²⁷; and among his legates and orators who blew the facred trumpet, Fulk of Neuilly was the 25 See Fleury, Hift. Ecclef. tom. xvi. p. 26, &c. and Villehardouin, Nº 1. with the obfervations of Ducange, which I always mean to quote with the original text.

26 The contemporary life of pope Innocent III. published by Baluze and Muratori (Scriptores Rerum Italicarum, tom. iii. pars i. portant and original documents which are in- a French knight.

ferted in the text. The bull of the crufade may be read, c. 84, 85.

27 Por-ce que cil pardon fut isti gran, si s'en efmeurent mult li cuers des genz, et mult s'en croisierent, porce que li pardons ere fi gran. Villehardouin, Nº 1. Our phi-' lofophers may refine on the caufes of the crup. 486-568.), is most valuable for the im- fades, but fuch were the genuine feelings of loudeft

loudeft and most fuccessful. The fituation of the principal monarchs C H A P. was averfe to the pious fummons. The emperor Frederic the fecond was a child; and his kingdom of Germany was difputed by the rival houfes of Brunfwick and Swabia, the memorable factions of the Guelphs and Ghibelines. Philip Augustus of France had performed, and could not be perfuaded to renew, the perilous vow; but as he was not lefs ambitious of praife than of power, he chearfully inflituted a perpetual fund for the defence of the Holy Land. Richard of England was fatiated with the glory and misfortunes of his first adventure, and he prefumed to deride the exhortations of Fulk of Neuilly, who was not abashed in the prefence of kings. " You advife me," faid Plantagenet, " to dif-" mifs my three daughters, pride, avarice, and incontinence : I be-" queath them to the most deferving; my pride to the knights-" templars, my avarice to the monks of Cifteaux, and my incon-" tinence to the prelates." But the preacher was heard and obeyed by the great vaffals, the princes of the fecond order; and Theobald, or Thibaut, count of Champagne, was the foremost in the holy race. The valiant youth, at the age of twenty-two years, was encouraged by the domeftic examples of his father, who marched in the fecond crufade, and of his elder brother, who had ended his days embraced by in Paleftine with the title of king of Jerufalem : two thoufand two France. hundred knights owed fervice and homage to his peerage28: the nobles of Champagne excelled in all the exercises of war²⁹; and, by his marriage with the heirefs of Navarre, Thibaut could draw a band of hardy Gafcons from either fide of the Pyrenæan mountains. His companion in arms was Louis, count of Blois and Chartres; like himfelf of regal lineage, for both the princes were nephews, at the 28 This number of fiefs (of which 1800 owed liege homage) was enrolled in the larius excellit in tyrociniis prolutione church of St. Stephen at Troyes, and attefled A. D. 1213, by the marshal and butler of old Chronicle of Jerusalem, A. D. 1177-Champagne (Ducange, Obferv. p. 254.). 11-99.

29 Campania militiæ privilegio finguarmorum, &c. Ducange, p. 249. from the fame

the barons of

C H A P. fame time, of the kings of France and England. In a crowd of prelates and barons, who imitated their zeal, I diftinguish the birth and merit of Matthew of Montmorency; the famous Simon of Montfort, the fcourge of the Albigeois; and a valiant noble, Jeffrey of Villehardouin 3°, marshal of Champagne 31, who has condescended, in the rude idiom of his age and country 32, to write or dictate 33 an original narrative of the councils and actions, in which he bore a memorable part. At the fame time, Baldwin count of Flanders, who had married the fifter of Thibaut, affumed the crofs at Bruges, with his brother Henry and the principal knights and citizens of that rich and industrious province 34. The vow which the chiefs had pronounced in churches, they ratified in tournaments : the operations of the war were debated in full and frequent affemblies; and it was refolved to feek the deliverance of Paleftine in Egypt, a country, fince Saladin's death, which was almost ruined by famine and civil war. But the fate of fo many royal armies difplayed the toils and perils of a land expedition; and, if the Flemings dwelt along the ocean, the French barons were deftitute of fhips and ignorant of navigation. They embraced the wife refolution of chufing fix deputies or reprefentatives, of whom Villehardouin was one, with > ³⁰ The name of Ville-hardouin, was taken from a village and caftle in the diocefe of Troyes, near the river Aube, between Ear and Arceis. The family was ancient and noble; the elder branch of our historian exifted after the year 1400; the younger, which acquired the principality of Achaia, merged in the house of Savoy (Ducange, p. 235-245.).

> 31 This office was held by his father and his descendants, but Ducange has not hunted it with his usual fagacity. I find that, in the year 1356, it was in the family of Conflans; but these provincial, have been long fince eclipfed by the national, marshals of France.

32 This language, of which I shall produce fome specimens, is explained by Vigenere and Ducange in a verfion and gloffary. The prefident des Broffes (Mechanisme des Langues, tom. ii. p. 83.) gives it as the example of a language which has ceafed to be French, and is underflood only by grammarians.

33 His age, and his own expression, moi qui ceste oeuvre dista (Nº 62, &c.), may justify the fuspicion (more probable than Mr. Wood's on Homer), that he could neither read nor write. Yet Champagne may boaft of the two first historians, the noble authors of French profe, Villehardouin and Joinville.

34 The crufade and reigns of the counts of Flanders, Baldwin and his brother Henry, are the subject of a particular history by the Jesuit Doutremens (Constantinopolis Belgica; Turnaci, 1638, in4te), which I have only feen with the eyes of Ducange.

a difere-

a diferentionary truft to direct the motions, and to pledge the faith. C H A P. of the whole confederacy. The maritime flates of Italy were alone ----poffeffed of the means of transporting the holy warriors with their arms and horfes; and the fix deputies proceeded to Venice to folicit. on motives of piety or intereft, the aid of that powerful republic.

In the invation of Italy by Attila, I have mentioned 35 the flight State of the of the Venetians from the fallen cities of the continent, and their obscure shelter in the chain of islands that line the extremity of the Adriatic gulf. In the midft of the waters, free, indigent, laborious, and inacceffible, they gradually coalefeed into a republic : the first foundations of Venice were laid in the island of Rialto; and the annual election of the twelve tribunes was fuperfeded by the permanent office of a duke or doge. On the verge of the two empires the Venetians exult in the belief of primitive and perpetual independence³⁶. Against the Latins, their antique freedom has been afferted by the fword, and may be justified by the pen. Charlemagne himfelf refigned all claims of fovereignty to the iflands of the Adriatic gulf; his fon Pepin was repulfed in the attacks of the lagunas or canals, too deep for the cavalry, and too shallow for the veffels; and in every age, under the German Cæfars, the lands of the republic have been clearly diftinguished from the kingdom of Italy. But the inhabitants of Venice were confidered by themfelves, by ftrangers, and by their fovereigns, as an inalienable portion of the Greek empire 37; in the ninth and tenth centuries, the proofs of 35 Hiftory, &c. vol. iii. p. 420-422.

³⁶ The foundation and independence of Venice, and Pepin's invation, are difcuffed by Pagi (Critica, tom. iii. A. D. 810, Nº 4, &c.) and Beretti (Differt. Chorograph. Italiæ medii Ævi, in Muratori, Script. tom.x. p. 153.). The two critics have a flight bias, the Frenchman adverse, the Italian favourable, to the republic.

³⁷ When the fon of Charlemagne afferted his right of fovereignty, he was answered by the loyal Venetians, in musis deros berouver evas appellation of fubditi, or fideles.

VOL. VI.

TE Pumaier Barileus (Conftantin, Porphyrogenit. de Administrat. Imperii, pars ii. c. 28. p. 85.); and the report of the ixth, eftablifhes. the fact of the xth century, which is confirmed by the embaffy of Liutprand of Cremona. The annual tribute, which the emperor allows them to pay to the king of Italy, alleviates, by doubling, their fervitude ; but the hateful word dense must be translated, as in the charter of 827 (Laugier, Hift. de Venife, tom. i. p. 67, &c.), by the fofter

T

their

Venetians, A. D. 697-1200.

LX.

C H A P. their fubjection are numerous and unquestionable; and the vain LX. titles, the fervile honours, of the Byzantine court, fo ambitioufly folicited by their dukes, would have degraded the magistrates of a free people. But the bands of this dependence, which was never abfolute or rigid, were imperceptibly relaxed by the ambition of Venice and the weakness of Constantinople. Obedience was foftened into refpect, privilege ripened into prerogative, and the freedom of domeftic government was fortified by the independence of foreign dominion. The maritime cities of Istria and Dalmatia bowed to the fovereigns of the Adriatic; and when they armed against the Normans in the caufe of Alexius, the emperor applied, not to the duty of his fubjects, but to the gratitude and generofity of his faithful allies. The fea was their patrimony 33 : the western parts of the Mediterranean, from Tufcany to Gibraltar, were indeed abandoned to their rivals of Pifa and Genoa; but the Venetians acquired an early and lucrative fhare of the commerce of Greece and Egypt. Their riches encreafed with the encreasing demand of Europe : their manufactures of filk and glafs, perhaps the inftitution of their bank, are of high antiquity; and they enjoyed the fruits of their industry in the magnificence of public and private life. To affert her flag, to avenge her injuries, to protect the freedom of navigation, the republic could launch and man a fleet of an hundred gallies; and the Greeks, the Saracens, and the Normans, were encountered by her naval arms. The Franks of Syria were affifted by the Venetians in the reduction of the fea-coaft; but their zeal was neither blind nor difinterested; and in the conquest of Tyre, they shared the fovereignty of a city, the first seat of the commerce of the world. The policy of Venice was marked by the avarice of a trading, and the > the Antiquitates medii Ævi of Muratori. in the beginning of the xvth century, is From Anderson's History of Commerce, I agreeably described by the Abbé Dubos (Hist. understand that the Venetians did not trade de la Ligue de Cambray, tom. ii. p. 443to England before the year 1323. The moft 480.).

> > 2

38 See the xxvth and xxxth differtations of flourishing flate of their wealth and commerce.

infolence

infolence of a maritime, power; yet her ambition was prudent; nor C H A P. did the often forget that if armed gallies were the effect and fafeguard, merchant veffels were the caufe and fupply, of her greatnefs. In her religion, fhe avoided the fchifm of the Greeks, without yielding a fcrvile obedience to the Roman pontiff; and a free intercourfe with the infidels of every clime appears to have allayed betimes the fever of fuperstition. Her primitive government was a loofe mixture of democracy and monarchy: the doge was elected by the votes of the general affembly; as long as he was popular and fuccefsful, he reigned with the pomp and authority of a prince; but in the frequent revolutions of the ftate, he was depofed, or banifhed, or flain, by the juffice or injuffice of the multitude. The twelfth century produced the first rudiments of the wife and jealous aristocracy, which has reduced the doge to a pageant and the people to a cypher³⁹.

When the fix ambaffadors of the French pilgrims arrived at Venice, they were hofpitably entertained in the palace of St. Mark, by the and Venereigning duke : his name was Henry Dandolo 40; and he fhone in A.D. 1201. the last period of human life as one of the most illustrious characters of the times. Under the weight of years, and after the lofs of his eyes ", Dandolo retained a found understanding and a manly 39 The Venetians have been flow in writ- But this extraordinary longevity is not obing and publishing their history. Their most ancient monuments are, 1. The rude Chronicle (perhaps) of John Sagorninus (Venezia, 1765, in octavo), which represents the flate and manners of Venice in the year 1008. 2. The larger history of the doge (1342-1354) Andrew Dandolo, published for the first time in the xiith tom. of Muratori, A. D. 1728. The Hiftory of Venice by the Abbé Laugier (Paris, 1728), is a work of fome merit, which I have chiefly used for the confitutional part.

T 2

4° Henry Dandolo was eighty-four at his tions of Ducange fur Villehardouin, N° 204. cange).

ferved by the original writers, nor does there exist another example of an hero near an hundred years of age. Theophrastus might afford an inftance of a writer of ninety-nine; but inftead of EVENNKOVTa (Procem.ad Character.), I am much inclined to read isfournews, with his laft editor Fischer, and the first thoughts of Cafaubon. It is fearcely poffible that the powers of the mind and body fhould fupport them felves till fuch a period of life.

41 The modern Venetians (Laugier, tom, ii. p. 119.) accuse the emperor Manuel: but the calumny is refuted by Villehardonin and election (A. D. 1192), and ninety-feven at the older writers, who fuppose that Dandolo his death (A. D. 1205). See the Observa- lost his eyes by a wound (Nº 34. and Du-courage;

Alliance of the French tians,

C H A P. courage; the fpirit of an hero, ambitious to figualize his reign by fome memorable exploits, and the wifdom of a patriot, anxious tobuild his fame on the glory and advantage of his country. Hepraifed the bold enthusiasm and liberal confidence of the barons and their deputies; in fuch a caufe, and with fuch affociates, he fhould aspire, were he a private man, to terminate his life; but he was the fervant of the republic, and fome delay was requifite to confult, on this arduous bufinefs, the judgment of his colleagues. The propofal of the French was first debated by the fix fages who had been recently appointed to control the administration of the doge : it was next difclofed to the forty members of the council of flate; and finally communicated to the legiflative affembly of four hundred and fifty reprefentatives, who were annually chosen in the fix quarters of the city. In peace and war, the doge was still the chief of the republic; his legal authority was fupported by the perfonal reputation of Dandolo : his arguments of public intereft were balanced and approved; and he was authorifed to inform the ambaffadors of the following conditions of the treaty 42. It was proposed that the crufaders fhould affemble at Venice, on the feaft of St. John of the enfuing year: that flat-bottomed veffels should be prepared for four thousand five hundred horfes, and nine thousand squires, with a number of ships fufficient for the embarkation of four thousand five hundred knights, and twenty thousand foot : that during a term of nine months they fhould be fupplied with provisions, and transported to whatfoever coaft the fervice of God and Chriftendom fhould require; and that the republic fhould join the armament with a fquadron of fifty gallies. It was required that the pilgrims fhould pay, before their departure, a fum of eighty-five thousand marks of filver ; and that all conquefts, by fea and land, fhould be equally divided between the confederates. The terms were hard ; but the emergency was preffing, and the French.

42 See the original treaty in the Chronicle of Andrew Dandolo, p. 323-326.

barons.

barons were not lefs profule of money than of blood. A general C H A P. affembly was convened to ratify the treaty : the flately chapel and place of St. Mark were filled with ten thousand citizens; and the noble deputies were taught a new leffon of humbling themfelves before the majefty of the people. " Illustrious Venetians," faid the marshal of Champagne, " we are fent by the greatest and most power-" ful barons of France, to implore the aid of the mafters of the fea " for the deliverance of Jerufalem. They have enjoined us to fall " proftrate at your feet; nor will we rife from the ground, till you " have promifed to avenge with us the injuries of Chrift." The eloquence of their words and tears43, their martial afpect, and fuppliant attitude, were applauded by an universal shout; as it were, fays Jeffrey, by the found of an earthquake. The venerable doge afcended the pulpit to urge their requeft by those motives of honour and virtue, which alone can be offered to a popular affembly : the treaty was transcribed on parchment; attefted with oaths and feals, mutually accepted by the weeping and joyful reprefentatives of France and Venice ; and difpatched to Rome for the approbation of pope Innocent the third. Two thousand marks were borrowed of the merchants for the first expences of the armament. Of the fix. deputies, two repassed the Alps to announce their fuccess, while their four companions made a fruitlefs trial of the zeal and emulation of the republics of Genoa and Pifa.

The execution of the treaty was ftill oppofed by unforefeen diffi- Affembly and culties and delays. The marshal, on his return to Troyes, was em- the crufade braced and approved by Thibaut count of Champagne, who had been unanimoully chosen general of the confederates. But the health of that valiant youth already declined, and foon became departure of from Venice, A. D. 1202, October 8.

43 A reader of Villehardouin must ob- orent mult pitié et plorerent mult durement ferve the frequent tears of the marshal and his (N°60.); i ot maint lerme plorée de pitié brother knights. Sachiez que la ot mainte (Nº 202.). They weep on every occasion of lerme plorce de pitie (Nº 17.); mult plorant grief, joy, or devotion. (ibid.); mainte lerme plorée (N° 34.); fi hopelefs ;

C H A P. hopelefs; and he deplored the untimely fate, which condemned him to expire, not in a field of battle, but on a bed of fickness. To his brave and numerous vaffals, the dying prince diffributed his treafures : they fwore in his prefence to accomplifh his vow and their . own; but fome there were, fays the marshal, who accepted his gifts and forfeited their word. The more refolute champions of the crofs held a parliament at Soiffons for the election of a new general; but fuch was the incapacity, or jealoufy, or reluctance, of the princes of France, that none could be found both able and willing to affume the conduct of the enterprife. They acquiefced in the choice of a stranger, of Boniface marguis of Montferrat, descended of a race of heroes, and himfelf of confpicuous fame in the wars and negociations of the times ; nor could the piety or ambition of the Italian chief decline this honourable invitation. After vifiting the French court, where he was received as a friend and kinfman, the marquis, in the church of Soiffons, was invefted with the crofs of a pilgrim and the ftaff of a general; and immediately repaffed the Alps, to prepare for the diftant expedition of the Eaft. About the feftival of the Pentecoft he difplayed his banner, and marched towards Venice at the head of the Italians : he was preceded or followed by the counts of Flanders and Blois, and the moft refpectable barons of France; and their numbers were fwelled by the pilgrims of Germany⁴⁵, whofe object and motives were fimilar to their own. The Venetians had fulfilled, and even furpaffed, their engagements: ftables were conftructed for the horfes, and barracks for the troops ; the magazines were abundantly replenished with forage and provifions; and the fleet of transports, fhips, and gallies, was ready > zens of Afti, by a crufade to Paleftine, and Lect. tom. iv. p. v-viii.), who celebrates by an embaffy from the pope to the German the pilgrimage of his abbot Martin, one of princes (Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. x. the preaching rivals of Fulk of Neuilly. His p. 163. 202.).

44 By a victory (A. D. 1191) over the citi- Hiftoria C. P. of Gunther (Canifii Antiq. monastery, of the Ciftercian order, was fituate to hoift fail, as foon as the republic had received the price of the C H A P. freight and armament. But that price far exceeded the wealth of the crufaders who were affembled at Venice. The Flemings, whofe obedience to their count was voluntary and precarious, had embarked in their veffels for the long navigation of the ocean and Mediterranean; and many of the French and Italians had preferred a cheaper and more convenient paffage from Marfeilles and Apulia to the Holy Land. Each pilgrim might complain, that after he had furnished his own contribution he was made responsible for the deficiency of his abfent brethren: the gold and filver plate of the chiefs, which they freely delivered to the treasury of St. Mark, was a generous but inadequate facrifice; and after all their efforts, thirtyfour thousand marks were still wanting to complete the stipulated fum. The obftacle was removed by the policy and patriotifm of the doge, who proposed to the barons, that if they would join their arms in reducing fome revolted cities of Dalmatia, he would expose his perfon in the holy war, and obtain from the republic a long indulgence, till fome wealthy conquest should afford the means of fatisfying the debt. After much fcruple and hefitation they chofe rather to accept the offer than to relinquish the enterprise; and the Siege of. first hostilities of the fleet and army were directed against Zara 46, a Nov. 10ftrong city of the Sclavonian coaft, which had renounced its allegiance to Venice, and implored the protection of the king of Hungary 47. The crufaders burft the chain or boom of the harbour ; landed their horfes, troops, and military engines; and compelled the 46 Jadera, now Zara, was a Roman colony, which acknowledged Augustus for its parent. It is now only two miles round, and contains five or fix thousand inhabitants; but the fortifications are ftrong, and it is joined to the main land by a bridge. See the travels of the two companions, Spon Stirpis Arpad. tom. iv. p. 536-558.) coland Wheeler (Voyage de Dalmatie, de Grece, &c. tom. i. p. 64-70. Journey into Greece, p. 8-14.); the laft of whom, by miftaking

⁴⁵ See the crufade of the Germans in the in the diocefe of Bafil.

142

Zara,

Sestertia for Sestertii, values an arch with statues and columns at twelve pounds. If, in his time, there were no trees near Zara, the cherry-trees were not yet planted which preduce our incomparable marafquin.

47 Katona (Hift. Critica Reg. Hungariæ, lects all the facts and teftimonies moft adverfe. to the conquerors of Zara.

inhabitants,

C H A P. inhabitants, after a defence of five days, to furrender at difcretion; LX. their lives were fpared, but the revolt was punished by the pillage of their houfes and the demolition of their walls. The feafon was far advanced; the French and Venetians refolved to pafs the winter in a fecure harbour and plentiful country; but their repofe was diffurbed by national and tumultuous quarrels of the foldiers and mariners. The conquest of Zara had scattered the feeds of discord and scandal: the arms of the allies had been flained in their outfet with the blood, not of infidels, but of Chriftians: the king of Hungary and his new fubjects were themfelves enlifted under the banner of the crofs; and the fcruples of the devout, were magnified by the fear or laffitude of the reluctant, pilgrims. The pope had excommunicated the falfe crufaders who had pillaged and maffacred their brethren 48, and only the marquis Boniface and Simon of Montfort escaped thefe fpiritual thunders; the one by his absence from the fiege, the other by his final departure from the camp. Innocent might abfolve the fimple and fubmiffive penitents of France; but he was provoked by the flubborn reason of the Venetians, who refused to confess their guilt, to accept their pardon, or to allow, in their temporal concerns, the interpolition of a prieft.

Alliance of the crufaders with the Greek prince, the young Alexius,

The affembly of fuch formidable powers by fea and land, had revived the hopes of young " Alexius; and, both at Venice and Zara, he folicited the arms of the crufaders, for his own reftoration and his father's 5° deliverance. The royal youth was recommended by Philip king of Germany: his prayers and prefence excited the 49 A modern reader is furprised to hear of the valet de Constantinople, as applied to young Alexius, on account of his youth, like the infants of Spain, and the nobilifimus puer the knights were as noble as themfelves and Egypt.

5

5° The emperor Ifaac is flyled by Villehardouin, Surfac (N° 35, &c.), which may be derived from the French Sire, or the Greek Kup (Rupios) melted into his proper name; the farther corruptions of Turfac and Conferac will inftruct us what licence may of the Romans. The pages and valets of have been uled in the old dynasties of Alfyria

compaffion

⁴⁸ See the whole transaction, and the fen- (Villehardouin and Ducange, Nº 36.). timents of the pope, in the Epiftles of Innocent III. Gefta, c. 86, 87, 88.

compaffion of the camp; and his caufe was embraced and pleaded C H A P. by the marquis of Montferrat and the doge of Venice. A double alliance, and the dignity of Cæfar, had connected with the Imperial family the two elder brothers of Boniface ": he expected to derive a kingdom from the important fervice; and the more generous ambition of Dandolo was eager to fecure the ineftimable benefits of trade and dominion that might accrue to his country 52. Their influence procured a favourable audience for the ambaffadors of Alexius; and if the magnitude of his offers excited fome fufpicion, the motives and rewards which he difplayed might juftify the delay and diversion of those forces which had been confectated to the deliverance of Jerufalem. He promised, in his own and his father's name, that as foon as they should be feated on the throne of Constantinople, they would terminate the long fchifm of the Greeks, and fubmit themselves and their people to the lawful fupremacy of the Roman church. He engaged to recompense the labours and merits of the crufaders, by the immediate payment of two hundred thoufand marks of filver; to accompany them in perfon to Egypt; or, if it fhould be judged more advantageous, to maintain, during a year, ten thousand men, and, during his life, five hundred knights, for the fervice of the Holy Land. Thefe tempting conditions were accepted by the republic of Venice; and the eloquence of the doge and marquis perfuaded the counts of Flanders, Blois, and St. Pol, with eight barons of France, to join in the glorious enterprife. A treaty of offenfive and defenfive alliance was confirmed by their oaths and feals; and each individual, according to his fituation and character, was fwayed by the hope of public or private advantage; 53 Reinier and Conrad; the former mar- cange, Fam. Byzant. p. 187. 203.). ried Maria, daughter of the emperor Manuel Comnenus ; the latter was the hufband of c. 9.) accufes the doge and Venetians as the Theodora Angela, fifter of the emperors first authors of the war against Constanti-Ifaac and Alexius. Conrad abandoned the nople, and confiders only as a xupa unit Greek court and prince fs for the glory $x \nu \mu \alpha \tau \tau_i$, the arrival and fhameful offers of the of defending Tyre against Saladin (Du-royal exile.

VOL. VI.

by

52 Nicetas (in Alexio Comneno, 1. iii.

C H A P. by the honour of reftoring an exiled monarch; or by the fincere and probable opinion, that their efforts in Paleftine would be fruitlefs and unavailing, and that the acquifition of Conftantinople muft precede and prepare the recovery of Jerufalem. But they were the chiefs or equals of a valiant band of freemen and volunteers, who thought and acted for themfelves: the foldiers and clergy were divided; and, if a large majority fubfcribed to the alliance, the numbers and arguments of the diffidents were ftrong and respectable 53. The boldeft hearts were appalled by the report of the naval power and impregnable ftrength of Conftantinople; and their apprehenfions were difguifed to the world, and perhaps to themfelves, by the more decent objections of religion and duty. They alleged the fanctity of a vow, which had drawn them from their families and homes to the refcue of the holy fepulchre; nor fhould the dark and crooked counfels of human policy divert them from a purfuit, the event of which was in the hands of the Almighty. Their first offence, the attack of Zara, had been feverely punished by the reproach of their confcience and the cenfures of the pope; nor would they again imbrue their hands in the blood of their fellow-chriftians. The apofile of Rome had pronounced; nor would they usurp the right of avenging with the fword the fchilm of the Greeks and the doubtful ulurpation of the Byzantine monarch. On these principles or pretences, many pilgrims, the most diftinguished for their valour and piety, withdrew from the camp; and their retreat was lefs pernicious than the open or fecret opposition of a difcontented party, that laboured, on every occafion, to feparate the army and difappoint the enterprife.

Voyage from Zara to Conftantinople, A. D. 1203, April 7-June 24. Notwithstanding this defection, 'the departure of the fleet and army was vigoroully preffed by the Venetians; whose zeal for the fervice of the royal youth concealed a just refertment to his nation

and

⁵³ Villehardouin and Gunther reprefent Palefine, was fent ambaffador to Conftanthe fentiments of the two parties. The abbot tinople, and became a reluctant witnefs of Martin left the army at Zara, proceeded to the fecond fiege.

and family. They were mortified by the recent preference which C H A P. had been given to Pifa the rival of their trade; they had a long arrear of debt and injury to liquidate with the Byzantine court ; and Dandolo might not difcourage the popular tale, that he had been deprived of his eyes by the emperor Manuel, who perfidioufly violated the fanctity of an ambaffador. A fimilar armament, for ages, had not rode the Adriatic : it was composed of one hundred and twenty flat-bottomed veffels or palanders for the horfes; two hundred and forty transports filled with men and arms; feventy florethips laden with provisions; and fifty flout gallies, well prepared for the encounter of an enemy 54. While the wind was favourable, the fky ferene, and the water fmooth, every eye was fixed with wonder and delight on the fcene of military and naval pomp which overfpread the fea. The shields of the knights and squires, at once an ornament and a defence, were arranged on either fide of the fhips; the banners of the nations and families were difplayed from the ftern; our modern artillery was fupplied by three hundred engines for caffing ftones and darts : the fatigues of the way were cheered with the found of mufic; and the spirits of the adventurers were raifed by the mutual affurance, that forty thousand christian heroes were equal to the conquest of the world⁵⁵. In the navigation ⁵⁶ from Venice and Zara, the fleet was fuccefsfully fleered by the fkill and experience of the Venetian pilots: at Durazzo, the confederates first landed on the territories of the Greek empire : the ifle of Corfu afforded a flation and repofe; they doubled without accident the perilous cape of Malea, the fouthern point of Peloponefus or the ss Villehardouin, Nº62. His feelings and expressions are original ; he often weeps, but with a fpirit unknown to a fedentary writer.

54 The birth and dignity of Andrew Dan- he rejoices in the glories and perils of war dolo gave him the motive and the means of fearching in the archives of Venice the memorable flory of his anceftor. His brevity feems to accufe the copious and more recent narratives of Sanudo (in Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xxii.), Blondus, Sabellicus, and Rhamnufius.

55 In this voyage, almost all the geographical names are corrupted by the Latins. The modern appellation of Chalcis, and all Eubœa, is derived from its Euripus, Ewripo, Negri-to, Negropont, which diffionours our maps (d'Anville, Geographie Ancienne, tom. i. p. 263.).

U 2

Morea;

147

C H A P. Morea; made a defcent in the islands of Negropont and Andros; and caft anchor at Abydus on the Afiatic fide of the Hellespont. These preludes of conquest were easy and bloodless; the Greeks of the provinces, without patriotifm or courage, were crushed by an irrefiftible force ; the prefence of the lawful heir might juftify their obedience; and it was rewarded by the modefty and difcipline of the Latins. As they penetrated through the Hellespont, the magnitude of their navy was compreffed in a narrow channel; and the face of the waters was darkened with innumerable fails. They again expanded in the bafon of the Propontis, and traverfed that placid fea, till they approached the European fhore, at the abbey of St. Stephen, three leagues to the weft of Conftantinople. The prudent doge diffuaded them from difperfing themfelves in a populous and hoftile land; and, as their flock of provisions was reduced, it was refolved, in the feafon of harveft, to replenish their floreships in the fertile islands of the Propontis. With this refolution, they directed their courfe; but a ftrong gale, and their own -impatience, drove them to the eaftward; and fo near did they run to the fhore and the city, that fome vollies of ftones and darts were exchanged between the fhips and the rampart. As they paffed along, they gazed with admiration on the capital of the Eaft, or, as it should feem, of the earth; riling from her feven hills, and towering over the continents of Europe and Afia. The fwelling domes and lofty fpires of five hundred palaces and churches, were gilded by the fun and reflected in the waters; the walls were crowded with foldiers and fpectators, whole numbers they beheld, of whole temper they were ignorant; and each heart was chilled by the reflection, that, fince the beginning of the world, fuch an enterprife had never been undertaken by fuch an handful of warriors. But the momentary apprehension was dispelled by hope and valour; and every man, fays the marshal of Champagne, glanced his eye on the fword or lance lance which he must speedily use in the glorious conflict ". The C H A P. Latins caft anchor before Chalcedon; the mariners only were left in the veffels; the foldiers, horfes, and arms, were fafely landed; and. in the luxury of an Imperial palace, the barons tafted the first fruits of their fuccefs. On the third day, the fleet and army moved towards Scutari, the Afiatic fuburb of Conftantinople; a detachment of five hundred Greek horfe was furprifed and defeated by fourfcore French knights; and in a halt of nine days, the camp was plentifully fupplied with forage and provisions.

12

In relating the invalion of a great empire, it may feem ftrange that Fruitles ne-I have not deferibed the obftacles which fhould have checked the pro- the emperer. grefs of the ftrangers. The Greeks, in truth, were an unwarlike people; but they were rich, industrious, and fubject to the will of a fingle man : had that man been capable of fear, when his enemies were at a diftance, or of courage, when they approached his perfon. The first rumour of his nephew's alliance with the French and Venetians was defpifed by the ufurper Alexius; his flatterers perfuaded him, that in this contempt he was bold and fincere; and each evening in the close of the banquet, he thrice difcomfited the Barbarians of the Weft. These Barbarians had been justly terrified by the report of his naval power; and the fixteen hundred fifhingboats of Conftantinople 58 could have manned a fleet, to fink them in the Adriatic, or ftop their entrance in the mouth of the Hellefpont. But all force may be annihilated by the negligence of the prince and the venality of his ministers. The great duke, or admiral, made a fcandalous, almost a public, auction of the fails, the mafts, and the rigging : the royal forefts were referved for the more important purpole of the chace; and the trees, fays Nicetas, were 57 Et fachiez que il ne ot fi hardi cui le piscatorum abundare, quam illos in toto nacuer ne fremist (c. 67.) Chascuns re- vigio. Habebat enim mille et sexcentas pifgardoit fes armes que par tems en aront catorias naves Bellicas autem five mercamestier (c. 68.). Such is the honesty of cou- torias habebant infinitæ multitudinis et porrage.

58 Eandem urbem plus in folis navibus p. 10.

- 1 -

tum tutifimum. Gunther, Hift. C. P. c. 8.

guarded

gociation of

149 .

C H A P. guarded by the eunuchs, like the groves of religious worfhip 59. From his dream of pride, Alexius was awakened by the fiege of Zara and the rapid advances of the Latins; as foon as he faw the danger was real, he thought it inevitable; and his vain prefumption was loft in abject despondency and despair. He suffered these contemptible Barbarians to pitch their camp in the fight of the palace; and his apprehenfions were thinly difguifed by the pomp and menace of a fuppliant embaffy. The fovereign of the Romans was aftonished (his ambaffadors were instructed to fay) at the hostile appearance of the ftrangers. If these pilgrims were fincere in their vow for the deliverance of Jerufalem, his voice must applaud, and his treasures should affist, their pious defign; but should they dare to invade the fanctuary of empire, their numbers, were they ten times more confiderable, fhould not protect them from his just refentment. The answer of the doge and barons was simple and magnanimous. " In the caufe of honour and juffice," they faid, " we " defpife the ufurper of Grece, his threats, and his offers. Our " friendship and bis allegiance are due to the lawful heir, to the " young prince who is feated among us, and to his father, the em-" peror Ifaac, who has been deprived of his fceptre, his freedom, " and his eyes, by the crime of an ungrateful brother. Let that " brother confess his guilt, and implore forgiveness, and we our-⁴⁶ felves will intercede, that he may be permitted to live in affluence " and fecurity. But let him not infult us by a fecond meffage: " our reply will be made in arms, in the palace of Conftantinople."

Paffage of the Bolphorus, July 6. On the tenth day of their encampment at Scutari, the crufadersprepared themfelves, as foldiers and as catholics, for the paffage of the Bofphorus. Perilous indeed was the adventure; the flream was broad and rapid; in a calm the current of the Euxine might drive down the liquid and unextinguifhable fires of the Greeks; and the oppofite flores of Europe were defended by feventy thousand horfe

59 Kabarep iepun adoeur, einnen de nas leopureurun majadeiour epeiderro rorun. Nicetas in Alex. Comneno, l. iii. c. 9. p. 348. 4

and foot in formidable array. On this memorable day, which hap- C H A P. pened to be bright and pleafant, the Latins were diffributed in fix battles or divisions; the first, or vanguard, was led by the count of Flanders, one of the most powerful of the Christian princes in the skill and number of his cross-bows. The four fucceffive battles of the French were commanded by his brother Henry, the counts of St. Pol and Blois, and Matthew of Montmorency, the laft of whom was honoured by the voluntary fervice of the marshal and nobles of Champagne. The fixth division, the rear-guard and referve of the army, was conducted by the marquis of Montferrat, at the head of the Germans and Lombards. The chargers, faddled, with their long caparifons dragging on the ground, were embarked in the flat palanders "; and the knights flood by the fide of their horfes, in complete armour, their helmets laced, and their lances in their hands. Their numerous train of ferjeants " and archers occupied the transports; and each transport was towed by the ftrength and fwiftnefs of a galley. The fix divisions traverfed the Bofphorus, without encountering an enemy or an obftacle; to land the foremost was the wifh, to conquer or die was the refolution, of every division and of every foldier. Jealous of the pre-eminence of danger, the knights in their heavy armour leaped into the fea, when it role as high as their girdle; the ferjeants and archers were animated by their valour; and the fquires, letting down the draw-bridges of the palanders, led the horfes to the fhore. Before the fquadrons could mount, and form, and couch their lances, the feventy thousand Greeks had 60 From the version of Vignere I adopt ville, p. 27, 28. edit. du Louvre). the well-founding word palander, which is still used, I believe, in the Mediterranean. lowers, &c. I use, after Villehardonin, the But had I written in French, I should have word ferjeants for all horsemen who were not preferred the original and expressive de- knights. There were ferjeants at arms, and closed into the fide of the ship (fee Du- Glossar. Latin. Servientes, &c. tom. vi. cange au Villehardouin, Nº 14. and Join- p. 226-231.).

61 To avoid the vague expressions of folnomination of welfiers or buiffers, from ferjeants at law; and if we vifit the parade the buis, or door, which was let down and Weltminfler-hall, we may obferve the as a draw-bridge; but which, at fea, was ftrange refult of the diffinction (Ducange, vanished

C H A P. vanished from their fight; the timid Alexius gave the example to LX. his troops; and it was only by the plunder of his rich pavillions that the Latins were informed that they had fought against an emperor. In the first consternation of the flying enemy, they refolved by a double attack to open the entrance of the harbour. The tower of Galata ⁶², in the fuburb of Pera, was attacked and ftormed by the French, while the Venetians affumed the more difficult tafk of forcing the boom or chain that was firetched from that tower to the Byzantine shore. After some fruitless attempts, their intrepid perfeverance prevailed : twenty ships of war, the relics of the Grecian navy, were either funk or taken : the enormous and maffy links of iron were cut afunder by the fhears, or broken by the weight, of the gallies 63; and the Venetian fleet, fafe and triumphant, rode at anchor in the port of Conftantinople. By these daring atchievements, a remnant of twenty thousand Latins folicited the licence of belieging a capital which contained above four hundred thousand inhabitants 64, able, though not willing, to bear arms in the defence of their country. Such an account would indeed fuppofe a population of near two millions; but whatever abatement may be required in the numbers of the Greeks, the belief of those numbers will equally exalt the fearless spirit of their affailants.

> ⁶² It is needlefs to obferve, that on the fubject of Galata, the chain, &c. Ducange is accurate and full. Confult likewife the proper chapters of the C. P. Chriftiana of the fame author. The inhabitants of Galata were fo vain and ignorant, that they applied to themfelves St. Panl's Epiftle to the Galatians.

⁶³ The veffel that broke the chain was named the Eagle, Aquila (Dandol. Chronicon. p. 322.), which Blondus (de Geftis Venet.) has changed into Aquila the northwind. Ducange, Obfervations, N°83, maintains the latter reading; but he had not feen the refpectable text of Dandolo, nor did he enough confider the topography of the harbour. The fouth-east would have been a more effectual wind.

⁶⁴ Quatre cens mil homes ou plus (Villehardouin, N° 134.), mult be underflood of men of a military age. Le Beau (Hift. du Bas Empire, tom. xx. p. 417.) allows Confantinople a million of inhabitants, of whom 60,000 horfe, and an infinite number of foot foldiers. In its prefent decay, the capital of the Ottoman empire may contain 400,000fouls (Bell's Travels, vol. ii. p. 401, 402.); but as the Turks keep no regifters, and as circumflances are fallacious, it is impoffible to afcertain (Niebuhr, Voyage en Arabie, tom. i. p. 18, 19.) the real populoufnefs of their cities.

In the choice of the attack, the French and Venetians were di- C H A P. vided by their habits of life and warfare. The former affirmed with truth, that Conftantinople was most accessible on the fide of the fea and the harbour. The latter might affert with honour, that they had long enough trufted their lives and fortunes to a frail bark and Latins, a precarious element, and loudly demanded a trial of knighthood, a firm ground, and a clofe onfet, either on foot or horfeback. After a prudent compromife, of employing the two nations by fea and land, in the fervice best fuited to their character, the fleet covering the army, they both proceeded from the entrance to the extremity of the harbour : the ftone bridge of the river was haftily repaired; and the fix battles of the French formed their encampment against the front of the capital, the bafis of the triangle which runs about four miles from the port to the Propontis 55. On the edge of a broad ditch, at the foot of a lofty rampart, they had leifure to contemplate the difficulties of their enterprife. The gates to the right and left of their narrow camp poured forth frequent fallies of cavalry and light-infantry, which cut off their ftragglers, fwept the country of provisions, founded the alarm five or fix times in the course of each day, and compelled them to plant a pallifade, and fink an entrenchment, for their immediate fafety. In the fupplies and convoys the Venctians had been too fparing, or the Franks too voracious : the ufual complaints of hunger and fcarcity were heard, and perhaps felt: their flock of flour would be exhausted in three weeks; and their difgust of falt meat tempted them to taste the flesh of their horses. The trembling usurper was supported by Theodore Lascaris, his fonin-law, a valiant youth, who afpired to fave and to rule his country; the Greeks, regardlefs of that country, were awakened to the defence of their religion; but their firmest hope was in the strength and fpirit.

VOL. VI.

LX. First fiege and conquest of Conflantinople by the July 7-18.

⁶⁵ On the most correct plans of Constan- his eye were not deceived, he must reckon tinople, I know not how to measure more by the old Gallic league of 1500 paces, than 4000 paces. Yet Villehardouin com- which might still be used in Champagne. putes the fpace at three leagues (Nº 86.). If

LX. ----

C H A P. spirit of the Varangian guards, of the Danes and English, as they are named in the writers of the times 66. After ten days inceffant labour, the ground was levelled, the ditch filled, the approaches of the befiegers were regularly made, and two hundred and fifty engines of affault exercifed their various powers to clear the rampart, to batter the walls, and to fap the foundations. On the first appearance of a breach, the fcaling-ladders were applied : the numbers that defended the vantage ground repulfed and oppreffed the adventurous Latins; but they admired the refolution of fifteen knights and ferjeants, who had gained the afcent, and maintained their perilous flation till they were precipitated or made prifoners by the Imperial guards. On the fide of the harbour the naval attack was more fuccefsfully conducted by the Venetians; and that industrious people employed every refource that was known and practifed before the invention of gunpowder. A double line, three bow-fhots in front, was formed by the gallies and fhips; and the fwift motion of the former was supported by the weight and loftiness of the latter. whofe decks, and poops, and turret, were the platforms of military engines, that difcharged their fhot over the heads of the first line. The foldiers, who leaped from the gallies on fhore, immediately planted and afcended their fcaling-ladders, while the large fhips, advancing more flowly into the intervals, and lowering a draw-bridge, opened a way through the air from their mafts to the rampart. In the midft of the conflict, the doge, a venerable and confpicuous form, flood aloft in complete armour on the prow of his galley. The great flandard of St. Mark was difplayed before him; his threats, promifes, and exhortations, urged the diligence of the rowers; his veffel was the first that struck; and Dandolo was the first warrior on the shore. The nations admired the magnanimity of the blind old man, without reflecting that his age and infirmities diminished the price of life.

⁶⁶ The guards, the Varangi, are flyled by been their origin, a French pilgrim could Villehardouin (Nº 89. 95, &c.), Englois et not be mistaken in the nations of which they Danois avec leurs haches. Whatever had were at that time composed.

life, and enhanced the value of immortal glory. On a fudden, by C H A P. an invisible hand (for the ftandard-bearer was probably flain), the banner of the republic was fixed on the rampart : twenty-five towers were rapidly occupied; and, by the cruel expedient of fire, the Greeks were driven from the adjacent quarter. The doge had difpatched the intelligence of his fuccefs, when he was checked by the danger of his confederates. Nobly declaring that he would rather die with the pilgrims than gain a victory by their destruction, Dandolo relinquished his advantage, recalled his troops, and hastened to the scene of action. He found the fix weary diminutive battles of the French encompafied by fixty fquadrons of the Greek cavalry, the least of which was more numerous than the largest of their divisions. Shame and despair had provoked Alexius to the last effort of a general fally; but he was awed by the firm order and manly afpect of the Latins; and, after fkirmishing at a diftance, withdrew his troops in the close of the evening. The filence or tumult of the night exafperated his fears; and the timid ufurper, collecting a treafure of ten thousand pounds of gold, basely deferted his wife, his people, and his fortune; threw himfelf into a bark, ftole through the Bolphorus, and landed in shameful fafety in an obscure harbour of Thrace. As foon as they were apprifed of his flight, the Greek nobles fought pardon and peace in the dungeon where the blind Ifaac expected each hour the vifit of the executioner. Again faved and exalted by the vicifitudes of fortune, the captive in his Imperial robes was replaced on the throne, and furrounded with prostrate flaves, whole real terror and affected joy he was incapable of difcerning. At the dawn of day, hostilities were fuspended; and the Latin chiefs were furprifed by a meffage from the lawful and reigning emperor, who was impatient to embrace his fon and to reward his generous deliverers 67.

But

⁶⁷ For the first fiege and conquest of Constantinople, we may read the original letter c. 91. p. 533, 534. Villehardouin, N° 75– X 2 99-

C H A P. LX. Refloration of the emperor Ifaac Angelus, and his fon Alexius, July 19.

But these generous deliverers were unwilling to release their hoftage, till they had obtained from his father the payment, or at leaft the promife, of their recompense. They chose four ambaffadors, Matthew of Montmorency, our hiftorian the marshal of Champagne, and two Venetians, to congratulate the emperor. The gates were thrown open on their approach, the ftreets on both fides were lined with the battle-axes of the Danish and English guard : the prefencechamber glittered with gold and jewels, the falfe fubftitutes of virtue and power; by the fide of the blind Ifaac, his wife was feated, the fifter of the king of Hungary; and by her appearance, the noble matrons of Greece were drawn from their domeftic retirement, and iningled with the circle of fenators and foldiers. The Latins, by the mouth of the marshal, spoke like men, conscious of their merits, but who respected the work of their own hands; and the emperor clearly underflood, that his fon's engagements with Venice and the pilgrims must be ratified without hefitation or delay. Withdrawing into a private chamber with the empress, a chamberlain, an interpreter, and the four ambaffadors, the father of young Alexius enquired with fome anxiety into the nature of his flipulations. The fubmiffion of the Eaftern empire to the pope, the fuccour of the Holy Land, and a prefent contribution of two hundred thousand marks of filver-" Thefe conditions are weighty," was his prudent reply; " they are hard to accept, and difficult to perform. But no " conditions can exceed the measure of your fervices and deferts." After this fatisfactory affurance, the barons mounted on horfeback, and introduced the heir of Constantinople to the city and palace : his youth and marvellous adventures engaged every heart in his favour, and Alexius was folemnly crowned with his father in the dome of St. Sophia. In the first days of his reign, the people, already bleffed

99. Nicetas in Alexio Comnen. 1. iii. c. 10. to Jerufalem, or St. John d'Acre, where the p. 349-352. Dandolo, in Chron. p. 322. greateft part of the company had died of the Gunther, and his abbot Martin, were not plague. yet returned from their obflinate pilgrimage

with

with the reftoration of plenty and peace, was delighted by the joy- C H A P. ful cataftrophe of the tragedy; and the difcontent of the nobles. their regret, and their fears, were covered by the polifhed furface of pleafure and loyalty. The mixture of two difcordant nations in the fame capital, might have been pregnant with mifchief and danger ; and the fuburb of Galata, or Pera, was affigned for the quarters of the French and Venetians. But the liberty of trade and familiar intercourfe was allowed between the friendly nations; and each day the pilgrims were tempted by devotion or curiofity to vifit the churches and palaces of Constantinople. Their rude minds, infensible perhaps of the finer arts, were aftonished by the magnificent fcenery : and the poverty of their native towns enhanced the populoufnefs and riches of the first metropolis of Christendom⁶⁸. Descending from his state, young Alexius was prompted by intereft and gratitude to repeat his frequent and familiar vifits to his Latin allies; and in the freedom of the table, the gav petulance of the French fometimes forgot the emperor of the Eaft 69. In their more ferious conferences, it was agreed, that the re-union of the two churches must be the refult of patience and time; but avarice was lefs tractable than zeal; and a large fum was inftantly difburfed to appeale the wants, and filence the importunity, of the crufaders ". Alexius was alarmed by the approaching hour of their departure : their abfence might have relieved him from the engagement which he was yet incapable of per-

68 Compare, in the rude energy of Ville- it was the infolence of trade and a commonhardouin (Nº 66. 100.), the infide and outfide views of Conflantinople, and their impreflion on the minds of the pilgrims: cette ville (fays he) que de totes les autres ére fouveraine. See the parallel paffages of Fulcherius Carnotenfis, Hitt. Hierofol. 1. i. c. 4. and Will. Tyr. ii 3. xx. 26.

62 As they played at dice, the Latins took off his diadem, and clapped on his head a woollen or hairy cap, το μεγαλ πρεπες και παγκλέιστο κατερρικαινό ωτομο (Nicetas, p 358.). If these merry companions were Venetians, wealth.

7º Villehardouin, Nº 101. Dandolo, p. 322. The doge affirms, that the Venetians were paid more flowly than the French; but he owns, that the hiflories of the two nations differed on that fubject. Had he read Villehardouin? The Greeks complained, however, quòd totius Graciæ opes tranftuliffet (Gunther, Hift. C. P. c. 13.). See the lamentations and invectives of Nicetas (p. 355.).

forming :

1.0

C H A P. forming; but his friends would have left him, naked and alone, to LX. the caprice and prejudice of a perfidious nation. He wished to bribe their ftay, the delay of a year, by undertaking to defray their expence, and to fatisfy, in their name, the freight of the Venetian veffels. The offer was agitated in the council of the barons; and, after a repetition of their debates and fcruples, a majority of votes again acquiefced in the advice of the doge and the prayer of the young emperor. At the price of fixteen hundred pounds of gold, he prevailed on the marquis of Montferrat to lead him with an army round the provinces of Europe; to eftablish his authority, and purfue his uncle, while Conftantinople was awed by the prefence of Baldwin and his confederates of France and Flanders. The expedition was fuccefsful; the blind emperor exulted in the fuccefs of his arms, and liftened to the predictions of his flatterers, that the fame Providence which had raifed him from the dungeon to the throne, would heal his gout, reftore his fight, and watch over the long profperity of his reign. Yet the mind of the fufpicious old man was tormented by the rifing glories of his fon : nor could his pride conceal from his envy, that, while his own name was pronounced in faint and reluctant acclamations, the royal youth was the theme of fpontaneous and univerfal praife⁷¹.

Quarrel of the Greeks and Latins. By the recent invalion, the Greeks were awakened from a dream of nine centuries; from the vain prefumption that the capital of the Roman empire was impregnable to foreign arms. The ftrangers of the Weft had violated the city, and beftowed the fceptre, of Conftantine: their Imperial clients foon became as unpopular as themfelves: the well-known vices of Ifaac were rendered ftill more contemptible by his infirmities; and the young Alexius was hated as an apoftate who had renounced the manners and religion of his country. His fecret covenant with the Latins was divulged or fuf-

⁷¹ The reign of Alexius Comnenus occupies three books in Nicetas, p. 291-352. difpatched in five chapters, p. 352-362. pected;

pected ; the people, and efpecially the clergy, were devoutly attach. C H A P. ed to their faith and fuperstition; and every convent, and every fhop, refounded with the danger of the church and the tyranny of the pope⁷². An empty treafury could ill fupply the demands of regal luxury and foreign extortion : the Greeks refufed to avert, by a general tax, the impending evils of fervitude and pillage; the oppreffion of the rich excited a more dangerous and perfonal refentment; and if the emperor melted the plate, and defpoiled the images, of the fanctuary, he feemed to juftify the complaints of herefy and facrilege. During the absence of marquis Boniface and his Imperial pupil, Conftantinople was vifited with a calamity which might be juftly imputed to the zeal and indifcretion of the Flemish pilgrims⁷³. In one of their vifits to the city, they were fcandalized by the afpect of a mofch or fynagogue, in which one God was worfhipped, without a partner or a fon. Their effectual mode of controverfy was to attack the infidels with the fword, and their habitation with fire: but the infidels, and fome Chriftian neighbours, prefumed to defend their lives and properties; and the flames which bigotry had kindled confumed the most orthodox and innocent structures. During eight days and nights, the conflagration fpread above a league in front, from the harbour to the Propontis, over the thickeft and most populous regions of the city. It is not eafy to count the flately churches and palaces that were reduced to a fmoking ruin, to value the merchandife that perifhed in the trading ftreets, or to number the families that were involved in the common deftruction. By this outrage, which the doge and the barons in vain affected to difclaim, 73 Nicetas (p. 355.) is politive in the his impious league, he bestows the harshest charge, and specifies the Flemings (PARPLIONEC), though he is wrong in fuppofing it an ancient name. Villehardouin (Nº 107.) exculpates the barons, and is ignorant (perhaps af-Tar madatar Pupatois ibar (p. 348.). Such was fectedly ignorant) of the names of the 150

LX.

the ⁷² When Nicetas reproaches Alexius for names on the pope's new religion; mestor mas α οπωτατον... παρεκτροπην πισεως... των τε Παπα περιομιών καινισμου ... μεταθεσιντε και μεταποιησιν the fincere language of every Greek to the guilty. laft gafp of the empire.

C H A P. the name of the Latins became still more unpopular; and the colony of that nation, above fifteen thousand perfons, confulted their fafety in a hafty retreat from the city to the protection of their ftandard in the fuburb of Pera. The emperor returned in triumph ; but the firmeft and moft dextrous policy would have been infufficient to fleer him through the tempeft, which overwhelmed the perfon and government of that unhappy youth. His own inclination, and his father's advice, attached him to his benefactors; but Alexiua hesitated between gratitude and patriotifm, between the fear of his fubjects and of his allies 74. By his feeble and fluctuating conduct he loft the effeem and confidence of both; and, while he invited the marguis of Montferrat to occupy the palace, he fuffered the nobles to confpire, and the people to arm, for the deliverance of their country. Regardless of his painful fituation, the Latin chiefs repeated their demands, refented his delays, fuspected his intentions, and exacted a decifive anfwer of peace or war. The haughty fummons was delivered by three French knights and three Venetian deputies, who girded their fwords, mounted their horfes, pierced through the angry multitude, and entered with a fearlefs countenance the palace and prefence of the Greek emperor. In a peremptory tone, they recapitulated their fervices and his engagements; and boldly declared, that unless their just claims were fully and immediately fatisfied, they fhould no longer hold him either as a fovereign or a friend. After this defiance, the first that had ever wounded an Imperial ear, they departed without betraying any fymptoms of fear; but their escape from a fervile palace and a furious city aftonished the ambaffadors themselves; and their return to the camp was the fignal of mutual hoftility.

The war renewed, A. D. 1204.

Among the Greeks, all authority and wifdom were overborne by the impetuous multitude, who miftook their rage for valour, their numbers

⁷⁴ Compare the fulpicions and complaints nocent. III. c. 92. p. 534), cum patriarcha of Nicetas (p. 359-362) with the blunt et mole nobilium, nobis promiffis perjurus et charges of Baldwin of Flanders (Gefta In- mendax.

numbers for ftrength, and their fanaticifm for the support and infpi- C H A P. ration of Heaven. In the eyes of both nations Alexius was falle and contemptible: the bafe and spurious race of the Angeli was rejected with clamorous difdain; and the people of Conftantinople encompafied the fenate, to demand at their hands a more worthy emperor. To every fenator, confpicuous by his birth or dignity, they fucceffively prefented the purple: by each fenator the deadly garment was repulfed: the conteft lafted three days; and we may learn from the hiftorian Nicetas, one of the members of the affembly, that fear and weaknefs were the guardians of their loyalty. A phantom, who vanished in oblivion, was forcibly proclaimed by the crowd⁷⁵; but the author of the tumult, and the leader of the war, was a prince of the house of Ducas; and his common appellation of Alexius must be discriminated by the epithet of Mourzoufle 76, which in the vulgar idiom expressed the close junction of his black and fhaggy eye-brows. At once a patriot and a courtier, the perfidious Mourzoufle, who was not deftitute of cunning and courage. opposed the Latins both in speech and action, inflamed the passions and prejudices of the Greeks, and infinuated himfelf into the favour and confidence of Alexius, who trufted him with the office of great chamberlain, and tinged his bufkins with the colours of royalty. At the dead of night he rushed into the bed-chamber with an affrighted afpect, exclaiming, that the palace was attacked by the people and betrayed by the guards. Starting from his couch, the unfuspecting prince threw himself into the arms of his enemy, who had contrived his efcape by a private flaircafe. But that flaircafe terminated in a prifon; Alexius was feized, ftripped, and loaded with chains; and, after tafting fome days the bitternels of death,

Y

75 His name was Nicholas Canabus; he a prince of the blood, Angelus and Ducas. ance of Mourzoufle (p. 362.).

76 Villehardouin (N° 116.) speaks of him bastforrator, and second cousin of young as a favourite, without knowing that he was Alexius.

deferved the praife of Nicetas and the venge- Ducange, who pries into every corner, believes him to be the fon of Ifaac Ducas Se-

VOL. VI.

he

161

LX. ____ Alexius and his father depofed by Mourzoufle, February 8.

C H A P. he was poifoned, or ftrangled, or beaten with clubs, at the command, and in the prefence, of the tyrant. The emperor Ifaac Angelus foon followed his fon to the grave, and Mourzoufle, perhaps, might fpare the fuperfluous crime of haftening the extinction of impotence and blindnefs.

Second fiege, January-April.

The death of the emperors, and the ufurpation of Mourzoufle, had changed the nature of the quarrel. It was no longer the difagreement of allies who over-valued their fervices, or neglected their obligations : the French and Venetians forgot their complaints against Alexius, dropt a tear on the untimely fate of their companion, and fwore revenge against the perfidious nation who had crowned his affaffin. Yct the prudent doge was ftill inclined to negociate; he afked as a debt, a fubfidy, or a fine, fifty thousand pounds of gold, about two millions fterling; nor would the conference have been abruptly broken, if the zeal, or policy, of Mourzoufle had not refufed to facrifice the Greek church to the fafety of the flate". Amidft the invectives of his foreign and domeftic enemies, we may difcern, that he was not unworthy of the character which he had allumed, of the public champion : the fecond fiege of Conftantinople was far more laborious than the first; the treasury was replenished, and difcipline was reftored, by a fevere inquifition into the abufes of the former reign; and Mourzoufle, an iron mace in his hand, vifiting the pofts, and affecting the port and afpect of a warrior; was an object of terror, to his foldiers, at leaft, and to his kinfmen. Before and after the death of Alexius, the Greeks made two vigorous and well-conducted attempts to burn the navy in the harbour; but the fkill and courage of the Venetians repulfed the fire-fhips; and the yagrant flames wafted themfelves without injury in the fea 78. In a 77 This negociation, probable in itfelf, the fleet (Geft. c. 92. p. 534, 535.); Villeand attested by Nicetas (p. 365.), is omitted hardouin (Nº 113-115.) only describes the as scandalous by the delicacy of Dandolo and first. It is remarkable, that neither of these Villehardouin.

7

warriors obferve any peculiar properties in 78 Baldwin mentions both attempts to fire the Greek fire.

nocturnal

nocturnal fally, the Greek emperor was vanquished by Henry, C H A P. brother of the count of Flanders: the advantages of number and furprife aggravated the fhame of his defeat; his buckler was found on the field of battle ; and the Imperial flandard ", a divine image of the Virgin, was prefented, as a trophy and a relic, to the Ciftercian monks, the difciples of St. Bernard. Near three months, without excepting the holy feafon of Lent, were confumed in fkirmifhes and preparations, before the Latins were ready or refolved for a general affault. The land-fortifications had been found impregnable; and the Venetian pilots reprefented, that, on the fhore of the Propontis, the anchorage was unfafe, and the fhips muft be driven by the current far away-to the ftreights of the Hellespont; a profpect not unpleafing to the reluctant pilgrims, who fought every opportunity of breaking the army. From the harbour, therefore, the affault was determined by the affailants, and expected by the befieged; and the emperor had placed his fcarlet pavillions on a neighbouring height, to direct and animate the efforts of his troops. A fearlefs fpectator, whofe mind could entertain the ideas of pomp and pleafure, might have admired the long array of two embattled armies, which extended above half a league, the one on the fhips and gallies, the other on the walls and towers raifed above the ordinary level by feveral ftages of wooden turrets. Their first fury was fpent in the difcharge of darts, ftones, and fire, from the engines; but the water was deep; the French were bold; the Venetians were fkilful; they approached the walls; and a defperate conflict of fwords, fpears, and battle-axes, was fought on the trembling bridges that grappled the floating, to the flable, batteries. In more than an hundred places, the affault was urged, and the defence was fuftained; till the fuperiority of ground and numbers finally prevailed, and the Latin trumpets founded a retreat. On

the

⁷⁹ Ducange (N° 119.) pours forth a tor- as a trophy and relic : if it be genuine, the rent of learning on the Gonfanon Imperial. pious doge must have cheated the monks of This banner of the Virgin is fhewn at Venice Citeaux.

C H A P. the enfuing days, the attack was renewed with equal vigour and a fimilar event; and, in the night, the doge and the barons held a council, apprehenfive only for the public danger : not a voice pronounced the words of efcape or treaty; and each warrior, according to his temper, embraced the hope of victory or the affurance of a glorious death . By the experience of the former fiege, the Greeks were inftructed, but the Latins were animated ; and the knowledge, that Conftantinople might be taken, was of more avail than the local precautions which that knowledge had infpired for its defence. In the third affault, two fhips were linked together to double their frength: a ftrong north wind drove them on the fhore; the bifhops of Troyes and Soiffons led the van; and the aufpicious names of the pilgrim and the paradife refounded along the line ". The epifcopal banners were difplayed on the walls; an hundred marks of filver had been promifed to the first adventurers; and if their reward was intercepted by death, their names have been immortalifed by fame. Four towers were fcaled; three gates were burft open; and the French knights, who might tremble on the waves, felt themfelves invincible on horfeback on the folid ground. Shall I relate that the thousands who guarded the emperor's perfon fled on the approach and before the lance of a fingle warrior ? Their ignominious flight is attefted by their countryman Nicetas; an army of phantoms marched with the French hero, and he was magnified to a giant in the eyes of the Greeks⁸². While the fugitives deferted their pofts and caft away their arms, the Latins entered the city under the banners of their leaders; the ftreets and gates opened for the names of thefe two gallies, felici aufpicio, centum alienos.

> ⁸⁰ Villehardouin (Nº 126.) confesse, that mult ere grant peril; and Guntherus (Hift. C. P. c. 13.) affirms, that nulla fpes victoriæ arridere poterat. Yet the knight despifes those who thought of flight, and the monk praises his countrymen who were refolved on death.

82 With an allusion to Homer, Nicetas calls him inea opyvias, nine orgyæ, or eighteen yards high, a stature which would indeed have excufed the terror of the Greek. On this occasion, the historian seems fonder of the marvellous, than of his country, or perhaps of truth. Baldwin exclaims in the words * Baldwin, and all the writers, honour of the pfalmift, perfequitur unus ex nobis their paffage; and either defign or accident kindled a third confla- C H A P. gration, which confumed in a few hours the measure of three of the largeft cities of France^{$3}. In the close of evening, the barons checked their troops and fortified their flations; they were awed by the extent and populoufnefs of the capital, which might yet require the labour of a month, if the churches and palaces were confcious of their internal ftrength. But in the morning, a fuppliant procession, with croffes and images, announced the fubmiffion of the Greeks, and deprecated the wrath of the conquerors : the ufurper efcaped through the golden gate; the palaces of Blachernæ and Boucoleon were occupied by the count of Flanders and the marquis of Montferrat; and the empire which still bore the name of Constantine, and the title of Roman, was fubverted by the arms of the Latin pilgrims⁸⁺.

their

Conftantinople had been taken by ftorm ; and no reftraints, except Pillage of those of religion and humanity, were imposed on the conquerors ple. by the laws of war. Boniface marquis of Montferrat still acted as their general; and the Greeks, who revered his name as that of their future fovereign, were heard to exclaim in a lamentable tone. " Holy marquis-king, have mercy upon us !" His prudence or compafiion opened the gates of the city to the fugitives; and he exhorted the foldiers of the crofs to fpare the lives of their fellow-Chriftians. The ftreams of blood that flow down the pages of Nicetas, may be reduced to the flaughter of two thousand of his unrefifting countrymen⁵⁵; and the greater part was maffacred, not by the ⁸⁴ For the fecond fiege and conquest of Constantinople, see Villehardouin (Nº 113-132.), Baldwin's iid Epistle to Innocent III. (Gesta, c. 92. p. 534-537.), with the whole reign of Mourzousse, in Nicetas (p. 363-375.); and borrow fome hints from Dandolo (Chron. Venet. p. 323-330.) and Gunther (Hift. C. P. c. 14-18.), who add the decorations of prophecy and vision. The former produces an oracle of the Erythræan fybil, of a great armament on the Adriatic, under a blind chief, against Byzantium, &c. Curious enough, were the prediction anterior to the fact.

85 Ceciderunt tamen ea die civium quafi duo Constantino-

165

LX.

^{*3} Villehardouin (N° 130.) is again ignorant of the authors of this more legitimate fire, which is afcribed by Gunther to a quidam comes Teutonicus (c. 14.). They feem ashamed, the incendiaries!

C H A P. the ftrangers, but by the Latins, who had been driven from the city, and who exercifed the revenge of a triumphant faction. Yet of these exiles, fome were less mindful of injuries than of benefits; and Nicetas himfelf was indebted for his fafety to the generofity of a Venetian merchant. Pope Innocent the third accufes the pilgrims of respecting, in their lust, neither age nor fex, nor religious profeffion; and bitterly laments that the deeds of darknefs, fornication, adultery, and inceft, were perpetrated in open day; and that noble matrons and holy nuns were polluted by the grooms and peafants of the Catholic camp⁸⁶. It is indeed probable that the licence of victory prompted and covered a multitude of fins : but it is certain, that the capital of the Eaft contained a ftock of venal or willing beauty, fufficient to fatiate the defires of twenty thousand pilgrims; and female prifoners were no longer fubject to the right or abufe of domeftic flavery. The marquis of Montferrat was the patron of difcipline and decency; the count of Flanders was the mirrour of chaftity : they had forbidden, under pain of death, the rape of married women, or virgins, or nuns; and the proclamation was fometimes invoked by the vanquished 87 and respected by the victors. Their cruelty and luft were moderated by the authority of the chiefs, and feelings of the foldiers; for we are no longer defcribing an irruption of the northern favages; and however ferocious they might fill appear, time, policy, and religion, had civilized the manners of the French, and still more of the Italians. But a free fcope was allowed to their avarice, which was glutted, even in the holy week, by the pillage of Conftantinople. The right of victory, unfhackled > duo millia, &c. (Gunther, c. 18.) Arithmetic is an excellent touchflone to try the amplifications of paffion and rhetoric.

86 Quidam (fays Innocent III. Gefta, c. 94. p. 538.) nec religioni, nec, ætati nec fexui pepercerunt: fed fornicationes, adulteria, et inceflus in occulis omnium exercentes, non follum maritatatas et viduas, fed et mayeyyora».

tronas et virgines Deoque dicatas, expoluerunt fpurcitiis garcionum. Villehardouin takes no notice of thefe common incidents.

⁵⁷ Nicetas faved, and afterwards married, a noble virgin (p. 380.), whom a foldier emμαγτυσι πολλοι: αιδοι ιπιβιαμωμικο, had almost violated in fpite of the εταλαί, ειταλματα το γεγισται.

166

by

by any promife or treaty, had confifcated the public and private C H A P. wealth of the Greeks; and every hand, according to its fize and ftrength, might lawfully execute the fentence and feize the forfeiture. A portable and univerfal ftandard of exchange was found in the coined and uncoined metals of gold and filver, which each captor at home or abroad might convert into the poffeffions most fuitable to his temper and fituation. Of the treasures, which trade and luxury had accumulated, the filks, velvets, furs, the gems, fpices, and rich moveables, were the most precious, as they could not be procured for money in the ruder countries of Europe. An order of Division of rapine was inflituted; nor was the fhare of each individual abandoned to industry or chance. Under the tremendous penalties of perjury, excommunication and death, the Latins were bound to deliver their plunder into the common flock : three churches were felected for the deposit and distribution of the spoil: a single share was allotted to a foot foldier; two for a ferjeant on horfeback; four to a knight; and larger proportions according to the rank and merit of the barons and princes. For violating this facred engagement, a knight belonging to the count of St. Paul was hanged with his fhield and coat of arms round his neck : his Example might render fimilar offenders more artful and difcreet; but avarice was more powerful than fear; and it is generally believed, that the fecret far exceeded the acknowledged plunder. Yet the magnitude of the prize furpaffed the largest scale of experience or expectation . After the whole had been equally divided between the French and Venetians, fifty thousand marks were deducted to fatisfy the debts of the former and the demands of the latter. The refidue of the French amounted to four hundred thousand marks of filver ", about eight hundred

the fpoil.

⁸⁸ Of the general mass of wealth, Gun- win (Gesta, c. 92.), ut tantum tota non vither observes, ut de pauperibus et advenis deatur possidere Latinitas. cives ditiffimi redderentur (Hift. C. P. c. 18.); Villehardouin (Nº 132.), that fince the crea- of 400,000, there is a various reading of

⁸⁹ Villehardouin, Nº 133-135. Inflead tion, ne fu tant gaaignié dans une ville; Bald- 5.0,000. The Venetians had offered to take the

C H A P. hundred thousand pounds sterling; nor can I better appreciate the LX. value of that fum in the public and private transactions of the age, than by defining it as feven times the annual revenue of the kingdom of England 9°.

Mifery of the Greeks.

In this great revolution we enjoy the fingular felicity of comparing the narratives of Villehardouin and Nicetas, the oppofite feelings of the marshal of Champagne and the Byzantine fenator ". At the first view it should seem that the wealth of Constantinople was only transferred from one nation to another; and that the lofs and forrow of the Greeks is exactly balanced by the joy and advantage of the Latins. But in the miferable account of war, the gain is never equivalent to the lofs, the pleafure to the pain : the fmiles of the Latins were transient and fallacious; the Greeks for ever wept over the ruins of their country; and their real calamities were aggravated by facrilege and mockery. What benefits accrued to the conquerors from the three fires which annihilated fo vaft a portion of the buildings and riches of the city? What a flock of fuch things, as could neither be used nor transported, was maliciously or wantonly deftroyed ? How much treasure was idly wasted in gaming, debauchery, and riot? And what precious objects were bartered for a vile price by the impatience or ignorance of the foldiers, whofe reward was stolen by the base industry of the last of the Greeks? Thefe alone, who had nothing to lofe, might derive fome profit from the revolution; but the mifery of the upper ranks of fociety is firongly painted in the perfonal adventures of Nicetas him-each knight, 200 to each prieft and horfeman, and 100 to each foot-foldier: they would have been great lofers (Le Beau, Hift. du Bas-Empire, tom. xx. p. 506. I know not from whence).

the English ambassadors stated the revenue Innocent III. (Gesta, c. 92.); but Villeof the crown as below that of the foreign hardouin does not betray a fymptom of pity clergy, which amounted to 60,000 marks a or remorfe.

the whole booty, and to give 400 marks to year (Matthew Paris, p. 451. Hume's Hiftory of England, vol. ii. p. 170.).

91 The diforders of the fack of Conftantinople, and his own adventures, are feelingly described by Nicetas, p. 367-369. and in the Status Urb. C. P. p. 375-384. His 90 At the council of Lyons (A. D. 1245), complaints even of facrilege are justified by felf.

9

felf. His ftately palace had been reduced to afhes in the fecond con- C H A P. flagration; and the fenator, with his family and friends, found an obscure shelter in another house which he possessed near the church of St. Sophia. It was the door of this mean habitation that his friend the Venetian merchant guarded in the difguife of a foldier, till Nicetas could fave, by a precipitate flight, the relics of his fortune and the chaftity of his daughter. In a cold wintry feafon, thefe fugitives, nurfed in the lap of profperity, departed on foot; his wife was with child; the defertion of their flaves compelled them to carry their baggage on their own fhoulders; and their women, whom they placed in the centre, were exhorted to conceal their beauty with dirt, inftead of adorning it with paint and jewels. Every ftep was exposed to infult and danger: the threats of the ftrangers were lefs painful than the taunts of the plebeians, with whom they were now levelled; nor did the exiles breathe in fafety till their mournful pilgrimage was concluded at Selymbria, above forty miles from the capital. On the way they overtook the patriarch, without attendance and almost without apparel, riding on an als, and reduced to a flate of apoftolical poverty, which, had it been voluntary, might perhaps have been meritorious. In the mean while, his defolate churches were profaned by the licentioufnefs and party zeal of the Latins. After ftripping the gems and pearls, they converted the Sacrilege and chalices into drinking-cups; their tables, on which they gamed and feasted, were covered with the pictures of Chrift and the faints; and they trampled under foot the most venerable objects of the Chriftian worship. In the cathedral of St. Sophia, the ample veil of the fanctuary was rent afunder for the fake of the golden fringe; and the altar, a monument of art and riches, was broken in pieces and fhared among the captors. Their mules and horfes were laden with the wrought filver and gilt carvings, which they tore down from the doors and pulpit; and if the beafts flumbled under the burthen, they were flabbed by their impatient drivers, and the holy pavement VOL. VI. ftreamed Z mockery.

C H A P. ftreamed with their impure blood. A profitute was feated on the LX. throne of the patriarch; and that daughter of Belial, as fhe is ftyled, fung and danced in the church, to ridicule the hymns and proceffions. of the Orientals. Nor were the repolitories of the royal dead fecurefrom violation: in the church of the apoftles, the tombs of the emperors were rifled; and it is faid, that after fix centuries the corpfe of Juftinian was found without any figns of decay or putrefaction. In the ftreets, the French and Flemings clothed themfelves. and their horfes in painted robes and flowing head-dreffes of linen; and the coarfe intemperance of their feafts92 infulted the fplendid fobriety of the Eaft. To expose the arms of a people of fcribes and fcholars, they affected to difplay a pen, an ink-horn, and a fheet of paper, without difcerning that the inftruments of fcience and' valour were alike feeble and ufelefs in the hands of the modern. Greeks.

Defiruction of the flatues.

Their reputation and their language encouraged them, however, to defpife the ignorance, and to overlook the progrefs, of the Latins⁹³. In the love of the arts, the national difference was still more obvious and real; the Greeks preferved with reverence the works of their anceftors, which they could not imitate; and, in the deftruction of the flatues of Conftantinople, we are provoked to join in. the complaints and invectives of the Byzantine hiftorian 94. We: have feen how the rifing city was adorned by the vanity and defpotifm of the Imperial founder: in the ruins of paganifm, fome godsand heroes were faved from the axe of fuperflition; and the forum.

Nicetas's receipts, their favourite difhes were turies were not deflitute of literature. See boiled buttocks of beef, falt pork and peafe, and foup made of garlic and fharp or four herbs (p. 382.).

aypapphatois BafBapois, was redeou avadpaBytois to the honours of fenator, judge of the veil. (Fragment. apud Fabric. Bibliot. Græc. and great logothete; beheld the fall of the tom. vi. p. 414.). This reproach, it is true, empire, retired to Nice, and composed an applies most strongly to their ignorance of elaborate history from the death of Alexius Greek and of Homer. In their own lan- Commenus to the reign of Henry.

92 If I rightly apprehend the Greek of guage, the Latins of the xiith and xiiith cen-Harris's Philological Inquiries, p. iii. c. o. 10, 11.

94 Nicetas was of Chonæ in Phrygia (the 93 Nicetas uses very harsh expressions, mag old Colossie of St. Paul): he raifed himself

and

and hippodrome were dignified with the relics of a better age. Se- C H A P. veral of these are described by Nicetas 25, in a florid and affected -Ayle; and, from his defcriptions, I shall felect fome interesting particulars. I. The victorious charioteers were caft in bronze, at their own, or the public, charge, and fitly placed in the hippodrome: they flood aloft in their chariots, wheeling round the goal; the fpectators could admire their attitude, and judge of the refemblance; and of these figures, the most perfect might have been transported from the Olympic stadium. 2. The sphynx, river-horfe, and crocodile, denote the climate and manufacture of Egypt, and the fpoils of that ancient province. 3. The fhe-wolf fuckling Romulus and Remus; a fubject alike pleafing to the old and the new Romans; but which could rarely be treated before the decline of the Greek fculpture. 4. An eagle holding and tearing a ferpent in his talons : a domeflic monument of the Byzantines, which they afcribed, not to a human artift, but to the magic power of the philosopher Apollonius, who, by this talifman, delivered the city from fuch venomous reptiles. 5. An afs and his driver; which were erected by Auguftus in his colony of Nicopolis, to commemorate a verbal omen of the victory of Actium. 6. An equeftrian flatue; which paffed, in the vulgar opinion, for Joshua, the Jewish conqueror, ftretching out his hand to ftop the course of the descending fun. A more claffical tradition recognifed the figures of Bellerophon and Pegafus; and the free attitude of the fleed feemed to mark that he trod on air, rather than on the earth. 7. A fquare and lofty obelifk of brafs; the fides were emboffed with a variety of picturefque and rural fcenes: birds finging; ruffics labouring, or playing on their pipes; fheep bleating; lambs fkipping; the fea, and a fcene of fifh and fifting; little naked cupids laughing, playing, and pelting each other with apples; and, on the fummit, a female figure turning with the library, contains this curious fragment on the 416.), and immoderately praifed by the late fratues of Conflantinople, which fraud, or ingenious Mr. Harris of Salifbury (Philoloshame, or rather carelessies, has dropt in gical Inquiries, p. iii. c. 5. p. 301-312.). the common editions. It is published by 95 A manufcript of Nicetas in the Bodleian Fabricius (Bibliot. Græc. tom. vi. p. 405-

Z 2

flighteft

C H A P. flighteft breath, and thence denominated the wind's attendant. 8. The Phrygian fhepherd prefenting to Venus the prize of beauty, the apple of difcord. 9. The incomparable statue of Helen; which is delineated by Nicetas in the words of admiration and love: her well-turned feet, fnowy arms, rofy lips, bewitching fmiles, fwimming eyes, arched eye-brows, the harmony of her fhape, the lightnefs of her drapery, and her flowing locks that waved in the wind : a beauty that might have moved her Barbarian deftroyers to pity and remorfe. 10. The manly or divine form of Hercules⁹⁶, as he was reftored to life by the mafter-hand of Lyfippus; of fuch magnitude, that his thumb was equal to the waift, his leg to the flature, of a common man⁹⁷; his cheft ample, his fhoulders broad, his limbs ftrong and muscular, his hair curled, his aspect commanding. Without his bow, or quiver, or club, his lion's fkin carelefsly thrown over him, he was feated on an ofier bafket, his right leg and arm ftretched to the utmost, his left knee bent, and supporting his elbow, his head reclining on his left hand, his countenance indignant and penfive. 11. A coloffal statue of Juno, which had once adorned her temple of Samos; the enormous head by four yoke of oxen was laborioufly drawn to the palace. 12. Another coloffus, of Pallas or Minerva, thirty feet in height, and reprefenting with admirable fpirit the attributes and character of the martial maid. Before we accufe the Latins, it is just to remark, that this Pallas was deftroyed. after the first fiege, by the fear and superstition of the Greeks themfelves⁹³. The other flatues of brafs which I have enumerated, were broken and melted by the unfeeling avarice of the crufaders: the coft and labour were confumed in a moment; the foul of genius evaporated in fmoke; and the remnant of bafe metal was coined > a beautiful gem, which does not however copy the attitude of the flatue: in the latter, Hercules had not his club, and his right leg and arm were extended.

97 I transcribe these proportions, which appear to me inconfident with each other; and

96 To illustrate the statue of Hercules, Mr. may possibly shew, that the boasted taste of Harris quotes a Greek epigram, and engraves Nicetas was no more than affectation and vanity.

98 Nicetas in Ifaaco Angelo et Alexio, c. 3. p. 359. The Latin editor very properly observes, that the historian, in his bombast style, produces ex pulice elephantem.

into

into money for the payment of the troops. Bronze is not the moft C H A P. durable of monuments: from the marble forms of Phidias and Praxiteles, the Latins might turn afide with flupid contempt ": but unlefs they were crushed by fome accidental injury, those uselefs ftones ftood fecure on their pedeftals "". The most enlightened of the ftrangers, above the großs and fenfual purfuits of their countrymen, more pioufly exercifed the right of conquest in the fearch and feizure of the relics of the faints "". Immenfe was the fupply of heads and bones, croffes and images, that were feattered by this revolution over the churches of Europe; and fuch was the encreafe of pilgrimage and oblation, that no branch, perhaps, of more lucrative plunder was imported from the Eaft "". Of the writings of antiquity, many that still existed in the twelfth century are now loft. But the pilgrims were not folicitous to fave or transport the volumes of an unknown tongue: the perifhable fubftance of paper or parchment can only be preferved by the multiplicity of copies; the literature of the Greeks had almost centered in the metropolis; and, without computing the extent of our lofs, we may drop a tear over the libraries that have perifhed in the triple fire of Conftantinople¹⁰³.

99 In two paffages of Nicetas (edit. Paris, the taking of Conflantinople by the Latins; p. 360. Fabric. p. 408.), the Latins are branded with the lively reproach of is TE R . AS anegaros BagBaço, and their avarice of brais is clearly expressed. Yet the Venetians had the merit of removing four bronze horfes from Conftantinople to the place of St. Mark (Sanuto, Vite del Degi, in Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xxii. p. 534.).

100 Winckelman, Hift. de l'Art, tom. iii. p. 269, 270.

sos See the pious robbery of the abbot Martin, who transferred a rich cargo to his monastery of Paris, diocefe of Bafil (Gunther,. Hift. C. P. c. 19. 23, 24.). Yet in fecreting this booty, the faint incurred an excommunication, and perhaps broke his oath.

102 Fleury, Hift. Ecclef. tom. xvi. p. 139 -145.

103 I shall conclude this chapter with the notice of a modern history, which illustrates but which has fallen fomewhat late into my hands. Paolo Ramufio, the fon of the compiler of voyages, was directed by the fenate of Venice to write the hiftory of the conqueft ; and this order, which he received in his youth, he executed in a mature age, by an elegant Latin work, de Bello Constantinopolitano et Imperatoribus Comnenis per Gallos et Venetos restitutis (Venet. 1635, in folio). Ramufio, or Rhamnulus, transcribes and translates fequitur ad unguem, a MS. of Villehardouin, which he poffeffed; but he enriches his narrative with Greek and Latin materials, and we are indebted to him for a correct state of the fleet, the names of the fifty Venetian nobles who commanded the gallies of the republic, and the patriot oppofition of Pantaleon Barbus to the choice of the doge for emperor.

CHAP. LXI.

Partition of the Empire by the French and Venetians.— Five Latin Emperors of the Houfes of Flanders and Courtenay.—Their Wars against the Bulgarians and Greeks.—Weakness and Poverty of the Latin Empire. —Recovery of Constantinople by the Greeks.—General Consequences of the Crusades.

C H A P. LXI. Election of the emperor Baldwin I. A. D. 1204, May 9-16.

A FTER the death of the lawful princes, the French and Venetians, confident of juffice and victory, agreed to divide and regulate their future poffeffions'. It was flipulated by treaty, that twelve electors, fix of either nation, fhould be nominated; that a majority fhould chufe the emperor of the Eaft; and that, if the votes were equal, the decifion of chance fhould afcertain the fucceffful candidate. To him, with all the titles and prerogatives of the Byzantine throne, they affigned the two palaces of Boucoleon and Blachernæ, with a fourth part of the Greek monarchy. It was defined that the three remaining portions fhould be equally fhared between the republic of Venice and the barons of France; that each feudatory, with an honourable exception for the doge, fhould acknowledge and perform the duties of homage and military fervice to the fupreme head of the empire: that the nation which gave an emperor, fhould refign to their brethren the choice of a

⁴ See the original treaty of partition, in in his Obfervations, and the i" book of his the Venetian Chronicle of Andrew Dandolo, Hiftoire de Conftantinople fous l'Empire des p. 326-330. and the fubfequent election in François. Villehardouin, N° 136-140. with Ducange patriarch ;

patriarch ; and that the pilgrims, whatever might be their impatience C H A P: to vifit the Holy Land, should devote another year to the conquest and defence of the Greek provinces. After the conquest of Conftantinople by the Latins, the treaty was confirmed and exccuted ; and the first and most important step was the creation of an emperor. The fix electors of the French nation were all ecclefiaftics, the abbot of Loces, the archbishop elect of Acre in Palestine, and the bifhops of Troyes, Soiffons, Halberftadt, and Bethlehem, the laft of whom exercifed in the camp the office of pope's legate : their profession and knowledge were respectable; and as they could not be the objects, they were best qualified to be the authors, of the choice. The fix Venetians were the principal fervants of the flate, and in this lift the noble families of Querini and Contarini are ftill proud to difcover their anceftors. The twelve affembled in the chapel of the palace; and after the folemn invocation of the Holy Ghoft, they proceeded to deliberate and vote. A just impulse of respect and gratitude prompted them to crown the virtues of the doge; his wifdom had infpired their enterprife; and the most youthful knights might envy and applaud the exploits of blindnefs' and age. But the patriot Dandolo was devoid of all perfonal ambition; and fully fatisfied that he had been judged worthy to reign. His nomination was over-ruled by the Venetians themfelves : his countrymen, and perhaps his friends², reprefented, with the eloquence of truth, the mifchiefs that might arife to national freedom and the common cause, from the union of two incompatible characters, of the first magistrate of a republic and the emperor of the East. The exclusion of the doge left room for the more equal merits of Boniface and Baldwin; and at their names all meaner candidates refpectfully withdrew. The marquis of Montferrat was recommended

LXI.

^a After mentioning the nomination of the tione fatis probabili, &c. which has been doge by a French elector, his kinfman An- embroidered by modern writers from Blondus drew Dandolo approves his exclusion, quidam to Le Beau. Venetorum fidelis et nobilis fenex, usus ora-

C H A P. by his mature age and fair reputation, by the choice of the adventurers and the wifhes of the Greeks; nor can I believe that Venice. _____ the miftrefs of the fea, could be ferioufly apprehenfive of a petty lord at the foot of the Alps 3. But the count of Flanders was the chief of a wealthy and warlike people; he was valiant, pious, and chafte; in the prime of life, fince he was only thirty-two years of age; a defcendant of Charlemagne, a coulin of the king of France, and a compeer of the prelates and barons who had yielded with reluctance to the command of a foreigner. Without the chapel, these barons, with the doge and marquis at their head, expected the decifion of the twelve electors. It was announced by the bifhop of Soiffons, in the name of his colleagues : " Ye have fworn to obey the prince whom " we fhould chufe ; by our unanimous fuffrage, Baldwin count of " Flanders and Hainault is now your fovereign, and the emperor of " the Eaft." He was faluted with loud applaufe, and the proclamation was re-echoed through the city by the joy of the Latins and the trembling adulation of the Greeks. Boniface was the first to kifs the hand of his rival, and to raife him on the buckler; and Baldwin was transported to the cathedral, and folemnly invefted with the purple bufkins. At the end of three weeks he was crowned by the legate, in the vacancy of a patriarch; but the Venetian clergy foon filled the chapter of St. Sophia, feated Thomas Morofini on the ecclefiaftical throne, and employed every art to perpetuate in their own nation the honours and benefices of the Greek church 4. Without delay, the fucceffor of Conftantine inftructed Paleftine, France, and Rome, of this memorable revolution. To Palestine he fent, as a trophy, the gates of Constantinople, and the ³ Nicetas (p. 384.), with the vain ig- rofini to appoint no canons of St. Sophia, had lived ten years at Venice, &c. But the foreign clergy was envious, the pope difappreved this national monopoly, and of the fix Latin patriarchs of Constantinople, only . They exacted an oath from Thomas Mo- the first and the last were Venetians.

chain

LXI.

norance of a Greek, defcribes the marquis the lawful electors, except Venetians who of Montferrat as a maritime power. Aaumapdias de uneur 9as magadice. Was he deceived by the Byzantine theme of Lombardy, which extended along the coaft of Calabria?

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

chain of the harbour'; and adopted, from the Affife of Jerufalem, the C H A P. laws or cuftoms beft adapted to a French colony and conqueft in the Eaft. In his epiftles, the natives of France are encouraged to fwell that colony, and to fecure that conqueft, to people a magnificent city and a fertile land, which will reward the labours both of the prieft and the foldier. He congratulates the Roman pontiff on the reftoration of his authority in the East; invites him to extinguish the Greek fchifin by his prefence in a general council; and implores his bleffing and forgiveness for the disobedient pilgrims. Prudence and dignity are blended in the answer of Innocent⁶. In the fubversion of the Byzantine empire, he arraigns the vices of man, and adores the providence of God: the conquerors will be abfolved or condemned by their future conduct; the validity of their treaty depends on the judgment of St. Peter; but he inculcates their moft facred duty of establishing a just fubordination of obedience and tribute, from the Greeks to the Latins, from the magistrate to the clergy, and from the clergy to the pope.

In the division of the Greek provinces', the share of the Vene- Division of tians was more ample than that of the Latin emperor. No more empire. than one fourth was appropriated to his domain; a clear moiety of the remainder was referved for Venice; and the other moiety was diffributed among the adventurers of France and Lombardy. The venerable Dandolo was proclaimed defpot of Romania, and invefted after the Greek fashion with the purple buskins. He ended at Conftantinople his long and glorious life; and if the prerogative was perfonal, the title was used by his fucceffors till the middle of the fourteenth century, with the fingular though true addition of 5 Nicetas, p. 383.

⁶ The Epiftles of Innocent III. are a rich fund for the ecclefiaftical and civil inftitution of the Latin empire of Constantinople; and the most important of these epistles (of which the collection in z vols. in folio, is be an improvement of geography. But, published by Stephen Baluze) are inferted alas! d'Anville is no more! in his Gefta, in Muratori, Script. Rerum

VOL. VI.

lords

Italicarum, tom. iii. p. i. c. 94-105.

7 In the treaty of partition, most of the names are corrupted by the fcribes: they might be reftored, and a good map fuited to the last age of the Byzantine empire, would the Greek

C H A P. lords of one fourth and a half of the Roman empire⁵. The doge, LXI. a flave of ftate, was feldom permitted to depart from the helm of the republic; but his place was fupplied by the bail or regent, who exercifed a fupreme jurifdiction over the colony of Venetians: they poffeffed three of the eight quarters of the city; and his independent tribunal was composed of fix judges, four counfellors, two chamberlains, two fifcal advocates, and a conftable. Their long experience of the Eaftern trade enabled them to felect their portion with difcernment: they had rafhly accepted the dominion and defence of Adrianople; but it was the more reafonable aim of their policy to form a chain of factories, and cities, and illands, along the maritime coaft, from the neighbourhood of Ragufa to the Hellefpont and the Bosphorus. The labour and cost of such extensive conquefts exhaufted their treafury: they abandoned their maxims of government, adopted a feudal fyftem, and contented themfelves with the homage of their nobles', for the poffeffions which these private vaffals undertook to reduce and maintain. And thus it was, that the family of Sanut acquired the dutchy of Naxos, which involved the greatest part of the Archipelago. For the price of ten thousand marks, the republic purchased of the marquis of Montferrat the fertile island of Crete or Candia with the ruins of an hundred cities "; but its improvement was fiinted by the proud and narrow fpirit of an ariftocracy"; and the wifeft fenators would > ⁸ Their style was dominus quartæ partis et dimidiæ imperii Romani, till Giovanni Dolfino who was elected doge in the year 1356 (Sanuto, p. 530. 641.). For the government of Constantinople, fee Ducange, Hiftoire de C. P. i. 37.

> 9 Ducange (Hift. de C. P. ii. 6.) has marked the conquests made by the state or nobles of Venice of the islands of Candia, Corfu, Cephalonia, Zante, Naxos, Paros, Melos, Andros, Mycone, Scyro, Cea, and Lemnos.

* Boniface fold the ifle of Candia, August Venetian and the Turkish island.

12, A. D. 1204. See the act in Sanuto, p. 533.: but I cannot understand how it could be his mother's portion, or how the could be the daughter of an emperor Alexius.

" In the year 1212, the doge Peter Zani fent a colony to Candia, drawn from every quarter of Venice. But in their favage manners and frequent rebellions, the Candiots may be compared to the Corficans under the yoke of Genoa; and when I compare the accounts of Belon and Tournefort, I cannot difcern much difference between the confess that the fea, not the land, was the treasury of St. Mark. In C H A P. the moiety of the adventurers, the marquis Boniface might claim the most liberal reward ; and, befides the isle of Crete, his exclusion from the throne was compenfated by the royal title and the provinces beyond the Hellespont. But he prudently exchanged that diftant and difficult conqueft for the kingdom of Theffalonica or Macedonia, twelve days journey from the capital, where he might be fupported by the neighbouring powers of his brother-in-law the king of Hungary. His progrefs was hailed by the voluntary or reluctant acclamations of the natives; and Greece, the proper and ancient Greece, again received a Latin conqueror 12, who trod with indifference that claffic ground. He viewed with a careless eye the beauties of the valley of Tempe; traverfed with a cautious ftep the ftreights of Thermopylæ; occupied the unknown cities of Thebes. Athens, and Argos; and affaulted the fortifications of Corinth and Napoli¹³, which refifted his arms. The lots of the Latin pilgrims were regulated by chance, or choice, or fubfequent exchange; and they abused, with intemperate joy, their triumph over the lives and fortunes of a great people. After a minute furvey of the provinces, they weighed in the fcales of avarice the revenue of each diffrict, the advantage of the fituation, and the ample or fcanty fupplies for the maintenance of foldiers and horfes. Their prefumption claimed and divided the long-loft dependencies of the Roman fceptre: the Nile and Euphrates rolled through their imaginary realms; and happy was the warrior who drew for his prize the palace of the Turkish

178

confels

tom. vi. p. 405.), and would have deferved

¹³ Napoli di Romania, or Nauplia, the ancient fea-port of Argos, is still a place of ftrength and confideration, fituate on a rocky peninfula, with a good harbour (Chandler's Travels into Greece, p. 227.).

Aa 2

fultan

LXI.

¹² Villehardoin (Nº 159, 160. 173-177.) leian MS. of Nicetas (Fabric. Bibliot. Græc. and Nicetas (p. 387-394.) deferibe the ex- tom. vi. p. 405.), and pedition into Greece of the marquis Boni- Mr. Harris's enquiries. face. The Choniate might derive his information from his brother Michael, archbishop of Athens, whom he paints as an orator, a statesman, and a faint. His encomium of Athens, and the defcription of Tempe, fhould be published from the Bod-

C H A P. fultan of Iconium ". I fhall not defcend to the pedigree of families and the rent-roll of eftates, but I wifh to fpecify that the counts of Blois and St. Pol were invefted with the dutchy of Nice and the lordship of Demotica 's: the principal fiefs were held by the fervice of conftable, chamberlain, cup-bearer, butler, and chief cook; and our historian, Jeffrey of Villehardouin, obtained a fair establishment on the banks of the Hebrus, and united the double office of marshal of Champagne and Romania. At the head of his knights and archers, each baron mounted on horfeback to fecure the poffeffion of his fhare, and their first efforts were generally fuccessful. But the public force was weakened by their difperfion ; and a thoufand quarrels muft arife under a law, and among men, whofe fole umpire was the fword. Within three months after the conqueft of Conftantinople, the emperor and the king of Theffalonica drew their hoftile followers into the field; they were reconciled by the authority of the doge, the advice of the marshal, and the firm freedom of their peers 16.

Revolt of the Greeks, A. D. 1204, Sec.

Two fugitives, who had reigned at Conftantinople, still afferted the title of emperor; and the fubjects of their fallen throne might be moved to pity by the misfortunes of the elder Alexius, or excited to revenge by the fpirit of Mourzoufle. A domeftic alliance, a common intereft, a fimilar guilt, and the merit of extinguishing his enemics, a brother and a nephew, induced the more recent ufurper to unite with the former the relics of his power. Mourzoufle was received with fmiles and honours in the camp of his father Alexius;

14 I have foftened the expression of Nicetas, who firives to expose the prefumption of the Franks. See de Rebus post C. P. expugnatam, p. 375-384.

15 A city furrounded by the river Hebrus, and fix leagues to the fouth of Adrianople, received from its double wall the Greek name of Didymoteichos, infenfibly corrupted into Demotica and Dimot. I have preferred the more convenient and modern appellation of Demotica. This place was the laft Turkifh refidence of Charles XII.

16 Their guarrel is told by Villehardouin (Nº 146-158.) with the fpirit of freedom. The merit and reputation of the marshal are acknowledged by the Greek hiftorian (p.387.), μεγα παρα τοις Λατινών δυιαμινε σρατευμασι: unlike fome modern heroes, whofe exploits are only visible in their own memoirs.

180

LXI.

but

but the wicked can never love, and fhould rarely truft, their fellow- C H A P. criminals : he was feized in the bath, deprived of his eyes, ftripped of his troops and treasures, and turned out to wander an object of horror and contempt to those who with more propriety could hate, and with more juffice could punifh, the affaffin of the emperor Ifaac, and his fon. As the tyrant, purfued by fear or remorfe, was ftealing over to Afia, he was feized by the Latins of Conftantinople, and condemned, after an open trial, to an ignominious death. His judges debated the mode of his execution, the axe, the wheel, or the ftake; and it was refolved that Mourzoufle" fhould afcend the Theodofian column, a pillar of white marble of one hundred and forty-feven feet in height18. From the fummit he was caft down headlong, and dashed in pieces on the pavement, in the prefence of innumerable spectators, who filled the forum of Taurus, and admired the accomplishment of an old prediction, which was explained by this fingular event "?. The fate of Alexius is lefs tragical : he was fent by the marquis a captive to Italy, and a gift to the king of the Romans; but he had not much to applaud his fortune, if the fentence of imprifonment and exile were changed from a fortrefs in the Alps to a monastery in Afia. But his daughter, before the national calamity, had been given in marriage to a young hero who continued the fucceffion, and reftored the throne, of the Greek princes 2°. The valour of Theodore Lafcaris was figna- Theodore

Lafcaris, emlifed peror of Nice,

¹⁷ See the fate of Mourzoufle, in Nicetas (p. 393.), Villehardouin (N°141-145.163.), and Guntherus (c. 20, 21.). Neither the marshal nor the monk afford a grain of pity for a tyrant or rebel, whole punishment, however, was more unexampled than his crime.

¹⁸ The column of Arcadius, which reprefents in baffo-relievo his victories, or those of his father Theodofius, is still extant at Constantinople. It is described and meafured, Gyllius (Topcgraph. iv. 7.), Banduri (ad l. i. Antiquit. C. P. p. 507, &c.), and Tournefort (Voyage du Levant, tom. ii. lettre xii. p. 231.).

19 The nonfense of Gunther and the modern Greeks concerning this columna fatidica, is unworthy of notice : but it is fingular enough, that fifty years before the Latin conqueft, the poet Tzetzes (Chiliad, ix. 277.) relates the dream of a matron, who faw an army in the forum, and a man fitting on the column, clapping his hands, and uttering a loud exclamation.

20 The dynasties of Nice, Trebizond, and Epirus C H A P. lifed in the two fieges of Conftantinople. After the flight of Mourzoufle, when the Latins were already in the city, he offered himfelf 1204-1222. as their emperor to the foldiers and people : and his ambition, which might be virtuous, was undoubtedly brave. Could he have infufed a foul into the multitude, they might have crushed the strangers under their feet : their abject despair refused his aid, and Theodore retired to breathe the air of freedom in Anatolia, beyond the immediate view and purfuit of the conquerors. Under the title, at first of defpot, and afterwards of emperor, he drew to his flandard the bolder fpirits, who were fortified against flavery by the contempt of life; and as every means was lawful for the public fafety, implored without fcruple the alliance of the Turkifh fultan. Nice, where Theodore eftablished his refidence, Prusa and Philadelphia, Smyrna and Ephefus, opened their gates to their deliverer : he derived ftrength and reputation from his victories, and even from his defeats; and the fucceffor of Conftantine preferved a fragment of the empire from the banks of the Mæander to the fuburbs of Nicomedia. and at length of Conftantinople. Another portion, diftant and obfcure, was poffeffed by the lineal heir of the Comneni, a fon of the virtuous Manuel, a grandfon of the tyrant Andronicus. His name was Alexius; and the epithet of great was applied perhaps to his flature, rather than to his exploits. By the indulgence of the Angeli, he was appointed governor or duke of Trebizond²¹: his birth gave him ambition, the revolution independence; and without changing his title, he reigned in peace from Sinope to the Phafis, along the coaft of the Black Sea. His namelefs fon and fucceffor is defcribed > Epirus (of which Nicetas faw the origin cipality of the Lazi; and among the Latins, without much pleafure or hope), are learnedly explored, and clearly reprefented, in the Fa- xivth or xvth centuries. Yet the indefatigable miliæ Byzantinæ of Ducange.

²¹ Except fome facts in Pachymer and Nicephorus Gregoras, which will hereafter be used, the Byzantine writers difdain to speak of the empire of Trebizond, or prinit is confpicuous only in the romances of the Ducange has dug out (Fam. Byz. p. 192.) two authentic passages in Vincent of Beauvais (1. xxxi. c. 144.), and the protonotary Ogerius (apud Wading, A. D. 1279, Nº 4.).

LXI. A. D.

The dukes and emperors of Trebizond.

as the vaffal of the fultan, whom he ferved with two hundred lances; C H A P. that Comnenian prince was no more than duke of Trebizond, and the title of emperor was first affumed by the pride and envy of the grandfon of Alexius. In the Weft, a third fragment was faved The defpots from the common fhipwreck by Michael, a baftard of the houfe of of Epirus. Angeli, who, before the revolution, had been known as an hoftage, a foldier, and a rebel. His flight from the camp of the marquis Boniface fecured his freedom; by his marriage with the governor's daughter, he commanded the important place of Durazzo, affumed the title of defpot, and founded a ftrong and confpicuous principality in Epirus, Ætolia, and Theffaly, which have ever been peopled by a warlike race. The Greeks, who had offered their fervice to their new fovereigns, were excluded by the haughty Latins²² from all civil and military honours, as a nation born to tremble and obey. Their refentment prompted them to fhew that they might have been useful friends, fince they could be dangerous enemies : their nerves were braced by adverfity : whatever was learned or holy, whatever was noble or valiant, rolled away into the independent states of Trebizond, Epirus, and Nice; and a fingle patrician is marked by the ambiguous praife of attachment and loyalty to the Franks. The vulgar herd of the cities and the country, would have gladly fubmitted to a mild and regular fervitude ; and the transient diforders of war would have been obliterated by fome years of industry and peace. But peace was banished, and industry was crushed, in the diforders of the feudal system. The Roman emperors of Constantinople, if they were endowed with abilities, were armed with power for the protection of their fubjects: their laws were wife, and their administration was fimple. The Latin throne was filled by a titular prince, the chief, and often the in Nicetas by the hand of prejudice and refent- mapa vero ounar on Guour noar asmuspoi, xas ver fervant,

LXL

²² The portrait of the French Latins, is drawn μυσων παρα τοις βαρβαροις τυτοις επεξενίζετο, και ment: υδεν των αλλων εθνων εις Αρεος εργα παρασυμ- χολου ειχων τυ λογυ προτρεχοντα. BiBAno Sai nyeixoito, and ede tis two xapitus n two

C H A P. fervant, of his licentious confederates : the fiefs of the empire, from LXL. a kingdom to a caftle, were held and ruled by the fword of the barons: and their difcord, poverty, and ignorance, extended the ramifications of tyranny to the moft fequeftered villages. The Greeks were opprefied by the double weight of the prieft, who was invefted with temporal power, and of the foldier, who was inflamed by fanatic hatred; and the infuperable bar of religion and language for ever feparated the ftranger and the native. As long as the crufaders were united at Conftantinople, the memory of their conqueft, and the terror of their arms, imposed filence on the captive land : their difperfion betrayed the fmallness of their numbers and the defects of their difcipline; and fome failures and mifchances revealed the fecret, that they were not invincible. As the fear of the Greeks abated, their hatred encreafed. They murmured; they confpired; and before a year of flavery had elapfed, they implored, or accepted, the fuccour of a Barbarian, whole power they had felt, and whole gratitude they trufted 23.

The Bulgarian war, A. D. 1205.

The Latin conquerors had been faluted with a folemn and early embaffy from John, or Joannice, or Calo-John, the revolted chief of the Bulgarians and Walachians. -He deemed himfelf their brother, as the votary of the Roman pontiff, from whom he had received the regal title and an holy banner; and in the fubverfion of the Greek monarchy, he might afpire to the name of their friend and accomplice. But Calo-John was aftonished to find, that the count of Flanders had affumed the pomp and pride of the fucceffors of Conftantine; and his ambaffadors were difmiffed with an haughty meffage, that the rebel must deferve a pardon, by touching with his forehead the footftool of the Imperial throne. His refentment²⁴

23 1 here begin to ufe, with freedom and confidence, the eight books of the Hiftoire de C.P. fous l'Empire des François, which Ducange has given as a supplement to Villehardouin; and which, in a barbarous style, deferves the ed at Rome as the prodigal fon.

praife of an original and claffic work.

²⁴ In Calo-John's answer to the pope, we may find his claims and complaints (Gefta Innocent. III. c. 108, 109.); he was cherifh-

8

would

would have exhaled in acts of violence and blood ; his cooler policy C II A P. watched the rifing difcontent of the Greeks; affected a tender concern for their fufferings; and promifed, that their first struggles for freedom fhould be supported by his perfon and kingdom. The confpiracy was propagated by national hatred, the firmest band of affociation and fecrecy: the Greeks were impatient to fheath their daggers in the breafts of the victorious ftrangers; but the execution was prudently delayed, till Henry, the emperor's brother, had transported the flower of his troops beyond the Hellespont. Most of the towns and villages of Thrace were true to the moment and the fignal; and the Latins, without arms or fufpicion, were flaughtered by the vile and mercilels revenge of their flaves. From Demotica, the first fcene of the maffacre, the furviving vaffals of the count of St. Pol efcaped to Adrianople; but the French and Venetians, who occupied that city, were flain or expelled by the furious multitude ; the garrifons that could effect their retreat, fell back on each other towards the metropolis; and the fortreffes, that feparately flood against the rebels, were ignorant of each other's and of their fovereign's fate. The voice of fame and fear announced the revolt of the Greeks and the rapid approach of their Bulgarian ally; and Calo-John, not depending on the forces of his own kingdom, had drawn from the Scythian wilderneis a body of fourteen thousand Comans, who drank, as it was faid, the blood of their captives, and facrificed the Chriftians on the altars of their gods¹⁵.

Alarmed by this fudden and growing danger, the emperor difpatched a fwift meffenger to recall count Henry and his troops; and had Baldwin expected the return of his gallant brother, with a fupply of twenty thousand Armenians, he might have encountered the invader with equal numbers and a decifive fuperiority of arms and discipline.

VOL. VI.

ВЬ

²⁵ The Comans were a Tartar or Turk- were Mahometans, and the whole hord was man hord, which encamped in the xi.th and converted to Chrittianity (A. D. 1370) by xilith centuries on the verge of Moldavia. Lewis king of Hungary. The greater part were pagans, but fome LXI. March.

C H A P. discipline. But the spirit of chivalry could feldom diferiminate caution from cowardice; and the emperor took the field with an hundred and forty knights, and their train of archers and ferjeants. The marshal, who diffuaded and obeyed, led the vanguard in their march to Adrianople; the main body was commanded by the count of Blois; the aged doge of Venice followed with the rear; and their fcanty numbers were encreafed from all fides by the fugitive Latins. They undertook to befiege the rebels of Adrianople; and fuch was the pious tendency of the crufades, that they employed the holy week in pillaging the country for their fubfiftence, and in framing engines for the deftruction of their fellow-chriftians. But the Latins were foon interrupted and alarmed by the light cavalry of the Comans, who boldly fkirmished to the edge of their imperfect lines: and a proclamation was iffued by the marshal of Romania, that, on the trumpet's found, the cavalry fhould mount and form; but that none, under pain of death, fhould abandon themfelves to a defultory and dangerous purfuit. This wife injunction was first difobeyed by the count of Blois, who involved the emperor in his rashness and ruin. The Comans, of the Parthian or Tartar fchool, fled before their first charge; but after a career of two leagues, when the knights and their horfes were almost breathlefs, they fuddenly turned, rallied, and encompassed the heavy fquadrons of the Franks. The count was flain on the field; the emperor was made prifoner; and if the one difdained to fly, if the other refufed to yield, their perfonal bravery made a poor atonement for their ignorance, or neglect, of the duties of a general 26.

Defeat and captivity of Baldwin, A. D. 1205, April 15.

> Proud of his victory and his royal prize, the Bulgarian advanced to relieve Adrianople and atchieve the deftruction of the Latins. They must inevitably have been destroyed, if the marshal of Romania

²⁵ Nicetas, from ignorance or malice, im- glory with his venerable friend, qui viels putes the defeat to the cowardice of Dandolo home ére et gote ne veoir, mais mult ére fages (p. 383.); but Villehardouin fhares his own et preus et vigueros (N° 193.).

mania had not difplayed a cool courage and confummate fkill; un- C H A P. common in all ages, but most uncommon in those times, when war was a paffion, rather than a fcience. His grief and fears were poured into the firm and faithful bofom of the doge; but in the camp he diffused an affurance of fafety, which could only be realized by the general belief. All day he maintained his perilous flation between the city and the Barbarians: Villehardouin decamped in filence, at the dead of night; and his mafterly retreat of three days would have deferved the praife of Xenophon and the ten thoufand. In the rear, the marshal supported the weight of the pursuit; in the front, he moderated the impatience of the fugitives; and wherever the Comans approached, they were repelled by a line of impenetrable fpears. On the third day, the weary troops beheld the fea, the folitary town of Rodofto 27, and their friends, who had landed from the Aliatic flore. They embraced, they wept; but they united their arms and counfels; and, in his brother's abfence, count Henry affumed the regency of the empire, at once in a flate of childhood and caducity 23. If the Comans withdrew from the fummer heats, feven thousand Latins, in the hour of danger, deferted Constantinople, their brethren, and their vows. Some partial fuccefs was overbalanced by the lofs of one hundred and twenty knights in the field of Rufium; and of the Imperial domain, no more was left, than the capital, with two or three adjacent fortreffes on the fhores of Europe and Afia. The king of Bulgaria was refiftlefs and inexorable : and Calo-John respectfully eluded the demands of the pope, who conjured his new profelyte to reftore peace and the emperor to the afflicted Latins. The deliverance of Baldwin was no longer, 27 The truth of geography, and the ori- whole names I shall spare. ginal text of Villehardouin (Nº 194.), place Rodosto three days journey (trois jornées) from Adrianople; but Vigenere, in his verfion, has most absurdly substituted treis beures; Ducange in his Observations, and to the end and this error, which is not corrected by of his first book, Ducange, has entrapped feveral moderns,

he

LXI. L Retreat of the Latins.

²⁸ The reign and end of Baldwin are related by Villehardouin and Nicetas (p. 386-416.): and their omiffions are fupplied by

LXI. Death of the emperor.

C H A P. he faid, in the power of man : that prince had died in prifon ; and the manner of his death is varioufly related by ignorance and credulity. The lovers of a tragic legend will be pleafed to hear, that the royal captive was tempted by the amorous queen of the Bulgarians; that his chafte refufal exposed him to the falfehood of a woman and the jealoufy of a favage; that his hands and feet were fevered from his body; that his bleeding trunk was caft among the carcafes of dogs and horfes; and that he breathed three days, before he was devoured by the birds of prey²⁹. About twenty years afterwards, in a wood of the Netherlands, an hermit announced himfelf as the true Baldwin, the emperor of Conftantinople, and lawful fovereign of Flanders. He related the wonders of his efcape, his adventures, and his penance, among a people prone to believe and to rebel; and, in the first transport, Flanders acknowledged her longloft fovereign. A fhort examination before the French court detected the impoftor, who was punished with an ignominious death; but the Flemings still adhered to the pleafing error; and the countefs Jane is accufed by the graveft hiftorians of facrificing to her ambition the life of an unfortunate father ³⁰.

Reign and tharacter of Henry, A. D. 1:06, Auguit 20-.i. D. 1216, Jane 11.

In all civilized hoftility, a treaty is effablished for the exchange or ranfom of prifoners; and if their captivity be prolonged, their condition is known, and they are treated according to their rank with humanity or honour. But the favage Bulgarian was a ftranger to the laws of war; his prifons were involved in darknefs and filence; and above a year elapfed before the Latins could be affured of the death of Baldwin, before his brother, the regent Henry, would confent to affume the title of emperor. His moderation was applauded improbable circumflances, we may prove the death of Baldwin, 1. By the firm belief of French and Flemish writers in Ducange, the French barons (Villehardouin, Nº 230.). z. By the declaration of Calo-John himfelf, who excuses his not releasing the captive em- ban's, in Matthew Paris, Hift. Major, p. 271, peror, quia debitum carnis exfolverat cum 272.

29 After brufhing away all doubtful and carcereteneretur (Gefta Innocent. III. c. 109.).

30 See the flory of this impoftor from the Hift. de C. P. iii. 9. and the ridiculous fables that were believed by the monks of St. Al-by the Greeks as an act of rare and inimitable virtue. Their light C H A P. and perfidious ambition was eager to feize or anticipate the moment of a vacancy, while a law of fucceffion, the guardian both of the prince and people, was gradually defined and confirmed in the hereditary monarchies of Europe. In the fupport of the Eastern empire, Henry was gradually left without an affociate, as the heroes of the crufade retired from the world or from the war. The doge of Venice, the venerable Dandolo, in the fulness of years and glory, funk into the grave. The marquis of Montferrat was flowly rccalled from the Peloponnefian war to the revenge of Baldwin and the defence of Theffalonica. Some nice disputes of feudal homage and fervice, were reconciled in a perfonal interview between the emperor and the king : they were firmly united by mutual efteem and the common danger; and their alliance was fealed by the nuptial of Henry with the daughter of the Italian prince. He foon deplored the lofs of his friend and father. At the perfuation of fome faithful Greeks, Boniface made a bold and fuccefsful inroad among the hills of Rhodope : the Bulgarians fled on his approach ; they affembled to harafs his retreat. On the intelligence that his rear was attacked, without waiting for any defensive armour, he leaped on horfeback, couched his lance, and drove the enemies before him; but in the rafh purfuit he was pierced with a mortal wound; and the head of the king of Thessalonica was prefented to Calo-John, who enjoyed the honours, without the merit, of victory. It is here, at this melancholy event, that the pen or the voice of Jeffrey of Villehardouin feems to drop or to expire "; and if he ftill exercifed his military office of marshal of Romania, his sublequent exploits are buried in oblivion 32. The character of Henry was not unequal.

to

31 Villehardouin, Nº 257. I quote, with Epifiles to Innocent III. (Gesta, c. 106, regret, this lamentable conclusion, where we 107.) lofe at once the original history, and the rich illustrations of Ducange. The last pages he probably died foon afterwards, without 32 The marshal was alive in 1212, but may derive fome light from Henry's two returning to France (Ducange, Obfervations fur

LXI.

C H A P. to his arduous fituation : in the fiege of Conftantinople, and beyond LXI. the Hellespont, he had deferved the fame of a valiant knight and a skilful commander; and his courage was tempered with a degree of prudence and mildnefs unknown to his impetuous brother. In the double war against the Greeks of Afia and the Bulgarians of Europe, he was ever the foremost on shipboard or on horseback; and though he cautioufly provided for the fuccefs of his arms, the drooping Latins were often roufed by his example to fave and to fecond their fearlefs emperor. But fuch efforts, and fome fupplies of men and money from France, were of lefs avail than the errors, the cruelty, and death, of their most formidable adversary. When the defpair of the Greek fubjects invited Calo-John as their deliverer, they hoped that he would protect their liberty and adopt their laws: they were foon taught to compare the degrees of national ferocity, and to execrate the favage conqueror, who no longer diffembled his intention of dispeopling Thrace, of demolishing the cities, and of transplanting the inhabitants beyond the Danube. Many towns and villages of Thrace were already evacuated : an heap of ruins marked the place of Philippopolis, and a fimilar calamity was expected at Demotica and Adrianople, by the first authors of the revolt. They raifed a cry of grief and repentance to the throne of Henry; the emperor alone had the magnanimity to forgive and truft them. No more than four hundred knights, with their ferjeants and archers, could be affembled under his banner; and with this flender force he fought and repulfed the Bulgarian, who, befides his infantry, was at the head of forty thousand horse. In this expedition, Henry felt the difference between an hoftile and a friendly country; the remaining cities were preferved by his arms; and the favage, with fhame and lofs, was compelled to relinquish his prey. The fiege of Theffalonica was the laft of the evils which for Villehardouin, p. 238.). His fief of the time of Ammianus Marcellinus, among Meffinople, the gift of Boniface, was the the cities of Thrace (N° 141.). ancient Maximianoplis, which flourist in Calo-John inflicted or fuffered : he was stabbed in the night in his C H A P. tent : and the general, perhaps the affaffin, who found him-weltering in his blood, aferihed the blow with general applaufe to the lance of St. Demetrius 33. After leveral victories, the prudence of Henry concluded an honourable peace with the fucceffor of the tyrant, and with the Greek princes of Nice and Epirus. If he ceded fome doubtful limits, an ample kingdom was referved for himfelf and his feudatories; and his reign, which lafted only ten years, afforded a thort interval of profperity and peace. Far above the narrow policy of Baldwin and Boniface, he freely entrufted to the Greeks the moft important offices of the flate and army : and this liberality of fentiment and practice, was the more feafonable, as the princes of Nice and Epirus had already learned to feduce and employ the mercenary valour of the Latins. It was the aim of Henry to unite and reward his deferving fubjects of every nation and language; but he appeared lefs folicitous to accomplish the impracticable union of the two churches. Pelagius, the pope's legate, who acted as the fovereign of Conftantinople, had interdicted the worfhip of the Greeks. and fternly imposed the payment of tithes, the double procession of the Holy Ghoft, and a blind obedience to the Roman pontiff. As the weaker party, they pleaded the duties of confcience, and implored the rights of toleration : " Our bodies," they faid, " are Cæfar's, " but our fouls belong only to God." The perfecution was checked by the firmnels of the emperor³⁺; and if we can believe that the fame prince was poiloned by the Greeks themfelves, we must entertain a contemptible idea of the fenfe and gratitude of mankind. His valour was a vulgar attribute, which he fhared with ten thoufand knights : but Henry poffeffed the fuperior courage to oppole, in a fuperflitious age, the pride and avarice of the clergy. In the cathedral of St.

Calo-

33 The church of this patron of Theffalo- (Ducange, Hift de C P. ii. 4.). nica was ferved by the canons of the holy 34 Acropolita (c. 17.) obferves the perfe-fepulchre, and contained a divine ointment cution of the legare, and the toleration of which distilled daily and supendous miracles Henry ('Efn as he calls him), Rhodowa Ratesopiot.

Sophia

LXI.

C H A P. Sophia he prefumed to place his throne on the right-hand of the LXI. patriarch; and this prefumption excited the fharpeft cenfure of pope Innocent the third. By a falutary edict, one of the first examples of the laws of mortmain, he prohibited the alienation of fiefs; many of the Latins, defirous of returning to Europe, refigned their eftates to the church for a fpiritual or temporal reward ; thefe holy lands were immediately difcharged from military fervice; and a colony of foldiers would have been gradually transformed into a college of priefts 35.

Peter of Courtenay, emperor of Constantinople, A. D. 1217, April 9.

The virtuous Henry died at Theffalonica, in the defence of that kingdom, and of an infant, the fon of his friend Boniface. In the two first emperors of Constantinople the male line of the counts of Flanders was extinct. But their fifter Yolande was the wife of a French prince, the mother of a numerous progeny; and one of her daughters had married Andrew king of Hungary, a brave and pious champion of the crofs. By feating him on the Byzantine throne, the barons of Romania would have acquired the forces of a neighbouring and warlike kingdom; but the prudent Andrew revered the laws of fucceffion; and the princefs Yolande, with her hufband Peter of Courtenay, count of Auxerre, was invited by the Latins to affume the empire of the East. The royal birth of his father, the noble origin of his mother, recommended to the barons of France the first coufin of their king. His reputation was fair, his posseffions were ample, and, in the bloody crufade against the Albigeois, the foldiers and the priefts had been abundantly fatisfied of his zeal and valour. Vanity might applaud the elevation of a French emperor of Constantinople; but prudence must pity, rather than envy, his treacherous and imaginary greatnefs. To affert and adorn 35 See the reign of HENRY, in Ducange tom. xxi. p. 120-122.) has found, perhaps in (Hift, de C. P. l. i. c. 35-41. l. ii. c. 1- Douteman, four laws of Henry, which de-22.), who is much indebted to the Epifles termined the fervice of fields, and the preo-of the Popes. Le Beau (Hift, du Bas-Empire, gatives of the emperor. his his title, he was reduced to fell or mortgage the beft of his patri- C H A P. mony. By thefe expedients, the liberality of his royal kinfman Philip Augustus, and the national spirit of chivalry, he was enabled to pass the Alps at the head of one hundred and forty knights, and five thousand five hundred ferjeants and archers. After fome hefitation, pope Honorius the third was perfuaded to crown the fucceffor of Conftantine; but he performed the ceremony in a church without the walls, left he fhould feem to imply or to beftow any right of fovereignty over the ancient capital of the empire. The Venetians had engaged to transport Peter and his forces beyond the Adriatic, and the empress, with her four children, to the Byzantine palace; but they required, as the price of their fervice, that he thould recover Durazzo from the defpot of Epirus. Michael Angelus, or Comnenus, the first of his dynasty, had bequeathed the fucceffion of his power and ambition to Theodore, his legitimate brother, who already threatened and invaded the eftablishments of the Latins. After difcharging his debt by a fruitlefs affault, the emperor raifed the fiege to profecute a long and perilous journey over land from Durazzo to Theffalonica. He was foon loft in the mountains of Epirus : the paffes were fortified ; his provisions exhaufted : he was delayed and deceived by a treacherous negociation; and, after Peter of Courtenay and the Roman legate had been ar- His captivity and death, refted in a banquet, the French troops, without leaders or hopes, 1217-1219. were eager to exchange their arms for the delufive promife of mercy and bread. The Vatican thundered; and the impious Theodore was threatened with the vengeance of earth and heaven; but the captive emperor and his foldiers were forgotten, and the reproaches of the pope are confined to the imprifonment of his legate. No fooner was he fatisfied by the deliverance of the priest and a promife of fpiritual obedience, than he pardoned and protected the defpot of Epirus. His peremptory commands fufpended the ardour of the Venetians and the king of Hungary; and it was only by a VOL. VI. natural Сc

193

A. D.

C H A P. natural or untimely death ³⁶ that Peter of Courtenay was releafed LXI. from his hopelefs captivity ³⁷.

Robert emperor of Conftantinople, A. D. 1221-1228.

The long ignorance of his fate, and the prefence of the lawful fovereign, of Yolande, his wife or widow, delayed the proclamation of a new emperor. Before her death, and in the midft of her grief, she was delivered of a fon, who was named Baldwin, the last and most unfortunate of the Latin princes of Constantinople. His birth endeared him to the barons of Romania; but his childhood would have prolonged the troubles of a minority, and his claims were fuperfeded by the elder claims of his brethren. The first of thefe, Philip of Courtenay, who derived from his mother the inheritance of Namur, had the wifdom to prefer the fubftance of a marquifate to the fhadow of an empire; and on his refufal, Robert, the fecond of the fons of Peter and Yoland, was called to the throne of Conftantinople. Warned by his father's mifchance, he purfued his flow and fecure journey through Germany and along the Danube: a paffage was opened by his fifter's marriage with the king of Hungary; and the emperor Robert was crowned by the patriarch in the cathedral of St. Sophia. But his reign was an æra of calamity and difgrace; and the colony, as it was ftyled, of NEW FRANCE yielded on all fides to the Greeks of Nice and Epirus. After a victory, which he owed to his perfidy rather than his courage, Theodore Angelus entered the kingdom of Theffalonica, expelled the feeble Demetrius, the fon of the marquis Boniface, erected his ftandard on the walls of Adrianople; and added, by his vanity, a third or a fourth name to the lift of rival emperors. The relics of the Afiatic province were fwept away by John Vataces, the fon-in-law and fucceffor of Theodore Lascaris, and who, in a triumphant reign of thirty-three years, ²⁶ Acropolita (c. 14.) affirms, that Peter death till the year 1219; and Auxerre is in of Courtenay died by the fword (εργον μαχαιρας the neighbourhood of Courtenay.

 ³⁷ See the reign and death of Peter of fhould conclude a previous captivity, ως παντας Courtenay, in Ducange (Hift. dé C. P. 1. ii. αρδη διομωτας ποινπαει σκιυτσι. The c. 22-28.), who feebly flrives to excute the Chronicle of Auxerre delays the emperor's neglect of the emperor by Honorius III.

difplayed

difplayed the virtues both of peace and war. Under his difcipline C H P. the fwords of the French mercenaries were the most effectual inftrument of his conquests, and their defertion from the fervice of their country was at once a fymptom and a caufe of the rifing afcendant of the Greeks. By the conftruction of a fleet, he obtained the command of the Hellespont, reduced the islands of Lesbos and Rhodes, attacked the Venetians of Candia, and intercepted the rare and parlimonious fuccours of the Weft. Once, and once only, the Latin emperor fent an army against Vataces; and in the defeat of that army, the veteran knights, the laft of the original conquerors, were left on the field of battle. But the fuccefs of a foreign enemy was lefs painful to the pufillanimous Robert than the infolence of his Latin fubjects, who confounded the weaknefs of the emperor and of the empire. His perfonal misfortunes will prove the anarchy of the government and the ferociousness of the times. The amorous youth had neglected his Greek bride, the daughter of Vataces. to introduce into the palace a beautiful maid, of a private, though noble, family of Artois; and her mother had been tempted by the lustre of the purple to forfeit her engagements with a gentleman of Burgundy. His love was converted into rage; he affembled his friends, forced the palace gates, threw the mother into the fea, and inhumanly cut off the nofe and lips of the wife or concubine of the emperor. Inftead of punishing the offender, the barons avowed and applauded the favage deed 18, which, as a prince and as a man, it was impoffible that Baldwin should forgive. He escaped from the guilty city to implore the justice or compassion of the pope: the emperor was coolly exhorted to return to his station; before he could obey, he funk under the weight of grief, fhame, and impotent refentment 39.

³⁸ Marinus Sanutus (Secreta Fidelium emplum. Yet he acknowledges the damfel Crucis, l. ii. p. iv. c. 18. p. 73.) is fo much for the lawful wife of Robert. delighted with this bloody deed, that he has ³⁹ See the reign of Robert, in Ducange transcribed it in his margin as a bonum ex- (Hift. de C. P. 1. iii, c. 1-12.). Cc2 It

C H A P. LXI. Baldwin II. and John of Brienne, em-perors of Constantinople, A. D. 1228-1237.

It was only in the age of chivalry, that valour could afcend from a private station to the thrones of Jerufalem and Constantinople. The titular kingdom of Jerufalem had devolved to Mary, the daughter of Ifabella and Conrad of Montferrat, and the granddaughter of Almeric or Amaury. She was given to John of Brienne, of a noble family in Champagne, by the public voice, and the judgment of Philip Augustus, who named him as the most worthy champion of the Holy Land*°. In the fifth crufade, he led an hundred thousand Latins to the conquest of Egypt; by him the fiege of Damietta was atchieved; and the fubfequent failure was juftly afcribed to the pride and avarice of the legate. After the marriage of his daughter with Frederic the fecond ", he was provoked by the emperor's ingratitude to accept the command of the army of the church ;and though advanced in life and defpoiled of royalty, the fword and spirit of John of Brienne were still ready for the fervice of Christendom. In the feven years of his brother's reign, Baldwin of Courtenay had not emerged from a ftate of childhood, and the barons of Romania felt the ftrong neceffity of placing the fceptre in the hands of a man and an hero. The veteran king of Jerufalem might have difdained the name and office of regent; they agreed to inveft him for his life with the title and prerogatives of emperor, on the fole condition, that Baldwin should marry his fecond daughter, and fucceed at a mature age to the throne of Conftantinople. The expectation, both of the Greeks and Latins, was kindled by the renown, the choice, and the prefence of John of Brienne : and they admired his martial afpect, his green and vigorous age of more than fourfcore years, and his fize and ftature, which furpaffed the common measure of mankind*2. But avarice, and the love of ease, ap- C H A P. pear to have chilled the ardour of enterprife : his troops were difbanded, and two years rolled away without action or honour, till he was awakened by the dangerous alliance of Vataccs emperor of Nice, and of Azan king of Bulgaria. They befieged Conftantinople by fea and land, with an army of one hundred thousand men. and a fleet of three hundred ships of war; while the entire force of the Latin emperor was reduced to one hundred and fixty knights, and a fmall addition of ferjeants and archers. I tremble to relate, that inftead of defending the city, the hero made a fally at the head of his cavalry; and that of forty-eight fquadrons of the enemy, no more than three efcaped from the edge of his invincible fword. Fired by his example, the infantry and the citizens boarded the veffels that anchored close to the walls; and twenty-five were dragged in triumph into the harbour of Constantinople. At the fummons of the emperor. the vaffals and allies armed in her defence; broke through every obflacle that oppofed their pallage; and, in the fucceeding year, obtained a fecond victory over the fame enemies. By the rude poets of the age, John of Brienne is compared to Hector, Roland, and Judas Machabæus⁴³: but their credit, and his glory, receives fome abatement from the filence of the Greeks. The empire was foon deprived of the laft of her champions; and the dying monarch was ambitious to enter paradife in the habit of a Francifcan friar 44.

4º Giannone (Iftoria Civile, tom. ii. 1. xvi. A. 4

mon

⁴º Rex igitur Franciæ, deliberatione ha- p. 203. Matthew Paris, p. 159. bitâ respondit nuntiis, se daturum hominem Syriæ partibus aptum; in armis probum p. 380-385.) discusses the marriage of (preux), in bellis fecurum, in agendis provi- Frederic II. with the daughter of John of dum, Johannem comitem Brennensem. Sa- Brienne, and the double union of the crowns nut. Secret. Fidelium, 1. iii. p. xi. c. 4. of Naples and Jerusalem.

at that time a boy, and educated at Constantinople. In 1233, when he was eleven years old, his father broke the Latin chain, left a fplendid fortune, and efcaped to the Greek court of Nice, where his fon was raifed to the highest honours.

43 Philip Moufkes, bifhop of Tournay (A.D. 1274-1282), has composed a poem, or rather a ftring of verses, in bad old Flemish French, on the Latin emperors of Constantinople, which Ducange has published at the 42 Acropolita, c. 27. The historian was end of Villehardouin; fee p. 224. for theprowefs of John of Brienne.

N'Aie, Ector, Roll' ne Ogiers Ne Judas Machabeus li fiers Tant ne fit d'armes en estors Com fift li Rois Jehans cel jors-Et il defors et il dedans La paru fa force et fes fens Et li hardiment qu'il avoit. 44 See the reign of John de Brienne, in Ducange, Hift. de C. P. 1. iii. c. 13-26.

197

LXL.

C H A P. LXI. Baldwin II. A. D. 1237, March 23-A. D. 1261, July 25.

In the double victory of John of Brienne, I cannot difcover the name or exploits of his pupil Baldwin; who had attained the age of military fervice, and who fucceeded to the Imperial dignity on the deceafe of his adoptive father 45. The royal youth was employed on a commiffion more fuitable to his temper; he was fent to vifit the Weftern courts, of the pope more especially, and of the king of France; to excite their pity by the view of his innocence and diffrefs; and to obtain fome fupplies of men or money, for the relief of the finking empire. He thrice repeated these mendicant visits, in which he feemed to prolong his ftay and postpone his return ; of the five-andtwenty years of his reign, a greater number were fpent abroad than at home; and in no place did the emperor deem himfelf lefs free and fecure, than in his native country, and his capital. On fome public occasions, his vanity might be foothed by the title of Augustus, and by the honours of the purple; and at the general council of Lyons, when Frederic the fecond was excommunicated and depofed. his Oriental colleague was enthroned on the right-hand of the pope. But how often was the exile, the vagrant, the Imperial beggar, humbled with fcorn, infulted with pity, and degraded in his own eyes and those of the nations? In his first visit to England, he was stopped at Dover, by a fevere reprimand, that he should prefume, without leave, to enter an independent kingdom. After fome delay, Baldwin however was permitted to purfue his journey, was entertained with cold civility, and thankfully departed with a prefent of feven hundred marks *6. From the avarice of Rome, he could only obtain the proclamation of a crufade and a treafure of indulgences; a coin, whole currency was depreciated by too frequent and indifcriminate abuse. His birth and misfortunes recommended him to j

the

⁴⁵ See the reign of Baldwin II. till his Baldwin II. to the English court, p. 396.637.:
expulsion from Constantinople, in Ducange, his return to Greece armatâ manû, p. 407.:
His, de C. P. 1. iv. c. 1-34. the end 1. v. his letters of his nomen formidabile, &c. p. 481. (a passing which had escaped Du-the generofity of his coufin Louis the ninth ; but the martial zeal of C H A P. the faint was diverted from Conftantinople to Egypt and Paleftine : and the public and private poverty of Baldwin was alleviated, for a moment, by the alienation of the marquifate of Namur and the lordship of Courtenay, the last remains of his inheritance 47. By fuch shameful or ruinous expedients, he once more returned to Romania, with an army of thirty thousand foldiers, whose numbers were doubled in the apprehenfion of the Greeks. His first difpatches to France and England announced his victories and his hopes: he had reduced the country round the capital to the diftance of three days journey; and if he fucceeded against an important, though namelefs, city (most probably Chiorli), the frontier would be fafe and the paffage acceffible. But these expectations (if Baldwin was fincere) quickly vanished like a dream; the troops and treasures of France melted away in his unfkilful hands; and the throne of the Latin emperor was protected by a diffionourable alliance with the Turks and Comans. To fecure the former, he confented to beftow his niece on the unbelieving fultan of Cogni; to pleafe the latter, he complied with their Pagan rites; a dog was facrificed between the two armies; and the contracting parties tafted each other's blood, as a pledge of their fidelity 48. In the palace or prifon of Conftantinople, the fucceffor of Augustus demolished the vacant houses for winter-fuel, and ftripped the lead from the churches for the daily expence of his family. Some ufurious loans were dealt with a fcanty hand by the merchants of Italy; and Philip, his fon and heir, was pawned at Venice as the fecurity for a debt 49. Thirft, hunger, and nakednefs, are politive evils; but wealth is relative; alienation of Courtenay (Ducange, 1. iv. c. 23.). It is now annexed to the royal demefne, but granted for a term (engagé) to the family of Boulainvilliers. Courtenay, in the election of Nemours in the Isle de France, is a town of 900 inhabitants with the re- c. 18. p. 73. mains of a castle (Melanges tirés d'une 47 Louis IX. difapproved and stopped the grand Bibliotheque, tom. xlv. p. 74-77. 48 Joinville, p. 104. edit. du Louvre. A Coman prince, who died without baptifm, was buried at the gates of Constantinople with a live retinue of flaves and horfes.

^{*6} Matthew Paris relates the two vifits of cange): his expulsion, p 850.

49 Sanut. Secret. Fidel. Crucis, l. ii. p. iv.

199

LXI;

and

C H A P. and a prince, who would be rich in a private flation, may be exposed LXI. L-----

The holy crown of thorns.

by the encrease of his wants to all the anxiety and bitterness of poverty. But in this abject diffrefs, the emperor and empire were ftill poffeffed of an ideal treasure, which drew its fantaftic value from the superstition of the Christian world. The merit of the true cross was fomewhat impaired by its frequent division; and a long captivity among the infidels might fhed fome fufpicion on the fragments that were produced in the East and West. But another relic of the Paffion was preferved in the Imperial chapel of Conftantinople; and the crown of thorns which had been placed on the head of Chrift was equally precious and authentic. It had formerly been the practice of the Egyptian debtors to deposit, as a fecurity, the mummies of their parents; and both their honour and religion were bound for the redemption of the pledge. In the fame manner, and in the absence of the emperor, the barons of Romania borrowed the fum of thirteen thousand one hundred and thirty-four pieces of gold 5°, on the credit of the holy crown : they failed in the performance of their contract; and a rich Venetian, Nicholas Querini, undertook to fatisfy their impatient creditors, on condition that the relic fhould be lodged at Venice, to become his abfolute property, if it were not redeemed within a fhort and definite term. The barons apprifed their fovereign of the hard treaty and impending lofs; and as the empire could not afford a ranfom of feven thoufand pounds sterling, Baldwin was anxious to fnatch the prize from the Venetians, and to veft it with more honour and emolument in the hands of the most Christian king ". Yet the negociation was attended with fome delicacy. In the purchase of relics, the faint

^{so} Under the words, Perparus, Perpera, would be too contemptible. Hyperperum, Ducange is fhort and vague: Monetæ genus. From a corrupt paffage of &c. from Conftantinople to Paris, fee Du-Guntherus (Hift. C. P. c. 8. p. 10.), I guels, cange (Hift. de C. P. l. iv. c. 11-14. 24. that the Perpera was the nummus aureus, the fourth part of a mark of filver, or about p. 201-204.). ten shillings sterling in value. In lead, it s' For the translation of the holy crown, 35.) and Fleury (Hift. Ecclef. tom. xvii.

would

would have flarted at the guilt of fimony; but if the mode of ex- C H A P. preffion were changed, he might lawfully repay the debt, accept the gift, and acknowledge the obligation. His ambaffadors, two Dominicans, were difpatched to Venice, to redeem and receive the holy crown, which had efcaped the dangers of the fea and the gallies of Vataces. On opening a wooden box, they recognifed the feals of the doge and barons, which were applied on a fhrine of filver : and within this fhrine, the monument of the Paffion was inclosed in a golden vafe. The reluctant Venetians yielded to juffice and power : the emperor Frederic granted a free and honourable paffage; the court of France advanced as far as Troyes in Champagne, to meet with devotion this ineftimable relic: it was borne in triumph through Paris by the king himfelf, barefoot, and in his fhirt; and a free gift of ten thousand marks of filver reconciled Baldwin to his loss. The fuccefs of this transaction tempted the Latin emperor to offer with the fame generofity the remaining furniture of his chapel ⁵²; a large and authentic portion of the true crofs; the baby-linen of the Son of God; the lance, the fpunge, and the chain, of his Paffion ; the rod of Mofes, and part of the skull of St. John the baptist. For the reception of these spiritual treasures, twenty thousand marks were expended by St. Louis on a flately foundation, the holy chapel of Paris, on which the mule of Boileau has bestowed a comic immortality. The truth of fuch remote and ancient relics, which cannot be proved by any human teftimony, must be admitted by those who believe in the miracles which they have performed. About the middle of the laft age, an inveterate ulcer was touched and cured by an holy prickle of the holy crown 33: the prodigy is attefted by the most pious and enlightened Christians of France; nor 52 Melanges tirés d'une grande Bibliothéque, tom. xliii. p. 201-205. The Lutrin of Boileau exhibits the infide, the foul and manners of the Sainte Chapelle; and many facts relative to the inflitution are collected and explained by his commentators, Broffette and de St. Marc.

VOL. VI.

53 It was performed A. D. 1656, March 24, on the niece of Pafcal; and that fuperior genius, with Arnauld, Nicole, &c. were on the fpot to believe and atteft a miracle which confounded the Jesuits, and faved Port Royal (Oeuvres de Racine, tom. vi. p. 176-187. in his eloquent Hiftory of Port Royal).

D d

will

LXI.

C H A P. will the fact be eafily difproved, except by those who are armed with LXI. a general antidote against religious credulity 54. -----

Progrefs of the Greeks, A.D. 1237-1261.

The Latins of Conftantinople⁵⁵ were on all fides encompassed and prefied : their fole hope, the laft delay of their ruin, was in the divifion of their Greek and Bulgarian enemies; and of this hope they were deprived by the fuperior arms and policy of Vataces emperor of Nice. From the Propontis to the rocky coaft of Pamphylia, Afia was peaceful and profperous under his reign : and the events of every campaign extended his influence in Europe. The ftrong cities of the hills of Macedonia and Thrace, were refcued from the Bulgarians; and their kingdom was circumferibed by its prefent and proper limits, along the fouthern banks of the Danube. The fole emperor of the Romans could no longer brook that a lord of Epirus, a Commenian prince of the Weft, should prefume to dispute or share the honours of the purple; and the humble Demetrius changed the colour of his bufkins, and accepted with gratitude the appellation of defpot. His own fubjects were exafperated by his bafenefs and incapacity : they implored the protection of their fupreme lord. After fome refiftance, the kingdom of Theffalonica was united to the empire of Nice; and Vataces reigned without a competitor from the Turkish borders to the Adriatic gulf. The princes of Europe revered his merit and power; and had he fubfcribed an orthodox creed, it should feem that the pope would have abandoned without reluctance the Latin throne of Constantinople. But the death of Vataces, the fhort and bufy reign of Theodore his fon, and the helpless infancy of his grandfon John, fufpended the reftoration of 55 The gradual loss of the Latins may be traced in the third, fourth, and fifth books of the compilation of Ducange: but of Paris.

54 Voltaire (Siecle de Louis XIV. c. 37. of the Greek conquests he has dropped many the larger hiftory of George Acropolita, and the three first books of Nicephorus Gregoras, two writers of the Byzantine feries, who have had the good fortune to meet with learned editors, Leo Allatius at Rome, and John Boivin in the Academy of Inferiptions Oeuvres, tom. ix. p. 178, 179.) flrives to circumstances, which may be recovered from invalidate the fact: but Hume (Effays, vol. ii. p. 483, 484.), with more skill and fucces, feizes the battery, and turns the cannon against his enemics.

the

the Greeks. In the next chapter, I shall explain their domestic re- C H A P. volutions; in this place, it will be fufficient to obferve, that the young prince was opprefied by the ambition of his guardian and colleague Michael Palæologus, who difplayed the virtues and vices Michael Pathat belong to the founder of a new dynasty. The emperor Baldwin had flattered himfelf, that he might recover fome provinces or cities by an impotent negociation. His ambaffadors were difinified from December 1. Nice with mockery and contempt. At every place which they named, Palæologus alleged fome fpecial reafon, which rendered it dear and valuable in his eyes: in the one he was born; in another he had been first promoted to military command; and in a third he had enjoyed, and hoped long to enjoy, the pleafures of the chace. " And what then do you propofe to give us?" faid the aftonifhed deputies. " Nothing," replied the Greek, " not a foot of land. If " " your master be defirous of peace, let him pay me as an annual " tribute, the fum which he receives from the trade and cuftoms of " Conftantinople. On these terms, I may allow him to reign. If " he refuses, it is war. I am not ignorant of the art of war, and I " truft the event to God and my fword "." An expedition against the defpot of Epirus was the first prelude of his arms. If a victory was followed by a defeat; if the race of the Comneni or Angeli furvived in those mountains his efforts and his reign; the captivity of Villehardouin, prince of Achaia, deprived the Latins of the most active and powerful vaffal of their expiring monarchy. The republics of Venice and Genoa difputed, in the first of their naval wars. the command of the fea and the commerce of the Eaft. Pride and interest attached the Venetians to the defence of Constantinople: their rivals were tempted to promote the defigns of her enemies, and the alliance of the Genoefe with the fchifmatic conqueror provoked the indignation of the Latin church 57.

LXI.

lacologus, the Greek emperor, A. D. 1259.

2.

Intent

56 George Acropolita, c. 78. p. 89, 90. 57 The Greeks, ashamed of any foreign edit. Paris. aid, difguife the alliance and fuccour of the Dd 2 Genoefe;

C H A P. LXI. Conftantinople recovered by the Greeks, A. D. 1261, July 25.

Intent on his great object, the emperor Michael vifited in perfon and strengthened the troops and fortifications of Thrace. The remains of the Latins were driven from their last possefions: he affaulted without fuccefs the fuburb of Galata; and corresponded with a perfidious baron, who proved unwilling, or unable, to open the gates of the metropolis. The next fpring, his favourite general, Alexius Strategopulus, whom he had decorated with the title of Cæfar, paffed the Hellespont with eight hundred horfe and fome infantry ss, on a fecret expedition. His inftructions enjoined him to approach, to liften, to watch, but not to rifk any doubtful or dangerous enterprife against the city. The adjacent territory between the Propontis and the Black Sea, was cultivated by an hardy race of peafants and outlaws, exercifed in arms, uncertain in their allegiance, but inclined by language, religion, and prefent advantage, to the party of the Greeks. They were ftyled the volunteers59, and by their free fervice, the army of Alexius, with the regulars of Thrace and the Coman auxiliaries", was augmented to the number of five-andtwenty thousand men. By the ardour of the volunteers, and by his own ambition, the Cæfar was flimulated to difobey the precife orders of his mafter, in the just confidence that fuccefs would plead his pardon and reward. The weakness of Constantinople, and the diftrefs and terror of the Latins, were familiar to the obfervation of the volunteers: and they reprefented the prefent moment as the most propitious to furprife and conqueft. A rafh youth, the new go-

Genoefe; but the fast is proved by the teffimony of J. Villaai (Chron. 1. vi. c. 71. in Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xiii. p. 202, 203.) and William de Nangis (Annales de St. Louis, p. 248. in the Louvre Joinville), two impartial foreigners; and Urban IV. threatened to deprive Genoa of her archbifhop.

⁵⁸ Some precautions muft be ufed in reconciling the difcordant numbers; the 800 foldiers of Nicetas, the 25,000 of Spandugino (apud Ducange, l. v. c. 24.); the Greeks and Scythians of Acropolita, and the numerous army of Michael, in the Epifiles of Pope Urban IV. (i. 129.)

⁵⁹ Θεληματαριοι. They are defcribed and named by Pachymer (l. ii. c. 14.).

⁶⁰ It is needlefs to feek thefe Comans in the deferts of Tartary, or even of Moldavia. A part of the hord had fubmitted to John Vataces, and was probably fettled as a nurfery of foldiers on fome wafte lands of Thrace (Cantacuzen, l. i, c. 2).

vernor

vernor of the Venetian colony, had failed away with thirty gallies C H A P. and the best of the French knights, on a wild expedition to Daphnufia, a town on the Black Sea, at the diftance of forty leagues : and the remaining Latins were without firength or fuspicion. They were informed that Alexius had paffed the Hellespont; but their apprehenfions were lulled by the fmallness of his original numbers; and their imprudence had not watched the fubfequent encreafe of his army. If he left his main body to fecond and support his operations, he might advance unperceived in the night with a chofen detachment. While fome applied fealing-ladders to the loweft part of the walls, they were fecure of an old Greek, who would introduce their companions through a fubterraneous paffage into his houfe; they could foon on the infide break an entrance through the golden gate. which had been long obstructed ; and the conqueror would be in the heart of the city, before the Latins were confcious of their danger. After fome debate, the Cæfar refigned himfelf to the faith of the volunteers; they were trufty, bold, and fuccefsful; and in defcribing the plan, I have already related the execution and fuccefs⁶¹. But no fooner had Alexius paffed the threshold of the golden gate, than he trembled at his own rafhnefs; he paufed, he deliberated; till the defperate volunteers urged him forwards, by the affurance that in retreat lay the greatest and most inevitable danger. Whilft the Cæfar kept his regulars in firm array, the Comans difperfed themfelves on all fides; an alarm was founded, and the threats of fire and pillage compelled the citizens to a decifive refolution. The Greeks of Constantinople remembered their native fovereigns; the Genoefe merchants their recent alliance and Venetian foes; every quarter was in arms; and the air refounded with a general acclamation of " Long life and victory to Michael and John, the august

⁶¹ The lofs of Conflantinople is briefly 27.), Nicephorus Gregoras (l. iv. c. 1, 2.). told by the Latins : the conqueft is deferibed See Ducange, Hift, de C. P. I. v. c. 19with more fatisfaction by the Greeks; by 27. Acropolita (c. 85.), Pachymer (l. ii. c. 26,

ss emperors

C H A P. " emperors of the Romans!" Their rival, Baldwin, was awakened - by the found; but the most preffing danger could not prompt him to draw his fword in the defence of a city which he deferted, perhaps, with more pleafure than regret: he fled from the palace to the feafhore, where he defcried the welcome fails of the fleet returning from the vain and fruitlefs attempt on Daphnufia. Conftantinople was irrecoverably loft; but the Latin emperor and the principal families embarked on board the Venetian gallies, and fteered for the ifle of Eubœa, and afterwards for Italy, where the royal fugitive was entertained by the pope and Sicilian king with a mixture of contempt and pity. From the lofs of Conftantinople to his death, he confumed thirteen years, foliciting the Catholic powers to join in his reftoration; the leffon had been familiar to his youth; nor was his laft exile more indigent or fhameful than his three former pilgrimages to the courts of Europe. His fon Philip was the heir of an ideal empire; and the pretentions of bis daughter Catherine were transported by her marriage to Charles of Valois, the brother of Philip the Fair king of France. The house of Courtenay was reprefented in the female line by fucceffive alliances, till the title of emperor of Conftantinople, too bulky and fonorous for a private name, modeftly expired in filence and oblivion 62.

General confequences of the crufades.

After this narrative of the expeditions of the Latins to Paleftine and Constantinople, I cannot difmifs the fubject without revolving the general confequences on the countries that were the fcene, and on the nations that were the actors, of these memorable crufades 63. As foon as the arms of the Franks were withdrawn, the impreffion, 62 See the three laft books (l. v-viii.), It is uncertain whether he left any posterity. and the genealogical tables of Ducange. In 63 Abulfeda, who faw the conclusion of the year 1382, the titular emperor of Con- the crufades, speaks of the kingdoms of the ftantinople was James de Baux, duke of An- Franks, and those of the Negroes, as equally dria in the kingdom of Naples, the fon of unknown (Prolegom. ad Geograph.). Had Margaret, daughter of Catherine de Valois, he not difdained the Latin language, how daughter of Catherine, daughter of Philip, foⁿ eafily might the Syrian prince have found of Baldwin II. (Ducange, 1. viii. c. 37, 38.) books and interpreters?

though

LXI.

though not the memory, was erazed in the Mahometan realms of C H A P. Egypt and Syria. The faithful difciples of the prophet were never tempted by a prophane defire to fludy the laws or language of the idolators; nor did the fimplicity of their primitive manners receive the flighteft alteration from their intercourse in peace and war with the unknown ftrangers of the Weft. The Greeks, who thought themfelves proud, but who were only vain, fhewed a difpofition fomewhat lefs inflexible. In the efforts for the recovery of their empire, they emulated the valour, discipline, and tactics, of their antagonifts. The modern literature of the Weft they might juftly defpife ; but its free fpirit would inftruct them in the rights of man ; and fome inftitutions of public and private life were adopted from the French. The correspondence of Constantinople and Italy diffused the knowledge of the Latin tongue; and feveral of the fathers and claffics were at length honoured with a Greek verfion 64. But the national and religious prejudices of the Orientals were inflamed by perfecution; and the reign of the Latins confirmed the feparation of the two churches.

If we compare, at the æra of the crufades, the Latins of Europe with the Greeks and Arabians, their respective degrees of knowledge, industry, and art, our rude ancestors must be content with the third rank in the fcale of nations. Their fucceffive improvement and prefent fuperiority may be aferibed to a peculiar energy of character, to an active and imitative fpirit, unknown to their more polifhed rivals, who at that time were in a flationary or retrograde ftate. With fuch a difposition, the Latins should have derived the most early and effential benefits from a feries of events which opened to their eyes the profpect of the world, and introduced them to a long and frequent intercourse with the more cultivated regions of the nudes, a monk of Constantinople (A. D.

64 A fhort and superficial account of these 1327-1353), has translated Cæsar's Comversions from Latin into Geck, is given by mentaries, the Somnium Scipionis, the Me-Huet (de Interpretatione et de claris Inter-pretibus, p. 131-135.). Maximus Pla- (Fabric, Bib, Græc, tom, x, p. 533.)

Eaft.

LXI.

C H A P. Eaft. The first and most obvious progress was in trade and manu-LXI. factures, in the arts which are ftrongly prompted by the thirst of wealth, the calls of neceffity, and the gratification of the fenfe or vanity. Among the crowd of unthinking fanatics, a captive or a pilgrim might fometimes observe the fuperior refinements of Cairo and Conftantinople : the first importer of wind-mills 65 was the benefactor of nations; and if fuch bleffings are enjoyed without any grateful remembrance, hiftory has condefcended to notice the more apparent luxuries of filk and fugar, which were transported into Italy from Greece and Egypt. But the intellectual wants of the Latins were more flowly felt and fupplied; the ardour of fludious curiofity was awakened in Europe by different caufes and more recent events ; and, in the age of the crufades, they viewed with carelefs indifference the literature of the Greeks and Arabians. Some rudiments of mathematical and medicinal knowledge might be imparted in practice and in figures; neceffity might produce fome interpreters for the groffer bufinefs of merchants and foldiers; but the commerce of the Orientals had not diffused the fludy and knowledge of their languages in the fchools of Europe⁵⁶. If a fimilar principle of religion repulfed the idiom of the Koran, it fhould have excited their patience and curiofity to underftand the original text of the Gofpel: and the fame grammar would have unfolded the fenfe of Plato and the beauties of Homer. Yet in a reign of fixty years the Latins of Conftantinople difdained the speech and learning of their fubjects; and the manufcripts were the only treafures which the natives might enjoy without rapine or envy. Aristotle was indeed the oracle of the Western universities; but it was a barbarous Aristotle; and, instead of ascending to the fountain-head, his Latin 65 Windmills, first invented in the dry (Biographia Britannica, vol. i. p. 418. Kippis's edition). If Bacon himfelf, or Gerbert, understood Some Greeks, they were prodigies, and owed nothing to the commerce of the Eaft.

votaries

country of Afia Minor, were used in Normandy as early as the year 1105 (Vie privée des François, tom. i. p. 42, 43. Ducange, Gloff. Latin. tom. iv. p. 47+.). 66 See the complaints of Roger Bacon votaries humbly accepted a corrupt and remote version from the C H A P. Jews and Moors of Andalufia. The principle of the crufades was a favage fanaticism; and the most important effects were analogous to the caufe. Each pilgrim was ambitious to return with his facred fpoils, the relics of Greece and Paleftine⁶⁷; and each relic was preceded and followed by a train of miracles and visions. The belief of the Catholics was corrupted by new legends, their practice by new fuperstitions; and the establishment of the inquisition, the mendicant orders of monks and friars, the laft abufe of indulgences, and the final progrefs of idolatry, flowed from the baleful fountain of the holy war. The active fpirit of the Latins preyed on the vitals of their reason and religion; and if the ninth and tenth centuries were the times of darkness, the thirteenth and fourteenth were the age of abfurdity and fable.

In the profession of Christianity, in the cultivation of a fertile land, the northern conquerors of the Roman empire infenfibly mingled with the provincials, and rekindled the embers of the arts of antiquity. Their fettlements about the age of Charlemagne had acquired fome degree of order and ftability, when they were overwhelmed by new fwarms of invaders, the Normans, Saracens⁶⁸, and Hungarians, who replunged the western countries of Europe into their former state of anarchy and barbarism. About the eleventh century, the fecond tempeft had fubfided by the expulsion or converfion of the enemies of Christendom : the tide of civilization, which had fo long ebbed, began to flow with a fleady and accelerated courfe; and a fairer prospect was opened to the hopes and efforts of the rifing generations. Great was the increase, and rapid

VOL. VI.

68 If I rank the Saracens with the Barnitz (Oeuvres de Fontenelle, tom. v. p. 458.), barians, it is only relative to their wars, or a mafter of the hiftory of the middle ages. I rather inroads, in Italy and France, where shall only instance the pedigree of the Car- their fole purpose was to plunder and de-

Ee

the 200

LXI.

⁶⁷ Such was the opinion of the great Leibmelites, and the flight of the house of Loret- flroy. to, which were both derived from Paleftine.

210

C H A P. the progress, during the two hundred years of the crusades; and fome philosophers have applauded the propitious influence of these holy wars, which appear to me to have checked rather than forwarded the maturity of Europe 69. The lives and labours of millions, which were buried in the Eaft, would have been more profitably employed in the improvement of their native country: the accumulated flock of industry and wealth would have overflowed in navigation and trade; and the Latins would have been enriched and enlightened by a pure and friendly correspondence with the climates of the Eaft. In one respect I can indeed perceive the accidental operation of the crufades, not fo much in producing a benefit as in removing an evil. The larger portion of the inhabitants of Europe was chained to the foil, without freedom, or property, or knowledge; and the two orders of ecclefiaftics and nobles, whofe numbers were comparatively fmall, alone deferved the name of citizens and men. This oppreffive fyftem was fupported by the arts of the clergy and the fwords of the barons. The authority of the priefts operated in the darker ages as a falutary antidote : they prevented the total extinction of letters, mitigated the fierceness of the times, fheltered the poor and defencelefs, and preferved or revived the peace and order of civil fociety. But the independence, rapine, and difcord, of the feudal lords were unmixed with any femblance of good; and every hope of industry and improvement was crushed by the iron weight of the martial ariftocracy. Among the caufes that undermined that Gothic edifice, a confpicuous place must be allowed to the crufades. The eftates of the barons were diffipated, and their race was often extinguished, in these costly and perilous expeditions. Their poverty extorted from their pride those charters of freedom which unlocked the fetters of the flave, fecured the farm of

the

⁶⁹ On this interefting fubject, the progress own times; and it is with private, as well as of fociety in Europe, a firong ray of philo- public regard, that I repeat the names of fophic light has broke from Scotland in our Hume, Robertfon, and Adam Smith.

the peafant and the fhop of the artificer, and gradually reflored a C H A P. fubftance and a foul to the most numerous and useful part of the community. The conflagration which deftroyed the tall and barren trees of the foreft gave air and fcope to the vegetation of the fmaller and nutritive plants of the foil.

Digreffion on the Family of Courtenay.

THE purple of three emperors, who have reigned at Conftantinople, will authorife or excufe a digreffion on the origin and fingular fortunes of the houfe of COURTENAY", in the three principal branches, I. Of Edeffa; II. Of France; and, III. Of England, of which the laft only has furvived the revolutions of eight hundred years.

I. Before the introduction of trade, which fcatters riches, and of Origin of knowledge, which difpels prejudice, the prerogative of birth is most ftrongly felt and most humbly acknowledged. In every age, the laws and manners of the Germans have difcriminated the ranks of fociety : the dukes and counts, who fhared the empire of Charlemagne, converted their office to an inheritance; and to his children, each feudal lord bequeathed his honour and his fword. The proudeft families are content to lofe in the darknefs of the middle ages, the tree of their pedigree, which, however deep and lofty, must ultimately rife from a plebeian root; and their hiftorians must defeend ten centuries below the Christian æra, before they can afcertain any lineal fucceffion by the evidence of furnames, of arms, and of authentic first part is extracted from William of Tyre, dustry than criticism.

7º I have applied, but not confined, my- the fecond from Bouchet's French hiftory; felf to A genealogical History of the noble and and the third from various memorials, public, illustrious Family of Courtenay, by Ezra Cleave- provincial, and private, of the Courtenays land, Tutor to Sir William Courtenay, and of Devonshire. The rector of Honiton has Rettor of Honiton; Exon. 1735. in folio. The more gratitude than industry, and more in-records.

Ee 2

the family of Courtenay, A. D. 1020.

211

LXI.

C H A P. records. With the first rays of light", we difcern the nobility and LXI. opulence of Atho, a French knight : his nobility, in the rank and title of a namelefs father; his opulence, in the foundation of the caftle of Courtenay in the diftrict of Gatinois, about fifty-fix miles to the fouth of Paris. From the reign of Robert, the fon of Hugh Capet, the barons of Courtenay are confpicuous among the immediate vaffals of the crown; and Jofcelin, the grandfon of Atho and a noble dame, is enrolled among the heroes of the first crufade. A. domeflic alliance (their mothers were fifters) attached him to the I. The counts ftandard of Baldwin of Bruges, the fecond count of Edeffa : a princely fief, which he was worthy to receive, and able to maintain, 1.101-1152. announces the number of his martial followers : and after the departure of his coufin, Joscelin himself was invested with the county of Edeffa on both fides of the Euphrates. By the æconomy in. peace, his territories were replenished with Latin and Syrian fubjects; his magazines with corn, wine, and oil; his caftles with gold. and filver, with arms and horfes. In a holy warfare of thirty years, he was alternately a conqueror and a captive; but he died like a foldier, in an horfe-litter at the head of his troops; and his laft glance beheld the flight of the Turkish invaders who had prefumed on his age and infirmities. His fon and fucceffor, of the fame name, was less deficient in valour than in vigilance; but he fometimes forgot that dominion is acquired and maintained by the fame arts. He challenged the hoftility of the Turks, without fecuring the friendship of the prince of Antioch; and, amidst the peaceful luxury of Turbessel, in Syria ", Joscelin neglected the defence of the Christian frontier beyond the Euphrates. In his absence, Zenghi,. the first of the Atabeks, befieged and stormed his capital, Edessa, which was feebly defended by a timorous and difloyal crowd of.

Orientals:

of Edeffa, A. D.

⁷¹ The primitive record of the family, is a See his Chronicle, in the Historians of France phrates at Zeugma. (tom. xi. p. 276.).

⁷² Turbessel, or as it is now slyled Telpaffage of the continuator of Aimoin, a monk befher, is fixed by d'Anville four-and-twenty of Fleury, who wrote in the xiith century. miles from the great paffage over the Eu-

Orientals: the Franks were opprefied in a bold attempt for its re- C H A P. covery, and Courtenay ended his days in the prifon of Aleppo, He still left a fair and ample patrimony. But the victorious Turks opprefied on all fides the weaknefs of a widow and orphan; and, for the equivalent of an annual penfion, they refigned to the Greek emperor the charge of defending, and the fhame of lofing, the laft relics of the Latin conqueft. The countefs-dowager of Edeffa retired to Jerufalem with her two children : the daughter, Agnes, became the wife and mother of a king; the fon, Jofcelin the third, accepted the office of fenechal, the first of the kingdom, and held his new eftates in Paleftine by the fervice of fifty knights. His name appears with honour in all the transactions of peace and war: but he finally vanishes in the fall of Jerusalem; and the name of Courtenay, in this branch of Edeffa, was loft by the marriage of his two daughters with a French and a German baron 73.

II. While Joscelin reigned beyond the Euphrates, his elder bro- II. The ther Milo, the fon of Joscelin, the fon of Atho, continued, near the of France. Seine, to poffes the caftle of their fathers, which was at length inherited by Rainaud, or Reginald, the youngeft of his three fons. Examples of genius or virtue must be rare in the annals of the oldeft families; and, in a remote age, their pride will embrace a deed of rapine and violence; fuch, however, as could not be perpetrated without fome fuperiority of courage, or, at leaft, of power. A descendant of Reginald of Courtenay may blush for the public robber, who ftripped and imprisoned feveral merchants, after they had. fatisfied the king's duties, at Sens and Orleans. He will glory in the offence, fince the bold offender could not be compelled to obedience and reftitution till the regent and the count of Champagne prepared to march against him at the head of an army 74. Reginald beftowed:

Courtenays

LXI.

Affifes of Jerufalem (c. 326.) among the feu- found in the Lignages d'Outremer, c. 16. dal tenures of the kingdom, which must ⁷³ His possessions are distinguished in the years 1153 and 1187. His pedigree may be ⁷⁴ The rapine and fatisfaction of Reginald therefore have been collected between the de Courtenay, are preposterously arranged in the.

LXI. ~~~ Their alliance with the royal family, A. D. 1150.

C H A P. bestowed his estates on his eldest daughter, and his daughter on the feventh fon of king Louis the Fat; and their marriage was crowned with a numerous offspring. We might expect that a private fhould have merged in a royal name; and that the defcendants of Peter of France and Elizabeth of Courtenay would have enjoyed the title and honours of princes of the blood. But this legitimate claim was long neglected and finally denied; and the caufes of their difgrace will reprefent the ftory of this fecond branch. I. Of all the families now extant, the most ancient, doubtlefs, and the most illustrious, is the house of France, which has occupied the fame throne above eight hundred years, and defcends, in a clear and lineal feries of males, from the middle of the ninth century 75. In the age of the crufades, it was already revered both in the Eaft and Weft. But from Hugh Capet to the marriage of Peter, no more than five reigns or generations had elapfed; and fo precarious was their title, that the eldeft fons, as a neceffary precaution, were previoufly crowned during the lifetime of their fathers. The peers of France have long maintained their precedency before the younger branches of the royal line; nor had the princes of the blood, in the twelfth century, acguired that hereditary luftre which is now diffused over the most remote candidates for the fucceffion. 2. The barons of Courtenay must have flood high in their own estimation, and in that of the 75 In the beginning of the xith century, after naming the father and grandfather of Hugh Capet, the monk Glaber is obliged to add, cujus genus valde in-ante reperitur obfcurum. Yet we are affured that the great grandfather of Hugh Capet was Robert the Strong, count of Anjou (A. D. 863-873), a noble Frank of Neuftria, Neuftricus generofæ flirpis, who was flain in the defence of his country against the Normans, dum patrice fines tuebatur. Beyond Robert, all the fecond by Childebrand, the brother of Charles Martel. It is an abfurd fable, that the fecond was allied to the first by the marriage of Anibert, a Roman fenator and the anceftor of St. Arnoul, with Blitilde, a daughter of Clotaire I. The Saxon origin of the houfe of France is an ancient but incredible opinion. See a judicious memoir of M. de Foncemagne (Memoires de l'Academie des Inferiptions, tom. xx. p. 548-579.). He had promifed to declare his own opinion in a fecond memoir, which has never appeared.

world,

the Epiflles of the abbot and regent Suger is conjecture or fable. It is a probable con-(cxiv. cxvi.), the best memorials of the age jecture, that the third race defcended from (Duchesne, Scriptores Hift. Franc. tom. iv. p. 530.).

world, fince they could impose on the fon of a king the obligation C H A P. of adopting for himfelf and all his defcendants the name and arms of their daughter and his wife. In the marriage of an heirefs with her inferior or her equal, fuch exchange was often required and allowed : but as they continued to diverge from the regal ftem, the fons of Louis the Fat were infenfibly confounded with their maternal anceftors; and the new Courtenays might deferve to forfeit the honours of their birth, which a motive of interest had tempted them to renounce. 3. The fhame was far more permanent than the reward, and a momentary blaze was followed by a long darknefs. The eldeft fon of these nuptials, Peter of Courtenay, had married, as I have already mentioned, the fifter of the counts of Flanders, the two first emperors of Constantinople : he rashly accepted the invitation of the barons of Romania; his two fons, Robert and Baldwin; fucceffively held and loft the remains of the Latin empire in the Eaft, and the grand-daughter of Baldwin the fecond again mingled her blood with the blood of France and of Valois. To fupport the expences of a troubled and transitory reign, their patrimonial effates were mortgaged or fold; and the laft emperors of Conftantinople depended on the annual charity of Rome and Naples.

While the elder brothers diffipated their wealth in romantic adventures, and the caftle of Courtenay was profaned by a plebeian owner, the younger branches of that adopted name were propagated and multiplied. But their fplendour was clouded by poverty and time: after the decease of Robert, great butler of France, they defeended from princes to barons; the next generations were confounded with the fimple gentry; the defeendants of Hugh Capet could no longer be visible in the rural lords of Tanlay and of Champignelles. The more adventurous embraced without dishonour the profession of a foldier: the least active and opulent might fink, like their coufins of the branch of Dreux, into the condition of peafants. Their royal defeent, in a dark period of four hundred years,

LXI. L.....

C H A P. years, became each day more obfolete and ambiguous: and their pedigree, inftead of being enrolled in the annals of the kingdom, muft be painfully fearched by the minute diligence of heralds and genealogifts. It was not till the end of the fixteenth century on the acceffion of a family, almost as remote as their own, that the princely fpirit of the Courtenays again revived; and the queftion of the nobility, provoked them to affert the royalty, of their blood. They appealed to the justice and compassion of Henry the fourth; obtained a favourable opinion from twenty lawyers of Italy and Germany, and modefly compared themfelves to the defcendants of king David, whofe prerogatives were not impaired by the lapfe of ages or the trade of a carpenter 76. But every ear was deaf, and every circumstance was adverse, to their lawful claims. The Bourbon kings were justified by the neglect of the Valois: the princes of the blood more recent and lofty, difdained the alliance of this humble kindred : the parliament, without denying their proofs, eluded a dangerous precedent by an arbitrary diffinction, and eftablished St. Louis as the first father of the royal line". A repetition of complaints and protefts was repeatedly difregarded : and the hopelefs purfuit was terminated in the prefent century by the death of the laft male of the family 78. Their painful and anxious fituation was alleviated by the pride 77 The fense of the parliaments is thus expressed by Thnanus : Principis nomen nufquam in Gallia tributum, nisi iis qui per mares e regibus nostris originem repetunt: qui nunc tantum a Ludovico nono beatæ memoriæ numerantur: nam Cortinæi et Drocenfes, a Ludovico crafio genus ducentes, hodie inter eos minime recententur. A diftinction of expediency, rather than justice. The fanctity of Louis IX. could not inveft him with any fpecial prerogative, and all the descendants of Hugh Capet niust be included in his original compact with the French nation.

78 The last male of the Courtenays was Charles Roger, who died in the year 1730, without leaving any fons. The last female was pride of confcious virtue : they fternly rejected the temptations of C H A P. fortune and favour; and a dying Courtenay would have facrificed his fon, if the youth could have renounced, for any temporal intereft, the right and title of a legitimate prince of the blood of France⁷⁹.

⁷⁶ Of the various petitions, apologies, &c. published by the princes of Courtenay, I have feen the three following, all in octavo: 1. De Stirpe et Origine Domus de Courtenay: addita funt Responsa celeberrimorum Europæ Jurisconfultorum : Paris, 1607. 2. Reprefentation du Procedé senû a l'instance faicte devant le Roi, par Mcsieurs de Courtenay, pour la confervation de l'Honneur et Dignité de leur Maison, branche de la royalle Maison de France: à Paris, 1613. 3. Representation du subject qui a porté Messieurs de Salles et de Fraville, de la Maifon de Courtenays, à se retirer hors du Royaume, 1614. It was an homicide, for which the Courtenays expected to be pardoned, or tried, as princes of the blood.

III. According to the old register of Ford Abbey, the Courtenays III. The of Devonshire are descended from prince Florus, the second fon of of England. Peter, and the grandfon of Louis the lat^{so}. This fable of the grateful or venal monks was too respectfully entertained by our antiquaries, Cambden⁸⁴ and Dugdale⁸²: but it is fo clearly repugnant to truth and time, that the rational pride of the family now refufes to accept this imaginary founder. Their most faithful historians believe. that after giving his daughter to the king's fon, Reginald of Courtenay abandoned his poffeffions in France, and obtained from the English monarch a fecond wife and a new inheritance. It is certain, at leaft, that Henry the fecond diffinguished in his camps and councils, a Reginald, of the name and arms, and, as it may be fairly prefumed, of the genuine race, of the Courtenays of France. The right of wardship enabled a feudal lord to reward his vaffal with the marriage and eftate of a noble heirefs; and Reginald of Courtenay acquired a fair eftablishment in Devonshire, where his posterity has been feated above fix hundred years⁸³. From a Norman baron, Baldwin was Helene de Courtenay, who married Louis de Beaufremont. Her title of Princesse du Sang Royal de France, was fuppreffed (February 7th, 1737) by an arrît of the parliament of Paris.

79 The fingular anecdote to which I allude, is related in the Recueil des Pieces intereffantes et peu connues (Maestricht, 1786, in 4 vols. 12mo); and the unknown editor quotes his author, who had received it from Helene de Courtenay, marquise de Beaufremont.

^{so} Dugdale, Monafticon Anglicanum, vol.i. p. 786. Yet this fable must have been invented before the reign of Edward III. The profuse devotion of the three first generations to Ford abbey, was followed by oppreffion on one fide and ingratitude on the other: and in the fixth generation, the monks ceafed to register the births, actions, and deaths of their patrons.

VOL. VI.

⁸¹ In his Britannia, in the lift of the earls of Devonshire. Hisexpression, e regio sanguine ortos credunt, betrays however fome doubt or fuspicion.

82 In his Baronage, P. i. p. 634. he refers to his own Monasticon. Should he not have corrected the register of Ford abbey, and annihilated the phantom Florus, by the unquestionable evidence of the French historians?

83 Befides the third and most valuable book Ff of

The earls of Devonshire.

C H A P. Baldwin de Brioniis, who had been invefted by the Conqueror, Hawife, the wife of Reginald, derived the honour of Okehampton, which was held by the fervice of ninety-three knights; and a female might claim the manly offices of hereditary vifcount or fheriff, and of captain of the royal caftle of Exeter. Their fon Robert married the fifter of the earl of Devon; at the end of a century, on the failure of the family of Rivers 84, his great-grandfon, Hugh the fecond, fucceeded to a title which was still confidered as a territorial dignity; and twelve earls of Devonshire, of the name of Courtenay, have flourifhed in a period of two hundred and twenty years. They were ranked among the chief of the barons of the realm; nor was it till after a ftrenuous difpute, that they yielded to the fief of Arundel, the first place in the parliament of England : their alliances were contracted with the nobleft families, the Veres, Defpenfers, St. Johns, Talbots, Bohuns, and even the Plantagenets themfelves; and in a contest with John of Lancaster, a Courtenay, bishop of London, and afterwards archbishop of Canterbury, might be accused of profane confidence in the ftrength and number of his kindred. In peace, the earls of Devon refided in their numerous caftles and manors of the weft: their ample revenue was appropriated to devotion and hospitality; and the epitaph of Edward, furnamed, from his misfortune, the blind, from his virtues, the good, earl, inculcates with much ingenuity a moral fentence, which may however be abufed by thoughtlefs generofity. After a grateful commemoration of the fifty-five years of union and happinefs, which he enjoyed with Mabel his wife, the good earl thus fpeaks from the tomb:

> What we gave, we have; What we fpent, we had; What we left, we loft 85.

Dugdale, the father of our genealogical mous and potent dowager, who long furfcience (Baronage, P. i. p. 634-643.).

Redvers, de Rivers, ended, in Edward the of Cleaveland's History, I have confulted First's time, in Ifabella de Fortibus, a favived her brother and hufband (Dugdale, 84 This great family, de Ripuariis, de Baronage, P. i. p. 254-257.).

But

85 Cleaveland, p. 142. By fome, it is affigned

218

LXL.

 \sim

But their loffes, in this fenfe, were far fuperior to their gifts and ex- C H A P. pences; and their heirs, not lefs than the poor, were the objects of their paternal care. The fums which they paid for livery and feifin, atteft the greatness of their possefions; and feveral estates have remained in their family fince the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. In war, the Courtenays of England fulfilled the duties, and deferved the honours, of chivalry. They were often entrusted to levy and command the militia of Devonshire and Cornwall; they often attended their fupreme lord to the borders of Scotland; and in foreign fervice, for a flipulated price, they fometimes maintained fourfcore men at arms and as many archers. By fea and land they fought under the ftandard of the Edwards and Henries : their names are confpicuous in battles, in tournaments, and in the original lift of the order of the garter; three brothers shared the Spanish victory of the Black Prince; and in the lapfe of fix generations, the English Courtenays had learned to difpife the nation and country from which they derived their origin. In the quarrel of the two roles, the earls of Devon adhered to the houfe of Lancafter, and three brothers fucceffively died, either in the field or on the fcaffold. Their honours and eftates were reftored by Henry the feventh; a daughter of Edward the fourth was not difgraced by the nuptials of a Courtenay; their fon, who was created marquis of Exeter, enjoyed the favour of his coufin Henry the eighth; and in the camp of Cloth of Gold, he broke a lance against the French monarch. But the favour of Henry was the prelude of difgrace; his difgrace was the fignal of death; and of the victims of the jealous tyrant, the marguis of Exeter is one of the most noble and guiltlefs. His fon Edward lived a prifoner in the Tower, and died an exile at Padua; and the fecret love of queen Mary, whom he flighted, perhaps for the princefs Elizabeth, has fhed a romantic colour on the ftory of this beautiful youth. The relics of his patrimony were conveyed into ftrange families by the marriages of his four aunts; and aligned to a Rivers earl of Devon : but the English denotes the xvth, rather than the xiiith, century.

his

C H A P. his perfonal honours, as if they had been legally extinct, were re-LXI. vived by the patents of fucceeding princes. But there ftill furvived a lineal defcendant of Hugh the first earl of Devon, a younger branch of the Courtenays, who have been feated at Powderham caffle above four hundred years from the reign of Edward the third to the prefent hour. Their eftates have been encreafed by the grant and improvement of lands in Ireland, and they have been recently reftored to the honours of the peerage. Yet the Courtenays still retain the plaintive motto, which afferts the innocence, and deplores the fall, of their ancient house⁸⁶. While they figh for past greatness, they are doubtlefs fenfible of prefent bleffings : in the long feries of the Courtenay annals, the most splendid æra is likewife the most unfortunate; nor can an opulent peer of Britain be inclined to envy the emperors of Conftantinople, who wandered over Europe to folicit alms for the fupport of their dignity and the defence of their capital.

> was probably adopted by the Powderham which feem to denote their affinity with God-branch, after the loss of the earldom of De- frey of Bouillon, and the ancient counts of vonshire, &c. The primitive arms of the Boulogne.

86 Ubi lapfus! Quid feci? a motto which Courtenays were, or, three torteaux, gules,

CHAP. LXII.

The Greek Emperors of Nice and Constantinople .- Elevation and Reign of Michael Palæologus.-His falfe Union with the Pope and the Latin Church.-Hoffile Defigns of Charles of Anjou.-Revolt of Sicily.-War of the Catalans in Afia and Greece.-Revolutions and present State of Athens.

HE loss of Conftantinople reftored a momentary vigour to the C H A P. Greeks. From their palaces, the princes and nobles were driven into the field; and the fragments of the falling monarchy were grafped by the hands of the most vigorous or the most skilful candidates. In the long and barren pages of the Byzantine annals', it would not be an eafy tafk to equal the two characters of Theodore Laf- Theodore caris and John Ducas Vataces², who replanted and upheld the Roman ftandard at Nice in Bithynia. The difference of their virtues was happily fuited to the diverfity of their fituation. In his first efforts, the fugitive Lafcaris commanded only three cities and two thoufand foldiers: his reign was the feafon of generous and active defpair: in every military operation he flaked his life and crown; and his enemies, of the Hellespont and the Mæander, were furprifed by his more especially of John Vataces and his fon, their minister, George Acropolita, is the only genuine contemporary: but George Pachymer returned to Conftantinople with the Greeks, at the age of nineteen (Hanckius, de Script. Byzant. c. 33, 34. p. 564-578. Fabric. Bibliot. Græc. tom. vi. p. 448- traits are in a very good style.

* For the reigns of the Nicene emperors, 460.). Yet the hillory of Nicephorus Gregoras, though of the xivth century, is a valuable narrative from the taking of Constantinople by the Latins.

> ² Nicephorus Gregoras (l. ii. c. 1.) diffinguishes between the offers of pun of Lascaris, and the evrates of Vataces. The two por-> > celerity

Refloration of the Greek empire.

Lascaris, A.D. 1204-1222-

John Ducas Vataces, A. D. 1222—1255, October 30.

LXII.

1

C H A P. celerity and fubdued by his boldnefs. A victorious reign of eighteen years expanded the principality of Nice to the magnitude of an empire. The throne of his fucceffor and fon-in-law Vataces was founded on a more folid bafis, a larger fcope, and more plentiful refources; and it was the temper, as well as the intereft, of Vataces to calculate the rifk, to expect the moment, and to enfure the fuccefs, of his ambitious defigns. In the decline of the Latins, I have briefly exposed the progress of the Greeks; the prudent and gradual advances of a conqueror, who, in a reign of thirty-three years, refcued the provinces from national and foreign ufurpers, till he preffed on all fides the Imperial city, a leaflefs and faplefs trunk which must fall at the first stroke of the axe. But his interior and peaceful administration is still more deferving of notice and praise'. The calamities of the times had wafted the numbers and the fubftance of the Greeks: the motives and the means of agriculture were extirpated; and the most fertile lands were left without cultivation or inhabitants. A portion of this vacant property was occupied and improved by the command, and for the benefit, of the emperor: a powerful hand and a vigilant eye fupplied and furpaffed, by a fkilful management, the minute diligence of a private farmer: the royal domain became the garden and granary of Afia; and without impoverishing the people, the fovereign acquired a fund of innocent and productive wealth. According to the nature of the foil, his lands were fown with corn or planted with vines: the pastures were filled with horfes and oxen, with fheep and hogs; and when Vataces prefented to the empress a crown of diamonds and pearls, he informed her with a fmile that this precious ornament arofe from the fale of the eggs of his innumerable poultry. The produce of his domain was applied to the maintenance of his palace and hospitals, the calls of dignity and benevolence : the leffon was ftill more ufe-

ful

³ Pachymer, l. i. c. 23, 24. Nic. Greg. must observe how rately we are indulged 1. ii. c. 6. The reader of the Byzantines with fuch precious details.

ful than the revenue : the plough was reftored to its ancient fecurity C H A P. and honour; and the nobles were taught to feek a fure and independent revenue from their eftates, inftead of adorning their fplendid beggary by the oppreffion of the people, or (what is almost the fame) by the favours of the court. The fuperfluous flock of corn and cattle was eagerly purchafed by the Turks, with whom Vataces preferved a ftrict and fincere alliance; but he difcouraged the importation of foreign manufactures, the coftly filks of the Eaft, and the curious labours of the Italian looms, " The demands of nature " and neceffity," was he accuftomed to fay, " are indifpenfable; " but the influence of fashion may rife and fink at the breath of a " monarch;" and both his precept and example recommended fimplicity of manners and the use of domestic industry. 'The education of youth and the revival of learning were the most ferious objects of his care; and, without deciding the precedency, he pronounced with truth, that a prince and a philosopher* are the twomost eminent characters of human fociety. His first wife was Irene, the daughter of Theodore Lafcaris, a woman more illustrious by her perfonal merit, the milder virtues of her fex, than by the blood of the Angeli and Comneni, that flowed in her veins, and tranfmitted the inheritance of the empire. After her death he was contracted to Anne or Constance, a natural daughter of the emperor Frederic the fecond ; but as the bride had not attained the years of puberty, Vataces placed in his folitary bed an Italian damfel of her train; and his amorous weaknefs beftowed on the concubine the honours, though not the title, of lawful empress. His frailty was cenfured as a flagitious and damnable fin by the monks; and their rude invectives exercifed and difplayed the patience of the royal lover. A philosophic age may excuse a fingle vice, which was redeemed by a crowd of virtues; and in the review of his faults, and

the

LXII.

⁴ Moros yap anarras andreman orograforatos amined and encouraged the fludies of his fu-Basiheus Rai Gihosopos (Greg. Acropol. c. 32.). ture logothete. The emperor, in a familiar conversation, ex-

C H A P. the more intemperate paffions of Lafcaris, the judgment of their LXII. contemporaries was foftened by gratitude to the fecond founders of the empire'. The flaves of the Latins, without law or peace, ap- . plauded the happiness of their brethren who had refumed their national freedom; and Vataces employed the laudable policy of convincing the Greeks of every dominion that it was their intereft to be enrolled in the number of his fubjects.

Theodore Lafcaris II. A. D. 1255, October 30-A. D. 1259, August.

A ftrong fhade of degeneracy is visible between John Vataces and his fon Theodore; between the founder who fuftained the weight, and the heir who enjoyed the fplendour, of the Imperial crown⁶. Yet the character of Theodore was not devoid of energy; he had been educated in the fchool of his father, in the exercise of war and hunting: Conftantinople was yet fpared; but in the three years of a fhort reign, he thrice led his armies into the heart of Bulgaria. His virtues were fullied by a choleric and fufpicious temper : the first of thefe may be afcribed to the ignorance of controul; and the fecond might naturally arife from a dark and imperfect view of the corruption of mankind. On a march in Bulgaria, he confulted on a queftion of policy his principal minifters; and the Greek logothete, George Acropolita, prefumed to offend him by the declaration of a free and honeft opinion. The emperor half-unsheathed his fcymetar; but his more deliberate rage referved Acropolita for a bafer punishment. One of the first officers of the empire was ordered to difmount, ftripped of his robes, and extended on the ground in the prefence of the prince and army. In this pofture he was chaftifed with fo many and fuch heavy blows from the clubs of two guards or executioners, that when Theodore commanded them to ceafe, the great logothete was fcarcely able to arife and crawl away tyrant of his people. By the inflitution of 7

to

⁵ Compare Acropolita (c. 18. 52.), and Darius for the cruel Cambyfes, defpot or the two first books of Nicephorus Gregoras. 6 A Persian faying, that Cyrus was the taxes, Darius had incurred the lefs odious, father, and Darius the master, of his subjects, but more contemptible, name of Kannhos, was applied to Vataces and his fon. But merchant or broker (Herodotus, iii. 89.). Pachymer (l.i. c. 23.) has mistaken the mild to his tent. After a feclufion of fome days, he was recalled by a C H A P. peremptory mandate to his feat in council; and fo dead were the Greeks to the fenfe of honour and fhame, that it is from the narrative of the fufferer himfelf that we acquire the knowledge of his difgrace '. The crucity of the emperor was exafperated by the pangs of ficknefs, the approach of a premature end, and the fufpicion of poifon and magic. The lives and fortunes, the eyes and limbs, of his kinfinen and nobles, were facrificed to each fally of paffion; and before he died, the fon of Vataces might deferve from the people, or at least from the court, the appellation of tyrant. A matron of the family of the Palæologi had provoked his anger by refuling to beftow her beauteous daughter on the vile plebeian who was recommended by his caprice. Without regard to her birth or age, her body, as high as the neck, was inclosed in a fack with feveral cats, who were pricked with pins to irritate their fury against their unfortunate fellow-captive. In his last hours, the emperor testified a wifh to forgive and be forgiven, a just anxiety for the fate of John his fon and fucceffor, who, at the age of eight years, was condemned to the dangers of a long minority. His laft choice entrufted the Minority of office of guardian to the fanctity of the patriarch Arfenius, and to ris, A. D. 1259, the courage of George Muzalon, the great domeflic, who was August. equally diffinguished by the royal favour and the public hatred. Since their connection with the Latins, the names and privileges of hereditary rank had infinuated themfelves into the Greek monarchy; and the noble families " were provoked by the elevation of a worthlefs favourite, to whofe influence they imputed the errors and ea-

7 Acropolita (c. 63.) feems to admire his own firmnels in fuftaining, a beating, and criminates fifteen or twenty Greek families, not returning to council till he was called. vas boos arrow, bis n' perparayerns origa was govon He relates the exploits of Theodore, and his- current Does he mean, by this decora-own fervices, from c. 53. to c. 74. of his tion, a figurative, or a real golden chain? history. See the third book of Nicephorus Perhaps, both. Gregoras.

VOL. VI.

Gg

lamities

⁸ Pachymer (l. i. c. 21.) names and dif-

LXII.

C H A P. lamities of the late reign. In the first council, after the emperor's LXII. death, Muzalon, from a lofty throne, pronounced a laboured apology of his conduct and intentions : his modefty was fubdued by an. unanimous affurance of effeem and fidelity; and his most inveterate. enemies were the loudest to falute him as the guardian and faviour of the Romans. Eight days were fufficient to prepare the execution. of the confpiracy. On the ninth, the obsequies of the deceased monarch were folemnifed in the cathedral of Magnefia⁹, an Afiatic city, where he expired, on the banks of the Hermus and at the foot of mount Sipylus. The holy rites were interrupted by a fedition of the guards: Muzalon, his brothers, and his adherents, were maffacred at the foot of the altar; and the abfent patriarch was affociated with a new colleague, with Michael Palæologus, the most illustrious, in birth and merit, of the Greek nobles ".

Family and character of Michael Palæologus.

Of those who are proud of their ancestors, the far greater part muft be content with local or domeftic renown; and few there are who dare truft the memorials of their family to the public annals of their country. As early as the middle of the eleventh century, the noble race of the Palæologi " ftands high and confpicuous in the Byzantine hiftory : it was the valiant George Palæologus who placed the father of the Comneni on the throne; and his kinfmen or defcendants continue, in each generation, to lead the armies and councils of the flate. The purple was not diffionoured by their alliance ; and had the law of fucceffion, and female fucceffion, been firicity ob-

" The old geographers, with Cellarius and d'Anville, and our travellers, particularly Pocock and Chandler, will teach us to diffinguish the two Magnefias of Asia Minor, of the Mæander and of Sipylus. The latter, our prefent object, is still flourishing for a Turkish city, and lies eight hours, or leagues, to the north-eaft of Smyrna (Tournefort, (1. ii. 8. 1. iii. 2. 4. 1. iv. 1.), with visible Voyage du Levant, tom. iii. lettre xxii. favour to the father of the reigning dyp. 365-370. Chandler's Travels into Afia Minor, p. 267.) ..

10 See Acropolita (c. 75, 76, &c.), who lived too near the times; Pachymer (l. i. c. 13-25.), Gregoras (l. iii. c. 3, 4, 5.).

11 The pedigree of Palæologus is explained by Ducange (Famil. Byzant. p. 230, &c.); the events of his private life are related by Pachymer (1. i. c. 7-12.) and Gregoras nafty.

ferved;

ferved, the wife of Theodore Lafcaris must have yielded to her elder C H A P. fifter, the mother of Michael Palæologus, who afterwards raifed his family to the throne. In his perfon, the fplendour of birth was dignified by the merit of the foldier and flatefman : in his early youth he was promoted to the office of constable or commander of the French mercenaries; the private expence of a day never exceeded three pieces of gold; but his ambition was rapacious and profuse; and his gifts were doubled by the graces of his conversation and manners. The love of the foldiers and people excited the jealoufy of the court; and Michael thrice escaped from the dangers in which he was involved by his own imprudence or that of his friends. I. Under the reign of Juffice and Vataces, a difpute arofe " between two officers, one of whom accufed the other of maintaining the hereditary right of the Palæologi. The caufe was decided, according to the new jurifprudence of the Latins, by fingle combat: the defendant was overthrown; but he perfifted in declaring that himfelf alone was guilty; and that he had uttered thefe rafh or treafonable fpeeches without the approbation or knowledge of his patron. Yet a cloud of fufpicion hung over the innocence of the conftable : he was still purfued by the whispers of malevolence; and a fubtle courtier, the archbishop of Philadelphia, urged him to accept the judgment of God in the fiery proof of the ordeal". Three days before the trial, the patient's arm was enclosed in a bag, and fecured by the royal fignet; and it was incumbent on him to bear a red-hot ball of iron three times from the altar to the rails of the fanctuary, without artifice and without injury. Palzologus eluded the dangerous experiment with fenfe and pleafantry. " I am a foldier," faid he, " and will boldly enter the lifts with my accufers : but a with proper contempt of this barbarous trial, their own fuperflition, or that of their tyrant. affirms, that he had feen in his youth many lous: but the ingenuity of the Greeks might 13 Pachymer (l. i. c. 12.), who fpeaks furnish some remedies of art or fraud against

Gg 2

" layman,

227

LXII.

¹² Acropolita (c. 50.) relates the circum- perfons who had fuftained, without injury, ftances of this curious adventure, which feem the fiery ordeal. As a Greek, he is creduto have efcaped the more recent writers.

C H A P. " layman, a finner like myfelf, is not endowed with the gift of LXII. " miracles. Your piety, most holy prelate, may deferve the inter-" polition of heaven, and from your hands I will receive the fiery " globe, the pledge of my innocence." The archbishop flarted; the emperor finiled; and the abfolution or pardon of Michael was approved by new rewards and new fervices. II. In the fucceeding reign, as he held the government of Nice, he was fecretly informed, that the mind of the abfent prince was poiloned with jealoufy; and that death, or blindness, would be his final reward. Inftead of awaiting the return and fentence of Theodore, the conftable, with fome followers, efcaped from the city and the empire; and though he was plundered by the Turkmans of the defert, he found an hospitable refuge in the court of the sultan. In the ambiguous state of an exile, Michael reconciled the duties of gratitude and loyalty : drawing his fword against the Tartars; admonishing the garrifons of the Roman limit; and promoting by his influence, the reftoration of peace, in which his pardon and recall were honourably included. III. While he guarded the Weft against the defpot of Epirus, Michael was again fufpected and condemned in the palace; and fuch was his loyalty or weaknefs, that he fubmitted to be led in chains above fix hundred miles from Durazzo to Nice. The civility of the meffenger alleviated his difgrace; the emperor's ficknefs difpelled his danger; and the last breath of Theodore, which recommended his infant fon, at once acknowledged the innocence and the power of Palæologus.

His elevation to the throne.

But his innocence had been too unworthily treated, and his power was too firongly felt, to curb an afpiring fubject in the fair field that was opened to his ambition¹⁴. In the council after the death of Theodore, he was the first to pronounce, and the first to violate, the oath

^{} Without comparing Pachymer to Thu- perfpicuity, and tolerable freedom. Acrocydides or Tacitus, I will praife his narrative polita is more cautious, and Gregoras more (1. i. c. 13-32. l. ii. c. 1-9.), which pur- concig. fues the afcent of Palæologus with eloquence, oath of allegiance to Muzalon; and fo dextrous was his conduct, C H A P. that he reaped the benefit, without incurring the guilt, or at leaft the reproach, of the fublequent maffacre. In the choice of a regent, he balanced the interefts and paffions of the candidates; turned their envy and hatred from himfelf against each other, and forced every competitor to own, that after his own claims, those of Palæologus were best entitled to the preference. Under the title of great duke, he accepted or affumed, during a long minority, the active powers of government; the patriarch was a venerable name; and the factious nobles were feduced, or oppreffed, by the afcendant of his genius, The fruits of the economy of Vataces were deposited in a ftrong caftle on the banks of the Hermus, in the cuftody of the faithful Varangians : the conftable retained his command or influence over the foreign troops; he employed the guards to poffes the treasure, and the treasure to corrupt the guards; and whatsoever might be the abufe of the public money, his character was above the fufpicion of private avarice. By himfelf, or by his emiffaries, he ftrove to perfuade every rank of fubjects, that their own prosperity would rife in just proportion to the establishment of his authority. The weight of taxes was fuspended, the perpetual theme of popular complaint; and he prohibited the trials by the ordeal and judicial combat. These Barbaric inflitutions were already abolished or undermined in France's and England 's; and the appeal to the fword offended the fenfe of a civilized ", and the temper of an unwarlike, people.

"s The judicial combat was abolifhed by St. Louis in his own territories; and his example and authority were at length prevalent in France (Efprit des Loix, 1. xxviii. c. 29.).

16 In civil cafes Henry II. gave an option to the defendant: Glanville prefers the proof by evidence, and that by judicial combat is reprobated in the Fleta. Yet the trial by battle has never been abrogated in the English law, and it was ordered by the judges as late as the beginning of the laft century.

17 Yet an ingenious friend has urged to me in mitigation of this practice, 1. That in nations emerging from barbarifm, it moderates the licence of private war and arbitrary revenge. 2. That it is lefs abfurd than the trials by the ordeal, or boiling water, or the crofs, which it has contributed to abolifh. 3. That it ferved at least as a test of perfonal courage ; a quality fo feldom united with a bafe difposition, that the danger of the trial might be fome check to a malicious profecutor, LXII.

C H A P. people. For the future maintenance of their wives and children, the LXII. veterans were grateful: the prieft and the philosopher applauded his ardent zeal for the advancement of religion and learning; and his vague promife of rewarding merit, was applied by every candidate to his own hopes. Confcious of the influence of the clergy, Michael fuccefsfully laboured to fecure the fuffrage of that powerful order. Their expensive journey from Nice to Magnesia, afforded a decent and ample pretence : the leading prelates were tempted by the liberality of his nocturnal vifits; and the incorruptible patriarch was flattered by the homage of his new colleague, who led his mule by the bridle into the town, and removed to a refpectful diftance the importunity of the crowd. Without renouncing his title by royal descent, Palæologus encouraged a free discuffion into the advantages of elective monarchy; and his adherents afked, with the infolence of triumph, what patient would truft his health, or what merchant would abandon his veffel, to the bereditary fkill of a phyfician or a pilot? The youth of the emperor, and the impending dangers of a minority, required the fupport of a mature and experienced guardian; of an affociate, raifed above the envy of his equals, and invefted with the name and prerogatives of royalty. For the intereft of the prince and people, without any felfish views for himfelf or his family, the great duke confented to guard and inftruct the fon of Theodore; but he fighed for the happy moment when he might reftore to his firmer hands the administration of his patrimony, and enjoy the bleffings of a private flation. He was first invefted with the title and prerogatives of defpot, which beftowed the purple ornaments, and the fecond place in the Roman monarchy. It was afterwards agreed that John and Michael fhould be proclaimed as joint-emperors, and raifed on the buckler, but that the pre-eminence should be referved for the birth-right of the former. A > tor, and an ufeful barrier againft injuftice have escaped his unmerited fate, had not his fupported by power. The gallant and undemand of the combat against his accuser fortunate earl of Surrey might probably been over-ruled.

mutual

mutual league of amity was pledged between the royal partners; C H A P. and in cafe of a rupture, the fubjects were bound, by their oath of allegiance, to declare themfelves against the aggreffor, an ambiguous name, the feed of difcord and civil war. Palæologus was content; but on the day of the coronation, and in the cathedral of Nice, his zealous adherents most vehemently urged the just priority of his age and merit. The unfeafonable difpute was eluded by poftponing to a more convenient opportunity the coronation of John Lafcaris; and he walked with a flight diadem in the train of his guardian, Michael Pawho alone received the Imperial crown from the hands of the pa- peror, triarch. It was not without extreme reluctance that Arfenius aban- January 1. doned the caufe of his pupil; but the Varangians brandifhed their battle-axes; a fign of affent was extorted from the trembling youth; and fome voices were heard, that the life of a child fhould no longer impede the fettlement of the nation. A full harveft of honours and employments was diffributed among his friends by the grateful Palæologus. In his own family he created a defpot and two febaftocrators; Alexius Strategopulus was decorated with the title of Cæfar; and that veteran commander foon repaid the obligation, by reftoring Conftantinople to the Greek emperor.

It was in the fecond year of his reign, while he refided in the Recovery of palace and gardens of Nymphæum " near Smyrna, that the first ple, meffenger arrived at the dead of night; and the ftupendous intelligence was imparted to Michael, after he had been gently waked by the tender precaution of his fifter Eulogia. The man was unknown or obfcure; he produced no letters from the victorious Cæfar; nor. could it eafily be credited after the defeat of Vataces and the recent failure of Palæologus himfelf, that the capital had been furprifed by a detachment of eight hundred foldiers. As an hoftage, the doubt-læologus em-A. D. 1260.

¹⁸ The fite of Nymphæum is not clearly gardens of his favourite refidence were in the defined in ancient or modern geography. neighbourhood of Smyrna. Nymphæum But from the laft hours of Vataces (Acropo-lita, c. 52.), it is evident the palace and l. vi. 6.).

Constantino-A. D. 1261. July 25.

LXII.

231

Return of the Greek emperor, A. D. 1261, August 14.1

C H A P. ful author was confined, with the affurance of death or an ample recompense; and the court was left fome hours in the anxiety of hope and fear, till the meffengers of Alexius arrived with the authentic intelligence, and difplayed the trophies of the conquest, the fword and sceptre '9, the bufkins and bonnet 20, of the usurper Baldwin, which he had dropt in his precipitate flight. A general affembly of the bifhops, fenators, and nobles, was immediately convened, and never perhaps was an event received with more heartfelt and univerfal joy. In a fludied oration, the new fovereign of Conftantinople congratulated his own and the public fortune. " There " was a time," faid he, " a far diftant time, when the Roman em-" pire extended to the Adriatic, the Tigris, and the confines of " Æthiopia. After the lofs of the provinces, our capital itfelf, in " these last and calamitous days, has been wrested from our hands " by the Barbarians of the Weft. From the loweft ebb, the tide of " profperity has again returned in our favour; but our profperity " was that of fugitives and exiles; and when we were afked, which " was the country of the Romans, we indicated with a blufh the " climate of the globe and the quarter of the heavens. The divine " Providence has now reftored to our arms the city of Conftantine, " the facred feat of religion and empire; and it will depend on our " valour and conduct to render this important acquifition the pledge " and omen of future victories." So eager was the impatience of the prince and people, that Michael made his triumphal entry into Conftantinople only twenty days after the expulsion of the Latins. The golden gate was thrown open at his approach; the devout conqueror difmounted from his horfe; and a miraculous image of > 19 This fceptre, the emblem of juffice and bonnet was after the French fashion; but power, was a long ftaff, fuch as was ufed by from the ruby at the point or fummit, Duthe heroes in Homer. By the latter Greeks cange (Hift. de C. P. l. v. c. 28, 29.) beit was named Dicanice, and the Imperial lieves that it was the high-crowned hat of sceptre was diffinguished as usual by the red the Greeks. Could Acropolita millake the or purple colour.

drefs of his own court?

20 Acropolita affirms (c. 87.), that this

Mary

232

LXII.

Mary the Conductrefs was borne before him, that the divine Virgin C H A P. in perfon might appear to conduct him to the temple of her fon, the cathedral of St. Sophia. But after the first transport of devotion and pride, he fighed at the dreary profpect of folitude and ruin. The palace was defiled with finoke and dirt, and the grofs intemperance of the Franks; whole ftreets had been confumed by fire, or were decayed by the injuries of time; the facred and profane edifices were ftripped of their ornaments; and, as if they were confcious of their approaching exile, the industry of the Latins had been confined to the work of pillage and deftruction. Trade had expired under the preffure of anarchy and diftrefs; and the numbers of inhabitants had decreafed with the opulence of the city. It was the first care of the Greek monarch to reinstate the nobles in the palaces of their fathers; and the houfes or the ground which they occupied were reftored to the families that could exhibit a legal right of inheritance. But the far greater part was extinct or loft; the vacant property had devolved to the lord; he repeopled Conftantinople by a liberal invitation to the provinces; and the brave volunteers were feated in the capital which had been recovered by their arms. The French barons and the principal families had retired with their emperor; but the patient and humble crowd of Latins was attached to the country, and indifferent to the change of mafters. Inftead of banishing the factories of the Pilans, Venetians, and Genoefe, the prudent conqueror accepted their oaths of allegiance, encouraged their industry, confirmed their privileges, and allowed them to live under the jurifdiction of their proper magistrates. Of these nations, the Pifans and Venetians preferved their refpective quarters in the city; but the fervices and power of the Genoefe deferved at the fame time the gratitude and the jealoufy of the Greeks. Their independent colony was first planted at the fea-port town of Heraclea in Thrace. They were fpeedily recalled and fettled in the exclusive poffettion of the VOL. VI. Hh fuburb

LXII.

Palæologus blinds and

banifhes the young emperor, A. D. 1261,

Dec. 25.

C H A P. fuburb of Galata, an advantageous poft, in which they revived the commerce, and infulted the majefty, of the Byzantine empire 21. -----

> The recovery of Conftantinople was celebrated as the æra of a new empire: the conqueror, alone, and by the right of the fword, renewed his coronation in the church of St. Sophia; and the name and honours of John Lafcaris, his pupil and lawful fovereign, were infenfibly abolished. But his claims still lived in the minds of the people; and the royal youth must speedily attain the years of manhood and ambition. By fear or confcience, Palæologus was reftrained from dipping his hands in innocent and royal blood ; but the anxiety of an usurper and a parent urged him to fecure his throne, by one of those imperfect crimes so familiar to the modern Greeks. The lofs of fight incapacitated the young prince for the active bufinefs of the world: inftead of the brutal violence of tearing out his eyes, the vifual nerve was deftroyed by the intense glare of a red-hot bafon 22, and John Lascaris was removed to a distant castle, where he fpent many years in privacy and oblivion. Such cool and deliberate guilt may feem incompatible with remorfe; but if Michael could truft the mercy of heaven, he was not inacceffible to the reproaches and vengeance of mankind, which he had provoked by cruelty and treafon. His cruelty imposed on a fervile court the duties of applaufe or filence; but the clergy had a right to fpeak in the name of their invisible master; and their holy legions were led by a prelate, whole character was above the temptations of hope or fear. After a fhort abdication of his dignity, Arfenius²³ had confented 21 See Pachymer (1. ii. c. 28-33.), Acropolita (c. 88.), Nicephorus Gregoras (l. iv. 7.), and for the treatment of the fubject Latins, Ducange (1. v. c. 30, 31.).

22 This milder invention for extinguishing the fight, was tried by the philesopher Democritus on himfelf, when he fought to withdraw his mind from the vifible world: a foolifh ftory! The word abacinare, in Latin and Italian, has furnished Ducange (Gloff. Latin.) with an opportunity to review the various modes of blinding: the more violent were fcooping, burning with an iron, or hot vinegar, and binding the head with a ftrong cord till the eyes burft from their fockets. Ingenious tyrants !

23 See the first retreat and refloration of Arfenius, in Pachymer (l. ii. c. 15. l. iii. C. I.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

fented to afcend the ecclefiaftical throne of Conftantinople, and to C H A P. prefide in the reftoration of the church. His pious fimplicity was long deceived by the arts of Palæologus; and his patience and fubmiffion might foothe the ufurper and protect the fafety of the young prince. On the news of his inhuman treatment, the patriarch unfheathed the fpiritual fword; and fuperflition, on this occafion, was enlifted in the caufe of humanity and juffice. In a fynod of bifhops, is excommuwho were fimulated by the example of his zeal, the patriarch pro- the patriarch nounced a fentence of excommunication ; though his prudence still repeated the name of Michael in the public prayers. The eaftern 1262-1268. prelates had not adopted the dangerous maxims of ancient Rome : nor did they prefume to enforce their cenfures, by depofing princes, or abfolying nations from their oaths of allegiance. But the Chriftian, who had been feparated from God and the church, became an object of horror; and, in a turbulent and fanatic capital, that horror might arm the hand of an affaffin, or inflame a fedition of the people. Palæologus felt his danger, confessed his guilt, and deprecated his judge : the act was irretrievable ; the prize was obtained ; and the most rigorous penance, which he folicited, would have raifed the finner to the reputation of a faint. The unrelenting patriarch refused to announce any means of atonement or any hopes of mercy ; and condescended only to pronounce, that, for fo great a crime, great indeed must be the fatisfaction. " Do you require," faid Michael, " that I fhould abdicate the empire ?" And at thefe words, he offered, or feemed to offer, the fword of ftate. Arfenius eagerly grafped this pledge of fovereignty; but when he perceived that the emperor was unwilling to purchase absolution at fo dear a rate, he indignantly escaped to his cell, and left the royal finner kneeling and weeping before the door 24.

c. 1, 2.), and Nicephorus Gregoras (I. iii. (1. xii. c. z.).

24 The crime and excommunication of Mic. 1. l. iv. c. 1.). Posterity justly accused chael are fairly told by Pachymer (l. iii. c. 10. the apitus and galouse of Arfenius, the vir- 14. 19, &c.) and Gregoras (1. iv. c. 4.). tues of an hermit, the vices of a minifler His confession and penance restored their freedom.

Hh 2

The 235

LXII.

nicated by

Arfenius,

A. D.

C H A P. LXII. Schifm of the Arfenites, A. D. 1266-1312.

The danger and fcandal of this excommunication fublifted above three years, till the popular clamour was affuaged by time and repentance; till the brethren of Arfenius condemned his inflexible fpirit, fo repugnant to the unbounded forgiveness of the gospel. The emperor had artfully infinuated, that, if he were ftill rejected at home, he might feek, in the Roman pontiff, a more indulgent judge; but it was far more eafy and effectual to find or to place that judge at the head of the Byzantine church. Arienius was involved in a vague rumour of confpiracy and difaffection; fome irregular fteps in his ordination and government were liable to cenfure; a fynod depofed him from the epifcopal office; and he was transported under a guard of foldiers to a fmall ifland of the Propontis. Before his exile, he fullenly requested that a strict account might be taken of the treasures of the church ; boafted that his fole riches, three pieces of gold, had been earned by transcribing the pfalms; continued to affert the freedom of his mind; and denied, with his laft breath, the pardon which was implored by the royal finner²⁵. After fome delay, Gregory, bifhop of Adrianople, was translated to the Byzantine throne ; but his authority was found infufficient to fupport the abfolution of the emperor; and Joseph, a reverend monk, was subftituted to that important function. This edifying fcene was reprefented in the prefence of the fenate and people; at the end of fix years, the humble penitent was reftored to the communion of the faithful; and humanity will rejoice, that a milder treatment of the captive Lafcaris was flipulated as a proof of his remorfe. But the spirit of Arfenius still survived in a powerful faction of the monks and clergy, who perfevered above forty-eight years in an obftinate ichifm. Their fcruples were treated with tendernefs and refpect by Michael and his fon; and the reconciliation of the Arfenites was the ferious labour of the church and flate. In the confidence of fanati-

 25 Pachymer relates the exile of Arfenius The last testament of the unforgiving pa-(l. iv. c. 1-16.): he was one of the commiffaries who visited him in the defert island. Ecclesiastique, tom. x. p. 95.).

cifm.

cifm, they had proposed to try their cause by a miracle; and when C H A P. the two papers, that contained their own and the adverse cause, were caft into a fiery brafier, they expected that the Catholic verity would be respected by the flames. Alas! the two papers were indifcriminately confumed, and this unforefeen accident produced the union of a day, and renewed the quarrel of an age²⁶. The final treaty difplayed the victory of the Arfenites : the clergy abstained during forty days from all ecclefiaftical functions; a flight penance was imposed on the laity; the body of Arfenius was deposited in the fanctuary; and in the name of the departed faint, the prince and people were releafed from the fins of their fathers²⁷.

The eftablishment of his family was the motive, or at least the Reign of Michael Papretence, of the crime of Palæologus; and he was impatient to con- læologus, firm the fucceffion, by fharing with his eldeft fon the honours of the Dec. 1purple. Andronicus, afterwards furnamed the Elder, was proclaimed Dec. 11. and crowned emperor of the Romans, in the fifteenth year of his age; and, from the first æra of a prolix and inglorious reign, he held that august title nine years as the colleague, and fifty as the fucceffor, of his father. Michael himfelf, had he died in a private February 13ftation, would have been thought more worthy of the empire : and the affaults of his temporal and fpiritual enemies, left him few moments to labour for his own fame or the happiness of his subjects. He wrefted from the Franks feveral of the nobleft iflands of the Archipelago, Lefbos, Chios, and Rhodes : his brother Conftantine was fent to command in Malvafia and Sparta; and the eaftern fide of the Morea, from Argos and Napoli to Cape Tænarus, was repoffeffed by the Greeks. This effution of Christian blood was loudly raculous trial like a philosopher, and treats c. 32.). with fimilar contempt a plot of the Arfenites, that bleeds (l. vii. c. 30.), and the miraculous loves nor efteems these fectaries.

²⁶ Pachymer (1. vii. c. zz.) relates this mi- cures of a deaf and a mute patient (1. xi.

27 The flory of the Arfenites is spread to hide a revelation in the coffin of fome old through the thirteen books of Pachymer. faint (l. vii. c. 13.). He compensates this Their union and triumph are referved for incredulity by an image that weeps, another Nicephorus Gregoras (1. vii 9.), who neither condemned

A. D. 1259, A. D. 1282, Reign of Andronicus the Elder, A. D. 1273, Nov. 8-A. D. 1332, 237

Ι

C H A P. condemned by the patriarch; and the infolent prieft prefumed to interpofe his fears and feruples between the arms of princes. But in the profecution of these western conquests, the countries beyond the Hellefpont were left naked to the Turks; and their depredations verified the prophecy of a dying fenator, that the recovery of Constantinople would be the ruin of Afia. The victories of Michael were atchieved by his lieutenants; his fword rufted in the palace; and in the transactions of the emperor with the popes and the king of Naples, his political arts were ftained with cruelty and fraud 25.

His union with the Latin church, A.D. 1274-1277.

I. The Vatican was the most natural refuge of a Latin emperor, who had been driven from his throne; and pope Urban the fourth appeared to pity the misfortunes, and vindicate the caufe, of the fugitive Baldwin. A crufade, with plenary indulgence, was preached by his command against the schifmatic Greeks; he excommunicated their allies and adherents; folicited Louis the ninth in favour of his kinfman; and demanded a tenth of the ecclefiaftic revenues of France and England for the fervice of the holy war²⁹. The fubtle Greek, who watched the rifing tempeft of the Weft, attempted to fuspend or foothe the hostility of the pope, by fuppliant embaffies and respectful letters; but he infinuated that the establishment of peace must prepare the reconciliation and obedience of the Eastern church. The Roman court could not be deceived by fo grofs an artifice; and Michael was admonifhed, that the repentance of the fon should precede the forgiveness of the father; and that faith (an ambiguous word) was the only bafis of friendship and alliance. After a long and affected delay, the approach of danger, and the importunity of Gregory the tenth, compelled him to enter on a more ferious negociation : he alleged the example of the great Va-first fix (as the ivth and vth of Nicephorus follow Ducange and Coufin, who number the Gregoras) contain the reign of Michael, at xiii books in one feries. the time of whofe death he was forty years of age. Inflead of breaking, like his editor the from the Epifiles of Urban IV.

28 Of the xiii books of Pachymer, the Pere Pouffin, his hiftory into two parts, I 29 Ducange, Hift. de C. P. 1. v. c. 33, &c.

taces,

LXII.

taces; and the Greek clergy, who underftood the intentions of their C H A P. prince, were not alarmed by the first steps of reconciliation and refpect. But when he preffed the conclusion of the treaty, they ftrenuoufly declared, that the Latins, though not in name, were heretics in fact, and that they defpifed those strangers as the vilest and most despicable portion of the human race ³⁰. It was the task of the emperor to perfuade, to corrupt, to intimidate, the most popular ecclefiaftics, to gain the vote of each individual, and alternately to urge the arguments of Christian charity and the public welfare. The texts of the fathers and the arms of the Franks were balanced in the theological and political fcale; and without approving the addition to the Nicene creed, the moft moderate were taught to confess, that the two hostile propositions of proceeding from the Father BY the Son, and of proceeding from the Father AND the Son, might be reduced to a fafe and Catholic fenfe³¹. The fupremacy of the pope was a doctrine more easy to conceive, but more painful to acknowledge ; yet Michael reprefented to his monks and prelates, that they might fubmit to name the Roman bifhop as the first of the patriarchs; and that their distance and discretion would guard the liberties of the Eaftern church from the mifchievous confequences of the right of appeal. He protefted that he would facrifice his life and empire, rather than yield the finalleft point of orthodox faith or national independence ; and this declaration was fealed and ratified by a golden bull. The patriarch Joseph withdrew to a monastery, to refign or refume his throne, according to the event of the treaty: the letters of union and obedience were fubfcribed by the emperor, his fon Andronicus, and thirty-five archbishops and 39 From their mercantile intercourfe with learned Veccus (l. v. c. 12.), who foon after- always relided in Rome and Italy (l. v. c. 17. wards became a convert (c. 15, 16.) and a 21.). patriarch (c. 24.).

4

³¹ In this clafs, we may place Pachymer the Venetians and Genoefe, they branded the himfelf, whofe copious and candid nerrative Latins as Ramnhe, and Baraccon (Pachymer, occupies the vth and vith books of his hiftory. 1. v. c. 10.). " Some are heretics in name; Yet the Greek is filent on the council of " others, like the Latins, in fact," faid the Lyons, and feems to believe that the popes metro-

LXII. Land

C H A P. metropolitans, with their respective fynods; and the episcopal lift was multiplied by many diocefes which were annihilated under the voke of the infidels. An embaffy was composed of fome trufty ministers and prelates; they embarked for Italy, with rich ornaments and rare perfumes, for the altar of St. Peter; and their fecret orders authorifed and recommended a boundlefs compliance. They were received in the general council of Lyons, by pope Gregory the tenth, at the head of five hundred bifhops 32. He embraced with tears his long-loft and repentant children; accepted the oath of the ambaffadors, who abjured the fchifm in the name of the two emperors; adorned the prelates with the ring and mitre; chaunted in Greek and Latin the Nicene creed with the addition of filioque ; and rejoiced in the union of the Eaft and Weft, which had been referved for his reign. To confummate this pious work, the Byzantine deputies were fpeedily followed by the pope's nuncios; and their instruction difcloses the policy of the Vatican, which could not be fatisfied with the vain title of fupremacy. After viewing the temper of the prince and people, they were enjoined to abfolve the fchifmatic clergy, who fhould fubfcribe and fwear their abjuration and obedience; to establish in all the churches the use of the perfect creed; to prepare the entrance of a cardinal legate, with the full powers and dignity of his office; and to inftruct the emperor in the advantages which he might derive from the temporal protection of the Roman pontiff³³.

His perfecution of the Greeks. A.D. 1277-1282.

But they found a country without a friend, a nation in which the names of Rome and Union were pronounced with abhorrence. The patriarch Joseph was indeed removed; his place was filled by Veccus, an ecclefiaftic of learning and moderation; and the emperor been drawn with more or lefs honefty by Wading and Leo Allatius from the archives of the Vatican, is given in an abstract or verfion by Fleury (tom. xviii. p. 252-258.).

33 This curious inftruction, which has

was ³² See the acts of the council of Lyons in the year 1274. Fleury, Hift. Ecclesiastique, tom. xviii. p. 181-199. Dupin, Bibliot. Ecclef. tom. x. p. 135.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

was still urged by the fame motives, to perfevere in the fame pro- C H A P. feffions. But in his private language, Palæologus affected to deplore the pride, and to blame the innovations, of the Latins; and while he debafed his character by this double hypocrify, he justified and punished the opposition of his fubjects. By the joint fuffrage of the new and the ancient Rome, a fentence of excommunication was pronounced against the obstinate schifmatics : the censures of the church were executed by the fword of Michael; on the failure of perfuafion, he tried the arguments of prifon and exile, of whipping and mutilation; those touch-stones, says an historian, of cowards and the brave. Two Greeks still reigned in Ætolia, Epirus, and Theffaly, with the appellation of defpots: they had yielded to the fovereign of Conftantinople, but they rejected the chains of the Roman pontiff, and fupported their refusal by fuccessful arms. Under their protection, the fugitive monks and bifhops affembled in hoftile fynods; and retorted the name of heretic with the galling addition of apoftate : the prince of Trebizond was tempted to affume the forfeit title of emperor; and even the Latins of Negropont, Thebes, Athens, and the Morea, forgot the merits of the convert, to join, with open or clandeftine aid, the enemies of Palæologus. His favourite generals, of his own blood and family, fucceffively deferted, or betrayed, the facrilegious truft. His fifter Eulogia, a niece, and two female coufins, confpired against him; another niece, Mary queen of Bulgaria, negociated his ruin with the fultan of Egypt; and, in the public eye, their treafon was confecrated as the moft fublime virtue³⁴. To the pope's nuncios, who urged the confummation of the work, Palæologus exposed a naked recital of all that he had done and fuffered for their fake. They were affured that the Wading from the MSS. of the Vatican (A.D.

³⁴ This frank and authentic confession of 1278, N°3.). His Annals of the Franciscan Michael's diffrefs, is exhibited in barbarous order, the Fratres Minores, in xvii volumes in Latin by Ogerius, who figns himfelf Proto-folio (Rome, 1741), I have now accidentally notarius Interpretum, and transcribed by seen among the waste paper of a bookfeller.

VOL. VI.

Ιi

guilty

241

LXII.

LXII.

C H A P. guilty fectaries, of both fexes and every rank, had been deprived of their honours, their fortunes, and their liberty; a spreading lift of confifcation and punifhment, which involved many perfons, the dearest to the emperor, or the best deferving of his favour. They were conducted to the prifon, to behold four princes of the royal blood chained in the four corners, and fhaking their fetters in an agony of grief and rage. Two of thefe captives were afterwards released; the one by fubmission, the other by death : but the obstinacy of their two companions was chaftifed by the lofs of their eyes; and the Greeks, the leaft adverfe to the union, deplore that cruel and inaufpicious tragedy 35. Perfecutors must expect the hatred of those whom they oppress; but they commonly find fome consolation in the testimony of their conscience, the applause of their party, and, perhaps, the fuccefs of their undertaking. But the hypocrify of Michael, which was prompted only by political motives, must have forced him to hate himfelf, to defpife his followers, and to efteem and envy the rebel champions by whom he was detefted and defpifed. While his violence was abhorred at Constantinople, at Rome his flownefs was arraigned and his fincerity fufpected; till at length pope Martin the fourth excluded the Greek emperor from the pale of a church, into which he was ftriving to reduce a fchifmatic people. No fooner had the tyrant expired, than the union was diffolved, and abjured by unanimous confent; the churches were purified ; the penitents were reconciled ; and his fon Andronicus, after weeping the fins and errors of his youth, most pioufly denied his father the burial of a prince and a Chriftian 36.

The union diffolved, A. D. 1283.

Charles of Anjou fubdues Naples and Sicily,

II. In the diffrefs of the Latins, the walls and towers of Conftantinople had fallen to decay: they were reftored and fortified by the 35 See the vith book of Pachymer, parti- fpeech of Andronicus the elder (1. xii. c. 2.) cularly the chapters, 1. 11. 16. 18. 24-27. is a curious record, which proves, that if the He is the more credible, as he speaks of this Greeks were the flaves of the emperor, the perfecution with lefs anger than forrow. emperor was not lefs the flave of fuperflition ²⁶ Pachymer, 1. vii. c. 1-11. 17. The and the clergy, policy of Michael, who deposited a plenteous ftore of corn and falt C H A P. provisions, to fustain the fiege which he might hourly expect from the refentment of the Western powers. Of these, the fovereign of A.D. 1206, February 26. the two Sicilies was the most formidable neighbour; but as long as they were poffeffed by Mainfroy, the baftard of Frederic the fecond, his monarchy was the bulwark rather than the annoyance of the Eaftern empire. The ufurper, though a brave and active prince. was fufficiently employed in the defence of his throne : his profeription by fucceffive popes had feparated Mainfroy from the common caufe of the Latins; and the forces that might have befieged Conftantinople, were detained in a crufade against the domestic enemy of Rome. The prize of her avenger, the crown of the two Sicilies, was won and worn by the brother of St. Louis, by Charles count of Anjou and Provence, who led the chivalry of France on this holy expedition 37. The difaffection of his Christian fubjects compelled Mainfroy to enlift a colony of Saracens whom his father had planted in Apulia : and this odious fuccour will explain the defiance of the Catholic hero, who rejected all terms of accommodation. " Bear " this meffage," faid Charles, " to the fultan of Nocera, that God " and the fword are umpire between us; and that he shall either " fend me to paradife, or I will fend him to the pit of hell." The armies met, and though I am ignorant of Mainfroy's doom in the other world, in this he loft his friends, his kingdom, and his life, in the bloody battle of Benevento. Naples and Sicily were immediately peopled with a warlike race of French nobles; and their afpiring leader embraced the future conquest of Africa, Greece, and Paleftine. The most specious reasons might point his first arms against the Byzantine empire; and Palæologus, diffident of his own ftrength, the most full and entertaining, of the conquest lumes of the historians of Italy. In his Annals of Naples by Charles of Anjou, may be found (tom. xi. p. 56-72.), he has abridged these in the Florentine Chronicles of Ricordano Malespina (c. 175-193.) and Giovanni Vil-in the Istoria Civile of Giannone, tom. ii. lani (l. vii.c. 1-10. 25-30.), which are pub- l. xix. tom. iii. l. xx.

policy

37 The beft accounts, the neareft the time, lifted by Muratori in the viiith and xiiith vo-

LXII.

Ii 2

repeatedly

243

Threatens the Greek empire, A. D. 1270, &c.

C H A P. repeatedly appealed from the ambition of Charles to the humanity of St. Louis, who still preferved a just ascendant over the mind of his ferocious brother. For a while the attention of that brother was confined at home by the invalion of Conradin, the laft heir of the Imperial house of Swabia: but the haples boy funk in the unequal conflict; and his execution on a public fcaffold taught the rivals of Charles to tremble for their heads as well as their dominions. A fecond refpite was obtained by the last crufade of St. Louis to the African coaft; and the double motive of intereft and duty urged the king of Naples to affift, with his powers and his prefence, the holy enterprife. The death of St. Louis releafed him from the importunity of a virtuous cenfor; the king of Tunis confessed himfelf the tributary and vaffal of the crown of Sicily; and the boldeft of the French knights were free to enlift under his banner against the Greek empire. A treaty and a marriage united his interest with the house of Courtenay; his daughter Beatrice was promifed to Philip, fon and heir of the emperor Baldwin; a penfion of fix hundred ounces of gold was allowed for his maintenance; and his generous father diftributed among his allies the kingdoms and provinces of the Eaft, referving only Conftantinople, and one day's journey round the city, for the Imperial domain³⁸. In this perilous moment, Palæologus was the most eager to fubscribe the creed, and implore the protection, of the Roman pontiff, who affumed, with propriety and weight, the character of an angel of peace, the common father of the Chriftians. By his voice, the fword of Charles was chained in the fcabbard; and the Greek ambaffadors beheld him, in the pope's antichamber, biting his ivory fceptre in a transport of fury, and deeply refenting the refufal to enfranchife and confectate his arms. He appears to have respected the difinterested mediation of Gregory the tenth; but Charles was infenfibly difgufted by the pride and partiality of Nicholas the third; and his attachment to his kindred, the Urfini > 38 Ducange, Hift. de C. P. 1. v. c. 49- c. 29. 1. v. c. 7-10. 25. 1. vi. c. 30. 32, 33. 56. 1. vi. c. 1-13. See Pachymer, 1. iv. and Nicephorus Gregoras, 1. iv. 5. 1. v. 1.6. family, 7 family, alienated the most strenuous champion from the fervice of C H A P. the church. The hoftile league against the Greeks, of Philip the Latin emperor, the king of the two Sicilies, and the republic of Venice, was ripened into execution; and the election of Martin the fourth, a French pope, gave a fanction to the caufe. Of the allies, Philip fupplied his name, Martin, a bull of excommunication, the Venetians, a fquadron of forty gallies; and the formidable powers of Charles confifted of forty counts, ten thousand men at arms, a numerous body of infantry, and a fleet of more than three hundred thips and transports. A distant day was appointed for affembling this mighty force in the harbour of Brindiss : and a previous attempt was rifked with a detachment of three hundred knights, who invaded Albania and belieged the fortrefs of Belgrade. Their defeat might amufe with a triumph the vanity of Conftantinople; but the more fagacious Michael, defpairing of his arms, depended on the effects of a confpiracy; on the fecret workings of a rat, who gnawed the bow-ftring 39 of the Sicilian tyrant.

244

LXH.

Among the proferibed adherents of the house of Swabia, John of Palzologus Procida forfeited a fmall island of that name in the bay of Naples. His birth was noble, but his education was learned; and in the poverty of exile, he was relieved by the practice of phyfic, which he had fludied in the fchool of Salerno. Fortune had left him nothing to lofe, except life; and to defpife life is the first qualification of a rebel. Procida was endowed with the art of negociation, to enforce his reafons, and difguife his motives; and in his various transactions with nations and men, he could perfuade each party that he laboured folely for their intereft. The new kingdoms of Charles were afflicted by every fpecies of fifcal and military oppreffion "; and the lives and fortunes of his Italian fubjects were facrificed 39 The reader of Herodotus will recollect how miraceloufly the Affyrian hoft of Sennacherib was difarmed and destroyed (l. ii. p. 832.), a zealous Guelph, the fubjects of c. 141.).

4º According to Sabas Malafpina (Hift. Sicula, 1. iii. c. 16. in Muratori, tom. viii. Charles, who had reviled Mainfroy as a wolf, began infligates the revolt of Sicily, A. D. 1280

245

LXII.

LXII. ------

C H A P. ficed to the greatness of their mafter and the licentiousness of his followers. The hatred of Naples was repressed by his prefence ; but the loofer government of his vicegerents excited the contempt, as well as the averfion, of the Sicilians : the ifland was roufed to a fenfe of freedom by the eloquence of Procida; and he difplayed to every baron his private interest in the common cause. In the confidence of foreign aid, he fucceffively vifited the courts of the Greek emperor, and of Peter king of Arragon 41, who poffeffed the maritime countries of Valencia and Catalonia. To the ambitious Peter a crown was prefented, which he might justly claim by his marriage with the fifter of Mainfroy, and by the dying voice of Conradin, who from the fcaffold had caft a ring to his heir and avenger. Palæologus was eafily perfuaded to divert his enemy from a foreign war by a rebellion at home; and a Greek fubfidy of twenty-five thousand ounces of gold was most profitably applied to arm a Catalan fleet, which failed under an holy banner to the fpecious attack of the Saracens of Africa. In the difguife of a monk or beggar, the indefatigable miffionary of revolt flew from Conftantinople to Rome, and from Sicily to Saragoffa: the treaty was fealed with the fignet of pope Nicholas himfelf, the enemy of Charles; and his deed of gift transferred the fiefs of St. Peter from the house of Anjou to that of Arragon. So widely diffused and fo freely circulated, the fecret was preferved above two years with impenetrable difcretion; and each of the confpirators imbibed the maxim of Peter, who declared that he would cut off his left-hand if it were confcious of the intentions of his right. The mine was prepared with deep and dangerous artifice ; but it may be questioned, whether the inftant explosion of Palermo were the effect of accident or defign.

41 See the character and counfels of Peter fies their difcontent by the oppressions of the king of Arragon, in Mariana (Hist. Hispan. French government (1. vi. c. 2. 7.). See the I. xiv. c. 6. tom. ii. p. 133.). The reader Sicilian manifesto in Nicholas Specialis (1. i. forgives the Jefuit's defects, in favour, always of his flyle, and often of his fenfe.

4

On

began to regret him as a lamb: and he justic. 11. in Muratori, tom. x. p. 930.).

On the vigil of Easter, a procession of the difarmed citizens visited C H A P. a church without the walls; and a noble damfel was rudely infulted by a French foldier . The ravisher was inftantly punished with Verpers, death; and if the people was at first fcattered by a military force, A.D. 1282, March 30. their numbers and fury prevailed : the confpirators feized the opportunity; the flame spread over the island; and eight thousand French were exterminated in a promiscuous massacre, which has obtained the name of the SICILIAN VESPERS 43. From every city the banners of freedom and the church were difplayed : the revolt was infpired by the prefence or the foul of Procida; and Peter of Arragon, who failed from the African coaft to Palermo, was faluted as the king and faviour of the ifle. By the rebellion of a people on whom he had fo long trampled with impunity, Charles was aftonished and confounded; and in the first agony of grief and devotion, he was heard to exclaim, " O God! if thou has decreed to " humble me, grant me at leaft a gentle and gradual defcent from " the pinnacle of greatness !" His fleet and army, which already filled the fea-ports of Italy, were haftily recalled from the fervice of the Grecian war; and the fituation of Meffina exposed that town to the first storm of his revenge. Feeble in themselves, and yet hopelefs of foreign fuccour, the citizens would have repented, and fubmitted on the affurance of full pardon and their ancient privileges. But the pride of the monarch was already rekindled; and the most fervent intreaties of the legate could extort no more than a promife, that he would forgive the remainder, after a cholen lift of eight hundred rebels had been yielded to his difcretion. The defpair of the Meffinese renewed their courage : Peter of Arragon approached 42 After enumerating the fufferings of his country, Nicholas Specialis adds, in the true spirit of Italian jealousy, Que omnia et graviora quidem, ut arbitror, patienti animo Siculi tolerassent, nifi (quod primum cunctis dominantibus cavendum eft), alienas fœminas invaffiffent (l. i. c. z. p. 924.).

43 The French were long taught to remember this bloody leffon: " If I am pro-" voked (faid Henry the fourth), I will " breakfaft at Milan, and dine at Naples." " Your majefty (replied the Spanish ambas-" fador) may perhaps arrive in Sicily for ". vefpers,"

LXII. The Sicilian

to

C H A P. to their relief "; and his rival was driven back by the failure of LXII. provision and the terrors of the equinox to the Calabrian shore. At the fame moment, the Catalan admiral, the famous Roger de Loria, fwept the channel with an invincible fquadron: the French fleet, more numerous in transports than in gallies, was either burnt October 2. or deftroyed; and the fame blow affured the independence of Sicily and the fafety of the Greek empire. A few days before his death, the emperor Michael rejoiced in the fall of an enemy whom he hated and effeemed; and perhaps he might be content with the popular judgment, that had they not been matched with each other, · Conftantinople and Italy muft fpeedily have obeyed the fame mafter 45. From this difastrous moment, the life of Charles was a feries of miffortunes; his capital was infulted, his fon was made prifoner, and he funk into the grave without recovering the ille of Sicily, which, after a war of twenty years, was finally fevered from the throne of Naples, and transferred, as an independent kingdom, to a younger branch of the houfe of Arragon⁴⁶.

The fervice and war of the Catalans in the Greek empire, A. D. 1303-1307.

I shall not, I truft, be accused of superstition : but I must remark, that, even in this world, the natural order of events will fometimes afford the flrong appearances of moral retribution. The first Palæologus had faved his empire by involving the kingdoms of the West in rebellion and blood; and from these feeds of difcord, uprofe a generation of iron men, who affaulted and endangered the empire of his fon. In modern times, our debts and taxes are the fecret poifon, which ftill corrodes the bofom of peace;

44 This revolt, with the fubfequent victory, are related by two national writers, Bartholemy à Neocastro (in Muratori, tom xiii.) and Nicholas Specialis (in Muratori, tom.x.), the one a contemporary, the other of the next century. The patriot Specialis difclaims the name of rebellion, and all previous correspondence with Peter of Ar- volume of the Annali d'Italia of Muratori, ragon (nullo communicato confilio), who happened to be with a fleet and army on Civile of Giannone.

the African coaft (1. i. c. 4. g.).

45 Nicephorus Gregoras (1. v. c. 6.) admires the wifdom of Providence in this equal balance of states and princes. For the honour of Palæologus, I had rather this balance had been obferved by an Italian writer.

46 See the Chronicle of Villani, the xith and the xxth and xxist books of the Iftoria

but

Defeat of Charles,

but in the weak and diforderly government of the middle ages, it C H A P. was agitated by the prefent evil of the difbanded armies. Too idle to work, too proud to beg, the mercenaries were accustomed to a life of rapine : they could rob with more dignity and effect under a banner and a chief; and the fovereign, to whom their fervice was ufelefs and their prefence importunate, endeavoured to difcharge the torrent on fome neighbouring countries. After the peace of Sicily, many thousands of Genoefe, Catalans 47, &c. who had fought, by fea and land, under the ftandard of Anjou or Arragon, were blended into one nation by the refemblance of their manners and interest. They heard that the Greek provinces of Afia were invaded by the Turks: they refolved to fhare the harveft of pay and plunder; and Frederic king of Sicily most liberally contributed the means of their departure. In a warfare of twenty years, a fhip, or a camp, was become their country; arms were their fole profession and property; valour was the only virtue which they knew ; their women had imbibed the fearless temper of their lovers and husbands : it was reported, that, with a stroke of their broad-fword, the Catalans could cleave a horfeman and an horfe; and the report itfelf was a powerful weapon. Roger de Flor was the most popular of their chiefs; and his perfonal merit overshadowed the dignity of his prouder rivals of Arragon. The offspring of a marriage between a German gentleman of the court of Frederic the fecond and a damfel of Brindifi, Roger was fucceffively a templar, an apoftate, a pirate, and at length the richeft and most powerful admiral of the Mediterranean. He failed from Meffina to Conftantinople, with eighteen gallies, four great fhips, and eight thousand adventurers; and his previous treaty was faithfully accomplished by Andronicus the elder, who accepted with joy and terror this formidable fuccour. A palace was allotted

VOL. VI.

Kk

for 249

LXII.

⁴⁷ In this motley multitude, the Catalans from the Goths, and Pachymer (1. xi. c. zz.) and Spaniards, the braveft of the foldiery, from the Arabs; and in fpite of national and were flyled, by themfelves and the Greeks, religious pride, I am afraid the latter is in the Amogavares. Moncada derives their origin right.

250

C H A P. for his reception, and a niece of the emperor was given in marriage to the valiant stranger, who was immediately created great duke or admiral of Romania. After a decent repose, he transported his troops over the Propontis, and boldly led them against the Turks: in two bloody battles thirty thousand of the Moslems were flain : he raifed the fiege of Philadelphia, and deferved the name of the deliverer of Afia. But after a fhort feafon of profperity, the cloud of flavery and ruin again burft on that unhappy province.. The inhabitants efcaped (fays a Greek hiftorian) from the fmoke into. the flames; and the hoftility of the Turks was lefs pernicious than. the friendship of the Catalans. The lives and fortunes which they had refcued, they confidered as their own: the willing or reluctant maid was faved from the race of circumcifion for the embraces of a Chriftian foldier : the exaction of fines and fupplies was enforced by licentious rapine and arbitrary executions; and, on the refiftance of Magnefia, the great duke befieged a city of the Roman empire 48. These diforders he excused by the wrongs and paffions of a victorious army; nor would his own authority or perfon have been fafe,. had he dared to punish his faithful followers, who were defrauded of the just and covenanted price of their fervices. The threats and: complaints of Andronicus disclosed the nakedness of the empire.-His golden bull had invited no more than five hundred horfe and. a thousand foot foldiers; yet the crowds of volunteers, who migrated to the East, had been enlisted and fed by his spontaneous bounty. While his braveft allies were content with three byzants, or piecesof gold, for their monthly pay, an ounce, or even two ounces, of gold were affigned to the Catalans, whofe annual penfion would thus amount to near an hundred pounds sterling : one of their chiefs had modefly rated at three hundred thousand crowns the value of. his future merits; and above a million had been iffued from the > 48 Some idea may be formed of the popu- ceding reign, was rebuilt by the emperor, lation of these cities, from the 36,000 in- and ruined by the Turks (Pachymer, 1. vihabitants of Tralles, which, in the pre- c. 20, 21.), > > treafury

treasury for the maintenance of these costly mercenaries. A cruel C H A P. tax had been impofed on the corn of the hufbandman : one third was retrenched from the falaries of the public officers; and the ftandard of the coin was fo fhamefully debafed, that of the fourand-twenty parts only five were of pure gold 49. At the fummons of the emperor, Roger evacuated a province which no longer fupplied the materials of rapine; but he refused to disperse his troops; and while his ftyle was refpectful, his conduct was independent and hoftile. He protefted, that if the emperor should march against him, he would advance forty paces to kifs the ground before him, but in rifing from this proftrate attitude Roger had a life and fword at the fervice of his friends. The great duke of Romania condescended to accept the title and ornaments of Cæfar; but he rejected the new propofal of the government of Afia with a fubfidy of corn and money, on condition that he should reduce his troops to the harmlefs number of three thousand men. Affaffination is the laft refource of cowards. The Cæfar was tempted to vifit the royal refidence of Adrianople : in the apartment, and before the eyes, of the emprefs, he was flabbed by the Alani guards ; and, though the deed was imputed to their private revenge, his countrymen, who dwelt at Conftantinople in the fecurity of peace, were involved in the fame profeription by the prince or people. The lofs of their leader intimidated the crowd of adventurers, who hoifted the fails of flight. and were foon fcattered round the coafts of the Mediterranean. But a veteran band of fifteen hundred Catalans or French stood firm in the ftrong fortrefs of Gallipoli on the Hellespont, displayed the 49 I have collected these pecuniary circum- parts, or carats, of gold, and fifteen of cop-

banners

LXII.

fances from Pachymer (1. xi. c. 21. l. xii. per alloy. After his death, the flandard c. 4, 5. 8. 14. 19.), who describes the pro- role to ten cartas, till in the public diffrefs greflive degradation of the gold coin. Even it was reduced to the moiety. The prince in the prosperous times of John Ducas Va- was relieved for a moment, while credit and taces, the byzants were composed in equal commerce were for ever blaffed. In France, proportions of the pure and the baser metal. the gold coin is of twenty-two carats (one-The poverty of Michael Palæologus com-twelfth alloy), and the ftandard of England pelled him to firike a new coin, with nine and Holland is ftill higher.

LXII.

C H A P. banners of Arragon, and offered to revenge and juftify their chief by an equal combat of ten or an hundred warriors. Inftead of accepting this bold defiance, the emperor Michael, the fon and colleague of Andronicus, refolved to opprefs them with the weight of multitudes : every nerve was ftrained to form an army of thirteen thoufand horfe and thirty thousand foot; and the Propontis was covered with the fhips of the Greeks and Genoefe. In two battles by fea and land, thefe mighty forces were encountered and overthrown by the defpair and difcipline of the Catalans; the young emperor fled to the palace; and an infufficient guard of light-horfe was left for the protection of the open country. Victory renewed the hopes and numbers of the adventurers: every nation was blended under the name and flandard of the great company; and three thousand Turkish profelytes deferted from the Imperial fervice to join this military affociation. In the poffeffion of Gallipoli, the Catalans intercepted the trade of Conftantinople and the Black Sea, while they fpread their devastations on either fide of the Hellespont over the confines of Europe and Afia. To prevent their approach, the greateft part of the Byzantine territory was laid wafte by the Greeks themfelves: the peafants and their cattle retired into the city; and myriads of theep and oxen, for which neither place nor food could be procured, were unprofitably flaughtered on the fame day. Four times the emperor Andronicus fued for peace, and four times he was inflexibly repulfed, till the want of provisions, and the difcord of the chiefs, compelled the Catalans to evacuate the banks of the Hellespont and the neighbourhood of the capital. After their feparation from the Turks, the remains of the great company purfued their march through Macedonia and Theffaly, to feek a new establishment in the heart of Greece 5°.

After

50 The Catalan war is most copiously re- Nicephorus Gregoras (1. vii. 3-6.) is more lated by Pachymer, in the xitth, xitth, and xiitth concife and complete. Ducange, who adopts books, till he breaks off in the year 1308. thefe adventurers as French, has hunted their footfleps

9

After fome ages of oblivion, Greece was awakened to new mif- C H A P. fortunes by the arms of the Latins. In the two hundred and fifty years between the first and the last conquest of Constantinople, that of Athens, venerable land was difputed by a multitude of petty tyrants; without the comforts of freedom and genius, her ancient cities were again plunged in foreign and inteftine war; and, if fervitude be preferable to anarchy, they might repole with joy under the Turkish yoke. I shall not purfue the obscure and various dynasties, that rose and fell on the continent or in the ifles; but our filence on the fate of ATHENS ", would argue a ftrange ingratitude to the first and pureft fchool of liberal fcience and amufement. In the partition of the empire, the principality of Athens and Thebes was affigned to Otho de la Roche, a noble warrior of Burgundy⁵², with the title of great duke", which the Latins underftood in their own fenfe, and the Greeks more foolifhly derived from the age of Conftantine 54. Otho followed the ftandard of the marquis of Montferrat ; the ample ftate which he acquired by a miracle of conduct or fortune 35, was peaceably inherited by his fon and two grandfons, till the family, though footsteps with his usual diligence (Hist. de C. P. 1. vi. c. 22-46.). He quotes an Arragonele history, which I have read with pleafure, and which the Spaniards extol as a model of ityle and composition (Expedicion de los Catalanes y Arragonefes contra Turcos y Griegos; Barcelona, 1623, in quarto; Madrid, 1777, in octavo). Don Francisco de Moncada, Conde de Ofona, may imitate Cæfar or Salluft; he may transcribe the Greek or Italian contemporaries: but he never quotes his authorities, and I cannot difcern any national. records of the exploits of his countrymen.

51 See the laborious hiftory of Ducange, whofe accurate table of the French dynasties, recapitulates the thirty-five paffages in which he mentions the dukes of Athens.

Arit passage, Ducange observes all that can bric. Bibliot. Græc. tom. vi. p. 405.). be known of his perfon and family.

s3 From thefe Latin princes of the xivth century, Boccace, Chaucer, and Shakespeare, have borrowed their Thefeus duke of Athens. An ignorant age transfers its own language and manners to the most distant times.

54 The fame Constantine gave to Sicily a king, to Ruffia the magnus dapifer of the empire, to Thebes the primicerius : and these abfurd fables are properly lafhed by Ducance (ad Nicephor. Greg. 1. vii. c. 5.). By the Latins, the Lord of Thebes was ftyled by corruption the Megas Kurios, or Grand Sire!

55 Quodam miraculo, fays Alberic. He was probably received by Michael Choniates, the archbishop who had defended Athens against the tyrant Leo Sgurus (Nicetas in Baldwino). Michael was the brother of the historian ⁵² He is twice mentioned by Villehardouin Nicetas; and his encomium of Athens is fill with honour (N° 151. 235.); and under the extant in MS. in the Bodleian library (Fa-not.

LXII. Revolutions A. D. 1204-1456 ..

C H A P. not the nation, was changed, by the marriage of an heirefs, into the elder branch of the houfe of Brienne. The fon of that marriage, Walter de Brienne, fucceeded to the dutchy of Athens; and, with the aid of fome Catalan mercenaries, whom he invefted with fiefs, reduced above thirty caftles of the vafial or neighbouring lords. But when he was informed of the approach and ambition of the great company, he collected a force of feven hundred knights, fix thoufand four hundred horfe, and eight thousand foot, and boldly met them on the banks of the river Cephifus in Bœotia. The Catalans amounted to no more than three thousand five hundred horse, and four thousand foot: but the deficiency of numbers was compensated by ftratagem and order. They formed round their camp an artificial inundation: the duke and his knights advanced without fear or precaution on the verdant meadow : their horfes plunged into the bog; and he was cut in pieces, with the greatest part of the French cavalry. His family and nation were expelled; and his fon Walter de Brienne, the titular duke of Athens, the tyrant of Florence, and the conftable of France, loft his life in the field of Poitiers. Attica and Bœotia were the rewards of the victorious Catalans: they married the widows and daughters of the flain; and during fourteen years, the great company was the terror of the Grecian flates. Their factions drove them to acknowledge the fovereignty of the houfe of Arragon; and during the remainder of the fourteenth century, Athens, as a government or an appanage, was fucceffively beflowed by the kings of Sicily. After the French and Catalans, the third dynafty was that of the Accaioli, a family, plebeian at Florence, potent at Naples, and fovereign in Greece. Athens, which they embellished with new buildings, became the capital of a state, that .extended over Thebes, Argos, Corinth, Delphi, and a part of Theffaly; and their reign was finally determined by Mahomet the fecond, who ftrangled the laft duke, and educated his fons in the difcipling and religion of the feraglio.

X

Athens,

254

Athens 36, though no more than the shadow of her former felf, C H A P. fill contains about eight or ten thousand inhabitants: of these, three-Prefent state fourths are Greeks in religion and language; and the Turks, who of Athens.. compose the remainder, have relaxed, in their intercourse with the citizens, fomewhat of the pride and gravity of their national character. The olive-tree, the gift of Minerva, flourishes in Attica; nor has the honey of mount Hymettus loft any part of its exquifite flavour 37: but the languid trade is monopolifed by ftrangers; and the agriculture of a barren land is abandoned to the vagrant Wala-The Athenians are ftill diffinguished by the fubilety and chians. acuteness of their understandings : but these qualities, unless ennobled. by freedom and enlightened by fludy, will degenerate into a low and felfifh cunning: and it is a proverbial faying of the country, " From-" the Jews of Theffalonica, the Turks of Negropont, and the Greeks-" of Athens, good Lord deliver us !" This artful people has eluded. the tyranny of the Turkish bashaws, by an expedient which alleviates their fervitude and aggravates their fhame. About the middle of the last century, the Athenians chose for their protector the Kislar. Aga, or chief black eunuch of the feraglio. This Æthiopian flave, who poffeffes the fultan's ear, condefcends to accept the tribute of thirty thousand crowns: his lieutenant, the Waywode, whom he annually confirms, may referve for his own about five or fix thoufand more; and fuch is the policy of the citizens, that they feldom. fail to remove and punish an oppreffive governor. Their private differences are decided by the archbishop, one of the richest prelatesof the Greek church, fince he possefiles a revenue of one thousand produced much difference in the tranquil scene. 57 The ancients, or at least the Athenians, believed that all the bees in the world hadbeen propagated from mount Hymettus. They taught, that health might be preferved,. and life prolonged, by the external ufe of oil, . and the internal use of honey (Geoponica,. 1676, the laft 1765; and ninety years had not 1. xv. c. 7. p. 1089-1094. edit. Niclas).

pounds,

LXII.

⁵⁶ The modern account of Athens, and the Athenians, is extracted from Spon (Voyage en Grece, tom. ii. p. 79-199.) and Wheeler (Travels into Greece, p. 337-414.), Stuart (Antiquities of Athens, paffim) and Chandler (Travels into Greece, p. 23-172.). The first of these travellers visited Greece in the year

LXII. ~

C H A P. pounds fterling; and by a tribunal of the eight geronti or elders, chofen in the eight quarters of the city: the noble families cannot trace their pedigree above three hundred years; but their principal members are diffinguished by a grave demeanour, a fur-cap, and the lofty appellation of archon. By fome, who delight in the contraft, the modern language of Athens is reprefented as the most corrupt and barbarous of the feventy dialects of the vulgar Greek^{s8}: this picture is too darkly coloured ; but it would not be eafy, in the country of Plato and Demosthenes, to find a reader, or a copy, of their works. The Athenians walk with fupine indifference among the glorious ruins of antiquity; and fuch is the debafement of their character, that they are incapable of admiring the genius of their predeceffors⁵⁹.

> who quotes for his author Theodofius Zygono incompetent judges, entertain a more fa- formed our own barbarism of Setines.

⁵⁸ Ducange, Gloffar. Græc. Præfat. p. 8. vourable opinion of the Attic dialect.

59 Yet we must not accuse them of cormalas, a modern grammarian. Yet Spon rupting the name of Athens, which they still (tom. ii. p. 194.) and Wheeler (p. 355.), call Athini. From the es The Album, we have

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

CHAP. LXIII.

Civil Wars, and Ruin of the Greek Empire.-Reigns of Andronicus, the Elder and Younger, and John Palaologus.-Regency, Revolt, Reign, and Abdication of John Cantacuzene.—Establishment of a Genoese Colony at Pera or Galata .- Their Wars with the Empire and City of Constantinople.

HE long reign of Andronicus' the elder is chiefly memorable, by the difputes of the Greek church, the invafion of the Catalans, and the rife of the Ottoman power. He is celebrated as the most learned and virtuous prince of the age; but fuch virtue, and fuch learning, contributed neither to the perfection of the individual, nor to the happiness of fociety. A flave of the most abject fuperflition, he was furrounded on all fides by visible and invisible enemies; nor were the flames of hell lefs dreadful to his fancy, than those of a Catalan or Turkish war. Under the reign of the Palæologi, the choice of the patriarch was the most important business of the ftate; the heads of the Greek church were ambitious and fanatic monks; and their vices or virtues, their learning or ignorance, were equally mischievous or contemptible. By his intemperate difcipline, the patriarch Athanafius² excited the hatred of the

* Andronicus himfelf will justify our free- fee Pachymer (l. ix. c. 24.), who relates the dom in the invective (Nicephorus Gregoras, general history of Athanafius (l. viii. c. 13-1. i. c. 1.), which he pronounced against 16. 20-24. l. x. c. 27-29. 31-36. l. xi. historic falschood. It is true, that his cen- c. 1-3. 5, 6. 1. xiii. c. 8. 10. 23. 35.), fure is more pointedly urged against calumny and is followed by Nicephorus Gregoras than against adulation.

² For the anathema in the pigeon's neft, the fecond retreat of this fecond Chryfoltom.

VOL. VI.

L 1

(1. vi. 5. 7. 1. vii. c. 1. 9.), who includes clergy

CHAP. LXIII. Superstition of Andronicus and the times, A. D. 1282-1320.

257

C H A P. clergy and people: he was heard to declare, that the finner fhould fwallow the laft dregs of the cup of penance; and the foolifh tale was propagated, of his punishing a facrilegious afs that had tafted the lettuce of a convent garden. Driven from the throne by the univerfal clamour, Athanafius composed before his retreat two papers of a very opposite cast. His public testament was in the tone of charity and refignation; the private codicil breathed the direft anathemas against the authors of his difgrace, whom he excluded for ever from the communion of the holy trinity, the angels, and the faints. This last paper he inclosed in an earthen pot, which was placed, by his order, on the top of one of the pillars in the dome of St. Sophia, in the diftant hope of difcovery and revenge. At the end of four years, fome youths, climbing by a ladder in fearch of pigeons nefts, detected the fatal fecret; and, as Andronicus felt himfelf touched and bound by the excommunication, he trembled on the brink of the abyfs which had been fo treacheroufly dug under his feet. A fynod of bishops was instantly convened to debate this important queffion : the rafhnefs of these clandeftine anathemas was generally condemned; but as the knot could be untied only by the fame hand, as that hand was now deprived of the crofier, it appeared that this posthumous decree was irrevocable by any earthly power. Some faint testimonies of repentance and pardon were extorted from the author of the mischief; but the conscience of the emperor was still wounded, and he defired, with no lefs ardour than Athanafius himfelf, the reftoration of a patriarch, by whom alone he could be healed. At the dead of night, a monk rudely knocked at the door of the royal bed-chamber, announcing a revelation of plague and famine, of inundations and earthquakes. Andronicus ftarted from his bed, and fpent the night in prayer, till he feit, or thought that he felt, a flight motion of the earth. The emperor on foot led the bifhops and monks to the cell of Athanafius; and, after a proper reliftance, the faint, from whom this meffage had been fent, confented to abfolve the prince, and govern the church, of Conftantinople. 8

258

Stantinople. Untamed by difgrace, and hardened by folitude, the C H A P. shepherd was again odious to the flock; and his enemies contrived a fingular, and as it proved a fuccefsful, mode of revenge. In the night, they ftole away the footftool or foot-cloth of his throne. which they fecretly replaced with the decoration of a fatirical picture. The emperor was painted with a bridle in his mouth, and Athanafius leading the tractable beaft to the feet of Chrift. The authors of the libel were detected and punifhed; but as their lives had been spared, the Christian priest in fullen indignation retired to his cell; and the eyes of Andronicus, which had been opened for a moment, were again clofed by his fucceffor.

If this transaction be one of the most curious and important of a reign of fifty years, I cannot at least accuse the brevity of my materials, fince I reduce into fome few pages the enormous folios of Pachymer³, Cantacuzene⁴, and Nicephorus Gregoras⁵, who have composed the prolix and languid ftory of the times. The name and fituation of the emperor John Cantacuzene might infpire the most lively curiofity. His memorials of forty years extend from the revolt of the younger Andronicus to his own abdication of the empire; and it is obferved, that, like Mofes and Cæfar, he was the principal actor in the fcenes which he defcribes. But in this eloquent work, we should vainly feek the fincerity of an hero or a penitent. Retired in a cloyfter from the vices and paffions of the world, he prefents not a confession, but an apology, of the life of an ambitious statefman. Inftead of unfolding the true counfels and characters of men.

pages, describes the first twenty-fix years of Andronicus the Elder; and marks the date of his composition by the current news or lye of the day (A. D. 1308). Either death or difgust prevented him from refuming the pen. 4 After an interval of twelve years, (c. 1-59. p. 9-150.) relates the civil war, tion of his conduct.

³ Pachymer, in feven books, 377 folio and the eight laft years of the elder Andronicus. The ingenious comparison with Mofes and Cæfar, is fancied by his French tranflator, the prefident Coufin.

⁵ Nicephorus Gregoras more briefly includes the entire life and reign of Andronicus the Elder (l. vi. c. 1-1. x. c. 1. p. 96from the conclusion of Pachymer, Canta- 291.). This is the part of which Cantacuzene cuzenus takes up the pen ; and his first book complains as a falle and malicious representa-

L1 2

he 259

LXIII.

6

C H A P. he difplays the fmooth and fpecious furface of events, highly varnished with his own praises and those of his friends. Their motives ----are always pure; their ends always legitimate : they confpire and rebel without any views of intereft; and the violence which they inflict or fuffer is celebrated as the fpontaneous effect of reafon and virtue.

First disputes between the elder and younger Andronicus, A. D. 1320.

After the example of the first of the Palæologi, the elder Andronicus affociated his fon Michael to the honours of the purple; and from the age of eighteen to his premature death, that prince was acknowledged, above twenty-five years, as the fecond emperor of the Greeks . At the head of an army, he excited neither the fears of the enemy nor the jealoufy of the court: his modefty and patience were never tempted to compute the years of his father; nor was that father compelled to repent of his liberality either by the virtues or vices of his fon. The fon of Michael was named Andronicus from his grandfather, to whole early favour he was introduced by that nominal refemblance. The bloffoms of wit and beauty encreafed the fondness of the elder Andronicus; and, with the common vanity of age, he expected to realize in the fecond, the hope which had been difappointed in the first, generation. The boy was educated in the palace as an heir and a favourite; and, in the oaths and acclamations of the people, the august triad was formed by the names of the father, the fon, and the grandfon. But the younger Andronicus was fpeedily corrupted by his infant greatnefs, while he beheld with puerile impatience the double obftacle that. hung, and might long hang, over his rifing ambition. It was not to acquire fame, or to diffuse happiness, that he fo eagerly aspired : wealth and impunity were in his eyes the most precious attributes of a monarch; and his first indifcreet demand was the fovereignty

LXIII.

of

⁶ He was crowned May 21st, 1295, and Ras oxympati, Ras yeverar Repa Ras masin effectiv died October 12th, 1320 (Ducange, Fam. Aativos no azgaigens. Nic. Greg. 1. ix. c. 1.), Byz. p. 239.). His brother Theodore, by a and founded a dynasty of Italian princes, fecond marriage, inherited the marquifate of which was extinguished A. D. 1533 (Ducange, Montferrat, apostatifed to the religion and Fam. Byz. p. 249-253.). manners of the Latins (ori Rai graph Rai mises of some rich and fertile island, where he might lead a life of inde- C H A P. pendence and pleafure. The emperor was offended by the loud and frequent intemperance which difturbed his capital : the fums which his parfimony denied were fupplied by the Genoefe ufurers of Pera : and the oppreflive debt, which confolidated the intereft of a faction, could be difcharged only by a revolution. A beautiful female, a matron in rank, a profitute in manners, had inftructed the younger Andronicus in the rudiments of love; but he had reafon to fuspect the nocturnal vifits of a rival; and a ftranger paffing through the freet was pierced by the arrows of his guards, who were placed in ambush at her door. That stranger was his brother, prince Manuel, who languished and died of his wound; and the emperor Michael, their common father, whofe health was in a declining flate, expired on the eighth day, lamenting the lofs of both his children '. However guiltlefs in his intention, the younger Andronicus might impute a brother's and a father's death to the confequence of his own vices; and deep was the figh of thinking and feeling men, when they perceived, inftead of forrow and repentance, his ill-diffembled joy on the removal of two odious competitors. By these melancholy events, and the increase of his diforders, the mind of the elder emperor was gradually alienated; and, after many fruitlefs reproofs, he transferred on another grandfon ⁸ his hopes and affection. The change was announced by the new oath of allegiance to the reigning fovereign, and the perfon whom he fhould appoint for his fucceffor; and the acknowledged heir, after a repetition of infults and complaints, was exposed to the indignity of a public trial. Before the fentence, which would probably have condemned him to a dungeon or a cell, the emperor was informed that the palace courts

7 We are indebted to Nicephorus Gregoras (l. viii. c. 1.) for the knowledge of this the baftard of Conftantine his fecond fon. In tragic adventure; while Cantacuzene more this project of excluding his grandfon Andifcreetly conceals the vices of Andronicus dronicus, Nicephorus Gregoras (1. viii. c. 3.) the Younger, of which he was the witnefs, agrees with Cantacuzene (l. i. c. 1, 2.). and perhaps the affociate (1. i. c. 1, &c.).

8 His deftined heir was Michael Catharus,

were

261

LXIII.

LXIII. -----

C H A P. were filled with the armed followers of his grandfon; the judgment was foftened to a treaty of reconciliation ; and the triumphant escape of the prince encouraged the ardour of the younger faction.

Three civil wars between the two emperors, A. D. 1321, April 20-A. D. 1328, May 24.

Yet the capital, the clergy, and the fenate, adhered to the perfon. or at leaft to the government, of the old emperor; and it was only in the provinces, by flight, and revolt, and foreign fuccour, that the malecontents could hope to vindicate their caufe and fubvert his throne. The foul of the enterprife was the great domeftic John Cantacuzene : the fally from Conftantinople is the first date of his actions and memorials; and if his own pen be most descriptive of his patriotifm, an unfriendly historian has not refused to celebrate the zeal and ability which he difplayed in the fervice of the young emperor. That prince escaped from the capital under the pretence of hunting; erected his ftandard at Adrianople; and, in a few days, affembled fifty thousand horse and foot, whom neither honour nor duty could have armed against the Barbarians. Such a force might have faved or commanded the empire; but their counfels were difcordant, their motions were flow and doubtful, and their progrefs was checked by intrigue and negociation. The quarrel of the two Andronici was protracted, and fuspended, and renewed, during a ruinous period of feven years. In the first treaty, the relics of the Greek empire were divided : Conftantinople, Theffalonica, and the iflands, were left to the elder, while the younger acquired the fovereignty of the greatest part of Thrace, from Philippi to the Byzantine limit. By the fecond treaty, he flipulated the payment of his troops, his immediate coronation, and an adequate fhare of the power and revenue of the ftate. The third civil war was terminated by the furprife of Conftantinople, the final retreat of the old emperor, and the fole reign of his victorious grandfon. The reafons of this delay may be found in the characters of the men and of the times. When the heir of the monarchy first pleaded his wrongs and his apprehenfions, he was heard with pity and applaufe : and his adherents repeated on all fides the inconfistent promife, that he would increafe increase the pay of the foldiers and alleviate the burthens of the C H A P. people. The grievances of forty years were mingled in his revolt : and the rifing generation was fatigued by the endless prospect of a reign, whole favourites and maxims were of other times. The youth of Andronicus had been without fpirit, his age was without reverence: his taxes produced an annual revenue of five hundred thousand pounds; yet the richeft of the fovereigns of Christendom was incapable of maintaining three thousand horse and twenty gallies, to refift the deftructive progress of the Turks ". " How dif-" ferent," faid the younger Andronicus, " is my fituation from that " of the fon of Philip! Alexander might complain, that his father " would leave him nothing to conquer: alas! my grandfire will " leave me nothing to lofe." But the Greeks were foon admonished, that the public diforders could not be healed by a civil war ; and that their young favourite was not defined to be the faviour of a falling empire. On the first repulse, his party was broken by his own levity, their inteffine difcord, and the intrigues of the ancient court, which tempted each malecontent to defert or betray the caufe of rebellion. Andronicus the younger was touched with remorfe, or fatigued with bufinefs, or deceived by negociation : pleafure rather than power was his aim; and the licence of maintaining a thousand hounds, a thousand hawks, and a thousand huntsmen, was fufficient to fully his fame and difarm his ambition.

Coronation of the younger Andronicus, A. D. 1325, February z.

Let us now furvey the cataftrophe of this bufy plot, and the final The elder fituation of the principal actors ". The age of Andronicus was con- abdicates the fumed in civil difcord; and, amidft the events of war and treaty, A. D. 1328, his power and reputation continually decayed, till the fatal night in

9 See Nicephorus Gregoras, 1. viii. c. 6. to fqueeze the farmers of the revenue. The younger Andronicus complained, that in four years and four months, a fum of Gregoras, who is remarkably exact. It is 350,000 byzants of gold was due to him for proved, that Cantacuzene has millaken the the expences of his household (Cantacuzen. dates of his own actions, or rather that his 1. i. c. 48.). Yet he would have remitted text has been corrupted by ignorant tranthe debt, if he might have been allowed fcribers,

10 I follow the chronology of Nicephorus which

Andronicus May 24.

263

LXIII.

LXIII. -----

264

C H A P. which the gates of the city and palace were opened without refiftance to his grandfon. His principal commander fcorned the repeated warnings of danger; and retiring to reft in the vain fecurity of ignorance, abandoned the feeble monarch, with fome priefts and pages, to the terrors of a fleeplefs night. Thefe terrors were quickly realized by the hoftile fhouts, which proclaimed the titles and victory of Andronicus the younger; and the aged emperor, falling proftrate before an image of the Virgin, difpatched a fuppliant meffage to refign the fceptre, and to obtain his life at the hands of the conqueror. The anfwer of his grandfon was decent and pious; at the prayer of his friends, the younger Andronicus affumed the fole administration; but the elder still enjoyed the name and pre-eminence of the first emperor, the use of the great palace, and a penfion of twenty-four thousand pieces of gold, one half of which was affigned on the royal treafure, and the other on the fifhery of Conftantinople. But his impotence was foon expoled to contempt and oblivion; the vaft filence of the palace was diffurbed only by the cattle and poultry of the neighbourhood, which roved with impunity through the folitary courts; and a reduced allowance of ten thousand pieces of gold" was all that he could ask, and more than he could hope. His calamities were embittered by the gradual extinction of fight; his confinement was rendered each day more rigorous; and during the abfence and fickness of his grandfon, his inhuman keepers, by the threats of inftant death, compelled him to exchange the purple for the monastic habit and profession. The monk Antony had renounced the pomp of the world: yet he had occafion for a coarfe fur in the winter feafon, and as wine was forbidden by his confessor, and water by his physician, the sherbet of Egypt was his common drink. It was not without difficulty that the late

emperor

¹¹ I have endeavoured to reconcile the (1. ix. c. 2.); the one of whom wished to 24,000 pieces of Cantacuzene (l. ii. c. 1.) foften, the other to magnify, the hardships with the 10,000 of Nicephorus Gregoras of the old emperors.

emperor could procure three or four pieces to fatisfy thefe fimple C H A P. wants; and if he beftowed the gold to relieve the more painful diftrefs of a friend, the facrifice is of fome weight in the fcale of humanity and religion. Four years after his abdication, Andronicus His death, or Antony expired in a cell, in the feventy-fourth year of his age: February 13. and the laft ftrain of adulation could only promife a more fplendid crown of glory in heaven, than he had enjoyed upon earth ".

Nor was the reign of the younger, more glorious or fortunate than Reign of Anthat of the elder, Andronicus '3. He gathered the fruits of ambition; younger, but the tafte was transient and bitter: in the fupreme flation he loft $A_{ay24}^{A,D,1323}$, the remains of his early popularity; and the defects of his character $A_{a,D,1343}^{A,D,1323}$. became still more confpicuous to the world. The public reproach urged him to march in perfon against the Turks; nor did his courage fail in the hour of trial; but a defeat and a wound were the only trophies of his expedition in Afia, which confirmed the eftablifhment of the Ottoman monarchy. The abufes of the civil government attained their full maturity and perfection : his neglect of forms, and the confusion of national dreffes, are deplored by the Greeks as the fatal fymptoms of the decay of the empire. Andronicus was old before his time : the intemperance of youth had accelerated the infirmities of age; and after being refcued from a dangerous malady by nature, or physic, or the Virgin, he was fnatched away before he had accomplished his forty-fifth year. He was twice His two married; and as the progrefs of the Latins in arms and arts had foftened the prejudices of the Byzantine court, his two wives were chofen in the princely houfes of Germany and Italy. The first, Agnes at home, Irene in Greece, was daughter of the duke of 12 See Nicephorus Gregoras (l. ix. 6, 7, 8. 10. 14. 1. x. c. 1.). The historian had tafted of the profperity, and fhared the retreat, of his benefactor; and that friendship, " cell," should not lightly be accused as " a 361.).

Mm

VOL. VI.

" hireling, a profitute to praife."

13 The fole reign of Andronicus the younger is described by Cantacuzene (1. ii. c. 1-40. p. 191-339.) and Nicephorus which " waits or to the fcaffold or the Gregoras (l. ix. c. 7-l. xi. c. 11. p. 262-

Brunfwick.

LXIII.

A. D. 1932.

dronicus the wives.

LXIII.

C H A P. Brunfwick. Her father 14 was a petty lord 15 in the poor and favage regions of the north of Germany": yet he derived fome revenue from his filver-mines "; and his family is celebrated by the Greeks as the most ancient and noble of the Teutonic name ". After the death of this childless princess, Andronicus sought in marriage Jane, the fifter of the count of Savoy "; and his fuit was preferred to that of the French king 20. The count respected in his fister the superior majefty of a Roman empress: her retinue was composed of > dake Henry the Wonderful, the chief of the houfe of Brunfwick, and the fourth in defcent from the famous Henry the Lion, duke of Saxony and Bavaria, and conqueror of the Slavi on the Baltic coaft. Her brother Henry was furnamed the Greek, from his two journies into the Eaft: but these journies were fubsequent to his fister's marriage; and I am ignorant bow Agnes was difcovered in the heart of Germany, and recommended to the Byzantine court (Rimius, Memoirs of the Houfe of Brunfwick, p. 126-137.).

*5 Henry the Wonderful was the founder of the branch of Grubenhagen, extinct in the year 1506 (Rimius, p. 287.). He refided in the caffle of Wolfenbuttel, and poffeffed no more than a fixth part of the allodial eftates of Brunfwick and Luneburgh, which the Guelph family had faved from the confifcation of their great fiefs. The frequent partitions among brothers, had almost ruined the princely houfes of Germany, till that just, but pernicious, law was flowly fuperfeded by the right of primogeniture. The principality of Grubenhagen, one of the last remains of the Hercynian forest, is a woody, mountainous, and barren tract (Busching's Geography, vol. vi. p. 270-286. English translation).

16 The royal author of the Memoirs of Brandenburgh will teach us, how juftly, in a much later period, the north of Germany deferved the epithets of poor and barbarous (Effai fur les Mœurs, &c.). In the year 13c6, in the woods of Luneburgh, fome wild people of the Vened race were allowed

*+ Agnes, or Irene, was the daughter of to bury alive their infirm and ufelefs parents (Rimius, p. 136.).

> 17 The affertion of Tacitus, that Germany was deflitute of the precious metals, must be taken, even in his own time, with fome limitation (Germania, c. 5. Annal. xi. 20.). According to Spener (Hift. Germaniæ Pragmatica, tom. i. p. 351.), Argentifodinæ in Hercyniis montibus, imperante Othone magno (A. D. 968) primum apertæ, largam etiam opes augendi dederunt copiam: but Rimius (p. 258, 259.) defers till the year 1016 the difcovery of the filver mines of Grubenhagen, or the Upper Hartz, which were productive in the beginning of the xivth century, and which still yield a confiderable revenue to the house of Brunswick.

18 Cantacuzene has given a moft honourable testimony, no δ'εκ Γερμανων αυτη θυγατηρ Suros vai unfugere (the modern Greeks employ the η for the ϑ , and the $\mu\pi$ for the β , and the whole will read in the Italian idiom di Brunzuic), דב המף מנדמוק בהוקמיבקמדט, אמו אמטהקסדידו παντας τυς ύμοφυλυς υπερβαλλοντος τυ γενυ;. The praise is just in itself, and pleasing to an Englifh ear.

19 Anne, or Jane, was one of the four daughters of Amedée the Great, by a fecond marriage, and half fifter of his fucceffor Edward count of Savoy (Anderfon's Tables, p. 650.). See Cantacuzene (l. i. c. 40-42.).

20 That king, if the fact be true, muft have been Charles the Fair, who in five years (1321-1326) was married to three wives (Anderson, p. 628.). Anne of Savoy arrived at Constantinople in February 1326.

knights

knights and ladies; fhe was regenerated and crowned in St. Sophia, C H A P. under the more orthodox appellation of Anne; and, at the nuptial feaft, the Greeks and Italians vied with each other in the martial exercifes of tilts and tournaments.

The empress Anne of Savoy furvived her husband: their fon, John Palzologus, was left an orphan and an emperor, in the ninth year of his age; and his weakness was protected by the first and June 15most deferving of the Greeks. The long and cordial friendship of his father for John Cantacuzene is alike honourable to the prince and John Cantathe fubject. It had been formed amidst the pleasures of their youth: their families were almost equally noble "; and the recent lustre of the purple was amply compensated by the energy of a private education. We have feen that the young emperor was faved by Cantacuzene from the power of his grandfather; and, after fix years of civil war, the fame favourite brought him back in triumph to the palace of Constantinople. Under the reign of Andronicus the younger, the great domeftic ruled the emperor and the empire; and it was by his valour and conduct that the ifle of Lefbos and the principality of Ætolia were reftored to their ancient allegiance. His enemies confess, that, among the public robbers, Cantacuzene alone was moderate and abstemious; and the free and voluntary account which he produces of his own wealth 22 may fuftain the prefumption that it was devolved by inheritance, and not accumulated by rapine. He does not indeed fpecify the value of his money, plate, and jewels; yet, after a voluntary gift of two hundred vafes of filver, after much had been fecreted by his friends and plundered by his foes, his forfeit treasures were fufficient for the equipment of a fleet of feventy gallies. He does not meafure the fize and number of his eftates; but

his Mm 2

Reign of John Palzologus, A. D. 1341, A. D. 1391. Fortune of cuzenus.

LXIII.

Lond,

²³ The noble race of the Cantacuzeni (il- in the xilith century were translated and read luftrious from the x_i^{th} century in the Byzan- by the Greeks (Ducange, Fam. Byzant, tine annals) was drawn from the Paladins of p. 258.). France, the heroes of those romances which 22 See Cantacuzene (1. iii, c. 24. 30. 36.).

He is left regent of the empire.

His regency is attacked, A. D. 1341,

C H A P. his granaries were heaped with an incredible flore of wheat and barley; and the labour of a thousand yoke of oxen might culti-Lang vate, according to the practice of antiquity, about fixty-two thoufand five hundred acres of arable land 23. His pastures were stocked with two thousand five hundred brood mares, two hundred camels, three hundred mules, five hundred affes, five thousand horned cattle, fifty thousand hogs, and feventy thousand sheep 24 : a precious recordof rural opulence, in the last period of the empire, and in a land,. most probably in Thrace, fo repeatedly wasted by foreign and domeftic hostility. The favour of Cantacuzene was above his fortune. In the moments of familiarity, in the hour of fickness, the emperor was defirous to level the diftance between them, and preffed his friend to accept the diadem and purple. The virtue of the great domeftic, which is attefted by his own pen, refifted the dangerous propofal; but the last testament of Andronicus the younger named him the guardian of his fon, and the regent of the empire.

Had the regent found a fuitable return of obedience and gratitude, perhaps he would have acted with pure and zealous fidelity in the fervice of his pupil²⁵. A guard of five hundred foldiers watched over his perfon and the palace; the funeral of the late emperor was decently performed; the capital was filent and fubmiffive; and five hundred letters, which Cantacuzene difpatched in the first month, informed the provinces of their lofs and their duty. The profpect of a tranquil minority was blafted by the great duke or admiral

Italy or Spain, allow two yoke of oven, two drivers, and fix labourers, for two hundred 'jugera (125 English acres) of arable land, and three more men must be added if there be much underwood, (Columella de Re Ruffica, I. ii. c. 13. p. 441. edit. Gefner).

24 In this enumeration (1. iii. c. 30.), the French translation of the president Coufin is blotted with three palpable and effential errors. 1. He omits the 1000 yoke of work- p. 353-492.).

17

²³ Saferna, in Gaul, and Columella, in ing oxen. z. He interprets the merranomat TP-5 dis zidiais, by the number of fifteen hundred. 3. He confounds myriads with chiliads, and gives Cantacuzene no more than coop hogs. Put not your truft in tranflations?

25 See the regency and reign of John Cantacuzenus, and the whole progrefs of the civil war, in his own hiftory (l. iii. c. 1-100. p. 348-700.), and in that of Nicephorus Gregoras (l. xii. c. 1-l. xv. c. 9.

Apocaucus;

LXIII.

Apocaucus; and to exaggerate bis perfidy, the Imperial hiftorian is C H A P. pleafed to magnify his own imprudence, in raifing him to that office against the advice of his more fagacious fovereign. Bold and fubtle, by Apocaurapacious and profuse, the avarice and ambition of Apocaucus were by turns fubfervient to each other; and his talents were applied to the ruin of his country. His arrogance was heightened by the command of a naval force and an impregnable caftle, and under the mafk of oaths and flattery he fecretly confpired against his benefactor. The female court of the empress was bribed and directed : by the emhe encouraged Anne of Savoy to affert, by the law of nature, the Savoy; tutelage of her fon; the love of power was difguifed by the anxiety of maternal tendernefs; and the founder of the Palæologi had inftructed his posterity to dread the example of a perfidious guardian. The patriarch John of Apri, was a proud and feeble old man, en- by the pacompafied by a numerous and hungry kindred. He produced an triarch. obfolete epiftle of Andronicus, which bequeathed the prince and people to his pious care : the fate of his predeceffor Arfenius prompted him to prevent, rather than punish, the crimes of an usurper; and Apocaucus fmiled at the fuccefs of his own flattery, when he beheld the Byzantine prieft affuming the flate and temporal claims of the Roman pontiff16. Between three perfons to differ-ent in their fituation and character, a private league was concluded : a fhadow of authority was reftored to the fenate; and the people was tempted by the name of freedom. By this powerful confederacy, the great domeflic was affaulted at first with clandesline, at length with open, arms. His prerogatives were difputed; his opinions. flighted; his friends perfecuted; and his fafety was threatened both . in the camp and city. In his abfence on the public fervice, he was. accufed of treafon; proferibed as an enemy of the church and flate;

26. He affumed the royal privilege of red new, whatever Conftantine had given to the -

and.

LXIII. cus ;_

shoes or buskins; placed on his head a mitre ancient, Rome (Cantacuzen. 1. iii. c. 36... of filk and gold; fubfcribed his epiftles with Nic. Gregoras, 1. xiv. c. 3.). hyacinth or green ink, and claimed for the C H A P. and delivered, with all his adherents, to the fword of juffice, the ven-LXIII. geance of the people, and the power of the devil : his fortunes were _____ confiscated; his aged mother was caft into prison; all his past fervices were buried in oblivion; and he was driven by injuffice to perpetrate the crime of which he was accufed 27. From the review of his preceding conduct, Cantacuzene appears to have been guiltlefs of any treafonable defigns; and the only fufpicion of his innocence must arife from the vehemence of his protestations, and the fublime purity which he afcribes to his own virtue. While the emprefs and the patriarch ftill affected the appearances of harmony, he repeatedly folicited the permiffion of retiring to a private, and even a monaftic, life. After he had been declared a public enemy, it was his fervent with to throw himfelf at the feet of the young emperor, and to receive without a murmur the ftroke of the executioner: it was not without reluctance that he liftened to the voice of reafon. which inculcated the facred duty of faving his family and friends, and proved that he could only fave them by drawing the fword and affuming the Imperial title.

Cantacuzene aflumes the purple, A. D. 1341, October 26. In the ftrong city of Demotica, his peculiar domain, the emperor John Cantacuzenus was invefted with the purple bufkins: his rightleg was clothed by his noble kinfmen, the left by the Latin chiefs, on whom he conferred the order of knighthood. But even in this act of revolt, he was ftill fludious of loyalty; and the titles of John Palæologus and Anne of Savoy were proclaimed before his own name and that of his wife Irene. Such vain ceremony is a thin difguife of rebellion, nor are there perhaps any perfonal wrongs that can authorife a fubject to take arms againft his fovereign: but the want of preparation and fuccefs may confirm the affurance of the ufurper, that this decifive flep was the effect of neceffity rather than of choice.

²¹ Nic. Gregoras (l. xii. c. 5.) confesse fonal and religious enmity to the former; the innocence and virtues of Cantacuzenus, rev δι δια κακιαν αλλων, αιτιος δ πραντατο; της των the guilt and flagitious vices of Apocaucus; ολαν εδοξεν τοναι φθορα;. nor does he diffemble the motive of his per-

II

choice. Conftantinople adhered to the young emperor : the king of C H A P. Bulgaria was invited to the relief of Adrianople: the principal cities of Thrace and Macedonia, after some hesitation, renounced their obedience to the great domeftic; and the leaders of the troops and provinces were induced, by their private intereft, to prefer the loofe dominion of a woman and a prieft. The army of Cantacuzene, in fixteen divisions, was stationed on the banks of the Melas to tempt or intimidate the capital : it was difperfed by treachery or fear; and the officers, more especially the mercenary Latins, accepted the bribes, and embraced the fervice, of the Byzautine court. After this lofs, the rebel emperor (he fluctuated between the two characters) took the road of Theffalonica with a chofen remnant; but he failed in his enterprife on that important place; and he was clofely purfued by the great duke, his enemy Apocaucus, at the head of a fuperior power by fea and land. Driven from the coaft, in his march, or rather flight, into the mountains of Servia, Cantacuzene affembled his troops to ferutinize those who were worthy and willing to accompany his broken fortunes. A bafe majority bowed and retired; and his trufty band was diminished to two thousand, and at last to five hundred; volunteers. The cral28, or defpot of the Servians, received him with generous hospitality; but the ally was infenfibly degraded to a fuppliant, an hoftage, a captive; and, in this miferable dependence, he waited at the door of the Barbarian, who could difpofe of the life and liberty of a Roman emperor. The most tempting offers could not perfuade the cral to violate his truft; but he foon inclined to the ftronger fide; and his friend was difmiffed without injury to a new viciffitude of hopes and perils.

Dalmatica, &c. c. 2, 3, 4. 9.) were flyled (Leunclavius, Pandect. Turc. p. 422.), who Despots in Greek, and Cral, in their native referve the name of Padishah for the emperor. idiom (Ducange, Gloff. Græc. p. 751.). To obtain the latter inftead of the former, is That title, the equivalent of king, appears the ambition of the French at Conftantinople to be of Sclavonic origin, from whence it (Avertiffement à l'Histoire de Timur Bec, has been borrowed by the Hungarians, the p. 39.).

28 The princes of Servia (Ducaige, Famil. modern Greeks, and even by the Turks

LXIII. -----

Near

LXIII. The civil war, A. D. 13.41-1347.

C H A P. Near fix years the flame of difcord burnt with various fuccels and unabated rage : the cities were diffracted by the faction of the nobles and the plebeians; the Cantacuzeni and Palæologi: and the Bulgarians, the Servians, and the Turks, were invoked on both fides as the inftruments of private ambition and the common ruin. The regent deplored the calamities, of which he was the author and victim : and his own experience might dictate a just and lively remark on the different nature of foreign and civil war. " The former," faid he, " is the external warmth of fummer, always tolerable, and " often beneficial; the latter is the deadly heat of a fever, which " confumes without a remedy the vitals of the conftitution²⁹,"

Victory of Cantacuzene.

The introduction of barbarians and favages into the contefts of civilized nations, is a measure pregnant with shame and mischief; which the interest of the moment may compel, but which is reprobated by the beft principles of humanity and reafon. It is the practice of both fides to accufe their enemies of the guilt of the first alliances; and those who fail in their negociations, are loudest in their cenfure of the example which they envy, and would gladly imitate. The Turks of Afia were lefs barbarous perhaps than the fhepherds of Bulgaria and Servia; but their religion rendered them the implacable foes of Rome and Christianity. To acquire the friendship of their emirs, the two factions vied with each other in bafenefs and profusion : the dexterity of Cantacuzene obtained the preference : but the fuccour and victory were dearly purchased by the marriage of his daughter with an infidel, the captivity of many thousand Christians, and the passage of the Ottomans into Europe, the laft and fatal ftroke in the fall of the Roman empire. The inclining fcale was decided in his favour by the death of Apocaucus, the juff, though fingular, retribution of his crimes. A crowd of nobles or plebeians, whom he feared or hated, had been feized by his orders

29 Nic. Gregoras, I. xii. c. 14. It is furpriling, that Cantacuzene has not inferted this just and lively image in his own writings. în in the capital and the provinces; and the old palace of Conftantine C H A P. was affigned for the place of their confinement. Some alterations in raifing the walls, and narrowing the cells, had been ingenioufly contrived to prevent their efcape, and aggravate their mifery ; and the work was inceffantly preffed by the daily vifits of the tyrant. His guards watched at the gate, and as he ftood in the inner-court to overlook the architects, without fear or fufpicion, he was affaulted and laid breathlefs on the ground, by two refolute prifoners of the Palæologian race³⁰, who were armed with flicks, and animated by defpair. On the rumour of revenge and liberty, the captive multitude broke their fetters, fortified their prifon, and exposed from the battlements the tyrant's head, prefuming on the favour of the people and the clemency of the empress. Anne of Savoy might rejoice in the fall of an haughty and ambitious minister, but while the delayed to refolve or to act, the populace, more efpecially the mariners. were excited by the widow of the great duke to a fedition, an affault, and a maffacre. The prifoners (of whom the far greater part were guiltless or inglorious of the deed) escaped to a neighbouring church: they were flaughtered at the foot of the altar; and in his death the monfter was not lefs bloody and venomous than in his life. Yet his talents alone upheld the caufe of the young emperor; and his furviving affociates, fufpicious of each other, abandoned the conduct of the war, and rejected the faireft terms of accommodation. In the beginning of the difpute, the empress felt and complained, that fhe was deceived by the enemies of Cantacuzene : the patriarch was employed to preach against the forgiveness of injuries; and her promise of immortal hatred was fealed by an oath, under the penalty of excommunication³¹. But Anne 30 The two avengers were both Palæologi, goras (l. xiv. c. 10.).

34 Cantacuzene accufes the patriarch, and who might refent, with royal indignation, fpares the empress, the mother of his fothe shame of their chains. The tragedy of vereign (1. iii. 33, 34.), against whom Nic. Apocaucus may deferve a peculiar reference Gregoras expresses a particular animosity to Cantacuzene (l. iii. c. 86.) and Nic. Gre- (l. xiv. 10, 11. xv. 5.). It is true, that they do not fpeak exactly of the fame time.

VOL. VI.

Nn

foon

273

LXIII.

C H A P. foon learned to hate without a teacher: fhe beheld the misfortunes of the empire with the indifference of a ftranger: her jealoufy was ----exasperated by the competition of a rival empress; and on the first fymptoms of a more yielding temper, fhe threatened the patriarch to convene a fynod, and degrade him from his office. Their incapacity and difcord would have afforded the most decifive advantage; but the civil war was protracted by the weakness of both parties; and the moderation of Cantacuzene has not efcaped the reproach of timidity and indolence. He fucceffively recovered the provinces and cities; and the realm of his pupil was meafured by the walls of Conftantinople ; but the metropolis alone counterbalanced the reft of the empire; nor could he attempt that important conquest till he had fecured in his favour the public voice and a private correfpondence. An Italian, of the name of Facciolati³², had fucceeded to the office of great duke: the fhips, the guards, and the golden He re-enters Constantigate, were fubject to his command; but his humble ambition was nople, A. D. 1347, bribed to become the inftrument of treachery; and the revolution January 8. was accomplifhed without danger or bloodfhed. Deftitute of the powers of refiftance, or the hope of relief, the inflexible Anne would have ftill defended the palace, and have finiled to behold the capital in flames, rather than in the pofferfion of a rival. Sha yielded to the prayers of her friends and enemies; and the treaty was dictated by the conqueror, who profeffed a loyal and zealous attachment to the fon of his benefactor. The marriage of his daughter with John Palæologus was at length confummated: the hereditary right of the pupil was acknowledged; but the fole administration during ten years was vested in the guardian. Two emperors and three empresses were feated on the Byzantine throne; and a general amnefty quieted the apprehenfions, and confirmed the * property, of the most guilty fubjects. The festival of the corona-

> ³² The traitor and treafon are revealed by is more difcreetly suppressed by his great ac-Nic. Gregoras (l. xv. c. 8.): but the name complice (Cantacuzen, l. iii. c. 99.).

> > IO

274

tion

tion and nuptials was celebrated with the appearances of concord C H A P. and magnificence, and both were equally fallacious. During the late troubles, the treasures of the flate, and even the furniture of the palace, had been alienated or embezzled: the royal banquet was ferved in pewter or earthen-ware; and fuch was the proud poverty of the times, that the absence of gold and jewels was supplied by the paltry artifices of glass and gilt-leather ".

I haften to conclude the perfonal hiftory of John Cantacuzene³⁺. He triumphed and reigned; but his reign and triumph were clouded by the difcontent of his own and the adverse faction. His followers January 8might ftyle the general amnefty, an act of pardon for his enemies, January. and of oblivion for his friends³⁵: in his cause, their estates had been forfeited or plundered; and as they wandered naked and hungry through the ftreets, they curfed the felfish generofity of a leader : who, on the throne of the empire, might relinquish without merit his private inheritance. The adherents of the emprefs blufhed to hold their lives and fortunes by the precarious favour of an ufurper : and the thirst of revenge was concealed by a tender concern for the fucceffion, and even the fafety, of her fon. They were justly alarmed by a petition of the friends of Cantacuzene, that they might be releafed from their oath of allegiance to the Palæologi; and entrufted with the defence of fome cautionary towns; a measure fupported with argument and eloquence ; and which was rejected (fays the Imperial hiftorian) " by my fublime, and almost incredible, " virtue." His repofe was diffurbed by the found of plots and feditions; and he trembled, left the lawful prince should be stelen

34 From his return to Constantinople, Cantacuzene continues his hiftory, and that of the empire, one year beyond the abdication of his fon Matthew, A. D. 1357 (l. iv. c. 1 -50. p.705-911.). Nicephorus Gregoras ends with the fynod of Conflantinople, in the year 1351 (l. xxii. c. 3. p. 660. the reft 33 Nic. Greg. 1. xv. 11. There were to the conclusion of the xxivth book, p. 717. is all controversy); and his fourteen last books are ftill MSS. in the king of France's library.

35 The emperor (Cantacuzen, l. iv. c. 1.) reprefents his own virtues, and Nic. Gregoras (l. xv. c. 11.) the complaints of his friends, who fuffered by it's effects. I have lent them the words of our poor cavaliers after the refloration.

away

Reign of John Cantacuzene, A. D. 1347, A. D. 1355,

LXIII.

however fome true pearls, but very thinly fprinkled. The reft of the flones had only παντοδαπην χροιαν προς το διαυγες.

C H A P. away by fome foreign or domeftic enemy, who would inferibe his LXIII. name and his wrongs in the banners of rebellion. As the fon of ----Andronicus advanced in the years of manhood, he began to feel and to act for himfelf; and his rifing ambition was rather ftimulated than checked by the imitation of his father's vices. If we may truft his own professions, Cantacuzene laboured with honest industry to correct these fordid and fenfual appetites, and to raife the mind of the young prince to a level with his fortune. In the Servian expedition, the two emperors shewed themselves in cordial harmony to the troops and provinces; and the younger colleague was initiated by the elder in the mysteries of war and government. After the conclusion of the peace, Palæologus was left at Theffalonica, a royal refidence, and a frontier flation, to fecure by his absence the peace of Conftantinople, and to withdraw his youth from the temptations of a luxurious capital. But the diffance weakened the powers of control, and the fon of Andronicus 'was furrounded with artful or unthinking companions, who taught him to hate his guardian, to deplore his exile, and to vindicate his rights. A private treaty with the cral or defpot of Servia, was foon followed by an open revolt : and Cantacuzene, on the throne of the elder Andronicus, defended the caufe of age and prerogative, which in his youth he had fo vigoroufly attacked. At his requeft, the emprefs mother undertook the voyage of Theffalonica, and the office of mediation: fhe returned without fuccefs; and unlefs Anne of Savoy was inftructed by adverfity, we may doubt the fincerity, or at leaft the fervour, of her zeal. While the regent grafped the fceptre with a firm and vigorous hand, the had been inftructed to declare, that the ten years of his legal administration would foon elapfe; and that after a full trial of the vanity of the world, the emperor Cantacuzene fighed for the repofe of a cloyfter, and was ambitious only of an heavenly crown. Had thefe fentiments been genuine, his voluntary abdication would have reftored the peace of the empire, and his confcience would have been relieved by an act of juffice. Palæologus alone was responsible for his future government; and whatever might be his vices, they were were furely lefs formidable than the calamities of a civil war, in C H A P. which the Barbarians and infidels were again invited to affift the Greeks in their mutual deftruction. By the arms of the Turks, who now ftruck a deep and everlafting root in Europe, Cantacuzene prevailed in the third conteft in which he had been involved; and A. D. 1353. the young emperor, driven from the fea and land, was compelled to take shelter among the Latins of the isle of Tenedos. His infolence and obflinacy provoked the victor to a ftep which must render the quarrel irreconcilable: and the affociation of his fon Matthew, whom he invefted with the purple, established the fuccession in the family of the Cantacuzeni. But Conftantinople was still attached to the blood of her ancient princes : and this laft injury accelerated the reftoration of the rightful heir. A noble Genoese espoused the cause of Palzologus, obtained a promife of his fifter, and atchieved the revolution with two gallies and two thousand five hundred auxiliaries. Under the pretence of diffrefs, they were admitted into the leffer port ; a gate was opened, and the Latin fhout of, " long life " and victory to the emperor, John Palæologus !" was anfwered by a general rifing in his favour. A numerous and loyal party yet adhered to, the ftandard of Cantacuzene : but he afferts in his hiftory (does he hope for belief?) that his tender confeience rejected the affurance of conquest; that, in free obedience to the voice of religion and philosophy, he defcended from the throne, and embraced with pleafure the monastic habit and profession³⁶. So foon as he ceafed to be a prince, his fucceffor was not unwilling that he fhould be a faint : the remainder of his life was devoted to piety and learn- Abdication ing; in the cells of Conftantinople and mount Athos, the monk Joafaph was refpected as the temporal and fpiritual father of the A.D. 1355, emperor; and if he issued from his retreat, it was as the minister of of Cantacuzene, January.

2.76

peace,

LXIII. John Palæo-logus takes up arms against him,

³⁶ The awkward apo'ogy of Cantacuzene tives of Matthew Villani (1. iv. c. 46. in (1. iv. c. 39-42), who relates, with visible the Script. Rerum Ital. tom. xiv. p. 268.) confusion, his own downfall, may be supplied and Ducas (c. 10, 11.). by the lefs accurate, but more honeft narra-

C H A P. peace, to fubdue the obftinacy, and folicit the pardon, of his re-

Difpute concerning the light of mount Thabor, A.D. 1341-1351.

Yet in the cloyfter, the mind of Cantacuzene was ftill exercifed by theological war. He sharpened a controversial pen against the Jews and Mahometans³⁸; and in every ftate, he defended with equal zeal the divine light of mount Thabor, a memorable queftion which confummates the religious follies of the Greeks. The fakirs of India³⁹, and the monks of the Oriental church, were alike perfuaded, that, in total abstraction of the faculties of the mind and body, the purer fpirit may afcend to the enjoyment and vision of the Deity. The opinion and practice of the monasteries of mount Athos 4° will be best represented in the words of an abbot, who flourished in the eleventh century. " When thou art alone in thy cell," fays the afcetic teacher, " fhut thy door, and feat thyfelf in a corner; raife " thy mind above all things vain and transitory; recline thy beard " and chin on thy breaft; turn thy eyes and thy thought towards " the middle of thy belly, the region of the navel; and fearch the " place of the heart, the feat of the foul. At first, all will be dark " and comfortlefs; but if you perfevere day and night, you will " feel an ineffable joy; and no fooner has the foul difcovered the " place of the heart, than it is involved in a myftic and etherial " light." This light, the production of a diftempered fancy, the creature of an empty flomach and an empty brain, was adored by ³⁷ Cantacuzene, in the year 1375, was honoured with a letter from the pope (Fleury, Hift. Ecclef. tom. xx. p. 250.). His death is placed by refpectable authority on the 20th of November 1411 (Ducange, Fam. Byzant. p. 260.). But if he were of the age of his companion Andronicus the Younger, he muft have lived 116 years; a rare inflance of longevity, which in fo illuftrious a perfon would have attracted univerfal notice.

³⁸ His four difcourfes, or books, were caufes with the judgment of printed at Bafil 1543 (Fabric. Bibliot. Grac. the latter transcribes and tran tom. vi. p. 473.). He composed them to prejudices of a Catholic prieft. fatisfy a profelyte who was affaulted with ³⁷ Cantacuxene, in the year 1375, was letters from his friends of Ifpahan. Cantamoured with a letter from the pope (Fleury, cuzene had read the Koran; but I underift. Ecclef. tom. xx. p. 250.). His death fland from Maracci, that he adopts the vulplaced by refpectable authority on the 20th gar prejudices and fables againft Mahomet November 1411 (Ducange, Fam. Byzant. and his religion.

> ³⁹ See the Voyages de Bernier, tom. i. p. 127.

> ^{4°} Mofheim, Inflitut. Hift. Ecclef. p. 522, 523. Fleury, Hift. Ecclef. tom. xx. p. 22. 24. 107-114, &c. The former unfolds the caufes with the judgment of a philofopher, the latter transcribes and translates with the prejudices of a Catholic prieft.

the Quietists as the pure and perfect effence of God himfelf; and as C H A P. long as the folly was confined to mount Athos, the fimple folitaries were not inquisitive how the divine effence could be a material fubftance, or how an immaterial fubftance could be perceived by the eyes of the body. But in the reign of the younger Andronicus. these monasteries were visited by Barlaam 41, a Calabrian monk, who was equally fkilled in philosophy and theology; who poffeffed the languages of the Greeks and Latins; and whofe verfatile genius could maintain their opposite creeds, according to the interest of the moment. The indifcretion of an afcetic revealed to the curious traveller the fecrets of mental prayer; and Barlaam embraced the opportunity of ridiculing the Quietifts, who placed the foul in the navel; of accufing the monks of mount Athos of herefy and blafphemy. His attack compelled the more learned to renounce or diffemble the fimple devotion of their brethren; and Gregory Palamas introduced a fcholaftic diffinction between the effence and operation of God. His inacceffible effence dwells in the midft of an uncreated and eternal light; and this beatific vision of the faints had been manifested to the disciples on mount Thabor, in the transfiguration of Chrift. Yet this diffinction could not efcape the reproach of polytheifm; the eternity of the light of Thabor was fiercely denied; and Barlaam still charged the Palamites with holding two eternal fubftances, a visible and an invisible God. From the rage of the monks of mount Athos, who threatened his life, the Calabrian retired to Conftantinople, where his fmooth and fpecious manners introduced him to the favour of the great domeftic and the emperor. The court and the city were involved in this theological difpute, which flamed amidft the civil war; but the doctrine

279

LXIII.

⁴¹ Basnage (in Canifii Antiq. Lectiones, of the identity of his perfon. See likewise tom. iv. p. 363-368.) has investigated the Fabricius (Bibliot. Græc. tom. x. p. 427-character and flory of Barlaam. The dupli-432.). city of his opinions had infpired fome doubts

C H A P. doctrine of Barlaam was difgraced by his flight and apoftacy: the LXIII. Palamites triumphed; and their adverfary, the patriarch John of -----Apri, was deposed by the confent of the adverse factions of the ftate. In the character of emperor and theologian, Cantacuzene prefided in the fynod of the Greek church, which eftablished, as an article of faith, the uncreated light of mount Thabor; and, after fo many infults, the reafon of mankind was flightly wounded by the addition of a fingle abfurdity. Many rolls of paper or parchment have been blotted; and the impenitent fectaries, who refused to fubfcribe the orthodox creed, were deprived of the honours of Chriftian burial; but in the next age the question was forgotten; nor can I learn that the axe or the faggot were employed for the extir-Eftablifhment of the Genoefe at Pera or Galata, À. D. 1261-1347.

For the conclusion of this chapter, I have referved the Genoefe war, which shook the throne of Cantacuzene, and betrayed the debility of the Greek empire. The Genoefe, who, after the recovery of Conftantinople, were feated in the fuburb of Pera or Galata, received that honourable fief from the bounty of the emperor. They were indulged in the ufe of their laws and magiftrates; but they fubmitted to the duties of vaffals and fubjects: the forcible word of liegemen 43 was borrowed from the Latin jurifprudence; and their podefla, or chief, before he entered on his office, faluted the emperor with loyal acclamations and vows of fidelity. Genoa fealed a firm alliance with the Greeks; and, in cafe of a defensive war, a supply of fifty empty gallies, and a fuccour of fifty gallies completely armed and manned, was promifed 42 See Cantacuzene (l. ii. c. 39, 40. l. iv. library, have added fome facts and docuc. 3. 23, 24, 25.), and Nic. Gregoras (l. xi. ments. c. 10. l. xv. 3, 7, &c.), whole last books, from the xixth to the xxivth, are almost confined to a fubject fo interefting to the authors. Boivin (in Vit. Nic. Gregoræ), from the unpublished books, and Fabricius (Bibliot. the Glossaries of Ducange (Græc. p. 811, 812. Græc. tom. x. p. 462-473.), or rather Latin. tom. iv. p. 109-111.). Montfauçon, from the MSS. of the Coiflin pation of the Barlaamite herefy 42.

43 Pachymer (1. v. c. 10.) very properly explains higher (ligios) by idies. The use of thefe words in the Greek and Latin of the feudal times, may be amply underflood from

by the republic to the empire. In the revival of a naval force, it C H A P. was the aim of Michael Palæologus to deliver himfelf from a foreign aid; and his vigorous government contained the Genoefe of Galata within those limits which the infolence of wealth and freedom provoked them to exceed. A failor threatened that they should foon be masters of Constantinople, and slew the Greek who refented this national affront; and an armed veffel, after refufing to falute the palace, was guilty of fome acts of piracy in the Black Sea. Their countrymen threatened to fupport their caufe; but the long and open village of Galata was inftantly furrounded by the Imperial troops; till, in the moment of the affault, the proftrate Genoefe implored the clemency of their fovereign. The defencelefs fituation which fecured their obedience, expofed them to the attack of their Venetian rivals, who, in the reign of the elder Andronicus, prefumed to violate the majefty of the throne. On the approach of their fleets, the Genoefe, with their families and effects, retired into the city: their empty habitations were reduced to afhes; and the feeble prince, who had viewed the deftruction of his fuburb, expressed his refentment, not by arms, but by ambaffadors. This misfortune, however, was advantageous to the Genoefe, who obtained, and imperceptibly abufed, the dangerous licence of furrounding Galata with a ftrong wall; of introducing into the ditch the waters of the fea; of erecting lofty turrets; and of mounting a train of military engines on the rampart. The narrow bounds in which they had been circumfcribed, were infufficient for the growing colony; each day they acquired fome addition of landed property; and the adjacent hills were covered with their villas and cafiles, which they joined and protected by new fortifications⁴⁴. The navigation and trade of the Euxine was the patri-

44 The establishment and progress of the (1. ii. c. 35, 1. v. 10. 30. 1. ix. 15. 1. xii. 6. Genoefe at Pera, or Galata, is deferibed by 9.), Nicephorus Gregoras (l. v. c. 4. l. vi. Ducange (C. P. Chriftiana, l. i. p. 68, 69.) c. 11. l. ix. c. 5. l. xi. c. 1. l. xv. c. 1. 6.), from the Byzantine hiftorians, Pachymer and Cantacuzene (l. i. c. 12. l. ii. c. 29, &c.). VOL. VI. 00

mony

281

LXIII.

C H A P. mony of the Greek emperors, who commanded the narrow entrance, LXIII. the gates, as it were, of that inland fea. In the reign of Michael Palæologus, their prerogative was acknowledged by the fultan of Egypt, who folicited and obtained the liberty of fending an annual · thip for the purchase of flaves in Circaffia and the Leffer Tartary; a liberty pregnant with mifchief to the Christian cause; fince these youths were transformed by education and difcipline into the formidable Mamalukes 45. From the colony of Pera, the Genoefe engaged Their trade with fuperior advantage in the lucrative trade of the Black Sea; and their industry fupplied the Greeks with fifh and corn; two articles of food almost equally important to a superstitious people. The fpontaneous bounty of nature appears to have beftowed the harvefts of the Ukraine, the produce of a rude and favage hufbandry; and the endless exportation of falt fifh and caviar is annually renewed by the enormous flurgeons that are caught at the mouth of the Don or Tanais, in their laft flation of the rich mud and shallow water of the Mæotis⁴⁶. The waters of the Oxus, the Cafpian, the Volga, and the Don, opened a rare and laborious paffage for the gems and fpices of India; and, after three months march, the caravans of Carizme met the Italian veffels in the harbours of Crimæa⁴⁷. Thefe various branches of trade were monopolifed by the diligence and power of the Genoefe. Their rivals of Venice and Pifa were forcibly expelled; the natives were awed by the caffles and cities, which arofe on the foundations of their humble factories; and their > 45 Both Pachymer (l. iii. c. 3, 4, 5.) and Nic. Gregoras (1. iv. c. 7.) understand and deplore the effects of this dangerous indulgence. Bibars, sultan of Egypt, himself a Tartar, but a devout Mufulman, obtained from the children of Zingis the permiffion to build a stately mosch in the capital of Crimæa (de Guignes, Hift. des Huns, tom. iii. P. 343.).

p. 48.) was affured at Caffa, that thefe fifthes under a wife and powerful monarch.

were fometimes twenty-four or twenty-fix feet long, weighed eight or nine hundred pounds, and yielded three or four quintals of caviar. The corn of the Bofphorus had fupplied the Athenians in the time of Demofthenes.

47 De Guignes, Hift. des Huns, tom. iii. p. 343, 344. Viaggi di Ramufio, tom. i. fol. 400. But this land or water carriage could 46 Chardin (Voyages en Perfe, tom. i. only be practicable when Tartary was united principal

282

and infolence.

principal establishment of Caffa 43 was befieged without effect by the C H A P. Tartar powers. Deftitute of a navy, the Greeks were oppreffed by these haughty merchants, who fed, or famished, Constantinople. according to their intereft. They proceeded to usurp the customs. the fifhery, and even the toll, of the Bofphorus; and while they derived from these objects a revenue of two hundred thousand pieces of gold, a remnant of thirty thousand was reluctantly allowed to the emperor 49. The colony of Pera or Galata acted, in peace and war, as an independent ftate; and, as it will happen in diftant fettlements, the Genoefe podefta too often forgot that he was the fervant of his own masters.

These usurpations were encouraged by the weakness of the elder Their war Andronicus, and by the civil wars that afflicted his age and the mi- peror Cantanority of his grandfon. The talents of Cantacuzene were employed A.D. 1348. to the ruin, rather than the reftoration, of the empire; and after his domeftic victory, he was condemned to an ignominious trial, whether the Greeks or the Genoefe fhould reign in Conftantinople. The merchants of Pera were offended by his refufal of fome contiguous lands, fome commanding heights, which they proposed to cover with new fortifications; and in the abfence of the emperor, who was detained at Demotica by fickness, they ventured to brave the debility of a female reign. A Byzantine veffel, which had prefumed to fifh at the mouth of the harbour, was funk by thefe audacious ftrangers; the fifhermen were murdered. Inftead of fuing for pardon, the Genoele demanded fatisfaction; required in an haughty ftrain, that the Greeks fhould renounce the exercise of navigation ; and encountered with regular arms the first fallies of the popular indignation. They inftantly occupied the debateable land; and by the labour of a whole people, of either fex and of every age, the

 $O \circ 2$

with the emcuzene,

281

LXIII.

⁴⁸ Nic. Gregoras (l. xiii. c. 12.) is judi- days, he faw above 400 fail employed in the cious and well-informed on the trade and corn and fifh trade (Voyages en Perfe, tom. i. colonies of the Black Sea. Chardin describes p. 46-48.). the present ruins of Caffa, where, in forty 49 See Nic. Gregoras, 1. xvii. c. 1.

C H A P. wall was raifed, and the ditch was funk, with incredible fpeed. At the fame time, they attacked and burnt two Byzantine gallies; while the three others, the remainder of the Imperial navy, efcaped from their hands: the habitations without the gates, or along the fhore, were pillaged and deftroyed; and the care of the regent, of the emprefs Irene, was confined to the prefervation of the city. The return of Cantacuzene difpelled the public confternation : the emperor inclined to peaceful counfels; but he yielded to the obftinacy of his enemies, who rejected all reafonable terms, and to the ardour of his fubjects, who threatened, in the ftyle of fcripture, to break them in pieces like a potter's veffel. Yet they reluctantly paid the taxes, that he imposed for the construction of ships, and the expences of the war; and as the two nations were mafters, the one of the land, the other of the fea, Constantinople and Pera were preffed by the evils of a mutual fiege. The merchants of the colony, who had believed that a few days would terminate the war, already murmured at their loffes; the fuccours from their mother-country were delayed by the factions of Genoa; and the most cautious embraced the opportunity of a Rhodian veffel to remove their families and effects from the scene of hostility. In the spring, the Byzantine fleet, seven Destruction of his fleet, gallies and a train of fmaller veffels, iffued from the mouth of the A. D. 1349. harbour, and fteered in a fingle line along the fhore of Pera; unfkilfully prefenting their fides to the beaks of the adverfe fquadron. The crews were composed of peafants and mechanics; nor was their ignorance compensated by the native courage of Barbarians: the wind was ftrong, the waves were rough; and no fooner did the Greeks perceive a diftant and inactive enemy, than they leaped headlong into the fea, from a doubtful, to an inevitable, peril. The troops that marched to the attack of the lines of Pera were ftruck at the fame moment with a fimilar panic; and the Genoefe were aftonished, and almost ashamed, at their double victory. Their triumphant veffels, crowned with flowers, and dragging after them the the captive gallies, repeatedly paffed and repaffed before the palace : C H A P. LXIII. the only virtue of the emperor was patience; and the hope of revenge his fole confolation. Yet the diftrefs of both parties interpoled a temporary agreement; and the shame of the empire was difguifed by a thin veil of dignity and power. Summoning the chiefs of the colony, Cantacuzene affected to despife the trivial object of the debate; and, after a mild reproof, most liberally granted the lands, which had been previoufly refigned to the feeming cuftody of his officers 5°.

But the emperor was foon folicited to violate the treaty, and to Victory of join his arms with the Venetians, the perpetual enemies of Genoa over the Veand her colonies. While he compared the reafons of peace and Greeks, war, his moderation was provoked by a wanton infult of the in- A.D. 1352, February 13. habitants of Pera, who discharged from their rampart a large stone that fell in the midft of Conftantinople. On his just complaint, they coldly blamed the imprudence of their engineer; but the next day the infult was repeated, and they exulted in a fecond proof that the royal city was not beyond the reach of their artillery. Cantacuzene inftantly figned his treaty with the Venetians; but the weight of the Roman empire was fcarcely felt in the balance of thefe opulent and powerful republics 54. From the ftreights of Gibraltar to the mouth of the Tanais, their fleets encountered each other with various fuccefs; and a memorable battle was fought in the narrow fea, under the walls of Conftantinople. It would not be an eafy tafk to reconcile the accounts of the Greeks, the Venetians, and the Genoefe⁵²; and while I depend on the narrative of an impartial s' This fecond war is darkly told by Canwho wifhes to difguife what he dares not lection of the Hiftorians of Italy. deny. I regret this part of Nic. Gre-

52 Muratori (Annali d'Italia, tom. xii. p. 144.) refers to the most ancient Chronicles of Venice (Carefinus, the continuator of Andrew Dandulus, tom. xii. p. 421, 422.) and Genoa (George Stella, Annales Genuenfes, ⁵¹ This fecond war is darkly told by Can- tom. xvii. p. 1091, 1092.); both which I tacuzene (l. iv. c. 18. p. 24, 25. 28-32.), have diligently confulted in his great Col-historian,

the Genoele netians and ⁵⁰ The events of this war are related by goras, which is still in MS. at Paris. Cantacuzene (1. iv. c. 11.) with obscurity and confusion, and by Nic. Gregoras (1. xvii. c. 1-7.) in a clear and honeft narrative. The prieft was lefs responsible than the prince for the defeat of the fleet.

C H A P. historian⁵³, I shall borrow from each nation the facts that redound to their own difgrace, and the honour of their foes. The Vene-~~~~~ tians, with their allies the Catalans, had the advantage of number; and their fleet, with the poor addition of eight Byzantine gallies, amounted to feventy-five fail: the Genoele did not exceed fixty-four: but in those times their ships of war were diffinguished by the superiority of their fize and ftrength. The names and families of their naval commanders, Pifani and Doria, are illustrious in the annals of their country; but the perfonal merit of the former was eclipfed by the fame and abilities of his rival. They engaged in tempeftuous weather; and the tumultuary conflict was continued from the dawn to the extinction of light. The enemies of the Genoele applaud their prowels : the friends of the Venetians are diffatisfied with their behaviour ; but all parties agree in praifing the fkill and boldnefs of the Catalans, who, with many wounds, fuftained the brunt of the action. On the feparation of the fleets, the event might appear doubtful; but the thirteen Genoese gallies, that had been funk or taken, were compenfated by a double loss of the allies; of fourteen Venetians, ten Catalans, and two Greeks; and even the grief of the conquerors expressed the assurance and habit of more decisive victories. Pifani confeffed his defeat, by retiring into a fortified harbour, from whence, under the pretext of the orders of the fenate, he steered with a broken and flying squadron for the isle of Candia, and abandoned to his rivals the fovereignty of the fea. In a public epiftle, addreffed to the doge and fenate, Petrarch employs his eloquence to reconcile the maritime powers, the two luminaries of Italy. The orator celebrates the valour and victory of the Genoefe, the first of men in the exercise of naval war: he drops a tear on the Vie de Petrarque, tom. iii. p. 257-263.) the following year (p. 323-332.).

4

53 See the Ch-onicle of Matteo Villani of translates this letter, which he had copied trarch pours forth his aftonifhment and grief 54 The Abbé de Sade (Memoires fur la at the defeat and despair of the Genoese in misfortunes

286

LXIII.

Florence, l. ii. c. 59, 60. p. 145-147. from a MS. in the king of France's library. c. 74, 75. p. 156, 157. in Muratori's Collec- Though a fervant of the duke of Milan, Petion, tom. xiv.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

misfortunes of their Venetian brethren; but he exhorts them to C H A P. purfue with fire and fword the bafe and perfidious Greeks; to purge the metropolis of the East from the herefy with which it was infected. Deferted by their friends, the Greeks were incapable of Their treaty refistance; and three months after the battle, the emperor Cantacuzene folicited and fubfcribed a treaty, which for ever banifhed the Venetians and Catalans, and granted to the Genoefe a monopoly of trade, and almost a right of dominion. The Roman empire (I fmile in transcribing the name) might foon have funk into a province of Genoa, if the ambition of the republic had not been checked by the ruin of her freedom and naval power. A long contest of one hundred and thirty years was determined by the triumph of Venice; and the factions of the Genoefe compelled them to feek for domeftic peace under the protection of a foreign lord, the duke of Milan, or the French king. Yet the fpirit of commerce furvived that of conqueft; and the colony of Pera ftill awed the capital and navigated the Euxine, till it was involved by the Turks in the final fervitude of Conftantinople itfelf.

LXIII.

287

with the empire, May 6.

CHAP. LXIV.

Conquests of Zingis Khan and the Moguls from China to Poland.—Escape of Constantinople and the Greeks.— Origin of the Ottoman Turks in Bithynia.—Reigns and Victories of Othman, Orchan, Amurath the First, and Bajazet the First.—Foundation and Progress of the Turkish Monarchy in Asia and Europe.—Danger of Constantinople and the Greek Empire.

ROM the petty quarrels of a city and her fuburbs, from the cowardice and difcord of the falling Greeks, I fhall now afcend to the victorious Turks; whole domeftic flavery was ennobled by martial difcipline, religious enthuliafm, and the energy of the national character. The rife and progrefs of the Ottomans, the prefent fovereigns of Conftantinople, are connected with the moft important fcenes of modern hiftory: but they are founded on a previous knowledge of the great eruption of the Moguls and Tartars; whole rapid conquefts may be compared with the primitive convultions of nature, which have agitated and altered the furface of the globe. I have long fince afferted my claim to introduce the nations, the immediate or remote authors of the fall of the Roman empire; nor can I refufe myfelf to thole events, which, from their uncommon magnitude, will intereft a philofophic mind in the hiftory of blood'.

¹ The reader is invited to review the chapters of the fecond and third volumes; the at a time when lentertained the wifh, rather manners of pafforal nations, the conquefts of than the hope, of concluding my hiftory.

From

C H A P. LXIV.

From the fpacious highlands between China, Siberia, and the C H A P. Cafpian Sea, the tide of emigration and war has repeatedly been ZingisKhan, poured. These ancient feats of the Huns and Turks were occupied first emperor in the twelfth century by many paftoral tribes, of the fame defcent of the Moguls and and fimilar manners, which were united and led to conquest by the Tartars, formidable Zingis. In his afcent to greatness, that Barbarian (whofe 1206-1227. private appellation was Temugin) had trampled on the necks of his equals. His birth was noble: but it was in the pride of victory, that the prince or people deduced his feventh anceftor from the immaculate conception of a virgin. His father had reigned over thirteen hords, which composed about thirty or forty thousand families : above two-thirds refused to pay tithes or obedience to his infant fon; and at the age of thirteen, Temugin fought a battle against his rebellious fubjects. The future conqueror of Afia was reduced to fly and to obey: but he role fuperior to his fortune, and in his fortieth year he had eftablished his fame and dominion over the circumjacent tribes. In a flate of fociety, in which policy is rude and valour is univerfal, the afcendant of one man must be founded on his power and refolution to punish his enemies and recompense his friends. His first military league was ratified by the fimple rites of facrificing an horfe and taffing of a running ftream : Temugin pledged himfelf to divide with his followers the fweets and the bitters of life; and, when he had fhared among them his horfes and apparel, he was rich in their gratitude and his own hopes. After his first victory, he placed feventy chaldrons on the fire, and feventy of the moft guilty rebels were caft headlong into the boiling water. The fphere of his attraction was continually enlarged by the ruin of the proud and the fubmiffion of the prudent; and the boldeft chieftains might tremble, when they beheld, enchafed in filver, the fkull of the khan of the Keraites²; who, under the name of Prefter John,

LXIV.

A. D.

² The khans of the Keraites were most epistles composed in their name by the Nestoprobably incapable of reading the pompous rian millionaries, who endowed them with Vol. VI. Рp the ^C H A P. LXIV. Europe. The ambition of Temugin condefcended to employ the arts of fuperfition; and it was from a naked prophet, who could afcend to heaven on a white horfe, that he accepted the title of Zingis³, the moß great; and a divine right to the conqueft and dominion of the earth. In a general couroultai, or diet, he was feated on a felt, which was long afterwards revered as a relic, and folemnly proclaimed great khan, or emperor, of the Moguls^{*} and Tartars⁵. Of thefe kindred, though rival, names, the former had given birth to the Imperial race; and the latter has been extended, by accident or error, over the fpacious wildernefs of the north.

His laws.

The code of laws which Zingis dictated to his fubjects, was adapted to the prefervation of domeflic peace, and the exercise of foreign hoftility. The punishment of death was inflicted on the crimes of adultery, murder, perjury, and the capital thefts of an horse or ox; and the sercess of men were mild and just in their intercourse with each other. The future election of the great khan was vested in the princes of his family and the heads of the tribes; and the regulations of the chace were effential to the pleasures and plenty of a Tartar camp. The victorious nation was held faceed from all fervile labours, which were abandoned to flaves and flrangers;

³ Since the hiftory and tragedy of Voltaire, defcended from Tat Gengis, at leaft in French, feems to be the more fathionable fpelling : but Abulghazi Khan and once formed a 1 muthave known the true name of his anceftor. on the borders of Ki His etymology appears juft: Zin, in the Mogul the great invafion o tongue, fignifies great, and gis is the fuperlative termination (Hift, Genealogique des Tatars, part iii. p. 194, 195.). From the fame idea of magnitude, the appe'lation of Ziagis is beflowed on the ocean.

⁴ The name of Moguls has prevailed among the Orientals, and ftill adheres to the titular fovereign, the Great Mogul, of Hindoftan.

⁵ The Tartars (more properly Tatars) were defcended from Tatar Khan, the brother of Mogul Khan (fee Abulghazi, part i and ii.), and once formed a hord of 70,000 families on the borders of Kitay (p. 103—112.). In the great invafion of Europe (A. D. 1238), they feem to have led the vanguard; and the fimilitude of the name of Tartarei, recommended that of Tartars to the Latins (Matt. Paris, p. 398, &c).

the fabulous wonders of an Indian kingdom. Perhaps thefe Tartars (the Prefbyter or Prieft John) had fubmitted to the rites of baptifm and ordination (Affeman, Eibliot. Orient. tom iii. P_3 ii. p. 487 - 503.).

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

and every labour was fervile except the profession of arms. The CHAP. fervice and discipline of the troops, who were armed with bows, fcymetars, and iron maces, and divided by hundreds, thousands, and ten thousands, were the inflitutions of a veteran commander. Each officer and foldier was made responsible, under pain of death, for the fafety and honour of his companions; and the fpirit of conquest breathed in the law, that peace should never be granted unless to a vanquished and suppliant enemy. But it is the religion of Zingis that beft deferves our wonder and applaufe. The Catholic inquifitors of Europe, who defended nonfenfe by cruelty, might have been confounded by the example of a Barbarian, who anticipated the leffons of philosophy , and eftablished by his laws a fystem of pure theifm and perfect toleration. His first and only article of faith was the existence of one God, the author of all good; who fills by his prefence the heavens and earth, which he has created by his power. The Tartars and Moguls were addicted to the idols of their peculiar tribes; and many of them had been converted by the foreign miffionaries to the religions of Mofes, of Mahomet, and of Chrift. These various systems in freedom and concord, were taught and practifed within the precincts of the fame camp; and the Bonze, the Imam, the Rabbi, the Neftorian and the Latin prieft, enjoyed the fame honourable exemption from fervice and tribute : in the mosch of Bochara, the infolent victor might trample the koran under his horfes feet, but the calm legiflator respected the prophets and pontiffs of the most hostile fects. The reason of Zingis was not informed by books; the khan could neither read nor write; and, except the tribe of the Igours, the greateft part of the Moguls and Tartars were as illiterate as their fovereign. The memory of their 291

Pp 2

LXIV.

~

⁶ A fingular conformity may be found be- in his works, vol. iv. p. 535. 4to edition, tween the religious laws of Zingis Khan and 1777). of Mr. Locke (Constitutions of Carolina,

LXIV.

C H A P. their exploits was preferved by tradition : fixty-eight years after the death of Zingis, thefe traditions were collected and transcribed'; the brevity of their domeftic annals may be fupplied by the Chinefe⁸, Perfians', Armenians'', Syrians'', Arabians'', Greeks'', Ruffians'4, Poles's, > Cazan, khan of Perfia, the fourth in defcent from Zingis. From thefe traditions, his vizir Fadlallah composed a Mogul history in the Perfian language, which has been used by Petit de la Croix (Hift. de Genghizcan, p. 537-539.). The Hiftoire Genealogique des Tatars (à Leyde, 1726, in 12mo, 2 tomes) was translated by the Swedift prifoners in Siberia from the Mogul MS. of Abulgafi Bahadur Khan, a defcendant of Zingis, who reigned over the Ufbeks of Charafm, or Carizme (A. D. 1644-1663). He is of most value and credit for the names, pedigrees, and manners of his nation. Of his nine parts, the ist defcends from Adam to Mogul Khan; the iid, from Mogul to Zingis; the iiid, is the life of Zingis; the ivth, vth, vith, and viith; the general hiftory of his four fons, and their posterity; the viiith and ixth, the particular history of the defcendants of Sheibani Khan, who reigned in Maurenahar and Charafm.

> 8 Hifloire de Gentchifcan, et de toute la Dinastie des Mongous ses Successeurs, Conquerans de la Chine; tirée de l'Histoire de la Chine, par le R. P Gaubil, de la Societé de Jefus, Miffionaire à Peking; à Paris, 1730, in 4to. This translation is stamped with the Chinefe character of domeftic accuracy and foreign ignorance.

> 9 See the Hiftoire du Grand Genghizcan, premier Empereur des Mogols et Tartares, par M. Petis de la Croix, à Paris, 1710, in 12mo : a work of ten years labour, chiefly drawn from the Perfian writers, among whom Nifavi, the secretary of fultan Gelaleddin, has the merit and prejudices of a contemporary, A flight air of romance is the fault of the originals, or the compiler. See likewife the articles of Genghizcan, Mohammed, ⁷ In the year 1294, by the command of Gelaleddin, &c. in the Bibliotheque Orientale of d'Herbelot.

> 10 Haithonus, or Aithonus, an Armenian prince, and afterwards a monk of Premontré (Fabric. Bibliot. Lat. medii Ævi, tom. i. p. 34.), dictated in the French language, his book de Tartaris, his old fellow-foldiers. It was immediately translated into Latin, and is inferted in the Novus Orbis of Simon Grynæus (Bafil, 1755, in folio).

12 Zingis Khan, and his first fucceffors, occupy the conclusion of the ixth Dynasty of Abulpharagius (verf. Pocock, Oxon. 1663, in 4^{to}); and his xth Dynasty is that of the Moguls of Persia. Assemannus (Bibliot. Orient. tom. ii.) has extracted fome facts from his Syriac writings, and the lives of the Jacobite maphrians, or primates of the East.

*2 Among the Arabians, in language and religion, we may diftinguish Abulfeda, sultan of Hamah in Syria, who fought in perfon, under the Mamaluke flandard, against tho Moguls.

¹³ Nicephorus Gregoras (l. ii. c. 5, 6.) has felt the necessity of connecting, the Scythian. and Byzantine histories. He defcribes with truth and elegance the fettlement and manners of the Moguls of Perfia, but he is ignorant of their origin, and corrupts the names of Zingis and his fons.

14 M. Levefque (Hiftoire de Ruffie, tom. ii.) has defcribed the conquest of Ruffia by the Tartars, from the patriarch Nicon, and the old chronicles.

35 For Poland, I am content with the Sarmatia Afiatica et Europea of Matthew à Michou, or de Michoviâ, a canon and phyfician of Cracow (A. D. 1506), inferted in the Novus Orbis of Grynæus. Fabric. Bibliot. Latin mediæ et infimæ Ætatis, tom. v. p. 56.

Hungarians.

Hungarians16, and Latins17; and each nation will deferve credit in the C H A P. LXIV. relation of their own difasters and defeats".

The arms of Zingis and his lieutenants fucceffively reduced the His invation hords of the defert, who pitched their tents between the wall of China and the Volga; and the Mogul emperor became the monarch of the paftoral world, the lord of many millions of shepherds and foldiers, who felt their united ftrength, and were impatient to rufh on the mild and wealthy climates of the fouth. His anceftors had been the tributaries of the Chinese emperors; and Temugin himfelf had been difgraced by a title of honour and fervitude. The court of Pekin was aftonished by an embaffy from its former vaffal, who, in the tone of the king of nations, exacted the tribute and obedience which he had paid, and who affected to treat the fon of beaven as the most contemptible of mankind. An haughty answer difguifed their fecret apprehenfions; and their fears were foon juftified by the march of innumerable fquadrons, who pierced on all fides the feeble rampart of the great wall. Ninety cities were ftormed, or ftarved, by the Moguls; ten only efcaped; and Zingis, from a knowledge of the filial piety of the Chinefe, covered his general historian (pars ii. c. 74. p. 150.), in the ist volume of the Scriptores Rerum Hungaricarum, did not the fame volume contain the original narrative of a contemporary, an eye-witnefs,' and a fufferer (M. Rogerii, Hungari, Varadiensis Capituli Canonici, Carmen miferabile, feu Historia fuper Deftructione Regni Hungariæ, Temporibus Belæ IV. Regis per Tartaros facta, p. 292-321.): the best picture that I have ever feen of all the circumftances of a Barbaric invafion.

17 Matthew Paris has represented, from aothentic documents, the danger and diffrefs of Europe (confult the word Tartari in his copious Index). From motives of zeal and curiofity, the court of the great Khan, in the xilith century, was visited by two friars, 15 I should quote Thuroczius, the oldest John de Plano Carpini, and William Rubruquis, and by Marco Polo, a Venetian gentleman. The Latin relations of the two former are inferted in the ist volume of Hackluyt; the Italian original or verfion of the third (Fabric. Bibliot. Latin. medii Ævi, tom. ii. p. 198. tom. v. p. 25.) may be found in the iid tome of Ramufio.

> 18 In his great Hiftory of the Huns, M. de Guignes has most amply treated of Zingis Khan and his fucceffors. See tom. iii. 1. xv -xix. and in the collateral articles of the Seljukians of Roum, tom. ii. l. xi. the Carizmians, l. xiv. and the Mamalukes, tom. iv. l. xxi.: confult likewife the tables of the ist volume. He is ever learned and accurate; yet I am only indebted to him for a general view, and fome paffages of Abulfeda, which are still latent in the Arabic text.

> > vanguard

293

of China, A. D.

1210-1214.

C H A P. vanguard with their captive parents; an unworthy, and by degrees a fruitlefs, abuse of the virtue of his enemies. His invasion was fupported by the revolt of an hundred thousand Khitans, who guarded the frontier : yet he liftened to a treaty; and a princefs of China, three thousand horses, five hundred youths and as many virgins, and a tribute of gold and filk, were the price of his retreat. In his fecond expedition, he compelled the Chinefe emperor to retire beyond the yellow river to a more fouthern refidence. The fiege of Pekin" was long and laborious: the inhabitants were reduced by famine to decimate and devour their fellow-citizens; when their ammunition was spent, they discharged ingots of gold and filver from their engines; but the Moguls introduced a mine to the centre of the capital; and the conflagration of the palace burnt above thirty days. China was defolated by Tartar war and domeftic faction; and the five northern provinces were added to the empire of Zingis.

of Carizme, Tranfoxiana, and Perfi1. A.D. 1218-1224.

In the Weft, he touched the dominions of Mohammed fultan of Carizme, who reigned from the Perfian Gulf to the borders of India and Turkeftan; and who, in the proud imitation of Alexander the Great, forgot the fervitude and ingratitude of his fathers to the houfe of Seljuk. It was the wifh of Zingis to eftablish a friendly and commercial intercourfe with the most powerful of the Moslem princes; nor could he be tempted by the fecret folicitations of the caliph of Bagdad, who facrificed to his perfonal wrongs the fafety of the church and ftate. A rafh and inhuman deed provoked and justified the Tartar arms in the invasion of the southern Asia. A caravan of three ambaffadors and one hundred and fifty merchants, was arrefted and murdered at Otrar, by the command of Mohamwas built by Cublai Khan (Gaubel, p. 146.). (p. 177.). Pe-king and Nan-king are vague titles, the ¹⁹ More properly Yen-king, an ancient courts of the north and of the fouth. The city, whole ruins still appear some furlongs identity and change of names perplex the to the fouth-east of the modern Pekin, which most skilful readers of the Chinese geography med; ·

LXIV.

med; nor was it till after a demand and denial of juffice, till he had CHAP. prayed and fasted three nights on a mountain, that the Mogul emperor appealed to the judgment of God and his fword. Our European battles, fays a philosophic writer 20, are petty skirmishes, if compared to the numbers that have fought and fallen in the fields of Afia. Seven hundred thousand Moguls and Tartars are faid to have marched under the ftandard of Zingis and his four fons. In the vaft plains that extend to the north of the Sihon or Jaxartes, they were encountered by four hundred thousand foldiers of the fultan; and in the first battle, which was fuspended by the night, one hundred and fixty thousand Carizmians were flain. Mohammed was aftonished by the multitude and valour of his enemies : he withdrew from the fcene of danger, and diffributed his troops in the frontier towns, trufting that the Barbarians, invincible in the field, would be repulfed by the length and difficulty of fo many regular fieges. But the prudence of Zingis had formed a body of Chinefe engineers, fkilled in the mechanic arts, informed perhaps of the fecret of gunpowder, and capable, under his difcipline, of attacking a foreign country with more vigour and fuccels than they had defended their own. The Persian historians will relate the fieges and reduction of Otrar, Cogende, Bochara, Samarcand, Carizme, Herat, Merou, Nifabour, Balch, and Candahar; and the conquest of the rich and populous countries of Transoxiana, Carizme, and Chorafan. The destructive hostilities of Attila and the Huns have long fince been elucidated by the example of Zingis and the Moguls; and in this more proper place I shall be content to observe, that, from the Caspian to the Indus, they ruined a tract of many hundred miles, which was adorned with the habitations and labours of mankind, and that five centuries have not been fufficient to repair the ravages of four years. The Moguł emperor encouraged or indulged the fury of his troops :

the

LXIV.

²⁹ M. de Voltaire, Effai fur l'Hiftoire Ge- much general fense and truth, with fome nerale, tom. ini. c. 60. p. 8. His account particular errors. of Zingis and the Muguls contains, as ufual,

C H A P. the hope of future possession was lost in the ardour of rapine and LXIV. flaughter; and the caufe of the war exafperated their native fierce-----nefs by the pretence of justice and revenge. The downfal and death of the fultan Mohammed, who expired unpitied and alone, in a defert island of the Caspian Sea, is a poor atonement for the calamities of which he was the author. Could the Carizmian empire have been faved by a fingle hero, it would have been faved by his fon Gelaleddin, whofe active valour repeatedly checked the Moguls in the career of victory. Retreating, as he fought, to the banks of the Indus, he was oppreffed by their innumerable hoft, till, in the last moment of despair, Gelaleddin spurred his horse into the waves, fwam one of the broadeft and most rapid rivers of Afia, and extorted the admiration and applaufe of Zingis himfelf. It was in this camp that the Mogul conqueror yielded with reluctance to the murmurs of his weary and wealthy troops, who fighed for the enjoyment of their native land. Incumbered with the fpoils of Afia, he flowly meafured back his footfteps, betrayed fome pity for the mifery of the vanquished, and declared his intention of rebuilding the cities which had been fwept away by the tempeft of his arms. After he had repafied the Oxus and Jaxartes, he was joined by two generals, whom he had detached with thirty thousand horfe, to fubdue the western provinces of Persia. They had trampled on the nations which oppofed their paffage, penetrated through the gates of Derbend, traverfed the Volga and the Defert, and accomplifhed the circuit of the Cafpian Sea, by an expedition which had never been attempted, and has never been repeated. The return of Zingis was fignalized by the overthrow of the rebellious or independent kingdoms of Tartary; and he died in the fulness of years and glory, with his laft breath exhorting and inftructing his fons to atchieve the conquest of the Chinese empire.

His death, A. D. 1227.

Conquefts of the Moguls under the fucceffors of Zingis,

The haram of Zingis was composed of five hundred wives and concubines; and of his numerous progeny, four fons, illustrious by their their birth and merit, exercifed under their father the principal of- C H A P. fices of peace and war. Toushi was his great huntiman, Zagatai 24 his judge, Octai his minister, and Tuli his general; and their names 1227-1295. and actions are often confpicuous in the hiftory of his conquefts. Firmly united for their own and the public intereft, the three brothers and their families were content with dependent fceptres; and Octai, by general confent, was proclaimed great khan, or emperor of the Moguls and Tartars. He was fucceeded by his fon Gayuk, after whofe death the empire devolved to his coufins Mangou and Cublai, the fons of Tuli, and the grandfons of Zingis. In the fixty-eight years of his four first fucceffors, the Mogul fubdued almost all Afia, and a large portion of Europe. Without confining myfelf to the order of time, without expatiating on the detail of events, I shall prefent a general picture of the progress of their arms; I. In the Eaft; II. In the South; III. In the Weft; and IV. In the North.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

I. Before the invation of Zingis, China was divided into two Of the northempires or dynafties of the North and South 22; and the difference China, of origin and intereft was fmoothed by a general conformity of laws, language, and national manners. The Northern empire, which had been difmembered by Zingis, was finally fubdued feven years after his death. After the lofs of Pekin, the emperor had fixed his refidence at Kaifong, a city many leagues in circumference, and which contained, according to the Chinese annals, fourteen hundred thoufand families of inhabitants and fugitives. He efcaped from thence with only feven horfemen, and made his laft ftand in a third capital, 21 Zagatai gave his name to his dominions of Maurenahar, or Transoxiana; and the Moguls of Hindoftan, who emigrated from that country, are styled Zagatais by the Perfians. This certain etymology, and the fimilar example of Uzbek, Nogai, &c. may warn us not abfolutely to reject the derivations of a national, from a perfonal, name.

22 In Marco Polo, and the Oriental geographers, the names of Cathay and Mangi diffinguish the northern and fouthern empires, which, from A. D. 1234 to 1279, were those of the Great Khan, and of the Chinese. The fearch of Cathay, after China had been found, excited and milled our navigators of the fivteenth century, in their attempts to difcover the north-east passage.

VOL. VI.

ern empire of A. D. 1234.

LXIV. A. D.

Qq

C H A P. till at length the hopelefs monarch, protefting his innocence and acculing his fortune, alcended a funeral pile, and gave orders, that, ---as foon as he had flabbed himfelf, the fire fhould be kindled by his attendants. The dynafty of the Song, the native and ancient fovereigns of the whole empire, furvived about forty-five years the fall of the northern ufurpers; and the perfect conquest was referved for the arms of Cublai. During this interval, the Moguls were often diverted by foreign wars; and, if the Chinese feldom dared to meet their victors in the field, their paffive courage prefented an endlefs fucceffion of cities to florm and of millions to flaughter. In the attack and defence of places, the engines of antiquity and the Greek fire were alternately employed : the ufe of gunpowder in cannon and bombs appears as a familiar practice 23; and the fieges were conducted by the Mahometans and Franks, who had been liberally invited into the fervice of Cublai. After paffing the great river, the troops and artillery were conveyed along a feries of canals, till they invested the royal refidence of Hamcheu, or Quinfay, in the country of filk, the most delicious climate of China. The emperor, a defencelefs youth, furrendered his perfon and fceptre; and before he was fent in exile into Tartary he ftruck nine times the ground with his forehead, to adore in prayer or thankfgiving the mercy of the Of the fouth- great khan. Yet the war (it was now ftyled a rebellion) was ftill maintained in the fouthern provinces from Hamcheu to Canton; A. D. 1279. and the obftinate remnant of independence and hoftility was tranfported from the land to the fea. But when the fleet of the Song was furrounded and oppreffed by a fuperior armament, their laft cham> of the Pere Gaubil, who translates the Chinefe text of the Annals of the Moguls or Yuen (p. 71. 93. 153.); but I am ignorant at what time thefe annals were composed and published. The two uncles of Marco Polo, who ferved as engineers at the fiege of Siengyangfou (1. ii. c. 61. in Ramufio, tom. ii. See the use of gunpowder has been known to the Gaubil, p. 155. 157.), must have felt and related the effects of this deftructive powder, and 23 I depend on the knowledge and fidelity their filence is a weighty, and almost decifive, objection. I entertain a suspicion, that the recent discovery was carried from Europe to China by the caravans of the xvth century, and fallely adopted as an old national difcovery before the arrival of the Portuguese and Jesuits in the xvith. Yet the Pere Gaubil affirms, that Chinese above 1600 years.

pion

298

ern,

LXIV.

pion leaped into the waves with his infant emperor in his arms. C H A P. " It is more glorious," he cried, " to die a prince, than to live a " flave." An hundred thousand Chinese imitated his example; and the whole empire, from Tonkin to the great wall, fubmitted to the dominion of Cublai. His boundlefs ambition afpired to the conqueft of Japan : his fleet was twice fhipwrecked ; and the lives of an hundred thousand Moguls and Chinese were facrificed in the fruitlefs expedition. But the circumjacent kingdoms, Corea, Tonkin, Cochinchina, Pegu, Bengal, and Thibet, were reduced in different degrees of tribute and obedience by the effort or terror of his arms. He explored the Indian ocean with a fleet of a thousand ships : they failed in fixty-eight days, most probably to the isle of Borneo, under the equinoctial line; and though they returned not without fpoil or glory, the emperor was diffatisfied that the favage king had efcaped from their hands.

II. The conquest of Hindostan by the Moguls, was referved in a OfPerfia, and later period for the house of Timour; but that of Iran, or Perfia, the caliphs, was atchieved by Holagou Khan, the grandfon of Zingis, the brother and lieutenant of the two fucceffive emperors, Mangou and Cublai. I shall not enumerate the crowd of fultans, emirs, and ata-" beks, whom he trampled into duft : but the extirpation of the Affaffins, or Ifmaelians²⁴ of Perfia, may be confidered as a fervice to mankind. Among the hills to the fouth of the Cafpian, thefe odious fectaries had reigned with impunity above an hundred and fixty years; and their prince, or Imam, established his lieutenant to lead and govern the colony of mount Libanus, fo famous and formidable in the hiftory of the crufades²⁵. With the fanaticism of the Koran, the Ifmaelians had blended the Indian transmigration, and the vi-

24 All that can be known of the Affaffins of Persia and Syria, is poured from the copious, had acquired or founded ten castles in the and even profufe, erudition of M. Falconet, hills above Tortofa. About the year 1280, in two memoires read before the Academy of they were extirpated by the Mamalukes. Inferiptions (10m. xvii. p. 127-170.).

Q q 2

fions

the empire of A. D. 1258.

200

LXIV.

²⁵ The Ifmaelians of Syria, 40, 100 Affaffins,

LXIV.

C H A P. fions of their own prophets: and it was their first duty to devote their fouls and bodies in blind obedience to the vicar of God. The daggers of his miffionaries were felt both in the Eaft and Weft : the Chriftians and the Moslems enumerate, and perhaps multiply, the illustrious victims that were facrificed to the zeal, avarice, or refentment of the old man (as he was corruptly ftyled) of the mountain. But these daggers, his only arms, were broken by the fword of Holagou, and not a veftige is left of the enemies of mankind, except the word affaffin, which, in the most odious fense, has been adopted in the languages of Europe. The extinction of the Abbaffides cannot be indifferent to the spectators of their greatness and Since the fall of their Seljukian tyrants, the caliphs had decline. recovered their lawful dominion of Bagdad and the Arabian Irak; but the city was diffracted by theological factions, and the commander of the faithful was loft in a haram of feven hundred concubines. The invation of the Moguls he encountered with feeble arms and haughty embaffies. " On the divine decree," faid the caliph Mostafem, " is founded the throne of the fons of Abbas: and " their foes shall furely be destroyed in this world and in the next. " Who is this Holagou that dares to arife against them? If he be " defirous of peace, let him inftantly depart from the facred terri-" tory; and perhaps he may obtain from our clemency the pardon " of his fault." This prefumption was cherifhed by a perfidious vizir, who affured his mafter, that, even if the Barbarians had entered the city, the women and children, from the terraces, would be fufficient to overwhelm them with ftones. But when Holagou touched the phantom, it inftantly vanished into fmoke. After a fiege of two months, Bagdad was ftormed and facked by the Moguls : and their favage commander pronounced the death of the caliph Moftafem, the last of the temporal successors of Mahomet; whose noble kinfmen, of the race of Abbas, had reigned in Afia above five hundred years. Whatever might be the defigns of the conqueror, the holy cities cities of Mecca and Medina²⁶ were protected by the Arabian defert; C H A P. but the Moguls fpread beyond the Tigris and Euphrates, pillaged Aleppo and Damafcus, and threatened to join the Franks in the deliverance of Jerufalem. Egypt was loft, had the been defended only by her feeble offspring : but the Mamalukes had breathed in their infancy the keennefs of a Scythian air : equal in valour, fuperior in difcipline, they met the Moguls in many a well-fought field; and drove back the ftream of hoftility to the eaftward of the Euphrates. But it overflowed with refiftlefs violence the kingdoms of Armenia Of Anatolia, and Anatolia, of which the former was poffeffed by the Christians, 1242-1272. and the latter by the Turks. The fultans of Iconium oppofed fome refiftance to the Mogul arms, till Azzadin fought a refuge among the Greeks of Conftantinople, and his feeble fucceffors, the laft of the Seljukian dynafty, were finally extirpated by the khans of Perfia.

300.

III. No fooner had Octai fubverted the northern empire of China, than he refolved to vifit with his arms, the most remote countries of the Weft. Fifteen hundred thousand Moguls and Tartars were inferibed on the military roll; of these the great khan felected a third, which he entrusted to the command of his nephew Batou, the fon of Tuli; who reigned over his father's conquests to the north of the Caspian Sea. After a feftival of forty days, Batou fet forwards on this great expedition ; and fuch was the fpeed and ardour of his innumerable fquadrons, that in lefs than fix years they had meafured a line of ninety degrees of longitude, a fourth part of the circumference of the globe. The great rivers of Afia and Europe, the Volga and Kama, the Don and Boryfthenes, the Viftula and Danube, they either fwam with their horfes, or paffed on the ice, or traverfed in leathern boats, which followed the camp, and transported their waggons and artillery. By the first victories of Batou, the remains of national freedom

A. D.

Of Kipzak, Ruffia, Poland, Hungary, &c. A. D. 1235-1245-were

LXIV.

²⁶ As a proof of the ignorance of the the conquefts of Zingis himfelf to Medina, Chinese in foreign transactions, I must ob- the country of Mahomet (Gaubil, p. 42.). ferve, that fome of their historians extend

C H A P. were eradicated in the immense plains of Turkestan and Kipzak²⁷. In his rapid progrefs, he overran the kingdoms, as they are now ftyled, of Aftracan and Cazan; and the troops which he detached towards mount Caucafus, explored the most fecret receffes of Georgia and Circaffia. The civil difcord of the great dukes, or princes, of Ruffia, betrayed their country to the Tartars. They fpread from Livonia to the Black Sea, and both Mofcow and Kiow, the modern and the ancient capitals, were reduced to afhes; a temporary ruin, less fatal than the deep, and perhaps indelible, mark, which a fervitude of two hundred years has imprinted on the character of the Ruffians. The Tartars ravaged with equal fury the countries which they hoped to poffefs, and those which they were haftened to leave. From the permanent conqueft of Ruffia, they made a deadly, though transient, inroad into the heart of Poland, and as far as the borders of Germany. The cities of Lublin and Cracow were obliterated: they approached the flores of the Baltic; and in the battle of Lignitz. they defeated the dukes of Silefia, the Polifh palatines, and the great mafter of the Teutonic order, and filled nine facks with the rightcars of the flain. From Lignitz, the extreme point of their western march, they turned afide to the invafion of Hungary; and the prefence or spirit of Batou inspired the host of five hundred thousand men: the Carpathian hills could not be long impervious to their divided columns; and their approach had been fondly difbelieved till it was irrefiftibly felt. The king, Bela the fourth, affembled the military force of his counts and bishops: but he had alienated the nation by adopting a vagrant hord of forty thousand families of Comans, and thefe favage guefts were provoked to revolt by the fuspicion of treachery and the murder of their prince. The whole country north of the Danube was loft in a day, and depopulated in a fummer; and the ruins of cities and churches were overfpread

> 27 The Dafbie Kipzak, or plain of Kipzak, thenes, and is supposed to contain the primiextends on either fide of the Volga, in a tive name and nation of the Cofacks. boundlefs fpace towards the Jaik and Boryf-

302

LXIV. ____

with

with the bones of the natives, who explated the fins of their Turkifh C H A P. LXIV. anceftors. An ecclefiaftic, who fled from the fack of Waradin, deferibes the calamities which he had feen or fuffered ; and the fanguinary rage of fieges and battles is far lefs atrocious than the treatment of the fugitives, who had been allured from the woods under a promife of peace and pardon, and who were coolly flaughtered as foon as they had performed the labours of the harveft and vintage. In the winter, the Tartars paffed the Danube on the ice, and advanced to Gran or Strigonium, a German colony, and the metropolis of the kingdom. Thirty engines were planted against the walls; the ditches were filled with facks of earth and dead bodies; and after a promiscuous massacre, three hundred noble matrons were flain in the prefence of the khan. Of all the cities and fortreffes of Hungary, three alone furvived the Tartar invafion, and the unfortunate Bata hid his head among the iflands of the Adriatic.

The Latin world was darkened by this cloud of favage hoftility: a Ruffian fugitive carried the alarm to Sweden; and the remote nations of the Baltic and the ocean trembled at the approach of the Tartars²³, whom their fear and ignorance were inclined to feparate from the human species. Since the invasion of the Arabs in the eighth century, Europe had never been exposed to a fimilar calamity; and if the difciples of Mahomet would have oppreffed her religion and liberty, it might be apprehended that the shepherds of Scythia would extinguish her cities, her arts, and all the inflitutions of civil fociety. The Roman pontiff attempted to appeale and convert these invincible Pagans by a mission of Franciscan and Dominican friars; but he was aftonifhed by the reply of the khan, by their fear of the Tartars, from fending, the coast of England; and as there was no rings in the English market. exportation, forty or fifty of thefe fifh were 28 In the year 1238, the inhabitants of fold for a shilling (Matthew Paris, p. 396.). Gothia (Sweden) and Frife were prevented, It is whimfical enough, that the orders of a Mogul khan, who reigned on the borders of as usual, their ships to the herring-fishery on China, should have lowered the price of her-

that

C H A P. that the fons of God and of Zingis were invefted with a divine LXIV. power to fubdue or extirpate the nations; and that the pope would ----be involved in the univerfal deftruction, unless he visited in perfon, and as a fuppliant, the royal hord. The emperor Frederic the fecond embraced a more generous mode of defence; and his letters to the kings of France and England, and the princes of Germany, reprefented the common danger, and urged them to arm their vaffals in this just and rational crufade 29. The Tartars themselves were awed by the fame and valour of the Franks: the town of Newstadt in Auftria was bravely defended against them by fifty knights and twenty crofs-bows; and they raifed the fiege on the appearance of a German army. After wasting the adjacent kingdoms of Servia, Bofnia, and Bulgaria, Batou flowly retreated from the Danube to the Volga to enjoy the rewards of victory in the city and palace of Serai, which flarted at his command from the midft of the defert.

Of Siberia, A.D. 1242, &c. 1V. Even the poor and frozen regions of the North attracted the arms of the Moguls: Sheibàni Khan, the brother of the great Baton, led an hord of fifteen thousand families into the wilds of Siberia; and his defeendants reigned at Tobolfkoy above three centuries, till the Ruffian conqueft. The fpirit of enterprife which purfued the courfe of the Oby and Yenifei must have led to the difcovery of the icy fea. After brufhing away the monftrous fables, of men with dogs heads and cloven feet, we fhall find, that, fifteen years after the death of Zingis, the Moguls were informed of the name and manners of the Samoyedes in the neighbourhood of the polar circle,

²⁹ I fhall copy his characterific or flattering epithets of the different countries of Euvope: Furens ac fervens ad arma Germania, ftrenuæ militiæ genetrix et alumna Francia, bellicofa et audax Hifpania, virtuofa viris et claffe munita fertilis Anglia, impetuofis bellatoribus referta Alemannia, navalis Dacia, indomita Italia, pacis ignara Burgundia, inquieta

Apulia, cum maris Græci, Adriatici et Tyrrheni infulis pyraticis et invictis, Cretâ, Cypro, Siciliâ, cum Oceano conterminis infulis, et regionibus, cruenta Hybernia, cum agili Wallia, paluftris Scotia, glacialis Norwegia fuam electam militiam fub vexillo Crucis definabunt, &c. (Matthew Paris, p. 498.).

3

who

who dwelt in fubterraneous huts, and derived their furs and their C H A P. LXIV. ford from the fole occupation of hunting 3°.

While China, Syria, and Poland, were invaded at the fame time The fuccefby the Moguls and Tartars, the authors of the mighty mifchief were gis, A.D. content with the knowledge and declaration, that their word was 1227-1259. the fword of death. Like the first caliphs, the first fucceffors of Zingis feldom appeared in perfon at the head of their victorious armies. On the banks of the Onon and Selinga, the royal or golden bord exhibited the contrast of fimplicity and greatness; of the roafted fheep and mare's milk which composed their banquets; and of a diffribution in one day of five hundred waggons of gold and filver. The ambaffadors and princes of Europe and Afia were compelled to undertake this diftant and laborious pilgrimage; and the life and reign of the great dukes of Ruffia, the kings of Georgia and Armenia, the fultans of Iconium, and the emirs of Persia, were decided by the frown or fmile of the great khan. The fons and grandfons of Zingis had been accustomed to the pastoral life; but the village of Caracorum³⁴ was gradually ennobled by their election and refidence. A change of manners is implied in the removal of Octai and Mangou from a tent to an houfe; and their example was imitated by the princes of their family and the great officers of the empire. Inftead of the boundless foreft, the inclosure of a park afforded the more indolent pleafures of the chace; their new habitations were decorated with painting and fculpture; their fuperfluous treasures were caft in fountains, and basons, and flatues of maffy filver; and the artifts of China and Paris vied with each other in the fervice of the great khan³². Caracorum contained two ftreets. the ³⁴ The Map of d'Anville, and the Chinefe (Bell's Travels, vol. ii. p. 67.). Itineraries (de Guignes, tom.i. part ii. p. 57.), Vol. VI.

corum, about fix hundred miles to the northwest of Pekin. The distance between Selinginsky and Pekin is near 2000 Russian versts, between 1300 and 1400 English miles

32 Rubruquis found at Caracoram his countryman

_____ fors of Zin-

³º See Carpin's relation in Hackluyt, vol.i. feem to mark the polition of Holin, or Carap. 30. The pedigree of the khans of Siberia is given by Abulghazi (part viii. p. 485-495.). Have the Ruffians found no Tartar chronicles at Tobolfkoi?

adopt the manners of China, A.D. 1259-1368.

C H A P. the one of Chinese mechanics, the other of Mahometan traders; and the places of religious worfhip, one Neftorian church, two mofchs, and twelve temples of various idols, may reprefent in fome degree the number and division of inhabitants. Yet a French missionary declares. that the town of St. Denys, near Paris, was more confiderable than the Tartar capital; and that the whole palace of Mangou was fcarcely equal to a tenth part of that Benedictine abbey. The conquests of Ruffia and Syria might amufe the vanity of the great khans; but they were feated on the borders of China; the acquisition of that empire was the nearest and most interesting object; and they might learn from their paftoral œconomy, that it is for the advantage of the fhepherd to protect and propagate his flock. I have already celebrated the wifdom and virtue of a Mandarin, who prevented the defolation of five populous and cultivated provinces. In a fpotlefs administration of thirty years, this friend of his country and of mankind continually laboured to mitigate, or fuspend, the havock of war; to fave the monuments, and to rekindle the flame, of fcience; to reftrain the military commander by the reftoration of civil magistrates; and to instill the love of peace and juffice into the minds of the Moguls. He ftruggled with the barbarifun of the first conquerors; but his falutary leffons produced a rich harveft in the fecond generation. The northern, and by degrees the fouthern, empire, acquiefced in the government of Cublai, the lieutenant, and afterwards the fucceffor, of Mangou; and the nation was loyal to a prince who had been educated in the manners of China. He reftored the forms of her venerable conftitution; and the victors fubmitted to the laws, the fashions, and even the prejudices, of the vanquished people. This peaceful triumph, which has been more than once repeated, may be afcribed in a great measure to the numbers and fervitude of the Chinese. The Mogul army was diffolved in a vaft and populous country; and > countryman Guillaume Boncher orfoure de ejecling four different liquors. Abulghazi Paris, who had executed for the khan a (part iv. p. 366.) mentions the painters of filver tree, fupported by four lions, and Kitay or China.

their

306

LXIV.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

their emperors adopted with pleasure a political fystem, which gives C H A P. to the prince the folid fubftance of defpotifm, and leaves to the fubject the empty names of philosophy, freedom, and filial obedience. Under the reign of Cublai, letters and commerce, peace and juffice. were reftored; the great canal, of five hundred miles, was opened from Nankin to the capital; he fixed his refidence at Pekin; and difplayed in his court the magnificence of the greatest monarch of Afia. Yet this learned prince declined from the pure and fimple religion of his great anceftor; he facrificed to the idol Fo; and his blind attachment to the lamas of Thibet and the bonzes of China³³ provoked the cenfure of the difciples of Confucius. His fucceffors polluted the palace with a crowd of eunuchs, phyficians, and aftrologers, while thirteen millions of their fubjects were confumed in the provinces by famine. One hundred and forty years after the death of Zingis, his degenerate race, the dynafty of the Yuen, was expelled by a revolt of the native Chinefe; and the Mogul emperors were loft in the oblivion of the defert. Before this revolution, they had forfeited their fupremacy over the Division of dependent branches of their houfe, the khans of Kipzak and Ruffia, empire, A.D. the khans of Zagatai or Transoxiana, and the khans of Iran or 1259-1300. By their diftance and power thefe royal lieutenants had Perfia. foon been releafed from the duties of obedience; and, after the death of Cublai, they fcorned to accept a fceptre or a title from his unworthy fucceffors. According to their refpective fituation they maintained the fimplicity of the paftoral life, or affumed the luxury of the cities of Afia; but the princes and their hords were alike difpofed for the reception of a foreign worship. After some hefitation between the Gospel and the Koran, they conformed to the 33 The attachment of the khans, and the whole worship prevails among the fects of hatred of the mandarins, to the bonzes and Hindostan, Siam, Thibet, China, and Jalamas (Duhalde, Hift. de la Chine, tom. i. pan. But this mysterious subject is still lost p. 502, 503.) feems to reprefent them as the in a cloud, which the refearches of our Afiatic priefts of the fame god, of the Indian Fo, Society may gradually difpel.

Rr 2

religion

the Mogul

LXIV. _____

C H A P. religion of Mahomet; and while they adopted for their brethren LXIV. the Arabs and Perfians, they renounced all intercourfe with the Languard ancient Moguls, the idolaters of China.

Efcape of Constantinople and the Greek empire from the Moguls, Ă. D.

In this fhipwreck of nations, fome furprife may be excited by the efcape of the Roman empire, whofe relics, at the time of the Mogul invalion, were difmembered by the Greeks and Latins. Lefs potent than Alexander, they were preffed, like the Macedonian, both in 1240-1304. Europe and Afia, by the shepherds of Scythia; and had the Tartars undertaken the fiege, Conftantinople must have yielded to the fate of Pekin, Samarcand, and Bagdad. The glorious and voluntary retreat of Batou from the Danube was infulted by the vain triumph of the Franks and Greeks³⁺; and in a fecond expedition death furprifed him in full march to attack the capital of the Cæfars. His brother Borga carried the Tartar arms into Bulgaria and Thrace : but he was diverted from the Byzantine war by a vifit to Novogorod, in the fifty-feventh degree of latitude, where he numbered the inhabitants and regulated the tributes of Ruffia. The Mogul khan formed an alliance with the Mamalukes against his brethren of Perfia: three hundred thousand horse penetrated through the gates of Derbend; and the Greeks might rejoice in the first example of domeftic war. After the recovery of Conftantinople, Michael Palæologus³⁵, at a diftance from his court and army, was furprifed and furrounded in a Thracian caftle by twenty thousand Tartars. But the object of their march was a private intereft : they came to the deliverance of Azzadin, the Turkish fultan; and were content with his perfon and the treafure of the emperor. Their general Noga, whofe name is perpetuated in the hords of Aftracan, raifed a formidable rebellion against Mengo Timour, the third of the khans of Kipzak; obtained in marriage Maria the natural daughter of ³⁺ Some repulse of the Moguls in Hun- nast. p. 310.), after forty years, beyond the gary (Matthew Paris, p. 545, 546.) might Tigris, might be cafily deceived. propagate and colour the report of the union 35 See Pachymer, I. iii. c. 25. and I. ix. and victory of the kings of the Franks on the c. 26, 27.: and the falle alarm at Nice, confines of Bulgaria. Abulpharagius (Dy- 1. iii. c. 27. Nicephorus Gregoras, l. iv. c. 6.

Palcologus; and guarded the dominions of his friend and father. C H A P. The fubfequent invalions of a Scythian caft were those of outlaws and fugitives; and fome thousands of Alani and Comans, who had been driven from their native feats, were reclaimed from a vagrant life, and enlifted in the fervice of the empire. Such was the influence in Europe of the invafion of the Moguls. The first terror of their arms fecured, rather than difturbed, the peace of the Roman Afia. The fultan of Iconium folicited a perfonal interview with John Vataces; and his artful policy encouraged the Turks to defend their barrier against the common enemy 36. That barrier indeed was foon overthrown; and the fervitude and ruin of the Seljukians expofed the nakedness of the Greeks. The formidable Holagou threatened to march to Conftantinople at the head of four hundred thousand men; and the groundless panic of the citizens of Nice will prefent an isnage of the terror which he had infpired. The accident of a proceffion, and the found of a doleful litany, " From " the fury of the Tartars, good Lord deliver us," had fcattered the hafty report of an affault and maffacre. In the blind credulity of fear, the ftreets of Nice were crowded with thousands of both fexes, who knew not from what or to whom they fled; and fome hours elapfed before the firmnefs of the military officers could relieve the city from this imaginary foe. But the ambition of Holagou and his fucceffors was fortunately diverted by the conquest of Bagdad, and a long viciffitude of Syrian wars: their hoftility to the Moflems inclined them to unite with the Greeks and Franks 37; and their generofity or contempt had offered the kingdom of Anatolia as the reward of an Armenian vaffal. The fragments of the Seljukian monarchy were difputed by the emirs who had occupied the cities 36 G. Acropolita, p. 36, 37. Nic. Gre- either the Franks or Greeks; and of this he goras, 1. ii. c. 6. 1. iv. c. 5.

1284, declares, that the Moguls, fince the for himfelf and his nation, fabulous defeat of Baton, had not attacked is a competent witnefs. Hayton, likewife the 37 Abulpharagius, who wrote in the year Armeniac prince, celebrates their friendship LXIV.

309

or

LXIV.

Decline of the Mogul khans of Perfia, A. D. 1304, May 31.

Origin of the Ottomans, A D. 1240, &c.

C H A P. or the mountains; but they all confessed the fupremacy of the khans of Persia; and he often interposed his authority, and sometimes his arms, to check their depredations, and to preferve the peace and balance of his Turkish frontier. The death of Cazan³⁸, one of the greateft and most accomplished princes of the house of Zingis, removed this falutary control; and the decline of the Moguls gave a free fcope to the rife and progress of the OTTOMAN EMPIRE 39.

> After the retreat of Zingis, the fultan Gelaleddin of Carizme had returned from India to the pofferfion and defence of his Perfian kingdoms. In the space of eleven years, that hero fought in person fourteen battles; and fuch was his activity, that he led his cavalry in feventeen days from Teflis to Kerman, a march of a thousand miles. Yet he was opprefied by the jealoufy of the Moflem princes, and the innumerable armies of the Moguls; and after his laft defeat, Gelaleddin perished ignobly in the mountains of Curdistan. His death diffolved a veteran and adventurous army, which included under the name of Carizmians or Corafmins many Turkman hords, that had attached themfelves to the fultan's fortune. The bolder and more powerful chiefs invaded Syria, and violated the holy fepulchre of Jerufalem : the more humble engaged in the fervice of Aladin, fultan of Iconium; and among thefe were the obfcure fathers of the Ottoman line. They had formerly pitched their tents near the fouthern banks of the Oxus, in the plains of Mahan and Nefa; and it is fomewhat remarkable, that the fame fpot fhould have produced the first authors of the Parthian and Turkish empires.

> 38 Pachymer gives a splendid character of Cazan Khan, the rival of Cyrus and Alexander (1. xii. c. 1.). In the conclusion of his history (1. xiii. c. 36.), he hopes much from the arrival of 30,000 Tochars or Tartars, who were ordered by the fucceffor of Cazan the Orientals may learn the hiftory and geoto refirain the Turks of Bithynia, A. D. graphy of their own country. $ 308.

39 The origin of the Ottoman dynasty is illustrated by the critical learning of M. M. de Guignes (Hift. des Huns, tom. iv. p. 329 -337.) and d'Anville (Empire Turc, p. 14 -22.), two inhabitants of Paris, from whom

. Of

At the head, or in the rear, of a Carizmian army, Soliman Shah was C H A P. drowned in the paffage of the Euphrates: his fon Orthogrul became the foldier and fubject of Aladin, and eftablished at Surgut, on the banks of the Sangar, a camp of four hundred families or tents, whom he governed fifty-two years both in peace and war. He was the father of Reign of Thaman, or Athman, whofe Turkifh name has been melted into the appellation of the caliph Othman; and if we defcribe that paftoral 1299-1326, chief as a shepherd and a robber, we must separate from those characters all idea of ignominy and bafenefs. Othman poffeffed, and perhaps furpaffed, the ordinary virtues of a foldier; and the circumftances of time and place were propitious to his independence and fuccefs. The Seljukian dynafty was no more; and the diftance and decline of the Mogul khans foon enfranchifed him from the control of a fuperior. He was fituate on the verge of the Greek empire : the Koran fanctified his gazi, or holy war, against the infidels; and their political errors unlocked the paffes of mount Olympus, and invited him to defcend into the plains of Bithynia. Till the reign of Palæologus, thefe paffes had been vigilantly guarded by the militia of the country, who were repaid by their own fafety and an exemption from taxes. The emperor abolished their privilege and affumed their office; but the tribute was rigoroufly collected, the cuftody of the paffes was neglected, and the hardy mountaineers degenerated into a trembling crowd of peafants without fpirit ordifcipline. It was on the twenty-feventh of July, in the year twelve hundred and ninety-nine of the Christian æra, that Othman first invaded the territory of Nicomedia 4°; and the fingular accuracy of the date feems to difclofe fome forefight, of the rapid and deftructive growth of the monfter. The annals of the twenty-feven years of his reign would exhibit a repetition of the fame inroads; and his hereditary troops were multiplied in each campaign by the acceffion

LXIV. -----

Othman. A. D.

^{4°} See Pachymer, 1. x. c. 25, 26. 1 xiii. Gregoras, 1. vii. c. 1. and the ist book of. c. 33, 34. 36.; and concerning the guard of L'aonicus Chalcocondyles, the Athenian. the mountains, 1. i. c. 3-6.: Nicephorus

C H A P. of captives and volunteers. Inftead of retreating to the hills, he maintained the moft useful and defentible pofts; fortified the towns and caftles which he had first pillaged; and renounced the pastoral life for the baths and palaces of his infant capitals. But it was not till Othman was opprefied by age and infirmities, that he received the welcome news of the conquest of Prufa, which had been furrendered by famine or treachery to the arms of his fon Orchan. The glory of Othman is chiefly founded on that of his defcendants; but the Turks have transcribed or composed a royal testament of his last counfels of justice and moderation ⁴⁴.

Reign of Orchan, A. D. 1326-1360. From the conqueft of Prufa, we may date the true æra of the Ottoman empire. The lives and poffeffions of the Chriftian fubjects were redeemed by a tribute or ranfom of thirty thoufand crowns of gold; and the city, by the labours of Orchan, affumed the afpect of a Mahometan capital; Prufa was decorated with a mofeh, a college, and an hofpital, of royal foundation; the Seljukian coin was changed for the name and impreffion of the new dynafty : and the moft fkilful profeffors, of human and divine knowledge, attracted the Perfian and Arabian ftudents from the ancient fchools of Oriental learning. The office of vizir was inflituted for Aladin, the brother of Orchan; and a different habit diffinguifhed the citizens from the peafants, the Moflems from the infidels. All the troops of mir partly draws his materials from the Synopfis of Saadi Effendi of Lariffa, dedicated in the year 1696 to fultan Muftapha, and a valuable abridgment of the original hiftorians. In one of the Ramblers, Dr. Johnfon praifes Knolles (a General Hiftory of the Turks to the prefent Year. London, 1603) as the firft of hiftorians, unhappy only in the choice of his fubject. Yet I much doubt whether a partial and verbofe compilation from Latin writers, thirteen hundred folio pages of fpeeches and battles, can either inftrudt or amufe an enlightened age, which requires from the hiftorian fome tincture of philofophy and criticifm.

8

⁴¹ I am ignorant whether the Turks have any writers older than Mahomet II. nor can I reach beyond a meagre chronicle (Annales Turcici ad Annum 1550), tranflated by John Gaudier, and publifhed by Leunclavius (ad calcem Laonic. Chalcond. p. 311-350.), with copious pandects, or commentaries. The Hiftory of the Growth and Decay (A. D. 1300 -1683) of the Othman Empire, was tranflated into Englifh from the Latin MS. of Demetrius Cantemir, prince of Moldavia (London, 1734, in folio). The author is guilty of flrange blunders in Oriental hiftory; but he was converfant with the language, the annals, and inflitutions of the Turks. Cante-

Othmau

Othman had confifted of loofe fquadrons of Turkman cavalry; who C H A P. ferved without pay and fought without difcipline : but a regular body of infantry was first established and trained by the prudence of his fon. A great number of volunteers was enrolled with a fmall ftipend, but with the permiffion of living at home, unlefs they were fummoned to the field : their rude manners, and feditious temper, difpofed Orchan to educate his young captives as his foldiers and those of the prophet; but the Turkish peafants were still allowed to mount on horfeback, and follow his ftandard, with the appellation and the hopes of freebooters. By thefe arts he formed an army of twenty-five thousand Moslems: a train of battering engines was framed for the use of fieges; and the first successful experiment was His conquest made on the cities of Nice and Nicomedia. Orchan granted a fafeconduct to all who were defirous of departing with their families and effects; but the widows of the flain were given in marriage to the conquerors; and the facrilegious plunder, the books, the vafes, and the images, were fold or ranfomed at Conftantinople. The emperor Andronicus the younger was vanquished and wounded by the fon of Othman⁴²: he fubdued the whole province or kingdom of Bithynia, as far as the fhores of the Bolphorus and Hellefpont; and the Chriftians confessed the justice and elemency of a reign, which claimed the voluntary attachment of the Turks of Afia. Yet Orchan was content with the modest title of emir; and in the Division of lift of his compeers, the princes of Roum or Anatolia 43, his military among the forces were furpaffed by the emirs of Ghermian and Caramania, emirs, each of whom could bring into the field an army of forty thousand A.D. 1300, men. Their dominions were fituate in the heart of the Seljukian kingdom: but the holy warriors, though of inferior note, who 42 Cantacuzene, though he relates the what different from the Turkish dates. battle and heroic flight of the younger Andronicus (l. ii. c. 6, 7, 8.), diffembles by his extracted from two contemporaries, the filence the lofs of Prufa, Nice, and Nicomedia, which are fairly confessed by Nicephorus Gregoras (l. viii. 15. ix. 9. 13. xi. 6.). It ap. P. ii. p. 76, 77.). See likewife the first book pears that Nice was taken by Orchan in 1330, of Laonicus Chacondyles. and Nicomedia in 1339, which are fome-of Bithynia, A.Ď. 1326-1339.

43 The partition of the Turkith emirs is Greek Nicephorus Gregoras (1. vii. 1.) and the Arabian Marakeschi (de Guignes, tom. ii.

Anatolia Turkifh

VOL. VI.

Sſ

formed

LXIV.

LXIV. -----

Loss of the Afiatic provinces, A. D. 1312, &c.

The knights of Rhodes,

A. D. 1310, August 15-

A. D. 1523, January 1.

C H A P. formed new principalities on the Greek empire, are more confpicuous in the light of hiftory. The maritime country from the Propontis to the Mæander and the ifle of Rhodes, fo long threatened and fo often pillaged, was finally loft about the thirtieth year of Andronicus the elder. Two Turkifh chieftains, Sarukhan and Aidin, left their names to their conquefts, and their conquefts to their pofterity. The captivity or ruin of the feven churches of Afia was confummated; and the barbarous lords of Ionia and Lydia ftill trample on the monuments of claffic and Chriftian antiquity. In the lofs of Ephefus, the Chriftians deplored the fall of the first angel, the extinction of the first candlestick, of the revelations 45 : the defolation is complete; and the temple of Diana, or the church of Mary, will equally elude the fearch of the curious traveller. The circus and three flately theatres of Laodicea are now peopled with wolves and foxes; Sardes is reduced to a miferable village; the God of Mahomet, without a rival or a fon, is invoked in the mofchs of Thyatira and Pergamus; and the populoufnefs of Smyrna is fupported by the foreign trade of the Franks and Armenians. Philadelphia alone has been faved by prophecy, or courage. At a diffance from the fea, forgotten by the emperors, encompassed on all fides by the Turks, her valiant citizens defended their religion and freedom above fourfcore years; and at length capitulated with the proudeft of the Ottomans. Among the Greek colonies and churches of Afia, Philadelphia is ftill erect; a column in a fcene of ruins; a pleafing example, that the paths of honour and fafety may fometimes be the fame. The fervitude of Rhodes was delayed above two centuries by the eftablishment of the knights of St. John of Jerusalem 46: under the discipline of the order, that island emerged into fame and opulence; the noble and warlike

44 Pachymer, l. xiii. c. 13.

45 See the Travels of Wheeler and Spon, of Pococke and Chandler, and more particularly Smith's Survey of the Seven Churches of Afia, p. 205-276. The more pious antiquaries labour to reconcile the promifes and threats of the author of the Revelations with the present Bithynian hills, could befiege Rhodes by fea state of the feven cities. Perhaps it would be and land.

more prudent to confine his predictions to the characters and events of his own times.

46 Confult the ivth book of the Hifloire de l'Ordre de Malthe, par l'Abbé de Vertot. That pleafing writer betrays his ignorance, in fuppofing that Othman, a freebooter of the monks

5

monks were renowned by land and fea; and the bulwark of Chriften- C H A P. dom provoked, and repelled, the arms of the Turks and Saracens.

The Greeks, by their inteftine divisions, were the authors of their First passage final ruin. During the civil wars of the elder and younger Andronicus, the fon of Othman atchieved, almost without resistance, the $A.D._{1341-1347}$. conqueft of Bithynia; and the fame diforders encouraged the Turkifh emirs of Lydia and Ionia to build a fleet, and to pillage the adjacent iflands and the fea-coaft of Europe. In the defence of his life and honour, Cantacuzene was tempted to prevent, or imitate, his adverfaries; by calling to his aid the public enemies of his religion and country. Amir, the fon of Aidin, concealed under a Turkifh garb the humanity and politeness of a Greek; he was united with the great domeftic by mutual effeem and reciprocal fervices; and their friendship is compared, in the vain rhetoric of the times, to the perfect union of Oreftes and Pylades⁴⁷. On the report of the danger of his friend, who was perfecuted by an ungrateful court, the prince of Ionia affembled at Smyrna a fleet of three hundred veffels, with an army of twenty-nine thousand men; failed in the depth of winter, and caft anchor at the mouth of the Hebrus. From thence, with a chofen band of two thousand Turks, he marched along the banks of the river, and refcued the emprefs, who was befieged in Demotica by the wild Bulgarians. At that difaftrous moment, the life or death of his beloved Cantacuzene was concealed by his flight into Servia : but the grateful Irene, impatient to behold her deliverer, invited him to enter the city, and accompanied her meffage with a prefent of rich apparel, and an hundred horfes. By a peculiar strain of delicacy, the gentle Barbarian refused, in the absence of an unfortunate friend, to visit his wife, or to taste the luxuries of the palace; fuftained in his tent the rigour of the winter; and rejected the hospitable gift, that he might share the hardships of two of the Turks into Europe.

Sf 2

thoufand

LXIV.

pleasure on this amiable character (1. xii. 7. his own fentimental passion for the Turk, and xiii. 4. 10. xiv. 1. 9. xvi. 6.). Cantacu- indirectly denies the poffibility of fuch unzene speaks with honour and esteem of his natural friendship (1. iv. c. 40.). ally (1. iii. c. 56, 57. 63, 64. 66, 67, 68.

⁴⁷ Nicephorus Gregoras has expatiated with 86. 89. 95, 96.); but he feems ignorant of

C H A P. thousand companions, all as deferving as himself of that honour and diffinction. Neceffity and revenge might juftify his prædatory ex------curfions by fea and land : he left nine thousand five hundred men for the guard of his fleet; and perfevered in the fruitlefs fearch of Cantacuzene, till his embarkation was haftened by a fictitious letter, the feverity of the feafon, the clamours of his independent troops, and the weight of his fpoil and captives. In the profecution of the civil war, the prince of Ionia twice returned to Europe; joined his arms with those of the emperor; belieged Thessalonica, and threatened Conftantinople. Calumny might affix fome reproach on his imperfect aid, his hafty departure, and a bribe of ten thousand crowns, which he accepted from the Byzantine court; but his friend was fatisfied; and the conduct of Amir is excufed by the more facred duty of defending against the Latins his hereditary dominions. The maritime power of the Turks had united the pope, the king of Cyprus, the republic of Venice, and the order of St. John, in a laudable crufade; their gallies invaded the coaft of Ionia; and Amir was flain with an arrow, in the attempt to wreft from the Rhodian knights the citadel of Smyrna⁴⁸. Before his death, he generoufly recommended another ally of his own nation; not more fincere or zealous than himfelf, but more able to afford a prompt and powerful fuccour, by his fituation along the Propontis and in the front of Conftantinople. By the profpect of a more advantageous treaty, the 'Turkifh prince of Bithynia was detached from his engagements with Anne of Savoy; and the pride of Orchan dictated the most folemn protestations, that if he could obtain the daughter of Cantacuzene, he would invariably fulfil the duties of a fubject and a fon. Parental tendernefs was filenced by the voice of ambition ; the Greek clergy connived at the marriage of a Christian princess with a fectary of Mahomet; and the father of Theodora defcribes, with fhameful fatisfaction, the difhonour of the purple *°. A body of Turkifh cavalry attended > 48 After the conquest of Smyrna by the of Rhodes (see Vertot, 1. v.). Latins, the defence of this fortrefs was im- 49 See Cantacuzenus, 1. iii. c. 95. Nicepofed by pope Gregory XI. on the knights phorus Gregoras, who, for the light of mount Thabor.

Marriage of Orchan with a Greek princefs, A. D. 1346.

LXIV.

attended the ambafiadors, who difembarked from thirty veffels be- C H A P. fore his camp of Selybria. A flately pavillon was erected, in which the empress Irene paffed the night with her daughters. In the morning, Theodora afcended a throne, which was furrounded with curtains of filk and gold : the troops were under arms ; but the emperor alone was on horfeback. At a fignal the curtains were fuddenly withdrawn, to difclofe the bride, or the victim, encircled by kneeling eunuchs and hymenæal torches: the found of flutes and trumpets proclaimed the joyful event; and her pretended happinefs was the theme of the nuptial fong, which was chaunted by fuch poets as the age could produce. Without the rites of the church. Theodora was delivered to her barbarous lord : but it had been ftipulated, that the thould preferve her religion in the haram of Burfa; and her father celebrates her charity and devotion in this ambiguous fituation. After his peaceful eftablishment on the throne of Conftantinople, the Greek emperor vifited his Turkifh ally, who with four fons, by various wives, expected him at Scutari, on the Afiatic shore. The two princes partook, with feeming cordiality, of the pleafures of the banquet and the chace; and Theodora was permitted to repais the Bofphorus, and to enjoy fome days in the fociety of her mother. But the friendship of Orchan was subfervient to his religion and intereft; and in the Genoefe war he joined without a blufh the enemies of Cantacuzene.

In the treaty with the empress Anne, the Ottoman prince had in- Effablishferted a fingular condition, that it fhould be lawful for him to fell Ottomans in his prifoners at Constantinople, or transport them into Afia. A ^{Europe}, A.D. 1353. naked crowd of Christians of both fexes and every age, of priests and monks, of matrons and virgins, was exposed in the public market; the whip was frequently used to quicken the charity of re-

4

Thabor, brands the emperor with the names $xai \tau_{\beta} \partial ma\mu si \taue_{\beta} xar' avrow nbs \Pi_{15} \sigma_{12} (Tur-$ of tyrant and Herod, excufes, rather than <math>ki/b) $\dot{\sigma} \pi_{12} ar_{12} \pi_{23} (1, xv. 5.)$ He after-biames, this Turkifh marriage, and alleges words celebrates his kingdom and armies. the pallion and power of Orchan, egyptator, See his reign in Cantemir, p. 24-30.

demption;

317

LXIV.

^C H A P. demption; and the indigent Greeks deplored the fate of their bre-LXIV. thren, who were led away to the worft evils of temporal and fpiritual bondage 5°. Cantacuzene was reduced to fubfcribe the fame terms; and their execution must have been still more pernicious to the empire : a body of ten thousand Turks had been detached to the affiftance of the empress Anne; but the entire forces of Orchan were exerted in the fervice of his father. Yet these calamities were of a transient nature; as foon as the ftorm had paffed away, the fugitives might return to their habitations; and at the conclusion of the civil and foreign wars, Europe was completely evacuated by the Mollems of Afia. It was in his laft guarrel with his pupil that Cantacuzene inflicted the deep and deadly wound, which could never be healed by his fucceffors, and which is poorly explated by his theological dialogues against the prophet Mahomet. Ignorant of their own hiftory, the modern Turks confound their first and their final paffage of the Hellespont 51, and describe the fon of Orchan as a nocturnal robber, who, with eighty companions, explores by ftratagem an hoftile and unknown shore. Soliman, at the head of ten thousand horse, was transported in the veffels, and entertained as the friend, of the Greek emperor. In the civil wars of Romania, he performed fome fervice and perpetrated more mifchief; but the Cherfonefus was infenfibly filled with a Turkifh colony; and the Byzantine court folicited in vain the reftitution of the fortreffes of Thrace. After fome artful delays between the Ottoman prince and his fon, their ranfom was valued at fixty thousand crowns, and the first payment had been made, when an earthquake shook the walls and cities of the provinces; the difmantled places were occupied by the Turks; and Gallipoli, the key of the Hellespont, was rebuilt Europe, Cantemir (p. 27, &c.) gives a mifer- still manufcript, of Nicephorus Gregoras.

5° The most lively and concife picture of able idea of his Turkish guides: nor am I much Cantacuzene confeffes with a guilty blufh! thetic record, the ivth book of Cantacuzene. ⁵⁴ In this paffage, and the first conquests in I likewise regret the last books, which are

318

and

this captivity, may be found in the hiftory of better fatisfied with Chalcondyles (l. i. p. 12, Ducas (c. 8.), who fairly defcribes what &c.). They forget to confult the most au-and repeopled by the policy of Soliman. The abdication of Canta- C H A P. cuzene diffolved the feeble bands of domeftic alliance; and his laft advice admonifhed his countrymen to decline a rafh conteft, and to compare their own weaknefs with the numbers and valour, the difcipline and enthuliafin, of the Mollems. His prudent counfels were defpifed by the headftrong vanity of youth, and foon juffified by the victories of the Ottomans. But as he practifed in the field the Death of exercife of the jerid, Soliman was killed by a fall from his horfe; his fon Soliand the aged Orchan wept and expired on the tomb of his valiant fon.

But the Greeks had not time to rejoice in the death of their The reign enemies; and the Turkifh fcymetar was wielded with the fame conquerts of fpirit by Amurath the first, the fon of Orchan and the brother of Soliman. By the pale and fainting light of the Byzantine annals 34, 1360-1389, September. we can difcern, that he fubdued without refiftance the whole province of Romania or Thrace, from the Hellespont to mount Hæmus, and the verge of the capital; and that Adrianople was chosen for the royal feat of his government and religion in Europe. Conftantinople, whofe decline is almost coeval with her foundation, had often, in the lapfe of a thousand years, been affaulted by the Barbarians of the East and West; but never till this fatal hour had the Greeks been furrounded, both in Afia and Europe, by the arms of the fame hoftile monarchy. Yet the prudence or generofity of Amurath postponed for a while this easy conquest; and his pride was fatisfied with the frequent and humble attendance of the emperor John Palæologus and his four fons, who followed at his fummons the court and camp of the Ottoman prince. He marched against the Sclavonian nations between the Danube and the Adriatic, the Bulgarians, Servians, Bofnians, and Albanians; and thefe warlike

52 After the conclusion of Cantacuzene chael Ducas, and Laonicus Chalcondyles, all and Gregoras, there follows a dark interval three wrote after the taking of Conftantiof an hundred years. George Phranza, Mi- nople. tribes, Orchan and man.

andEuropean Amurath I. A.D.

319

LXIV.

C H A P. tribes, who had fo often infulted the majefty of the empire, were repeatedly broken by his destructive inroads. Their countries did not abound either in gold or filver; nor were their ruftic hamlets and townships enriched by commerce or decorated by the arts of luxury. But the natives of the foil have been diffinguished in every age by their hardinefs of mind and body; and they were converted by a prudent inflitution into the firmeft and moft faithful fupporters of the Ottoman greatness 53. The vizir of Amurath reminded his fovereign that, according to the Mahometan law, he was entitled to a fifth part of the fpoil and captives; and that the duty might eafily be levied, if vigilant officers were flationed at Gallipoli, to watch the paffage, and to felect for his use the ftouteft and most beautiful of the Christian youth. The advice was followed; the edict was proclaimed; many thousands of the European captives were educated in religion and arms; and the new militia was confecrated and named by a celebrated dervifh. Standing in the front of their ranks, he ftretched the fleeve of his gown over the head of the foremoft foldier, and his bleffing was delivered in thefe words: " Let them The Janiza-" be called janizaries (Yengi cheri, or new foldiers); may their coun-" tenance be ever bright! their hand victorious! their fword keen! " may their fpear always hang over the heads of their enemies ! and " wherefoever they go, may they return with a white face 54 !" Such was the origin of these haughty troops, the terror of the nations, and fometimes of the fultans themfelves. Their valour has declined, their difcipline is relaxed, and their tumultuary array is incapable of contending with the order and weapons of modern tactics; but at the time of their inftitution, they poffeffed a decifive fuperiority in war; fince a regular body of infantry, in conftant exercife and pay, was not maintained by any of the princes of

> -53 See Cantemir, p. 37-41. with his own in the Turkish language. Hic niger est, hunc large and curious annotations.

tu Romane caveto, was likewife a Latin fen-

54 White and black face are common and tence. proverbial-expressions of praise and reproach ries.

Chriften-

LXIV.

-

Chriftendom. The Janizaries fought with the zeal of profelytes C H A P. against their idolatrous countrymen; and in the battle of Coffova, the league and independence of the Selavonian tribes was finally crushed. As the conqueror walked over the field, he observed that the greateft part of the flain confifted of beardlefs youths; and liftened to the flattering reply of his vizir, that age and wildom would have taught them not to oppose his irrefiftible arms. But the fword of his Janizaries could not defend him from the dagger of defpair : a Servian foldier flarted from the crowd of dead bodies, and Amurath was pierced in the belly with a mortal wound. The grandfon of Othman was mild in his temper, modeft in his apparel, and a lover of learning and virtue; but the Moflems were fcandalifed at his abfence from public worship; and he was corrected by the firmness of the mufti, who dared to reject his teftimony in a civil caufe : a mixture of fervitude and freedom not unfrequent in Oriental hiftory 55.

The character of Bajazet, the fon and fucceffor of Amurath, is ftrongly expressed in his furname of Ilderim, or the lightning; and he might glory in an epithet, which was drawn from the fiery energy of his foul and the rapidity of his deftructive march. In the fourteen years of his reign 56, he inceffantly moved, at the head of his armies, from Bourfa to Adrianople, from the Danube to the Euphrates; and, though he ftrenuoufly laboured for the propagation of the law, he invaded, with impartial ambition, the Christian and Mahometan princes of Europe and Afia. From Angora to His con-Amafia and Erzeroum, the northern regions of Antolia were re-

Amurath I. in Cantemir (p. 33-45.), the ist book of Chalcondyles, and the Annales Turcici of Leunclavius. According to another ftory, the fultan was stabbed by a Croat in his tent: and this accident was alleged to Bufbe- lightning, is an example, that the conquius (Epift. i. p. 98.) as an excuse for the un- querors and poets of every age have feit the worthy precaution of pinioning, as it were, be- truth of a fyttem which derives the fublime tween two attendants, an ambaffador's arms, from the principle of terror.

VOL. VI.

⁵⁵ See the life and death of Morad, or when he is introduced to the royal prefence. 56 The reign of Bajazet I. or Ilderim Bayazid, is contained in Cantemir (p. 46.), the iid book of Chalcondyles, and the Annales Turcici. The furname of Ilderim, or duced

The reign of Bajazet I. Ilderim, A. D. 389-1403, March 9.

quefts, from the Euphrates to the Danube.

LXIV. -----

C H A P. duced to his obedience: he ftripped of their hereditary poffeffions. his brother emirs of Ghermian and Caramania, of Aidin and Sarukhan; and after the conquest of Iconium, the ancient kingdom of the Seljukians again revived in the Ottoman dynafty. Nor were the conquests of Bajazet less rapid or important in Europe. No fooner had he imposed a regular form of fervitude on the Servians and Bulgarians, than he paffed the Danube to feek new enemies and new fubjects in the heart of Moldavia 57. Whatever yet adhered to the Greek empire in Thrace, Macedonia, and Theffaly, acknowledged a Turkish master: an obsequious bishop led him through the gates of Thermopylæ into Greece; and we may observe, as a fingular fact, that the widow of a Spanish chief, who possesfed the ancient feat of the oracle of Delphi, deferved his favour by the facrifice of a beauteous daughter. The Turkish communication between Europe and Afia had been dangerous and doubtful, till he flationed at Gallipoli a fleet of gallies, to command the Hellespont and intercept the Latin fuccours of Conftantinople. While the monarch indulged his paffions in a boundlefs range of injuffice and cruelty, he imposed on his foldiers the most rigid laws of modesty and abstinence; and the harvest was peaceably reaped and fold within the precincts of his camp. Provoked by the loofe and corrupt administration of justice, he collected in a house the judges and lawyers of his dominions, who expected that in a few moments the fire would be kindled to reduce them to afhes. His ministers trembled in filence : but an Æthiopian buffoon prefumed to infinuate the true caufe of the evil; and future venality was left without excufe, by annexing an adequate falary to the office of cadhi⁵⁸. The humble title of emir was no longer fuitable to the Ottoman

> 57 Cantemir, who celebrates the victories been long promifed, and is ftill unpublished. of the great Stephen over the Turks (p. 47.), had composed the ancient and modern state The venality of the cadhis has long been an of his principality of Moldavia, which has object of fcandal and fatire; and if we distruct

58 Leunclav. Annal. Turcici, p. 318, 319. the

322

LXIV.

La manual

Ottoman greatnefs; and Bajazet condefcended to accept a patent of C H A P. fultan from the caliphs who ferved in Egypt under the yoke of the Mamalukes ": a laft and frivolous homage that was yielded by force to opinion; by the Turkish conquerors to the house of Abbas and the fucceffors of the Arabian prophet. The ambition of the fultan was inflamed by the obligation of deferving this august title; and he turned his arms against the kingdom of Hungary, the perpetual theatre of the Turkish victories and defeats. Sigismond, the Hungarian king, was the fon and brother of the emperors of the Weft: his caufe was that of Europe and the church : and, on the report of his danger, the braveft knights of France and Germany were eager to march under his ftandard and that of the crofs. In the battle of Battle of Ni-Nicopolis, Bajazet defeated a confederate army of an hundred thou- A.D. 1396, fand Chriftians, who had proudly boafted, that if the fky fhould fall they could uphold it on their lances. The far greater part were flain or driven into the Danube; and Sigifmond, efcaping to Conftantinople by the river and the Black Sea, returned after a long circuit to his exhaufted kingdom ". In the pride of victory, Bajazet threatened that he would befiege Buda; that he would fubdue the adjacent countries of Germany and Italy; and that he would feed his horfe with a bufhel of oats on the altar of St. Peter at Rome. His progrefs was checked, not by the miraculous interpolition of the apolle, not by a crufade of the Chriftian powers, but by a long and painful fit of the gout. The diforders of the moral, are fometimes corrected by those of the physical, world; and an acrimonious humour falling on a fingle fibre of one man, may prevent or fufpend the mifery of nations.

the observations of our travellers, we may of Othman to the dignity of sultan. confult the feeling of the Turks themfelves

59 The fact, which is attefted by the Arabic history of Ben Schounah, a contemporary history of that kingdom. Yet, if it be extant Syrian (de Guignes, Hift. des Huns, tom. iv. and accessible, I fhould give the preference to p. 336.), deftroys the teftimony of Saad Ef- fome homely chronicle of the time and counfendi and Cantemir (p.14, 15.), of the election try.

⁶⁰ See the Decades Rerum Hungaricarum (d'Herbelot, Bibliot, Orientale, p. 216, 217. (Dec. iii. l. ii. p. 379.) of Bonfinius, an 229, 230.). Italian, who, in the x1th century, was invited into Hungary to compose an eloquent copolis, Sept. 28.

Tt 2

Such

LXIV. ~~~

C H A P. LXIV. Crufade and captivity of the French princes, A. D. 1396-1398.

Such is the general idea of the Hungarian war; but the difaftrous adventure of the French has procured us fome memorials which illustrate the victory and character of Bajazet 61. The duke of Burgundy, fovereign of Flanders, and uncle of Charles the fixth, yielded to the ardour of his fon, John count of Nevers; and the fearlefs youth was accompanied by four princes, bis coufins, and those of the French monarch. Their inexperience was guided by the fire de Coucy, one of the best and oldest captains of Christendom "; but the constable, admiral, and marshal, of France 65 commanded an army which did not exceed the number of a thousand knights and squires. These splendid names were the source of presumption and the bane of discipline. So many might aspire to command, that none were willing to obey; their national fpirit defpifed both their enemies and their allies; and in the perfuafion that Bajazet would fly, or must fall, they began to compute how foon they should vifit Conftantinople and deliver the holy fepulchre. When their fcouts announced the approach of the Turks, the gay and thoughtlefs youths were at table, already heated with wine; they inftantly clafped their armour, mounted their horfes, rode full fpeed to the vanguard, and refented as an affront the advice of Sigifmond, which would have deprived them of the right and honour of the foremost attack. The battle of Nicopolis would not have been loft, if the French would have obeyed the prudence of the Hungarians: but it ⁶¹ I should not complain of the labour of this work, if my materials were always derived from fuch books as the chronicle of homef. Froiffard (vol. iv. c. 67. 69. 72. 74. 79 - 83. 85. 87. 89.), who read little, enquired much, and believed all. The original Memoirs of the marschal de Boucicault (Partici. c. 22 - 28.); add fome facts, but they are dry and deficient, if compared with the pleafant garnlity of Froiffard.

⁶² An accurate memoir on the life of Enquerrand VII. fire de Coucy, has been given by the baron de Zurlauben (Hift. de l'Academie des Infcriptions, tom. xxv.). His raok and pofieffions were equally confiderable in France and England; and, in 1375, he led an army of adventurers into Switzerland, to recover a large patrimony which he claimed in right of his grandmother, the daughter of the emperor Albert I. of Auftria (Sinner, Voyage dans la Suifie Occidentale, tom. i. p. 118-124.).

⁶³ That military office, fo refpectable at prefent, was fill more confpicuous when it was divided between two perfons (Daniel, Hift. de la Milice Françoife, tom. ii. p. 5.). One of thefe, the marfhal of the crufade, was the famous Boucicault, who afterwards afterwards defended Conftantinople, governed Genoa, invaded the coaft of Afia, and died in the field of Azincour.

might

might have been glorioufly won, had the Hungarians imitated the C H A P. LXIV. valour of the French. They difperfed the first line, confishing of the troops of Afia; forced a rampart of ftakes, which had been planted against the cavalry; broke, after a bloody conflict, the Janizaries themfelves; and were at length overwhelmed by the numerous fquadrons that iffued from the woods, and charged on all fides this handful of intrepid warriors. In the fpeed and fecrecy of his march, in the order and evolutions of the battle, his enemies felt and admired the military talents of Bajazet. They accuse his cruelty in the use of victory. After referving the count of Nevers, and four-and-twenty lords, whofe birth and riches were attefted by his Latin interpreters, the remainder of the French captives, who had furvived the flaughter of the day, were led before his throne; and, as they refufed to abjure their faith, were fucceffively beheaded in his prefence. The fultan was exafperated by the lofs of his braveft Janizaries; and if it be true, that, on the eve of the engagement, the French had maffacred their Turkish prisoners 4, they might impute to themfelves the confequences of a just retaliation. A knight, whofe life had been fpared, was permitted to return to Paris, that he might relate the deplorable tale, and folicit the ranfom of the noble captives. In the mean while, the count of Nevers, with the princes and barons of France, were dragged along in the marches of the Turkish camp, exposed as a grateful trophy to the Moslems of Europe and Afia, and firictly confined at Bourfa, as often as Bajazet refided in his capital. The fultan was prefied each day to expiate with their blood the blood of his martyrs; but he had pronounced, that they should live, and either for mercy or destruction his word was irrevocable. He was affured of their value and importance by the return of the meffenger, and the gifts and interceffions of the kings of France and of Cyprus. Lufignan prefented him with a gold

⁶⁴ For this odious fact, the Abbé de Ver- I. xvi. c. 10, 11. (Ordre de Malthe, tom. ii. tot quotes the Hift. Anonyme de St. Denys, p. 310.)

C H A P. a gold falt-cellar of curious workmanship, and of the price of ten thousand ducats; and Charles the fixth dispatched by the way of Hungary a caft of Norwegian hawks, and fix horfe-loads of fcarlet cloth, of fine linen of Rheims, and of Arras tapeftry, reprefenting the battles of the great Alexander. After much delay, the effect of diftance rather than of art, Bajazet agreed to accept a ranfom of two hundred thousand ducats for the count of Nevers and the furviving princes and barons: the marshal Boucicault, a famous warrior, was of the number of the fortunate; but the admiral of France had been flain in the battle; and the conftable, with the fire de Coucy. died in the prifon of Bourfa. This heavy demand, which was doubled by incidental cofts, fell chiefly on the duke of Burgundy, or rather on his Flemish subjects, who were bound by the feudal laws to contribute for the knighthood and captivity of the eldeft fon of their lord. For the faithful discharge of the debt, some merchants of Genoa gave fecurity to the amount of five times the fum; a leffon to those warlike times, that commerce and credit are the links of the fociety of nations. It had been flipulated in the treaty, that the French captives fhould fwear never to bear arms against the perfon of their conqueror; but the ungenerous reftraint was abolished by Bajazet himself. " I despise," faid he to the heir of Burgundy, " thy oaths and thy arms. Thou art young, and mayeft be " ambitious of effacing the difgrace or misfortune of thy first chi-" valry. Affemble thy powers, proclaim thy defign, and be affured " that Bajazet will rejoice to meet thee a fecond time in a field of " battle." Before their departure, they were indulged in the freedom and hofpitality of the court of Bourfa. The French princes admired the magnificence of the Ottoman, whofe hunting and hawking equipage was compofed of feven thousand huntfinen and feven thousand falconers 65. In their prefence, and at his command, the belly

> 65 Sherefeddin Ali (Hift. de Timour Bec, of 12,000 officers and fervants of the chace. 1. v. c. 13.) allows Bajazet a round number A part of his spoils was afterwards displayed in belly of one of his chamberlains was cut open, on a complaint C H A P. against him for drinking the goats-milk of a poor woman. The Langend ftrangers were aftonished by this act of justice; but it was the justice of a fultan who difdains to balance the weight of evidence or to measure the degrees of guilt.

LXIV.

After his enfranchifement from an oppreffive guardian, John Pa- The emperor læologus remained thirty-fix years, the helplefs, and as it fhould feem, the carelefs, fpectator, of the public ruin ⁶⁵. Love, or rather A.D. 1355, January 8luft, was his only visorous paffion; and in the embraces of the wives A. D. 1391. and virgins of the city, the Turkish flave forgot the dishonour of the emperor of the Romans. Andronicus, his eldeft fon, had formed, at Adrianople, an intimate and guilty friendship with Sauzes the fon of Amurath; and the two youths confpired against the authority and lives of their parents. The prefence of Amurath in Europe foon difcovered and diffipated their rafh counfels; and, after depriving Sauzes of his fight, the Ottoman threatened his vaffal with the treatment of an accomplice and an enemy, unless he inflicted a fimilar punifhment on his own fon. Palæologus trembled and obeyed; and a cruel precaution involved in the fame fentence the childhood and innocence of John the fon of the criminal. But the operation was fo mildly, or fo unfkilfully, performed, that the one retained the fight of an eye, and the other was afflicted only with the infirmity of fquinting. Thus excluded from the fucceffion, the two Difcord of princes were confined in the tower of Anema; and the piety of Manuel, the fecond fon of the reigning monarch, was rewarded with the gift of the Imperial crown. But at the end of two years, the turbulence of the Latins and the levity of the Greeks produced a revolution; and the two emperors were buried in the tower from in a hunting-match of Timour: 1. hounds cranes (Chalcondyles, 1. ii. p. 35.). with fattin houfings; 2. leopards with collars fet with jewels; 3. Grecian greyhounds; his fon Manuel, from 1354 to 1402, fee Ducas, and, 4. dogs from Europe, as ftrong as c. 9-19. Phranza, l. i. c. 16-21. and the African lions (idem, l. vi. c. 15). Bajazet it and it books of Chalcondyles, whole pro-whence

the Greeks.

327

LNIV.

John Palico-logus,

⁶⁶ For the reigns of John Palæologus and was particularly fond of flying his hawks at per fubject is drowned in a fea of epifode.

C H A P. whence the two prifoners were exalted to the throne. Another period of two years afforded Palæologus and Manuel the means of escape: it was contrived by the magic, or fubtlety, of a monk, who was alternately named the angel or the devil : they fled to Scutari; their adherents armed in their caufe ; and the two Byzantine factions difplayed the ambition and animofity, with which Cæfar and Pompey had difputed the empire of the world. The Roman world was now contracted to a corner of Thrace, between the Propontis and the Black Sea, about fifty miles in length and thirty in breadth; a fpace of ground not more extensive than the leffer principalities of Germany or Italy, if the remains of Conftantinople had not ftill reprefented the wealth and populoufnefs of a kingdom. To reftore the public peace, it was found neceffary to divide this fragment of the empire; and while Palæologus and Manuel were left in poffeffion of the capital, almost all that lay without the walls was ceded to the blind princes, who fixed their refidence at Rhodofto and Selybria. In the tranquil flumber of royalty, the paffions of John Palæologus furvived his reafon and his ftrength; he deprived his favourite and heir of a blooming princefs of Trebizond; and while the feeble emperor laboured to confummate his nuptials, Manuel, with an hundred of the nobleft Greeks, was fent on a peremptory fummons to the Ottoman porte. They ferved with honour in the wars of Bajazet; but a plan of fortifying Conftantinople excited his jealoufy: he threatened their lives; the new works were inftantly demolished; and we shall bestow a praise, perhaps above the merit of Palæologus, if we impute this laft humiliation as the caufe of his death.

The emperor Manuel, A.D. 1391-1425, July 25.

The earlieft intelligence of that event was communicated to Manuel, who escaped with speed and secrecy from the palace of Bourfa to the Byzantine throne. Bajazet affected a proud indifference at the lofs of this valuable pledge; and while he purfued his conquefts in Europe and Afia, he left the emperor to ftruggle with his blind coufin

328

LXIV.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

coufin John of Selybria, who, in eight years of civil war, afferted C H A P. LXIV. his right of primogeniture. At length the ambition of the victorious fultan pointed to the conquest of Constantinople; but he listened to the advice of his vizir, who reprefented, that fuch an enterprife might unite the powers of Chriftendom in a fecond and more formidable crufade. His epifile to the emperor was conceived in thefe words : " By the divine clemency, our invincible fcymetar has re- Distress of " duced to our obcdience almost all Afia, with many and large coun- ple, A.D. " tries in Europe, excepting only the city of Conftantinople; for 1395-1402. " beyond the walls thou haft nothing left. Refign that city; flipulate " thy reward; or tremble, for thyfelf and thy unhappy people, at the " confequences of a rafh refufal." But his ambaffadors were inftructed to foften their tone, and to propofe a treaty, which was fubfcribed with fubmiffion and gratitude. A truce of ten years was purchafed by an annual tribute of thirty thousand crowns of gold: the Greeks deplored the public toleration of the law of Mahomet, and Bajazet enjoyed the glory of eftablishing a Turkish cadhi, and founding a royal mosch in the metropolis of the Eastern church ". Yet this truce was foon violated by the reftlefs fultan: in the caufe of the prince of Selybria, the lawful emperor, an army of Ottomans, again threatened Conftantinople; and the diffress of Manuel implored the protection of the king of France. His plaintive embaffy obtained much pity and fome relief; and the conduct of the fuccour was entrufted to the marshal Boucicault 68, whose religious chivalry was inflamed by the defire of revenging his captivity on the infidels. He failed with four thips of war, from Aiguefmortes to the Hellefpont; forced the paffage, which was guarded by feventeen Turkifh gallies; landed at Conftantinople a fupply of fix hundred men at arms and fixteen hundred archers; and reviewed them in the ad-

VOL. VI.

Uu

jacen

Conftanting-

Land

⁶⁷ Cantemir, p. 50-53. Of the Greeks, 68 Memoirs du bon Meffire Jean le Maingre, Ducas alone (c. 13. 15.) acknowledges the dit Boucicault, Maréchal de France, partie ice, Turkish cadhi at Constantinople. Yet even c. 30-35. Ducas diffembles the mofch.

C H A P. jacent plain, without condefcending to number or array the multitude of Greeks. By his prefence, the blockade was raifed both by fea and land; the flying squadrons of Bajazet were driven to a more refpectful diftance; and feveral caftles in Europe and Afia were formed by the emperor and the marshal, who fought with equal valour by each other's fide. But the Ottomans foon returned with an encrease of numbers; and the intrepid Boucicault, after a year's ftruggle, refolved to evacuate a country which could no longer afford either pay or provisions for his foldiers. The marshal offered to conduct Manuel to the French court, where he might folicit in perfon a fupply of men and money; and advifed in the mean while, that, to extinguish all domettic difcord, he should leave his blind competitor on the throne. The propofal was embraced: the prince of Selybria was introduced to the capital; and fuch was the public mifery, that the lot of the exile feemed more fortunate than that of the fovereign. Inftead of applauding the fuccefs of his vaffal, the Turkish fultan claimed the city as his own; and on the refufal of the emperor John, Conftantinople was more clofely preffed by the calamities of war and famine. Against fuch an enemy, prayers and refiftance were alike unavailing; and the favage would have devoured his prey, if, in the fatal moment, he had not been overthrown by another favage stronger than himfelf. By the victory of Timour or Tamerlane, the fall of Conftantinople was delayed about fifty years; and this important, though accidental, fervice may juftly introduce the life and character of the Mogul conqueror.

330

LXIV.

CHAP. LXV.

Elevation of Timour or Tamerlane to the Throne of Samarcand.—His Conquests in Persia, Georgia, Tartary, Russia, India, Syria, and Anatolia.-His Turkis War.-Defeat and Captivity of Bajazet.-Death of Timour .- Civil War of the Sons of Bajazet .-Restoration of the Turkish Monarchy by Mahomet the First .- Siege of Constantinople by Amurath the Second.

THE conqueft and monarchy of the world was the first object C H A P. of the ambition of TIMOUR. To live in the memory and efteem of future ages was the fecond with of his magnanimous fpirit. All the civil and military transactions of his reign were diligently recorded in the journals of his fecretaries': the authentic narrative was revifed by the perfons best informed of each particular tranfaction; and it is believed in the empire and family of Timour. that the monarch himfelf composed the commentaries 2 of his life, Sherefeddin, or Cherefeddin Ali, a native, procure intelligence from his own and foreign who composed in the Perfian language a countries, may be feen in the Inflitutions, history of Timour Beg, which has been translated into French by M. Petis de la Croix (Paris, 1722, in 4 vols. 12me), and has al- in Europe: but Mr. White gives fome hope, * ways been my faithful guide. His geography and chronology are wonderfully accurate; and he may be trufted for public facts, East this " minute and faithful narrative of though he fervilely praifes the virtue and " an interesting and eventful period."

" Thefe journals were communicated to fortune of the hero. Timour's attention to p. 215. 217. 349. 351.

² Thefe Commentaries are yet unknown that they may be imported and translated by his friend Major Davy, who had read in the

and Hiftories of TIMOUR, OF Tamerlane.

332

LXV.

C H A P. and the inflitutions 3 of his government 4. But these cares were ineffectual for the prefervation of his fame, and these precious memorials in the Mogul or Persian language were concealed from the world, or at leaft from the knowledge of Europe. The nations which he vanquished exercised a base and impotent revenge; and ignorance has long repeated the tale of calumny', which had dif-, figured the birth and character, the perfon, and even the name, of Tamerlane[®]. Yet his real merit would be enhanced, rather than debafed, by the elevation of a peafant to the throne of Afia; nor can his lameness be a theme of reproach, unless he had the weakness to blush at a natural, or perhaps an honourable, infirmity.

> In the eyes of the Moguls, who held the indefeafible fucceffion of the houfe of Zingis, he was doubtlefs a rebel fubject; yet he fprang from the noble tribe of Berlass: his fifth ancestor, Carashar Nevian, had been the vizir of Zagatai, in his new realm of Transoxiana; and in the afcent of fome generations, the branch of Timour is ³ I am ignorant whether the original inflitution, in the Turki or Mogul language, be fill extant. The Perfic version, with an English translation and most valuable index, was published (Oxford, 1783, in 4to) by the joint labours of Major Davy, and Mr. White the Arabic professor. This work has been fince translated from the Perfic into French (Paris, 1787) by M. Langlès, a learned Orientalist, who has added the life of Timour, and many curious notes.

* Shaw Allum, the prefent Mogul, reads, values, but cannot imitate, the inflitutions of his great anceftor. The English translator relies on their internal evidence: but if any fufpicions should arife of fraud and fistion, they will not be difpelled by Major Davy's letter. The Orientals have never cultivated the art of criticism; the patronage of a prince, less honourable perhaps, is not less lucrative than that of a bookfeller: nor can it be deemed incredible, that a Perfian, the real author, should renounce the ctedit, to the two words in the name of Tamerlane.

raife the value and price, of the work.

⁵ The original of the tale is found in the following work, which is much effeemed for its florid clegance of ftyle : Ahmedis Arabfiadæ (Ahmed Ebn Arabshah) Vitæ et Rerum gestarum Timuri. Arabice et Latine. Edidit Samuel Henricus Manger. Franequerce, 1767, 2 tom. in 4to. This Syrian author is ever a malicious, and often an ignorant, enemy: the very titles of his chapters are injurious; as how the wicked, as how the impious, as how the viper, &c. The copious article of TIMUR, in Bibliothéque Orientale, is of a mixed nature, as d'Herbelot indifferently draws his materials (p. 877-888.) from Khondemir, Ebn Schounah, and the Lebtarikh.

⁶ Demir, or Timour, fignifies, in the Turkish language, Iron; and Beg is the appellation of a lord or prince. By the change of a letter or accent, it is changed into Lenc, or lame; and a European corruption confounds confounded,

confounded, at leaft by the females ', with the Imperial flem ". He C H A P. was born forty miles to the fouth of Samarcand, in the village of Sebzar, in the fruitful territory of Cafh, of which his fathers were the hereditary chiefs, as well as of a toman of ten thousand horse?. His birth " was caft on one of those periods of anarchy which announce the fall of the Afiatic dynasties, and open a new field to adventurous ambition. The khans of Zagatai were extinct; the emirs afpired to independence; and their domestic feuds could only be fufpended by the conquest and tyranny of the khans of Kashgar, who, with an army of Getes or Calmucks", invaded the Tranfoxian kingdom. From the twelfth year of his age, Timour had His first adentered the field of action; in the twenty-fifth, he flood forth as the deliverer of his country; and the eyes and wifhes of the people 1361-1370. were turned towards an hero who fuffered in their caufe. The chiefs of the law and of the army had pledged their falvation to fupport him with their lives and fortunes; but in the hour of danger they were filent and afraid; and, after waiting feven days on the hills of Samarcand, he retreated to the defert with only fixty

7 After relating fome falle and foolifh tales of Timour Lenc, Arabshah is compelled to fpeak truth, and to own him for a kinfman of Zingis, per mulieres (as he peevifhly adds) laqueos Satanæ (pars i. c. 1. p. 25.). The testimony of Abulghazi Khan (P. ii. c. 5. P. v. c. 4.) is clear, unqueitionable, and decifive.

⁸ According to one of the pedigrees, the fourth anceftor of Zingis, and the ninth of Timour, were brothers; and they agreed, that the pofferity of the elder fhould fucceed to the dignity of khan, and that the defeendants of the younger fhould fill the office of their minifier and general. This tradition was at least convenient to justify the first steps of Timour's ambition (Inflitutions, p. 24, 25. from the MS. fragments of Timour's hiftory). 9 See the preface of Sherefeddin, and Abulfeda's Geography (Chorafmiæ, &c. Defcriptio, p. 60, 61.), in the ild volume of Hudson's Minor Greek Geographers.

1º See his nativity in Dr. Hyde (Syntagma Differtat. tom. ii. p. 466.), as it was caft by the altrologers of his grandfon Ulugh Beg. He was born A. D. 1336, April 9, 11° 57 P. M. lat. 36. I know not whether they can prove the great conjunction of the planets from whence, like other conquerors and prophets, Timour derived the furname of Saheb Keran, or master of the conjunctions (Bibliot. Orient. p. 878.).

" In the Inftitutions of Timour, thefe fubjects of the khan of Kafhgar are most improperly styled Ouzbegs, or Uzbeks, a name which belongs to another branch and country of Tartars (Abulghazi, P. v. c. c. P. vii. c. 5.). Could I be fure that this word is in the Turkish original, I would boldly pronounce, that the Inflitutions were framed a century after the death of Timour, fince the eftablishment of the Uzbeks in Transoxiana.

horsemen.

ventures, A. D.

C. H A P. horfemen. The fugitives were overtaken by a thousand Getes, whom he repulfed with incredible flaughter, and his enemies were forced to exclaim, " Timour is a wonderful man : fortune " and the divine favour are with him." But in this bloody action his own followers were reduced to ten, a number which was foon diminished by the defertion of three Carizmians. He wandered in the defert with his wife, feven companions, and four horfes; and fixty-two days was he plunged in a loathfome dungeon, from whence he escaped by his own courage, and the remorfe of the oppreffor. After fwimming the broad and rapid ftream of the Jihoon, or Oxus, he led, during fome months, the life of a vagrant and outlaw, on the borders of the adjacent flates. But his fame shone brighter in adverfity; he learned to diftinguish the friends of his perfon, the affociates of his fortune, and to apply the various characters of men for their advantage, and above all for his own. On his return to his native country, Timour was fucceffively joined by the parties of his confederates, who anxioufly fought him in the defert; nor can I refuse to describe, in his pathetic simplicity, one of their fortunate encounters. He prefented himfelf as a guide to three chiefs, who were at the head of feventy horfe. "When their eyes fell upon " me," fays Timour, " they were overwhelmed with joy; and they " alighted from their horfes; and they came and kneeled; and they " kiffed my ftirrup. I alfo came down from my horfe, and took " each of them in my arms. And I put my turban on the head " of the first chief; and my girdle, rich in jewels and wrought " with gold, I bound on the loins of the fecond; and the third, I " clothed in my own coat. And they wept, and I wept alfo; " and the hour of prayer was arrived, and we prayed. And we " mounted our horfes, and came to my dwelling; and I collected " my people, and made a feaft." His trufty bands were foon encreafed by the braveft of the tribes; he led them against a fuperior foe; and after fome vicifitudes of war, the Getes were finally driven from from the kingdom of Tranfoxiana. He had done much for his C H A P. own glory; but much remained to be done, much art to be exerted, and fome blood to be spilt, before he could teach his equals to obey him as their mafter. The birth and power of emir Houffein compelled him to accept a vicious and unworthy colleague, whofe fifter was the beft beloved of his wives. Their union was fhort and jealous; but the policy of Timour, in their frequent quarrels, expofed his rival to the reproach of injuffice and perfidy: and, after a final defeat, Houffein was flain by fome fagacious friends, who prefumed, for the laft time, to difobey the commands of their lord. At the age of thirty-four 12, and in a general diet or couroultai, he was invefted with Imperial command, but he affected to revere the houfe of Zingis; and while the emir Timour reigned He afcends over Zagatai and the East, a nominal khan ferved as a private of- Zagatai, ficer in the armies of his fervant. A fertile kingdom, five hundred miles in length and in breadth, might have fatisfied the ambition of a fubject; but Timour aspired to the dominion of the world; and before his death, the crown of Zagatai was one of the twenty-feven crowns which he had placed on his head. Without expatiating on the victories of thirty-five campaigns; without defcribing the lines of march, which he repeatedly traced over the continent of Afia; I shall briefly represent his conquests in, I. Perfia, II. Tartary, and, III. India¹³, and from thence proceed to the more interefting narrative of his Ottoman war.

I. For every war, a motive of fafety or revenge, of honour or His conzeal, of right or convenience, may be readily found in the jurifprudence of conquerors. No fooner had Timour re-united to the patrimony of Zagatai the dependent countries of Carizme and Canon the private life of the hero; and he himfelf, or his fecretary (Institutions, p. 3-77.), en- India, are represented in the iid and iiid larges with platfure on the thirteen defigns and enterprifes which most truly constitute his -55. Confult the excellent Indexes to the perfonal merit. It even fhines through the Inflitutions. 18

¹² The ist book of Sherefeddin is employed dark colouring of Arabshah, P. i. c. 1-12. 13 The conquests of Persia, Tartary, and books of Sherefeddin, and by Arabihah, c. 13

dahar,

the throne of A. D. 1370, April.

quests, A.D. 1370-1400. I. Of Perfia, A. D. 1380-1393.

335

LXV.

C H A F. dahar, than he turned his eyes towards the kingdoms of Iran or LXV. Perfia. From the Oxus to the Tigris, that extensive country was ----left without a lawful fovereign fince the death of Aboufaid, the laft of the defcendants of the great Holacou. Peace and juffice had been banished from the land above forty years; and the Mogul invader might feem to liften to the cries of an oppreffed people. Their petty tyrants might have opposed him with confederate arms : they feparately flood, and fuccefiively fell; and the difference of their fate was only marked by the promptitude of fubmiffion or the obftinacy of refiflance. Ibrahim, prince of Shirwan or Albania, kiffed the footftool of the Imperial throne. His peace-offerings of filks, horfes, and jewels, were composed, according to the Tartar fashion, each article of nine pieces; but a critical fpectator obferved, that there were only eight flaves. " I myfelf am the ninth," replied Ibrahim, who was prepared for the remark; and his flattery was rewarded by the imile of Timour¹⁴. Shah Manfour, prince of Fars, or the proper Perfia, was one of the leaft powerful, but most dangerous, of his enemies. In a battle under the walls of Shiraz, he broke, with three or four thousand foldiers, the coul or main-body of thirty thousand horfe, where the emperor fought in perfon. No more than fourteen or fifteen guards remained near the flandard of Timour: he flood firm as a rock, and received on his helmet two weighty ftrokes of a fcymetar's: the Moguls rallied; the head of Manfour was thrown at his feet, and he declared his effeem of the valour of a foe, by extirpating all the males of fo intrepid a race. From Shiraz, his troops advanced to the Perfian gulf; and the richnefs and weaknefs of Ormuz¹⁶ were difplayed in an annual tribute of fix hundred thou-> mysterious number of nine, is declared by Abulghazi Khan, who, for that reafon, divides his Genealogical History into nine parts.

the coward Timour ran away to his tent, in a neighbouring island without fresh water and hid himfelf from the pursuit of Shah or vegetation. The kings of Ormuz, rich Manfour under the women's garments. Per- in the Indian trade and the pearl fifthery,

 The reverence of the Tartars for the haps Sherefeddin (1. iii. c. 25.) has magnified his courage.

fand

16 The history of Ormuz is not unlike that of Tyre. The old city, on the continent, 15 According to Arabshah (P.i.c. 28. p. 183.), was deftroyed by the Tartars, and renewed poffeffed fand dinars of gold. Bagdad was no longer the city of peace, the C H A P. feat of the caliphs; but the nobleft conqueft of Houlacou could not be overlooked by his ambitious fucceffor. The whole courfe of the Tigris and Euphrates, from the mouth to the fources of those rivers. was reduced to his obedience : he entered Edeffa; and the Turkmans of the black fheep were chaftifed for the facrilegious pillage of a caravan of Mecca. In the mountains of Georgia, the native Chriftians fiill braved the law and the fword of Mahomet; by three expeditions he obtained the merit of the gazie, or holy war; and the prince of Teflis became his profelyte and friend.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

II. A just retaliation might be urged for the invation of Turkestan, II. Of or the eaftern Tartary. The dignity of Timour could not endure the impunity of the Getes : he paffed the Sihoon, fubdued the kingdom of Cafhgar, and marched feven times into the heart of their country. His most distant camp was two months journey, or four hundred and eighty leagues to the north-east of Samarcand; and his emirs, who traverfed the river Irtifh, engraved in the forefts of Siberia a rude memorial of their exploits. The conquest of Kipzak, or the western Tartary ", was founded on the double motive of aiding the diftreffed, and chaftifing the ungrateful. Toctamish, a fugitive prince, was entertained and protected in his court : the ambaffadors of Aurufs Khan were difinified with an haughty denial, and followed on the fame day by the armies of Zagatai; and their fuccess established Toctamish in the Mogul empire of the north. But after a reign of ten years, the new khan forgot the merits and the ftrength of his benefactor; the bafe ufurper, as he deemed him, of the fultans of Kerman, and at last were delivered (A. D. 1505) by the Portuguese tyrants from the tyranny of their own vizirs (Marco Polo, l. i. c. 15, 16. fol. 7, 8. Abulfeda Geograph. tabul. xi. p. 261, 262. an original Chronicle of Ormuz, in Texeira, geography, cities, and revolutions, of that or Stevens' History of Persia, p. 376-416. northern region (P. i. c. 45-49.).

VOL. VI.

possessed large territories both in Persia and and the Itineraries inferted in the ist volume Arabia; but they were at first the tributaries of Ramusio, of Ludovico Barthema (1503), fol. 167. of Andrea Corfali (1517), fol. 202, 203, and of Odoardo Barbeffa (in 1516), fol.

315-318.). ¹⁷ Arabîhah had travelled into Kipzak, and acquired a fingular knowledge of the

of

Xx

Turkestan, A. D. 1370-1383;

of Kipzak, Ruffia, &c. A.D. 1390-1376.

LXV.

C H A P. of the facred rights of the house of Zingis. Through the gates of Derbend, he entered Perfia at the head of ninety thousand horse: with the innumerable forces of Kipzak, Bulgaria, Circaffia, and Ruffia, he paffed the Sihoon, burnt the palaces of Timour, and compelled him, amidst the winter fnows, to contend for Samarcand and his life. After a mild expostulation and a glorious victory, the emperor refolved on revenge: and by the eaft, and the weft, of the Cafpian, and the Volga, he twice invaded Kipzak with fuch mighty powers, that thirteen miles were measured from his right to his left wing. In a march of five months, they rarely beheld the footfleps of man; and their daily fubfiftence was often trufted to the fortune of the chace. At length the armies encountered each other; but the treachery of the standard-bearer, who, in the heat of action, reverfed the Imperial ftandard of Kipzak, determined the victory of the Zagatais; and Toctamish (I speak the language of the inftitutions) gave the tribe of Toushi to the wind of defolation ". He fled to the Christian duke of Lithuania; again returned to the banks of the Volga; and, after fifteen battles with a domeftic rival, at laft perifhed in the wilds of Siberia. The purfuit of a flying enemy carried Timour into the tributary provinces of Ruffia: a duke of the reigning family was made prifoner amidft the ruins of his capital; and Yeletz, by the pride and ignorance of the Orientals, might eafily be confounded with the genuine metropolis of the nation. Mofcow trembled at the approach of the Tartar, and the refiftance would have been feeble, fince the hopes of the Ruffians were placed in a miraculous image of the Virgin, to whofe protection they afcribed the cafual and voluntary retreat of the conqueror. Ambition and prudence recalled him to the South, the defolate country was exhausted, and the Mogul foldiers were enriched with an im-

Ľ

menie

¹⁸ Inflitutions of Timour, p. 123. 125. (l. iii. c. 12, 13, 14.), who was ignorant of Mr. White, the editor, beflows fome animad- the defigns of Timour, and the true fpringsverfion on the fuperficial account of Sherefeddin of action.

menfe spoil of precious furs, of linen of Antioch ", and of ingots C H A P. of gold and filver 20. On the banks of the Don, or Tanais, he received an humble deputation from the confuls and merchants of Egypt ", Venice, Genoa, Catalonia, and Bifcay, who occupied the commerce and city of Tana, or Azoph, at the mouth of the river. They offered their gifts, admired his magnificence, and trufted his royal word. But the peaceful vifit of an emir, who explored the ftate of the magazines and harbour, was fpeedily followed by the destructive presence of the Tartars. The city was reduced to ashes; the Moslems were pillaged and difmissed; but all the Christians, who had not fled to their fhips, were condemned either to death or flavery²². Revenge prompted him to burn the cities of Serai and Aftrachan, the monuments of rifing civilization; and his vanity proclaimed, that he had penetrated to the region of perpetual daylight, a ftrange phenomenon, which authorifed his Mahometan doctors to dispense with the obligation of evening prayer 23.

III. When Timour first proposed to his princes and emirs the invalion of India or Hindoftan²⁴, he was answered by a murmur of discontent:

¹⁹ The furs of Ruffia are more credible than the ingots. But the linen of Antioch has never been famous; and Antioch was in ruins. I fuspect that it was some manufacture of Europe, which the Hanse merchants had imported by the way of Novogored.

20 M. Levésque (Hift. de Russie, tom. ii. p. 217. Vie de Timour, p. 64-67. before the French version of the Institutes) has corrected the error of Sherefeddin, and marked the true limit of Timour's conquefts. His arguments are superfluous, and a simple appeal to the Ruffian Annals is fufficient to prove that Mofcow, which fix years before had been taken by Toctamish, escaped the arms of a more formidable invader.

24 An Egyptian conful from Grand Cairo, is mentioned in Barbaro's voyage to Tana in 1436, after the city had been rebuilt (Ramusio, tom. ii. fol. 92.).

refeddin (1. iii. c. 55.); and much more particularly by the author of an Italian chronicle (Andreas de Redufiis de Quero, in Chron. Tarvisiano, in Muratori Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xix. p. 802-805.). He had converfed with the Mianis, two Venetian brothers, one of whom had been fent a deputy to the camp of Timour, and the other had loft af Azoph three fons and 12,000 ducats.

23 Sherefeddin only fays (l. iii. c. 13.), that the rays of the fetting, and those of the rifing fun, were fcarcely feparated by any interval; a problem which may be folved in the latitude of Mofcow (the 56th degree), with the aid of the Aurora Borealis, and a long fummer twilight. But a day of forty days (Khondemir apud d'Herbelot, p. 880.) would rigoroufly confine us within the polar circle.

24 For the Indian war, fee the Inflitutions 22 The fack of Azoph is defcribed by She- (p. 129-139.), the fourth book of Shere-X x z feddin;

III. Of Hindoftan. A.D. 1398, 1399.

LXV.

C H A P. difcontent: " The rivers! and the mountains and deferts! and the " foldiers clad in armour ! and the elephants, deftroyers of men !" But the difpleafure of the emperor was more dreadful than all thefe terrors; and his fuperior reafon was convinced, that an enterprife of fuch tremendous afpect was fafe and eafy in the execution. He was informed by his fpies of the weaknefs and anarchy of Hindoftan : the Soubahs of the provinces had erected the flandard of rebellion ; and the perpetual infancy of fultan Mahmood was defpifed even in the haram of Delhi. The Mogul army moved in three great divifions: and Timour observes with pleasure, that the ninety-two foundrons of a thousand horse most fortunately corresponded with the ninety-two names or epithets of the prophet Mahomet. Between the Jihoon and the Indus, they croffed one of the ridges of mountains, which are ftyled by the Arabian geographers The ftony girdles of the earth. The highland robbers were fubdued or extirpated : but great numbers of men and horfes perifhed in the fnow; the emperor himfelf was let down a precipice on a portable fcaffold, the ropes were one hundred and fifty cubits in length; and, before he could reach the bottom, this dangerous operation was five times repeated. Timour croffed the Indus at the ordinary paffage of Attok; and fucceffively traverfed, in the footfteps of Alexander, the Punjab, or five rivers25, that fall into the mafter-ftream. From Attok to Delhi, the high road measures no more than fix hundred miles; but the two conquerors deviated to the fouth-east; and the motive of Timour was to join his grandfon, who had atchieved by his command the conquest of Moultan. On the eastern bank of the Hyphasis, on the edge of the defert, the Macedonian hero halted and wept : the Mogul entered the defert, reduced the fortrefs of Batnir, and flood in arms before the gates of Delhi, a great and flourishing eaftern branches of the Indus, have been laid marches of Alexander and Timour.

Hindoftan. In his Critical Memoir, he il-25 The rivers of the Punjab, the five luftrates with judgment and learning the city, feddin, and the hiftory of Ferishta (in Dow, down for the first time with truth and accuvol. ii. p. 1-20.), which throws a general racy in Major Rennel's incomparable map of light on the affairs of Hindoftan.

340

LXV.

city, which had fublished three centuries under the dominion of the C H A P. Mahometan kings. The fiege, more especially of the castle, might have been a work of time; but he tempted, by the appearance of weaknefs, the fultan Mahmoud and his vizir to defcend into the plain, with ten thousand cuiraffiers, forty thousand of his foot-guards, and one hundred and twenty elephants, whofe tufks are faid to have been armed with tharp and poifoned daggers. Against these monfters, or rather against the imagination of his troops, he condefeended to use some extraordinary precautions of fire and a ditch, of iron fpikes and a rampart of bucklers; but the event taught the Moguls to finile at their own fears; and, as foon as thefe unwieldy animals were routed, the inferior fpecies (the men of India) difappeared from the field. Timour made his triumphal entry into the capital of Hindoftan; and admired, with a view to imitate, the architecture of the flately mofch; but the order or licence of a general pillage and maffacre polluted the feftival of his victory. He refolved to purify his foldiers in the blood of the idolaters, or Gentoos, who still furpass, in the proportion of ten to one, the numbers of the Moslems. In this pious defign, he advanced one hundred miles to the north-east of Delhi, passed the Ganges, fought feveral battles by land and water, and penetrated to the famous rock of Coupele, the flatue of the cow, that feems to discharge the mighty river, whole fource is far diftant among the mountains of Thibet 26. His return was along the fkirts of the northern hills; nor could this rapid campaign of one year justify the strange foresight of his emirs, that their children in a warm climate would degenerate into a race of Hindoos.

Burrampooter, rife in Thibet, from the op- ther Ganges has been the theme of ancient pofite ridges of the fame hills, feparate from and modern ftory. Coupele, the fcene of each other to the diffance of 1200 miles, Timour's last victory, must be fituate near and, after a winding course of 2000 miles, Loldong, 1100 miles from Calcutta; and, in again meet in one point near the gulf of Ben- 1774, a British camp! (Rennel's Memoir, gal. Yet fo capricious is Fame, that the Bur- p. 7. 59. 90, 91. 99.

26 The two great rivers, the Ganges and rampooter is a late difcovery, while his bro-

LXV.

It

C H A P. LXV. His war againft fultan Bajazet, A. D. 1400, September 1.

It was on the banks of the Ganges that Timour was informed, by his fpeedy meffengers, of the difturbances which had arifen on the confines of Georgia and Anatolia, of the revolt of the Chriftians, and the ambitious defigns of the fultan Bajazet. His vigour of mind and body was not impaired by fixty-three years, and innumerable fatigues; and, after enjoying fome tranquil months in the palace of Samarcand, he proclaimed a new expedition of feven years into the western countries of Afia²⁷. To the foldiers who had ferved in the Indian war, he granted the choice of remaining at home or following their prince ; but the troops of all the provinces and kingdoms of Perfia were commanded to affemble at Ifpahan, and wait the arrival of the Imperial flandard. It was first directed against the Christians of Georgia, who were strong only in their rocks, their caftles, and the winter feafon; but thefe obftacles were overcome by the zeal and perfeverance of 'Timour: the rebels fubmitted to the tribute or the Koran; and if both religions boafted of their martyrs, that name is more justly due to the Christian prisoners, who were offered the choice of abjuration or death. On his defcent from the hills, the emperor gave audience to the first ambassadors of Bajazet, and opened the hoftile correspondence of complaints and menaces; which fermented two years before the final explosion. Between two jealous and haughty neighbours, the motives of quarrel will feldom be wanting. The Mogul and Ottoman conquests now touched each other in the neighbourhood of Erzerum, and the Euphrates; nor had the doubtful limit been afcertained by time and treaty. Each of these ambitious monarchs might accuse his rival of violating his territory; of threatening his vaffals; and protecting his rebels; and, by the name of rebels, each underftood the fugitive princes, whofe kingdoms he had ufurped, and whofe life or liberty he implacably purfued. The refemblance of character was still more ³⁷ See the Inflitutions, p. 141. to the end -16.), to the entrance of Timeur into of the ist book, and Sherefeddin (l. v. c. I Syria.

dangerous

dangerous than the opposition of interest; and in their victorious C H A P. career, Timour was impatient of an equal, and Bajazet was ignorant of a superior. The first epistle 28 of the Mogul emperor must have provoked, inftead of reconciling the Turkish fultan; whole family and nation he affected to defpife 29. " Doft thou not know, that the " greateft part of Afia is fubject to our arms and our laws ? that our " invincible forces extend from one fea to the other? that the po-" tentates of the earth form a line before our gate? and that we " have compelled fortune herfelf to watch over the profperity of our " empire ? What is the foundation of thy infolence and folly ? " Thou haft fought fome battles in the woods of Anatolia; con-" temptible trophies! Thou haft obtained fome victories over the " Christians of Europe; thy fword was bleffed by the apostle of " God; and thy obedience to the precept of the Koran, in waging " war against the infidels, is the fole confideration that prevents us " from deftroying thy country, the frontier and bulwark of the " Moslem world. Be wife in time; reflect; repent; and avert the " thunder of our vengeance, which is yet fuspended over thy head. " Thou art no more than a pifmire; why wilt thou feek to provoke " the elephants? Alas, they will trample thee under their feet." In his replies, Bajazet poured forth the indignation of a foul which was deeply flung by fuch unufual contempt. After retorting the baseft reproaches on the thief and rebel of the defert, the Ottoman recapitulates his boafted victories in Iran, Touran, and the Indies ; and labours to prove, that Timour had never triumphed unlefs by

29. The Mogul emir diffinguishes himfelf and his countrymen by the name of Turks, and ftigmatifes the race and nation of Bajazet with the lefs honourable epithet of Turkmans. Yet I do not understand how the Ottomans those inland shepherds were so remote from

LXV. ~~~

343

his

²⁸ We have three copies of these hostile epistles in the Institutions (p. 147.), in Sherefeddin (l. v. c. 14.), and in Arabshah (tom. ii. c. 19. p. 183-201.); which agree with each other in the fpirit and fubftance rather than in the ftyle. It is probable, that could be descended from a Turkman failor; they have been translated, with various latitude, from the Turkith original into the the fea, and all maritime affairs. Arabic and Perfian tongues.

C H A P. his own perfidy and the vices of his foes. " Thy armies are in-" numerable: be they fo; but what are the arrows of the flying " Tartar against the fcymetars and battle-axes of my firm and in-" vincible Janizaries? I will guard the princes who have implored " my protection : feek them in my tents. The cities of Arzingan " and Erzeroum are mine, and unlefs the tribute be duly paid, I " will demand the arrears under the walls of Tauris and Sultania." The ungovernable rage of the fultan at length betrayed him to an infult of a more domeftic kind. " If I fly from thy arms," faid he, " may my wives be thrice divorced from my bed: but if thou haft " not courage to meet me in the field, mayeft thou again receive thy " wives after they have thrice endured the embraces of a ftranger "." Any violation by word or deed of the fecrecy of the Haram is an unpardonable offence among the Turkish nations"; and the political quarrel of the two monarchs was embittered by private and perfonal refentment. Yet in his first expedition, Timour was fatisfied with the fiege and deftruction of Siwas or Sebafte, a ftrong city on the borders of Anatolia; and he revenged the indifcretion of the Ottoman, on a garrifon of four thousand Armenians, who were buried alive for the brave and faithful difcharge of their duty. As a Mufulman he feemed to refpect the pious occupation of Bajazet, who was still engaged in the blockade of Constantinople: and after this falutary leffon, the Mogul conqueror checked his purfuit, and turned afide to the invafion of Syria and Egypt. In thefe transactions, the Ottoman prince, by the Orientals, and even by Timour, is ftyled

Timour invades Syria, A. D. 1400.

> 3º According to the Koran (c. 2. p. 27. and Sale's Difcourfes, p. 134.), a Mufu!man who had thrice divorced his wife (who had thrice repeated the words of a divorce), could not take her again, till after fhe had been married to, and repudiated by, another hufband: an ignominious transaction, which it is needlefs to aggravate by fuppofing, that the first husband must fee her enjoyed by a the infult.

fecond before his face (Rycaut's State of the, Ottoman Empire, I. ii. c. 21.).

³¹ The common delicacy of the Orientals, in never fpeaking of their women, is afcribed in a much higher degree by Arabshah to the Turkish nations; and it is remarkable enough, that Chalcondyles (l. ii. p. 55.) had fome knowledge of the prejudice, and the Kaiffar of Roum, the Cæfar of the Romans : a title which, by a C H A P. fmall anticipation, might be given to a monarch who poffeffed the provinces, and threatened the city, of the fucceffors of Conftantine³².

344

LXV.

Land

The military republic of the Mamalukes ftill reigned in Egypt and Syria: but the dynasty of the Turks was overthrown by that of the Circaffians³³; and their favourite Barkok, from a flave and a prifoner, was raifed and reftored to the throne. In the midft of rebellion and difcord, he braved the menaces, corresponded with the enemies, and detained the ambaffadors, of the Mogul, who patiently expected his decease, to revenge the crimes of the father on the feeble reign of his fon Farage. The Syrian emirs 2+ were affembled at Aleppo to repel the invafion : they confided in the fame and difcipline of the Mamalukes, in the temper of their fwords and lances of the pureft fteel of Damafcus, in the ftrength of their walled cities, and in the populoufnefs of fixty thoufand villages : and inftead of fuftaining a fiege, they threw open their gates, and arrayed their forces in the plain. But thefe forces were not cemented by virtue and union; and fome powerful emirs had been feduced to defert or betray their more loyal companions. Timour's front was covered with a line of Indian elephants, whofe turrets were filled with archers and Greek fire: the rapid evolutions of his cavalry completed the difmay and diforder; the Syrian crowds fell back on each other; many thousands were stifled or flaughtered in the entrance of the great fireet; the Moguls entered with the fugitives; and, after a in M. de Guignes (tom. iv. 1. xxii.), who, his enemy and himfelf. His bitters may corfrom the Arabic texts of Aboulmahafen, rect the lufcious fweets of Sherefeddin (1. v. Ebn Schounah, and Aintabi, has added fome c. 17-29.).

VOL. VI.

34 For these recent and domestic transacto a Syrian; but the notoriety of facts would 33 See the reigns of Barkok and Pharadge, have obliged him, in fome measure, to respect

Ϋ́у

thort

LXV.

345

stitutions (p. 131. 147.), and for the Perfians, the Bibliotheque Orientale (p. 882.): tions, Arabihah, though a partial, is a crebut I do not find that the title of Cæfar has dible, witnefs (tom. i. c. 64-63. tom. ii. been applied by the Arabians, or affumed by c. 1-14.). Timour must have been odious the Ottomans themfelves.

³² For the flyle of the Moguls, fee the In- facts to our common flock of materials.

LXV. Sacks Aleppo, A. D. 1400, Nov. 11,

C H A P. fhort defence, the citadel, the impregnable citadel of Aleppo, was furrendered by cowardice or treachery. Among the fuppliants and captives, Timour diftinguished the doctors of the law, whom he invited to the dangerous honour of a perfonal conference³⁵. The Mogul prince was a zealous Mufulman ; but his Perfian fchools had taught him to revere the memory of Ali and Hofain; and he had imbibed a deep prejudice against the Syrians, as the enemies of the fon of the daughter of the apoftle of God. To these doctors he propofed a captious question, which the cafuilts of Bochara, Samarcand, and Herat, were incapable of refolving. " Who are the true " martyrs, of those who are slain on my side, or on that of my " enemies?" But he was filenced, or fatisfied, by the dexterity of one of the cadhis of Aleppo, who replied, in the words of Mahomet himfelf, that the motive, not the enfign, conftitutes the martyr; and that the Moslems of either party, who fight only for the glory of God, may deferve that facred appellation. The true fucceffion of the caliphs was a controverfy of a ftill more delicate nature and the franknels of a doctor, too honeft for his fituation, provoked the emperor to exclaim, " Ye are as false as those of Damascus: Moa-" wiyah was an ufurper, Yezid a tyrant, and Ali alone is the law-" ful fucceffor of the prophet." A prudent explanation reftored his tranquillity; and he paffed to a more familiar topic of conversation. "What is your age?" faid he to the cadhi. "Fifty years." -" It would be the age of my eldeft fon: you fee me here (con-" tinued Timour) a poor, lame, decrepit mortal. Yet by my arm " has the Almighty been pleafed to fubdue the kingdoms of Iran, " Touran, and the Indies. I am not a man of blood; and God is " my witnefs, that in all my wars I have never been the aggreffor, " and that my enemies have always been the authors of their own " calamity." During this peaceful conversation, the ftreets of Aleppo

ftreamed

.4

³⁵ Thefe interesting conversations appear to rian Ebn Schounah, a principal actor. Yet have been copied by Arabshah (tom. i. c. 63. how could he be alive feventy-five years afterp. 625-645.) from the cadhi and hillo- wards (d'Herbelot, p. 792.)?

freamed with blood, and re-echoed with the eries of mothers and C H A P. children, with the thricks of violated virgins. The rich plunder that was abandoned to his foldiers might flimulate their avarice ; but their cruelty was enforced by the peremptory command of producing an adequate number of heads, which, according to his cuftom, were curioufly piled in columns and pyramids: the Moguls celebrated the feaft of victory, while the furviving Moßems passed the night in tears and in chains. I shall not dwell on the march of the deftroyer from Aleppo to Damafcus, where he was rudely encountered. and almost overthrown, by the armies of Egypt. A retrograde motion was imputed to his diffrefs and defpair; one of his nephews deferted to the enemy; and Syria rejoiced in the tale of his defeat, when the fultan was driven by the revolt of the Mamalukes to efcape with precipitation and fhame to his palace of Cairo. Abandoned by their prince, the inhabitants of Damafcus still defended their walls : and Timour confented to raife the fiege, if they would adorn his retreat with a gift or ranfom; each article of nine pieces. But no fooner had he introduced himfelf into the city, under colour of a truce, than he perfidioufly violated the treaty ; imposed a contribution of Damafcus, ten millions of gold; and animated his troops to chaftife the pofte- January 23. rity of those Syrians who had executed, or approved, the murder of the grandfon of Mahomet. A family which had given honourable burial to the head of Hofein, and a colony of artificers whom he fent to labour at Samarcand, were alone referved in the general maffacre; and, after a period of feven centuries, Damafcus was reduced to afhes, becaufe a Tartar was moved by religious zeal to avenge the blood of an Arab. The loffes and fatigues of the campaign obliged Timour to renounce the conqueft of Paleftine and Egypt; but in his return to the Euphrates, he delivered Aleppo to the flames; and juftified his pious motive by the pardon and reward of two thousand sectaries of Ali, who were defirous to visit the tomb of his fon. I have expatiated on the perfonal anecdotes which mark

Y y 2

A. D. 1405.

LXV.

LXV. ---and Bagdad, A. D. 1401, July 23.

C H A P. mark the character of the Mogul hero; but I shall briefly mention 30, that he erected on the ruins of Bagdad a pyramid of ninety thousand heads; again visited Georgia; encamped on the banks of Araxes; and proclaimed his refolution of marching against the Ottoman emperor. Confcious of the importance of the war, he collected his forces from every province : eight hundred thousand men were enrolled on his military lift 37; but the fplendid commands of five, and ten, thousand horse, may be rather expressive of the rank and penfion of the chiefs, than of the genuine number of effective foldiers ³⁸. In the pillage of Syria, the Moguls had acquired immenfe riches : but the delivery of their pay and arrears for feven years, more firmly attached them to the Imperial flandard.

Invades Anatolia, A. D. 1402.

During this diversion of the Mogul arms, Bajazet had two years to collect his forces for a more ferious encounter. They confifted of four hundred thousand horse and foot 39, whose merit and fidelity were of an unequal complexion. We may difcriminate the Janizaries who have been gradually raifed to an eftablifhment of forty thousand men; a national cavalry, the Spahis of modern times; twenty thoufand cuiraffiers of Europe, clad in black and impenetrable armour; the troops of Anatolia, whofe princes had taken refuge in the camp of Timour, and a colony of Tartars, whom he had driven from 36 The marches and occupations of Timour between the Syrian and Ottoman wars, are reprefented by Sherefeddin (l. v. c. 29 -43.) and Arabshah (tom. ii. c. 15-18.).

37 This number of 800,000 was extracted by Arabshah, or rather by Ebn Schounah, ex rationario Timuri, on the faith of a Carizmian officer (tom. i. c. 68. p. 617.); and it is remarkable enough, that a Greek hiftorian (Phranza, l. i. c. 29.) adds no more than 20,000 men. Poggius reckons 1,000,000; another Latin contemporary (Chron. Tarvifianum, apud Muratori, tom. xix. p. 800.) 1,100,000; and the enormous fum of 1,600,000 is attested by a German foldier, who was prefent at the battle of Angora (Leunclay.

0

ad Chalcondyl. l. iii. p. 82.). Timour, in his Inflitutions, has not deigned to calculate his troops, his fubjects, or his revenues.

38 A wide latitude of non effectives was allowed by the Great Mogul for his own. pride and the benefit of his officers. Bernier's patron was Penge-Hazari, commander of 5000 horfe; of which he maintained no more than 500 (Voyages, tom. i. p. 288, 289.).

39 Timour himfelf fixes at 400,000 men the Ottoman army (Institutions, p. 153.), which is reduced to 150,000 by Phranza (l. i. c. 29.), and fwelled by the German. foldier to 1,400,000. It is evident, that the Moguls were the more numerous.

Kipzak,

Kipzak, and to whom Bajazet had affigned a fettlement in the C H A P. plains of Adrianople. The fearlefs confidence of the fultan urged him to meet his antagonift; and, as if he had chosen that foot for revenge, he difplayed his banners near the ruins of the unfortunate Suvas. In the mean while, Timour moved from the Araxes through the countries of Armenia and Anatolia: his boldnefs was fecured by the wifeft precautions; his fpeed was guided by order and difcipline; and the woods, the mountains, and the rivers, were dilicently explored by the flying fquadrons, who marked his road and preceded his ftandard. Firm in his plan of fighting in the heart of the Ottoman kingdom, he avoided their camp; dextroufly inclined. to the left; occupied Carfarea; traverfed the falt defert and the river Halys; and invefted Angora: while the fultan, immoveable and ignorant in his poft, compared the Tartar fwiftnefs to the crawling of a fnail 4°: he returned on the wings of indignation to the relief of Angora; and as both generals were alike impatient for action, the Battle of plains round that city were the fcene of a memorable battle, which A.D. 1402, has immortalifed the glory of Timour and the shame of Bajazet. For this fignal victory, the Mogul emperor was indebted to himfelf, to the genius of the moment, and the difcipline of thirty years. He had improved the tactics, without violating the manners, of his nation 4", whofe force still confisted in the missile weapons, and rapid evolutions, of a numerous cavalry. From a fingle troop to a great army, the mode of attack was the fame: a foremost line first advanced to the charge, and was supported in a just order by the fquadrons of the great vanguard. The general's eye watched over the field, and at his command the front and rear of the right and left wings fucceffively moved forwards in their feveral divisions, and 4º It may not be useles to mark the diftances between Angora and the neighbouring cities, by the journies of the caravans, each of twenty or twenty-five miles: to Smyrna xx. to Kiotahia x. to Bourfa x. to Cæfarea vili, to Sinope x. to Nicomedia ix. to Con-

Angora, July 28.

349

LXV.

~~

in

flantinople xii. or xiii. (fee Tournefort, Voyage au Levant, tom. ii. lettre xxi.)

^{4&}quot; See the Systems of Tactics in the Inflitutions, which the English editors have illustrated with elaborate plans (p. 373-407.).

C H A P. in a direct or oblique line: the enemy was preffed by eighteen or twenty attacks; and each attack afforded a chance of victory. If they all proved fruitlefs or unfuccefsful, the occasion was worthy of the emperor himfelf, who gave the fignal of advancing to the flandard and main body, which he led in perfon *2. But in the battle of Angora, the main body itfelf was fupported, on the flanks and in the rear, by the braveft fquadrons of the referve, commanded by the fons and grandfons of Timour. The conqueror of Hindoftan oftentatiously shewed a line of elephants, the trophies, rather than the inftruments, of victory : the use of the Greek fire was familiar to the Moguls and Ottomans: but had they borrowed from Europe the recent invention of gunpowder and cannon, the artificial thunder. in the hands of either nation, must have turned the fortune of the day⁴³. In that day, Bajazet difplayed the qualities of a foldier and a chief: but his genius funk under a ftronger afcendant; and from various motives, the greatest part of his troops failed him in the decifive moment. His rigour and avarice had provoked a mutiny among the Turks; and even his fon Soliman too haftily withdrew from the field. The forces of Anatolia, loyal in their revolt, were drawn away to the banners of their lawful princes. His Tartar allies had been tempted by the letters and emiffaries of Timour "; who reproached their ignoble fervitude under the flaves of their fathers; and offered to their hopes the dominion of their new, or the liberty of their ancient, country. In the right wing of Bajazet, the cuiraffiers of Europe charged, with faithful hearts and irrefiftible arms; but these men of iron were soon broken by an artful flight and been fent by that monarch to Dehli, is refuted by the universal filence of contemporaries.

> ⁴² The fultan himfelf (fays Timour) muft then put the foot of courage into the flirrup of patience. A Tartar metaphor, which is 30ft in the Englith, but preferved in the French, vertion of the Infitutes (p. 156, 157.).

⁴³ The Greek fire, on Timour's fide, is attefted by Sherefeddin (l. v. c. 47.); but Voltaire's firange fuspicion, that fome cannon, inferibed with firange characters, muft have d'Herbelot, p. 882.).

⁴⁴ Timour has diffembled this fecret and important negociation with the Tartars, which is indifputably proved by the joint evidence of the Arabian (tom. i. c. 47. p. 391), Turkifh (Annal. Leunclav. p. 321.), and Perfan hilforians (Khondemir, apud d'Herbelot, p. 882.).

headlong

350

headlong purfuit : and the Janizaries, alone, without cavalry or C H A P. miffile weapons, were encompafied by the circle of the Mogul hunters. Their valour was at length oppreffed by heat, thirft, and the weight of numbers; and the unfortunate fultan, afflicted with the gout in his hands and feet, was transported from the field on the fleetest of his horses. He was pursued and taken by the titular khan Defeat and of Zagatai; and, after his capture, and the defeat of the Ottoman of Bajazet, powers, the kingdom of Anatolia fubmitted to the conqueror, who planted his ftandard at Kiotahia, and difperfed on all fides the minifters of rapine and deftruction. Mirza Mehemmed Sultan, the eldeft and best beloved of his grandfons; was difpatched to Bourfa with thirty thousand horse : and such was his youthful ardour, that he arrived with only four thousand at the gates of the capital, after performing in five days a march of two hundred and thirty miles. Yet fear is still more rapid in its course : and Soliman, the fon of Bajazet, had already paffed over to Europe with the royal treafure. The spoil, however, of the palace and city was immense : the inhabitants had efcaped; but the buildings, for the most part of wood, were reduced to ashes. From Bourfa, the grandfon of Timour advanced to Nice, even yet a fair and flourishing city; and the Mogul fquadrons were only flopped by the waves of the Propontis. The fame fuccefs attended the other mirzas and emirs in their excursions : and Smyrna, defended by the zeal and courage of the Rhodian knights, alone deferved the prefence of the emperor himfelf. After an obflinate defence, the place was taken by florm ; all that breathed was put to the fword; and the heads of the Christian heroes were launched from the engines, on board of two carracks, or great fhips of Europe, that rode at anchor in the harbour. The Mollems of Afia rejoiced in their deliverance from a dangerous and domefic foe, and a parallel was drawn between the two rivals, by obferving that Timour, in fourteen days, had reduced a fortrefs which had

351 captivity of

C H A P. had fuftained feven years the fiege, or at leaft the blockade, of LXV. Bajazet 45. ____

The ftory of

difproved by the Persian historian of Timour;

The iron cage in which Bajazet was imprisoned by Tamerlane, his iron cage fo long and fo often repeated as a moral leffon, is now rejected as a fable by the modern writers, who finile at the vulgar credulity 46. They appeal with confidence to the Perfian hiftory of Sherefeddin Ali, which has been given to our curiofity in a French verfion, and from which I shall collect and abridge a more specious narrative of this memorable transaction. No fooner was Timour informed that the captive Ottoman was at the door of his tent, than he graciously ftept forwards to receive him, feated him by his fide, and mingled with just reproaches a foothing pity for his rank and misfortune. " Alas!" faid the emperor, " the decree of fate is now accom-" plished by your own fault: it is the web which you have woven, " the thorns of the tree which yourfelf have planted. I wished to " fpare, and even to affift, the champion of the Mollems: you " braved our threats; you despifed our friendship; you forced us " to enter your kingdom with our invincible armies. Behold the " event. Had you vanquished, I am not ignorant of the fate which " you referved for myfelf and my troops. But I difdain to retaliate : " your life and honour are fecure; and I fhall express my grati-" tude to God by my clemency to man." The royal captive shewed fome figns of repentance, accepted the humiliation of a robe of honour, and embraced with tears his fon Moufa, who, at his requeft, was fought and found among the captives of the field. The Ottoman princes were lodged in a fplendid pavillion; and the > 45 For the war of Anatolia or Roum, I c. 15-17. Chalcondyles, 1. iii.). add fome hints in the Inflitutions, to the copious narratives of Sherefeddin (l. v. c. 44- l'Histoire Generale, c. 88) is ready on this, 65.) and Arabíhah (tom. ii. c. 20-35.). as on every occufion, to reject a popular tale, On this part only of Timour's hiftory, it is and to diminifh the magnitude of vice and lawful to quote the Turks (Cantemir, p. 53 virtue; and on most occasions his incredulity -55. Annal. Leunclav. p. 320-322.) and is reafonable. the Greeks (Phranza, 1. i. c. 29. Ducas, 46 The scepticism of Voltaire (Effai fur

refpect

refpect of the guards could be furpaffed only by their vigilance. On C H A P. the arrival of the haram from Bourfa, Timour reftored the queen Defpina and her daughter to their father and hufband; but he pioufly required, that the Servian princefs, who had hitherto been indulged in the profession of Christianity, should embrace without delay the religion of the prophet. In the feast of victory, to which Bajazet was invited, the Mogul emperor placed a crown on his head and a fceptre in his hand, with a folemn affurance of reftoring him with an increase of glory to the throne of his anceftors. But the effect of this promife was difappointed by the fultan's untimely death : amidfl the care of the most skilful physicians, he expired of an apoplexy at Akshehr, the Antioch of Pisidia, about nine months after his defeat. The victor dropped a tear over his grave; his body, with royal pomp, was conveyed to the maufoleum which he had erected at Bourfa; and his fon Moufa, after receiving a rich prefent of gold and jewels, of horfes and arms, was invefted by a patent in red ink with the kingdom of Anatolia.

Such is the portrait of a generous conqueror, which has been extracted from his own memorials, and dedicated to his fon and grandfon, nineteen years after his decease 47; and, at a time when the truth was remembered by thousands, a manifest falsehood would have implied a fatire on his real conduct. Weighty indeed is this evidence, adopted by all the Persian histories ; yet flattery, more especially in the Eaft, is bafe and audacious; and the harfh and ignominious treatment of Bajazet is attefted by a chain of witneffes, fome of whom shall be produced in the order of their time and country. 1. The reader has not forgot the garrifon of French, whom the atteffed,

1. by the French ;

Farfiftan in his father's lifetime.

47 See the hiftory of Sherefeddin (l. v. Schounah, &c. the learned d'Herbelot (Bibc. 49. 52, 53. 59, 60.). This work was liot. Orientale, p. 882.) may affirm, that finished at Shiraz, in the year 1424, and de- this fable is not mentioned in the most audicated to fultan Ibrahim, the fon of Sha- thentic histories: but his denial of the visible rokh, the fon of Timour, who reigned in teftimony of Arabshah, leaves some room to fuspect his accuracy.

48 After the perufal of Khondemir, Ebn

VOL. VI.

marshal

LXV.

354

LXV.

2. by the Italians;

C H A P. marshal Boucicault left behind him for the defence of Conftantinople. They were on the fpot to receive the earliest and most ---faithful intelligence of the overthrow of their great adverfary; and it is more than probable, that fome of them accompanied the Greek embaffy to the camp of Tamerlane. From their account, the bard-(hips of the prifon and death of Bajazet are affirmed by the marshal's fervant and hiftorian, within the diftance of feven years 49. 2. The name of Poggius the Italian 5° is defervedly famous among the revivers of learning in the fifteenth century. His elegant dialogue on the viciffitudes of fortune s' was composed in his fiftieth year, twentyeight years after the Turkish victory of Tamerlane⁵²; whom he celebrates as not inferior to the illustrious Barbarians of antiquity. Of his exploits and discipline Poggius was informed by feveral ocular witneffes; nor does he forget an example fo apposite to his theme as the Ottoman monarch, whom the Scythian confined like a wild beaft in an iron cage, and exhibited a fpectacle to Afia. I might add the authority of two Italian chronicles, perhaps of an earlier date, which would prove at leaft that the fame ftory, whether falfe or true, was imported into Europe with the first tidings of the revolution ⁵³. 3. At the time when Poggius flourished at Rome, Ahmed Ebn Arabshala

3. by the Arabs ;

> mené en prison, en laquelle mourut de dure mort! Memoires de Boucicault, P. i. c. 37. Thefe memoirs were composed while the marthal was still governor of Genoa, from whence he was expelled in the year 1409, by a popular infurrection (Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. xii. p. 473, 474.).

> 5° The reader will find a fatisfactory account of the life and writings of Poggius, in the Poggiana, an entertaining work of M. Lenfant, and in the Bibliotheca Latina mediæ et infimæ Ætatis of Fabricius (tom. v. p. 305 -308.). Poggius was born in the year 1380, and died in 1459.

51 The dialogue de Varietate Fortunæ (of which a complete and elegant edition has been published at Paris in 1723, in 4t), was 49 Et fut lui-meme (Bajazet) pris, et composed a short time before the death of pope Martin V. (p. 5.), and confequently about the end of the year 1430.

52 See a fplendid and eloquent encomium of Tamerlane, p. 36-39. ipfe enim novi (fays Poggius) qui fuere in ejus caftris Regem vivum cepit, caveâque in modum feræ inclusum per omnem Afiam circumtulit egregium admirandumque fpectaculum fortunæ.

53 The Chronicon Tarvisianum (in Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xix. p. 800.), and the Annales Eftenfes (tom. xviii. p. 974.). The two authors, Andrea de Redusiis de Quero, and James de Delayto, were both contemporaries, and both chancellors, the one of Trevigi, the other of Ferrara. The evidence of the former is the most positive.

composed

6

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

composed at Damaseus the florid and malevolent history of Timour, C H A P. for which he had collected materials in his journies over Turkey and Tartary 34. Without any poffible correspondence between the Latin and the Arabian writer, they agree in the fact of the iron cage; and their agreement is a ftriking proof of their common veracity. Ahmed Arabshah likewife relates another outrage, which Bajazet endured, of a more domeftic and tender nature. His indifcreet mention of women and divorces was deeply refented by the jealous Tartar : in the feaft of victory, the wine was ferved by female cupbearers, and the fultan beheld his own concubines and wives confounded among the flaves, and exposed without a veil to the eyes of intemperance. To escape a fimilar indignity, it is faid, that his fucceffors, except in a fingle inftance, have abstained from legitimate nuptials; and the Ottoman practice and belief, at leaft in the fixteenth century, is attefted by the obferving Bufbequius⁵⁵, ambaffador from the court of Vienna to the great Soliman. 4. Such is the 4. by the Greeks; feparation of language, that the teftimony of a Greek is not lefs independent than that of a Latin or an Arab. I suppress the names of Chalcondyles and Ducas, who flourished in a later period, and who fpeak in a lefs politive tone; but more attention is due to George Phranza 56, protoveftiare of the last emperors, and who was born a year before the battle of Angora. Twenty-two years after that event, he was fent ambaffador to Amurath the fecond; and the historian might converse with some veteran Janizaries, who had been made prifoners with the fultan, and had themfelves feen him in his iron cage. 5. The laft evidence, in every fenfe, is that of the Turkifh 5. by the annals, which have been confulted or transcribed by Leunclavius, 54 See Arabshah, tom. ii. c. 28. 34. He homet II. with an Asiatic, princels (Cantemir, travelled in regiones Rumæas, A. H. 839 p. 83. 93.). (A. D. 1435, July 27), tom. ii. c. 2. p. 13. ⁵⁵ Bufbequius in Legatione Turcicâ, epift. (l. i. c. 29.), and his life in Hanckius de i. p. 52. Yet his respectable authority is Script. Byzant. P. i. c. 40.). Chalcondyles of Amurath II. with a Servian, and of Ma- chains.

56 See the teffimony of George Phranza fomewhat shaken by the subsequent marriages and Ducas speak in general terms of Bajazer's

Zz2

Pocock.

Furks.

LXV.

355

LXV.

C. H A P. Pocock, and Cantemir ". They unanimoufly deplore the captivity of the iron cage; and fome credit may be allowed to national hiftorians, who cannot fligmatize the Tartar without uncovering the fhame of their king and country.

Probable conclusion.

Death of Bajazet,

March 9.

A. D. 1403,

From these opposite premises, a fair and moderate conclusion may be deduced. I am fatisfied that Sherefeddin Ali has faithfully defcribed the first oftentatious interview, in which the conqueror, whole fpirits were harmonifed by fuccels, affected the character of generofity. But his mind was infenfibly alienated by the unfeafonable arrogance of Bajazet; the complaints of his enemies, the Anatolian princes, were just and vehement; and Timour betrayed a defign of leading his royal captive in triumph to Samarcand. An attempt to facilitate his escape, by digging a mine under the tent, provoked the Mogul emperor to impose a harsher restraint; and in his perpetual marches, an iron cage on a waggon might be invented, not as a wanton infult, but as a rigorous precaution. Timour had read in fome fabulous hiftory a fimilar treatment of one of his predeceffors, a king of Perfia; and Bajazet was condemned to represent the person, and expiate the guilt, of the Roman Cæfar 58. But the ftrength of his mind and body fainted under the trial, and his premature death might, without injustice, be afcribed to the feverity of Timour. He warred not with the dead; a tear and a fepulchre were all that he could beftow on a captive who was delivered from his power; and if Moufa, the fon of Bajazet, was permitted to reign over the ruins of Bourfa, the greatest part of the province of Anatolia had been reftored by the conqueror to their lawful fovereigns.

Prolegomen. ad Abulpharag. Dynaft. Can- tom. i. p. 421. verf. Pocock). The recoltemir, p. 55.

prifoner and inclosed in the figure of a cow's preciate the knowledge of the Orientals of hide by Maximian or Galerius Cæfar. Such the ages which precede the Hegira.

57 Annales Leunclav. p. 321. Pocock, is the fable related by Eutychius (Annal. lection of the true hiftory (Decline and Fall, 58 A Sapor, king of Perfia, had been made &c. vol. i. p. 446-456.) will teach us to ap-

From

From the Irtifh and Volga to the Perfian Gulf, and from the CHAP. Ganges to Damascus and the Archipelago, Asia was in the hand of Timour; his armies were invincible, his ambition was boundlefs, conquefts of and his zeal might afpire to conquer and convert the Chriftian king- A. D. 1403. doms of the Weft, which already trembled at his name. He touched the utmost verge of the land; but an infuperable, though narrow, fea rolled between the two continents of Europe and Afia"; and the lord of fo many tomans, or myriads, of horfe, was not mafter of a fingle galley. The two paffages of the Bofphorus and Hellespont, of Constantinople and Gallipoli, were possefied, the one by the Christians, the other by the Turks. On this great occasion. they forgot the difference of religion to act with union and firmnefs in the common caufe: the double ftreights were guarded with thips and fortifications; and they feparately withheld the tranfports, which Timour demanded of either nation, under the pretenceof attacking their enemy. At the fame time, they foothed his pride with tributary gifts and fuppliant embaffies, and prudently tempted him to retreat with the honours of victory. Soliman, the fou of Bajazet, implored his clemency for his father and himfelf; accepted, by a red patent, the investiture of the kingdom of Romania, which he already held by the fword; and reiterated his ardent wifh, of cafting himfelf in perfon at the feet of the king of the world. The Greek emperor 6° (either John or Manuel) fubmitted to pay the fame tribute which he had flipulated with the Turkish fultan, and ratified the treaty by an oath of allegiance, from which he could abfolve his confcience fo foon as the Mogul arms had retired from ^{$9} Arabshah (tom. ii. c. 25.) describes, like a curious traveller, the fireights of Gallipoli and Constantinople. To acquire a just idea of thefe events, I have compared the narratives and prejudices of the Moguls, Turks, Greeks, and Arabians. The Spanish ambassador mentions this hostile union of the ruption from the genitive TE RUFTE (Cantemir, Christians and Ottomans (Vie de Timour, p. 51.). p. 96.).

60 Since the name of Cæfar had been tranfferred to the fultans of Roum, the Greek princes of Conftantinople (Sherefeddin, 1. v. c. 54.) were confounded with the Christian lords of Gallipoli, Theffalonica, &c. under the title of Tekkur, which is derived by cor-

Anatolia.

LXV.

Term of the

C H A P. Anatolia. But the fears and fancy of nations aferibed to the ambitious Tamerlane a new defign of valt and romantic compass; a defign of fubduing Egypt and Africa, marching from the Nile to the Atlantic Ocean, entering Europe by the Streights of Gibraltar, and, after impoling his yoke on the kingdoms of Christendom, of returning home by the deferts of Ruffia and Tartary. This remote, and perhaps imaginary, danger was averted by the fubmiffion of the fultan of Egypt: the honours of the prayer and the coin, attefted at Cairo the fupremacy of Timour; and a rare gift of a giraffe, or camelopard, and nine offriches, reprefented at Samarcand the tribute of the African world. Our imagination is not lefs aftonifhed by the portrait of a Mogul, who, in his camp before Smyrna, meditates and almost accomplishes the invasion of the Chinese empire ". Timour was urged to this enterprife by national honour and religious zeal. The torrents which he had fhed of Mufulman blood cculd be expiated only by an equal deftruction of the infidels; and as he now flood at the gates of paradife, he might beft fecure his glorious entrance by demolifhing the idols of China, founding mofchs in every city, and eftablishing the profession of faith in one God, and his prophet Mahomet. The recent expulsion of the houfe of Zingis was an infult on the Mogul name; and the diforders of the empire afforded the fairest opportunity for revenge. The illustrious Hongvou, founder of the dynasty of Ming, died four years before the battle of Angora; and his grandfon, a weak and unfortunate youth, was burnt in his palace, after a million of Chinefe had perished in the civil war 62. Before he evacuated Anatolia, Timour difpatched beyond the Sihoon a numerous army, or rather colony, of his old and new fubjects, to open the road, to fubdue the Pagan Calmucks and Mungals, and to found cities and magazines in the > in a just itinerary, the road to China, which not), Duhalde, Hift. de la Chine (tom. i. Arabshah (tom. ii. c. 33.) paints in vague p. 507, 508. folio edition); and for the chroand rhetorical colours.

61 See Sherefeddin, 1. v. c. 4. who marks, the ivth part of the Relations de Thevenology of the Chinese emperors, de Guignes, 62 Synopfis Hift. Sinica, p. 74-76 (in Hift. des Huns, tom. i. p. 71, 72.

defert ;

358

LXV.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

defert ; and, by the diligence of his lieutenant, he foon received a C H A P. perfect map and defcription of the unknown regions, from the fource of the Irtish to the wall of China. During these preparations, the emperor atchieved the final conquest of Georgia; passed the winter on the banks of the Araxes; appealed the troubles of Perlia; and flowly returned to his capital, after a campaign of four years and nine months.

On the throne of Samarcand 63, he difplayed in a fhort repose his His triumphs magnificence and power; liftened to the complaints of the people; distributed a just measure of rewards and punishments; employed his riches in the architecture of palaces and temples; and gave January 8. audience to the ambaffadors of Egypt, Arabia, India, Tartary, Ruffia, and Spain, the laft of whom prefented a fuit of tapeftry which eclipfed the pencil of the Oriental artifts. The marriage of fix of the emperor's grandfons was effeemed an act of religion, as well as of paternal tendernefs; and the pomp of the ancient caliphs was revived in their nuptials. They were celebrated in the gardens of Canighul, decorated with innumerable tents and pavilions, which difplayed the luxury of a great city and the fpoils of a victorious camp. Whole forefts were cut down to fupply fuel for the kitchens. the plain was fpread with pyramids of meat, and vafes of every liquor, to which thousands of guests were courteously invited : the orders of the flate, and the nations of the earth, were marshalled at the royal banquet; nor were the ambaffadors of Europe (fays the haughty Perfian) excluded from the feaft; fince even the caffes, the fmallest of fish, find their place in the ocean "*. The public joy was 63 For the return, triumph, and death of (Mariana, Hift. Hifpan. 1. xix. c. 11. tom. ii. and Arabshah (tom. ii. c. 35-47.).

64 Sherefeddin (l. vi. c. 24.) mentions the ambassadors of one of the most potent fovereigns of Europe. We know that it was Charles VII. king of France (Hiftoire de Henry III. king of Caftile; and the curious France, par Velly et Villaret, tom. xii. relation of his two embassies is still extant p. 336.).

Timour, see Sherefeddin (l. vi. c. 1-30.) p. 329, 330. Avertissement à l'Hift. de Timur Bec, p. 28-33.). There appears likewife to have been fome correspondence between the Mogul emperor, and the court of

teftified

at Samarcand, A. D. 1404, July-A. D. 1405-

359

LXV.

paffed in review; and every trade was emulous to execute fome

C H A P. teftified by illuminations and mafquerades ; the trades of Samarcand quaint device, fome marvellous pageant, with the materials of their peculiar art. After the marriage-contracts had been ratified by the cadhis, the bridegrooms and their brides retired to the nuptial chambers; nine times, according to the Afiatic fashion, they were dreffed and undreffed; and at each change of apparel, pearls and rubies were showered on their heads, and contemptuously abandoned to their attendants. A general indulgence was proclaimed : every law was relaxed, every pleafure was allowed; the people was free, the fovereign was idle; and the hiftorian of Timour may remark, that, after devoting fifty years to the attainment of empire, the only happy period of his life were the two months in which he ccafed to exercife his power. But he was foon awakened to the cares of government and war. The ftandard was unfurled for the invafion of China: the emirs made their report of two hundred thousand, the felect and veteran foldiers of Iran and Touran: their baggage and provisions were transported by five hundred great waggoas, and an immenfe train of horfes and camels; and the troops might prepare for a long absence, fince more than fix months were employed for intranguil journey of a caravan from Samarcand to Pekin. Neither age, nor the feverity of the winter, could retard the impatience of Timour; he mounted on horfeback, paffed the Sihoon on the ice, marched feventy-fix parafangs, three hundred miles, from his capital, and pitched his laft camp in the neighbourhood of Otrar, His death on where he was expected by the angel of death. Fatigue, and the the road to indiferect use of iced water, accelerated the progress of his fever; A. D. 1405, and the conqueror of Afia expired in the feventieth year of his age, April 1. thirty-five years after he had afcended the throne of Zagatai. His defigns were loft; his armies were difbanded; China was faved; and fourteen years after his decease, the most powerful of his children fent

360

LXV.

China,

fent an embally of friendship and commerce to the court of C H A P, LXV. Pekin 65.

The fame of Timour haft pervaded the East and West; his poste- Character rity is flill invefted with the Imperial title; and the admiration of his Timour. fubjects, who revered him almost as a deity, may be justified in some degree by the praife or confession of his bitterest enemies 66. Although he was lame of an hand and foot, his form and flature were not unworthy of his rank; and his vigorous health, fo effential to himfelf and to the world, was corroborated by temperance and exercife. In his familiar difcourfe he was grave and modeft, and if he was ignorant of the Arabic language, he fpoke with fluency and elegance the Perfian and Turkish idioms. It was his delight to converfe with the learned on topics of hiftory and fcience; and the amusement of his leifure hours was the game of chefs, which he improved or corrupted with new refinements 67. In his religion, he was a zealous, though not perhaps an orthodox, Mufulman⁶⁵; but his found understanding may tempt us to believe, that a fuperstitious reverence for omens and prophecies, for faints and aftrologers, was only affected as an inftrument of policy. In the government of a vaft empire, he ftood alone and abfolute, without a rebel to oppofe his power, a favourite to feduce his affections, or a minister to mislead his judgment. It was his firmeft maxim, that whatever might ⁶⁵ See the translation of the Perfian account of their embaffy, a curious and original piece (in the ivth part of the Relations de Thevenot). They prefented the emperor of China with an old horfe which Timour had formerly rode. It was in the year 1419, that they departed from the court of Herat, to which place they returned in 1422 from Pekin.

66 From Arabshah, tom. ii. c. 96. The bright or fofter colours are borrowed from Sherefeddin, d'Herbelot, and the Institutions.

VOL. VI.

pieces and 64 squares, to 56 pieces and 110 or 130 fquares. But, except in his court, the old game has been thought fufficiently elaborate. 'The Mogul emperor was rather pleafed than hurt, with the victory of a fubject : a chefs-player will feel the value of this encomium !

68 See Sherefeddin, l. v. c. 15. 25. Arabfhah (tom. ii. c. 96. p. 801. 803.) reproves the impiety of Timour and the Moguls, who almost preferred to the Koran, the Yacfa, or Law of Zingis (cui Deus maledicat): nor will he believe that Sharokh had abolished 67 His new system was multiplied from 32 the use and authority of that Pagan code.

3 A

be

361

and merits of

C H A P. be the confequence, the word of the prince fould never be difputed or recalled; but his foes have maliciously observed, that the commands of anger and deftruction were more frictly executed than those of beneficence and favour. His fons and grandfons, of whom Timour left fix-and-thirty at his decease, were his first and most fubmiffive fubjects; and whenever they deviated from their duty, they were corrected, according to the laws of Zingis, with the bastonade, and afterwards reftored to honour and command. Perhaps his heart was not devoid of the focial virtues; perhaps he was not incapable of loving his friends and pardoning his enemies; but the rules of morality are founded on the public intereft; and it may be fufficient to applaud the wildom of a monarch, for the liberality by which he is not impoverished, and for the justice by which he is ftrengthened and enriched. To maintain the harmony of authority and obedience, to chaftife the proud, to protect the weak, to reward the deferving, to banifh vice and idleness from his dominions, to fecure the traveller and merchant, to reftrain the depredations of the foldier, to cherish the labours of the husbandman, to encourage induftry and learning, and, by an equal and moderate affeffment, to encreafe the revenue, without encreafing the taxes, are indeed the duties of a prince; but, in the discharge of these duties, he finds an ample and immediate recompense. Timour might boaft, that at his acceffion to the throne, Afia was the prey of anarchy and rapine, whilft under his profperous monarchy a child, fearlefs and unhurt, might carry a purfe of gold from the East to the West. Such was his confidence of merit, that from this reformation he derived an excufe for his victories, and a title to univerfal dominion. The four following observations will ferve to appreciate his claim to the public gratitude; and perhaps we shall conclude, that the Mogul emperor was rather the fcourge than the benefactor of mankind. I. If fome partial diforders, fome local oppreffions, were healed by the fword of Timour, the remedy was far more pernicious than the difeafe.

LXV.

4

By

By their rapine, cruelty, and discord, the petty tyrants of Persia C H A P. might afflict their fubjects; but whole nations were crushed under the footfteps of the reformer. The ground which had been occupied by flourishing cities, was often marked by his abominable trophies, by columns, or pyramids, of human heads. Aftracan, Carizme, Delhi, Ifpahan, Bagdad, Aleppo, Damafcus, Bourfa. Smyrna, and a thousand others, were facked, or burnt, or utterly deftroyed, in his prefence, and by his troops ; and perhaps his confcience would have been ftartled, if a prieft or philosopher had dared to number the millions of victims whom he had facrificed to the eftablishment of peace and order 5. 2. His most destructive wars were rather inroads than conquests. He invaded Turkestan, Kipzak, Ruffia, Hindoftan, Syria, Anatolia, Armenia, and Georgia, without a hope or a defire of preferving those distant provinces. From thence he departed, laden with fpoil ; but he left behind him neither troops to awe the contumacious, nor magistrates to protect the obedient, natives. When he had broken the fabric of their ancient government, he abandoned them to the evils which his invafion had aggravated or caufed; nor were thefe evils compenfated by any prefent or poffible benefits. 3. The kingdoms of Tranfoxiana and Perfia were the proper field which he laboured to cultivate and adorn, as the perpetual inheritance of his family. But his peaceful labours were often interrupted, and fometimes blafted, by the abfence of the conqueror. While he triumphed on the Volga or the Ganges, his fervants, and even his fons, forgot their mafter and their duty. The public and private injuries were poorly redreffed by the tardy rigour of enquiry and punishment; and we must be content to praife the Institutions of Timour, as the specious idea of

6) Befides the bloody paffages of this nar- fifth of November, I did not expect to hear third volume of the Decline and Fall, which, preface, p.7.). Yet I can excufe a generous in a fingle note (p. 368. Note 25.), accumu- enthusiasm in the reader, and still more in lates near 300,000 heads of the monuments the editor, of the Institutions. of his cruelty. Except in Rowe's play on the rative, I must refer to an anticipation in the of Timour's amiable moderation (White's

3 A 2

a perfect

LXV.

C H A P. a perfect monarchy. 4. Whatfoever might be the bleffings of his LXV. administration, they evaporated with his life. To reign, rather than to govern, was the ambition of his children and grandchildren"; the enemies of each other and of the people. A fragment of the empire was upheld with fome glory by Sharokh his youngeft fon; but after bis decease, the fcene was again involved in darkness and blood; and before the end of a century, Tranfoxiana and Perfia were trampled by the Uzbeks from the north, and the Turkmans of the black and white fheep. The race of Timour would have been extinct, if an hero, his defcendant in the fifth degree, had not fled before the Uzbek arms to the conqueft of Hindoftan. His fucceffors (the great Moguls") extended their fway from the mountains of Cafhmir to Cape Comorin, and from Candahar to the gulf of Bengal. Since the reign of Aurungzebe, their empire has been diffolved; their treasures of Delhi have been rifled by a Persian robber; and the richeft of their kingdoms is now poffelled by a company of Chriftian merchants, of a remote island in the Northern ocean.

Civil wars of the fons of Bajazet, A. D. 1403-1421.

Far different was the fate of the Ottoman monarchy. The maffy trunk was bent to the ground, but no fooner did the hurricane pafs away, than it again role with fresh vigour and more lively vegetation. When Timour, in every fenfe, had evacuated Anatolia, he left the cities without a palace, a treasure, or a king. The open country was overspread with hords of shepherds and robbers of Tartar or Turkman origin; the recent conquests of Bajazet were reflored to the emirs, one of whom, in bafe revenge, demolifhed his fepulchre; and his five fons were cager, by civil difcord, to confume the remnant of their patrimony. I shall enumerate their names in 1. Mustapha; the order of their age and actions 22. I. It is doubtful, whether I relate

74 Shah Allum, the prefent Mogul, is in 364

⁷⁰ Confult the last chapters of Sherefeddin and Arabshah, and M. de Guignes (Hist. des the fourteenth degree from Timour by Miran Huns, tom. iv. 1 xx.). Frafer's Hiftory of Shah, his third fon. See the iid volume of Nadir Shah, p.1-62. The flory of Timour's . Dow's Hiftory of Hindoftan. descendants is imperfectly told : and the second

⁷² The civil wars, from the death of Baand third parts of Sherefeddin are unknown. jazet to that of Mustapha, are related, according

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

relate the flory of the true Muslapha, or of an impoftor, who per- C H A P. fonated that loft prince. He fought by his father's fide in the battle of Angora : but when the captive fultan was permitted to enquire for his children, Moufa alone could be found; and the Turkifh hiftorians, the flaves of the triumphant faction, are perfuaded that his brother was confounded among the flain. If Muftapha efcaped from that difastrous field, he was concealed twelve years from his friends and enemies; till he emerged in Theffaly, and was hailed by a numerous party, as the fon and fucceffor of Bajazet. His first defeat would have been his laft, had not the true, or falfe, Mustapha been faved by the Greeks, and reftored, after the deceafe of his brother Mahomet, to liberty and empire. A degenerate mind feemed to argue his fpurious birth; and if, on the throne of Adrianople, he was adored as the Ottoman fultan; his flight, his fetters, and an ignominious gibbet, delivered the impostor to popular contempt. A fimilar character and claim was afferted by feveral rival pretenders ; thirty perfons are faid to have fuffered under the name of Mustapha; and these frequent executions may perhaps infinuate, that the Turkish court was not perfectly fecure of the death of the lawful prince. 2. After his father's captivity, Ifa73 reigned for fome time in the 2. Ifa; neighbourhood of Angora, Sinope, and the Black Sea; and his ambaffadors were difmiffed from the prefence of Timour with fair promifes and honourable gifts. But their mafter was foon deprived of his province and life, by a jealous brother, the fovereign of Amafia; and the final event fuggefted a pious allufion, that the law of Mofes and Jefus, of Ifa and Moufa, had been abrogated by the greater Mabomet. 3. Soliman is not numbered in the lift of the Turkifh 3. Soliman, emperors: yet he checked the victorious progrefs of the Moguls; 1403-1410. and after their departure, united for a while the thrones of Adrianople cording to the Turks, by Demetrius Cantemir (p. 58-82.). Of the Greeks, Chal- mony on this occasion is weighty and vacondyles (1. iv and v.), Phranza (1. i. c. 30 -: z.), and Ducas (c. 18-27.), 'the laft the Turks) is likewife confirmed by Shereis the most copious and best informed.

73 Arabshah, tom. ii. c. 26. whole teftiluable. The existence of Ila (unknown to feddin (l. v. c. 57.).

and

A. D.

365

LXV.

C H A F. and Bourfa. In war he was brave, active, and fortunate : his LXV. courage was foftened by clemency; but it was likewife inflamed by prefumption, and corrupted by intemperance and idlenefs. He relaxed the nerves of discipline, in a government where either the fubject or the fovereign muft continually tremble : his vices alienated the chiefs of the army and the law; and his daily drunkennefs, fo contemptible in a prince and a man, was doubly odious in a difciple of the prophet. In the flumber of intoxication, he was furprifed by his brother Moufa; and as he fled from Adrianople towards the Byzantine capital, Soliman was overtaken and flain in a bath, after a reign of feven years and ten months. 4. The inveftiture of Moufa degraded him as the flave of the Moguls: his tributary kingdom of Anatolia was confined within a narrow limit, nor could his broken militia and empty treasury contend with the hardy and veteran bands of the fovereign of Romania. Moufa fled in difguife from the palace of Bourfa ; traverfed the Propontis in an open boat . wandered over the Walachian and Servian hills; and after fome vain attempts, afcended the throne of Adrianople, fo recently flained with the blood of Soliman. In a reign of three years and an half, his troops were victorious against the Christians of Hungary and the Morea ; but Moufa was ruined by his timorous difpofition and unfeafonable clemency. After refigning the fovereignty of Anatolia, he fell a victim to the perfidy of his ministers, and the superior afcendant of his brother Mahomet. 5. The final victory of Mahomet was the just recompense of his prudence and moderation. Before his father's captivity, the royal youth had been entrufted with the government of Amafia, thirty days journey from Conftantinople, and the Turkish frontier against the Christians of Trebizond and Georgia. The caftle, in Afiatic warfare, was effected impregnable; and the city of Amafia⁷⁴, which is equally divided by the river Iris, > 74 Arabshah, loc. citat. Abulfeda, Geograph. tab. xvii. p. 302. Busbequius, epist. i. p. 96, 97. in Itinere C. P. et Amafiano.

4. Moufa, A. D. 1410.

5. Mahomet I. A. D. 1413-1421.

rifes

rifes on either fide in the form of an amphitheatre, and reprefents C H A P. on a fmaller fcale the image of Bagdad. In his rapid career, Timour appears to have overlooked this obfcure and contumacious angle of Anatolia; and Mahomet, without provoking the conqueror, maintained his filent independence, and chafed from the province the last stragglers of the Tartar host. He relieved himself from the dangerous neighbourhood of Ifa; but in the contefts of their more powerful brethren, his firm neutrality was refpected; till, after the triumph of Moufa, he ftood forth the heir and avenger of the unfortunate Soliman. Mahomet obtained Anatolia by treaty and Romania by arms; and the foldier who prefented him with the head of Moula was rewarded as the benefactor of his king and country. The eight years of his fole and peaceful reign were ufefully employed in banishing the vices of civil difcord, and reftoring on a firmer basis the fabric of the Ottoman monarchy. His last care was the choice of two vizirs, Bajazet and Ibrahim⁷⁵, who might guide the youth of his fon Amurath ; and fuch was their union and pru- Reign of dence, that they concealed above forty days the emperor's death, till the arrival of his fucceffor in the palace of Bourfa. A new war February 9. was kindled in Europe by the prince, or impoftor, Muftapha; the first vizir lost his army and his head; but the more fortunate Ibrahim, whofe name and family are ftill revered, extinguished the last pretender to the throne of Bajazet, and closed the scene of domeftic hoftility ...

In these conflicts, the wifest Turks, and indeed the body of the Re-union of nation, were ftrongly attached to the unity of the empire; and Romania and Anatolia, fo often torn afunder by private ambition, were animated by a ftrong and invincible tendency of cohefion. Their efforts might have inftructed the Christian powers; and had they descendants are the fole nobles in Turkey : visits from the fultan (Cantemir, p. 76.). they content themfelves with the administra-

75 The virtues of Ibrahim are praifed by a tion of his pious foundations, are excufed contemporary Greek (Ducas, c. 25.). His from public offices, and 'receive two annual occupied

Amurath II. A. D.

the Ottoman empire, A. D. 1421.

LXV.

367

LXV.

C H A P. occupied with a confederate fleet, the ftreights of Gallipoli, the Ottomans, at least in Europe, must have been speedily annihilated. But the fchifm of the Weft, and the factions and wars of France and England, diverted the Latins from this generous enterprife: they enjoyed the prefent refpite, without a thought of futurity; and were often tempted by a momentary intereft, to ferve the common enemy of their religion. A colony of Genoefe⁷⁶, which had been planted at Phocza" on the Ionian coaft, was enriched by the lucrative monopoly of alum⁷³; and their tranquillity, under the Turkish empire, was fecured by the annual payment of tribute. In the laft civil war of the Ottomans, the Genoefe governor, Adorno, a bold and ambitious youth, embraced the party of Amurath; and undertook with feven flout gallies to transport him from Asia to Europe. The fultan and five hundred guards embarked on board the admiral's thip; which was manned by eight hundred of the braveft Franks. His life and liberty were in their hands; nor can we, without reluctance, applaud the fidelity of Adorno, who, in the midft of the paffage, knelt before him, and gratefully accepted a difcharge of his arrears of tribute. They landed in fight of Mustapha and Gallipoli; two thousand Italians, armed with lances and battle-axes, attended Amurath to the conquest of Adrianople; and this venal fervice was foon repaid by the ruin of the commerce and colony of Phocæa.

> ⁷⁶ See Pachymer (l. v. 29.), Nicephorus Gregoras (l. ii. c. 1.), Sherefeddin (l. v. c. 57.), and Ducas (c. 25.). The last of thefe, a curious and careful obferver, is entitled, from his birth and station, to particular credit in all that concerns Ionia and the iflands. Among the nations that reforted to New Phocæa, he mentions the English (IyyAmos); an early evidence of Mediterranean trade.

77 For the fpirit of navigation, and freedom of ancient Phocæa, or rather of the the isle of Ischia (Ismael. Bouillaud, ad Du-Phoceans, confult the ist book of Herodotus, cam, c. 25.).

and the Geographical Index of his laft and learned French tranflator, M. Larcher (tom. vii. p. 299.).

78 Phocæa is not enumerated by Pliny (Hift. Nat. xxxv. 52.) among the places productive of alum; he reckons Egypt as the first, and for the fecond the isle of Melos, whole alum mines are defcribed by Tournefort (tom. i. lettre iv.), a traveller and a naturalist. After the loss of Phocæa, the Genoefe,-in 1459, found that useful mineral in

If

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

If Timour had generoufly marched at the requeft, and to the re- C H A P. lief, of the Greek emperor, he might be entitled to the praise and gratitude of the Christians ". But a Mufulman, who carried into Greek em-Georgia the fword of perfecution, and respected the holy warfare of Bajazet, was not disposed to pity or fuccour the idolaters of Europe. The Tartar followed the impulse of ambition; and the deliverance of Conftantinople was the accidental confequence. When Manuel abdicated the government, it was his prayer, rather than his hope, that the ruin of the church and flate might be delayed beyond his unhappy days; and after his return from a weftern pilgrimage, he expected every hour the news of the fad cataftrophe. On a fudden he was aftonished and rejoiced by the intelligence of the retreat, the overthrow, and the captivity of the Ottoman. Manuel⁸⁰ immediately failed from Modon in the Morea; afcended the throne of Conftantinople ; and difmiffed his blind competitor to an eafy exile in the ille of Lefbos. The ambaffadors of the fon of Bajazet were foon introduced to his prefence; but their pride was fallen, their tone was modeft; they were awed by the just apprehension, left the Greeks should open to the Moguls the gates of Europe. Soliman faluted the emperor by the name of father; folicited at his hands the government or gift of Romania; and promifed to deferve his favour by inviolable friendship, and the restitution of Thessalonica, with the most important places along the Strymon, the Propontis, and the Black Sea. The alliance of Soliman exposed the emperor to the enmity and revenge of Moufa: the Turks appeared in arms before the gates of Conftantinople; but they were repulfed by fea and 79 The writer who has the most abused this fabulous generofity, is our ingenious Sir William Temple (his works, vol. iii. p. 349, 350. octavo edition), that lover of exotic virtue. After the conquest of Russia, &c. and the paffage of the Danube, his Tartar hero relieves, vifits, admires, and refuses the city of Constantine. His flattering pencil deviates in every line from the truth of hiftory :

VOL. VI.

yet his pleafing fictions are more excufable than the grofs errors of Cantemir.

⁸⁰ For the reigns of Manuel and John, of Mahomet I. and Amurath II. fee the Othman history of Cantemir (p. 70-95:), and the three Greeks, Chalcondyles, Phranza, and Ducas, who is fill fuperior to his rivals.

3 B

'land ;

LXV. State of the pire, A.D. 1402-1425.

369

370

C H A P. land; and unlefs the city was guarded by fome foreign mercenaries. LXV. the Greeks must have wondered at their own triumph. But, instead of prolonging the division of the Ottoman powers, the policy or paffion of Manuel was tempted to affift the moft formidable of the fons of Bajazet. He concluded a treaty with Mahomet, whofe progrefs was checked by the infuperable barrier of Gallipoli: the fultan and his troops were transported over the Bosphorus; he was hospitably entertained in the capital; and his fuccefsful fally was the first ftep to the conqueft of Romania. The ruin was fufpended by the prudence and moderation of the conqueror : he faithfully difcharged his own obligations and those of Soliman, respected the laws of gratitude and peace; and left the emperor guardian of his two younger fons, in the vain hope of faving them from the jealous cruelty of their brother Amurath. But the execution of his laft testament would have offended the national honour and religion: and the divan unanimoufly pronounced, that the royal youths fhould never be abandoned to the cuftody and education of a Chriftian dog. On this refufal, the Byzantine councils were divided : but the age and caution of Manuel yielded to the prefumption of his fon John; and they unfheathed a dangerous weapon of revenge, by difiniffing the true or falfe Muftapha, who had long been detained as a captive and hoftage, and for whofe maintenance they received an annual penfion of three hundred thousand aspers ". At the door of his prifon, Mustapha fubfcribed to every propofal; and the keys of Gallipoli, or rather of Europe, were flipulated as the price of his deliverance. But no fooner was he feated on the throne of Romania, than he difmiffed the Greek ambaffadors with a fmile of contempt, declaring, in a pious tone, that, at the day of judgment, he would rather answer for the violation of an oath, than for the furrender of a Mufulman

city

⁵¹ The Turkish asper (from the Greek least, of a Venetian ducat or sequin ; and the $\alpha e^{\pi p c}$) is, or was, a piece of white or filver 300,000 afpers, a princely allowance or royal money, at prefent much debafed, but which tribute, may be computed at 25001. flerling was formerly equivalent to the 54th part, at (Leunclav. Pandcet. Turc. p. 406-408.).

city into the hands of the infidels. The emperor was at once the C H A P. enemy of the two rivals; from whom he had fuftained, and to whom he had offered, an injury; and the victory of Amurath was followed, in the enfuing fpring, by the fiege of Conftantinople 82.

The religious merit of fubduing the city of the Cæfars, attracted from Afia a crowd of volunteers, who afpired to the crown of mar- nople by tyrdom : their military ardour was inflamed by the promife of rich fpoils and beautiful females; and the fultan's ambition was confe- June 10crated by the prefence and prediction of Seid Bechar, a defcendant of the prophet ⁸³, who arrived in the camp, on a mule, with a venerable train of five hundred disciples. But he might blush, if a fanatic could blufh, at the failure of his affurances. The ftrength of the walls refifted an army of two hundred thousand Turks: their affaults were repelled by the fallies of the Greeks and their foreign mercenaries; the old refources of defence were oppofed to the new engines of attack; and the enthufiafm of the dervish, who was fnatched to heaven in visionary converse with Mahomet, was answered by the credulity of the Christians, who beheld the Virgin Mary, in a violet garment, walking on the rampart and animating their courage⁸⁴. After a fiege of two months, Amurath was recalled to Bourfa by a domeflic revolt, which had been kindled by Greek treachery, and was foon extinguished by the death of a guiltlefs brother. While he led his Janizaries to new conquefts in Europe and Afia, the Byzantine empire was indulged in a fervile and precarious refpite of thirty years. Manuel funk into the grave; and John Palæologus was permitted to reign, for an annual tribute of three hundred thousand aspers, and the dereliction of almost all that he held beyond the fuburbs of Conftantinople.

⁸² For the fiege of Constantinople in 1422, fupposes that the friend of Mahomet affumed fee the particular and contemporary narrative in his amours the privilege of a prophet, and of John Cananus, published by Leo Allatius, at the end of his edition of Acropolita (p.188 -- 199.).

feribes Seid Zechar without naming him, will bear teftimony for Seid Bechar?

that the fairest of the Greek nuns were promifed to the faint and his difciples.

⁸⁴ For this miraculous apparition, Cana-83 Castemir, p. 80. Cananus, who de- nus appeals to the Musulman faint; but who

3 B 2

LXV.

37.1

Siege of Conftanti-Amurath II. A. D. 1422. August 24.

The emperer John Palæologus II. A. D. 1425, July 21-A. D. 1448, October 31.

In

C H A P. LXV. Hereditary fucceffion and merit of the Ottomans.

1 0

In the establishment and restoration of the Turkish empire, the first merit must doubtless be affigned to the personal qualities of the fultans; fince, in human life, the most important scenes will depend on the character of a fingle actor. By fome fhades of wifdom and virtue, they may be difcriminated from each other; but, except in a fingle inftance, a period of nine reigns, and two hundred and fixty-five years, is occupied, from the elevation of Othman to the death of Soliman, by a rare feries of warlike and active princes, who impreffed their fubjects with obedience and their enemies with terror. Inftead of the flothful luxury of the feraglio, the heirs of royalty were educated in the council and the field : from early youth they were entrusted by their fathers with the command of provinces and armies; and this manly inftitution, which was often productive of civil war, must have effentially contributed to the discipline and vigour of the monarchy. The Ottomans cannot ftyle themfelves, like the Arabian caliphs, the defcendants or fucceffors of the apoftle of God; and the kindred which they claim with the Tartar khans of the house of Zingis, appears to be founded in flattery rather than in truth ³⁵. Their origin is obfcure; but their facred and indefeafible right, which no time can erafe and no violence can infringe, was foon and unalterably implanted in the minds of their fubjects. A weak or vicious fultan may be depofed and firangled; but his inheritance devolves to an infant or an ideot: nor has the most daring rebel prefumed to afcend the throne of his lawful fovereign⁸⁶. While the transient dynasties of Asia have been continually fubverted by a crafty vizir in the palace or a victorious general in the camp, the Ottomau fucceffion has been confirmed by ifh fultans affume the title of khan. Yet Militare, &c. p. 28.). This political heretic' Abulghazi is ignorant of his Ottoman coufins. was a good whig, and juftified against the Kiuperli, who was flain at the battle of Salan- (Mignot, Hift. Ottomans, tom. iii. p. 434.). kanen in 1691 (Cantemir, p. 382.), pre-fumed to fay, that all the fucceffors of Soli-ception of continuing offices in the fame faman had been fools or tyrants, and that it mily.

⁸⁵ See Rycaut (l. i. c. 13.). The Turk- was time to abolifh the race (Marfigli Stato ⁸⁶ The third grand vizir of the name of French ambaffador the revolution of England

3

the

the practice of five centuries, and is now incorporated with the vital C H A P. principle of the Turkish nation.

To the fpirit and conflitution of that nation, a ftrong and fingular Education and difciinfluence may however be afcribed. The primitive fubjects of pline of the Othman were the four hundred families of wandering Turkmans. who had followed his anceftors from the Oxus to the Sangar; and the plains of Anatolia are ftill covered with the white and black tents of their ruftic brethren. But this original drop was diffolved in the mass of voluntary and vanquished subjects, who, under the name of Turks, are united by the common ties of religion, language, and manners. In the cities, from Erzeroum to Belgrade, that national appellation is common to all the Moflems, the first and most honourable inhabitants; but they have abandoned, at least in Romania, the villages, and the cultivation of the land, to the Chriftian peafants. In the vigorous age of the Ottoman government, the Turks were themfelves excluded from all civil and military honours : and a fervile clafs, an artificial people, was raifed by the difcipline of education to obey, to conquer, and to command⁸⁷. From the time of Orchan and the first Amurath, the fultans were perfuaded that a government of the fword must be renewed in each generation with new foldiers; and that fuch foldiers must be fought, not in effeminate Afia, but among the hardy and warlike natives of Europe. The provinces of Thrace, Macedonia, Albania, Bulgaria, and Servia, became the perpetual feminary of the Turkish army; and when the royal fifth of the captives was diminished by conqueft, an inhuman tax, of the fifth child, or of every fifth year, was rigoroufly levied on the Christian families. At the age of twelve or fourteen years, the most robust youths were torn from their parents; their names were enrolled in a book; and from that moment

87 Chalcondyles (1. v.) and Ducas (c. 23.) policy, and the transmutation of Christian exhibit the rude lineaments of the Ottoman children into Turkish foldiers.

373

LXV.

Turks.

C H A P. ment they were clothed, taught, and maintained, for the public fervice. According to the promife of their appearance, they were felected for the royal fchools of Bourfa, Pera, and Adrianople, entrusted to the care of the bashaws, or dispersed in the houses of the Anatolian peafantry. It was the first care of their masters to inftruct them in the Turkifh language : their bodies were exercifed by every labour that could fortify their ftrength; they learned to wrefile, to leap to run, to fhoot with the bow, and afterwards with the mufket; till they were drafted into the chambers and companies of the Janizaries, and feverely trained in the military or monaftic discipline of the order. The youths most conspicuous for birth, talents, and beauty, were admitted into the inferior clafs of Agiamoglans, or the more liberal rank of Ichoglans, of whom the former were attached to the palace, and the latter to the perfon of the prince. In four fucceffive fchools, under the rod of the white eunuchs, the arts of horfemanship and of darting the javelin were their daily exercife, while those of a more fludious cast applied themfelves to the fludy of the Koran, and the knowledge of the Arabic and Perfian tongues. As they advanced in feniority and merit, they were gradually difmiffed to military, civil, and even ecclefiaftical employments: the longer their ftay, the higher was their expectation; till, at a mature period, they were admitted into the number of the forty agas, who flood before the fultan, and were promoted by his choice to the government of provinces and the first honours of the empire⁸⁸. Such a mode of inflitution was admirably adapted to the form and fpirit of a defpotic monarchy. The minifters and generals were, in the ftricteft fenfe, the flaves of the emperor, to whole bounty they were indebted for their inftruction and

> .29 This fletch of the Turkish education and a Description of the Seraglio, approved and discipline, is chiefly borrowed from Ry- by Mr. Greaves himseif, a curious traveller, caut's State of the Ottoman Empire, the and inferted in the fecond volume of his Stato Militare del' Imperio Ottomanno of works. Count Marfigli (in Haya, 1732, in folio), fupport.

374

LXV.

8.

fupport. When they left the feraglio, and fuffered their beards to C H A P. grow as the fymbol of enfranchifement, they found themfelves in an important office, without faction or friendship, without parents and without heirs, dependent on the hand which had raifed them from the duft, and which, on the flighteft displeasure, could break in pieces thefe flatues of glafs, as they are aptly termed by the Turkifh proverb 89. In the flow and painful fleps of education, their characters and talents were unfolded to a difcerning eye: the man, naked and alone, was reduced to the ftandard of his perfonal merit : and, if the fovereign had wildom to chufe, he poffelled a pure and boundless liberty of choice. The Ottoman candidates were trained by the virtues of abstinence to those of action; by the habits of fubmiffion to those of command. A fimilar spirit was diffused among the troops; and their filence and fobriety, their patience and modefty, have extorted the reluctant praife of their Christian enemies ^{so}. Nor can the victory appear doubtful, if we compare the discipline and exercise of the Janizaries with the pride of birth, the independence of chivalry, the ignorance of the new levies, the mutinous temper of the veterans, and the vices of intemperance and diforder, which fo long contaminated the armies of Europe.

The only hope of falvation for the Greek empire and the adjacent Invention kingdoms, would have been fome more powerful weapon, fome gunpowder. difcovery in the art of war, that fhould give them a decifive fuperiority over their Turkish foes. Such a weapon was in their hands ;fuch a difcovery had been made in the critical moment of their fate. The chymifts of China or Europe had found, by cafual or elaborate experiments, that a mixture of faltpetre, fulphur, and charcoal, produces, with a fpark of fire, a tremendous explosion. It was foon. observed, that if the expansive force were compressed in a strong and use of

375

LXV.

tube,

^{$9} From the feries of cxv vizirs till the fiege 9° See the entertaining and judicious letters of Vienna (Marfigli, p. 13.), their place may of Bufbequius. be valued at three years and a half purchase.

376

LXV. ~

C H A P. tube, a ball of ftone or iron might be expelled with irrefiftible and destructive velocity. The precife æra of the invention and application of gunpowder " is involved in doubtful traditions and equivocal language; yet we may clearly difcern, that it was known before the middle of the fourteenth century; and that before the end of the fame, the use of artillery in battles and fieges, by sea and land, was familiar to the flates of Germany, Italy, Spain, France, and England ⁹². The priority of nations is of fmall account; none could derive any exclusive benefit from their previous or fuperior knowledge; and in the common improvement they flood on the fame level of relative power and military fcience. Nor was it poffible to circumfcribe the fecret within the pale of the church; it was disclosed to the Turks by the treachery of apostates and the felfish policy of rivals; and the fultans had fenfe to adopt, and wealth to reward, the talents of a Christian engineer. The Genoese, who transported Amurath into Europe, must be accused as his preceptors; and it was probably by their hands that his cannon was caft and directed at the fiege of Conftantinople 93. The first attempt was indeed unfuccessful; but in the general warfare of the age, the advantage was on their fide, who were most commonly the affailants; for a while the proportion of the attack and defence was fufpended; and this thundering artillery was pointed against the walls and towers > Chemical Effays, contain two valuable dif- filence of Froiffard. Yet Muratori (Antiquit. courses on the discovery and composition of Italiae medii Ævi, tom. ii. Disfert. xxvi. gunpowder.

92 On this subject, modern testimonies cannot be trufted. The original paffages are collected by Ducange (Gloff. Latin. tom. i. p. 675. Bombarda). But in the early doubtful twilight, the name, found, fire, and effect, that feem to express our artillery, may be fairly interpreted of the old engines and the Greek fire. For the English cannon at Crecy, the authority of John Villani (Chron. nople.

91 The ist and iid volumes of Dr. Watfon's J. xii. c. 65.), must be weighed against the p. 514, 515.) has produced a decifive paffage from Petrarch (de Remediis utriusque Fortunæ Dialog.), who, before the year 1344. execrates this terrestrial thunder, nuper rara, nunc communis.

> 93 The Turkish cannon, which Ducas (c. 30.) first introduces before Belgrade (A.D. 1436), is mentioned by Chalcondyles (l. v. p. 123.) in 1422, at the fiege of Constanti-

> > which

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

which had been erected only to refift the lefs potent engines of an- C H A P. tiquity. By the Venetians, the use of gunpowder was communieated without reproach to the fultans of Egypt and Perfia, their allies against the Ottoman power; the fecret was foon propagated to the extremities of Afia; and the advantage of the European was confined to his eafy victories over the favages of the new world. If we contrast the rapid progress of this mischievous discovery with the flow and laborious advances of reason, science, and the arts of peace, a philosopher, according to his temper, will laugh or weep at the folly of mankind.

VOL. VI.

3.C

377

LXV.

CHAP. LXVI.

Applications of the Eastern Emperors to the Popes .-Visits to the West, of John the First, Manuel, and John the Second, Palæologus .- Union of the Greek and Latin Churches, promoted by the Council of Bafil, and concluded at Ferrara and Florence .- State of Literature at Constantinople.-Its Revival in Italy by the Greek Fugitives.-Curiofity and Emulation of the Latins.

LXVI. Embaffy of the younger Andronicus to pope Be-nedict XII. A. D. 1339.

C H A P. TN the four last centuries of the Greek emperors, their friendly or hoftile afpect towards the pope and the Latins, may be obferved as the thermometer of their profperity or diffrefs; as the fcale of the rife and fall of the Barbarian dynasties. When the Turks of the house of Seljuk pervaded Afia and threatened Constantinople, we have feen at the council of Placentia, the fuppliant ambaffadors of Alexius, imploring the protection of the common father of the Chriftians. No fooner had the arms of the French pilgrims removed the fultan from Nice to Iconium, than the Greek princes refumed, or avowed, their genuine hatred and contempt for the fchifmatics of the West, which precipitated the first downfal of their empire. The date of the Mogul invafion is marked in the foft and charitable language of John Vataces. After the recovery of Conftantinople, the throne of the first Palæologus was encompassed by foreign and domeftic enemies : as long as the fword of Charles was fufpended over his head, he bafely courted the favour of the Roman pontiff; and facrificed fucrificed to the prefent danger, his faith, his virtue, and the affec- C H A P. tion of his fubjects. On the decease of Michael, the prince and people afferted the independence of their church and the purity of their creed: the elder Andronicus neither feared nor loved the Latins; in his laft diffres, pride was the fafeguard of superflition, nor could he decently retract in his age the firm and orthodox declarations of his youth. His grandfon, the younger Andronicus, was lefs a flave in his temper and fituation; and the conqueft of Bithynia. by the Turks, admonifhed him to feek a temporal and fpiritual alliance with the weftern princes. After a feparation and filence of fifty years, a fecret agent, the monk Barlaam, was difpatched to pope Benedict the twelfth ; and his artful inftructions appear to have been drawn by the mafter-hand of the great domeftic '. " Moft The argu-" holy father," was he commiffioned to fay, " the emperor is not crufade and. " lefs defirous than yourfelf of an union between the two churches : " but in this delicate transaction, he is obliged to respect his own " dignity and the prejudices of his fubjects. The ways of union are-" two-fold; force, and perfuafion. Of force, the inefficacy has been " already tried; fince the Latins have fubdued the empire, without " fubduing the minds, of the Greeks. The method of perfuation, " though flow, is fure and permanent. A deputation of thirty or " forty of our doctors would probably agree with those of the " Vatican, in the love of truth and the unity of belief: but on their " return, what would be the use, the recompense of fuch agree-" ment? the fcorn of their brethren, and the reproaches of a blind " and obffinate nation. Yet that nation is accuftomed to reverence. " the general councils, which have fixed the articles of our faith; " and if they reprobate the decrees of Lyons, it is becaufe the Eaftern " churches were neither heard nor reprefented in that arbitrary

(I believe) from the Vatican archives, by tique, tom. xx. p. 1-8.), whole abstracts I Odoricus Raynaldus, in his continuation of have always found to be clear, accurate, and the Annals of Baronius (Romæ, 1646-1677, impartial, in x volumes in folio). I have contented

* This curious inftruction was transcribed myfelf with the abbé Fleury (Hift. Ecclefiafments for a union.

3 C 2

" meeting.

C H A P. " meeting. For this falutary end, it will be expedient, and even " neceffary, that a well-chofen legate fhould be fent into Greece, " to convene the patriarchs of Conftantinople, Alexandria, Antioch, " and Jerufalem; and, with their aid, to prepare a free and uni-" verfal fynod. But at this moment," continued the fubtle agent, " the empire is affaulted and endangered by the Turks, who have " occupied four of the greateft cities of Anatolia. The Chriftian " inhabitants have expressed a wish of returning to their allegiance " and religion ; but the forces and revenues of the emperor are in-" fufficient for their deliverance: and the Roman legate muft be " accompanied, or preceded, by an army of Franks, to expel the " infidels, and open a way to the holy fepulchre." If the fufpicious Latins should require fome pledge, fome previous effect of the fincerity of the Greeks, the answers of Barlaam were perspicuous and rational. " 1. A general fynod can alone confummate the union " of the churches; nor can fuch a fynod be held till the three Orien-" tal patriarchs, and a great number of bishops, are enfranchifed " from the Mahometan yoke. 2. The Greeks are alienated by a " long feries of oppreffion and injury : they muft be reconciled by " fome act of brotherly love, fome effectual fuccour, which may " fortify the authority and arguments, of the emperor, and the " friends of the union. 3. If fome difference of faith or ceremonies " fhould be found incurable, the Greeks however are the difciples " of Chrift; and the Turks are the common enemies of the Chrif-" tian name. The Armenians, Cyprians, and Rhodians, are equally " attacked; and it will become the piety of the French princes to " draw their fwords in the general defence of religion. 4. Should " the fubjects of Andronicus be treated as the worft of fchilmatics, " of heretics, of pagans, a judicious policy may yet inftruct the " powers of the Weft to embrace an ufeful ally, to uphold a finking " empire, to guard the confines of Europe; and rather to join the " Greeks against the Turks, than to expect the union of the Turkish " arms

" arms with the troops and treasures of captive Greece." The rea- C H A P. fons, the offers, and the demands, of Andronicus, were eluded with cold and flately indifference. The kings of France and Naples declined the dangers and glory of a crufade : the pope refufed to call a new fynod to determine old articles of faith : and his regard for the obfolete claims of the Latin emperor and clergy, engaged him to ufe an offenfive fuperfcription : " To the moderator 2 of the Greeks, " and the perfons who ftyle themfelves the patriarchs of the Eaftern " churches." For fuch an embaffy, a time and character lefs propitious could not eafily have been found. Benedict the twelfth * was a dull peafant, perplexed with fcruples, and immerfed in floth and wine: his pride might enrich with a third crown the papal tiara, but he was alike unfit for the regal and the paftoral office.

After the decease of Andronicus, while the Greeks were distracted Negociation by inteffine war, they could not prefume to agitate a general union of the Chriftians. But as foon as Cantacuzene had fubdued and pardoned his enemies, he was anxious to juffify, or at leaft to extenuate, the introduction of the Turks into Europe, and the nuptials of his daughter with a Mululman prince. Two officers of flate, with a Latin interpreter, were fent in his name to the Roman court, which was transplanted to Avignon, on the banks of the Rhône, during a period of feventy years; they reprefented the hard neceffity which had urged him to embrace the alliance of the mifcreants, and pronounced by his command the fpecious and edifying

² The ambiguity of this title is happy or ingenious; and moderator, as fynonymous to rector, gubernator, is a word of claffical, and even Ciceronian, Latinity, which may be found, not in the Gloffary of Ducange, but in the Thefaurus of Robert Stephens.

3 The first Epistle (fine titulo) of Petrarch, exposes the danger of the bark, and the incapacity of the pilot. Hac inter, vino madi- ii. not. xv. p. 13-16.). He gave occasion dus, ævo gravis ac soporifero rore perfusu, jamjam nutitat, dormitat, jam fomno præceps, atque (utinam folus) roit Heu quanto felicius patrio terram fulcaffet aratro, quam fcalmum pifcatorium afcendiffet. This fatire engages his biographer to weigh the virtues and vices of Benedict XII. which have been exaggerated by Guelphs and Ghibelines, by Papifts and Protestants (fee Memoires sur la Vie de Petrarque, tom.i. p. 259. to the faying, Bibamus papaliter.

of Cantacuzene with Clement VI. A. D. 1348.

LXVI. _____

founds

LXVI.

C H A P. founds of union and crufade. Pope Clement the fixth 4, the fucceffor of Bencdict, received them with hospitality and honour, acknowledged the innocence of their fovereign, excufed his diftrefs, applauded his magnanimity, and difplayed a clear knowledge of the ftate and revolutions of the Greek empire, which he had imbibed from the honeft accounts of a Savoyard lady, an attendant of the empress Anne⁵. If Clement was ill-endowed with the virtues of a prieft, he poffessed however the spirit and magnificence of a prince, whofe liberal hand diffributed benefices and kingdoms with equal facility. Under his reign, Avignon was the feat of pomp and pleafure : in his youth he had furpaffed the licentiousness of a baron; and the palace, nay, the bed-chamber of the pope, was adorned, or polluted, by the vifits of his female favourites. The wars of France and England were adverfe to the holy enterprife; but his vanity was amufed by the fplendid idea; and the Greek ambaffadors returned with two Latin bishops, the ministers of the pontiff. On their arrival at Conftantinople, the emperor and the nuncios admired each, other's piety and eloquence: and their frequent conferences were filled with mutual praifes and promifes, by which both parties were amufed, and neither could be deceived. " I am delighted," faid the devout Cantacuzene, " with the project of our holy war, which must re-" dound to my perfonal glory, as well as to the public benefit of " Christendom. My dominions will give a free passage to the " armies of France : my troops, my gallies, my treafures, shall be " confecrated to the common caufe; and happy would be my fate, " could I deferve and obtain the crown of martyrdom. Words are > ⁴ See the original lives of Clement VI. in with the moft indulgence; but be is a gentle-Muratori (Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. iii. man as well as a prieft. P.ii. p. 550-589.). Matteo Villani (Chron. 1. iii. c, 43. in Muratori, tom. xiv. p. 186.), was Zampea. She had accon-panied, and who ftyles him, molto cavallarefco, poco re- alone remained with her miftrefs at Conftanliogolo; Fleury (Hift. Ecclef. tom. xx. tinople, where her prudence, erudition, and p. 126.), and the Vie de Petrarque (tom. ii. politenefs, deferved the praifes of the Greeks p. 42-45.). The abbé de Sade treats him themselves (Cantacuzen, 1. i. c. 42.).

⁵ Her name (molt probably corrupted)

" infuffi-

OF THE' ROMAN EMPIRE.

" infufficient to express the ardour with which I figh for the reunion C H A P. " of the fcattered members of Chrift. If my death could avail, I " would gladly prefent my fword and my neck : if the fpiritual " phoenix could arife from my afhes, I would erect the pile and " kindle the flame with my own hands." Yet the Greek emperor prefumed to obferve, that the articles of faith which divided the two churches had been introduced by the pride and precipitation of the Latins: he difclaimed the fervile and arbitrary fteps of the first Palæologus; and firmly declared, that he would never fubmit his confcience unlefs to the decrees of a free and univerfal fynod. " The fituation of the times," continued he, " will not allow the " pope and myfelf to meet either at Rome or Conftantinople; but " fome maritime city may be chosen on the verge of the two em-" pires, to unite the bishops, and to instruct the faithful, of the " East and West." The nuncios feemed content with the proposition; and Cantacuzene affects to deplore the failure of his hopes, which were foon overthrown by the death of Clement and the different temper of his fucceffor. His own life was prolonged, but it was prolonged in a cloifter; and, except by his prayers, the humble monk was incapable of directing the counfels of his pupil or the ftate %

Yet of all the Byzantine princes, that pupil, John Palæologus, Treaty of was the best disposed to embrace, to believe, and to obey, the fhep- logus I. with herd of the Weft. His mother, Anne of Savoy, was baptized in A. D. 1355. the bofom of the Latin church : her marriage with Andronicus impofed a change of name, of apparel, and of worfhip; but her heart was fill faithful to her country and religion; fhe had formed the infancy of her fon, and the governed the emperor, after his mind, or at leaft his ftature, was enlarged to the fize of man. In the first year of his deliverance and reftoration, the Turks were still masters

• See this whole negociation in Canta- and virtues which he beflows on himfelf, recezene (l. iv. c. 9.), who, amidit the praifes veals the uneafinefs of a guilty confcience.

Innocent VI.

of

4

C H A P. of the Hellespont; the fon of Cantacuzene was in arms at Adrianople; and Palæologus could depend neither on himfelf nor on his people. By his mother's advice, and in the hope of foreign aid, he abjured the rights both of the church and flate; and the act of flavery', fubfcribed in purple ink, and fealed with the golden bull, was privately intrusted to an Italian agent. The first article of the treaty is an oath of fidelity and obedience to Innocent the fixth and his fucceffors, the fupreme pontiffs of the Roman and Catholic The emperor promifes to entertain with due reverence church. their legates and nuncios; to affign a palace for their refidence and a temple for their worfhip; and to deliver his fecond fon Manuel as the hoftage of his faith. For these condescentions, he requires a prompt fuccour of fifteen gallies, with five hundred men at arms, and a thousand archers, to ferve against his Christian and Musulman enemies. Palæologus engages to impofe on his clergy and people the fame fpiritual yoke; but as the refiftance of the Greeks might be juftly forefeen, he adopts the two effectual methods of corruption and education. The legate was empowered to diffribute the vacant benefices among the ecclefiaftics who fhould fubfcribe the creed of the Vatican: three schools were instituted to instruct the youth of Conftantinople in the language and doctrine of the Latins; and the name of Andronicus, the heir of the empire, was enrolled as the first student. Should he fail in the measures of persuasion or force, Palæologus declares himfelf unworthy to reign; transferred to the pope all regal and paternal authority; and invefts Innocent with full power to regulate the family, the government, and the marriage, of his fon and fucceffor. But this treaty was neither executed nor published: the Roman gallies were as vain and imaginary as the fubmission of the Greeks; and it was only by the fecrecy, that their fovereign escaped the dishonour, of this fruitless humiliation.

> 7 See this ignominious treaty in Fleury dus, who drew it from the Vatican archives. It (Hift. Ecclef. p. 151-154.), from Raynal- was not worth the trouble of a pious forgery. The

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The tempest of the Turkish arms foon burst on his head; and, C H A P. after the lofs of Adrianople and Romania, he was enclosed in his capital, the vaffal of the haughty Amurath, with the miferable hope Palaologue of being the last devoured by the favage. In this abject flate, Palæologus embraced the refolution of embarking for Venice, and caffing himfelf at the feet of the pope; he was the first of the &c. Byzantine princes who had ever visited the unknown regions of the Weft, yet in them alone he could feek confolation or relief; and with lefs violation of his dignity he might appear in the facred college than at the Ottoman Porte. After a long abfence, the Roman pontiffs were returning from Avignon to the banks of the Tyber ; Urban the fifth *, of a mild and virtuous character, encouraged or allowed the pilgrimage of the Greek prince; and, within the fame year, enjoyed the glory of receiving in the Vatican the two Imperial fhadows, who reprefented the majefty of Conftantine and Charlemagne. In this fuppliant vifit, the emperor of Conftantinople, whole vanity was loft in his diftrefs, gave more than could be expected of empty founds and formal fubmiffions. A previous trial was imposed; and in the prefence of four cardinals, he acknowledged, as a true Catholic, the fupremacy of the pope, and the double proceffion of the Holy Ghoft. After this purification, he was introduced to a public audience in the church of St. Peter: Urban, in the midft of the cardinals, was feated on his throne; the Greek monarch, after three genuflexions, devoutly kiffed the feet, the hands, and at length the mouth, of the holy father, who celebrated high mass in his prefence, allowed him to lead the bridle of his mule, and treated him with a fumptuous banquet in the Vatican. The entertainment of Palæologus was friendly and honourable ; yet fome difference was observed between the emperors of the

⁸ See the two first original lives of Ur-ban V. (in Muratori, Script. Rerum Italica-rum, tom. iii. P. ii. p. 623. 635.), and the Ecclefaulical Annals of Spondanus (tom. i. Network of Palæologue. p. 573. A. D. 1369, Nº 7.) and Raynaldus LXVI. Vifit of John to Urban V. at Rome, A. D. 1367, October 13, 385

VOL. VI.

3 D

Eaft

C H A P. Eaft and Weft'; nor could the former be entitled to the rare privilege of chaunting the gofpel in the rank of a deacon". In favour of his profelyte, Urban ftrove to rekindle the zeal of the French king, and the other powers of the Weft; but he found them cold in the general caufe, and active only in their domestic quarrels. The last hope of the emperor was in an English mercenary, John Hawkwood", or Acuto, who with a band of adventurers, the white brotherhood, had ravaged Italy from the Alps to Calabria; fold his fervices to the hoftile flates; and incurred a just excommunication by fhooting his arrows against the papal refidence. A fpecial licence was granted to negociate with the outlaw, but the forces, or the fpirit, of Hawkwood were unequal to the enterprife; and it was for the advantage perhaps of Palæologus to be difappointed of a fuccour, that must have been costly, that could not be effectual, and which might have been dangerous ". The difconfolate Greek " prepared for his return, but even his return was impeded by a most ignominious obstacle. On his arrival at Venice, he had borrowed > Romanorum. Yet his title of Imperator Græcorum was no longer difputed (Vit. Urban V. p. 622.).

> 10 It was confined to the fucceffors of Charlemagne, and to them only on Chriftmas day. On all other festivals, these Imperial deacons were content to ferve the pope, as he faid mais, with the book and the corporal. Yet the abbé de Sade generoufly thinks, that the merits of Charles IV, might have entitled him, though not on the proper day (A. D. 1368, November 1.), to the whole privilege. He feems to affix a just value on the privilege and the man (Vie de Petrarq"e, tom. iii. p. 735.).

> " Through fome Italian corruptions, the etymology of Falcone in bofco (Matteo Villani, 1. xi. c. 79. in Muratori, tom. xv. p. 746.), fuggefts the English word Harokrosod, the true name of our adventurous countryman (Thomas Walfingham, Hift. Anglican. inter Scriptores Cambdeni, p. 184.). After two-

9 Paullo minus quam si fuisset Imperator and-twenty victories, and one defeat, he died. in 1394, General of the Florentines, and was buried with fuch honcurs as the republic has not paid to Dante or Petrarch (Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. xii. p. 212 -371.).

12 This torrent of English (by birth or fervice) overflowed from France into Italy after the peace of Bretigny in 1360. Yet the exclamation of Muratori (Annali, tom. xii. p. 197) is rather true than civil. " Ci man-" cava ancor quefto, che dopo effere calpe-" ftrata l'Italia da tanti mainadieri Tedefchi " ed Ungheri, veniffero fin dall' Inghliterra " nuovi cani a finire di divorarla."

13 Chalcondyles, 1. i. p. 25, 26. The Greek fuppofes his journey to the king of France, which is fufficiently refuted by the filence of the national hillorians. Nor am I much more inclined to believe, that Palzologus departed from Italy, valde bene confolatus et contentus (Vit. Urban V. p. 623.).

386

large fums at exorbitant usury; but his coffers were empty, his C H A P. creditors were impatient, and his perfon was detained as the beft fecurity for the payment. His eldest fon Andronicus, the regent of Conftantinople, was repeatedly urged to exhauft every refource : and, even by ftripping the churches, to extricate his father from captivity and difgrace. But the unnatural youth was infenfible of the difgrace, and fecretly pleafed with the captivity of the emperor; the flate was poor, the clergy was obffinate; nor could fome religious feruple be wanting to excufe the guilt of his indifference and delay. Such undutiful neglect was feverely reproved by the piety of his brother Manuel, who inftantly fold or mortgaged all that he poffeffed, embarked for Venice, relieved his father, and pledged his own freedom to be responsible for the debt. On his return to Con- His return to ftantinople, the parent and king diftinguished his two fons with fuit- ple, able rewards; but the faith and manners of the flothful Palæologus had not been improved by his Roman pilgrimage; and his apoftacy or conversion, devoid of any spiritual or temporal effects, was fpeedily forgotten by the Greeks and Latins "*.

Thirty years after the return of Palæologus, his fon and fucceffor, Manuel, from a fimilar motive, but on a larger fcale, again vifited nuel the countries of the Weft. In a preceding chapter I have related his treaty with Bajazet, the violation of that treaty, the fiege or blockade of Conftantinople, and the French fuccour under the command of the gallant Boucicault ". By his ambaffadors, Manuel had folicited the Latin powers; but it was thought that the prefence of a diffreffed monarch would draw tears and fupplies from the hardeft Barbarians¹⁶; and the marshal who advised the journey, prepared the reception, of the Byzantine prince. The land was occupied by 14 His return in 1370, and the coronation of Manuel, Sept. 25, 1373 (Ducange, Fam. Byzant. p. 241.), leaves some intermediate æra for the conspiracy and punishment of by Chalcondyles (1. ii. c. 44-50.) and Du-Andronicus.

15 Memoires de Boucicault, P.i. c. 35, 36. ¹⁶ Eis journey into the west of Europe, is flightly, and I believe reluctantly, noticed cas (c. 14.).

3 D 2

the Constantino-A. D. 1370.

Vifit of the emperor Ma-

LXVI.

LXVI.

to the court of France. A. D. 1400, June 3;

C H A P. the Turks; but the navigation of Venice was fafe and open: Italy received him as the first, or, at least, as the second of the Christian princes; Manuel was pitied as the champion and confessor of the faith; and the dignity of his behaviour prevented that pity from finking into contempt. From Venice he proceeded to Padua and Pavia; and even the duke of Milan, a fecret ally of Bajazet, gave him fafe and honourable conduct to the verge of his dominions ". On the confines of France 18, the royal officers undertook the care of his perfon, journey, and expences; and two thousand of the richeft citizens, in arms and on horfeback, came forth to meet him as far as Charenton, in the neighbourhood of the capital. At the gates of Paris, he was faluted by the chancellor and the parliament; and Charles the fixth, attended by his princes and nobles, welcomed his brother with a cordial embrace. The fucceffor of Conftantine was clothed in a robe of white filk, and mounted on a milk-white fteed; a circumftance, in the French ceremonial, of fingular importance: the white colour is confidered as the fymbol of fovereignty; and, in a late visit, the German emperor, after an haughty demand and a peevifh refufal, had been reduced to content himfelf with a black courfer. Manuel was lodged in the Louvre; a fucceffion of feafts and balls, the pleafures of the banquet and the chace, were ingenioufly varied by the politeness of the French, to display their magnificence and amufe his grief: he was indulged in the liberty of his chapel; and the doctors of the Sorbonne were aftonished, and poffibly fcandalifed, by the language, the rites, and the veftments, of his Greek clergy. But the flighteft glance on the flate of the kingdom, must teach him to defpair of any effectual affistance.

> 17 Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. xii. p. 400. John Galeszzo was the first and molt powerful duke of Milan. His connection with Bajazet is attefted by Froiffard; and he contributed to fave and deliver the French captives of Nicopolis.

¹⁸ For the reception of Manuel at Paris, fee Spondanus (Annal. Ecclef. tom. i. p. 676, 677. A. D. 1400, Nº 5.), who quotes Juvenal des Urfins, and the monk of St. Denys; and Villaret (Hift. de France, tom. xii. p. 331-334.), who quotes nobody, according to the last fashion of the French writers.

The

The unfortunate Charles, though he enjoyed fome lucid intervals, C H A P. continually relapfed into furious or flupid infanity: the reins of government were alternately feized by his brother and uncle, the dukes of Orleans and Burgundy, whole factious competition prepared the miferies of civil war. The former was a gay youth, diffolved in luxury and love: the latter was the father of John count of Nevers, who had fo lately been ranfomed from Turkish captivity; and, if the fearless fon was ardent to revenge his defeat, the more prudent Burgundy was content with the coft and peril of the first experiment. When Manuel had fatiated the curiofity, and perhaps fatigued the patience, of the French, he refolved on a vifit to the adjacent illand. In his progrefs from Dover, he was entertained of Ergland, at Canterbury with due reverence by the prior and monks of St. Dicember. Auftin; and, on Blackheath, king Henry the fourth, with the English court, faluted the Greek hero (I copy our old historian). who, during many days, was lodged and treated in London as emperor of the Eaft ". But the ftate of England was ftill more adverfe to the defign of the holy war. In the fame year, the hereditary fovereign had been depofed and murdered; the reigning prince was a fuccefsful ufurper, whofe ambition was punifhed by jealoufy and remorfe: nor could Henry of Lancaster withdraw his perfon or forces from the defence of a throne inceffantly fhaken by confpiracy and rebellion. He pitied, he praifed, he feasted, the emperor of Conftantinople; but if the English monarch assumed the cross, it was only to appeale his people, and perhaps his confcience, by the merit or femblance of this pious intention 20. Satisfied, however,

19 A fhort note of Manuel in England, is et per multos dies exhibuit gloriofe, pro 29 Shakespeare begins and ends the play crusade, and his belief that he should die in . Jerufalem.

A. D. 1400,

extracted by Dr. Hody from a MS. at Lam- expensis hospitii sui folvens, ct eum respibeth (de Græcis illustribus, p. 14.), C. P. ciens tanto fastigio donativis. He repeats Imperator, diu variifque et horrendis Pagano- the fame in his Upodigma Neuftriæ, p 556.). rum infultibus coartatus, ut pro eifdem refiftentiam triumphalem perquireret Anglorum Re- of Henry IV. with that prince's vow of a gem visitare decrevit, &c. Rex (fays Walfingham, p. 364.) nobili apparatû fuscepit (ut decuit) tantum Heroa, duxitque Londonias, LXVI. His return to Greece, A. D. 1402.

C H A P. with gifts and honours, Manuel returned to Paris; and, after a refidence of two years in the Weft, fhaped his courfe through Germany and Italy, embarked at Venice, and patiently expected, in the Morea, the moment of his ruin or deliverance. Yet he had escaped the ignominious necessity of offering his religion to public or private fale. The Latin church was diffracted by the great fchifm: the kings, the nations, the univerfities, of Europe, were divided in their obedience between the popes of Rome and Avignou; and the emperor, anxious to conciliate the friendship of both parties, abftained from any correspondence with the indigent and unpopular rivals. His journey coincided with the year of the jubilee; but he paffed through Italy without defiring, or deferving, the plenary indulgence which abolished the guilt or penance of the fins of the faithful. The Roman pope was offended by this neglect; accufed him of irreverence to an image of Chrift; and exhorted the princes of Italy to reject and abandon the obflinate fchifmatie²¹.

Greek know-Jedge and deferiptions

During the period of the crufades, the Greeks beheld with aftonifhment and terror the perpetual fiream of emigration that flowed, and continued to flow, from the unknown climates of the Weft. The vifits of their laft emperors removed the veil of feparation, and they difclofed to their eyes the powerful nations of Europe, whom they no longer prefumed to brand with the name of Barbarians. The observations of Manuel, and his more inquisitive followers, have been preferved by a Byzantine hiftorian of the times²²: his fcattered Politica, A. D. 1391-1478, published by name contributed to the revival of the Greek Martin Crufius (Turco Græcia, p. 1-43.). The image of Chrift, which the Greek emperor refufed to worship, was probably a work of sculpture.

nicus Chalcondyles ends with the winter of racter. For his defcriptions of Germany, mark, that he laid down his pen in the fame 44-50. year. We know that he was an Athenian,

" This fact is preferved in the Hidoria and that, fome contemporaries of the fame language in Italy. But in his numerous digreffions, the modeft hiftorian has never introduced himfelf; and his editor Leunclavius, as well as Fabricius (Bibliot. Grac. tom. vi. 22 The Greek and Turkish history of Lao- p. 474.), feems ignorant of his life and cha-1463, and the abrupt conclusion feems to France, and England, fee 1. ii. p. 36, 37.

ideas

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

ideas I shall collect and abridge; and it may be amufing enough, C H A P. perhaps instructive, to contemplate the rude pictures of Germany, France, and England, whofe ancient and modern flate are fo familiar to our minds. I. GERMANY (fays the Greek Chalcondyles) of Germany; is of ample latitude from Vienna to the Ocean; and it ftretches (a flrange geography) from Prague in Bohemia to the river Tarteffus, and the Pyrenæan mountains23. The foil, except in figs and olives, is fufficiently fruitful; the air is falubrious; the bodies of the natives are robuft and healthy; and thefe cold regions are feldom vifited with the calamities of peftilence, or earthquakes. After the Scythians or Tartars, the Germans are the most numerous of nations; they are brave and patient, and were they united under a fingle head, their force would be irrefiftible. By the gift of the pope, they have acquired the privilege of chufing the Roman emperor²⁴; nor is any people more devoutly attached to the faith and obedience of the Latin patriarch. The greatest part of the country is divided among the princes and prelates; but Strafburgh, Cologne, Hamburgh, and more than two hundred free cities, are governed by fage and equal laws, according to the will, and for the advantage, of the whole community. The use of duels, or single combats on foot, prevails among them in peace and war; their industry excels in all the mechanic arts, and the Germans may boaft of the invention of gunpowder and cannon, which is now diffufed over the greatest part of the world. II. The kingdom of FRANCE is foread above fifteen or of France : twenty days journey from Germany to Spain, and from the Alps to 23 I shall not animadvert on the geographical errors of Chalcondyles. In this instance, he perhaps followed, and mislook, Herodotus (l. ii. c. 33.), whofe text may be explained (Herodote de Larcher, tom. ii. p. 219, 220.), or whole ignorance may be excufed. Had thefe modern Greeks never proper, though humble names of Example, and read Strabo, or any of their leffer geogra- Baushous Exhauses, phers?

24 A citizen of new Rome, while new Rome furvived, would have fcorned to dignify the German Pr& with the titles of Barner , or 'vr-REATOR PAULANE: but all pride was extinct in the bofom of Chalcondyles; and he defcribes the Byzantine prince, and his fubject, by the

7

the

LXVI. Land

C H A P. the British Ocean; containing many flourishing cities, and among thefe Paris, the feat of the king, which furpaffes the reft in riches ----and luxury. Many princes and lords alternately wait in his palace, and acknowledge him as their fovereign; the most powerful are the dukes of Bretagne and Burgundy, of whom the latter poffeffes the wealthy province of Flanders, whole harbours are frequented by the fhips and merchants of our own and the more remote feas. The French are an ancient and opulent people : and their language and manners, though fomewhat different, are not diffimilar from those of the Italians. Vain of the Imperial dignity of Charlemagne, of their victories over the Saracens, and of the exploits of their heroes, Oliver and Rowland²⁵; they efteem themfelves the first of the western nations: but this foolish arrogance has been recently humbled by the unfortunate events of their wars against the English, the inhabitants of the British island. III. BRITAIN, in the ocean, and of England. opposite to the shores of Flanders, may be confidered either as one, or as three iflands; but the whole is united by a common intereft, by the fame manners, and by a fimilar government. The measure of its circumference is five thousand stadia: the land is overspread with towns and villages : though deftitute of wine, and not abounding in fruit-trees, it is fertile in wheat and barley; in honey and wool; and much cloth is manufactured by the inhabitants. In populoufnefs and power, in riches and luxury, London²⁶, the metropolis of the ifle, may claim a pre-eminence over all the cities of the Weft. It is fituate on the Thames, a broad and rapid river, which at the diftance of thirty miles falls into the Gallic Sea; and the daily > 25 Moft of the old romances were translated in the xivth century into French profe, and foon became the favourite amufement of the knights and ladies in the court of Charles VI. If a Greek believed in the exploits of Rowland and Oliver, he may furcly be excufed, fince the monks of St. Denys, the national hiftorians, have inferted the fables of archbifhop Turpin in their Chronicles of France.

26 Λουδιοη.... δε τε πολι; δυναμει τε προεχυσα των εν τη νησω ταυτη πασών πολεών, ολβώ τε και τη מאאח בטלמוגטטות שלבגומה דבי הרסה בההברמי אבוהטאביי. Even fince the time of Fitzstephen (the xiith century), London appears to have maintained this pre-eminence of wealth and magnitude; and her gradual increase has, at least, kept pace with the general improvement of Europe.

342

LXVI.

flow

flow and ebb of the tide, affords a fafe entrance and departure to the veffels of commerce. The king is the head of a powerful and turbulent ariftocracy; his principal vaffals hold their eftates by a free and unalterable tenure ; and the laws define the limits of his authority and their obedience. The kingdom has been often afflicted by foreign conqueft and domeftic fedition; but the natives are bold and hardy, renowned in arms and victorious in war. The form of their fhields or targets is derived from the Italians, that of their fwords from the Greeks; the use of the long bow is the peculiar and decifive advantage of the English. Their language bears no affinity to the idioms of the continent; in the habits of domeflic life, they are not eafily diftinguished from their neighbours of an are all France : but the moft fingular circumftance of their manners is their difregard of conjugal honour and of female chaftity. In their mu- 2542-7147 tual vifits, as the first act of hospitality, the guest is welcomed in the embraces of their wives and daughters : among friends they are lent and borrowed without shame; nor are the islanders offended at this ftrange commerce, and its inevitable confequences²⁷. Informed as we are of the cuftoms of old England, and affured of the virtue of our mothers, we may finile at the credulity, or refent the injustice, of the Greek, who must have confounded a modest falute " with a criminal embrace. But his credulity and injuffice may teach an important leffon; to diftruft the accounts of foreign and remote nations, and to fuspend our belief of every tale that deviates from the laws of nature and the character of man²⁹.

²⁷ If the double fense of the verb Kvw (ofculor, and in utero gero) be equivocal, the context and pious horror of Chalcondyles can leave no doubt of his meaning and miftake (p. 49.).

a pretty paffage on the English fashion of less visible and scandalous, in proportion as we kiffing ftrangers on their arrival and de- have fludied the manners of that gentle and parture, from whence, however, he draws amorous people. no scandalous inferences.

VOL. VI.

29 Perhaps we may apply this remark to the community of wives among the old Britons, as it is supposed by Cæsar and Dion (Dion Caffius, l. lxii. tom. ii. p. 1007.), with Reimar's judicious annotation. The Arreoy 28 Erasmus (Epist. Fausto Andrelino) has of Otaheite, so certain at first, is become

After

C H A P. LXVI.

hang men

: d3 1

· 11

T.A.

1.1-20, E

C H A P. LXVI. Indifference of Manuel towards the Latins, A. D. 1402-1417.

tions, A.D.

After his return, and the victory of Timour, Manuel reigned many years in prosperity and peace. As long as the fons of Bajazet folicited his friendship and spared his dominions, he was fatisfied with the national religion; and his leifure was employed in composing twenty theological dialogues for its defence. The appearance of the Byzantine ambaffadors at the council of Conftance ³⁰ announces the reftoration of the Turkish power, as well as of the Latin church; the conquest of the fultans, Mahomet and Amurath, reconciled the emperor to the Vatican; and the fiege of Conftantinople almost tempted him to acquiefce in the double procession of the Holy Ghoft. When Martin the fifth afcended without a rival the chair of St. Peter, a friendly intercourfe of letters and embaffies was revived His negocia- between the East and West. Ambition on one fide, and diffrefs on the other, dictated the fame decent language of charity and peace : 1417-1425. the artful Greek expressed a defire of marrying his fix fons to Italian princeffes; and the Roman, not lefs artful, difpatched the daughter of the marquis of Montferrat, with a company of noble virgins, to foften by their charms the obstinacy of the schifmatics. Yet under this mafk of zeal, a difcerning eye will perceive that all was hollow and infincere in the court and church of Conftantinople. According to the viciffitudes of danger and repofe, the emperor advanced or retreated; alternately inftructed and difavowed his minifters; and escaped from an importunate preffure by urging the duty of enquiry, the obligation of collecting the fenfe of his patriarchs and bishops, and the impossibility of convening them at a time when the Turkish arms were at the gates of his capital. From a review of the public transactions it will appear, that the Greeks infifted on three fucceffive meafures, a fuccour, a council, and a final re-union, while the Latins eluded the fecond, and only promifed the first, as a confequential and voluntary reward of the third. But we have an

> ³⁰ See Lenfant, Hift. du Concile de Con- Spondanus, the Bibliotheque of Dupin, flance, tom. ii. p. 576.; and for the eccle- tom. xii. and xxist and xxist volumes of the fiaffical hiftory of the times, the Annals of Hiftory, or rather the Continuation, of Fleury.

an opportunity of unfolding the most fecret intentions of Manuel, C H A P. as he explained them in a private conversation without artifice or difguise. In his declining age, the emperor had affociated John motives. Palæologus, the fecond of the name, and the eldeft of his fons, on whom he devolved the greatest part of the authority and weight of government. One day, in the prefence only of the historian Phranza", his favourite chamberlain, he opened to his colleague and fucceffor the true principle of his negociations with the pope". " Our last refource," faid Manuel, " against the Turks is " their fear of our union with the Latins, of the warlike nations of " the Weft, who may arm for our relief and for their deftruction. " As often as you are threatened by the milcreants, prefent this " danger before their eyes. Propofe a council; confult on the " means; but ever delay and avoid the convocation of an affembly, " which cannot tend either to our fpiritual or temporal emolument. " The Latins are proud; the Greeks are obftinate; neither party " will recede or retract; and the attempt of a perfect union will " confirm the fchifm, alienate the churches, and leave us, without " hope or defence, at the mercy of the Barbarians." Impatient of this falutary leffon, the royal youth arofe from his feat, and departed in filence; and the wife monarch (continues Phranza), cafting his eyes on me, thus refumed his difcourfe: " My fon deems " himfelf a great and heroic prince; but, alas! our miferable age

³¹ From his early youth, George Phranza. or Phranzes, was employed in the fervice of the state and palace; and Hanckins (de Script. Byzant. P. i. c. 40.) has collected his life from his own writings. He was no more than four-and-twenty years of age at the death of Manuel, who recommended him in the ftrongeft terms to his facceffor: Imprimis vero hunc Phranzen tibi commendo. qui ministravit mihi fideliter et diligenter (Phranzes, I. ii. c. 1.). Yet the emperor John was cold, and he preferred the fervice of the despots of Peloponnesus.

32 See Phranzes, I. ii. c. 13. While fo many manufcripts of the Greek original are extant in the libraries of Rome, Milan, the Efcurial, &c. it is a matter of shame and reproach, that we fhould be reduced to the Latin verfion, or abstract, of James Pontanus (ad calcem Theophylact Simocattæ; Ingolstadt, 1604), fo deficient in accuracy and elegance (Fabric. Bibliot. Græc. tom. vi. p. 615-620.).

3 E 2

" does

$7.44

395

LXVI.

His private

C H A P. " does not afford fcope for heroifm or greatnefs. His daring fpirit " might have fuited the happier times of our anceftors; but the " prefent flate requires not an emperor, but a cautious fleward of " the laft relics of our fortunes. Well do I remember the lofty ex-" pectations which he built on our alliance with Mustapha; and " much do I fear, that his rafh courage will urge the ruin of our " houfe, and that even religion may precipitate our downfal." Yet the experience and authority of Manuel preferved the peace and eluded the council; till, in the feventy-eighth year of his age, and in the habit of a monk, he terminated his career, dividing his precious moveables among his children and the poor, his phyficians and his favourite fervants. Of his fix fons 33, Andronicus the fecond was invested with the principality of Theffalonica, and died of a leprofy foon after the fale of that city to the Venetians and its final conquest by the Turks. Some fortunate incidents had reftored Peloponnesus, or the Morea, to the empire; and in his moreprosperous days, Manuel had fortified the narrow isthmus of fix miles 34 with a ftone wall and one hundred and fifty-three towers. The wall was overthrown by the first blast of the Ottomans : the fertile peninfula might have been fufficient for the four younger brothers, Theodore and Constantine, Demetrius and Thomas; but they wafted in domeftic contefts the remains of their ftrength; and the leaft fuccefsful of the rivals were reduced to a life of dependence in the Byzantine palace.

Zeal of John Palæologus II. A. D. 1425-1437.

The eldeft of the fons of Manuel, John Palæologus the fecond, was acknowledged, after his father's death, as the fole emperor of the Greeks. He immediately proceeded to repudiate his wife, and affigned by d'Anville as still in ute in Turkey. Five miles are commonly reckoned for the from sea to sea, was 3800 orgygia, or toifes, breadth of the Ishmus. See the Travels of

396

LXVI.

His death.

5

to

³³ See Ducange, Fam. Byzant. p. 243 - ler than that of 660 French toifes, which is 248.

³⁴ The exact measure of the Hexamilion, of fix Greek feet (Phranzes, l. i. c. 38.), Spon, Wheeler, and Chandler. which would produce a Greek mile, ftill fmal-

to contract a new marriage with the princess of Trebizond ? beauty C H A P. was in his eyes the first qualification of an empress; and the clergy had yielded to his firm affurance, that unlefs he might be indulged in a divorce, he would retire to a cloifter, and leave the throne to his brother Conftantine. The first, and in truth the only, victory of Palzologus was over a Jew 35, whom, after a long and learned difpute, he converted to the Christian faith; and this momentous conqueft is carefully recorded in the hiftory of the times. But he foon refumed the defign of uniting the Eaft and Weft; and, regardlefs of his father's advice, liftened, as it fhould feem with fincerity, to the propofal of meeting the pope in a general council beyond the Adriatic. This dangerous project was encouraged by Martin the fifth, and coldly entertained by his fucceffor Eugenius, till, after a tedious negociation, the emperor received a fummons from a Latin affembly of a new character, the independent prelates of Bafil, who ftyled themfelves the reprefentatives and judges of the Catholic church.

The Roman pontiff had fought and conquered in the caule of Corruption ecclesiaftical freedom; but the victorious clergy were foon exposed to church. the tyranny of their deliverer; and his facred character was invulnerable to those arms which they found fo keen and effectual against the civil magistrate. Their great charter, the right of election, was annihilated by appeals, evaded by trufts or commendams, difappointed by reversionary grants, and superfeded by previous and arbitrary refervations 36. A public auction was inflituted in the court of Rome : the cardinals and favourites were enriched with the

36 In the treatife delle Materie Beneficiarie

and best edition of his works), the papal fystem is deeply studied and freely defcribed. Should Rome and her religion be annihilated, this golden volume may still furvive, a philosophical hiftory, and a falutary waraing, fpoils

of the Latin

³⁵ The first objection of the Jews, is on the of Fra-Paolo (in the ivth volume of the last death of Chrift: if it were voluntary, Chrift was a fuicide; which the emperor parries with a mystery. They then dispute on the conception of the virgin, the fense of the prophecies, &c. (Phranzes, 1. ii. c. 12. a whole chapter).

LXVI.

398

Schilm. A.D. 1377-1429.

Council of Pifa. A. D. 1400. of Constance, A.D. 3414-1418.

C H A P. fpoils of nations; and every country might complain that the most important and valuable benefices were accumulated on the heads of aliens and absentees. During their refidence at Avignon, the ambition of the popes fubfided in the meaner paffions of avarice 37 and luxury: they rigoroufly imposed on the clergy the tributes of first-fruits and tenths; but they freely tolerated the impunity of vice, diforder, and corruption. These manifold scandals were aggravated by the great fchifm of the Weft, which continued above fifty years. In the furious conflicts of Rome and Avignon, the vices of the rivals were mutually exposed; and their precarious fituation degraded their authority, relaxed their discipline, and multiplied their wants and exactions. To heal the wounds, and reftore the monarchy, of the church, the fynods of Pifa and Conftance³⁸ were fucceffively convened; but these great affemblies, confcious of their ftrength, refolved to vindicate the privileges of the Christian aristocracy. From a personal sentence against two pontiffs, whom they rejected, and a third, their acknowledged fovereign, whom they deposed, the fathers of Constance proceeded to examine the nature and limits of the Roman fupremacy; nor did they feparate till they had eftablished the authority, above the pope, of a general council. It was enacted, that, for the government and reformation of the church, fuch affemblies fhould be held at regular intervals; and that each fynod, before its diffolution, should appoint the time and place of the fubfequent meeting. By the influence of the court of Rome, the next convocation at Sienna was eafily eluded;

> 37 Pope John XXII. (in 1334) left behind him, at Avignon, eighteen millions of gold florins, and the value of feven millions more in plate and jewels. See the Chronicle of John Villani (l. xi. c. 20. in Muratori's Collection, tom. xiii. p. 765.), whofe brother received the account from the papal treasurers. A treasure of fix or eight millions sterling in count of the troubles of Bohemia.

the xivth century is enormous, and almost incredible.

38 A learned and liberal protestant, M. Lenfant, has given a fair hiftory of the councils of Pifa, Conftance, and Bafil, in fix volumes in quarto: but the last part is the most hasty and imperfect, except in the ac-but the bold and vigorous proceedings of the council of Bafil " had C H A P. almost been fatal to the reigning pontiff, Eugenius the fourth. Α just fuspicion of his defign prompted the fathers to hasten the promulgation of their first decree, that the representatives of the church- 1431-1443. militant on earth were invefted with a divine and fpiritual jurifdiction over all Chriftians, without excepting the pope; and that a general council could not be diffolved, prorogued, or transferred, unlefs by their free deliberation and confent. On the notice that Eugenius had fulminated a bull for that purpole, they ventured to fummon, to admonish, to threaten, to cenfure, the contumacious fucceffor of St. Peter. After many delays, to allow time for re- Their oppopentance, they finally declared, that, unless he submitted within genius IV. the term of fixty days, he was fufpended from the exercise of all temporal and ecclefiaftical authority. And to mark their jurifdiction over the prince as well as the prieft, they affumed the government of Avignon, annulled the alienation of the facred patrimony, and protected Rome from the imposition of new taxes. Their boldness was juffified, not only by the general opinion of the clergy, but by the support and power of the first monarchs of Christendom : the emperor Sigifmond declared himfelf the fervant and protector of the fynod; Germany and France adhered to their cause; the duke of Milan was the enemy of Eugenius; and he was driven from the Vatican by an infurrection of the Roman people. Rejected at the fame time by his temporal and fpiritual fubjects, fubmiffion was his only choice: by a most humiliating bull, the pope repealed his own acts, and ratified those of the council; incorporated his legates and cardinals with that venerable body; and feemed to refign himfelf to the decrees of the supreme legislature. Their fame pervaded the library, in twelve volumes in folio. Bafil was cil. But what is a council, or an university, and guarded by the arms of the neighbouring Erafmus? and confederate Swifs. In 1459, the uni-countries

LXVI. of Bafil, A. D.

fition to Eu-

³⁹ The original acts or minutes of the verfity was founded by pope Pius II. (Æneas council of Bafil, are preferved in the public Sylvius), who had been fecretary to the couna free city, conveniently fituate on the Rhine, to the preffes of Froben and the studies of

with the Greeks, A. D.

LXVI.

C H A P. countries of the East; and it was in their presence that Sigismond received the ambaffadors of the Turkish fultan ", who laid at his feet twelve large vafes, filled with robes of filk and pieces of gold. Negociations The fathers of Bafil afpired to the glory of reducing the Greeks, as well as the Bohemians, within the pale of the church; and their 1434-1437. deputies invited the emperor and patriarch of Conftantinople to unite with an affembly which poffeffed the confidence of the Weftern nations. Palæologus was not averfe to the propofal; and his ambaffadors were introduced with due honours into the Catholic fenate. But the choice of the place appeared to be an infuperable obstacle, fince he refused to pass the Alps, or the fea of Sicily, and politively required that the fynod fhould be adjourned to fome convenient city in Italy, or at least on the Danube. The other articles of this treaty were more readily flipulated : it was agreed to defray the travelling expences of the emperor, with a train of feven hundred perfons 41, to remit an immediate fum of eight thoufand ducats 42 for the accommodation of the Greek clergy; and in his abfence to grant a fupply of ten thousand ducats, with three hundred archers and fome gallies, for the protection of Conftantinople. The city of Avignon advanced the funds for the preliminary expences; and the embarkation was prepared at Marfeilles with fome difficulty and delay. Tellin war allow

John Palæologus embarks in the pope's gal-lies,

In his diffrefs, the friendship of Palæologus was disputed by the ecclefiaftical powers of the Weft; but the dextrous activity of a monarch prevailed over the flow debates and inflexible temper of Crantzius, is related with fome doubt by the (p. 9.), were more than they could hope or annalist Spondanus, A. D. 1433, Nº 25. tom. i. p. 824.

numbers of the clergy and laity which afterwards attended the emperor and patriarch, but which are not clearly specified by the great ecclefiarch. The 75,000 florins which

4

4º This Turkish embasily, attested only by they asked in this negociation of the pope want.

42 I use indifferently the words, ducat and ⁴¹ Syropulus, p. 19. In this lift, the florin, which derive their names, the former Greeks appear to have exceeded the real from the dukes of Milan, the latter from the republic of Florence. These gold pieces, the first that were coined in Italy, perhaps in the Latin world, may be compared in weight and value to one-third of the English guinea.

4.00

a republic. The decrees of Bafil continually tended to circumferibe C H A P. the defpotifin of the pope, and to erect a fupreme and perpetual tribunal in the church. Eugenius was impatient of the yoke; and Nov. 24. the union of the Greeks might afford a decent pretence for tranflating a rebellious fynod from the Rhine to the Po. The independence of the fathers was loft if they passed the Alps: Savoy or Avignon, to which they acceded with reluctance, were defcribed at Conftantinople as fituate far beyond the pillars of Hercules⁴³; the emperor and his clergy were apprehenfive of the dangers of a long navigation; they were offended by an haughty declaration, that after fuppreffing the new herefy of the Bohemians, the council would foon eradicate the old herefy of the Greeks44. On the fide of Eugenius, all was finooth, and yielding, and respectful: and he invited the Byzantine monarch to heal by his prefence the fchilin of the Latin, as well as of the Eaftern, church. Ferrara, near the coaft of the Adriatic, was propofed for their amicable interview; and with fome indulgence of forgery and theft, a furreptitious decree was procured, which transferred the fynod, with its own confent, to that Italian city. Nine gallies were equipped for this fervice at Venice, and in the ifle of Candia; their diligence anticipated the flower veffels of Bafil : the Roman admiral was commiffioned to burn, fink, and deftroy *; and thefe prieftly fquadrons might have encountered each other in the fame feas where Athens and Sparta had formerly contended for the pre-eminence of glory. Affaulted ⁴³ At the end of the Latin version of indignation, and that of his countrymen: Phranzes, we read a long Greek epiftle or declamation of George of Trebizond, who advises the emperor to prefer Eugenius and Italy. He treats with contempt the fchifmatic affembly of Bafil, the Barbarians of Gaul and Germany, who had confpired to tranfport the chair of St. Peter beyond the Alps: i αθλιοι (fays he) σε και την μετα συ συνοδον εξω των Ηρακλειων σηλων και περα Γαδηρων εξαξυσι. Was Constantinople unprovided with a map?

VOL. VI.

and the Bafil deputies, who excufed the rafh declaration, could neither deny nor alter an act of the council.

45 Condolmieri, the pope's nephew and admiral, expressly declared, or operator exes παρα τη Παπα ίνα πολεμηση όπη αν ευρη τα κατεργα της Συνοδε, και ει δυιηθη καταδυση και αφανιση. The naval orders of the fynod were lefs peremptory, and, till the hoftile fquadrons appeared, both parties tried to conceal their 44 Syropulus (p. 26-31.) attells his own quarrel from the Greeks.

3 F

by

LXVI. -----A. D. 1437.

C H A P. by the importunity of the factions, who were ready to fight for the poffeffion of his perfon, Palæologus hefitated before he left his palace and country on a perilous experiment. His father's advice still dwelt on his memory: and reafon muft fuggeft, that fince the Latins were divided among themfelves, they could never unite in a foreign caufe. Sigifmond diffuaded the unfeafonable adventure; his advice was impartial, fince he adhered to the council; and it was enforced by the strange belief, that the German Cæfar would nominate a Greek his heir and fucceffor in the empire of the Weft *6. Even the Turkish fultan was a counfellor whom it might be unfafe to truft, but whom it was dangerous to offend. Amurath was unfkilled in the difputes, but he was apprehensive of the union, of the Christians. From his own treafures, he offered to relieve the wants of the Byzantine court; yet he declared with feeming magnanimity, that Conftantinople fhould be fecure and inviolate, in the absence of her fovereign 47. The refolution of Palæologus was decided by the moft fplendid gifts and the most specious promifes: he wished to escape for a while from a fcene of danger and diffrefs; and after difmiffing with an ambiguous anfwer the meffengers of the council, he declared his intention of embarking in the Roman gallies. The age of the patriarch Joseph was more fusceptible of fear than of hope; he trembled at the perils of the fea, and expressed his apprehension, that his feeble voice, with thirty perhaps of his orthodox brethren, would be oppreffed in a foreign land by the power and numbers of a Latin fynod. He yielded to the royal mandate, to the flattering affurance, that he would be heard as the oracle of nations, and to the fecret wifh of learning from his brother of the Weft, to deliver the church

47 Phranzes himfelf, though from different ed the city. motives, was of the advice of Amurath

46 Syropulus mentions the hopes of Palæo- (1. ii. c. 13.). Utinam ne fynodus ifta unquam fuiffet, fi tantas offenfiones et detriand Amurath kept his word. He might threaten (p. 125. 219.), but he never attack-

402

LXVI. -----

from.

logus (p. 36.), and the last advice of Sigifmond (p. 57.). At Corfu, the Greek em- menta paritura erat. This Turkish embassy peror was informed of his friend's death; is likewife mentioned by Syropulus (p. 58.); had he known it fooner, he would have returned home (p. 79.).

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

from the yoke of kings ". The five crofs-bearers or dignitaries C H A P. of St. Sophia, were bound to attend his perfon; and one of thefe, the great ecclefiarch or preacher, Sylvefter Syropulus ", has composed so a free and curious history of the falle union st. Of the clergy that reluctantly obeyed the fummons of the emperor and the patriarch, fubmiffion was the first duty, and patience the most ufeful virtue. In a chofen lift of twenty bifhops, we difcover the metropolitan titles of Heraclea and Cyzicus, Nice and Nicomedia, Ephefus and Trebizond, and the perfonal merit of Mark and Beffarion, who, in the confidence of their learning and eloquence, were promoted to the epifcopal rank. Some monks and philosophers were named to difplay the fcience and fanctity of the Greek church : and the fervice of the choir was performed by a felect band of fingers and muficians. The patriarchs of Alexandria, Antioch, and Jerufalem, appeared by their genuine or fictitious deputies ; the primate of Ruffia reprefented a national church, and the Greeks might contend with the Latins in the extent of their fpiritual empire. The precious vafes of St. Sophia were exposed to the winds and waves, that the patriarch might officiate with becoming fplendour; whatever gold the emperor could procure, was expended in the maffy orna-

48 The reader will fmile at the fimplicity with which he imparted thefe hopes to his favourites: TOIAUTHY TAMPOGOGIAN OXAJEN MATILE RAI δια τυ Παπα εθαρρει ελευθερωσαι την εκκλησιαν απο דין מחסדוטנוסיה מעדש לטאנומן המרמ דש במסואנטן (p. 92.). Yet it would have been difficult for him to have practifed the leffons of Gregory VII.

49 The Christian name of Sylvester is borrowed from the Latin calendar. In modern Greek, mullar, as a diminutive, is added to the end of words: nor can any reafoning of Creyghton, the editor, excuse his changing into Sguropulus (Sguros, fuscus) the Syropulus of his own manufcript, whofe name is fubscribed with his own hand in the acts of the council of Florence. Why might not flyle: but he is excluded from the orthodox the author be of Syrian extraction ?

5º From the conclusion of the history, I fhould fix the date to the year 1444, four years after the fynod, when the great ecclefiarch had abdicated his office (fectio xii. p. 330-350.). His paffions were cooled by time and retirement, and, although Syropulus is often partial, he is never intemperate.

Si Vera historia unionis non weræinter Græcos et Latinos (Hagæ Comitis, 1660, in folio), was first published with a loofe and florid version, by Robert Creyghton, chaplain to Charles II. in his exile. The zeal of the editor has prefixed a polemic title, for the beginning of the original is wanting. Syropulus may be ranked with the best of the Byzantine writers for the merit of his narration, and even of his collections of the councils.

3 F 2

ments

403

404 CHA LXVI.

^C H A P. LXVI. the profperity of their ancient fortune; they quarrelled for the divifion of fifteen thousand ducats, the first alms of the Roman pontiff. After the neceffary preparations, John Palæologus, with a numerous train, accompanied by his brother Demetrius, and the most respectable perfons of the church and state, embarked in eight vessels with fails and oars, which stered through the Turkish streights of Gallipoli to the Archipelago, the Morea, and the Adviatic Gulf⁵³.

His triumphal entry at Venice, A. D. 1438, February 9;

After a tedious and troublefome navigation of feventy-feven days, this religious fquadron caft anchor before Venice; and their reception proclaimed the joy and magnificence of that powerful republic. In the command of the world, the modest Augustus had never claimed fuch honours from his fubjects as were paid to his feeble fucceffor by an independent state. Seated on the poop, on a lofty throne, he received the vifit, or, in the Greek ftyle, the adoration, of the doge and fenators54. They failed in the Bucentaur, which was accompanied by twelve flately gallies : the fea was overfpread with innumerable gondolas of pomp and pleafure; the air refounded with mufic and acclamations; the mariners, and even the veffels, were dreffed in filk and gold; and in all the emblems and pageants, the Roman eagles were blended with the lions of St. Mark. The triumphal procession, ascending the great canal, passed under the bridge of the Rialto; and the eaftern ftrangers gazed with admiration on the palaces, the churches, and the populoufnefs of a city

⁵² Syropulus (p. 63.) fimply expresses his intention: is straw sources to Iradous prograd Sect-2435; stage status ropulgoro; and the Latin of Cregghton may afford a specime of his florid paraphrafe. Ut pompâ circumductus noster Imperator Italiæ populis aliquis deauratus Jupiter crederetur, aut Crœfus ex opulenta Lydia.

⁵³ Although I cannot flop to quote Syropulus for every fach, 1 will obferve, that the navigation of the Greeks from Conflantinople to Venice and Ferrara is contained in the ivth fection (p. 67-100.), and that the hiftorian has the uncommon talent of placing each fcene before the reader's eye.

⁵⁴ At the time of the fynod, Phranzes was in Peloponnefus; but he received from the defpot Demetrius, a faithful account of the honourable reception of the emperor and patriarch both at Venice and Ferrara (Dux... fedentem Imperatorem advrat), which are more flightly mentioned by the Latins (1. ii. c. 14, 15, 16.).

7

that

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

that feems to float on the bosom of the wavess. They fighed to C H A P. behold the fpoils and trophies with which it had been decorated after the fack of Conftantinople. After an hofpitable entertainment of fifteen days, Palcologus purfued his journey by land and water from Venice to Ferrara: and on this occasion, the pride of the Vatican was tempered by policy to indulge the ancient dignity of the emperor of the East. He made his entry on a black horse; but a milk-white fteed, into Ferrara, whofe trappings were embroidered with golden eagles, was led before him; and the canopy was borne over his head by the princes of Efte, the fons or kinfmen of Nicholas, marquis of the city, and a fovereign more powerful than himfelf56. Palæologus did not alight till he reached the bottom of the ftair-cafe : the pope advanced to the door of the apartment; refufed his proffered genuflexion; and, after a paternal embrace, conducted the emperor to a feat on his left-hand. Nor would the patriarch defcend from his galley, till a ceremony, almost equal, had been stipulated between the bishops of Rome and Constantinople. The latter was faluted by his brother with a kifs of union and charity : nor would any of the Greek ecclefiaftics fubmit to kifs the feet of the Western primate. On the opening of the fynod, the place of honour in the centre was claimed by the temporal and ecclefiaftical chiefs; and it was only by alleging that his predeceffors had not affifted in perfon at Nice or Chalcedon, that Eugenius could evade the ancient precedents of Conftantine and Marcian. After much debate, it was agreed that the right and left fides of the church should be occupied by the two nations : that the folitary chair of St. Peter should be raifed the first of the Latin line; and that the throne of the Greek emperor, at the head of his clergy, 55 The aftonishment of a Greek prince and a French ambaffador (Memoires de Philippe de Comines, l. vii. c. 18.) at the fight of Venice, abundantly prove, that in the xvth century it was the first and most splendid of the Christian cities. For the spoils of Constantinople at Venice, see Syropulus (p. 87.).

56 Nicholas III. of Efte, reigned fortyeight years (A. D. 1393-1441), and was lord of Ferrara, Modena, Reggio, Parma, Rovigo, and Commachio. See his life in Muratori (Antichità Estenfe, tom. ii. p. 159 -201.).

February 28.

LXVI.

405 fhould

LXIV.

C H A P. should be equal and opposite to the fecond place, the vacant feat of the emperor of the Weft ".

Council of the Greeks Ferrara and Florence, A. D. 1438, October 8-A. D. 1439, July 6.

But as foon as feftivity and form had given place to a more and Latins at ferious treaty, the Greeks were diffatisfied with their journey, with themfelves, and with the pope. The artful pencil of his emiffaries had painted him in a profperous flate; at the head of the princes and prelates of Europe, obedient, at his voice, to believe and to arm. The thin appearance of the universal fynod of Ferrara betrayed his weakness; and the Latins opened the first fession with only five archbishops, eighteen bishops, and ten abbots, the greatest part of whom were the fubjects or countrymen of the Italian pontiff. Except the duke of Burgundy, none of the potentates of the Weft condescended to appear in person, or by their ambassiadors; nor was it poffible to suppress the judicial acts of Basil against the dignity and perfon of Eugenius, which were finally concluded by a new election. Under these circumstances, a truce or delay was asked and granted, till Palæologus could expect from the confent of the Latins fome temporal reward for an unpopular union; and, after the first fession, the public proceedings were adjourned above fix months. The emperor, with a chofen band of his favourites and Janizaries, fixed his fummer refidence at a pleafant spacious monaftery, fix miles from Ferrara; forgot, in the pleafures of the chace, the diftrefs of the church and ftate; and perfifted in deftroying the game, without liftening to the just complaints of the marquis or the hufbandman^{ss}. In the mean while, his unfortunate Greeks were ex-

> 57 The Latin vulgar was provoked to laughter at the strange dresses of the Greeks, and especially the length of their garments, their fleeves, and their beards; nor was the emperor diffinguished, except by the purple colour, and his diadem or tiara with a jewel on the top (Hody de Græcis Illustribus, p. 31.). Yet another fpectator confesses, that the Greek fashion was piu grave e piu degna than the Italian (Vefpafiano, in Vit. Eugen. IV.

in Muratori, tom. xxv. p. 261.).

38 For the emperor's hunting, fee Syropulus (p. 143, 144. 191.). The pope had fent him eleven miferable hacks: but he bought a firong and fwift horfe that came from Ruffia. The name of Janizaries may furprife: but the name, rather than the inflitution, had paffed from the Ottoman, to the Byzantine, court; and is often used in the last age of the empire.

3

pofed

pofed to all the miferies of exile and poverty; for the fupport of C H A P. each ftranger, a monthly allowance was affigned of three or four gold florins; and although the entire fum did not amount to feven hundred florins, a long arrear was repeatedly incurred by the indigence or policy of the Roman court⁵⁹. They fighed for a fpeedy deliverance, but their efcape was prevented by a triple chain: a paffport from their fuperiors was required at the gates of Ferrara: the government of Venice had engaged to arreft and fend back the fugitives; and inevitable punifhment awaited them at Conftantinople; excommunication, fines, and a fentence, which did not refpect the facerdotal dignity, that they fhould be ftripped naked and publicly whipped⁶⁰. It was only by the alternative of hunger or difpute that the Greeks could be perfuaded to open the first conference; and they yielded with extreme reluctance to attend from Ferrara to Florence the rear of a flying fynod. This new translation was urged by inevitable neceffity: the city was vifited by the plague; the fidelity of the marquis might be fufpected; the mercenary troops of the duke of Milan were at the gates; and as they occupied Romagna, it was not without difficulty and danger that the pope, the emperor, and the bifhops, explored their way through the unfrequented paths of the Apennine ".

Yet all these obstacles were furmounted by time and policy. The violence of the fathers of Bafil rather promoted than injured the 59 The Greeks obtained, with much difficulty, that instead of provisions, money should be distributed, four florins per month to the perfons of honourable rank, and three florins to their fervants, with an addition of thirty more to the emperor, twenty-five to the patriarch, and twenty to the prince or despot Demetrius. The payment of the first month amounted to 691 florins, a fum which will not allow us to reckon above 200 Greeks of every condition (Syropulus, p. 104, 105.). On the 20th October 1438, there was an arrear of four months; in April 1439, of more decent and deliberate.

three; and of five and a half in July, at the time of the union (p. 172. 225. 271.).

60 Syropulus (p. 141, 142. 204. 221.) deplores the imprisonment of the Greeks, and the tyranny of the emperor and patriarch.

⁶¹ The wars of Italy are most clearly reprefented in the xilith volume of the Annals of Muratori. The schismatic Greek, Syropulus (p. 145.), appears to have exaggerated the fear and diforder of the pope in his retreat from Ferrara to Florence, which is proved by the acts to have been fomewhat caufe

LXVI.

407

408

LXVI.

C H A P. caufe of Eugenius: the nations of Europe abhorred the fchifin, and difowned the election, of Felix the fifth, who was fucceffively a duke of Savoy, an hermit, and a pope; and the great princes were gradually reclaimed by his competitor to a favourable neutrality and a firm attachment. The legates, with fome refpectable members, deferted to the Roman army, which infenfibly role in numbers and reputation : the council of Bafil was reduced to thirty-nine bifhops, and three hundred of the inferior clergy 52; while the Latins of Florence could produce the fubfcriptions of the pope himfelf, eight cardinals, two patriarchs, eight archbishops, fifty-two bishops, and forty-five abbots, or chiefs of religious orders. After the labour of nine months, and the debates of twenty-five feffions, they attained the advantage and glory of the re-union of the Greeks. Four principal queftions had been agitated between the two churches: 1. The use of unleavened bread in the communion of Christ's body. 2. The nature of purgatory. 3. The fupremacy of the pope. And, 4. The fingle or double procession of the Holy Ghost. The cause of either nation was managed by ten theological champions: the Latins were fupported by the inexhauftible eloquence of cardinal Julian; and Mark of Ephefus and Beffarion of Nice were the bold and able leaders of the Greek forces. We may beftow fome praife on the progress of human reason, by observing, that the first of these questions was now treated as an immaterial rite, which might innocently vary with the fashion of the age and country. With regard to the fecond, both parties were agreed in the belief of an intermediate ftate of purgation for the venial fins of the faithful; and whether their fouls were purified by elemental fire, was a doubtful point, which in a few years might be conveniently fettled on the fpot by > hundred prelates in the council of Bafil. The the absent bishops of the West, who, exerror is manifest, and perhaps voluntary. pressly or tacitly, might adhere to its de-That extravagant number could not be fup- crees. plied by all the ecclefiaftics of every degree

62 Syropulus is pleafed to reckon feven who were prefent at the council, nor by all

the

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

the disputants. The claims of supremacy appeared of a more C H A P. weighty and fubftantial kind; yet by the Orientals the Roman bifhop had ever been respected as the first of the five patriarchs; nor did they fcruple to admit, that his jurifdiction fhould be exercifed agreeable to the holy canons; a vague allowance, which might be defined or eluded by occasional convenience. The procession of the Holy Ghoft from the Father alone, or from the Father and the Son, was an article of faith which had funk much deeper into the minds of men; and in the feffions of Ferrara and Florence, the Latin addition of filioque was fubdivided into two queftions, whether it were legal, and whether it were orthodox. Perhaps it may not be neceffary to boaft on this fubject of my own impartial indifference; but I must think that the Greeks were ftrongly fupported by the prohibition of the council of Chalcedon, against adding any article whatfoever to the creed of Nice, or rather of Conftantinople 63. In earthly affairs, it is not eafy to conceive how an affembly of legiflators can bind their fucceffors invefted with powers equal to their own. But the dictates of infpiration must be true and unchangeable ; nor should a private bishop, or a provincial fynod, have prefumed to innovate against the judgment of the Catholic church. On the fubftance of the doctrine, the controverfy was equal and endlefs : reafon is confounded by the proceffion of a deity; the gofpel, which lay on the altar, was filent; the various texts of the fathers might be corrupted by fraud or entangled by fophiftry; and the Greeks were ignorant of the characters and writings of the Latin faints 64. Of this at leaft we may be fure, that neither fide could be convinced by the arguments of their opponents. Prejudice may be enlightened by reafon, and a fuperficial glance may be rectified by a clear and more perfect view 63 The Greeks, who difliked the union, creed : a palpable forgery ! (p. 173.) were unwilling to fally from this ftrong forcouncil of Nice, with filioque in the Nicene 252, 253. 273.).

VOL. VI.

409

LXVI.

3 G

^{64 &#}x27;Sis 170 (faid an eminent Greek) or av 115 trefs (p. 178. 193. 195. 202. of Syropulus). אמטי נוסנאלט אמדויטי ט מביסאטיט דוית דעי באנוסי מיזיטי, The fhame of the Latins was aggravated by errised graph true (Syropulus, p. 109.). See their producing an old MS. of the fecond the perplexity of the Greeks (p. 217, 218.

LXVI.

C H A P. of an object adapted to our faculties. But the bifhops and monks had been taught from their infancy to repeat a form of mysterious words; their national and perfonal honour depended on the repetition of the fame founds; and their narrow minds were hardened and inflamed by the acrimony of a public difpute.

Negociations with the Greeks.

While they were loft in a cloud of duft and darknefs, the pope and emperor were defirous of a feeming union, which could alone accomplish the purposes of their interview; and the obflinacy of public difpute was foftened by the arts of private and perfonal negociation. The patriarch Joseph had funk under the weight of age and infirmities; his dying voice breathed the counfels of charity and concord, and his vacant benefice might tempt the hopes of the ambitious clergy. The ready and active obedience of the archbishops of Russia and Nice, of Isidore and Bessarion, was prompted and recompenfed by their fpeedy promotion to the dignity of cardinals. Beffarion, in the first debates, had stood forth the most strenuous and eloquent champion of the Greek church; and if the apoftate, the baftard, was reprobated by his country 65, he appears in ecclefiaftical flory a rare example of a patriot who was recommended to court-favour by loud opposition and well-timed compliance. With the aid of his two fpiritual coadjutors, the emperor applied his arguments to the general fituation and perfonal characters of the bifhops, and each was fucceffively moved by authority and example. Their revenues were in the hands of the Turks, their perfons in those of the Latins: an epifcopal treasure, three robes and forty ducats, was foon exhaufted": the hopes of their return fiill depended on the fhips of Venice and the alms of Rome; and fuch fee a remarkable paffage of Ducas (c. 31.). the remainder at Conftantinople (Syropulus, One had possefield, for his whole property, p. 127.).

65 See the polite altercation of Mark and Beffarion in Syropulus (p. 257.), who never diffembles the vices of his own party, and fairly praifes the virtues of the Latins.

three old gowns, &c. By teaching one-andtwenty years in his monaftery, Beffarion himfelf had collected forty gold florins; but of these, the archbishop had expended twenty-66 For the poverty of the Greek bishops, eight in his voyage from Peloponnefus, and

was.

was their indigence, that their arrears, the payment of a debt, would C H A P. be accepted as a favour, and might operate as a bribe⁶⁷. The danger and relief of Conftantinople might excufe fome prudent and pious diffimulation ; and it was infinuated, that the obflinate heretics who should refift the confent of the East and Weft, would be abandoned in a hoftile land to the revenge or justice of the Roman pontiff". In the first private affembly of the Greeks, the formulary of union was approved by twenty-four, and rejected by twelve, members : but the five crofs-bearers of St. Sophia, who afpired to reprefent the patriarch, were difqualified by ancient difcipline; and their right of voting was transferred to an obsequious train of monks, grammarians, and profane laymen. The will of the monarch produced a falfe and fervile unanimity, and no more than two patriots had courage to fpeak their own fentiments and those of their country. Demetritus, the emperor's brother, retired to Venice, that he might not be witnefs of the union; and Mark of Ephefus, miftaking perhaps his pride for his confcience, difclaimed all communion with the Latin heretics, and avowed himfelf the champion and confessor of the orthodox creed 69. In the treaty between the two nations, feveral forms of confent were propoled, fuch as might fatisfy the Latins, without difhonouring the Greeks : and they weighed the fcruples of words and fyllables, till the theological balance trembled with a flight preponderance in favour of the Vatican. It was agreed (I must intreat the attention of the reader), that the Holy Ghoft proceeds from the Father and the Son, as from one principle and one fubftance ; that he proceeds by the Son, being of the fame nature and fubftance, and own fears of exile and perpetual flavery royal attendants (Syropul. p. 265, 266.). (Syropul. p. 196.): and they were flrongly

69 I had forgot another popular and ortholay quiet on the foot-cloth of the emperor's throne; but who barked most furiously while the act of union was reading, without being 68 The Greeks most piteously express their filenced by the foothing or the lashes of the

3 G 2

that

411

⁶⁷ Syropulus denies that the Greeks re- moved by the emperor's threats (p. 260.). ceived any money before they had fubfcribed the act of union (p. 283.): yet he relates dox protester; a favourite hound, who usually fome fufpicious circumftances; and their bribery and corruption are politively affirmed by the historian Ducas.

LXVI. -----

C H A P. that he proceeds from the Father and the Son, by one (piration and production. It is lefs difficult to underftand the articles of the preliminary treaty; that the pope should defray all the expences of the Greeks in their return home; that he fhould annually maintain two gallies and three hundred foldiers for the defence of Conftantinople : that all the fhips which transported pilgrims to Jerufalem, should be obliged to touch at that port; that as often as they were required, the pope should furnish ten gallies for a year, or twenty for fix months; and that he flould powerfully folicit the princes of Europe, if the emperor had occasion for land-forces.

Eugenius deposed at Bafil, A. D. 1438, June 25.

Re-union of the Greeks at Florence, A. D. 1438, July 6.

The fame year, and almost the fame day, were marked by the deposition of Eugenius at Basil; and, at Florence, by his re-union of the Greeks and Latins. In the former fynod (which he ftyled indeed an affembly of damons), the pope was branded with the guilt of fimony, perjury, tyranny, herefy, and fchifm 7°; and declared to be incorrigible in his vices, unworthy of any title, and incapable of holding any eccleliaftical office. In the latter, he was revered as the true and holy vicar of Chrift, who, after a feparation of fix hundred years, had reconciled the Catholics of the Eaft and Weft, in one fold, and under one shepherd. The act of union was fubfcribed by the pope, the emperor, and the principal members of both churches; even by those who, like Syropulus⁷¹, had been deprived of the right of voting. Two copies might have fufficed for the East and West; but Eugenius was not fatisfied, unless four authentic and fimilar transcripts were figned and attefted as the monuments of his victory". On a memorable day, the fixth of July, the tom. xxv.), the manners of Eugenius IV. do both; and the great ecclefiarch poorly exappear to have been decent, and even ex- cufes his fubmillion to the emperor (p. 290emplary. His fituation, exposed to the 292.). world and to his enemies, was a reftraint, and is a pledge.

7º From the original Lives of the Popes, have affifted, as the leaft evil, at the cerein Muratori's Collection (tom. iii. P. ii. mony of the union. He was compelled to 72 None of these original acts of union can at prefent be produced. Of the ten MSS. 71 Syropulus, rather than fubscribe, would that are preferved (five at Rome, and the remainder the fucceffors of St. Peter and Conftantine afcended their thrones; C H A P. LXVI. the two nations affembled in the cathedral of Florence; their representatives, cardinal Julian and Beffarion archbishop of Nice, appeared in the pulpit, and, after reading in their respective tongues the act of union, they mutually embraced in the name and the prefence of their applauding brethren. The pope and his ministers then officiated according to the Roman liturgy; the creed was chaunted with the addition of filioque; the acquiefcence of the Greeks was poorly excufed by their ignorance of the harmonious, but inarticulate, founds 73; and the more ferupulous Latins refufed any public celebration of the Byzantine rite. Yet the emperor and his clergy were not totally unmindful of national honour. The treaty was ratified by their confent: it was tacitly agreed that no innovation should be attempted in their creed or ceremonies; they spared, and fecretly respected, the generous firmness of Mark of Ephefus; and on the decease of the patriarch, they refused to elect his fucceffor, except in the cathedral of St. Sophia. In the diftribution of public and private rewards, the liberal pontiff exceeded their hopes and his promifes : the Greeks, with lefs pomp and pride, Their return returned by the fame road of Ferrara and Venice; and their recep- nople, tion at Conftantinople was fuch as will be deferibed in the following A.D. 1440, February-1. chapter 74. The fuccefs of the first trial encouraged Eugenius to repeat the fame edifying fcenes; and the deputies of the Armenians, the Maronites, the Jacobites of Syria and Egypt, the Neftorians and the Æthiopians, were fucceffively introduced, to kifs the feet of the remainder at Florence, Bologna, Venice, de l'Academie des Infcriptions, tom. xliii. Paris, and London), nine have been examined by an accurate critic (M. de Brequigny), who condemns them for the variety and imperfections of the Greek fignatures. Yet feveral of thefe may be effeemed as authentic copies, which were fubscribed at Florence before (26th of August 1439) the final feparation of the pope and emperor (Memoires

to Constanti-

p. 287-311.).

23 "Hair de w; מסחותו בלוצו קשותו (Syropul. p. 297.).

74 In their return, the Greeks conversed at Bologna with the ambaffadors of England; and after some questions and answers, these impartial firangers laughed at the pretended union of Florence (Syropul. p. 307.).

Roman.

~~

Final peace of the church, A. D. 1449.

C H A P. Roman pontiff, and to announce the obedience and the orthodoxy of the Eaft. These Oriental embassies, unknown in the countries which they prefumed to reprefent 75, diffused over the West the fame of Eugenius: and a clamour was artfully propagated against the remnant of a fchilm in Switzerland and Savoy, which alone impeded the harmony of the Chriftian world. The vigour of oppofition was fucceeded by the laffitude of defpair : the council of Bafil was filently diffolved; and Fœlix, renouncing the tiara, again withdrew to the devout or delicious hermitage of Ripaille 76. A general peace was fecured by mutual acts of oblivion and indemnity : all ideas of reformation fublided; the popes continued to exercife and abufe their ecclefiaftical defpotifm; nor has Rome been fince difturbed by the mifchiefs of a contested election ".

State of the Greek language at Constantinople, A. D. 1300-1453.

The journies of three emperors were unavailing for their temporal, or perhaps their fpiritual, falvation; but they were productive of a beneficial confequence; the revival of the Greek learning in Italy, from whence it was propagated to the laft nations of the Weft and North. In their loweft fervitude and depreffion, the fubjects of the Byzantine throne were still possessed of a golden key that could unlock the treasures of antiquity; of a mufical and prolific language, that gives a foul to the objects of fense, and a body to the abstractions of philosophy. Since the barriers of the monarchy, and even of the capital, had been trampled under foot, the various these reunions of the Nestorians, Jacobites, &c. that I have turned over, without fuccefs, the Bibliotheca Orientalis of Affemannus, a faithful flave of the Vatican.

⁷⁶ Ripaille is fituate near Thonon in Savoy, on the fouthern fide of the lake of Geneva. It is now a Carthufian abbey; and Mr. Addison (Travels into Italy, vol. ii. p. 147, 148. of Bafkerville's edition of his works) has celebrated the place and the founder. Æneas Sylvius, and the fathers of Bafil, applaud the auftere life of the ducal hermit; but the French and Italian proverbs

75 So nugatory, or rather fo fabulous, are most unluckily attest the popular opinion of his luxury.

> 77 In this account of the councils of Bafil, Ferrara, and Florence, I have confulted the original acts, which fill the xviith and xviiith tomes of the edition of Venice, and are clofed by the perfpicuous, though partial, hiftory of Augustin Patricius, an Italian of the xvth century. They are digested and abridged by Dupin (Bibliotheque Ecclef. tom. xii.), and the continuator of Fleury (tom xxii.); and the respect of the Gallican church for the adverse parties confines their members to an awkward moderation.

6

Barbarians

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

Barbarians had doubtlefs corrupted the form and fubftance of the C H A P. national dialect; and ample gloffaries have been composed, to interpret a multitude of words, of Arabic, Turkifh, Sclavonian, Latin, or French origin 78. But a purer idiom was spoken in the court and taught in the college; and the flourishing flate of the language is defcribed, and perhaps embellished, by a learned Italian⁷⁹, who, by a long refidence and noble marriage ⁸⁰, was naturalized at Conftantinople about thirty years before the Turkish conquest. " The vul-" gar fpeech," fays Philelphus ", " has been depraved by the people, " and infected by the multitude of ftrangers and merchants, who " every day flock to the city and mingle with the inhabitants. It " is from the disciples of such a school that the Latin language re-" ceived the verfions of Ariftotle and Plato; fo obfeure in fenfe, " and in fpirit fo poor. But the Greeks who have efcaped the con-" tagion, are those whom we follow; and they alone are worthy of " our imitation. In familiar discourse, they still speak the tongue " of Aristophanes and Euripides, of the historians and philosophers 78 In the first attempt, Meursius collected 3600 Græco-barbarous words, to which, in a fecond edition, he subjoined 1800 more; yet what plenteous gleanings did he leave to Portius, Ducange, Fabrotti, the Bollandifts, &c. (Fabric. Bibliot. Græc. tom. x. p. 101, Sc.) Some Perfic words may be found in Xenophon, and fome Latin ones in Plutarch; and fuch is the inevitable effect of war and commerce: but the form and fubftance of the language were not affected by this flight alloy.

79 The life of Francis Philelphus, a fophift, proud, reftlefs, and rapacious, has been diligently composed by Lancelot (Memoires de l'Academie des Inscriptions, tom.x. p. 691-751.) and Tirabofchi (Iftoria della Letteratura Italiana, tom. vii. p. 282-294.), for the most part from his own letters. His elaborate writings, and those of his contemporaries, are forgotten: but their familiar epifiles still defcribe the men and the times.

80 He married, and had perhaps debauched, the daughter of John, and the granddaughter of Manuel Chryfoloras. She was young, beautiful, and wealthy; and her noble family was allied to the Dorias of Genoa and the emperors of Conftantinople.

81 Græci quibus lingua depravata non fit ita loquuntur vulgo hâc etiam tempestate ut Aristophanes comicus, aut Euripides tragicus, ut oratores omnes ut historiographi ut philosophi litterati autem homines et doctius et emendatius Nam viri aulici veterem fermonis dignitatem atque elegantiam retinebant in primisque ipsæ nobiles mulieres; quibus cum nullum effet omnino cum viris peregrinis commercium, merus ille ac purus Græcorum fermo fervabatur intactus (Philelph. Epift. ad ann. 1451, apud Hodium, p. 188, 189.). He observes in another pasfage, uxor illa mea Theodora locutione erat admodum moderata et suavi et maxime Atticâ.

LXVI.

" of

C H A P. " of Athens; and the ftyle of their writings is still more elaborate " and correct. The perfons who, by their birth and offices, are -----" attached to the Byzantine court, are those who maintain, with " the leaft alloy, the ancient ftandard of elegance and purity; and " the native graces of language most confpicuoully shine among the " noble matrons, who are excluded from all intercourfe with fo-" reigners. With foreigners do I fay? They live retired and fe-" queftered from the eyes of their fellow-citizens. Seldom are they " feen in the ftreets; and when they leave their houfes, it is in the " dufk of evening, on vifits to the churches and their nearest kin-" dred. On these occasions, they are on horseback, covered with a " veil, and encompaffed by their parents, their hufbands, or their " fervants "?"

> Among the Greeks, a numerous and opulent clergy was dedicated to the fervice of religion: their monks and bifhops have ever been diftinguished by the gravity and aufterity of their manners; nor were they diverted, like the Latin priefts, by the purfuits and pleafures of a fecular, and even military, life. After a large deduction for the time and talents that were loft in the devotion, the lazinefs, and the difcord, of the church and cloyfter, the more inquifitive and ambitious minds would explore the facred and profane erudition of their native language. The ecclefiaftics prefided over the education of youth; the fchools of philosophy and eloquence were perpetuated till the fall of the empire; and it may be affirmed, that more books and more knowledge were included within the walls of Conftantinople than could be dispersed over the extensive countries of the Weft 83. But an important diffinction has been already noticed : the Greeks were flationary or retrograde, while the Latins were advancing with a rapid and progreffive motion. The nations were excited by the fpirit

Comparison of the Greeks and Latins.

⁸² Philelphus, abfurdly enough, derives xivth centuries, in the learned and judicious this Greek or Oriental jealoufy from the Mosheim (Institut. Hift. Eccles. p. 434manners of ancient Rome. 410. 490-491.).

⁸³ See the flate of learning in the xilith and fpirit of independence and emulation; and even the little world of C H A P. the Italian flates contained more people and industry than the decreafing circle of the Byzantine empire. In Europe, the lower ranks of fociety were relieved from the yoke of feudal fervitude; and freedom is the first step to curiofity and knowledge. The use, however rude and corrupt, of the Latin tongue had been preferved by fuperstition; the universities, from Bologna to Oxford *+, were peopled with thousands of scholars; and their misguided ardour might be directed to more liberal and manly ftudies. In the refurrection of fcience, Italy was the first that cast away her shroud; and the eloquent Petrarch, by his leffons and his example, may juftly be applauded as the first harbinger of day. A purer style of composition, a more generous and rational strain of sentiment, flowed from the fludy and imitation of the writers of ancient Rome; and the difciples of Cicero and Virgil approached, with reverence and love, the fanctuary of their Grecian mafters. In the fack of Conftantinople, the French, and even the Venetians, had defpifed and deftroyed the works of Lysippus and Homer: the monuments of art may be annihilated by a fingle blow; but the immortal mind is renewed and multiplied by the copies of the pen; and fuch copies it was the ambition of Petrarch and his friends to poffefs and understand. The arms of the Turks undoubtedly preffed the flight of the mufes; yet we may tremble at the thought, that Greece might have been overwhelmed, with her fchools and libraries, before Europe had emerged from the deluge of barbarifm; that the feeds of fcience might have been fcattered by the winds, before the Italian foil was prepared for their cultivation.

The most learned Italians of the fifteenth century have confessed and applauded the reftoration of Greek literature, after a long obli-existed in Europe about fifty universities, and had decreased from 30,000 to 6000 scholars of these the foundation of ten or twelve is prior to the year 1300. They were crowded in proportion to their fcarcity. Bologna con- fuperior to the prefent lift of the members of tained 10,000 ftudents, chiefly of the civil Tthe university.

Revival of the Greek learning in Italy.

⁸⁴ At the end of the xvth century, there law. In the year 1357 the number at Oxford (Henry's Hiltory of Great Britain, vol. iv. p. 478.). Yet even this decrease is much

VOL. VI.

3 H

vion

C H A P. vion of many hundred years ⁸⁵. Yet in that country, and beyond the Alps, fome names are quoted; fome profound fcholars, who in the darker ages were honourably diftinguished by their knowledge of the Greek tongue; and national vanity has been loud in the praife of fuch rare examples of erudition. Without fcrutinizing the merit of individuals, truth must observe that their science is without a caufe, and without an effect; that it was eafy for them to fatisfy themfelves and their more ignorant contemporaries; and that the idiom, which they had fo marvelloufly acquired, was transcribed in few manufcripts, and was not taught in any university of the West. In a corner of Italy, it faintly exifted as the popular, or at leaft as the ecclefiaftical, dialect 86. The first impression of the Doric and Ionic colonies has never been completely erazed : the Calabrian churches were long attached to the throne of Conftantinople; and the monks of St. Bahl purfued their fludies in mount Athos and the fchools of the Eaft. Calabria was the native country of Barlaam. who has already appeared as a fectary and an ambaffador; and Barlaam was the first who revived, beyond the Alps, the memory, or at leaft the writings, of Homer 87. He is defcribed, by Petrarch and Boccace ^{ss}, as a man of a diminutive flature, though truly great in the meafure of learning and genius; of a piercing difcernment, though of a flow and painful elocution. For many ages (as they affirm) Greece had not produced his equal in the knowledge of > 85 Of those writers who professedly treat of the refloration of the Greek learning in Italy, the two principal are Hodius, Dr.Humphrey Hody (de Græcis Illustribus, Linguæ Græcæ Literarumque humaniorum Inflauratoribus; Londini, 1742, in large oftavo), and Tirabofchi (Iftoria della Letteratura Italiana, tom.v. p. 364-377. tom. vii. p. 112-143.). The Oxford professor is a laborious scholar, but the librarian of Modena enjoys the fuperiority of a modern and national historian.

16 In Calabria quæ olim magna Græcia dicebatur, coloniis Græcis repleta, remansit cace de Genealog. Deorum, 1. xv. c. 6.

18

quædam linguæ veteris cognitio(Hodius, p.2.). If it were eradicated by the Romans, it was revived and perpetuated by the monks of St. Bafil, who poffeffed feven convents at Roslano alone (Giannone, Istoria di Napoli, tom. i. p. 520.).

87 Ii Barbari (fays Petrarch, the French and Germans) vix, non dicam libros fed nomen Homeri audiverunt. Perhaps, in that refpect, the xilith century was lefs happy than the age of Charlemagne.

88 See the character of Barlaam, in Bochiftory,

418

LXVI.

Leffons of Barlaam, A. D. 1339.

hiftory, grammar, and philosophy; and his merit was celebrated in C H A P. the atteflations of the princes and doctors of Conftantinople. One of these attestations is still extant; and the emperor Cantacuzene, the protector of his adverfaries, is forced to allow that Euclid, Ariftotle, and Plato, were familiar to that profound and fubtle logician ⁸⁹. In the court of Avignon, he formed an intimate connection with Petrarch 9°, the first of the Latin scholars; and the defire of mutual instruction was the principle of their literary commerce. The Tuf- Studies of can applied himfelf with eager curiofity and affiduous diligence to the fludy of the Greek language; and in a laborious flruggle with the dryness and difficulty of the first rudiments, he began to reach the fenfe, and to feel the fpirit, of poets and philosophers, whofe minds were congenial to his own. But he was foon deprived of the fociety and leffons of this ufeful affiftant : Barlaam relinquished his fruitlefs embaffy; and, on his return to Greece, he rafhly provoked the fwarms of fanatic monks, by attempting to fubflitute the light of reason to that of their navel. After a separation of three years, the two friends again met in the court of Naples; but the generous pupil renounced the faireft occasion of improvement; and by his recommendation Barlaam was finally fettled in a fmall bishopric of his native Calabria⁹¹. The manifold avocations of Petrarch, love and friendship, his various correspondence and frequent journies, the Roman laurel, and his elaborate compositions in profe and verfe, in Latin and Italian, diverted him from a foreign idiom; and as he advanced in life, the attainment of the Greek language was the object of his wifhes, rather than of his hopes. When he was about

91 The bishopric to which Barlaam retired, was the old Locri, in the middle ages

Seta Cyriaca, and by corruption Hieracium, 9º For the connection of Petrarch and Bar- Gerace (Differt. Chorographica Italiæ mestill contains 3000 inhabitants (Swinburne, p. 340.).

3 H 2

410

LXVI.

L

Petrarch.

A.D. 1339-1374.

⁸⁹ Cantacuzen. 1. ii. c. 36.

laam, and the two interviews at Avignon in dii Ævi, p. 312.). The dives opum of the 1339, and at Naples in 1342, fee the excel- Norman times foon lapfed into poverty, fince lent Memoires fur la Vie de Petrarque, even the church was poor: yet the town tom. i. p. 405-41c. tom. ii. p. 75-77.

C H A P. fifty years of age, a Byzantine ambaffador, his friend, and a mafter LXVI. of both tongues, prefented him with a copy of Homer; and the anfwer of Petrarch is at once expressive of his eloquence, gratitude, and regret. After celebrating the generofity of the donor, and the value of a gift more precious in his effimation than gold or rubies, he thus proceeds : " Your prefent of the genuine and original text " of the divine poet, the fountain of all invention, is worthy of " yourfelf and of me : you have fulfilled your promife, and fatisfied " my defires. Yet your liberality is ftill imperfect : with Homer " you fhould have given me yourfelf; a guide, who could lead me " into the fields of light, and difclofe to my wondering eyes the " fpecious miracles of the Iliad and Odyffey. But, alas! Homer is " dumb, or I am deaf; nor is it in my power to enjoy the beauty " which I poffers. I have feated him by the fide of Plato, the " prince of poets near the prince of philosophers; and I glory in " the fight of my illustrious guests. Of their immortal writings, " whatever had been translated into the Latin idiom, I had already " acquired; but, if there be no profit, there is fome pleafure, in " beholding thefe venerable Greeks in their proper and national " habit. I am delighted with the afpect of Homer; and as often " as I embrace the filent volume, I exclaim with a figh, illustrious " bard ! with what pleafure fhould I liften to thy fong, if my fenfe " of hearing were not obstructed and lost by the death of one " friend, and in the much-lamented abfence of another. Nor do I " yet defpair; and the example of Cato fuggefts fome comfort and " hope, fince it was in the laft period of age that he attained the " knowledge of the Greek letters "."

> 92 I will transcribe a passage from this genio.... Sine tuâ voce Homerus tuus apud epistle of Petrarch (Famil. ix. 2.): Donasti me mutus, immo vero ego apud illum fur-Homerum non in alienum fermonem violento dus fum. Gaudeo tamen vel adfpectú folo, alveo derivatum, fed ex ipfis Græci eloquii ac fæpe illum amplexus atque fufpirans dico, scatebris, et qualis divino illi profluxit in- O magne vir, &c.

The

The prize which eluded the efforts of Petrarch, was obtained by C H A P. LXVI. the fortune and industry of his friend Boccace 93, the father of the Tuscan profe. That popular writer, who derives his reputation from A. D. 1360, the Decameron, an hundred novels of pleafantry and love, may aspire to the more ferious praise of reftoring in Italy the study of the Greek language: In the year one thousand three hundred and fixty, a disciple of Barlaam, whose name was Leo, or Leontius Pilatus, was detained in his way to Avignon by 'the advice and hospitality of Boccace, who lodged the stranger in his house, prevailed on the republic of Florence to allow him an annual flipend, and devoted his leifure to the first Greek professor, who taught that language in the Western countries of Europe. The appearance of Leo Pilatus, Leo might difguft the most eager disciple; he was clothed in the professor at mantle of a philosopher, or a mendicant; his countenance was hideous; his face was overfhadowed with black hair; his beard long and uncombed; his deportment ruftic; his temper gloomy and inconftant; nor could he grace his difcourfe with the ornaments, or even the perfpicuity, of Latin elocution. But his mind was flored with a treafure of Greek learning: hiftory and fable, philosophy and grammar, were alike at his command; and he read the poems of Homer in the fchools of Florence. It was from his explanation that Boccace composed and transcribed a literal profe version of the Iliad and Odyffey, which fatisfied the thirft of his friend Petrarch, and which perhaps, in the fucceeding century, was clandeftinely ufed by Laurentius Valla, the Latin interpreter. It was from his narratives that the fame Boccace collected the materials for his treatife on the genealogy of the heathen gods, a work, in that age, of flupen-

2

93 For the life and writings of Boccace, merable. Yet he was afhamed to communi-

dous

____ Of Boccace, &c.

first Greek Florence, and in the Weft, A. D. 1360-1363.

who was born in 1313, and died in 1375, cate that triffing, and perhaps fcandalous, Fabricius (Bibliot. Latin. medii Ævi, tom. i. work to Petrarch his respectable friend, in p. 248, &c.) and Tirabofchi (tom.v. p. 83. whole letters and memoirs he confpicuoufly 439-451.) may be confulted. The editions, appears. verfions, imitations of his novels, are innu-

C H A P. dous erudition, and which he oftentatioully fprinkled with Greek LXVI. characters and paffages, to excite the wonder and applaufe of his -----more ignorant readers ⁹⁴. The first steps of learning are flow and laborious; no more than ten votaries of Homer could be enumerated in all Italy; and neither Rome, nor Venice, nor Naples, could add a fingle name to this fludious catalogue. But their numbers would have multiplied, their progrefs would have been accelerated, if the inconftant Leo, at the end of three years, had not relinquifhed an honourable and beneficial flation. In his paffage, Petrarch entertained him at Padua a fhort time; he enjoyed the fcholar, but was justly offended with the gloomy and unfocial temper of the man. Difcontented with the world and with himfelf, Leo depreciated his prefent enjoyments, while abfent perfons and objects were dear to his imagination. In Italy he was a Theffalian, in Greece a native of Calabria; in the company of the Latins he difdained their language, religion, and manner; no fooner was he landed at Conftantinople, than he again fighed for the wealth of Venice and the elegance of Florence. His Italian friends were deaf to his importunity; he depended on their curiofity and indulgence, and embarked on a fecond voyage; but on his entrance into the Adriatic, the fhip was affailed by a tempeft, and the unfortunate teacher, who like Ulyffes had faftened himfelf to the maft, was ftruck dead by a flash of lightning. The humane Petrarch dropt a tear on his difafter; but he was most anxious to learn whether fome copy of Euripides or Sophocles might not be faved from the hands of the mariners 95.

95 Leontius, or Leo Pilatus, is fufficiently made known by Hody (p. 2-11.), and the Abbé de Sade (Vie de Petrarque, tom. iii. p. 625-634. 670-673.), who has very happily caught the lively and dramatic manner of his original.

422

But

⁹⁴ Boccace indulges an honeft vanity: run through thirteen or fourteen editions.) Oftentationis causa Græca carmina adscripfi jure utor meo; meum est hoc decus mea gloria scilicet inter Etruscos Græcis uti carminibus. Nonne ego fui qui Leontium Pilarum, &c. (de Genealogia Deorum, l. xv. c. 7. a work which, though now forgotten, has

But the faint rudiments of Greek learning, which Petrarch had encouraged and Boccace had planted, foon withered and expired. The fucceeding generation was content for a while with the improvement of Latin eloquence: nor was it before the end of the fourteenth century, that a new and perpetual flame was rekindled in Italy⁹⁶. Previous to his own journey, the emperor Manuel difpatched his envoys and orators to implore the compation of the Western princes. Of these envoys, the most conspicuous, or the most learned, was Manuel Chryfoloras", of noble birth, and whofe Roman anceftors are supposed to have migrated with the great Constantine. After visiting the courts of France and England, where he obtained fome contributions and more promifes, the envoy was invited to affume the office of a profeffor; and Florence had again the honour of this fecond invitation. By his knowledge, not only of the Greek, but of the Latin, tongue, Chryfoloras deferved the flipend, and furpaffed the expectation, of the republic : his fchool was frequented by a crowd of difciples of every rank and age; and one of thefe, in a general hiftory, has deferibed his motives and his fuccefs. " At that time," fays Leonard Aretin⁹⁸, " I was a fludent " of the civil law; but my foul was inflamed with the love of " letters; and I beftowed fome application on the fciences of logic " and rhetoric. On the arrival of Manuel, I hefitated whether I " fhould defert my legal fludies, or relinquifh this golden opportu-

⁹⁵ Dr. Hody (p. 54.) is angry with Leonard Aretin, Guarinus, Paulus Jovius, &c. for affining, that the Greek letters were reflored in Italy $fo\beta$ feptingentos annos; as if, fays he, they had flourifhed till the end of the vitth century. Thefe writers most probably reckoned from the last period of the exarchate; and the prefence of the Greek magistrates and troops at Ravenna and Rome, must have preferved, in fome degree, the use of their native tongue.

⁹⁷ See the article of Emanuel, or Manuel Chryfoloras, in Hody (p. 12-54.) and Tirabofchi (tom.vii. p. 113-118.). The precife date of his arrival floats between the years 1390 and 1400, and is only confined by the reign of Boniface IX.

 98 The name of Aretinus has been affumed by five or fix natives of Arezzo in Tufcany, of whom the moft famous and the moft worthlefs lived in the xvith century. Leonardus Brunus Aretinus, the difciple of Chryfoloras, was a linguift, an orator, and an hiftorian, the fecretary of four fucceflive popes, and the chancellor of the republic of Florence, where he died A. D. 1444, at the age of feventy-five (Fabric, Bibliot, medii $\angle v_i$, tom. i. p. 190, &c. Tirabofchi, tom.vii. p. 33-3⁸.).

🥤 nity ;

LXVI. Foundation of the Greek language in Italy Ly Manucl Chryfoloras, A. D.

1390-1415.

C H A P. " nity; and thus, in the ardour of youth, I communed with my " own mind-Wilt thou be wanting to thyfelf and thy fortune? "Wilt thou refuse to be introduced to a familiar converse with " Homer, Plato, and Demofthenes? with those poets, philosophers, " and orators, of whom fuch wonders are related, and who are " celebrated by every age as the great mafters of human fcience? " Of profeffors and fcholars in civil law, a fufficient fupply will al-" ways be found in our universities; but a teacher, and such a " teacher, of the Greek language, if he once be fuffered to escape, " may never afterwards be retrieved. Convinced by thefe reafons, " I gave myfelf to Chryfoloras; and fo ftrong was my paffion, that -" the leffons which I had imbibed in the day were the conftant fub-" ject of my nightly dreams "." At the fame time and place, the Latin claffics were explained by John of Ravenna, the domeftic pupil of Petrarch "": the Italians, who illustrated their age and country, were formed in this double fchool; and Florence became the fruitful feminary of Greek and Roman erudition "". The prefence of the emperor recalled Chryfoloras from the college to the court; but he afterwards taught at Pavia and Rome with equal industry and applaufe. The remainder of his life, about fifteen years, was divided between Italy and Conftantinople, between embaffies and leffons. In the noble office of enlightening a foreign nation, the grammarian was not unmindful of a more facred duty to his prince and country; and Emanuel Chryfoloras died at Conftance on a public miffion from the emperor to the council.

> 99 See the paffage in Aretin. Commentario Rerum suo Tempore in Italia gestarum, apud. Trojano prodeuntibus, quorum emulatione Hodium, p. 28-30.

100 In this domestic difcipline, Petrarch, who loved the youth, often complains of the eager curiofity, reftlefs temper, and proud feelings, which announce the genius and glory of a riper age (Memoires fur Petrarque, tom.iii. p. 700-709.).

¹⁰¹ Hinc Græcæ Latinæque fcholæ exortæ funt, Guarino Philelpho, Leonardo Aretino, Caroloque, ac plerisque aliis tanquam ex equo multa ingenia deinceps at laudem excitata funt (Platina in Bonifacio IX.). Another Italian writer adds the names of Paulus Petrus Vergerius, Omnibonus Vincentius, Poggius, Franciscus Barbarus, &c. But I question whether a rigid chronology would allow Chryfoloras all these eminent scholars (Hodius, p. 25-27, &c.).

After

After his example, the reftoration of the Greek letters in Italy C H A P. was profecuted by a feries of emigrants, who were deflitute of fortune, and endowed with learning, or at leaft with language. in Italy, From the terror or oppreffion of the Turkish arms, the natives of Theflalonica and Conftantinople efcaped to a land of freedom, curiofity, and wealth. The fynod introduced into Florence the lights of the Greek church and the oracles of the Platonic philosophy: and the fugitives who adhered to the union, had the double merit of renouncing their country, not only for the Christian, but for the Catholic, caufe. A patriot, who facrifices his party and confeience to the allurements of favour, may be poffeffed however of the private and focial virtues : he no longer hears the reproachful epithets of flave and apoftate; and the confideration which he acquires among his new affociates, will reftore in his own eyes the dignity of his character. The prudent conformity of Beffarion was rewarded with Cardinal Befk the Roman purple : he fixed his refidence in Italy ; and the Greek cardinal, the titular patriarch of Conftantinople, was respected as the chief and protector of his nation "": his abilities were exercifed in the legations of Bologna, Venice, Germany, and France; and his election to the chair of St. Peter floated for a moment on the uncertain breath of a conclave "3. His ecclefiaftical honours diffused a fplendour and pre-eminence over his literary merit and fervice: his palace was a fchool; as often as the cardinal vifited the Vatican, he was attended by a learned train of both nations 104; of men applauded by themfelves and the public; and whofe writings, now overfpread with duft, were popular and ufeful in their own times, 10'3 The cardinals knocked at his door, but his conclavift refufed to interrupt the fludies of

VOL. VI.

3 I

Beffarion ; " Nichelas," faid he, " thy refpect " has coft thee an hat, and me the tiara."

104 Such as George of Trebizond, Theodore Gaza, Argyropulus Andronicus of Theffalonica, Phi'elphus, Poggius, Blondus, Nicholas Perrot, Valla, Campanus, Platina, &c. Viri (fays Hody, with the pious zeal of a scholar) nullo zwo perituri (p. 156.).

I fhall

i

LXVI. The Greeks A. D. 1400-1500-farion, &c.

425

¹⁰² See in Hody the article of Beffarion (p. 136-177.): Theodore Gaza, George of Trebizond, and the reft of the Greeks whom I have named or omitted, are inferted in their proper chapters of his learned work. See likewife Tirabofchi, in the 1st and 2d parts of the vith tome.

Their faults and merits.

LXVI.

C H A P. I shall not attempt to enumerate the reftorers of Greciau literature in the fifteenth century: and it may be fufficient to mention with gratitude the names of Theodore Gaza, of George of Trebizond, of John Argyropulus, and Demetrius Chalcocondyles, who taught their native language in the fchools of Florence and Rome. Their labours were not inferior to those of Beffarion, whose purple they revered, and whole fortune was the fecret object of their envy. But the lives of these grammarians was humble and obscure: they had declined the lucrative paths of the church ; their drefs and manners fecluded them from the commerce of the world; and fince they were confined to the merit, they might be content with the rewards, of learning. From this character, Janus Lascaris "s will deferve an exception. His eloquence, politeness, and Imperial descent, recommended him to the French monarchs; and in the fame cities he was alternately employed to teach and to negociate. Duty and intereft prompted them to cultivate the fludy of the Latin language; and the most fuccessful attained the faculty of writing and speaking with fluency and elegance in a foreign idiom. But they ever retained the inveterate vanity of their country : their praife, or at leaff their effeem, was referved for the national writers, to whom they owed their fame and fubfistence; and they fometimes betrayed their contempt in licentious criticism or fatire on Virgil's poetry and the oratory of Tully "". The fuperiority of thefe mafters arole from. the familiar use of a living language; and their first difciples were.

> 105 He was born before the taking of Confantinople, but his honourable life was ftretched far into the xvith century (A. D. 1535). . Leo X. and Francis I. were his nobleft patrons, under whole aufpices he founded the Greek colleges of Rome and Paris (Hody, p. 247-275.). He left posterity in France; but the counts de Vintimille, and their numerous branches, derive the name of Lascaris, from a doubtful marriage in the xilith century with the daughter of a Greek emperor (Ducange, Fam. Byzant. p. 224-230.).

106 Two of his epigrams against Virgil,. and three against Tully, are preferved and refuted by Francifcus Floridus, who can find no better names than Græculus ineptus et impudens (Hody, p. 274.). In our own times, an English critic has accused the Æneid of containing, multa languida, nugatoria, fpiritù et majestate carminis heroici defecta ; many fuch verfes as he, the faid Jeremiah . Markland, would have been ashamed of owning (præfat. ad Statii Sylvas, p. 21, 22.).

incapable

incapable of difcerning how far they had degenerated from the C H A P. knowledge, and even the practice, of their anceftors. A vicious pronunciation "", which they introduced, was banifhed from the fchools by the reafon of the fucceeding age. Of the power of the Greek accents they were ignorant: and those mufical notes, which, from an Attic tongue, and to an Attic ear, must have been the fecret foul of harmony, were to their eyes, as to our own, no more than mute and unmeaning marks; in profe fuperfluous, and troublefome in verfe. The art of grammar they truly poffeffed : the valuable fragments of Apollonius and Herodian were transfused into their leffons; and their treatifes of fyntax and etymology, though devoid of philosophic spirit, are still useful to the Greek student. In the shipwreck of the Byzantine libraries, each fugitive feized a fragment of treafure, a copy of fome author, who, without his industry, might have perifhed : the transcripts were multiplied by an affiduous, and fometimes an elegant, pen; and the text was corrected and explained by their own comments, or those of the elder scholiasts. The sense, though not the fpirit, of the Greek claffics, was interpreted to the Latin world: the beauties of ftyle evaporate in a verfion; but the judgment of Theodore Gaza felected the more folid works of Ariftotle and Theophraftus, and their natural hiftories of animals and plants opened a rich fund of genuine and experimental fcience.

Yet the fleeting shadows of metaphysics were purfued with more The Platonic curiofity and ardour. After a long oblivion, Plato was revived in philosophy.

3 I 2

Italy

- -

leagues, are accused of ignorance, envy, or scholars, particularly Erasmus, who asserted avarice (Sylloge, &c. tom. ii. p. 235.). The a more claffical pronunciation, are collected modern Greek pronounce the 3 as a V con- in the Sylloge of Havercamp (2 vols, in fonant, and confound three vowels $(\eta + v)$, and feveral diphthongs. Such was the vulgar pronunciation which the ftern Gardiner maintained by penal flatutes in the univerfity of Cambridge: but the monofyllable Br reprefented to an Attic ear the bleating of fheep; pronunciation of the 0, th, is approved by and a bell-wether is better evidence than a Erasinus (tom. ii. p. 130.).

107 Emanuel Chryfoloras, and his col- bishop or a chancellor. The treatifes of those octavo, Lugd. Bat. 1736, 1740): but it is difficult to paint founds by words; and in their reference to modern use, they can be underftood only by their respective countrymen. We may observe, that our peculiar

4.27

LXVI.

~~~

LXVI. _____

428

C H A P. Italy by a venerable Greek<sup>108</sup>, who taught in the houfe of Colmo of.Medicis. While the fynod of Florence was involved in theological debate, fome beneficial confequences might flow from the fludy of his elegant philosophy; his ftyle is the pureft flandard of the Attic dialect ; and his fublime thoughts are fometimes adapted to familiar converfation, and fometimes adorned with the richeft colours of poetry and eloquence. The dialogues of Plato are a dramatic picture of the life and death of a fage; and, as often as he defcends from the clouds, his moral fyftem inculcates the love of truth, of our country, and of mankind. The precept and example of Socrates recommended a modeft doubt and liberal enquiry : and if the Platonifts, with blind devotion, adored the visions and errors of theis divine master, their enthusiasm might correct the dry, dogmatic method of the Peripatetic school. So equal, yet fo opposite, are the merits of Plato and Aristotle, that they may be balanced in endless controverfy; but fome fpark of freedom may be produced by the collifion of adverse fervitude. The modern Greeks were divided between the two fects: with more fury than fkill they fought under the banner of their leaders; and the field of battle was removed in their flight from Conftantinople to Rome. But this philosophical debate foon degenerated into an angry and perfonal quarrel of grammarians: and Beffarion, though an advocate for Plato, protected the national honour, by interpoling the advice and authority of a mediator. In the gardens of the Medici, the academical doctrine was enjoyed by the polite and learned: but their philosophic fociety was quickly diffolved; and if the writings of the Attic fage were perused in the closet, the more powerful Stagyrite continued to reign, the oracle of the church and fchool 109.

> 108 George Gemistus Pletho, a various in Fabricius (Bibliot. Grac. tom. x. p. 739 and voluminous writer, the master of Bestarion, and all the Platonifts of the times. He vifited Italy in his old age, and foon returned in Italy, is illustrated by Boivin (Mem. de to end his days in Peloponnefus. See the -756.).

109 The flate of the Platonic philosophy l'Acad. des Infcriptions, tom.ii. p.715-729.) curious Diatribe of Leo Allatius de Georgiis, and Tirabofchi (tora.vi. P. i p. 259-288.). I have

I have fairly reprefented the literary merits of the Greeks; yet C H A P. it must be confessed, that they were feconded and furpassed by the ardour of the Latins. Italy was divided into many independent and progrefs flates; and at that time, it was the ambition of princes and republies to vie with each other in the encouragement and reward of literature. The fame of Nicholas the fifth" has not been adequate Nicholas V. to his merits. From a plebeian origin, he raifed himfelf by his virtue 1447-1455. and learning : the character of the man prevailed over the intereft of the pope; and he fharpened those weapons which were foon pointed against the Roman church ". He had been the friend of the most eminent fcholars of the age: he became their patron; and fuch was • the humility of his manners, that the change was fearcely difernible either to them or to himfelf. If he prefied the acceptance of a liberal gift, it was not as the meafure of defert, but as the proof of benevolence; and when modeft merit declined his bounty, " accept " it," would he fay with a confcioufnefs of his own worth; " you " will not always have a Nicholas among ye." The influence of the holy fee pervaded Christendom; and he exerted that influence in the fearch, not of benefices, but of books. From the ruins of the Byzantine libraries, from the darkeft monafteries of Germany and Britain, he collected the dufty manufcripts of the writers of antiquity; and wherever the original could not be removed, a faithful copy was transcribed and transmitted for his use. The Vatican, the old repository for bulls and legends, for superstition and forgery, was daily replenished with more precious furniture; and fuch was the industry of Nicholas, that in a reign of eight years, he formed

"" See the life of Nicholas V. by two contemporary authors, Janottus Manettus (tom. iii. P. ii. p. 905-962.) and Vefpafian of Florence (tom. xxv. p. 267-290.), in the collection of Muratori; and confult Tirabolchi (10m. vi. P. i. 46-52. 109.) and Hody in the articles of Theodore Gaza, George of Trebizond, &c.

111 Lord Bolingbroke observes, with truth and spirit, that the popes in this instance were worfe politicians than the muftis, and that the charm which has bound mankind for fo many ages, was broken by the magicians themfelves (Letters on the Study of Hiftory, l. vi. p. 165, 166. octavo edition, 1779).

a library

LXVI. ____ Emulation of the Latins.

Cofmo and Lorenzo of Medicis, A. D. 1428-1492.

C H A P. a library of five thousand volumes. To his munificence, the Latin world was indebted for the verfions of Xenophon, Diodorus, Polybius, Thucydides, Herodotus, and Appian; of Strabo's geography, of the Iliad, of the most valuable works of Plato and Aristotle, of Ptolemy and Theophrastus, and of the fathers of the Greek church. The example of the Roman pontiff was preceded or imitated by a Florentine merchant, who governed the republic without arms and without a title. Cofmo of Medicis" was the father of a line of princes, whofe name and age are almost fynonymous with the reftoration of learning : his credit was ennobled into fame ; his riches were dedicated to the fervice of mankind; he corresponded at once with Cairo and London: and a cargo of Indian fpices and Greek books was often imported in the fame veffel. The genius and education of his grandfon Lorenzo rendered him, not only a patron, but a judge and candidate, in the literary race. In his palace, diffrefs was entitled to relief, and merit to reward : his leifure hours were delightfully fpent in the Platonic academy: he encouraged the emulation of Demetrius Chalcocondyles and Angelo Politian; and his active miffionary Janus Lafcaris returned from the East with a treasure of two hundred manufcripts, fourfcore of which were as yet unknown in the libraries of Europe<sup>113</sup>. The reft of Italy was animated by a fimilar fpirit, and the progrefs of the nation repaid the liberality of her princes. The Latins held the exclusive property of their own literature : and thefe difciples of Greece were foon capable of transmitting and improving the leffons which they had imbibed. After a fhort fucceffion of fo-

> 112 See the literary history of Cosmo and Lorenzo of Medicis, in Tirabofchi (tom. vi. P. i. 1. i. c. 2.), who beflows a due measure of praise on Alphonfo of Arragon, king of Naples, the dukes of Milan, Ferrara, Urbino, &c. The republic of Venice has deferved the ille Medices in Graciam ad inquirendos fimul, leaft from the gratitude of fcholars.

113 Tirabofchi (tom. vi. P. i. p. 10.1.), from the preface of Janus Lafcaris to the Greek Anthology, printed at Florence 1494. Latebant (fays Aldus in his preface to the Greek Orators, apud Hodium, p. 249.) in Atho Thraciæ monte. Eas Lafcaris .... in Italiam reportavit. Miferat enim ipfum Laurentius et quantovis emendos pretio bonos libros. It is remarkable enough, that the refearch was facilitated by fultan Bajazet II.

reign

LXVI.

reign teachers, the tide of emigration fubfided ; but the language of C H A P. Conftantinople was foread beyond the Alps; and the natives of France, Germany, and England", imparted to their country the facred fire which they had kindled in the fchools of Florence and Rome". In the productions of the mind, as in those of the foil. the gifts of nature are excelled by induftry and fkill: the Greek authors, forgotten on the banks of the Iliffus, have been illustrated on those of the Elbe and the Thames: and Beffarion or Gaza might have envied the fuperior fcience of the Barbarians; the accuracy of Budæus, the tafte of Erafmus, the copicufnefs of Stephens, the erudition of Scaliger, the difcernment of Reifke, or of Bentley. On the fide of the Latins, the difcovery of printing was a cafual advantage : but this ufeful art has been applied by Aldus, and his innumerable fucceffors, to perpetuate and multiply the works of antiquity 116. A fingle manufcript imported from Greece is revived in ten thousand copies; and each copy is fairer than the original. In this form, Homer and Plato would perufe with more fatisfaction their own writings : and their fcholiafts must refign the prize to the labours of our western editors.

Before the revival of claffic literature, the Barbarians in Europe Ufe and were immerfed in ignorance; and their vulgar tongues were marked' cient learnabuse of aning.

114 The Greek language was introduced into the university of Oxford in the last years of the xuth century, by Grocyn, Linacer, and Latimer, who had all fludied at Florence under Demetrius Chalcocondyles. See Dr. Knight's curious Life of Erasmus. Although a ftout academical patriot, he is forced to acknowledge, that Erafmus learned Greek at Oxford, and taught it at Cambridge.

"'s The jealous Italians were defirous of keeping a monopoly of Greek learning. When Aldus was about to publish the Greek scholiasts on Sophocles and Euripides, Cave (faid they), cave hoc facias, ne Barbari iftis adjuti domi maneant, et pauciores in Italiam ventitent (Dr. Knight, in his Life of Erafmus, p. 365. from Beatus Rhenanus).

116 The prefs of Aldus Manutus, a Roman, was established at Venice about the year 1494: he printed above fixty confiderable works of Greek literature, almost all for the first time; feveral containing different treatifes and authors, and of feveral authors two, three, or four editions (Fabric. Bibliot. Græc. tom. xiii. p. 605, &c.). Yet his glory muft not tempt us to forget, that the first Greek book, the Grammar of Constantine Lafcaris, was printed at Milan in 1476: and that the Florence Homer of 1488 difplays all the luxury of the typographical art. See the Annales Typographici of Mattaire, and the Bibliographie Instructive of de Burc, a knowing bookfeller of Paris.

LXVI.

with

LXVI.

C H A P. with the rudeness and poverty of their manners. The fludents of the more perfect idioms of Rome and Greece, were introduced to a new world of light and fcience; to the fociety of the free and polifhed nations of antiquity; and to a familiar converse with those immortal men who fpoke the fublime language of eloquence and reafon. Such an intercourfe must tend to refine the taste, and to elevate the genius, of the moderns: and yet, from the first experiment, it might appear that the fludy of the ancients had given fetters, rather than wings, to the human mind. However laudable, the fpirit of imitation is of a fervile caft; and the first disciples of the Greeks and Romans were a colony of ftrangers in the midft of their age and country. The minute and laborious diligence which explored the antiquities of remote times, might have improved or adorned the prefent flate of fociety: the critic and metaphyfician were the flaves of Ariftotle; the poets, hiftorians, and orators, were proud to repeat the thoughts and words of the Augustan age; the works of nature were observed with the eyes of Pliny and Theophraftus; and fome Pagan votaries professed a fecret devotion to the gods of Homer and Plato "7. The Italians were oppreffed by the ftrength and number of their ancient auxiliaries: the century after the deaths of Petrarch and Boccace was filled with a crowd of Latin imitators, who decently repole on our shelves; but in that æra of learning, it will not be eafy to difcern a real difcovery of fcience, a work of invention or eloquence, in the popular language of the country "".

> this claffic enthusiafm. 1. At the fynod of Florence, Gemistus Pletho faid, in familiar conversation to George of Trebizond, that in a fhort time mankind would unanimoufly renounce the Gofpel and the Koran for a religion fimilar to that of the Gentiles (Leo Allatius, apud Fabricium, tom. x. p. 751.). 2. Paul II. perfecuted the Roman academy, which had been founded by Pomponius Lætus; and the principal members were accufed of herefy, impiety, and taganifm (Tirabofchi, tom. vi. P. i. p. 81,82.). 3. In the next century, (Tirabofchi, tom. vi. P. ii. p. 174-177.).

<sup>117</sup> I will felect three fingular examples of fome fcholars and poets in France celebrated the fuccefs of Jodelle's tragedy of Cleopatra, by a festival of Bacchus, and as it is faid, by the facrifice of a goat (B yle, Dictionaire, JODELLE. Fontenelle, tom. iii. p. 56-61.). Yet the fpirit of bigotry might often difcern a ferious impiety in the fportive play of fancy and learning.

118 The furvivor Boccace died in the year 1375; and we cannot place before 1480, the composition of the Morgante Maggiore of Polci, and the Orlando Inamorato of Boyardo

But

But as foon as it had been deeply faturated with the celeftial dew, C H A P. the foil was quickened into vegetation and life; the modern idioms were refined: the claffics of Athens and Rome infpired a pure tafte and a generous emulation; and in Italy, as afterwards in France and England, the pleafing reign of poetry and fiction was fucceeded by the light of fpeculative and experimental philofophy. Genius may anticipate the feafon of maturity; but in the education of a people, as in that of an individual, memory muft be exercised, before the powers of reafon and fancy can be expanded; nor may the artiff hope to equal or furpafs, till he has learned to imitate, the works of his predeceffors.

VOL. VI.

3 K

CHAP. LXVII.

Schifm of the Greeks and Latins.-Reign and Character of Amurath the Second .- Crusade of Ladislaus King of Hungary.-His Defeat and Death.-John Huniades.-Scanderbeg.-Constantine Palæologus last Emperor of the East.

CHAP. LXVII. ____ Comparison of Rome and Constantinople.

HE respective merits of Rome and Constantinople are compared and celebrated by an eloquent Greek the father of the Italian fchools'. The view of the ancient capital, the feat of his anceftors, furpaffed the most fanguine expectations of Emanuel Chryfoloras; and he no longer blamed the exclamation of an old fophift, that Rome was the habitation, not of men, but of gods. Those gods, and those men, had long fince vanished; but, to the eye of liberal enthuliafm, the majefty of ruin reftored the image of her ancient prosperity. The monuments of the confuls and Cæfars, of the martyrs and apoftles, engaged on all fides the curiofity of the philofopher and the Chriftian; and he confeffed, that in every age the arms and the religion of Rome were deftined to reign over the earth. While Chryfoloras admired the venerable beauties of the mother, he was not forgetful of his native, country, her faireft daughter, her Imperial colony; and the Byzantine patriot expatiates the emperor John Palaologus, will not offend the date of Chryfoloras's death. A ftill the eye or ear of a claffical fludent (ad calcem earlier date, at least 1408, is deduced from Codini de Antiquitatibus C. P. p. 107- the age of his youngest fons, Demetrius and 126.). The fuperfcription fuggefts a chronolo- Thomas, who were both Porphyrogeniti (Dugical remark, that John Palzologus II. was cange, Fam. Byzant. p. 244. 247.).

* The epiftle of Manuel Chryfoloras to affociated in the empire before the year 1414,

with

with zeal and truth, on the eternal advantages of nature, and the C H A P. more transitory glories of art and dominion, which adorned, or had adorned, the city of Conftantine. Yet the perfection of the copy still redounds (as he modestly observes) to the honour of the original, and parents are delighted to be renewed, and even excelled, by the fuperior merit of their children. " Conftantinople," fays the orator, " is fituate on a commanding point, between Europe and " Afia, between the Archipelago and the Euxine. By her interpo-" fition, the two feas, and the two continents, are united for the " common benefit of nations; and the gates of commerce may be " fhut or opened at her command. The harbour, encompaffed on " all fides by the fea and the continent, is the most fecure and capa-" cious in the world. The walls and gates of Conftantinople may, " be compared with those of Babylon : the towers are many; each " tower is a folid and lofty ftructure; and the fecond wall, the " outer fortification, would be fufficient for the defence and dignity. " of an ordinary capital. A broad and rapid ftream may be intro-" duced into the ditches; and the artificial ifland may be encom-" paffed, like Athens', by land or water." Two ftrong and natural caufes are alleged for the perfection of the model of new Rome. The royal founder reigned over the most illustrious nations of the. globe; and in the accomplishment of his defigns, the power of the, Romans was combined with the art and fcience of the Greeks. Other cities have been reared to maturity by accident and time; their beauties are mingled with diforder and deformity; and the inhabitants, unwilling to remove from their natal fpot, are incapable of correcting the errors of their anceftors, and the original vices of fituation or climate. But the free idea of Conftantinople was formed and executed by a fingle mind; and the primitive

3K 2

model

435

* Somebody observed, that the city of rical sense of Constantinople, cannot be ap-Athens might be circumnavigated (16 1970) plied to the fituation of Athens, five miles The moder two Admason dorac Sas was mapambers was from the fea, and not interfected or furroundπεριπλεκ). But what may be true in a rheto- ed by any navigable fireams.

C H A P. model was improved by the obedient zeal of the fubjects and fucceffors of the first monarch. The adjacent isfes were stored with an inexhaustible supply of marble; but the various materials were transported from the most remote shores of Europe and Asia; and the public and private buildings, the palaces, churches, aqueducts, cifterns, porticoes, columns, baths, and hippodromes, were adapted to the greatness of the capital of the East. The superfluity of wealth was forcad along the fhores of Europe and Afia; and the Byzantine territory, as far as the Euxine, the Hellespont, and the long wall, might be confidered as a populous fuburb and a perpetual garden. In this flattering picture, the past and the prefent, the times of profperity and decay, are artfully confounded; but a figh and a confession escape from the orator, that his wretched country was the fhadow and fepulchre of its former felf. The works of ancient fculpture had been defaced by Chriftian zeal or Barbaric violence; the faireft ftructures were demolifhed; and the marbles of Paros or Numidia were burnt for lime, or applied to the meaneft ufes. Of many a flatue, the place was marked by an empty pedeftal; of many a column, the fize was determined by a broken capital; the tombs of the emperors were feattered on the ground; the ftroke of time was accelerated by ftorms and earthquakes; and the vacant space was adorned, by vulgar tradition, with fabulous monuments of gold and filver. From thefe wonders, which lived only in memory or belief, he diffinguishes however the porphyry pillar, the column and coloffus of Juftinian<sup>3</sup>, and the church, more especially the dome, of St. Sophia; the best conclusion, fince it could not be defcribed according to its merits, and after it no other object could deferve to be mentioned. But he forgets, that a century before, the trembling fabrics of the coloffus and the church C H A P. had been faved and supported by the timely care of Andronicus the elder. Thirty years after the emperor had fortified St. Sophia with two new buttrelles or pyramids, the eaftern hemifphere fuddenly gave way; and the images, the altars, and the fanctuary, were crushed by the falling ruin. The mischief indeed was speedily repaired; the rubbifh was cleared by the inceffant labour of every rank and age; and the poor remains of riches and industry were confecrated by the Greeks to the most stately and venerable temple of the Eaft<sup>4</sup>.

> <sup>3</sup> Nicephorus Gregoras has described the nian was still visible to Peter Gyllius, not on coloffus of Justinian (1. vii. 12.): but his the column, but in the outward court of the measures are falle and inconfistent. The feraglio; and he was at Constantinople when editor Boivin confulted his friend Girardon; it was melted down, and cast into a brass and the fculptor gave him the true propor- cannon (de Topograph. C. P. 1. ii. c. 17.). tions of an equefirian flatue. That of Jufti-

century

The laft hope of the falling city and empire was placed in the The Greek harmony of the mother and daughter, in the maternal tendernels the council of Rome, and the filial obedience of Constantinople. In the fynod of Florence, the Greeks and Latins had embraced, and fubfcribed, 1440-1448. and promifed; but these figns of friendship were persidious or fruitless'; and the baseless fabric of the union vanished like a dream<sup>5</sup>. The emperor and his prelates returned home in the Venetian gallies; but as they touched at the Morea and the ifles of Corfu and Lefbos, the fubjects of the Latins complained that the pretended union would be an inftrument of oppreffion. No fooner did they land on the Byzantine shore than they were faluted, or rather affailed, with a general murmur of zeal and difcontent. During their absence, above two years, the capital had been deprived of its civil and ecclefiaftical rulers : fanaticifin fermented in

* See the deczy and repairs of St. Sophia, in Nicephorus Gregoras (1. vii. 12. 1. xv. 2.). The building was propped by Andronicus in 1317, the eastern hemisphere sell in 1345. The Greeks, in their pompous rhetoric, exalt the beauty and holinefs of the church, an earthly heaven, the abode of angels, and of God himfelf, &c.

Syropulus (p. 312-351.) opens the schifm from the first office of the Greeks at Ve- as Rome and religion are concerned. nice, to the general opposition at Con-ftantinople of the clergy and people.

6 On the schifm of Constantinople, see Phranza (l. ii. c. 17.), Laonicus Chalcondyles (l. vi. p. 155, 156.), and Ducas (c. 31.); the laft of whom writes with truth and freedom. Among the moderns we may diffinguish the continuator of Fleury (tom. xxii. p. 338, &c. 401. 420, &c.), and Spondanus <sup>5</sup> The genuine and original narrative of (A. D. 1440-30.). The fense of the latter is drowned in prejudice and paffion, as foon anarchy;

fchifm after of Florence, A. D.

C H A P. anarchy; the most furious monks reigned over the confcience of LXVII. women and bigots; and the hatred of the Latin name was the first principle of nature and religion. Before his departure for Italy, the emperor had flattered the city with the affurance of a prompt relief and a powerful fuccour; and the clergy, confident in their orthodoxy and fcience, had promifed themfelves and their flocks an eafy victory over the blind shepherds of the West. The double difappointment exafperated the Greeks; the confcience of the fubfcribing prelates was awakened; the hour of temptation was paft; and they had more to dread from the public refentment, than they could hopefrom the favour of the emperor or the pope. Inftead of juftifying their conduct, they deplored their weaknefs, profeffed their contrition, and caft themfelves on the mercy of God and of their brethren. To the reproachful queftion, what had been the event or the use of their Italian fynod? they answered with fighs and tears, " Alas! we have made a new faith ; we have exchanged piety for " impiety ; we have betrayed the immaculate facrifice ; and we are " become Azymites." (The Azymites were those who celebrated the communion with unleavened bread; and I must retract or qualify the praife which I have beftowed on the growing philosophy of the times.) " Alas ! we have been feduced by diftrefs, by fraud, and " by the hopes and fears of a transitory life. The hand that has-" figned the union fhould be cut off; and the tongue that has pro-" nounced the Latin creed deferves to be torn from the root." The best proof of their repentance was an encrease of zeal for the most trivial rites and the most incomprehensible doctrines; and an abfolute feparation from all, without excepting their prince, who preferved fome regard for honour and confiftency. After the deceafe of the patriarch Joseph, the archbishops of Heraclea and Trebizond had courage to refufe the vacant office ; and cardinal Beffarion preferred the warm and comfortable shelter of the Vatican. The choice of the emperor and his clergy was confined to Metrophanes phanes of Cyzicus: he was confecrated in St. Sophia, but the CHAP. temple was vacant. The crofs-bearers abdicated their fervice; the infection fpread from the city to the villages; and Metrophanes difcharged, without effect, fome ecclefiaftical thunders against a nation of schifmatics. The eyes of the Greeks were directed to Mark of Ephefus, the champion of his country; and the fufferings of the holy confessor were repaid with a tribute of admiration and applaufe. His example and writings propagated the flame of religious difcord ; age and infirmity foon removed him from the world; but the gofpel of Mark was not a law of forgiveness; and he requested with his dying breath, that none of the adherents of Rome might attend his obfequies or pray for his foul.

438

The fchifm was not confined to the narrow limits of the Byzan- Zeal of the tine empire. Secure under the Mamaluke fceptre, the three pa- and Ruffians. triarchs of Alexandria, Antioch, and Jerufalem, affembled a numerous fynod; difowned their reprefentatives at Ferrara and Florence; condemned the creed and council of the Latins; and threatened the emperor of Conftantinople with the cenfures of the Eaftern church. Of the fectaries of the Greek communion, the Ruffians were the most powerful, ignorant, and superstitious. Their primate, the cardinal Ifidore, haftened from Florence to Moscow', to reduce the independent nation under the Roman yoke. But the Ruffian bifhops had been educated at mount Athos; and the prince and people embraced the theology of their priefts. They were fcandalifed by the title, the pomp, the Latin crofs of the legate, the friend of those impious men who fhaved their beards, and performed the divine office with gloves on their hands and rings on their fingers : Ifidore was condemned by a fynod; his perfon was imprifoned in a mo-

p. 127.). On the other hand, the Russians Arfenii). transferred their spiritual obedience to the 7 Ifidore was metropolitan of Kiow, but archbishop, who became, in 1583, the pathe Greeks subject to Poland have removed triarch, of Moscow (Levesque, Hist. de Rut-that see from the ruins of Kiow to Lemberg, fie, tom. iii. p. 188. 190. from a Greek or Leopold (Herbestein, in Ramusio, tom. ii. MS. at Turin, Iter et labores Archiepiscopi naftery;

Orientals

LXVII. ~~

LXVII. ------

C H A P. naftery; and it was with extreme difficulty, that the cardinal could efcape from the hands of a fierce and fanatic people<sup>3</sup>. The Ruffians refused a passage to the missionaries of Rome who aspired to convert the Pagans beyond the Tanais'; and their refusal was justified by the maxim, that the guilt of idolatry is lefs damnable than that of fchifm. The errors of the Bohemians were excufed by their abhorrence for the pope; and a deputation of the Greek clergy folicited the friendship of those fanguinary enthuliasts". While Eugenius triumphed in the union and orthodoxy of the Greeks, his party was contracted to the walls, or rather to the palace, of Conftantinople. The zeal of Palæologus had been excited by intereft; it was foon cooled by opposition : an attempt to violate the national belief might endanger his life and crown; nor could the pious rebels be deftitute of foreign and domestic aid. The fword of his brother Demetrius, who in Italy had maintained a prudent and popular filence, was half unsheathed in the cause of religion; and Amuratha the Turkish fultan, was displeased and alarmed by the seeming friendship of the Greeks and Latins.

Reign and character of Amurath II. A. D. 1421-1451, February 9.

" Sultan Murad or Amurath, lived forty-nine, and reigned thirty " years, fix months, and eight days. He was a just and valiant " prince, of a great foul, patient of labours, learned, merciful, reli-" gious, charitable; a lover and encourager of the fludious, and of

* The curious narrative of Levelque (Hift. de Ruffie, tom. ii. p. 242-247.) is extracted from the patriarchal archives. The fcenes of Ferrara and Florence are defcribed by ignorance and paffion; but the Ruffians are credible in the account of their own prejudices.

9 The Shamanifm, the ancient religion of the Samanaans and Gymnofophifts, has been driven by the more popular Bramins from India'into the northern deferts; the naked philosophers were compelled to wrap themfelves in fur; but they infenfibly funk into wizards and phylicians. The Mordvaus and Tcheremiffes in the European Ruffia adhere to this religion, which is formed on the earthly model of one king or God, his ministers or angels, and the rebellious fpirits who oppole his government. As these tribes of the Volga have no images, they might more jufily retort on the Latin missionaries the name of idolaters (Levesque, Hift. des Peuples foumis à la Domination des Ruffes, tom. i. p. 194-237. 423-460.).

10 Spondauus, Annal. Ecclef. tom. ii. A. D. 1451, Nº 13. The Epifile of the Greeks, with a Latin version, is extant in the college library at Prague.

" all

" all who excelled in any art or fcience; a good emperor, and a C H A P. LXVII. " great general. No man obtained more or greater victories than " Amurath: Belgrade alone withftood his attacks. Under his reign, " the foldier was ever victorious, the citizen rich and fecure. If he " fubdued any country, his first care was to build moschs and ca-" ravanferas, hofpitals, and colleges. Every year he gave a thou-" fand pieces of gold to the fons of the prophet; and fent two thou-" fand five hundred to the religious perfons of Mecca, Medina, and " Jerufalem "." This portrait is transcribed from the historian of the Othman empire : but the applause of a fervile and superstitious people has been lavilhed on the worft of tyrants; and the virtues of a fultan are often the vices most useful to himself, or most agreeable to his fubjects. A nation ignorant of the equal benefits of liberty and law, must be awed by the flashes of arbitrary power : the cruelty of a defpot will affume the character of juffice; his profusion, of liberality; his obstinacy, of firmness. If the most reasonable excufe be rejected, few acts of obedience will be found impoffible; and guilt must tremble, where innocence cannot always be fecure. The tranquillity of the people, and the difcipline of the troops, were best maintained by perpetual action in the field; war was the trade of the Janizaries : and those who furvived the peril, and divided the fpoil, applauded the generous ambition of their fovereign. To propagate the true religion, was the duty of a faithful Mufulman : the unbelievers were bis enemies, and those of the prophet; and, in the hands of the Turks, the fcymetar was the only inftrument of converfion. Under these circumstances, however, the justice and moderation of Amurath are attefted by his conduct, and acknowledged by the Chriftians themfelves; who confider a profperous reign and a peaceful death as the reward of his fingular merits. In the vigour of his age and military power, he feldom engaged in war till he

" See Cantemir, Hiftory of the Othman pular name, to that obscure diligence which Empire, p. 94. Murad, or Morad, may be is rarely fuccefsful in translating an Oriental, more correct: but I have preferred the po- into the Roman, alphabet.

VOL. VI.

was

LXVII.

C H A P. was juffified by a previous and adequate provocation : the victorious fultan was difarmed by fubmiffion ; and in the obfervance of treaties, his word was inviolate and facred "2. The Hungarians were commonly the aggreffors; he was provoked by the revolt of Scanderbeg; and the perfidious Caramanian was twice vanquished, and twice pardoned, by the Ottoman monarch. Before he invaded the Morea, Thebes had been furprifed by the defpot : in the conqueft of Theffalonica, the grandfon of Bajazet might difpute the recent purchase of the Venetians; and after the first fiege of Constantinople, the fultan was never tempted, by the diffrefs, the absence, or the injuries of Palæologus, to extinguish the dying light of the Byzantine empire.

His double abdication, A. D. 1442-1444.

But the most striking feature in the life and character of Amurath, is the double abdication of the Turkish throne; and, were not his motives debafed by an alloy of fuperflition, we must praife the royal philosopher'3, who at the age of forty could difcern the vanity of human greatness. Religning the sceptre to his fon, he retired to the pleafant refidence of Magnefia; but he retired to the fociety of faints and hermits. It was not till the fourth century of the Hegira, that the religion of Mahomet had been corrupted by an inflitution fo adverse to his genius; but in the age of the crufades, the various orders of Dervifhes were multiplied by the example of the Chriftian, and even the Latin, monks'*. The lord of nations fubmitted to fast, and pray, and turn round in endless rotation with the fanatics, who miftook the giddiness of the head for the illumination of the fpirit's. But he was foon awakened from this dream of 12 See Chalcondyles (1. vii. p. 186. 198.), Ducas (c. 33.), and Marinus Barletius (in Vit. Scanderbeg, p. 145, 146.). In his good faith towards the garrifon of Sfetigrade, he was a lesion and example to his fon Mahomet.

*3 Voltaire (Effai fur l'Histoire Generale, c. 89. p. 283, 284.) admires le Philosophe Ture; would he have bestowed the fame praife on a Christian prince for retiring to a monastery ?" In his way, Voltaire was a bigot, an intolerant bigot. -

14 See the articles Dervifche, Fakir, Naffer, Rohbaniat, in d'Herbelot's Bibliotheque Orientale. Yet the fubject is fuperficially treated from the Persian and Arabian writers. It is among the Turks that thefe orders have principally flourished.

*5 Rycaut (in the prefent State of the Ottoman Empire, p. 242-268.) affords much information, which he drew from his perfonal conversation with the heads of the dervifhes, most of whom ascribed their origin to the time of Orchan. He does not mention the of enthusiasm, by the Hungarian invasion; and his obedient fon C H A P. was the foremost to urge the public danger and the wishes of the people. Under the banner of their veteran leader, the Janizaries fought and conquered; but he withdrew from the field of Varna, again to pray, to faft, and to turn round with his Magnefian brethren. These pious occupations were again interrupted by the danger of the ftate. A victorious army difdained the inexperience of their youthful ruler : the city of Adrianople was abandoned to rapine and flaughter; and the unanimous divan implored his prefence to appeafe the tumult, and prevent the rebellion, of the Janizaries. At the well-known voice of their mafter, they trembled and obeyed; and the reluctant fultan was compelled to fupport his fplendid fervitude, till, at the end of four years, he was relieved by the angel of death. Age or difease, misfortune or caprice, have tempted several princes to defcend from the throne; and they have had leifure to repent of their irretrievable ftep. But Amurath alone, in the full liberty of choice, after the trial of empire and folitude, has repeated his preference of a private life.

After the departure of his Greek brethren, Eugenius had not been Eugenius unmindful of their temporal intereft; and his tender regard for the Byzantine empire was animated by a just apprehension of the Turks, who approached, and might foon invade, the borders of Italy. But the fpirit of the crufades had expired ; and the coldness of the Franks was not lefs unreafonable than their headlong paffion. In the eleventh century, a fanatic monk could precipitate Europe on Afia for the recovery of the holy fepulchre; but in the fifteenth, the most preffing motives of religion and policy were infufficient to unite the Latins in the defence of Christendom. Germany was an inexhauftible ftore-house of men and arms'6: but that complex and languid body the Zichidæ of Chalcondyles (1. vii. p. 286.), <sup>16</sup> In the year 1431, Germany raifed among whom Amurath retired: the Seids of 40,000 horfe, men at arms, against the Huf-that author are the defcendants of Mahomet. fites of Bohemia (Lenfant, Hill. du Concile de 3 L 2 forms a league against the Turks, A. D. 1443.

443

C H A P. body required the impulse of a vigorous hand; and Frederic the LXVII. third was alike impotent in his perfonal character and his Imperial dignity. A long war had impaired the ftrength, without fatiating the animolity of France and England ": but Philip, duke of Burgundy, was a vain and magnificent prince; and he enjoyed, without danger or expence, the adventurous piety of his fubjects, who failed, in a gallant fleet, from the coaft of Flanders to the Hellespont. The maritime republics of Venice and Genoa were lefs remote from the fcene of action; and their hoftile fleets were affociated under the flandard of St. Peter. The kingdoms of Hungary and Poland, which covered as it were the interior pale of the Latin church, were the most nearly concerned to oppose the progress of the Turks." Arms were the patrimony of the Scythians and Sarmatians, and thefe nations might appear equal to the conteft, could they point, against the common foe, those fwords that were fo wantonly drawn in bloody and domeftic quarrels. But the fame fpirit was adverfe to concord and obedience : a poor country and a limited monarch are incapable of maintaining a ftanding force; and the loofe bodies of Polifh and Hungarian horfe were not armed with the fentiments and weapons which, on fome occafions, have given irrefifible weight to the French chivalry. Yet, on this fide, the defigns of the Roman pontiff, and the eloquence of cardinal Julian, his legate, were promoted by the circumftances of the times"; by the union of the > de Bafle, tom. i. p. 318.). At the fiege of Nuys on the Rhine in 1474, the princes, prelates, and cities, fent their refpective quotas: and the bihop of Munfter (qui n'eft pas des plus grands) furnifhed 1400 horfe, 6000 foot, all in green, with 1200 waggons. The united armies of the king of England and the duke of Burgundy fearcely equalled one-third of this German hoft (Memoires de Philippe de Comines, 1. iv. c. 2.). At prefent, fix or feven hundred thoufand men are maintained in conflant pay and admirable difcipline, by the powers of Germany.

<sup>17</sup> It was not till the year 1444, that France and England could agree on a truce of fome months (See Rymer's Fœdera, and the chronicles of both nations).

<sup>18</sup> In the Hungarian crufade, Spondanus (Annal. Ecclef. A. D. 1413, 1444) has been my leading guide. He has diligently read, and critically compared, the Greek and Turkifh materials, the hiftorians of Hungary, Poland, and the Weft. His narrative is perfpicuous; and where he can be free from a religious bias, the judgment of Spondanus is not contemptible.

9

two crowns on the head of Ladiflaus'', a young and ambitious fol- C H A P. dier; by the valour of an hero, whole name, the name of John Huniades, was already popular among the Chriftians, and formidable to the Turks. An endlefs treafure of pardons and indulgences was feattered by the legate; many private warriors of France and Germany enlifted under the holy banner; and the crufade derived fome ftrength, or at leaft fome reputation, from the new allies, both of Europe and Afia. A fugilive defpot of Servia exaggerated the diftrefs and ardour of the Chriftians beyond the Danube, who would unanimoufly rife to vindicate their religion and liberty. The Greek emperor<sup>20</sup>, with a fpirit unknown to his fathers, engaged to guard the Bosphorus, and to fally from Constantinople at the head of his national and mercenary troops. The fultan of Caramania<sup>21</sup> announced the retreat of Amurain, and a powerful diversion in the heart of Anatolia; and if the fleets of the Weft could occupy at the fame moment the fireights of the Hellespont, the Ottoman monarchy would be diffevered and deftroyed. Heaven and earth muft rejoice in the perdition of the mifcreants; and the legate, with prudent ambiguity, inftilled the opinion of the invisible, perhaps the visible, aid, of the Son of God, and his divine Mother.

Of the Polish and Hungarian' diets, a religious war was the una- Ladislaus, nimous cry; and Ladiflaus, after paffing the Danube, led an army land and of his confederate fubjects as far as Sophia, the capital of the Bulgarian kingdom. In this expedition they obtained two fignal vic-king of Po-Hungary, marches against them.

20 The Greek hiftorians, Phranza, Chalcondyles, and Ducas, do not afcribe to their which he fems to have promoted by his wifnes, and injured by his fears.

21 Cantemir (p. 83.) afcribes to his policy the original plan, and transcribes his animating epiltle to the king of Hungary. But the Mahometan powers are feldom informed of the flate of Chriflendom; and the fituation and correspondence of the knights of Rhodes muft connect them with the fultan of Caramania.

tories.

<sup>19</sup> I have curtailed the harfh letter (Wla- prince a very active part in this crufade, diflaus) which most writers afix to his name, either in compliance with the Polish pronunciation, or to diffinguish him from his rival the infant Ladiflaus of Auftria. Their competition for the crown of Hungary is defcribed by Callimachus (l. i, ii. p. 447-486.), Bonfinius (Decad. iii. 1. iv.), Spondanns, and Lenfant.

C H A P. tories, which were justly afcribed to the valour and conduct of Hu-LXVII. niades. In the first, with a vanguard of ten thousand men, he furprifed the Turkish camp; in the fecond, he vanguished and made prisoner the most renowned of their generals, who posseffed the double advantage of ground and numbers. The approach of winter, and the natural and artificial obstacles of mount Hæmus, arrested the progrefs of the hero, who meafured a narrow interval of fix days march from the foot of the mountains to the hoftile towers of Adrianople, and the friendly capital of the Greek empire. The retreat was undiffurbed; and the entrance into Buda was at once a military and religious triumph. An ecclefiaftical proceffion was followed by the king and his warriors on foot: he nicely balanced the merits and rewards of the two nations; and the pride of conquest was blended with the humble temper of Christianity. Thirteen bashaws, nine standards, and four thousand captives, were unquestionable trophies; and as all were willing to believe, and none were prefent to contradict, the crufaders multiplied, with unblufhing confidence, the myriads of Turks whom they had left on the field of The Turkith battle<sup>22</sup>. The moft folid proof, and the moft falutary confequence, of victory, was a deputation from the divan to folicit peace, to reftore Servia, to ranfom the prifoners, and to evacuate the Hungarian frontier. By this treaty, the rational objects of the war were obtained : the king, the despot, and Huniades himself, in the diet of Segedin, were fatisfied with public and private emolument; a truce of ten years was concluded; and the followers of Jefus and Mahomet, who fwore on the Gofpel and the Koran, attefted the word of God as the guardian of truth and the avenger of perfidy. In the place of the Gofpel, the Turkish ministers had proposed to substitute the Eucharift, the real prefence of the Catholic deity; but the peace.

Chriftians,

-----

<sup>22</sup> In their letters to the emperor Fre- the flaughter to 6000, or even 2000 infidels deric III. the Hungarians flay 30,000 Turks (Æneas Sylvius in Europ. c. 5. and epift. 44. in one battle; but the modest Julian reduces 81. apud Spondanum). 2

Chriftians refufed to profane their holy myfteries; and a fuperflitious C H A P. conficience is lefs forcibly bound by the fpiritual energy, than by the outward and visible fymbols, of an oath 23.

During the whole transaction, the cardinal legate had observed a Violation of fullen filence, unwilling to approve, and unable to oppofe, the con- A.D. 1444fent of the king and people. But the diet was not diffolved before Julian was fortified by the welcome intelligence, that Anatolia was invaded by the Caramanian, and Thrace by the Greek emperor: that the fleets of Genoa, Venice, and Burgundy, were mafters of the Hellespont; and that the allies, informed of the victory, and ignorant of the treaty, of Ladiflaus, impatiently waited for the return of his victorious army. " And is it thus," exclaimed the cardinal<sup>24</sup>, " that you will defert their expectations and your own " fortune. It is to them, to your God, and your fellow-Chriftians, " that you have pledged your faith; and that prior obligation anni-" hilates a rafh and facrilegious oath to the enemies of Chrift. His " vicar on earth is the Roman pontiff; without whole fanction you " can neither promife nor perform. In his name I abfolve your " perjury and fanctify your arms: follow my footsteps in the paths " of glory and falvation; and if still ye have fcruples, devolve on " my head the punifhment and the fin." This mifchievous cafuiftry was feconded by his respectable character, and the levity of popular affemblies : war was refolved, on the fame fpot where peace had fo lately been fworn; and, in the execution of the treaty, the accuracy of Julian's fpeech, which is varioufly worded by Callimachus (l. iii. p. 505-507.), Bonfinius (Dec.iii. I. vi. p. 457, 458.), and other hiftorians, who might indulge their own eloquence, while they reprefent one of the orators of the age. But they all agree in the advice and arguments for perjury, which in the field of controverfy are fiercely attacked by the Protestants, and feebly defended 14 I do not pretend to warrant the literal by the Catholics. The latter are difcouraged by the misfortune of Warna.

LXVII.

the peace,

Turks

<sup>23</sup> See the origin of the Turkifli war, and the first expedition of Ladiflaus, in the yth and vith books of the iiid Decad of Bonfinius, who, in his division and style, copies Livy with tolerable fuccefs. Callimachus (1. ii. p. 487-496) is still more pure and authentic.

C H A P. Turks were affaulted by the Chriftians; to whom, with fome reafon, LXVII. they might apply the epithet of infidels. The falfehood of Ladiflaus to his word and oath, was palliated by the religion of the times: the most perfect, or at least the most popular, excuse would have been the fuccefs of his arms and the deliverance of the Eaftern church. But the fame treaty which fhould have bound his confcience, had diminished his ftrength. On the proclamation of the peace, the French and German volunteers departed with indignant murmurs: the Poles were exhaufted by diftant warfare, and perhaps difgufted with foreign command; and their palatines accepted the first licence, and haftily retired to their provinces and caftles. Even Hungary was divided by faction, or reftrained by a laudable fcruple; and the relics of the crufade that marched in the fecond expedition, were reduced to an inadequate force of twenty thousand men. A Walachian chief, who joined the royal ftandard with his vaffals, prefumed to remark that their numbers did not exceed the hunting retinue that fometimes attended the fultan; and the gift of two horfes of matchless speed, might admonish Ladislaus of his fecret forefight of the event. But the defpot of Servia, after the reftoration of his country and children, was tempted by the promife of new realms; and the inexperience of the king, the enthuliafin of the legate, and the martial prefumption of Huniades himfelf, were perfuaded that every obstacle must yield to the invincible virtue of the fword and the crofs. After the paffage of the Danube, two roads might lead to Conftantinople and the Hellespont; the one direct, abrupt, and difficult, through the mountains of Hæmus; the other more tedious and fecure, over a level country, and along the fhores of the Euxine; in which their flanks, according to the Scythian difcipline, might always be covered by a moveable fortification of waggons. The latter was judicioully preferred : the Catholics marched through the plains of Bulgaria, burning, with wanton cruelty, the churches and villages of the Christian natives; and their last station was at Warna, near the feaSea-fhore; on which the defeat and death of Ladiflaus have beflowed C H A P. a memorable name 25.

It was on this fatal fpot, that, inftead of finding a confederate fleet Battle of to fecond their operations, they were alarmed by the approach of Amurath himfelf, who had iffued from his Magnefian folitude, and transported the forces of Asia to the defence of Europe. According to fome riters, the Greek emperor had been awed, or feduced, to grant the paffage of the Bofphorus; and an indelible flain of corruption is fixed on the Genoefe, or the pope's nephew, the Catholic admiral, whole mercenary connivance betrayed the guard of the Hellespont. From Adrianople, the fultan advanced by hafty marches. at the head of fixty thousand men; and when the cardinal, and Huniades, had taken a nearer furvey of the numbers and order of the Turks, thefe ardent warriors propofed the tardy and impracticable measure of a retreat. The king alone was refolved to conquer or die; and his refolution had almost been crowned with a glorious and falutary victory. The princes were opposite to each other in the centre; and the Beglerbegs, or generals of Anatolia and Romania. commanded on the right and left against the adverse divisions of the despot and Huniades. The Turkish wings were broken on the first onfet : but the advantage was fatal ; and the rafh victors, in the heat of the purfuit, were carried away far from the annoyance of the enemy or the fupport of their friends. When Amurath beheld the flight of his fquadrons, he defpaired of his fortune and that of the empire : a veteran Janizary feized his horfe's bridle; and he had magnanimity to pardon and reward the foldier who dared to perceive the terror, and arreft the flight, of his fovereign. A copy of the treaty, the monument of Christian perfidy, had been displayed

25 Warna, under the Grecian name of Odel- Geographers), it was fituate 1740 ftadia, orfurfus, was a colony of the Milefians, which they longs, from the mouth of the Danube, 2140 denominated from the hero Ulyffes (Cellarius, from Byzantium, and 360 to the north of a tom. i. p. 374. d'Anville, tom. i. p. 312.). ridge or promontory of mount Hæmus, which According to Arrian's Periplus of the Euxine advances into the fea. (p. 24, 25. in the ist volume of Hudfon's

YOL. VI.

3 M

LXVII.

Warna, A. D. 1444. Nov. 10.

in

449

C H A P. in the front of battle; and it is faid, that the fultan in his diffres. LXVII. lifting his eyes and his hands to heaven, implored the protection of the God of truth; and called on the prophet Jefus himfelf to avenge the impious mockery of his name and religion 26. With inferior numbers and difordered ranks, the king of Hungary rufhed forwards in the confidence of victory, till his career was ftopped by the impenetrable phalanx of the Janizaries. If we may credit the Ottoman annals, his horfe was pierced by the javelin of Amurath<sup>27</sup>; Death of La- he fell among the fpears of the infantry; and a Turkish foldier prodiflaus. claimed with a loud voice, " Hungarians, behold the head of your " king !" The death of Ladiflaus was the fignal of their defeat. On his return from an intemperate purfuit, Huniades deplored his error and the public lofs: he ftrove to refcue the royal body, till he was overwhelmed by the tumultuous crowd of the victors and vanquifhed; and the laft efforts of his courage and conduct were exerted to fave the remnant of his Walachian cavalry. Ten thoufand Christians were flain in the disaftrous battle of Warna : the loss of the Turks, more confiderable in numbers, bore a fmaller proportion to their total ftrength; yet the philosophic fultan was not ashamed to confess, that his ruin must be the confequence of a fecond and fimilar victory. At his command a column was erected on the fpor where Ladiflaus had fallen; but the modeft infcription, inftead of accufing the rafhnefs, recorded the valour, and bewailed the misfortune, of the Hungarian youth 23.

Before

<sup>26</sup> Some Christian writers aftirm, that he drew from his bofom the hoft or wafer on which the treaty had not been fworn. The Moslems fappole, with more fimplicity, an appeal to God and his prophet Jefus, which is likewife infinuated by Callimachus (l. iii. p. 516. Spondan. A. D. 1444, N° 8.).

<sup>27</sup> A critic will always diftruft thefe fpolia epima of a victorious general, fo difficult for valour to obtain, fo eafy for flattery to invent (Cantemir, p. 90, 91.). Callimachus (l. iii, p. 517.) more fimply and probably affirms, fupervenientibus Janizaris, telorum multitudine, non tam confoffus eft, quam obrutus.

<sup>28</sup> Befides fome valuable hints from Æneas Sylvius, which are diligently collected by Spondanus, our beft authorities are three hiftorians of the xvth century, Philippus Callimachus (de Rebus a Vladiflao Polonorum atque Hungarorum Rege gefti-, libri iii. in Bel. Script. Rerum Hungaricarum, tom. i. p. 433-518.), Bonfinius (decad iii. l.v.

450

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

Before I lose fight of the field of Warna, I am tempted to pause C H A P. on the character and ftory of two principal actors, the cardinal Julian and John Huniades. Julian 2º Cæfarini was born of a noble Julian. family of Rome: his fludies had embraced both the Latin and Greek learning, both the fciences of divinity and law; and his verfatile genius was equally adapted to the fchools, the camp, and the court. No fooner had he been invefted with the Roman purple, than he was fent into Germany to arm the empire against the rebels and heretics of Bohemia. The fpirit of perfecution is unworthy of a Christian; the military profession ill becomes a prieft; but the former is excufed by the times; and the latter was ennobled by the courage of Julian, who flood dauntlefs and alone in the difgraceful flight of the German hoft. As the pope's legate, he opened the council of Bafil; but the prefident foon appeared the most strenuous champion of ecclefiaftical freedom; and an oppofition of feven years was conducted by his ability and zeal. After promoting the ftrongeft meafures against the authority and perfon of Eugenius, fome fecret motive of interest or confcience engaged him to defert on a fudden the popular party. The cardinal withdrew himfelf from Bafil to Ferrara; and, in the debates of the Greeks and Latins, the two nations admired the dexterity of his arguments and the depth of his theological erudition<sup>30</sup>. In his Hungarian embaffy we have already feen the mischievous effects of his sophistry and eloquence, of which Julian himfelf was the first victim. The cardinal, who performed

I.v. p. 460-467.), and Chalcocondyles (l. vii. p. 165-179.). The two first were Italians, but they paffed their lives in Poland and Hungary (Fabric. Bibliot. Latin. med. et infimæ Ætatis, tom. i. p. 324. Voffius de Hift. Latin. 1. iii. c. 8. 11. Bayle, Dictionnaire, BONFINIUS). A small tract of Fælix Petancius, chancellor of Segnia (ad calcem Cuspinian. de Cæsaribus, p. 716-722.), reprefents the theatre of the war in the xvth century.

29 M. Lenfant has defcribed the origin (Hift. du Concile de Basle, tom. i. p. 247, &c.), and Bohemian campaign (p. 315, &c.), of cardinal Julian. His fervices at Bafil and Ferrara, and his unfortunate end, are occafionally related by Spondanus, and the continuator of Fleury.

3° Syropulus honourably praifes the talents of an enemy (p. 117.): TOIAUTA TIDA EITEN 5 Ιθλιανος, πεπλατυσμένως αγαν και λογικώς, και per enismens was demotertos Paropinns.

3 M 2

the

LXVII.

The cardinal

LXVII.

C H A P. the duties of a prieft and a foldier, was loft in the defeat of Warna-The circumstances of his death are variously related; but it is believed, that a weighty incumbrance of gold impeded his flight, and tempted the cruel avarice of fome Christian fugitives.

John Corvinus Huniades.

From an humble, or at leaft a doubtful origin, the merit of John Huniades promoted him to the command of the Hungarian armies. His father was a Walachian, his mother a Greek ; her unknown race might poffibly afcend to the emperors of Conftantinople; and the claims of the Walachians, with the furname of Corvinus, from the place of his nativity, might fuggeft a thin pretence for mingling his blood with the patricians of ancient Rome<sup>31</sup>. In his youth he ferved in the wars of Italy; and was retained, with twelve horfemen, by the bishop of Zagrab: the valour of the white knight 32 was foon confpicuous; he encreafed his fortunes by a noble and wealthy marriage; and in the defence of the Hungarian borders, he won in the fame year three battles against the Turks. By his influence, Ladiflaus of Poland obtained the crown of Hungary; and the important fervice was rewarded by the title and office of Waivod of Transylvania. The first of Julian's crusades added two Turkish laurels on his brow; and in the public diffrefs the fatal errors of Warna were forgotten. During the abfence and minority of Ladiflaus of Auftria, the titular king, Huniades was elected fupreme captain and governor of Hungary; and if envy at first was filenced by terror, a reign of twelve years fuppofes the arts of policy as well as of war. Yet the idea of a confummate general is not delineated in. his campaigns; the white knight fought with the hand rather than.

Could the Italian historian pronounce, or the king of Hungary hear, without a blufh, the abfurd flattery, which confounded the name of a Walachian village with the cafual, though glorious, epithet of a fingle branch of the Valerian family at Rome?

32 Philip de Comines (Memoires, l. vi.

<sup>31</sup> See Bonfinius, decad iii. I. iv. p. 423. c. 13.), from the tradition of the times, mentions him with high enconiums, but under the whimfical name of the Chevalier Blanc de Valaigne (Valachia). The Greek Chalcocondyles, and the Turkifh Annals of Leunclavius, prefume to accuse his fidelity or valour.

the

the head, as the chief of defultory Barbarians, who attack without C H A P. fear and fly without shame; and his military life is composed of a romantic alternative of victories and efcapes. By the Turks, who employed his name to frighten their perverse children, he was corruptly denominated Jancus Lain, or the Wicked : their hatred is the proof of their efteem; the kingdom which he guarded was inacceffible to their arms; and they felt him most daring and formidable, when they fondly believed the captain and his country irrecoverably loft. Inftead of confining himfelf to a defensive war, four years after the defeat of Warna he again penetrated into the heart of Bulgaria; and in the plain of Coffova fuftained, till the third day, the flock of the Ottoman army, four times more numerous than his own. As he fled alone through the woods of Walachia, the hero was furprifed by two robbers; but while they difputed a gold chain that hung at his neck, he recovered his fword, flew the one, terrified the other, and, after new perils of captivity or death, confoled by his prefence an afflicted kingdom. But the laft and most glorious action of his life was the defence of Belgrade against the powers of Mahomet the fecond in person. After a fiege His defence of forty days, the Turks, who had already entered the town, were and death, compelled to retreat; and the joyful nations celebrated Huniades A. D. 1456, July 22, and Belgrade as the bulwarks of Christendom<sup>33</sup>. About a month Sept. 4. after this great deliverance, the champion expired; and his moft fplendid epitaph is the regret of the Ottoman prince, who fighed that he could no longer hope for revenge against the fingle antagonist who had triumphed over his arms. On the first vacancy of the throne, Matthias Corvinus, a youth of eighteen years of age, was elected and crowned by the grateful Hungarians. His reign was

profperous

5

LXVII.

of Belgrade,

&lt;sup>23</sup> See Bonfinius (decad iii. 1. viii. p. 492.) and in their refpective narratives, neither the and Spondanus (A. D. 1456, N° 1-7.). faint nor the hero condefeend to take notice of Huniades fhared the glory of the defence of his rival's merit. Relgrade with Capiftran, a Franciscan friar :

LXVII.

Birth and education of Albania,

&c.

Scanderbeg, prince of

A. D. 1404-1413,

C H A P. prosperous and long: Matthias aspired to the glory of a conqueror and a faint; but his pureft merit is the encouragement of learning; and the Latin orators and hiftorians, who were invited from Italy by the fon, have fhed the luftre of their eloquence on the father's character 34.

> In the lift of heroes, John Huniades and Scanderbeg are commonly affociated 35 : and they are both entitled to our notice, fince their occupation of the Ottoman arms delayed the ruin of the Greek empire. John Caftriot, the father of Scanderbeg 36, was the hereditary prince of a fmall diffrict of Epirus or Albania, between the mountains and the Adriatic fea. Unable to contend with the fultan's power, Castriot submitted to the hard conditions of peace and tribute : he delivered his four fons as the pledges of his fidelity ; and the Christian youths, after receiving the mark of circumcifion, were instructed in the Mahometan religion, and trained in the arms and arts of Turkish policy 37. The three elder brothers were confounded in the crowd of flaves; and the poifon to which their deaths are afcribed, cannot be verified or difproved by any politive evidence. Yet the fufpicion is in a great meafure removed by the kind and 34 See Bonfinius, decad iii. 1. viii.-decad iv. l. viii. The obfervations of Spondanus on the life and character of Matthias Corvinus, are curious and critical (A. D. 1464, Nº 1. 1475, Nº 6. 1476, Nº 14-16. 1490, N° 4, 5.). Italian fame was the object of his vanity. His actions are celebrated in the Epitome Rerum Hungaricarum (p. 322 -412.) of Peter Ranzanus, a Sicilian. His wife and facetious fayings are registered by Galestus Martius of Narni (528-568.): and we have a particular narrative of his wedding and coronation. Thefe three tracts are all contained in the it vol. of Bel's Scriptores Rerum Hungaricarum.

35 They are ranked by Sir William Temple, in his pleafing Effay on Heroic Virtue (works, vol. iii. p. 385.), among the feven chiefs who have deferved, without wearing, a royal crown ; Belifarius, Narfes, Gonfalvo of Cordova, William first prince of Orange, Alexander duke of Parma, John Huniades, and George Castriot, or Scanderbeg.

<sup>36</sup> I could with for fome fimple, authentic memoirs of a friend of Scanderbeg, which would introduce me to the man, the time, and the place. In the old and national history of Marinus Barletius, a priest of Scodra (de Vitâ, Moribus, et Rebus gestis Georgii Caffrioti, &c. libri xiii. pp. 367. Argentorat. 1537, in fol.), his gawdy and cumberfome robes are fluck with many falle jewels. See likewife Chalcocondyles, l. vii. p. 185. l. viii. p. 229.

<sup>37</sup> His circumcifion, education, &c. are marked by Marinus with brevity and reluctance (l. i. p. 6, 7.).

3

paternal

paternal treatment of George Caftriot, the fourth brother, who from C H A P. his tender youth, difplayed the ftrength and fpirit of a foldier. The fucceffive overthrow of a Tartar and two Perfians, who carried a proud defiance to the Turkish court, recommended him to the favour of Amurath, and his Turkish appellation of Scanderbeg (Iskender Beg), or the lord Alexander, is an indelible memorial of his glory and fervitude. His father's principality was reduced into a province : but the lofs was compensated by the rank and title of Sanjiak. a command of five thousand horse, and the prospect of the first dignities of the empire. He ferved with honour in the wars of Europe and Afia; and we may fmile at the art or credulity of the historian, who supposes, that in every encounter he spared the Chriftians, while he fell with a thundering arm on his Mufulman foes. The glory of Huniades is without reproach; he fought in the defence of his religion and country; but the enemies who applaud the patriot, have branded his rival with the name of traitor and apoftate. In the eyes of the Christians, the rebellion of Scanderbeg is juffified by his father's wrongs, the ambiguous death of his three brothers, his own degradation, and the flavery of his country; and they adore the generous, though tardy, zeal, with which he afferted the faith and independence of his anceftors. But he had imbibed from his ninth year the doctrines of the Koran; he was ignorant of the Gofpel; the religion of a foldier is determined by authority and habit; nor is it eafy to conceive what new illumination at the age of forty <sup>38</sup> could be poured into his foul. His motives would be lefs exposed to the fuspicion of intereft or revenge, had he broken his chain from the moment that he was fenfible of its weight : but a long oblivion had furely impaired his original right; and every year of obedience and the lxiiid year of his age (Marinus, 1. xiii. must have inherited, not acquired, the Alp. 370.), he was born in 1403; fince he was banian flave. Spondanus has remarked this torn from his parents by the Turks, when he inconfistency, A. D. 1431, Nº 31. 1445, was novennis (Marinus, l. i. p. 1. 6.), that Nº 14. event must have happened in 1412, nine

<sup>38</sup> Since Scanderbeg died A.D. 1466, in years before the accellion of Amurath II. who

reward

LXVII.

His revolt from the Turks, A. D. 1443, Nov. 28.

C H A P. reward had cemented the mutual bond of the fultan and his fubject. If Scanderbeg had long harboured the belief of Chriftianity and the intention of revolt, a worthy mind must condemn the base diffimulation, that could ferve only to betray, that could promife only to be forefworn, that could actively join in the temporal and fpiritual perdition of fo many thousands of his unhappy brethren. Shall we praife a fecret correspondence with Huniades, while he commanded the vanguard of the Turkifh army? fhall we excufe the defertion of his flandard, a treacherous defertion which abandoned the victory to the enemies of his benefactor? In the confusion of a defeat, the eye of Scanderbeg was fixed on the Reis Effendi or principal fecretary: with the dagger at his breaft, he extorted a firman or patent for the government of Albania; and the murder of the guiltless fcribe and his train, prevented the confequences of an immediate difcovery. With fome bold companions, to whom he had revealed his defign, he efcaped in the night, by rapid marches, from the field of battle to his paternal mountains. The gates of Croya were opened to the royal mandate; and no fooner did he command the fortrefs. than George Castriot dropt the mask of diffimulation; abjured the prophet and the fultan, and proclaimed himfelf the avenger of his family and country. The names of religion and liberty provoked a general revolt : the Albanians, a martial race, were unanimous to live and die with their hereditary prince; and the Ottoman garrifons were indulged in the choice of martyrdom or baptifin. In the affembly of the flates of Epirus, Scanderbeg was elected general of the Turkifh war; and each of the allies engaged to furnish his refpective proportion of men and money. From thefe contributions, from his patrimonial eftate, and from the valuable falt-pits of Selina, he drew an annual revenue of two hundred thousand ducats 39; and the entire fum, exempt from the demands of luxury, was flrictly appropriated to the public ufe. His manners were popular; but his 29 His revenue and forces are luckily given by Marinus (1. ii. p. 44.).

discipline

456

LXVII.

discipline was fevere ; and every fuperfluous vice was banished from C H A P. his camp : his example ftrengthened his command ; and under his conduct, the Albanians were invincible in their own opinion and that of their enemies. The bravest adventurers of France and Germany were allured by his fame and retained in his fervice : his ftanding militia confifted of eight thousand horse and seven thoufand foot ; the horfes were fmall, the men were active : but he His valour, viewed with a difcerning eye the difficulties and refources of the mountains; and, at the blaze of the beacons, the whole nation was diftributed in the ftrongeft pofts. With fuch unequal arms, Scanderbeg refifted twenty-three years the powers of the Ottoman empire : and two conquerors, Amurath the fecond, and his greater fon, were repeatedly baffled by a rebel, whom they purfued with feeming contempt and implacable refentment. At the head of fixty thousand horse and forty thousand Janizaries, Amurath entered Albania; he might ravage the open country, occupy the defencelefs towns, convert the churches into moschs, circumcise the Christian youths, and punish with death his adult and obftinate captives: but the conquefts of the fultan were confined to the petty fortrefs of Sfetigrade; and the garrifon, invincible to his arms, was opprefied by a paltry artifice and a superflitious scruple". Amurath retired with shame and loss from the walls of Croya, the caftle and refidence of the Caftriots: the march, the fiege, the retreat, were haraffed by a vexatious, and almost invisible, adverfary "; and the disappointment might tend to embitter, perhaps to fhorten, the laft days of the fultan 42. In the 41 Compare the Turkish narrative of Cantemir (p. 92.), with the pompous and prolix of the Albanian prieft, who has been copied by the tribe of ftrangers and moderns.

VOL. VI.

42 In honour of his hero, Barletius (1. vi. p. 188-192.) kills the fultan, by difeafe indeed, under the walls of Croya. But this audacious fiction is disproved by the Greeks and Turks, who agree in the time and manner of Amurath's death at Adrianople.

3 N

fulnefs

LXVII.

<sup>4</sup>º There were two Dibras, the upper and declamation in the ivth, vth, and vith books lower, the Bulgarian and Albanian: the former, 70 miles from Croya (l. i. p. 17.), was contiguous to the fortrefs of Sfetigrade, whole inhabitants refused to drink from a well into which a dead dog had traiteroufly been cast (l. v. p. 139, 140.). We want a good map of Epirus.

and death, A. D. 1467, January 17.

۰.

C H A P. fulnels of conquest, Mahomet the second still felt at his bosom this domeftie thorn : his lieutenants were permitted to negociate a truce : ---and the Albanian prince may justly be praifed as a firm and able champion of his national independence. The enthufiasm of chivalry and religion has ranked him with the names of Alexander and Pyrrhus; nor would they blufh to acknowledge their intrepid countrymen: but his narrow dominion, and flender powers, must leave him at an humble diftance below the heroes of antiquity, who triumphed over the East and the Roman legions. His fplendid atchievements, the bashas whom he encountered, the armies that he difcomfited, and the three thoufand Turks who were flain by his fingle hand, must be weighed in the scales of fuspicious criticism. Against an illiterate enemy, and in the dark folitude of Epirus, his partial biographers may fafely indulge the latitude of romance : but their fictions are exposed by the light of Italian hiftory; and they afford a ftrong prefumption against their own truth, by a fabulous tale of his exploits, when he paffed the Adriatic with eight hundred horfe to the fuccour of the king of Naples 43. Without disparagement to his fame, they might have owned that he was finally oppreffed by the Ottoman powers: in his extreme danger, he applied to pope Pius the fecond for a refuge in the ecclefiaftical ftate; and his refources were almost exhausted, fince Scanderbeg died a fugitive at Liffus on the Venetian territory ". His fepulchre was foon violated by the Turkish conquerors; but the Janizaries, who wore his bones enchafed in a bracelet, declared by this fuperflitious

> 43 See the marvels of his Calabrian expe- moires de Comines, 1. viii. c. 5.). dition in the ixth and xth books of Marinus Barletius, which may be rectified by the teftimony or filence of Muratori (Annali, d'Italia, tom. xiii. p. 291.), and his original authors (Joh. Simonetta de Rebus Francisci Sfortiæ, in Muratori, Script. Rerum Ital. tom. xxi. p. 728. et alios). The Albanian cavalry, under the name of Stradiots, foon became famous in the wars of Italy (Me-

44 Spondanus, from the best evidence and the most rational criticism, has reduced the giant Scanderbeg to the human fize (A. D. 1461, N° 20. 1463, N° 9. 1465, N° 12, 13. 1467, N° 1.). His own letter to the pope, and the testimony of Phranza (l. iii. c. 28.), a refugee in the neighbouring ifle of Corfu, demonstrate his last distress, which is awkwardly concealed by Marinus Barletius (1. x.).

amulet

LXVII.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

amulet their involuntary reverence for his valour. The inftant ruin C H A P. of his country may redound to the hero's glory; yet, had he balanced the confequences of fubmiffion and refiftance, a patriot perhaps would have declined the unequal conteft which muft depend on the life and genius of one man. Scanderbeg might indeed be fupported by the rational, though fallacious, hope, that the pope, the king of Naples, and the Venetian republic, would join in the defence of a free and Christian people, who guarded the sea-coast of the Adriatic, and the narrow paffage from Greece to Italy. His infant fon was faved from the national fhipwreck ; the Caftriots45 were invefted with a Neapolitan dukedom, and their blood continues to flow in the nobleft families of the realm. A colony of Albanian fugitives obtained a fettlement in Calabria, and they preferve at this day the language and manners of their anceftors *6.

In the long career of the decline and fall of the Roman empire, I have reached at length the last reign of the princes of Constantinople, Roman or who fo feebly fuftained the name and majefty of the Cæfars. On the decease of John Palæologus, who furvived about four years the Hungarian crufade 47, the royal family, by the death of Andronicus A. D. 1453, and the monastic profession of Isidore, was reduced to three princes, Conftantine, Demetrius, and Thomas, the furviving fons of the emperor Manuel. Of these the first and the last were far distant in the Morea; but Demetrius, who poffeffed the domain of Selvbria. was in the fuburbs, at the head of a party: his ambition was not chilled by the public diffrefs; and his confpiracy with the Turks and the fchifmatics had already diffurbed the peace of his country. The funeral of the late emperor was accelerated with fingular and 45 See the family of the Caffriots, in Ducange (Fam. Dalmaticæ, &c. xviii. p. 348-350.).

46 This colony of Albanefe is mentioned by Mr. Swinburne (Travels into the Two Sicilies, vol. i. p. 350-354.).

authentic; but instead of four years and seven months, Spondanus (A. D. 1445, Nº 7.) affigns feven or eight years to the reign of the last Constantine, which he deduces from a fpurious epiftle of Eugenius IV. to the king of Æthiopia.

47 The chronology of Phranza is clear and

3N2

....

Conftantine, the laft of the Greek emperors, A. D. 1448, Nov. 1-May 29.

:

even

LXVII.

C H A P. even fuspicious hafte; the claim of Demetrius to the vacant throne was justified by a trite and flimfy fophism, that he was born in the -purple, the eldeft fon of his father's reign. But the emprefs-mother, the fenate and foldiers, the clergy and people, were unanimous in the caufe of the lawful fucceffor; and the defpot Thomas, who, ignorant of the change, accidentally returned to the capital, afferted with becoming zeal the interest of his absent brother. An ambassador, the hiftorian Phranza, was immediately difpatched to the court of Amurath received him with honour and difmiffed Adrianople. him with gifts; but the gracious approbation of the Turkifh fultan announced his fupremacy, and the approaching downfal of the Eastern empire. By the hands of two illustrious deputies, the Imperial crown was placed at Sparta on the head of Conftantine. In the spring he failed from the Morea, escaped the encounter of a Turkish squadron, enjoyed the acclamations of his subjects, celebrated the feftival of a new reign, and exhaufted by his donatives the treasure, or rather the indigence, of the state. The emperor immediately refigned to his brothers the poffeffion of the Morea; and the brittle friendship of the two princes, Demetrius and Thomas, was confirmed in their mother's prefence by the frail fecurity of oaths and embraces. His next occupation was the choice of a confort. A daughter of the doge of Venice had been propofed; but the Byzantine nobles objected the diftance between an hereditary monarch and an elective magistrate; and in their subsequent diftrefs, the chief of that powerful republic was not unmindful of the affront. Conftantine afterwards hefitated between the royal families of Trebizond and Georgia; and the embaffy of Phranza reprefents in his public and private life the laft days of the Byzantine empire<sup>48</sup>.

The protovestiare, or great chamberlain, Phranza failed from Con-Embaffies of Phranza. ftantinople as the minister of a bridegroom; and the relics of wealth A. D. 1450-1452.

4<sup>8</sup> Phranza (1. iii. c. 1-6.) deferves credit and esteem. 6

and

and luxury were applied to his pompous appearance. His numerous C H A P. retinue confifted of nobles and guards, of phyficians and monks; he was attended by a band of mulic; and the term of his coftly embaffy was protracted above two years. On his arrival in Georgia or Iberia, the natives from the towns and villages flocked around the ftrangers; and fuch was their fimplicity, that they were delighted with the effects, without understanding the caufe, of mulical harmony. Among the crowd was an old man, above an hundred vears of age, who had formerly been carried away a captive by the Barbarians 49, and who amufed his hearers with a tale of the wonders of India 5°, from whence he had returned to Portugal by an unknown fea<sup>57</sup>. From this hospitable land, Phranza proceeded to the court of Trebizond, where he was informed by the Greek prince of the recent deceafe of Amurath. Inftead of rejoicing in the deliverance, the experienced flatefman expressed his apprehension, that an ambitious youth would not long adhere to the fage and pacific fystem of his father. After the fultan's decease, his Christian wife Maria 52, the daughter of the Servian defpot, had been honourably reftored to her parents: on the fame of her beauty and merit, fhe was recommended by the ambaffador as the most worthy object of the royal choice; and Phranza recapitulates and refutes the fpecious ob-

49 Suppose him to have been captured in 1304, in Timour's first war in Georgia (Sherefeddin, 1. iii. c. 50.); he might follow his Tartar master into Hindostan in 1398, and from thence fail to the fpice islands.

so The happy and pious Indians lived an hundred and fifty years, and enjoyed the most perfect productions of the vegetable and mineral kingdoms. The animals were on a large scale; dragons feventy cubits, ants (the formica Indica) nine inches long, fheep like elephants, elephants like sheep. Quidlibet audendi, &c.

51 He failed in a country veffel from the fpice island to one of the ports of the exterior India, invenitque navem grandem Ibericam, quâ in Portugalliam est delatus. This paffage, composed in 1477 (Phranza, 1. iii. c. 30.), twenty years before the discovery of the Cape of Good Hope, is fpurious or wonderful. But this new geography is fullied by the old and incompatible error which places the fource of the Nile in India.

52 Cantemir (p. 83.), who styles her the daughter of Lazarus Ogli, and the Helen of the Servians, places her marriage with Amurath in the year 1424. It will not eafily be believed, that in fix-and-twenty years cohabitation, the fultan corpus ejus non tetigit. After the taking of Constantinople, she fled to Mahomet II. (Phranza, 1. iii. c. 22.)

jections

4.61

LXVII.

~~

C H A P. jections that might be raifed against the proposal. The majefty of the purple would ennoble an unequal alliance; the bar of affinity might be removed by liberal alms and the difpenfation of the church; the difgrace of Turkish nuptials had been repeatedly overlooked; and, though the fair Maria was near fifty years of age, the might yet hope to give an heir to the empire. Conftantine liftened to the advice, which was transmitted in the first ship that failed from Trebizond; but the factions of the court oppofed his marriage; and it was finally prevented by the pious vow of the fultana, who ended her days in the monastic profession. Reduced to the first alternative, the choice of Phranza was decided in favour of a Georgian princefs: and the vanity of her father was dazzled by the glorious alliance. Inftead of demanding, according to the primitive and national cuftom, a price for his daughter 53, he offered a portion of fifty-fix thousand, with an annual pension of five thousand, ducats; and the fervices of the ambaffador were repaid by an affurance, that, as his fon had been adopted in baptifm by the emperor, the eftablishment of his daughter should be the peculiar care of the empress of Conftantinople. On the return of Phranza, the treaty was ratified by the Greek monarch, who with his own hand impressed three vermillion croffes on the golden bull, and affured the Georgian envoy, that in the fpring his gallies should conduct the bride to her Imperial palace. But Conftantine embraced his faithful fervant, not with the cold approbation of a fovereign, but with the warm confidence of a friend, who, after a long abfence, is impatient to pour his fecrets into the bofom of his friend. " Since the death of my " mother and of Cantacuzene, who alone advised me without in-" tereft or paffion ", I am furrounded," faid the emperor, " by men > offers of Agamemnon (Iliad I. v. 144.), and and a brother of the queen of Servia, whom the general practice of antiquity.

State of the Byzantine court.

54 Cantacuzene (I am ignorant of his re- (Syropulus, p. 37, 38. 45.). lation to the emperor of that name) was great

53 The claffical reader will recollect the domefic, a firm afferter of the Greek creed, he visited with the character of ambaffador

3

" whom

LXVII.

____

" whom I can neither love, nor truft, nor efteem. You are not a C H A P. " ftranger to Lucas Notaras, the great admiral; obftinately attached " to his own fentiments, he declares, both in private and public, that " his fentiments are the abfolute measure of my thoughts and ac-" tions. The reft of the courtiers are fwayed by their perfonal or " factious views; and how can. I confult the monks on queftions of " policy and marriage ? I have yet much employment for your " diligence and fidelity. In the fpring you fhall engage one of my " brothers to folicit the fuccour of the Western powers; from the " Morea you shall fail to Cyprus on a particular commission; and " from thence proceed to Georgia to receive and conduct the future " empress." " Your commands," replied Phranza, " are irrefift-" ible; but deign, great fir," he added, with a ferious finile, " to " confider, that if I am thus perpetually absent from my family, " my wife may be tempted either to feek another hufband, or to " throw herfelf into a monastery." After laughing at his apprehenfions, the emperor more gravely confoled him by the pleafing affurance, that this should be his last fervice abroad, and that he deftined for his fon, a wealthy and noble heirefs; for himfelf, the important office of great logothete, or principal minister of state. The marriage was immediately flipulated; but the office, however incompatible with his own, had been usurped by the ambition of the admiral. Some delay was requifite to negociate a confent and an equivalent; and the nomination of Phranza was half declared. and half fuppreffed, left it might be difpleafing to an infolent and powerful favourite. The winter was spent in the preparations of his embaffy; and Phranza had refolved, that the youth his fon fhould embrace this opportunity of foreign travel, and be left, on the appearance of danger, with his maternal kindred of the Morea. Such were the private and public defigns, which were interrupted by a Turkish war, and finally buried in the ruins of the empire.

463

LXVII.

C H A P. LXVIII.

Reign and Character of Mahomet the Second .- Siege, Allault, and final Conquest, of Constantinople by the Turks.-Death of Constantine Palæologus.-Servitude of the Greeks .- Extinction of the Roman Empire in the East.-Consternation of Europe.-Conquests and Death of Mahomet the Second.

THE fiege of Conftantinople by the Turks attracts our first at-CHAP. tention to the perfon and character of the great deftroyer. Mahomet the fecond ' was the fon of the fecond Amurath; and Character of Mahomet II. though his mother has been decorated with the titles of Chriftian and princefs, fhe is more probably confounded with the numerous concubines who peopled from every climate the haram of the fultan. His first education and fentiments were those of a devout Musulman; and as often as he converfed with an infidel, he purified his hands and face by the legal rites of ablution. Age and empire appear to have relaxed this narrow bigotry : his afpiring genius difdained to acknowledge a power above his own; and in his loofer hours he prefumed (it is faid) to brand the prophet of Mecca as a robber and impostor. Yet the fultan perfevered in a decent reverence for the doctrine and discipline of the Koran<sup>2</sup>: his private indifcre> is dangerous to truft either the Turks or the Christians. The most moderate picture appears to be drawn by Phranza (l. i. tionaire de Bayle (tom. iii. p. 272-2-9.). c. 33.), whole refentment had cooled in age

* For the character of Mahomet II. it 1451, Nº11.), and the continuator of Fleury (tom. xxii. p. 552.), the Elogia of Paulus Jovius (1. iii. p. 164-166.), and the Dic<sup>2</sup> Cantemir (p. 115.), and the mofchs and folitude; fee likewife Spondanus (A. D. which he founded, atteft his public regard for indifcretion muft have been facred from the vulgar ear; and we fhould C H A P. fuspect the credulity of ftrangers and fectaries, fo prone to believe that a mind which is hardened against truth, must be armed with fuperior contempt for abfurdity and error. Under the tuition of the moft skilful masters, Mahomet advanced with an early and rapid progress in the paths of knowledge; and befides his native tongue, it is affirmed that he fpoke or underftood five languages<sup>3</sup>, the Arabic, the Perfian, the Chaldzan or Hebrew, the Latin, and the Greek. The Perfian might indeed contribute to his amufement, and the Arabic to his edification; and fuch studies are familiar to the Oriental youth. In the intercourfe of the Greeks and Turks, a conqueror might wifh to converfe with the people over whom he was ambitious to reign: his own praifes in Latin poetry* or profes might find a paffage to the royal ear; but what use or merit could recommend to the statefman or the fcholar the uncouth dialect of his Hebrew flaves? The history and geography of the world were familiar to his memory: the lives of the heroes of the Eaft, perhaps of the Weft', excited his emulation : his fkill in aftrology is excufed by the folly of the times, and fuppofes fome rudiments of mathematical fcience : and a profane tafte for the arts is betrayed in his liberal invitation for religion. Mahomet freely disputed with the patriarch Gennadius on the two religions (Spond. A. D. 1453, Nº 22.).

LXVIII.

<sup>3</sup> Quinque linguas præter fuam noverat ; Græcam, Latinam, Chaldaicam, Perficam. The Latin translator of Phranza has dropt the Arabic, which the Koran must recommend to every Mufulman.

4 Philelphus, by a Latin ode, requested and obtained the liberty of his wife's mother and fifters from the conqueror of Conftantinople. It was delivered into the fultan's hands by the envoys of the duke of Milan. Philelphus himfelf was fufpected of a defign of retiring to Constantinople; yet the orator often founded the trumpet of holy war (fee his Life by M. Lancelot, in the Me- freedom as well as of valour.

VOL. VI.

moires de l'Academie des Infcriptions, tom.x. p. 718. 724, &c.).

<sup>5</sup> Robert Valturio published at Verona, in 1483, his xii books de Re Militari, in ? which he first mentions the use of bombs. By his patron Sigifmond Malatefta, prince of Rimini, it had been addreffed with a Latin epistle to Mahomet II.

<sup>6</sup> According to Phranza, he affiduoufly fludied the lives and actions of Alexander, Augustus, Constantine, and Theodofius. I have read fomewhere, that Plutarch's Lives were translated by his orders into the Turkish language. If the fultan himfelf understood Greck, it must have been for the benefit of his fubjects. Yet thefe lives are a fchool of

465

LXVIII.

30

and

LXVIII. -----

C H A P. and reward of the painters of Italy '. But the influence of religion and learning were employed without effect on his favage and licentious nature. I will not transcribe, nor do I firmly believe, the ftories of his fourteen pages, whole bellies were ripped open in fearch of a ftolen melon; or of the beauteous flave, whofe head he fevered from her body, to convince the Janizaries that their mafter was not the votary of love. His fobriety is attefted by the filence of the Turkish annals, which accuse three, and three only, of the Ottoman line of the vice of drunkenness 8. But it cannot be denied that his paffions were at once furious and inexorable; that in the palace, as in the field, a torrent of blood was fpilt on the flighteft provocation; and that the nobleft of the captive youth were often difhonoured by his unnatural luft. In the Albanian war, he studied the leffons, and foon furpaffed the example, of his father; and the conqueft of two empires, twelve kingdoms, and two hundred cities, a vain and flattering account, is afcribed to his invincible fword. He was doubtlefs a foldier, and poffibly a general; Conftantinople has fealed his glory; but if we compare the means, the obftacles, and the atchievements, Mahomet the fecond muft blufh to fuftain a parallel with Alexander or Timour. Under his command, the Ottoman forces were always more numerous than their enemies ; yet their progrefs was bounded by the Euphrates and the Adriatic; and his arms were checked by Huniades and Scanderbeg, by the Rhodian knights and by the Perfian king.

His reign, A. D. 1451, February9-A. D. 1481, July 2.

In the reign of Amurath, he twice tafted of royalty, and twice descended from the throne: his tender age was incapable of oppoling his father's reftoration, but never could he forgive the vizirs

7 The famous Gentile Bellino, whom he had invited from Venice, was difmiffed with a chain and collar of gold, and a purfe of 3000 ducats. With Voltaire, I laugh at the foolifh flory of a flave purpofely beheaded, to laft age, our European travellers were the instruct the painter in the action of the witnesses and companions of their revels. mufcles.

8 Thefe Imperial drunkards were Soliman I. Selim II. and Amurath IV. (Cantemir, p. 61.). The fophis of Perfia can produce a more regular fucceffion; and in the

466

who

who had recommended that falutary measure. His nuptials were C H A P. celebrated with the daughter of a Turkman emir; and, after a feftival of two months, he departed from Adrianople with his bride, to relide in the government of Magnelia. Before the end of fix weeks, he was recalled by a fudden meffage from the divan, which announced the decease of Amurath, and the mutinous spirit of the Janizaries. His fpeed and vigour commanded their obedience: he paffed the Hellespont with a chosen guard; and at the distance of a mile from Adrianople, the vizirs and emirs, the imams and cadhis, the foldiers and the people, fell proftrate before the new fultan They affected to weep, they affected to rejoice; he afcended the throne at the age of twenty-one years, and removed the caufe of fedition by the death, the inevitable death, of his infant brothers<sup>2</sup>. The ambaffadors of Europe and Afia foon appeared to congratulate his accceffion and folicit his friendship; and to all he spoke the language of moderation and peace. The confidence of the Greek emperor was revived by the folemn oaths and fair affurances, with which he fealed the ratification of the treaty : and a rich domain on the banks of the Strymon was affigned for the annual payment of three hundred thousand aspers, the pension of an Ottoman prince, who was detained at his requeft in the Byzantine court. Yet the neighbours of Mahomet might tremble at the feverity with which a youthful monarch reformed the pomp of his father's houfehold : the expences of luxury were applied to those of ambition, and an useles train of feven thousand falconers was either difmiffed from his fervice or enlifted in his troops. In the first fummer of his reign, he vifited with an army the Afiatic provinces; but after humbling the pride, Mahomet accepted the fubmiffion, of the Caramanian, that he faved from his cruel brother, and baptifed youth converfed with the aged prince at at Rome under the name of Calliftus Otho- Vienna, applauds his piety and wifdom (de mannus. The emperor Frederic III. pre- Cæfaribus, p. 672, 673 ). fented him with an effate in Auftria, where 9 Calapin, one of these royal infants, was he ended his life; and Cuspinian, who in his

302 might

LXVIII.

C H A P. might not be diverted by the fmallest obstacle from the execution of LXVIII. his great defign ".

Hoslile intentions of Mahomet, A. D. 1451.

The Mahometan, and more efpecially the Turkish casuifts, have pronounced that no promife can bind the faithful against the interest and duty of their religion; and that the fultan may abrogate his own treaties and those of his predeceffors. The justice and magnanimity of Amurath had fcorned this immoral privilege; but his fon, though the proudeft of men, could ftoop from ambition to the bafeft arts of diffimulation and deceit. Peace was on his lips, while war was in his heart : he inceffantly fighed for the poffeffion of Conftantinople; and the Greeks, by their own indifcretion, afforded the first pretence of the fatal rupture". Instead of labouring to be forgotten, their ambaffadors purfued his camp, to demand the payment, and even the encreafe, of their annual flipend : the divan was importuned by their complaints, and the vizir, a fecret friend of the Chriftians, was conftrained to deliver the fenfe of his brethren. " Ye " foolifh and miferable Romans," faid Calil, " we know your de-" vices, and ye are ignorant of your own danger ! the fcrupulous " Amurath is no more; his throne is occupied by a young con-" queror, whom no laws can bind and no obftacles can refift : and " if you escape from his hands, give praise to the divine clemency,

<sup>10</sup> See the acceffion of Mahomet II. in Ducas (c. 33.), Phranza (l. i. c. 33. l. iii. c. 2.), Chalcocondyles (l. vii. p. 199.), and Cantemir (p. 96.).

<sup>11</sup> Before I enter on the fiege of Conftantinople I fhall obferve, that except the front hints of Cantemir and Leunclavius, I have not been able to obtain any Turkifh account of this conqueft: fuch an account as we poffefs of the fiege of Rhodes by Soliman II. (Memoires de l'Academie des Inferiptions, tom. xxvi. p. 723-769.). I muft therefore depend on the Greeks, whofe prejudices, in fome degree, are fubdued by their diffrefs. Our flandard texts are thofe of Ducas (c. 34-42.), Phranza (l. iii. c. 7-20.), Chalcocondyles (l. viii. p. 201-214.), and Leonardus Chienfis (Hifforia C. P. a Turco expugnatæ. Norimberghæ, 1544, in 4to, 20 leaves). The last of thefe narratives is the earlieft in date, fince it was composed in the ille of Chios, the 16th of August 1453, only feventy-nine days after the lofs of the city, and in the first confusion of ideas and paffions. Some hints may be added from an epistle of cardinal Isidore (in Farragine Rerum Turcicarum, ad calcem Chalcocondyl. Clauseri, Bafil, 1556) to pope Nicholas V. and a tract of Theodofius Zygomala, which he addressed in the year 1581 to Martin Crufius (Turco-Græcia, l. i. p. 74-98. Bafil, 1584). The various facts and materials are briefly, though critically, reviewed by Spondanus (A. D. 1453, Nº 1-27.). The hearfay relations of Monftrelet and the diftant Latins, I shall take leave to difregard.

" which

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

" which yet delays the chaftifement of your fins. Why do ye feek C H A P. " to affright us by vain and indirect menaces? Releafe the fugitive ------" Orchan, crown him fultan of Romania ; call the Hungarians from " beyond the Danube; arm against us the nations of the West: " and be affured, that you will only provoke and precipitate your " ruin." But, if the fears of the ambaffadors were alarmed by the stern language of the vizir, they were foothed by the courteous audience and friendly speeches of the Ottoman prince; and Mahomet affured them that on his return to Adrianople he would redrefs the grievances, and confult the true intereft, of the Greeks. No fooner had he repassed the Hellespont than he issued a mandate to fupprefs their penfion, and to expel their officers from the banks of the Strymon: in this measure he betrayed an hostile mind; and the fecond order announced, and in fome degree commenced, the fiege of Conftantinople. In the narrow pass of the Bosphorus, an Afiatic fortrefs had formerly been raifed by his grandfather : in the oppofite fituation, on the European fide, he refolved to erect a more formidable caftle; and a thousand masons were commanded to affemble in the fpring on a fpot named Afomaton, about five miles from the Greek metropolis". Perfuation is the refource of the feeble; and the feeble can feldom perfuade : the ambaffadors of the emperor attempted, without fucces, to divert Mahomet from the execution of his defign. They reprefented, that his grandfather had folicited the permiffion of Manuel to build a caftle on his own territories; but that this double fortification, which would command the ftreight, could only tend to violate the alliance of the nations; to intercept the Latins who traded in the Black Sea, and perhaps to annihilate the fubfistence of the city. " I form no enterprife," replied the perfidious and Tournefort (Voyage dans le Levant, this Hiltory.

12 The fituation of the fortrefs, and the tom. ii. lettre xv. p. 443, 444.); but I muft topography of the Bofphorus, are best learn- regret the map or plan which Tournefort ed from Peter Gyllius (de Bosphoro Thracio, sent to the French minister of the marine. The 1. ii. c. 13 ), Leunclavius (Pandect. p. 445.), reader may turn back to vol. ii. ch. 17. of

fultan.

C H A P. fultan, " against the city; but the empire of Constantinople is mea-" fured by her walls. Have you forgot the diffrefs to which my " father was reduced, when you formed a league with the Hun-" garians; when they invaded our country by land, and the " Hellespont was occupied by the French gallies? Amurath was " compelled to force the paffage of the Bolphorus; and your " ftrength was not equal to your malevolence. I was then a child " at Adrianople; the Moflems trembled; and for a while the Ga-" bours 36 infulted our difgrace. But when my father had triumphed " in the field of Warna, he vowed to erect a fort on the western " fhore, and that vow it is my duty to accomplifh. Have ye " the right, have yet he power, to control my actions on my own " ground? For that ground is my own: as far as the fhores of the " Bolphorus, Afia is inhabited by the Turks, and Europe is deferted " by the Romans. Return, and inform your king that the prefent " Ottoman is far different from his predeceffors; that his refolutions " furpais their wifnes; and that he performs more than they could " refolve. Return in fafety-but the next who delivers a fimilar " meffage may expect to be flayed alive." After this declaration, Conftantine, the first of the Greeks in spirit as in rank 14, had determined to unsheathe the fword, and to resist the approach and establifhment of the Turks on the Bofphorus. He was difarmed by the advice of his civil and ecclefiaftical minifters, who recommended a fystem less generous, and even less prudent, than his own, to approve their patience and long-fuffering, to brand the Ottoman with > beftow on the Infidels, is expressed Kasove by Ducas, and Giaour by Leunclavius and the moderns. The former term is derived by and courage. Calliditatem hominis non ig-Ducange (Gloff Græc. tom. i. p. 530.) from Kaßerer in vulgar Greek, a tortoife, as denoting a retrograde motion from the faith. tum profani proceres, which he had heard, But, alas! Gabour is no more than Gheber, amentes spe vana pasci. Ducas was not a which was transferred from the Perfian to the privy-counfellor. Turkish language, from the worshippers of 13 The opprobrious name which the Turks fire to those of the crucifix (d'Herbelot, Bibliot. Orient. p. 375.).

14 Phranza does justice to his master's fense norans Imperator prior arma movere constituit, and fligmatifes the folly of the cum facri

the

LXVIII.

~~~~

the name and guilt of an aggreffor, and to depend on chance and C II A P. time for their own fafety and the deftruction of a fort which could not long be maintained in the neighbourhood of a great and populous city. Amidit hope and fear, the fears of the wife and the hopes of the credulous, the winter rolled away; the proper bufinefs of each man, and each hour, was postponed; and the Greeks shut their eyes against the impending danger, till the arrival of the spring and the fultan decided the affurance of their ruin.

Of a master who never forgives, the orders are feldom difobeyed. On the twenty-fixth of March, the appointed fpot of Afomaton was the Bofphocovered with an active fwarm of Turkish artificers; and the mate- A.D. 1452, rials by fea and land, were diligently transported from Europe and Afia¹⁵. The lime had been burnt in Cataphrygia; the timber was eut down in the woods of Heraclea and Nicomedia; and the ftones were dug from the Anatolian quarries. Each of the thouland malons was affifted by two workmen; and a meafure of two cubits was marked for their daily tafk. The fortrefs '6 was built in a triangular form; each angle was flanked by a ftrong and maffy tower; one on the declivity of the hill, two along the fea-fhore: a thickness of twenty-two feet was affigned for the walls, thirty for the towers; and the whole building was covered with a folid platform of lead. Mahomet himfelf preffed and directed the work with indefatigable ardour : his three vizirs claimed the honour of finishing their refpective towers; the zeal of the cadhis emulated that of the Janizaries; the meaneft labour was ennobled by the fervice of God and the fultan; and the diligence of the multitude was quickened by the eye of a defpot, whofe fmile was the hope of fortune, and whofe frown was the meffenger of death. The Greek emperor beheld with ¹⁵ Inflead of this clear and confiftent ac- valuable than the Greek hiftorians. count, the Turkifh Annals (Cantemir, p. 97.) revived the foolifh tale of the ox's hide, and old caftle of Europe, Phranza does not ex-Dido's stratagem in the foundation of Carthage. These annals (unless we are swayed scription has been verified on the spot by his by an antichristian prejudice) are far less editor Leunclavius.

16 In the dimensions of this fortress, the actly agree with Chalcocondyles, whole de-terror

He builds a fortress on March.

47I

LXVIII.

C H A P. terror the irrefiftible progress of the work; and vainly ftrove, by LXVIII. flattery and gifts, to affuage an implacable foe, who fought, and fecretly fomented, the flightest occasion of a quarrel. Such occafions must foon and inevitably be found. The ruins of stately churches, and even the marble columns which had been confecrated to St. Michael the archangel, were employed without fcruple by the profane and rapacious Moflems; and fome Chriftians, who prefumed to oppofe the removal, received from their hands the crown of martyrdom. Conftantine had folicited a Turkish guard to protect the fields and harvefts of his fubjects : the guard was fixed ; but their first order was to allow free pasture to the mules and horses of the camp, and to defend their brethren if they fhould be molefted by the natives. The retinue of an Ottoman chief had left their horfes to pass the night among the ripe corn: the damage was felt; the infult was refented; and feveral of both nations were flain in a tumultuous conflict. Mahomet liftened with joy to the complaint; and a detachment was commanded to exterminate the guilty village: the guilty had fled; but forty innocent and unfufpecting The Turkish reapers were maffacred by the foldiers. Till this provocation, Conwar, ftantinople had been open to the vifits of commerce and curiofity: June ; on the first alarm, the gates were shut; but the emperor, still anxious for peace, releafed on the third day his Turkish captives "; and expreffed, in a last message, the firm refignation of a Christian and a foldier. "Since neither oaths, nor treaty, nor fubmiffion, can fe-" cure peace, purfue," faid he to Mahomet, " your impious war-" fare. My truft is in God alone : if it fhould pleafe him to mollify " your heart, I shall rejoice in the happy change; if he delivers the " city into your hands, I fubmit without a murmur to his holy will. " But until the Judge of the earth shall pronounce between us, it is " my duty to live and die in the defence of my people." The fultan's anfwer was hoftile and decifive : his fortifications were com> > pleted;

> ¹⁷ Among these were fome pages of Mahomet fo confcious of his inexorable rigour, city unless they could return before fun-fet.

pleted; and before his departure for Adrianople, he stationed a vi- C H A P. gilant Aga and four hundred Janizaries, to levy a tribute of the thins of every nation that should pass within the reach of their cannon. A Venetian veffel, refufing obedience to the new lords of the Bofphorus, was funk with a fingle bullet. The mafter and thirty failors escaped in the boat; but they were dragged in chains to the porte: the chief was impaled; his companions were beheaded; and the historian Ducas's beheld, at Demotica, their bodies exposed to the wild beafts. The fiege of Conftantinople was deferred till the enfuing fpring; but an Ottoman army marched into the Morea to divert the force of the brothers of Conftantine. At this æra of ca- A. D. 1453, lamity, one of these princes, the despot Thomas, was bleffed or afflicted with the birth of a fon; " the laft heir," fays the plaintive Phranza, " of the laft fpark of the Roman empire "?."

The Greeks and the Turks paffed an anxious and fleeplefs winter: Preparations the former were kept awake by their fears, the latter by their hopes; both by the preparations of defence and attack; and the two emperors, who had the most to lofe or to gain, were the most deeply affected by the national fentiment. In Mahomet, that fentiment April. was inflamed by the ardour of his youth and temper: he amufed his leifure with building at Adrianople²⁰ the lofty palace of Jehan Numa (the watch-tower of the world); but his ferious thoughts were irrevocably bent on the conqueft of the city of Cæfar. At the dead of night, about the fecond watch, he ftarted from his bed, and commanded the inftant attendance of his prime vizir. The meffage, the hour, the prince, and his own fituation, alarmed the guilty confcience of Calil Batha; who had poffeffed the confidence, and ad-

19 Auctum eft Palzologorum genus, et Imperii successor, parvæque Romanorum scintillæ hæres natus, Andreas, &c. (Phranza, l. iii. c. 7.) The frong expression

VOL. VI.

20 Cantemir, p. 97, 98. The fultan was either doubtful of his conquest, or ignorant of the fuperior merits of Conftantinople. A city or a kingdom may fometimes be ruined by the Imperial fortune of their fovereign.

3 P

January 17.

for the fiege of Constantinople, A. D. 1452, September-A. D. 1453.

473

LXVIIL _____ September 1:

¹⁸ Ducas, c. 35. Phranza (l. iii. c. 3.), who had failed in his veffel, commemorates the Venetian pilot as a martyr.

was infpired by his feelings.

C H A P. vifed the reftoration, of Amurath. On the acceffion of the fon, the vizir was confirmed in his office and the appearances of favour; but the veteran statesman was not infensible that he trod on a thin and flippery ice, which might break under his footfteps, and plunge him in the abyls. His friendship for the Christians, which might be innocent under the late reign, had ftigmatifed him with the name of Gabour Ortachi, or foster-brother of the infidels²¹; and his avarice entertained a venal and treafonable correspondence, which was detected and punished after the conclusion of the war. On receiving the royal mandate, he embraced, perhaps for the laft time, his wife and children; filled a cup with pieces of gold, haftened to the palace, adored the fultan, and offered, according to the Oriental cuftom, the flight tribute of his duty and gratitude 22. " It is not my wifh," faid Mahomet, " to refume my gifts, but rather to heap and multiply " them on thy head. In my turn I afk a prefent far more valuable " and important ;---Conftantinople." As foon as the vizir had recovered from his furprife, " the fame God," faid he, " who has " already given thee fo large a portion of the Roman empire, will " not deny the remnant, and the capital. His providence, and thy " power, affure thy fucces; and myself, with the reft of thy faithful " flaves, will facrifice our lives and fortunes." " Lala 23," (or preceptor), continued the fultan, " do you fee this pillow ? all the night, " in my agitation, I have pulled it on one fide and the other; I " have rifen from my bed, again have I lain down; yet fleep has > 24 Durrfoque, by the prefident Coufin, is fuch Perfian gifts, Ælian, Hift. Var. 1. i. tranflated pere nourricier, most correctly in- c. 31, 32, 33. deed from the Latin version; but in his hafte, he has overlooked the note by which Ifmael Boillaud (ad Ducam, c. 35) acknowledges and rectifies his own error.

> 22 The Oriental cuftom of never appearing without gifts before a fovereign or a fu- rents, are the fimple repetition of one fylperior, is of high antiquity, and fcems analogous with the idea of facrifice, still more nant and an open vowel (des Brosses, Mecha-

23 The Lala of the Turks (Cantemir, p. 34.). and the Tata of the Greeks (Ducas, c. 35.), are derived from the natural language of children; and it may be observed, that all fuch primitive words which denote their palable, composed of a labial or dental confoancient and universal. See the examples of nisme des Langues, tom. i. p. 231-247.).

" not

* not visited these weary eyes. Beware of the gold and filver of C H A P. " the Romans: in arms we are fuperior; and with the aid of God. " and the prayers of the prophet, we shall speedily become masters " of Conftantinople." To found the difpolition of his foldiers, he often wandered through the ftreets alone and in difguife: and it was fatal to difcover the fultan, when he wished to escape from the vulgar eye. His hours were fpent in delineating the plan of the hoftile city: in debating with his generals and engineers, on what fpot he should erect his batteries; on which fide he should affault the walls; where he fhould fpring his mines; to what place he fhould apply his fcaling-ladders : and the exercises of the day repeated and proved the lucubrations of the night.

Among the implements of deftruction, he ftudied with peculiar The great care the recent and tremendous difcovery of the Latins; and his ar- Mahomet. tillery furpaffed whatever had yet appeared in the world. A founder of cannon, a Dane or Hungarian, who had been almost starved in the Greek fervice, deferted to the Moflems, and was liberally entertained by the Turkish fultan. Mahomet was fatisfied with the answer to his first question, which he eagerly presed on the artist. ⁴⁶ Am I able to caft a cannon capable of throwing a ball or ftone " of fufficient fize to batter the walls of Conftantinople? I am not " ignorant of their ftrength, but were they more folid than those of " Babylon, I could oppofe an engine of fuperior power: the poli-" tion and management of that engine must be left to your en-" gineers." On this affurance, a foundery was established at Adrianople: the metal was prepared; and at the end of three months, Urban produced a piece of brass ordnance of stupendous, and almost incredible, magnitude; a measure of twelve palms is affigued to the bore; and the ftone bullet weighed above fix hundred pounds²⁴. A vacant place before the new palace was chosen for the firft

²⁴ The Attic talent weighed about fixty on Ancient Weights, Measures, &c.): but minæ, or averdupois pounds (fee Hooper among the modern Greeks, that claffic ap-3 P 2 pellation cannon of 475

LXVIII.

C H A P. first experiment ; but, to prevent the fudden and mischievous effects of aftonifhment and fear, a proclamation was islued, that the cannon would be difcharged the enfuing day. The explosion was felt or heard in a circuit of an hundred furlongs : the ball, by the force of gunpowder, was driven above a mile; and on the fpot where it fell, it buried itfelf a fathom deep in the ground. For the conveyance of this destructive engine, a frame or carriage of thirty waggons was linked together and drawn along by a team of fixty oxen: two hundred men on both fides were flationed to poife and fupport the rolling weight; two hundred and fifty workmen marched before to fmooth the way and repair the bridges; and near two months were employed in a laborious journey of one hundred and fifty miles. A lively philofopher²⁵ derides on this occasion the credulity of the Greeks, and observes, with much reason, that we should always distrust the exaggerations of a vanquifhed people. He calculates, that a ball, even. of two hundred pounds, would require a charge of one hundred and fifty pounds of powder; and that the ftroke would be feeble and impotent, fince not a fifteenth part of the mafs could be inflamed at the fame moment. A ftranger as I am to the art of deftruction, I can difcern that the modern improvements of artillery prefer the number of pieces to the weight of metal; the quickness of the fire to the found, or even the confequence, of a fingle explosion. Yet. I dare not reject the politive and unanimous evidence of contemporary writers; nor can it feem improbable, that the first artist, in their rude and ambitious efforts, fhould have tranfgreffed the ftandard of moderation. A Turkish cannon, more enormous than that of Mahomet, still guards the entrance of the Dardanelles; and ifthe use be inconvenient, it has been found on a late trial that the.

I

effect

476

LXVIII.

pellation was extended to a weight of one 25 See Voltaire (Hift. Generale, c. xci, hundred, or one hundred and twenty-five p. 294, 295.). He was ambitious of univerpounds (Ducange, $\tau_{\alpha\lambda\alpha\tau\tau\sigma\gamma}$). Leonardus fal monarchy; and the poet frequently afpires Chienfis measured the ball or ftone of the to the name and ftyle of an aftronomer, a fecond cannon : Lapidem, qui palmis unde. chymift, &c. cim ex meis ambibat in gyro.

effect was far from contemptible. A ftone bullet of eleven hun- C H A P. dred pounds weight was once difcharged with three hundred and thirty pounds of powder; at the diftance of fix hundred yards it fhivered into three rocky fragments, traverfed the ftreight, and, leaving the waters in a foam, again role and bounded against the oppofite hill 26.

While Mahomet threatened the capital of the Eaft, the Greek Mahomet II. emperor implored with fervent prayers the affiftance of earth and heaven. But the invisible powers were deaf to his fupplications; and Chriftendom beheld with indifference the fall of Conftantinople, while the derived at leaft fome promife of fupply from the jealous and temporal policy of the fultan of Egypt. Some flates were too weak, and others too remote; by fome the danger was confidered as imaginary, by others as inevitable : the Western princes were involved in their endless and domestic quarrels; and the Roman' pontiff was exafperated by the falfehood or obftinacy of the Greeks. Inftead of employing in their favour the arms and treasures of Italy, Nicholas the fifth had foretold their approaching ruin; and his honour was engaged in the accomplishment of his prophecy. Perhaps he was foftened by the laft extremity of their diffrefs; but his compaffion was tardy; his efforts were faint and unavailing; and Conftantinople had fallen, before the fquadrons of Genoa and Venice could fail from their harbours 27. Even the princes of the Morea and of the Greek islands affected a cold neutrality : the Genoefe colony of Galata negociated a private treaty; and the fultanindulged them in the delufive hope, that by his clemency they might. furvive the ruin of the empire. A plebeian crowd, and fome Byzantine nobles, bafely withdrew from the danger of their country; and.

26 The Baron de Tott (tom. iii. p. 85-89.), who fortified the Dardanelles against honest Antoninus; but as the Roman court the Ruffians, describes in a lively, and even comic, firain his own prowefs, and the consternation of the Turks. But that adventurous traveller does not posses the art of positive affertion of Æneas Sylvius, structam gaining our confidence.

27 Non audivit, indignum ducens, fays the was afterwards grieved and afhamed, we find the more courtly expression of Platina, inanimo fuisse pontifici juvare Græcos, and the classen, &c. (Spond, A. D. 1453, Nº 3.). the forms the fiege of Conftantinople, A. D. 1453, April 6.

LXVIII.

LXVIII. -----

478

C H A P. the avarice of the rich denied the emperor, and referved for the Turks, the fecret treasures which might have raifed in their defence whole armies of mercenaries 28. The indigent and folitary prince prepared however to fustain his formidable adverfary; but if his courage were equal to the peril, his ftrength was inadequate to the conteft. In the beginning of the fpring, the Turkish vanguard fwept the towns and villages as far as the gates of Conftantinople : fubmiffion was fpared and protected; whatever prefumed to refift was exterminated with fire and fword. The Greek places on the Black Sea, Mefembria, Acheloum, and Bizon, furrendered on the first fummons; Selybria alone deferved the honours of a fiege or blockade; and the bold inhabitants, while they were invefted by land, launched their boats, pillaged the oppofite coaft of Cyzicus, and fold their captives in the public market. But on the approach of Mahomet himfelf all was filent and proftrate : he first halted at the diftance of five miles; and from thence advancing in battle array, plauted before the gate of St. Romanus the Imperial standard; and, on the fixth day of April, formed the memorable fiege of Conftantinople.

Forces of the Turks;

The troops of Afia and Europe extended on the right and left from the Propontis to the harbour : the Janizaries in the front were flationed before the fultan's tent; the Ottoman line was covered by a deep intrenchment; and a fubordinate army inclosed the fuburb of Galata, and watched the doubtful faith of the Genoefe. The inquifitive Philelphus, who refided in Greece about thirty years before the fiege, is confident, that all the Turkish forees, of any name or value, could not exceed the number of fixty thousand horse and twenty thousand foot; and he upbraids the pufillanimity of the nations, who had tamely yielded to an handful of Barbarians.

28 Antonin. in Proem. - Epift. Cardinal. Ifidor. apud Spondanum; and Dr. Johnfon, in the tragedy of Irene, has happily feized this characteriftic circumftance :

The groaning Greeks dig up the golden caverns, The accumulated wealth of hoarding ages; That wealth which, granted to their weeping prince Had rang'd embattled nations at their gates.

Such

Such indeed might be the regular establishment of the Capiculi 20, C H A P. the troops of the Porte, who marched with the prince, and were paid from his royal treafury. But the bashaws, in their respective governments, maintained or levied a provincial militia; many lands were held by a military tenure; many volunteers were attracted by the hope of fpoil; and the found of the holy trumpet invited a fwarm of hungry and fearlefs fanatics, who might contribute at leaft to multiply the terrors, and in a first attack to blunt the fwords, of the Christians. The whole mass of the Turkish powers is magnified by Ducas, Chalcocondyles, and Leonard of Chios, to the amount of three or four hundred thousand men ; but Phranza was a lefs remote and more accurate judge; and his precife definition of two hundred and fifty-eight thousand does not exceed the measure of experience and probability 3°. The navy of the befiegers was lefs formidable: the Propontis was overfpread with three hundred and twenty fail; but of thefe no more than eighteen could be rated as gallies of war; and the far greater part must be degraded to the condition of ftorefhips and transports, which poured into the camp fresh supplies of men, ammunition, and provisions. In her last decay, of the Conftantinople was still peopled with more than an hundred thoufand inhabitants; but these numbers are found in the accounts, not of war, but of captivity; and they moftly confifted of mechanics, of priefts, of women, and of men devoid of that spirit which even women have fometimes exerted for the common fafety. I can fuppofe, I could almost excuse, the reluctance of subjects to ferve on a diftant frontier, at the will of a tyrant; but the man who dares not expose his life in the defence of his children and his property has 29 The palatine troops are ftyled Capiculi, the provincials, Seratculi: and most of the names and inflitutions of the Turkish militia existed before the Canon Nameb of Soliman II. from which, and his own experience, count Marfigli has composed his military state of the Ottoman empire.

3º The observation of Philelphus is approved by Cuspinian in the year 1508 (de-Cæfaribus, in Epilog. de Militia Turcica, p. 697.). Marfigli proves, that the effective armies of the Turks are much lefs numerouthan they appear. In the army that befieged Constantinople, Leonardus Chiensis reckons no more than 15,000 Janizaries.

Greeks.

LXVIII.

479

loft

C H A P. loft in fociety the first and most active energies of nature. By the emperor's command, a particular enquiry had been made through the ftreets and houfes, how many of the citizens, or even of the monks, were able and willing to bear arms for their country. The lifts were entrusted to Phranza³¹; and, after a diligent addition, he informed his mafter, with grief and furprife, that the national defence was reduced to four thousand nine hundred and feventy Romans. Between Conftantine and his faithful minister, this comfortlefs fecret was preferved; and a fufficient proportion of fhields, crofsbows, and mufkets, was diffributed from the arfenal to the city bands. They derived fome accession from a body of two thousand ftrangers, under the command of John Juftiniani, a noble Genoefe; a liberal donative was advanced to thefe auxiliaries; and a princely recompense, the isle of Lemnos, was promised to the valour and victory of their chief. A ftrong chain was drawn acrofs the mouth of the harbour : it was supported by some Greek and Italian veffels of war and merchandife; and the fhips of every Christian nation, that fucceffively arrived from Candia and the Black Sea, were detained for the public fervice. Against the powers of the Ottoman empire, a city of the extent of thirteen, perhaps of fixteen, miles was defended by a fcanty garrifon of feven or eight thousand foldiers. Europe and Afia were open to the beliegers; but the ftrength and provisions of the Greeks must fustain a daily decrease; nor could they indulge the expectation of any foreign fuccour or fupply.

Falle union of the two churches. A. D. 1452, Dec. 12.

The primitive Romans would have drawn their fwords in the refolution of death or conqueft. The primitive Christians might have embraced each other, and awaited in patience and charity the ftroke of martyrdom. But the Greeks of Conftantinople were animated only by the fpirit of religion, and that fpirit was productive only of non absque dolore et moestitia, mansitque authentic witness, not only of public facts, apud nos duos aliis occultus numerus (Phran- but of private counfels. za, l. iii. c. 8.). With fome indulgence for

³⁴ Ego, eidem (Imp.) tabellas extribui national prejudices, we cannot defire a more animofity

480

LXVIII.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

animofity and difcord. Before his death, the emperor John Palaelogus C H A P. had renounced the unpopular measure of an union with the Latins; nor was the idea revived, till the diftrefs of his brother Conftantine imposed a last trial of flattery and diffimulation 32. With the demand of temporal aid, his ambaffadors were inftructed to mingle the affurance of fpiritual obedience : his neglect of the church was excufed by the urgent cares of the ftate; and his orthodox wifhes folicited the prefence of a Roman legate. The Vatican had been too often deluded; yet the figns of repentance could not decently be overlooked; a legate was more eafily granted than an army; and about fix months before the final destruction, the cardinal Isidore of Russia appeared in that character with a retinue of priefts and foldiers. The emperor faluted him as a friend and father; respectfully listened to his public and private fermons; and with the most obsequious of the clergy and laymen fubfcribed the act of union, as it had been ratified in the council of Florence. On the twelfth of December, the two nations, in the church of St. Sophia, joined in the communion of facrifice and prayer; and the names of the two pontiffs were folemnly commemorated; the names of Nicholas the fifth, the vicar of Chrift, and of the patriarch Gregory who had been driven into exile by a rebellious people.

But the drefs and language of the Latin prieft who officiated at the Obflinacy altar, were an object of fcandal; and it was obferved with horror, cifm of the that he confecrated a cake or wafer of unleavened bread, and poured cold water into the cup of the facrament. A national hiftorian acknowledges with a blufh, that none of his countrymen, not the emperor himfelf, were fincere in this occafional conformity³³. Their hafty and unconditional fubmiffion was palliated by a promife of ³³ In Spondanus, the narrative of the union is not only partial, but imperfect. The acknowledges that the measure was adopted bishop of Pamiers died in 1642, and the history only propter spem auxilii; he affirms with of Ducas, which reprefents these fcenes (c. 36, 37.) with fuch truth and fpirit, was their devotions in St. Sophia, extra culpam not printed till the year 1649.

VOL. VI.

³³ Phranza, one of the conforming Greeks, pleasure, that those who refused to perform et in pace effent (l. iii. c. 20.).

3 Q

future

and fanati-Greeks.

481

LXVIII.

LXVIII. -----

C H A P. future revifal; but the beft, or the worft, of their excufes was the confession of their own perjury. When they were preffed by the reproaches of their honeft brethren, " Have patience," they whifpered, " have patience till God fhall have delivered the city from " the great dragon who feeks to devour us. You shall then per-" ceive whether we are truly reconciled with the Azymites." But patience is not the attribute of zeal; nor can the arts of a court be adapted to the freedom and violence of popular enthuliafm. From the dome of St. Sophia, the inhabitants of either fex, and of every degree, rushed in crowds to the cell of the monk Gennadius³⁺, to confult the oracle of the church. The holy man was invifible; entranced, as it fhould feem, in deep meditation, or divine rapture: but he had exposed on the door of his cell, a speaking tablet; and they fucceffively withdrew after reading thefe tremendous words: " O miferable Romans, why will ye abandon the truth; and why, " inftead of confiding in God, will ye put your truft in the Italians? " In lofing your faith, you will lofe your city. Have mercy on " me, O Lord ! I proteft in thy prefence, that I am innocent of the " crime. O miferable Romans, confider, paufe, and repent. At " the fame moment that you renounce the religion of your fathers, " by embracing impiety, you fubmit to a foreign fervitude." According to the advice of Gennadius, the religious virgins, as pure as angels and as proud as dæmons, rejected the act of union, and abjured all communion with the prefent and future affociates of the Latins; and their example was applauded and imitated by the greateft part of the clergy and people. From the monaftery, the devout Greeks difperfed themfelves in the taverns; drank confusion to the flaves of the pope; emptied their glaffes in honour of the > George Scholarius, which he changed for that tom. x. p. 760-786.) to divide him into of Gennadius, either when he became a monk two men; but Renaudot (p. 343-383.) has or a patriarch. His defence, at Florence, of reftored the identity of his perfon and the the fame union which he fo furioufly attacked duplicity of his character. at Constantinople, has tempted Leo Allatius 34 His primitive and fecular name was (Diatrib. de Georgies, in Fabric. Bibliot. Grac.

image

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

image of the holy Virgin; and befought her to defend againft Ma- C H A P. homet, the city which the had formerly faved from Chofroes and the Chagan. In the double intoxication of zeal and wine, they valiantly exclaimed, " What occafion have we for fuccour, or union, " or Latins? far from us be the worship of the Azymites !" During the winter that preceded the Turkish conquest, the nation was diftracted by this epidemical frenzy; and the feafon of Lent, the approach of Easter, instead of breathing charity and love, ferved only to fortify the obfiinacy and influence of the zealots. The confessors fcrutinifed and alarmed the confcience of their votaries, and a rigorous penance was imposed on those, who had received the communion from a prieft, who had given an express or tacit confent to the union. His fervice at the altar propagated the infection to the mute and fimple fpectators of the ceremony : they forfeited, by the impure spectacle, the virtue of the facerdotal character; nor was it lawful, even in danger of fudden death, to invoke the affiftance of their prayers or abfolution. No fooner had the church of St. Sophia been polluted by the Latin facrifice, than it was deferted as a Jewifh fynagogue, or an heathen temple, by the clergy and people: and a vaft and gloomy filence prevailed in that venerable dome, which had fo often fmoked with a cloud of incenfe, blazed with innumerable lights, and refounded with the voice of prayer and thankfgiving. The Latins were the most odious of heretics and infidels; and the first minister of the empire, the great duke, was heard to declare, that he had rather behold in Conftantinople the turban of Mahomet, than the pope's tiara or a cardinal's hat³⁵. A fentiment fo unworthy of Christians and patriots, was familiar and fatal to the Greeks : the emperor was deprived of the affection and support of his subjects; and their native cowardice was fanctified by refignation to the divine decree, or the vifionary hope of a miraculous deliverance.

35 Diaziolior, zalumtpa, may be fairly tranf- the Greek and Latin habits embittered the lated a cardinal's hat. The difference of schifm.

3Q2

483

LXVIII.

LXVIII. Siege of Conflantinople by Mahomet II. A. D. 1453, April 6-May 29.

CHAP.

484

Of the triangle which compofes the figure of Conftantinople, the two fides along the fea were made inacceffible to an enemy; the Propontis by nature, and the harbour by art. Between the two' waters, the bafis of the triangle, the land fide was protected by a double wall, and a deep ditch of the depth of one hundred feet. Against this line of fortification, which Phranza, an eye-witness, prolongs to the measure of fix miles³⁶, the Ottomans directed their principal attack; and the emperor, after diffributing the fervice and command of the most perilous stations, undertook the defence of the external wall. In the first days of the fiege, the Greek foldiers defcended into the ditch, or fallied into the field; but they foon difcovered, that, in the proportion of their numbers, one Christian was of more value than twenty Turks: and, after thefe bold preludes, they were prudently content to maintain the rampart with their miffile weapons. Nor fhould this prudence be accufed of pufillanimity. The nation was indeed pufillanimous and bafe; but the laft Conftantine deferves the name of an hero: his noble band of volunteers was infpired with Roman virtue; and the foreign auxiliaries fupported the honour of the Western chivalry. The inceffant vollies of lances and arrows were accompanied with the fmoke, the found, and the fire, of their mufketry and cannon. Their fmall arms difcharged at the fame time either five, or even ten, balls of lead, of the fize of a walnut; and, according to the clofenefs of the ranks and the force of the powder, feveral breaft-plates and bodies were transpierced by the fame fhot. But the Turkish approaches were foon funk in trenches, or covered with ruins. Each day added to the fcience of the Christians; but their inadequate stock of gunpowder was wasted in the operations of each day. Their ordnance was not powerful, either in fize or number; and if they

poffeffed

³⁶ We are obliged to reduce the Greek miles of Phranza do not exceed four English miles to the fmallest measure which is preferved in the wersts of Russia, of 547 French 123, &c.). toi/ct, and of $104\frac{3}{2}$ to a degree. The fix

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

poffeffed fome heavy cannon, they feared to plant them on the walls, C H A P. left the aged ftructure fhould be fhaken and overthrown by the explofion³⁷. The fame deftructive fecret had been revealed to the Moflems; by whom it was employed with the fuperior energy of zeal, riches, and despotism. The great cannon of Mahomet has been feparately noticed; an important and visible object in the history of the times: but that enormous engine was flanked by two fellows almost of equal magnitude 33: the long order of the Turkish artillery was pointed against the walls; fourteen batteries thundered at once on the most accessible places; and of one of these it is ambiguoufly expressed, that it was mounted with one hundred and thirty guns, or that it discharged one hundred and thirty bullets. Yet, in the power and activity of the fultan, we may difcern the infancy of the new science. Under a master who counted the moments, the great cannon could be loaded and fired no more than feven times in one day 39. The heated metal unfortunately burft; feveral workmen were destroyed; and the skill of an artist was admired who bethought himfelf of preventing the danger and the accident, by pouring oil, after each explosion, into the mouth of the cannon.

The first random shots were productive of more found than effect; Attack and and it was by the advice of a Christian, that the engineers were taught to level their aim against the two opposite fides of the falient angles of a baftion. However imperfect, the weight and repetition of the fire made fome impreffion on the walls; and the Turks.

37 At indies doctiores nostri facti paravere contra hostes machinamenta, quæ tamen avare dabantur. Pulvis erat nitri modica exigua; tela modica; bombardæ, fi aderant incommoditate loci primum hoftes offendere maceriebus alveifque tectos non poterant. Nam fiquæ magnæ erant, ne murus concuteretur nofter, quiescebant. This paffage of Leonardus Chienfis is curious and important.

38 According to Chalcocondyles and Phran-za, the great cannon burft; an accident which, according to Ducas, was prevented by the artift's fkill. It is evident that they do not speak of the fame gun.

39 Near an hundred years after the fiege of Conftantinople, the French and English fleets in the Channel were proud of firing 300 fhot in an engagement of two hours (Memoires de Martin du Bellay, I. x. in the Collection Generale, tom. xxi. p. 239.).

pufhing

defence.

485

LXVIII. .

C H A P. pufhing their approaches to the edge of the ditch, attempted to fill LXVIII. the enormous chafm, and to build a road to the affault ". Innumerable fafcines, and hogfheads, and trunks of trees, were heaped on each other; and fuch was the impetuofity of the throng, that the foremost and the weakest were pushed headlong down the precipice, and inftantly buried under the accumulated mafs. To fill the ditch, was the toil of the beliegers; to clear away the rubbifh, was the fafety of the belieged; and, after a long and bloody conflict, the web that had been woven in the day was ftill unravelled in the night. The next refource of Mahomet was the practice of mines; but the foil was rocky; in every attempt he was flopped and undermined by the Christian engineers; nor had the art been yet invented of replenishing those subterraneous passages with gunpowder, and blowing whole towers and cities into the air 41. A circumftance that diftinguishes the fiege of Constantinople, is the re-union of the ancient and modern artillery. The cannon were intermingled with the mechanical engines for cafting ftones and darts; the bullet and the battering-ram were directed against the fame walls; nor had the difcovery of gunpowder fuperfeded the ufe of the liquid and unextinguishable fire. A wooden turret of the largest fize was advanced on rollers : this portable magazine of ammunition and fafcines was protected by a threefold covering of bulls hides; inceffant vollies were fecurely discharged from the loop-holes; in the front, three doors were contrived for the alternate fally and retreat of the foldiers and workmen. They afcended by a flair-cafe to the upper powder appears in 1480, in a MS. of George of Sienna (Tirabofchi, tom. vi. P. i. p. 324.). They were first practifed at Sarzanella, in 1487; but the honour and improvement in 1503 is aferibed to Peter of Navarre, who used them with fuccess in the wars of Italy (Hift. de la Ligue de Cambray, tom. ii. p. 93 -97.).

41 The first theory of mines with gun-

2 platform;

486

^{4°} I have felected fome curious facts, without firiving to emulate the bloody and obflinate eloquence of the abbé de Vertot, in his prolix defcriptions of the fieges of Rhodes, Malta, &c. But that agreeable hiftorian had a turn for romance, and as he wrote to pleafe the order, he has adopted the fame fpirit of eethufiafm and chivalry.

platform; and, as high as the level of that platform, a fcaling- C H A P. ladder could be raifed by pullies to form a bridge and grapple with the adverse rampart. By these various arts of annoyance, some as new as they were pernicious to the Greeks, the tower of St. Romanus was at length overturned : after a fevere ftruggle, the Turks were repulied from the breach and interrupted by darknes; but they trufted, that with the return of light they fhould renew the attack with fresh vigour and decisive fuccess. Of this pause of action, this interval of hope, each moment was improved by the activity of the emperor and Justiniani, who passed the night on the spot, and urged the labours which involved the fafety of the church and city. At the dawn of day, the impatient fultan perceived, with aftonifhment and grief, that his wooden turret had been reduced to afhes: the ditch was cleared and reftored; and the tower of St. Romanus was again ftrong and entire. He deplored the failure of his defign; and uttered a profane exclamation, that the word of the thirty-feven thousand prophets should not have compelled him to believe that fuch a work, in fo fhort a time, could have been accomplifhed by the infidels.

The generofity of the Chriftian princes was cold and tardy; but Succour and in the first apprehension of a siege, Constantine had negociated, in four thips, the ifles of the Archipelago, the Morea, and Sicily, the most indifpenfable fupplies. As early as the beginning of April, five 42 great ships, equipped for merchandife and war, would have failed from the harbour of Chios, had not the wind blown obftinately from the north 43. One of thefe thips bore the Imperial flag; the remaining four belonged to the Genoefe; and they were laden with wheat and barley, with wine, oil, and vegetables, and, above all, with foldiers

42 It is fingular that the Greeks fhould not fluips to Frederic III. confounds the emperors agree in the number of thefe illustrious veffels; of the East and West. the five of Ducas, the four of Phranza and Leonardus, and the tavo of Chalcocondy les, muft rance, of language and geography, the prefident be extended to the fmaller, or confined to Coufin detains them at Chios with a fouth, and 43 In bold defiance, or rather in groß ignolarger, fize. Voltaire, in giving one of these wasts them to Constantinople with a north, wind.

-

and.

victory of

C H A P. and mariners, for the fervice of the capital. After a tedious delay, a gentle breeze, and, on the fecond day, a ftrong gale from the L fouth, carried them through the Hellespont and the Propontis: but the city was already invefted by fea and land; and the Turkifh fleet, at the entrance of the Bofphorus, was ftretched from fhore to shore, in the form of a crescent, to intercept, or at least to repel, thefe bold auxiliaries. The reader who has prefent to his mind the geographical picture of Conftantinople, will conceive and admire the greatness of the spectacle. The five Christian ships continued to advance with joyful fhouts, and a full prefs, both of fails and oars, against an hoftile flect of three hundred veffels; and the rampart, the camp, the coafts of Europe and Afia, were lined with innumerable spectators, who anxiously awaited the event of this momentous fuccour. At the first view that event could not appear doubtful; the fuperiority of the Moflems was beyond all meafure or account; and, in a calm, their numbers and valour muft inevitably have prevailed. But their hafty and imperfect navy had been created, not by the genius of the people, but by the will of the fultan : in the height of their profperity, the Turks have acknowledged, that if God had given them the earth, he had left the fea to the infidels 44; and a feries of defeats, a rapid progrefs of decay, has established the truth of their modest confession. Except eighteen gallies of fome force, the reft of their fleet confifted of open boats, rudely conftructed and awkwardly managed, crowded with troops, and deftitute of cannon; and, fince courage arifes in a great meafure from the confciousness of ftrength, the bravest of the Janizaries might tremble on a new element. In the Christian fquadron, five ftout and lofty thips were guided by fkilful pilots, and manned with the veterans of Italy and Greece, long practifed in the arts and perils

LXVIII.

of

⁴⁴ The perpetual decay and weakness of -242.), and Tott (Memoires, tom. iii.); \ the Turkish navy, may be observed in Ry- the last of whom is always solicitous to amuse caut (State of the Ottoman Empire, p. 372 and amaze his reader. -378.), Thevenot (Voyages, P. i. p. 229 of the fea. Their weight was directed to fink or featter the weak C H A P. obstacles that impeded their paffage : their artillery fwept the waters : their liquid fire was poured on the heads of the adverfaries, who, with the defign of boarding, prefumed to approach them : and the winds and waves are always on the fide of the ableft navigators. In this conflict, the Imperial veffel, which had been almost overpowered, was refcued by the Genoefe; but the Turks, in a diftant and a clofer attack, were twice repulfed with confiderable lofs. Mahomet himfelf fat on horfeback on the beach, to encourage their valour by his voice and prefence, by the promife of reward, and by fear, more potent than the fear of the enemy. The passions of his foul, and even the gestures of his body 45, feemed to imitate the actions of the combatants; and, as if he had been the lord of nature, he fpurred his horfe with a fearlefs and impotent effort into the fea. His loud reproaches, and the clamours of the camp, urged the Ottomans to a third attack, more fatal and bloody than the two former; and I must repeat, though I cannot credit, the evidence of Phranza, who affirms, from their own mouth, that they loft above twelve thousand men in the flaughter of the day. They fled in diforder to the fhores of Europe and Afia, while the Christian fquadron, triumphant and unhurt, fleered along the Bofphorus, and fecurely anchored within the chain of the harbour. In the confidence of victory, they boafted that the whole Turkish power must have yielded to their arms; but the admiral, or captain bafhaw, found fome confolation for a painful wound in his eye, by reprefenting that accident as the caufe of his defeat. Baltha Ogli was a renegade of the race of the Bulgarian princes: his military character was tainted with the unpopular vice of avarice; and under the despotism of the prince or people, misfortune is a sufficient evidence of guilt. His rank and fervices were annihilated by the dif-

VOL. VI.

pleafure

⁴⁵ I must confess, that I have before my gestures of the Athenians in a naval engageeyes the living picture which Thucydides ment in the great harbour of Syracufe. (1. vii. c. 71.) has drawn of the paffions and

LXVIII. -----

C H A P. pleasure of Mahomet. In the royal presence, the captain bashaw was extended on the ground by four flaves, and received one hundred ftrokes with a golden rod ⁴⁶: his death had been pronounced; and he adored the clemency of the fultan, who was fatisfied with the milder punifhment of confifcation and exile. The introduction of this fupply revived the hopes of the Greeks, and accufed the fupineness of their western allies. Amidst the deferts of Anatolia and the rocks of Paleftine, the millions of the crufades had buried themfelves in a voluntary and inevitable grave; but the fituation of the Imperial city was ftrong against her enemies, and acceffible to her friends; and a rational and moderate armament of the maritime ftates might have faved the relics of the Roman name, and maintained a Chriftian fortress in the heart of the Ottoman empire. Yet this was the fole and feeble attempt for the deliverance of Conftantinople: the more diftant powers were infenfible of its danger; and the ambaffador of Hungary, or at leaft of Huniades, refided in the Turkifh camp, to remove the fears, and to direct the operations, of the fultan 47.

Mahomet tranfports his navy over Iand.

It was difficult for the Greeks to penetrate the fecret of the divan; yet the Greeks are perfuaded, that a refiftance, fo obftinate and furprifing, had fatigued the perfeverance of Mahomet. He began to meditate a retreat, and the fiege would have been fpeedily raifed if the ambition and jealoufy of the fecond vizir had not oppofed the perfidious advice of Calil Bafhaw, who ftill maintained a fecret correspondence with the Byzantine court. The reduction of the city appeared to be hopelefs, unlefs a double attack could be made from the harbour as well as from the land; but the harbour was in-

45 According to the exaggeration or corrupt text of Ducas (c. 38.), this golden bar was of the enormous and incredible weight of 500 libræ, or pounds. Bouillaud's reading of 500 drachms, or five pounds, is fufficient to exercise the arm of Mahomet, and bruife the back of his admiral.

47 Ducas, who confesses himself ill informed of the affairs of Hungary, alligns a motive of fuperstition, a fatal belief that Constantinople would be the term of the Turkish conquests. See Phranza (l. iii. c. 20.) and Spondanus.

acceffible ;

. 490

acceffible : an impenetrable chain was now defended by eight large C H A P. thips, more than twenty of a fmaller fize, with feveral gallies and floops; and, inftead of forcing this barrier, the Turks might apprehend a naval fally, and a fecond encounter in the open fea. In this perplexity, the genius of Mahomet conceived and executed a plan of a bold and marvellous caft, of transporting by land his lighter veffels and military ftores from the Bosphorus into the higher part of the harbour. The diftance is about ten miles; the ground is uneven, and was overfpread with thickets; and, as the road muft be opened behind the fuburb of Galata, their free paffage or total destruction must depend on the option of the Genoefe. But these felfish merchants were ambitious of the favour of being the last devoured; and the deficiency of art was fupplied by the ftrength of obedient myriads. A level way was covered with a broad platform of ftrong and folid planks; and to render them more flippery and fmooth, they were anointed with the fat of fheep and oxen. Fourfcore light gallies and brigantines of fifty and thirty oars, were difembarked on the Bosphorus shore; arranged fucceffively on rollers; and drawn forwards by the power of men and pullies. Two guides or pilots were flationed at the helm, and the prow, of each veffel; the fails were unfurled to the winds; and the labour was cheered by fong and acclamation. In the courfe of a fingle night, this Turkifly fleet painfully climbed the hill, fteered over the plain, and was launched from the declivity into the shallow waters of the harbour, far above the moleftation of the deeper veffels of the Greeks. The real importance of this operation was magnified by the confternation and confidence which it infpired : but the notorious, unqueftionable, fact was displayed before the eyes, and is recorded by the pens, of the two nations*8. A fimilar ftratagem had been repeatedly prac-

3 R 2

LXVIII.

tifed

⁴³ The unanimous testimony of the four to contract the distance of ten miles, and to Greeks is confirmed by Cantemir (p. 96.) prolong the term of one night. from the Turkish annals: but I could wish

LXVIII. -----

C H A P. tifed by the ancients 49; the Ottoman gallies (I must again repeat) fhould be confidered as large boats; and, if we compare the magnitude and the diffance, the obftacles and the means, the boafted miracle⁵⁰ has perhaps been equalled by the industry of our own timesst. As foon as Mahomet had occupied the upper harbour with a fleet and army; he constructed, in the narrowest part, a bridge, or rather mole, of fifty cubits in breadth and one hundred in length: it was formed of cafks and hogfheads; joined with rafters, linked with iron, and covered with a folid floor. On this floating battery, he planted one of his largest cannon, while the fourfcore gallies, with troops and fcaling-ladders, approached the moft acceffible fide, which had formerly been ftormed by the Latin conquerors. The indolence of the Christians has been accufed for not destroying thefe unfmished works; but their fire, by a superior fire was controlled and filenced; nor were they wanting in a nocturnal attempt to burn the veffels as well as the bridge of the fultan. His vigilance prevented their approach ; their foremost galliots were funk or taken ; forty youths, the bravest of Italy and Greece, were inhumanly maffacred at his command; nor could the emperor's grief be affuaged by the just though cruel retaliation, of exposing from the walls the heads of two hundred and fixty Mufulman captives. After a fiege of forty days, the fate of Conftantinople could no longer be averted. The diminutive garrifon was exhaufted by a double attack : the fortifications, which had flood for ages against hoftile violence, were difinantled on all fides by the Ottoman cannon : many breaches were opened; and near the gate of St. Romanus, four towers had been Diffrefs of the city.

> 49 Phranza relates two examples of a fimilar transportation over the fix miles of the Ifthmus of Corinth ; the one fabulous, of Augustus after the battle of Actium; the other true, of Nicetas, a Greek general in the xth century. To thefe he might have added a bold enterprise of Hannibal, to introduce his veffels into the harbour of Tarentum (Polybius, l. viii. p. 749 edit. Gronov.).

5º A Greek of Candia, who had ferved the Venetians in a fimilar undertaking (Spond. A. D. 1438, Nº 37.), might poffibly be the advifer and agent of Mahomet.

51 I particularly allude to our own embarkations on the lakes of Canada in the years 1776 and 1777, fo great in the labour, fo fruitlefs in the event.

levelled

492

levelled with the ground. For the payment of his feeble and muti- C H A P. nous troops, Conftantine was compelled to defpoil the churches with the promife of a fourfold reflitution; and his facrilege offered a new reproach to the enemies of the union. A fpirit of difcord impaired the remnant of the Christian strength : the Genoefe and Venetian auxiliaries afferted the pre-eminence of their respective fervice ; and Justiniani and the great duke, whose ambition was not extinguished by the common danger, accufed each other of treachery and cowardice.

During the fiege of Conftantinople, the words of peace and capi- Preparations tulation had been fometimes pronounced; and feveral embaffies had for the genepaffed between the camp and the city52. The Greek emperor was May 26. humbled by adverfity; and would have yielded to any terms compatible with religion and royalty. The Turkifh fultan was defirous of fparing the blood of his foldiers; ftill more defirous of fecuring for his own use the Byzantine treasures; and he accomplished a facred duty in prefenting to the Gabours, the choice of circumcifion, of tribute, or of death. The avarice of Mahomet might have been fatisfied with an annual fum of one hundred thousand ducats: but his ambition grafped the capital of the Eaft : to the prince he offered a rich equivalent, to the people a free toleration, or a fafe departure: but after some fruitless treaty, he declared his resolution of finding either a throne, or a grave, under the walls of Conftantinople. A fenfe of honour, and the fear of univerfal reproach, forbade Palæologus to refign the city into the hands of the Ottomans; and he determined to abide the laft extremities of war. Several days were employed by the fultan in the preparations of the affault; and a refpite was granted by his favourite fcience of aftrology, which had fixed on the twenty-ninth of May, as the fortunate and fatal hour. On the evening of the twenty-feventh, he isfued his final orders;

of the Turks ral affault.

s2 Chalcocondyles and Ducas differ in the the faithful Phranza spares his prince even time and circumftances of the negociation ; the thought of a furrender. and as it was neither glorious nor falutary,

LXVIII.

C H A P. orders; affembled in his prefence the military chiefs; and disperfed his heralds through the camp to proclaim the duty, and the motives, of the perilous enterprife. Fear is the first principle of a despotic government; and his menaces were expressed in the Oriental flyle, that the fugitives and deferters, had they the wings of a bird 53, fhould not escape from his inexorable juffice. The greatest part of his bashaws and Janizaries were the offspring of Christian parents; but the glories of the Turkish name were perpetuated by fucceffive adoption; and in the gradual change of individuals, the fpirit of a legion, a regiment, or an oda, is kept alive by imitation and difcipline. In this holy warfare, the Moflems were exhorted to purify their minds with prayer, their bodies with feven ablutions; and to abstain from food till the close of the ensuing day. A crowd of dervishes visited the tents to inftil the defire of martyrdom, and the affurance of fpending an immortal youth amidft the rivers and gardens of paradife, and in the embraces of the black-eved virgins. Yet Mahomet principally trufted to the efficacy of temporal and vifible rewards. A double pay was promifed to the victorious troops: " The city and the buildings," faid Mahomet, " are mine: but I " refign to your valour the captives and the fpoil, the treafures of " gold and beauty : be rich and be happy. Many are the provinces " of my empire: the intrepid foldier who first ascends the walls of " Conftantinople, shall be rewarded with the government of the

> ⁵³ Thefe wings (Chalcocondyles, 1. viii. p. 208.) are no more than an Oriental figure: but in the tragedy of Irene, Mahomet's paffion foars above fenfe and reafon :

Should the fierce North, upon his frozen wings, Bear him aloft above the wondering clouds,

And feat him in the Pleiads golden charlot-

Thence should my fury drag him down to tortures. Befides the extravagance of the rant, I muft observe, 1. That the operation of the winds must be confined to the lower region of the air. . 2. That the name, etymology, and table of the Pleiads are purely Greek (Scholiast ad Homer. 2. 686. Eudocia in Ioniâ, p. 339. Apollodor. 1. iii, c. 10. Heine, p. 229. Not. 682.), and had no affinity with the affronomy of the Eafl (Hyde ad Ulugbeg, Tabul. in Syntagma Differt. tom. i. p. 40. 42. Goguet, Origine des Arts, &c. tom. vi. p. 73-78. Gebelin, Hift. du Calendrier, p. 73.), which Mahomet had fludied. 3. The golden chariot does not exist either in science or fiction; but I much fear that Dr. Johnson has confounded the Pleiads with the great bear or waggon, the zodiac with a northern conftellation :

Αρκτον θήν και αμαξαν επικλησιν καλεθσι.

" faireft

" faireft and moft wealthy; and my gratitude fhall accumulate his C H A P. " honours and fortunes above the measure of his own hopes." Such various and potent motives diffused among the Turks a general ardour, regardless of life and impatient for action : the camp reechoed with the Moslem shouts of, " God is God, there is but one " God, and Mahomet is the apoftle of God ";" and the fea and land, from Galata to the feven towers, were illuminated by the blaze of their nocturnal fires.

Far different was the ftate of the Christians; who, with loud and Last farewel impotent complaints, deplored the guilt, or the punifhment, of their of the empefins. The celeftial image of the Virgin had been exposed in folemn proceffion; but their divine patronefs was deaf to their entreaties; they accufed the obflinacy of the emperor for refuling a timely furrender; anticipated the horrors of their fate; and fighed for the repose and fecurity of Turkish fervitude. The noblest of the Greeks, and the braveft of the allies, were fummoned to the palace, to prepare them, on the evening of the twenty-eighth, for the duties and dangers of the general affault. The laft fpeech of Palæologus was the funeral oration of the Roman empire 55: he promifed, he conjured, and he vainly attempted to infuse the hope which was extinguished in his own mind. In this world all was comfortlefs and gloomy; and neither the gofpel nor the church have proposed any confpicuous recompense to the heroes who fall in the fervice of their country. But the example of their prince, and the confinement of a fiege, had armed thefe warriors with the courage of defpair; and the pathetic fcene is defcribed by the feelings of the hiftorian Phranza, who was himfelf prefeut at this mournful affembly. They wept, they embraced; regardless of their families

55 I am afraid that this discourse was com- respectfully to the Latin auxiliaries. pofed by Phranza himfelf: and it fmells fo 18

54 Phranza quarrels with these Moslem grossly of the fermon and the convent, that acclamations, not for the name of God, but I almost doubt whether it was pronounced by for that of the prophet: the pious zeal of Constantine. Leonardus affigns him another fpeech, in which he addreffes himfelf more

and Greeks.

495

Voltaire is excessive, and even ridiculous.

^C H A P. LXVIII. and fortunes, they devoted their lives; and each commander, departing to his flation, maintained all night a vigilant and anxious watch on the rampart. The emperor, and fome faithful companions, entered the dome of St. Sophia, which in a few hours was to be converted into a mofch; and devoutly received, with tears and prayers, the facrament of the holy communion. He repoled fome moments in the palace, which refounded with cries and lamentations; folicited the pardon of all whom he might have injured ⁵⁶; and mounted on horfeback to vifit the guards, and explore the motions of the enemy. The diffrefs and fall of the laft Conftantine are more glorious than the long profperity of the Byzantine Cæfars.

The general aifault, May 29.

In the confusion of darkness an affailant may fometimes fucceed; but in this great and general attack, the military judgment and aftrological knowledge of Mahomet advifed him to expect the morning, the memorable twenty-ninth of May, in the fourteen hundred and fifty-third year of the Christian æra. The preceding night had been ftrenuoufly employed : the troops, the cannon, and the fascines, were advanced to the edge of the ditch, which in many parts prefented a fmooth and level paffage to the breach; and his fourfcore gallies almost touched with the prows and their fcaling-ladders, the less defensible walls of the harbour. Under pain of death, filence was enjoined: but the phyfical laws of motion and found are not obedient to discipline or fear; each individual might suppress his voice and measure his footsteps; but the march and labour of thousands must inevitably produce a strange confusion of diffonant elamours, which reached the ears of the watchmen of the towers. At day-break, without the cuftomary fignal of the morning gun, the Turks affaulted the city by fea and land; and the fimilitude of a twined or twifted thread has been applied to the closeness and con-

⁵⁶ This abafement, which devotion has forgiveness of injuries: it is more easy to forfometimes extorted from dying princes, is an give 490 times, than once to ask pardon of improvement of the gospel doctrine of the an inferior.

tinuity

tinuity of their line of attack ³⁷. The foremost ranks confisted, of ^C H A P. LXVIII. the refuse of the hoft, a voluntary crowd who fought without order or command; of the feebleness of age or childhood, of peasants and vagrants, and of all who had joined the camp in the blind hope of plunder and martyrdom. The common impulse drove them onwards to the wall : the most audacious to climb were instantly precipitated; and not a dart, not a builet, of the Chriftians, was idly wasted on the accumulated throng. But their ftrength and ammunition were exhausted in this laborious defence : the ditch was filled with the bodies of the flain; they supported the footsteps of their companions; and of this devoted vanguard, the death was more ferviceable than the life. Under their respective bashaws and fanjaks, the troops of Anatolia and Romania were fucceffively led to the charge : their progrefs was various and doubtful ; but, after a conflict of two hours, the Greeks still maintained, and improved, their advantage; and the voice of the emperor was heard, encouraging his foldiers to atchieve, by a last effort, the deliverance of their country. In that fatal moment, the Janizaries arole, fresh, vigorous, and invincible. The fultan himfelf on horfeback, with an iron mace in his hand, was the spectator and judge of their valour : he was furrounded by ten thousand of his domestic troops, whom he referved for the decifive occafions; and the tide of battle was directed and impelled by his voice and eye. His numerous minifters of juffice were posted behind the line, to urge, to restrain, and to punish; and if danger was in the front, shame and inevitable death were in the rear, of the fugitives. The cries of fear and of pain were drowned in the martial mufic of drums, trumpets, and attaballs; and experience has proved, that the mechanical operation of founds, by quickening the circulation of the blood and fpirits, will act on the human machine more forcibly than the eloquence of

VOL. VI.

3 S

reafon

⁵⁷ Befides the 10,000 guards, and the this general affault 250,000 Turks, both horfe failors and the marines, Ducas numbers in and foot.

LXVIII.

C H A P. reafon and honour. From the lines, the gallies, and the bridge, the Ottoman artillery thundered on all fides; and the camp and city, the Greeks and the Turks, were involved in a cloud of finoke, which could only be difpelled by the final deliverance or deftruction of the Roman empire. The fingle combats of the heroes of hiftory or fable, amufe our fancy and engage our affections : the fkilful evolutions of war may inform the mind, and improve a neceffary, though pernicious, fcience. But in the uniform and odious pictures of a general affault, all is blood, and horror, and confusion; nor shall I strive, at the distance of three centuries and a thousand miles. to delineate a fcene, of which there could be no fpectators, and of which the actors themfelves were incapable of forming any juft or adequate idea.

> The immediate lofs of Conftantinople may be afcribed to the bullet, or arrow, which pierced the gauntlet of John Justiniani. The fight of his blood, and the exquisite pain, appalled the courage of the chief, whole arms and counfels were the firmeft rampart of the city. As he withdrew from his station in quest of a surgeon, his flight was perceived and ftopped by the indefatigable emperor. " Your wound," exclaimed Palæologus, " is flight; the danger is " preffing; your prefence is neceffary; and whither will you re-" tire ?" " I will retire," faid the trembling Genoefe, " by the " fame road which God has opened to the Turks;" and at thefe words he haftily paffed through one of the breaches of the inner wall. By this pufillanimous act, he ftained the honours of a military life; and the few days which he furvived in Galata, or the ifle of Chios, were embittered by his own and the public reproach 58. His example was imitated by the greateft part of Juffiniani, Phranza expreffes his own feelings, nation, gloria falutis fuique oblitus. In the and those of the public. For fome private whole teries of their Eastern policy, his reasons, he is treated with more lenity and countrymen, the Genoefe, were always fufrespect by Ducas; but the words of Leonardus pected, and often guilty.

53 In the fevere cenfure of the flight of Chienfis express his flrong and recent indig-

7

the

the Latin auxiliaries, and the defence began to flacken when the C H A F. attack was preffed with redoubled vigour. The number of the Ottomans was fifty, perhaps an hundred, times fuperior to that of the Chriftians : the double walls were reduced by the cannon to an heap of ruins : in a circuit of feveral miles, fome places must be found more eafy of accels, or more feebly guarded; and if the befiegers could penetrate in a fingle point, the whole city was irrecoverably loft. The first who deferved the fultan's reward was Haffan the Janizary, of gigantic ftature and ftrength. With his fcymetar in one hand and his buckler in the other, he afcended the outward fortification : of the thirty Janizaries, who were emulous of his valour, eighteen perished in the bold adventure. Haffan and his twelve companions had reached the fummit; the giant was precipitated from the rampart; he role on one knee, and was again oppreffed by a fhower of darts and ftones. But his fuccefs had proved that the atchievement was poffible : the walls and towers were inftantly covered with a fwarm of Turks; and the Greeks, now driven from the vantage ground, were overwhelmed by encreafing multitudes. Amidft thefe multitudes, the emperor⁵⁹, who accomplished all the duties of a general and a foldier, was long feen, and finally loft. The nobles, who fought round his perfon, fuftained till their last breath the honourable names of Palæologus and Cantacuzene : his mournful exclamation was heard, " Cannot there " be found a Chriftian to cut off my head "?" and his laft fear was that of falling alive into the hands of the infidels ". The prudent 59 Ducas kills him with two blows of Turkifh foldiers; Chalcocondyles wounds him in the fhoulder, and then tramples him in the gate. The grief of Phranza carrying him among the enemy, escapes from the precife image of his death; but we may, without flattery, apply these noble lines of Dryden:

As to Schaftian, let them fearch the field; And where they find a mountain of the flain, Send one to climb, and looking down beneath, There they will find him at his manly length, With his face up to heaven, in that red monument Which his good fword had digged.

60 Spondanus (A. D. 1453, Nº 10.), who has hopes of his falvation, wifhes to abfolve this demand from the guilt of fuicide.

61 Leonardus Chienfis very properly obferves, that the Turks, had they known the emperor, would have laboured to fave and fecure a captive fo acceptable to the fultan.

3 S 2

despair

499

LXVIII. -----Death of the emperor Constantine Palæologus.

Lofs of the city and empire.

The Turks enter and pillage Confantinople.

C H A P. defpair of Conftantine caft away the purple: amidft the tumult he fell by an unknown hand, and his body was buried under a mountain of the flain. After his death, refistance and order were no more: the Greeks fled towards the city; and many were preffed and stifled in the narrow pais of the gate of St. Romanus. The victorious Turks rufhed through the breaches of the inner wall; and as they advanced into the ftreets, they were foon joined by their brethren, who had forced the gate Phenar on the fide of the harbour 62. In the first heat of the pursuit, about two thousand Christians were put to the fword; but avarice foon prevailed over cruelty: and the victors acknowledged, that they fhould immediately have given quarter if the valour of the emperor and his chosen bands had not prepared them for a fimilar opposition in every part of the capital. It was thus, after a fiege of fifty-three days, that Conftantinople, which had defied the power of Chofroes, the Chagan, and the caliphs, was irretrievably fubdued by the arms of Mahomet the fecond. Her empire only had been fubverted by the Latins : her religion was trampled in the duft by the Moflem conquerors "3.

The tidings of misfortune fly with a rapid wing ; yet fuch was the extent of Constantinople, that the more diffant quarters might prolong fome moments the happy ignorance of their ruin⁶⁴. But in the general confternation, in the feelings of felfifh or focial anxiety, in the tumult and thunder of the affault, a fleeplefs night and morning must have elapfed; nor can I believe that many Grecian ladies were awakened by the Janizaries from a found and tran-

63 Chaloccondyles most abfurdly fuppofes, that Conftantinople was facked by the Afiatics in revenge for the ancient calamities of Troy; and the grammarians of the xvth century are happy to melt down the uncouth appellation of Jeremiah a passage of fimilar import. Turks, into the more claffical name of Teucri.

64 When Cyrus furprifed Babylon during the celebration of a feftival, fo vaft was the city, and fo carclefs were the inhabitants, that much time elapfed before the diftant quarters knew that they were captives (Herodotus, l. i. c. 191.), and Ufher (Annal. p. 78.), who has quoted from the prophet

quil

⁶² Cantemir, p. 96. The Christian ships in the mouth of the harbour, had flanked and retarded this naval attack.

quil flumber. On the affurance of the public calamity, the houfes C H A P. and convents were inftantly deferted; and the trembling inhabitants flocked together in the ftreets, like an herd of timid animals; as if accumulated weakness could be productive of ftrength, or in the vain hope, that amid the crowd, each individual might be fafe and invifible. From every part of the capital, they flowed into the church of St. Sophia: in the fpace of an hour, the fanctuary, the choir, the nave, the upper and lower galleries, were filled with the multitudes of fathers and hufbands, of women and children, of priefts, monks, and religious virgins : the doors were barred on the infide, and they fought protection from the facred dome, which they had fo lately abhorred as a profane and polluted edifice. Their confidence was founded on the prophecy of an enthufiaft or impoftor; that one day the Turks would enter Conftantinople, and purfue the Romans as far as the column of Constantine in the square before St. Sophia : but that this would be the term of their calamities : that an angel would defcend from heaven, with a fword in his hand, and would deliver the empire, with that celeftial weapon, to a poor man feated at the foot of the column. " Take this fword," would he fay, " and " avenge the people of the Lord." At thefe animating words, the Turks would inftantly fly, and the victorious Romans would drive them from the Weft, and from all Anatolia, as far as the frontiers of Persia. It is on this occasion, that Ducas, with some fancy and much truth, upbraids the difcord and obflinacy of the Greeks. " Had that angel appeared," exclaims the hiftorian, " had he offered " to exterminate your foes if you would confent to the union of " the church, even then, in that fatal moment, you would have re-" jected your fafety or have deceived your God "."

65 This lively description is extracted from fubdued in 1463 (Phranza, 1 iii. c. 27.), Ducas (c. 39-), who two years afterwards that island must have been full of the fugitives was fent ambaffador from the prince of Lef- of Conflantinople, who delighted to repeat, bos to the fultan (c. 44.). Till Lefbos was perhaps to adorn, the tale of their mifery.

LXVIII.

While

C H A P. LXVIII. Captivity of the Greeks.

While they expected the defcent of the tardy angel, the doors were broken with axes; and as the Turks encountered no refistance, their bloodlefs hands were employed in felecting and fecuring the multitude of their prifoners. Youth, beauty, and the appearance of wealth, attracted their choice ; and the right of property was decided among themfelves by a prior feizure, by perfonal ftrength, and by the authority of command. In the fpace of an hour, the male captives were bound with cords, the females with their veils and girdles. The fenators were linked with their flaves; the prelates, with the porters, of the church; and young men of a plebeian clafs. with noble maids, whole faces had been invisible to the fun and their nearest kindred. In this common captivity, the ranks of fociety were confounded; the ties of nature were cut afunder; and the inexorable foldier was carelefs of the father's groans, the tears of the mother, and the lamentations of the children. The loudeft in their wailings were the nuns, who were torn from the altar with naked bofoms, outfiretched hands, and difhevelled hair: and we should piously believe that few could be tempted to prefer the vigils of the haram to those of the monastery. Of these unfortunate Greeks, of these domestic animals, whole strings were rudely driven through the ftreets; and as the conquerors were eager to return for more prey, their trembling pace was quickened with menaces and blows. At the fame hour, a fimilar rapine was exercifed in all the churches and monafteries, in all the palaces and habitations of the capital; nor could any place, however facred or fequeflered, protect the perfons or the property of the Greeks. Above fixty thousand of this devoted people were transported from the city to the camp and fleet; exchanged or fold according to the caprice or intereft of their mafters, and difperfed in remote fervitude through the provinces of the Ottoman empire. Among thefe we may notice fome remarkable characters. The historian Phranza, first chamberlain and principal fecretary, was involved with his family in the common common lot. After fuffering four months the hardfhips of flavery, he C H A P. recovered his freedom; in the enfuing winter he ventured to Adrianople, and ranfomed his wife from the mir bafbi or mafter of the horfe ; but his two children, in the flower of youth and beauty, had been feized for the use of Mahomet himself. The daughter of Phranza died in the feraglio, perhaps a virgin : his fon, in the fiftcenth year of his age, preferred death to infamy, and was flabbed by the hand of the royal lover⁶⁶. A deed thus inhuman, cannot furely be expiated by the tafte and liberality with which he releafed a Grecian matron, and her two daughters, on receiving a Latin ode from Philelphus, who had chofen a wife in that noble family ⁶⁷. The pride or cruelty of Mahomet would have been most fensibly gratified by the capture of a Roman legate; but the dexterity of cardinal Ifidore eluded the fearch, and he efcaped from Galata in a plebeian habit 65. The chain and entrance of the outward harbour was still occupied by the Italian fhips of merchandife and war. They had fignalifed their valour in the fiege; they embraced the moment of retreat, while the Turkish mariners were diffipated in the pillage of the eity. When they hoifted fail, the beach was covered with a fuppliant and lamentable crowd: but the means of transportation were fcanty: the Venetians and Genoefe felected their countrymen; and, notwithftanding the faireft promifes of the fultan, the inhabitants of Galata evacuated their houfes, and embarked with their moft precious effects.

66 See Phranza, l. iii. c. 20, 21. His corrupt and inhuman of tyrants. expressions are positive: Ameras sua manû jugulavit volebat enim eo turpiter et nefarie abuti. Me miserum et infelicem. Yet he could only learn from report, the bloody or impure fcenes that were acted in the dark receffes of the feraglio.

67 See Tirabofchi (tom. vi. P. i. p. 200.) and Lancelot (Mem. de l'Academie des Inferiptions, tom. x. p. 718.). I fhould be curious to learn how he could praife the public enemy, whom he fo often reviles as the moft 65 The Commentaries of Pius II. Suppose, that he craftily placed his cardinal's hat on the head of a corpfe which was cut off and expoled in triumph, while the legate himfelf was bought and delivered, as a captive of no value. The great Belgic Chronicle adorns his escape with new adventures, which he fuppressed (fays Spondanus, A. D. 1453, Nº 15.) in his own letters, left he should lofe the merit and reward of fuffering for Chrift.

503

C H A P. In the fall and the fack of great cities, an hiftorian is condemned to repeat the tale of uniform calamity : the fame effects must be -----Amount of produced by the fame paffions; and when those paffions may be indulged without control, fmall, alas! is the difference between civilized and favage man. Amidft the vague exclamations of bigotry and hatred, the Turks are not accused of a wanton or immoderate effusion of Christian blood: but according to their maxims (the maxims of antiquity), the lives of the vanquished were forfeited; and the legitimate reward of the conqueror was derived from the fervice, the fale, or the ranfom, of his captives of both fexes ". 'The wealth of Conftantinople had been granted by the fultan to his victorious troops: and the rapine of an hour is more productive than the industry of years. But as no regular division was attempted of the fpoil, the refpective fhares were not determined by merit; and the rewards of valour were ftolen away by the followers of the camp, who had declined the toil and danger of the battle. The narrative of their depredations could not afford either amusement or instruction: the total amount, in the last poverty of the empire, has been valued at four millions of ducats "; and of this fum, a fmall part was the property of the Venetians, the Genoefe, the Florentines, and the merchants of Ancona. Of these foreigners, the stock was improved in quick and perpetual circulation : but the riches of the Greeks were displayed in the idle oftentation of palaces and wardrobes, or deeply buried in treasures of ingots and old coin, left it fhould be demanded at their hands for the defence of their country. The profanation and plunder of the monasteries and churches, excited the most tragic complaints. The dome of St. Sophia itself, the note of Leunclavius (Chalcocondyles, l. viii. exceed one-fourth.

p. 211.), but in the diffribution to Venice, Genoa, Florence, and Ancona, of 50, 20, 20, and 15,000 ducats, I suspect that a figure has been dropt. Even with the refli-20 This fum is specified in a marginal tution, the foreign property would scarcely earthly 504

LXVIII.

the fpoil.

⁶⁹ Bufbequius expatiates with pleafure and applause on the rights of war, and the use of flavery, among the ancients and the Turks (de Legat. Turcica, epist. iii. p. 161.).

earthly heaven, the fecond firmament, the vehicle of the cherubim, C H A P. the throne of the glory of God", was despoiled of the oblations of ages; and the gold and filver, the pearls and jewels, the vafes and facerdotal ornaments, were most wickedly converted to the fervice of mankind. After the divine images had been firipped of all that could be valuable to a profane eye, the canvals, or the wood, was torn, or broken, or burnt, or trod under foot, or applied, in the ftables or the kitchen, to the vileft ufes. The example of facrilege was imitated however from the Latin conquerors of Conftantinople; and the treatment which Chrift, the Virgin, and the faints, had fuftained from the guilty Catholic, might be inflicted by the zealous Mufulman on the monuments of idolatry. Perhaps, inftead of joining the public clamour, a philosopher will observe, that in the decline of the arts, the workmanship could not be more valuable than the work, and that a fresh supply of visions and miracles would fpeedily be renewed by the craft of the prieft and the credulity of the people. He will more ferioufly deplore the lofs of the Byzantine libraries, which were deftroyed or feattered in the general confusion: one hundred and twenty thousand manuscripts are faid to have disappeared "; ten volumes might be purchased for a single ducat; and the fame ignominious price, too high perhaps for a shelf of theology, included the whole works of Aristotle and Homer, the noblest productions of the science and literature of ancient Greece. We may reflect with pleafure, that an ineftimable portion of our claffic treafures was fafely deposited in Italy; and that the mechanics of a German town had invented an art which derides the havock of time and barbarifin.

From the first hour 73 of the memorable twenty-ninth of May, diforder and rapine prevailed in Conftantinople, till the eighth hour pope Nicholas V. (Hody de Græcis, p. 192. derfland the natural hours from fun-rife.

78 See the enthuliaftic praifes and lamenta- from a MS. in the Cotton library). tions of Phranza (l. iii. c. 17.).

VOL. VI.

73 The Julian Calendar, which reckons r^2 See Ducas (c. 43.), and an epille, the days and hours from midnight, was ufed July 15th, 1453, from Laurus Quirinus to at Conflantinople. But Ducas feems to un-

3 T

Mahomet II. vifits the city, St. Sophia, the palace, Sec.

of

LXVIII.

505

C H A P. of the fame day; when the fultan himfelf paffed in triumph through the gate of St. Romanus. He was attended by his vizirs, bashaws, and guards, each of whom (fays a Byzantine hiftorian) was robuft as Hercules, dextrous as Apollo, and equal in battle to any ten of the race of ordinary mortals. The conqueror ⁷⁴ gazed with fatisfaction and wonder on the ftrange though fplendid appearance of the domes and palaces, fo diffimilar from the ftyle of Oriental architecture. In the hippodrome, or atmeidan, his eye was attracted by the twifted column of the three ferpents; and, as a trial of his ftrength, he fhattered with his iron mace or battle-axe the under jaw of one of thefe monfters75, which in the eyes of the Turks were the idols or talifmans of the city. At the principal door of St. Sophia, he alighted from his horfe, and entered the dome : and fuch was his jealous regard for that monument of his glory, that on obferving a zealous Mufulman in the act of breaking the marble pavement, he admonished him with his scymetar, that, if the spoil and captives were granted to the foldiers, the public and private buildings had been referved for the prince. By his command, the metropolis of the Eastern church was transformed into a mosch: the rich and portable inftruments of fuperfition had been removed; the croffes were thrown down; and the walls, which were covered with images and mofaics, were washed and purified, and reftored to a state of naked fimplicity. On the fame day, or on the enfuing Friday, the muczin or crier afcended the most losty turret, and proclaimed the ezan, or public invitation in the name of God and his prophet; the imam preached; and Mahomet the fecond performed the namaz of prayer and thankfgiving on the great altar, where the Chriftian mysteries had so lately been celebrated before the last of the Cæfars⁷⁶.

75 1 have had occasion (vol. ii: p. 16, 17.) to mention this curious relic of Gracian antiquity.

76 We are obliged to Cantemir (p. 102.)

St. Sophia, fo bitterly deplored by Phranza and Ducas. It is amufing enough to obferve, in what opposite lights the fame object appears to a Mufulman and a Chriftian eye.

From

⁷⁴ See the Turkith Annals, p. 329. and for the Turkith account of the conversion of the Pandects of Leunclavius, p. 448.

From St. Sophia he proceeded to the august, but defolate, manfion C H A P. of an hundred fucceffors of the great Conftantine; but which in a few hours had been ftripped of the pomp of royalty. A melancholy reflection on the vicifitudes of human greatnefs, forced itfelf on his mind; and he repeated an elegant diffich of Perfian poetry : " The " fpider has wove his web in the Imperial palace; and the owl hath " fung her watch-fong on the towers of Afrafiab "."

Yet his mind was not fatisfied, nor did the victory feem complete, His behatill he was informed of the fate of Conftantine; whether he had Greeks. escaped, or been made prisoner, or had fallen in the battle. Two Janizaries claimed the honour and reward of his death : the body. under an heap of flain, was discovered by the golden eagles embroidered on his fhoes: the Greeks acknowledged with tears the head of their late emperor; and, after exposing the bloody trophy 78, Mahomet bestowed on his rival the honours of a decent funeral. After his decease, Lucas Notaras, great duke", and first minister of the empire, was the most important prisoner. When he offered his perfon and his treasures at the foot of the throne, " And why," faid the indignant fultan, " did you not employ these treasures in " the defence of your prince and country ?" " They were yours," answered the flave, " God had referved them for your hands." " If " he referved them for me," replied the defpot, " how have you " prefumed to with-hold them fo long by a fruitlefs and fatal re-" fiftance?" The great duke alleged the obfiinacy of the ftrangers, and fome fecret encouragement from the Turkish vizir; and from 77 This diffich, which Cantemir gives in the Greek emperor: he would furely content himfelf with a trophy lefs inhuman.

> 79 Phranza was the perfonal enemy of the Greek duke; nor could time, or death, or his own retreat to a monaitery, extort a feeling of fympathy or forgiveness. Ducas is inclined to praife and pity the martyr; Chalcocondyles is neuter, but we are indebted 'to this viour to the 507

3T 2

the original, derives new beauties from the application. It was thus that Scipio repeated, in the fack of Carthage, the famous prophecy of Homer. The fame generous feeling carried the mind of the conqueror to the paft or the future.

⁷⁸ I cannot believe with Ducas (fee Spondanus, A. D. 1453, Nº 13.), that Mahomet him for the hint of the Greek confpiracy. fent round Perfia, Arabia, &c. the head of C H A P. this perilous interview, he was at length difmiffed with the affurance of pardon and protection. Mahomet condescended to visit his wife, a venerable princefs oppreffed with ficknefs and grief; and his confolation for her misfortunes was in the most tender frain of humanity and filial reverence. A fimilar clemency was extended to the principal officers of ftate, of whom feveral were ranfomed at his expence; and during fome days he declared himfelf the friend and father of the vanquished people. But the scene was foon changed ; and before his departure, the hippodrome ftreamed with the blood of his nobleft captives. His perfidious cruelty is execrated by the Chriftians: they adorn with the colours of heroic martyrdom the execution of the great duke and his two fons; and his death is afcribed to the generous refufal of delivering his children to the tyrant's luft. Yet a Byzantine hiftorian has dropt an unguarded word of confpiracy, deliverance, and Italian fuccour: fuch treafon may be glorious; but the rebel who bravely ventures, has juftly forfeited, his life; nor fhould we blame a conqueror for deftroying the enemies whom he can no longer truft. On the eighteenth of June, the victorious fultan returned to Adrianople; and fmiled at the bafe and hollow embaffies of the Christian princes, who viewed their approaching ruin in the fall of the Eaftern empire.

He repeoples and adorns Constantinople.

Conftantinople had been left naked and defolate, without a prince or a people. But fhe could not be defpoiled of the incomparable fituation which marks her for the metropolis of a great empire; and the genius of the place will ever triumph over the accidents of time and fortune. Bourfa and Adrianople, the ancient feats of the Ottomans, funk into provincial towns; and Mahomet the fecond eftablished his own refidence, and that of his fucceffors, on the same commanding fpot which had been chofen by Conftantine 80. The fortifi-

⁸⁰ For the reftitution of Constantinople not, Tournefort, and the rest of our modern and the Turkish foundations, fee Cantemir travellers. From a gigantic picture of the (p. 102-109-), Ducas (c. 42.), with Theve- greatnels, population, &c. of Constantinople and fortifications of Galata, which might afford a fhelter to the Latins, C H A P. were prudently deftroyed; but the damage of the Turkifh cannon was foon repaired; and before the month of August, great quantities of lime had been burnt for the reftoration of the walls of the capital. As the entire property of the foil and buildings, whether public or private, or profane or facred, was now transferred to the conqueror, he first feparated a space of eight furlongs from the point of the triangle for the establishment of his feraglio or palace. It is here, in the bofom of luxury, that the grand fignor (as he has been emphatically named by the Italians) appears to reign over Europe and Afia; but his perfon on the fhores of the Bofphorus may not always be fecure from the infults of an hoftile navy. In the new character of a mosch, the cathedral of St. Sophia was endowed with an ample revenue, crowned with lofty minarets, and furrounded with groves and fountains, for the devotion and refreshment of the Mollems. The fame model was imitated in the jami or royal mofchs; and the first of these was built, by Mahomet himself, on the ruins of the church of the holy apoftles and the tombs of the Greek emperors. On the third day after the conquest, the grave of Abu Ayub or Job, who had fallen in the first fiege of the Arabs, was revealed in a vision ; and it is before the fepulchre of the martyr, that the new fultans are girded with the fword of empire sr. Conftantinople no longer appertains to the Roman hiftorian; nor shall I enumerate the civil and religious edifices that were profaned or erected by its Turkish masters : the population was speedily renewed; and before the end of September, five thousand families of Anatolia and Romania had obeyed the royal mandate, which enjoined them, under pain of death, to occupy their new habitations in the capital. The throne of Mahomet was guarded by the num-and the Ottoman empire (Abregé de l'Histoire Abou Ayub, is described and engraved in Chriftians, or even the Jews.

508

Ottomane, tom. i. p. 16-21.), we may the Tableau General de l'Empire Ottoman learn, that in the year 1586, the Moslems (Paris, 1787, in large folio), a work of less were less numerous in the capital than the use, perhaps, than magnificence (tom. i. p. 305, 306.).

^{$1} The Turbé, or fepulchral monument of

bers

C H A P. bers and fidelity of his Moslem fubjects: but his rational policy afpired to collect the remnant of the Greeks; and they returned in crowds, as foon as they were affured of their lives, their liberties, and the free exercise of their religion. In the election and investiture of a patriarch, the ceremonial of the Byzantine court was revived and imitated. With a mixture of fatisfaction and horror, they beheld the fultan on his throne; who delivered into the hands of Gennadius the crofier or paftoral ftaff, the fymbol of his ecclefiaftical office; who conducted the patriarch to the gate of the feraglio, prefented him with an horfe richly caparifoned, and directed the vizirs and bashaws to lead him to the palace which had been allotted for his refidence⁸². The churches of Conftantinople were shared between the two religions: their limits were marked; and, till it was infringed by Selim the grandfon of Mahomet, the Greeks 33 enjoyed above fixty years the benefit of this equal partition. Encouraged by the ministers of the divan, who wished to elude the fanaticism of the fultan, the Chriftian advocates prefumed to allege that this division had been an act, not of generofity, but of juffice; not a conceffion, but a compact; and that if one half of the city had been taken by florm, the other moiety had furrendered on the faith of a facred capitulation. The original grant had indeed been confumed by fire: but the lofs was fupplied by the teftimony of three aged Janizaries who remembered the transaction; and their venal oaths are of more weight in the opinion of Cantemir, than the politive and unanimous confent of the hiftory of the times⁸⁴.

The

⁸¹ From the Turco-Græcia of Crufius, &c. Spondanus (A.D. 1453, N° 21, 1458, N° 16.) deferibes the flavery and domeftic quarrels of the Greek church. The patriarch who fucceeded Gennadius, threw himfelf in defpair into a well.

⁸⁺ Cantemir (p. 101-105.) infifts on the unanimous confent of the Turkifh historians, ancient as well as modern, and argues, that they would not have violated the truth to diminifh their national glory, fince it is effeemed more honourable to take a city by force

510

⁸⁴ Phranza (l. iii. c. 19.) relates the ceremony, which has poffibly been adorned in the Greek reports to each other, and to the Latins. The fact is confirmed by Emanuel Malaxus, who wrote, in vulgar Greek, the Hiftory of the Patriarchs after the taking of Conflantinople, inferted in the Turco-Græcia of Crufus (l. v. p. $106-118_{\pm}$). But the moft patient reader will not believe that Mahomet adopted the Catholic form, " Sancta " Trinitas quæ mihi donavit imperium te in " patriarcham novæ Romæ deligit."

The remaining fragments of the Greek kingdom in Europe and C H A P. Afia I shall abandon to the Turkish arms; but the final extinction of the two last dynasties 55 which have reigned in Constantinople, should terminate the decline and fall of the Roman empire in the East. The despots of the Morea, Demetrius and Thomas 86, the two furviving brothers of the name of PALEOLOGUS, were aftonifhed by the death of the emperor Conftantine, and the ruin of the monarchy. Hopeless of defence, they prepared with the noble Greeks who adhered to their fortune, to feek a refuge in Italy, beyond the reach of the Ottoman thunder. Their first apprchensions were difpelled by the victorious fultan, who contented himfelf with a tribute of twelve thousand ducats; and while his ambition explored the continent and the iflands in fearch of prey, he indulged the Morea in a refpite of feven years. But this refpite was a period of grief, difcord, and mifery. The bexamilion, the rampart of the Ifthmus, fo often raifed and fo often fubverted, could not long be defended by three hundred Italian archers : the keys of Corinth were feized by the Turks : they returned from their fummer excurfions with a train of captives and spoil; and the complaints of the injured Greeks were heard with indifference and difdain. The Albanians, a vagrant tribe of shepherds and robbers, filled the peninfula with rapine and murder : the two defpots implored the dangerous and humiliating aid of a neighbouring bafhaw; and when he had quelled the revolt, his leffons inculcated the rule of their future force than by composition. But, t. I doubt Byzant. p. 195.); for the last Palzologi, the this confent, fince he quotes no particular hiftorian, and the Turkish Annals of Leunclavius affirm, without exception, that Mahomet took Constantinople jer vim (p. 329.). 2. The fame argument may be turned in favour of the Greeks of the times, who would not have forgotten this honourable and falutary treaty. Voltaire, as usual, prefers the Turks to the of Thomas; Ducas (c. 44, 45.) is too brief, Christians.

55 For the genealogy and fall of the Comneni of Trebizond, fee Ducange (Fam.

fame accurate antiquarian (p. 244.247, 248.). The Palæologi of Montferrat were not extinct till the next century; but they had forgotten. their Greek origin and kindred.

²⁶ In the worthlefs ftory of the difputesand misfortunes of the two brothers, Phranza (1. iii. c. 21-30.) is too partial on the fide and Chalcocondyles (I. viii, ix, x.) too diffufe and digreffive.

conduct.

LXVIII. Extinction of the Imperial families of Comnenus and Palæolo-gus.

SII

16

C II A P. conduct. Neither the ties of blood, nor the oaths which they re-LXVIII. peatedly pledged in the communion and before the altar, nor the ftronger preffure of neceffity, could reconcile or fufpend their domeftic quarrels. They ravaged each other's patrimony with fire and fword: the alms and fuccours of the Weft were confumed in civil hoftility; and their power was only exerted in favage and arbitrary executions. The diffrefs and revenge of the weaker rival invoked their fupreme lord; and, in the feafon of maturity and revenge, Mahomet declared himfelf the friend of Demetrius, and marched A. D. 1450; into the Morea with an irrefiftible force. When he had taken poffeffion of Sparta, " You are too weak," faid the fultan, " to control " this turbulent province : I will take your daughter to my bed; " and you shall pass the remainder of your life in fecurity and ho-" nour." Demetrius fighed and obeyed ; furrendered his daughter and his caftles; followed to Adrianople his fovereign and fon; and received for his own maintenance, and that of his followers, a city in Thrace, and the adjacent ifles of Imbros, Lemnos, and Samothrace. He was joined the next year by a companion of misfortune, the laft of the COMNENIAN race, who, after the taking of Conftantinople by the Latins, had founded a new empire on the coaft of the Black Sea^{$7}: In the progress of his Anatolian conquest, Mahomet invefted with a fleet and army the capital of David, who prefumed to ftyle himfelf emperor of Trebizond ; and the negociation was comprised in a fhort and peremptory queftion, " Will " you fecure your life and treasures by refigning your kingdom? or " had you rather forfeit your kingdom, your treafures, and your

11

87 See the loss or conquest of Trebizond in merce de la Mcr Noire, tom. ii. p. 72. and rity and trade are perpetually diffurbed by the factious quarrels of two odas of Janizaries, in one of which 30,000 Lazi are comp. 179.) speaks of Trebizond as mal peuplée, monly enrolled (Memoires de Tott, tom. iii.

" life ?"

512

Lofs of the Morea, thalcocondyles (l. ix. p. 263-266.), Ducas for the province, p. 53-90.). Its profpe-(c. 45.), Phranza (l. iii. c. 27.), and Cantemir (p. 107.).

^{$8} Though Tournefort (tom. iii. lettre xvii. Peyffunel, the lateft and most accurate ob- p. 16, 17.). ferver, can find 100,000 inhabitants (Com-

" life ?" The feeble Comnenus was fubdued by his own fears, and C H A P. the example of a Mufulman neighbour, the prince of Sinope ", who, on a fimilar fummons, had yielded a fortified city with four zond, hundred cannon and ten or twelve thousand foldiers. The capitulation of Trebizond was faithfully performed; and the emperor, with his family, was transported to a caftle in Romania: but on a flight fuspicion of corresponding with the Persian king, David, and the whole Comnenian race, were facrificed to the jealoufy or avarice of the conqueror. Nor could the name of father long protect the unfortunate Demetrius from exile and confifcation; his abject fubmiffion moved the pity and contempt of the fultan; his followers were transplanted to Constantinople; and his poverty was alleviated by a penfion of fifty thousand aspers, till a monaftic habit and a tardy death releafed Palæologus from an earthly mafter. It is not eafy to pronounce whether the fervitude of Demetrius, or the exile of his brother Thomas ", be the most inglorious. On the conquest of the Morea, the defpot escaped to Corfu, and from thence to Italy, with fome naked adherents : his name, his fufferings, and the head of the apoftle St. Andrew, entitled him to the hofpitality of the Vatican; and his mifery was prolonged by a penfion of fix thoufand ducats from the pope and cardinals. His two fons, Andrew and Manuel, were educated in Italy; but the eldeft, contemptible to his enemies and burthenfome to his friends, was degraded by the baseness of his life and marriage. A title was his fole inheritance; and that inheritance he fucceffively fold to the kings of France and Arragon ". During his transient prosperity, Charles the eighth was ambinople, was possessed (chiefly from his copper acquainted with their wealth and numbers. mines) of a revenue of 200,000 ducats (Chalcocond. l. ix. p. 258, 259.). Peyfonel (Com- Pii II. l. v.) relates the arrival and reception merce de la Mer Noire, tom. ii. p. 100.) of the despot Thomas at Rome (A D. 1461, ascribes to the modern city 60,000 inhabit- Nº 3.). ants. This account feems enormous: yet

VOL. VI.

⁸⁹ Ifmael Beg, prince of Sinope or Si- it is by trading with a people that we become 90 Spondanus (from Gobelin Comment.

91 By an act dated A. D. 1494, Sept. 6. 3 U and LXVIII. of Trebi-A. D. 1461. C H A P. ambitious of joining the empire of the East with the kingdom of LXVIII. Naples: in a public feftival, he affumed the appellation and the purple of man Augustus: the Greeks rejoiced, and the Ottoman already trembled, at the approach of the French chivalry 52. Manuel Palæologus, the fecond fon, was tempted to revifit his native country : his return might be grateful, and could not be dangerous, to the Porte : he was maintained at Conftantinople in fafety and eafe; and an honourable train of Christians and Moslems attended him to the grave. If there be fome animals of fo generous a nature that they refuse to propagate in a domeftic flate, the laft of the Imperial race must be afcribed to an inferior kind : he accepted from the fultan's liberality two beautiful females; and his furviving fon was loft in the habit and religion of a Turkish flave.

Grief and terror of Europe, A. D. 1453.

The importance of Conftantinople was felt and magnified in its lofs: the pontificate of Nicholas the fifth, however peaceful and profperous, was difhonoured by the fall of the Eaftern empire; and the grief and terror of the Latins revived, or feemed to revive, the old enthusiafm of the crufades. In one of the most distant countries of the Weft, Philip duke of Burgundy entertained, at Lifle in Flanders, an affembly of his nobles; and the pompous pageants of the feaft were skilfully adapted to their fancy and feelings 93. In the midft of the banquet, a gigantic Saracen entered the hall, leading a fictitious elephant, with a caftle on his back : a matron in a mourning robe, the fymbol of religion, was feen to iffue from the caftle;

and lately transmitted from the archives of the who reckons with pleasure the number of Capitol to the royal library of Paris, the defpot Andrew Palzologus, referving the Morea, and flipulating fome private advantages, conveys to Charles VIII. king of France the empires of Constantinople and Trebizond (Spondanus, A. D. 1495, Nº 2.). M. de Foncemagne (Mem. de l'Academie des Infcriptions, tom. xvii. p. 539-578.) has beflowed a differtation on this national title, of which he had obtained a copy from Rome.

Greeks who were prepared to rife, 60 miles of an eafy navigation, eighteen days journey from Valona to Constantinople, &c. On this occasion the Turkish empire was faved by the policy of Venice.

93 See the original feast in Olivier de la Marche (Memoires, P. i. c. 29, 30.), with the abstract and observations of M. de Ste Palaye (Memoires fur la Chevalerie, tom. i. P. iii. p. 182-185.). The peacock and 92 See Philippe de Comines (1. vii. c. 14.), the pheafant were diffinguished as royal birds.

514

6 fhe fhe deplored her oppression, and accused the flowness of her cham- C H A P. pions: the principal herald of the golden fleece advanced, bearing on his fift a live pheafant, which, according to the rites of chivalry, he prefented to the duke. At this extraordinary fummons, Philip, a wife and aged prince, engaged his perfon and powers in the holy war against the Turks: his example was imitated by the barons and knights of the affembly; they fwore to God, the Virgin, the ladies, and the pheafant; and their particular vows were not lefs extravagant than the general fanction of their oath. But the performance was made to depend on fome future and foreign contingency; and, during twelve years, till the laft hour of his life, the duke of Burgundy might be fcrupuloufly, and perhaps fincerely, on the eve of his departure. Had every breaft glowed with the fame ardour; had the union of the Christians corresponded with their bravery; had every country, from Sweden "to Naples, fupplied a just proportion of cavalry and infantry, of men and money, it is indeed probable that Conftantinople would have been delivered, and that the Turks might have been chafed beyond the Hellespont or the Euphrates. But the fecretary of the emperor, who composed every epiftle, and attended every meeting, Æneas Sylvius 95, a statesman and orator, defcribes from his own experience the repugnant ftate and fpirit of Chriftendom. "It is a body," fays he, " without an " head; a republic without laws or magistrates. The pope and the " emperor may fhine as lofty titles, as fplendid images; but they are " unable to command, and none are willing to obey: every ftate " has a feparate prince, and every prince has a feparate intereft. " What eloquence could unite fo many difcordant and hoftile powers that Sweden, Gothland, and Finland, con- Europe, enriched with his own obfervations. tained 1,800,000 fighting men, and confe- That valuable annalis, and the Italian Muquently were far more populous than at pre- ratori, will continue the feries of events from fent.

3 U 2

⁵⁴ It was found by an actual enumeration, from Æneas Sylvius, a view of the flate of the year 1453 to 1481, the end of Mahomet's

55 In the year 1454 Spondanus has given, life, and of this chapter.

" under

1

C H A P. " under the fame ftandard? Could they be affembled in arms, who " would dare to affume the office of general? What order could be " maintained ?--what military difcipline? Who would undertake to " feed fuch an enormous multitude ? Who would underftand their " various languages, or direct their ftranger and incompatible man-" ners? What mortal could reconcile the English with the French, " Genoa with Arragon, the Germans with the natives of Hungary " and Bohemia? If a fmall number enlifted in the holy war, they " must be overthrown by the infidels; if many, by their own weight " and confusion." Yet the fame Æneas, when he was raifed to the papal throne, under the name of Pius the fecond, devoted his life to the profecution of the Turkish war. In the council of Mantua he excited fome fparks of a falfe or feeble enthufiafm; but when the pontiff appeared at Aucona to embark in perfon with the troops, engagements vanished in excuses; a precise day was adjourned to an indefinite term; and his effective army confifted of fome German pilgrims, whom he was obliged to difband with indulgences and alms. Regardless of futurity, his fuccessors and the powers of Italy were involved in the fchemes of prefent and domeftic ambition; and the diftance or proximity of each object determined, in their eyes, its apparent magnitude. A more enlarged view of their intereft would have taught them to maintain a defensive and naval war against the common enemy; and the support of Scanderbeg and his brave Albanians, might have prevented the fublequent invation of the kingdom of Naples. The fiege and fack of Otranto by the Turks, diffused a general confternation ; and pope Sixtus was preparing to fly beyond the Alps, when the ftorm was inftantly difpelled by the death of Mahomet the fecond, in the fifty-first year of his age 56. His lofty genius afpired to the conqueit of Italy : he was poffeffed

Death of Mahomet II. A. D. 1481, May 3, or July 2.

> may confult Giannone (Iftoria Civile, tom. iii. quetts of Mahomet II. I have occafionally p. 449-455.) for the Turkish invasion of the used the Memorie Istoriche de Monarchi O:-

96 Befides the two annalifis, the reader kingdom of Naples. For the reign and contomanni

LXVIII.

poffeffed of a ftrong city and a capacious harbour; and the fame C H A P. reign might have been decorated with the trophies of the NEW and the ANCIENT ROME⁹⁷.

tomanni di Giovanni Sagredo (Venezia, 1677, in 4¹⁰). In peace and war, the Turks have ever engaged the attention of the republic of Venice. All her difpatches and archives were open to a procurator of St. Mark, and Sagredo is not contemptible either in fenfe or flyie. Yet he too bitterly hates the infidels; he is ignorant of their language and manners; and his narrative, which allows only feventy pages to Mahomet II. (p. 69–140.), becomes more copious and authentic as he approaches the years 1640 and 1644, the term of the hiftoric labours of John Sagredo.

97 As I am now taking an everlafting farewell of the Greek empire, I thall briefly mention the great collection of Byzantine writers, whole names and teftimonies have been focceffively repeated in this work. The Greek preffes of Aldus and the Italians, were confined to the claffics of a better age; and the first rude editions of Procopius, Agathias, Cedrenus, Zonaras, &c. were published by the learned diligence of the Germans. The whole Byzantine feries (xxxvi volumes in folio) has gradually iffued (A. D. 1648, &c.) from the royal prefs of the Louvre, with fome collateral aid from Rome and Leipfic; but the Venetian edition (A. D. 1729), though cheaper and more copious, is not lefs inferior in correctnefs than in magnificence to that of Paris. The merits of the French editors are various; but the value of Anna Comnena, Cinnamus, Villehardouin, &c. is enhanced by the historical notes of Charles du Fresne du Cange. His supplemental works, the Greek Gloffary, the Conftantinopolis Christiana, the Familiæ Byzantinæ, diffuse a steady light over the darkness of the Lower Empire.

C H A P. LXIX.

State of Rome from the Twelfth Century.—Temporal Dominion of the Popes.—Seditions of the City.—Political Herefy of Arnold of Brefcia.—Reftoration of the Republic.—The Senators.—Pride of the Romans.— Their Wars.—They are deprived of the Election and Prefence of the Popes, who retire to Avignon.—The Jubilee.—Noble Families of Rome.—Feud of the Colonna and Urfini.

C H A P. LXIX. State and revolutions of Rome, A. D. 1100-1500. TN the first ages of the decline and fall of the Roman empire, our Leye is invariably fixed on the royal city, which had given laws to the faireft portion of the globe. We contemplate her fortunes, at first with admiration, at length with pity, always with attention; and when that attention is diverted from the Capitol to the provinces, they are confidered as fo many branches which have been fucceffively fevered from the Imperial trunk. The foundation of a fecond Rome, on the fhores of the Bofphorus, has compelled the hiftorian to follow the fucceffors of Conftantine; and our curiofity has been tempted to vifit the most remote countries of Europe and Afia, to explore the caufes and the authors of the long decay of the Byzantine monarchy. By the conquefts of Justinian, we have been recalled to the banks of the Tyber, to the deliverance of the ancient metropolis; but that deliverance was a change, or perhaps an aggravation, of fervitude. Rome had been already ftripped of her trophies, her gods, and her Cæfars : nor was the Gothic dominion more inglorious and oppreffive than the tyranny of the Greeks. In the the eighth century of the Christian æra, a religious quarrel, the wor- C H A P. thip of images, provoked the Romans to affert their independence : their bishop became the temporal, as well as the spiritual, father of a free people; and of the Western empire, which was restored by Charlemagne, the title and image still decorate the fingular constitution of modern Germany. The name of Rome must yet command our involuntary respect : the climate (whatsoever may be its influence) was no longer the fame ': the purity of blood had been contaminated through a thoufand channels; but the venerable afpect of her ruins, and the memory of past greatness, rekindled a spark of the national character. The darkness of the middle ages exhibits fome fcenes not unworthy of our notice. Nor shall I difmifs the prefent work till I have reviewed the flate and revolutions of the ROMAN CITY, which acquiesced under the absolute dominion of the popes about the fame time that Conftantinople was enflaved by the Turkish arms.

In the beginning of the twelfth century', the æra of the first crufade, Rome was revered by the Latins, as the metropolis of the world, as the throne of the pope and the emperor, who, from the eternal city, derived their title, their honours, and the right or exercife of temporal dominion. After fo long an interruption, it may not be useless to repeat that the successors of Charlemagne and the Othos were chofen beyond the Rhine in a national diet; but that these princes were content with the humble names of kings of Germany and Italy, till they had paffed the Alps and the Apennine, to feek their Imperial crown on the banks of the Tyber³. At fome diftance than his successor Montesquieu, has afferted and magnified the influence of climate, objects to himfelf the degeneracy of the Romans and Batavians. To the first of these examples he replies, 1. That the change is lefs real than apparent, and that the modern Romans prudently conceal in themfelves the virtues of their anceftors. 2. That the air, the

* The abbé Dubos, who, with lefs genius foil, and the climate of Rome have fuffered a great and visible alteration (Reflexions fur la Poesie et sur la Peinture, part. ii. sect. 16.).

² The reader has been fo long abfent from Rome, that I would advise him to recollect or review the xlixth chapter, in the vth volume. of this Hiftory.

³ The coronation of the German emperors at Rome, more especially in the xith century, i3 The French and German emperors of Rome, A.D. 800-1100.

~~~~

LXIX.

C H A P. diftance from the city, their approach was faluted by a long proceffion of the clergy and people with palms and croffes; and the terrific emblems of wolves and lions, of dragons and eagles, that floated in the military banners, reprefented the departed legions and cohorts of the republic. The royal oath to maintain the liberties of Rome was thrice reiterated, at the bridge, the gate, and on the ftairs of the Vatican; and the distribution of a customary donative feebly imitated the magnificence of the first Cæfars. In the church of St. Peter, the coronation was performed by his fucceffor: the voice of God was confounded with that of the people; and the public confent was declared in the acclamations of, " Long life and victory to " our lord the pope! Long life and victory to our lord the em-" peror ! Long life and victory to the Roman and Teutonic " armies "!" The names of Cæfar and Augustus, the laws of Conftantine and Juftinian, the example of Charlemagne and Otho, eftablished the fupreme dominion of the emperors; their title and image was engraved on the papal coins '; and their jurifdiction was marked by the fword of juffice, which they delivered to the præfect of the city. But every Roman prejudice was awakened by the name, the language, and the manners, of a Barbarian lord. The Cæfars of Saxony or Franconia were the chiefs of a feudal ariftocracy; nor could they exercife the discipline of civil and military power, which alone fecures the obedience of a diftant people, impatient of fervitude, though perhaps incapable of freedom. Once, and once only, in his life, each emperor, with an army of Teutonic vaffals, <sup>4</sup> Evercitui Romano et Teutonico! The Jatter was both feen and felt; but the former was no more than magni nominis umbra.

7

5 Muratori has given the feries of the papal coins (Antiquitat. tom. ii. diff. xxvii. p. 548 -554.). He finds only two more early than the year 800: fifty are still extant from Leo III. to Leo IX. with addition of the reigning emperor; none remain of Gregory VII. or Urban II.; but in those of Pafchal II. he feems to have renounced this badge of dependence.

defcended

is best represented from the original monuments by Muratori (Antiquitat. Italiæ medii Ævi, tom. i. differtat. ii. p. 99, &c.), and Cenni (Monument. Domin. Pontif. tom. ii. diff. vi. p. 261.), the latter of whom I only know from the copious extract of Schmidt (Hift. des Allemands, tom. iii. p. 255-266.).

descended from the Alps. I have described the peaceful order of his C H A F: entry and coronation; but that order was commonly diffurbed by the clamour and fedition of the Romans, who encountered their fovereign as a foreign invader: his departure was always fpeedy, and often shameful; and, in the abfence of a long reign, his authority was infulted and his name was forgotten. The progrefs of independence in Germany and Italy undermined the foundations of the Imperial fovereignty, and the triumph of the popes was the deliverance of Rome.

Of her two fovereigns, the emperor had precarioufly reigned by Authority of the right of conquest; but the authority of the pope was founded Rome, on the foft, though more folid, bafis of opinion and habit. The removal of a foreign influence reftored and endeared the shepherd to his flock. Inftead of the arbitrary or venal nomination of a German court, the vicar of Chrift was freely chosen by the college of cardinals, most of whom were either natives or inhabitants of the city. The applaufe of the magiftrates and people confirmed his from affecelection; and the ecclefiaftical power that was obeyed in Sweden and Britain, had been ultimately derived from the fuffrage of the Romans. The fame fuffrage gave a prince, as well as a pontiff, to the capital. It was univerfally believed, that Conftantine had invefted the popes with the temporal dominion of Rome; and the boldest civilians, the most profane sceptics, were fatisfied with difputing the right of the emperor and the validity of his gift. The truth of the fact, the authenticity of his donation, was deeply rooted in the ignorance and tradition of four centuries: and the fabulous origin was loft in the real and permanent effects. The name of Dominus or Lord was inferibed on the coin of the bifhops : their title was ac- right; knowledged by acclamations and oaths of allegiance, and with the free, or reluctant, confent of the German Cæfars, they had long exercifed a fupreme or fubordinate jurifdiction over the city and patrimony of St. Peter. The reign of the popes, which gratified VOL. VI. 3 X the

the popes in

tion ;

52I

LXIX.

C H A P. the prejudices, was not incompatible with the liberties, of Rome ; LXIX. and a more critical enquiry would have revealed a ftill nobler fource of their power; the gratitude of a nation, whom they had refcued from the herefy and oppreffion of the Greek tyrant. In an age of fuperstition, it should feem that the union of the royal and facerdotal characters would mutually fortify each other; and that the keys of paradife would be the furest pledge of earthly obedience. The fanctity of the office might indeed be degraded by the perfonal vices of the man. But the fcandals of the tenth century were obliterated virtue : by the auftere and more dangerous virtues of Gregory the feventh and his fucceffors; and in the ambitious contefts which they maintained for the rights of the church, their fufferings or their fuccefs must equally tend to encrease the popular veneration. They sometimes wandered in poverty and exile, the victims of perfecution; and the apoftolic zeal with which they offered themfelves to martyrdom, must engage the favour and fympathy of every Catholic breaft. And fometimes, thundering from the Vatican, they created, judged, and depofed the kings of the world : nor could the proudeft Roman be difgraced by fubmitting to a prieft, whole feet were kiffed, and whofe ftirrup was held, by the fucceffors of Charlemagne<sup>6</sup>. Even the temporal intereft of the city fhould have protected in peace and honour the refidence of the popes; from whence a vain and lazy people derived the greatest part of their fubfistence and riches. The fixed revenue of the popes was probably impaired : many of the old patrimonial effates, both in Italy and the provinces, had been invaded by facrilegious hands; nor could the lofs be compenfated by the claim, rather than the poffeffion, of the more ample gifts of Pepin and his defcendants. But the Vatican and Capitol

> " See Ducange, Gloff. mediæ et infimæ tom. iii. p. 262.); and it was the niceft policy Latinitat. tom. vi. p. 364, 365. STAFFA. of Rome, to confound the marks of filial and This homage was paid by kings to arch- of feudal fubjection. bishops, and by vaffals to their lords (Schmidt,

> > 3

were 522

benefits.

were nourifhed by the inceffant and encreafing fwarms of pilgrims C H A P. and fuppliants : the pale of Christianity was enlarged, and the pope and cardinals were overwhelmed by the judgment of ecclefiaftical and fecular caufes. A new jurifprudence had eftablished in the Latin church the right and practice of appeals'; and, from the north and weft, the bifhops and abbots were invited or fummoned to folicit, to complain, to accufe, or to juftify, before the threshold of the apoftles. A rare prodigy is once recorded, that two horfes, belonging to the archbishops of Mentz and Cologne, repassed the Alps, yet laden with gold and filver *: but it was foon underftood, that the fuccefs, both of the pilgrims and clients, depended much lefs on the juffice of their caufe than on the value of their offering. The wealth and piety of these ftrangers were oftentatiously displayed; and their expences, facred or profane, circulated in various channels for the emolument of the Romans.

Such powerful motives fhould have firmly attached the voluntary Inconftancy and pious obedience of the Roman people to their fpiritual and temporal father. But the operation of prejudice and intereft is often disturbed by the fallies of ungovernable passion. The Indian who fells the tree, that he may gather the fruit', and the Arab who plunders the caravans of commerce, are actuated by the fame impulfe of favage nature, which overlooks the future in the prefent, and relinquishes for momentary rapine the long and fecure poffession of the most important bleffings. And it was thus, that the shrine

7 The appeals from all the churches to cinis onufti nihillominus repatriant inviti. the Roman pontiff, are deplored by the zeal of St. Bernard (de Confideratione, 1. iii. tom. ii. p. 431-442. edit. Mabillon, Venet. 1750) and the judgment of Fleury (Difcours fur l'Hift. Ecclefiastique, iv. & vii.). But the faint, who believed in the falfe decretals, condemns only the abuse of these appeals; the more enlightened hiftorian investigates the origin, and rejects the principles, of this new jurisprudence.

Nova res! quando hactenus aurum Roma refudit? Et nunc Romanorum confilio id ufurpatum non credimus (Bernard de Confideratione, l. iii. c. 3. p. 437.). The first words of the paffage are obfcure, and probably corrupt.

9 Quand les sauvages de la Louisiane veulent avoir du fruit, ils coupent l'arbre au pied et cueillent le fruit. Voila le gouvernement despotique (Esprit des Loix, l.v. c.13.); <sup>8</sup> Germanici .... fummarii non levatis far- and paffion and ignorance are always despotic.

of

3 X 2

of fupersti-

523

C H A P. of St. Peter was profaned by the thoughtles Romans; who pil-laged the offerings, and wounded the pilgrims, without computing, Land the number and value of fimilar vifits, which they prevented by their inhospitable facrilege. Even the influence of fuperflition is fluctuating and precarious : and the flave, whofe reafon is fubdued, will often be delivered by his avarice or pride. A credulous devotion for the fables and oracles of the prieflhood, most powerfully acts on the mind of a Barbarian : yet fuch a mind is the leaft capable of preferring imagination to fenfe, of facrificing to a diftant motive, to an invifible, perhaps an ideal, object, the appetites and interefts of the prefent world. In the vigour of health and youth, his practice will perpetually contradict his belief; till the preffure of age. or fickness, or calamity, awakens his terrors, and compels him to fatisfy the double debt of piety and remorfe. I have already obferved, that the modern times of religious indifference, are the most favourable to the peace and fecurity of the clergy. Under the reign of fuperflition, they had much to hope from the ignorance, and much to fear from the violence, of mankind. The wealth, whofe conftant encreafe must have rendered them the fole proprietors of the earth, was alternately beftowed by the repentant father and plundered by the rapacious fon: their perfons were adored or violated; and the fame idol, by the hands of the fame votaries, was placed on the altar or trampled in the duft. In the feudal fyftem of Europe, arms Seditions of were the title of diffinction and the measure of allegiance; and amidst their tumult, the still voice of law and reason was feldom heard or obeyed. The turbulent Romans difdained the yoke, and infulted the impotence, of their bifhop "; nor would his education

Rome against the popes.

> <sup>10</sup> In a free conversation with his country- the next page, he blames the rafhness and man Adrian IV. John of Salifbury accufes infidelity of the Romans, whom their bifhops the avarice of the pope and clergy : Provin- vainly ftrove to conciliate by gifts, inflead of ciarum deripiunt fpolia, ac fi thefauros Crcefi virtues. It is pity that this mifcellaneous fudeant reparare. Sed recte cum eis agit writer has not given us lefs morality and Altifimus, quoniam et ipfi aliis et fæpe vilif- erudition, and more pictures of himfelf and fimis hominibus dati funt in direptionem (de the times. Nugis Curialium, I. vi. c. 24. p. 387.). In or character allow him to exercife, with decency or effect, the power C H A P. of the fword. The motives of his election and the frailties of his life were exposed to their familiar observation; and proximity muft diminish the reverence, which his name and his decrees impressed on a barbarous world. This difference has not escaped the notice of our philosophic historian : " Though the name and authority of the " court of Rome were fo terrible in the remote countries of Europe. " which were funk in profound ignorance, and were entirely unac-" quainted with its character and conduct, the pope was fo little " revered at home, that his inveterate enemies furrounded the gates " of Rome itfelf, and even controlled his government in that city : " and the ambaffadors, who, from a diffant extremity of Europe, " carried to him the humble, or rather abject, fubmiffions of the " greateft potentate of the age, found the utmost difficulty to make " their way to him, and to throw themfelves at his feet "."

524

Since the primitive times, the wealth of the popes was exposed to Successfors of envy, their power to opposition, and their perfons to violence. But the long hoftility of the mitre and the crown encreafed the numbers, and inflamed the paffions, of their enemies. The deadly factions of the Guelphs and Ghibelines, fo fatal to Italy, could never be embraced with truth or conftancy by the Romans, the fubjects and adverfaries both of the bithop and emperor; but their fupport was folicited by both parties; and they alternately difplayed in their banners the keys of St. Peter and the German eagle. Gregory the feventh, who may be adored or detefted as the founder of the papal monarchy, was driven from Rome, and died in exile at Salerno.

Pitz-Stephen, a fingular act of cruelty perpetrated on the clergy by Geoffrey, the father of Henry II. " When he was mafter of Nor-" mandy, the chapter of Seez prefumed, with- they had vowed chaftity, he deprived them se out his confent, to proceed to the clection of a superfluous treasure.

" Hume's Hiftory of England, vol. i. " of a bifliop : upon which he ordered all of. p. 419. The fame writer has given us, from " them, with the bifhop elect, to be callrated, " and made all their teflicles be brought " him in a platter." Of the pain and danger they might jufly complain; yet, fince

Gregory VII. A. D. 1086-1305.

LXIX.

Six-

C H A P. Six-and-thirty of his fucceffors ", till their retreat to Avignon, main-LXIX. tained an unequal conteft with the Romans: their age and dignity ---were often violated; and the churches, in the folemn rites of religion, were polluted with fedition and murder. A repetition " of fuch capricious brutality, without connection or defign, would be tedious and difgufting; and I shall content myfelf with some events of the twelfth century, which reprefent the flate of the popes and the city. On Holy Thursday, while Paschal officiated Pafchal II. A. D. before the altar, he was interrupted by the clamours of the mul-1099-1118. titude, who imperioully demanded the confirmation of a favourite magistrate. His filence exasperated their fury: his pious refufal to mingle the affairs of earth and heaven was encountered with menaces and oaths, that he fhould be the caufe and the witnefs of the public ruin. During the feftival of Eafter, while the bifhop and the clergy, barefoot and in proceffion, vifited the tombs of the martyrs, they were twice affaulted, at the bridge of St. Angelo, and before the Capitol, with vollies of ftones and darts. The houfes of his adherents were levelled with the ground: Paschal escaped with difficulty and danger : he levied an army in the patrimony of St. Peter; and his laft days were embittered by fuffering and inflicting the calamities of civil war. The fcenes that followed the Gelasius II. A. D. election of his fucceffor Gelafius the fecond were still more fcan-1118, 1119. dalous to the church and city. Cencio Frangipani<sup>14</sup>, a potent and factious

> *2 From Leo IX. and Gregory VII. an authentic and contemporary feries of the lives of the popes by the cardinal of Arragon, Pandulphus Pifanus, Bernard Guido, &c. is inferted in the Italian Hiftorians of Muratori (tom. iii. P. i. p. 277-685.), and has been always before my eyes.

<sup>13</sup> The dates of years in the margin, may throughout this chapter be understood as tacit references to the Annals of Muratori, my ordinary and excellent guide. He uses, and indeed quotes, with the freedom of a master, fores confregit. Ecclesiam furibundus inhis great Collection of the Italian Historians, in xxviii. volumes; and as that treasure is in my library, I have thought it an amusement, if not a duty, to confult the originals.

14 I cannot refrain from transcribing the high-coloured words of Pandulphus Pifanus (p. 384.): Hoc audiens inimicus pacis atque turbator jam fatus Centius Frajapane, more draconis immanissimi sibilans, et ab imis pectoribus trahens longa suspiria, accinctus retro gladio fine more cucurrit, valvas ac troiir, factious baron, burft into the affembly furious and in arms: the C H A P. cardinals were ftripped, beaten, and trampled under foot; and he feized, without pity or respect, the vicar of Christ by the throat. Gelafius was dragged by his hair along the ground, buffeted with blows, wounded with fpurs, and bound with an iron chain in the houfe of his brutal tyrant. An infurrection of the people delivered their bifhop: the rival families oppofed the violence of the Frangipani; and Cencio, who fued for pardon, repented of the failure, rather than of the guilt, of his enterprife. Not many days had elapfed, when the pope was again affaulted at the altar. While his friends and enemies were engaged in a bloody conteft he efcaped in his facerdotal garments. In this unworthy flight, which excited the compassion of the Roman matrons, his attendants were scattered or unhorfed; and, in the fields behind the church of St. Peter, his fucceffor was found alone and half-dead with fear and fatigue. Shaking the dust from his feet, the apostle withdrew from a city in which his dignity was infulted and his perfon was endangered; and the vanity of facerdotal ambition is revealed in the involuntary confeffion, that one emperor was more tolerable than twenty ". These examples might fuffice; but I cannot forget the fufferings of two pontiffs of the fame age, the fecond and third of the name of Lucius. The former, as he afcended in battle-array to affault the Lucius II. Capitol, was ftruck on the temple by a ftone, and expired in a few 1144, 1145. days. The latter was feverely wounded in the perfons of his fer- Lucius III. vants. In a civil commotion, feveral of his priefts had been made 1181-1185. prifoners; and the inhuman Romans, referving one as a guide for his brethren, put out their eyes, crowned them with ludicrous mitres, mounted them on affes with their faces to the tail, and extorted an troiit, inde custode remoto papam per gulam accepit, distraxit, pugnis calcibusque percoffit, et tanquam brutum animal intra limen ecclesiæ acriter calcaribus cruentavit ; et latro tantum dominum per capillos et brachia, Jefu bono interim dormiente, detraxit ad domum, usque deduxit, inibi catenavit et inclusit.

526

15 Ego coram Deo et ecclesiâ dico, fi unquam poffibile effet, mallem unum imperato. rem quam tot dominos (Vit. Gelaf. 11, p. 398 ).

2

oath,

C H A P. oath, that, in this wretched condition, they fhould offer themfelves LXIX. as a lefton to the head of the church. Hope or fear, laffitude or remorfe, the characters of the men, and the circumstances of the times, might fometimes obtain an interval of peace and obedience; and the pope was reftored with joyful acclamations to the Lateran or Vatican, from whence he had been driven with threats and violence. But the root of mifchief was deep and perennial; and a momentary calm was preceded and followed by fuch tempefts as had almost funk the bark of St. Peter. Rome continually prefented the afpect of war and difcord : the churches and palaces were fortified and affaulted by the factions and families; and, after giving Califtus II. peace to Europe, Califtus the fecond alone had refolution and power to prohibit the use of private arms in the metropolis. Among the nations who revered the apoftolic throne, the tumults of Rome provoked a general indignation; and, in a letter to his difciple Eugenius the third, St. Bernard, with the fharpnefs of his wit and zeal, has fligmatifed the vices of the rebellious people 16. " Who is ig-" norant," fays the monk of Clairvaux, " of the vanity and arrogance " of the Romans? a nation nurfed in fedition, cruel, untractable, " and fcorning to obey, unlefs they are too feeble to refift. When " they promife to ferve, they afpire to reign; if they fwear alle-" giance, they watch the opportunity of revolt; yet they vent their " difcontent in loud clamours if your doors, or your counfels, are " fhut against them. Dextrous in mischief, they have never learnt " the fcience of doing good. Odious to earth and heaven, impious " to God, feditious among themfelves, jealous of their neighbours, " inhuman to ftrangers, they love no one, by no one are they be-" loved; and while they wifh to infpire fear, they live in bafe and " continual apprehenfion. They will not fubmit; they know how et cervicofitas Romanorum? Gens influeta p. 441.). The faint takes breath, and then paci, tumultui affueta, gens immitis et intrac-tabilis ufque adhuc, fubdi nefcia, nifi cum que injecere manus, &c. (p. 443.).

26 Quid tam notum feculis quam protervia non valet refistere (de Confiderat. 1. iv. c. 2.

" to 528

A. D. 1119-1124. Innocent II. A. D. 1130-1143.

Character of the Romans by St. Bernard.

12

" to govern; faithlefs to their fuperiors, intolerable to their equals, C H A P. " ungrateful to their benefactors, and alike impudent in their de-" mands and their refufals. Lofty in promife, poor in execution : " adulation and calumny, perfidy and treafon, are the familiar arts " of their policy." Surely this dark portrait is not coloured by the pencil of Christian charity "; yet the features, however harsh and ugly, express a lively refemblance of the Romans of the twelfth century ".

The Jews had rejected the Chrift when he appeared among Political hethem in a plebeian character; and the Romans might plead their nold of ignorance of his vicar when he affumed the pomp and pride of a A, D, 1140. temporal fovereign. In the bufy age of the crufades, fome fparks of curiofity and reafon were rekindled in the Weftern world: the herefy of Bulgaria, the Paulician fect, was fuccefsfully transplanted into the foil of Italy and France; the Gnoftic visions were mingled with the fimplicity of the gofpel; and the enemies of the clergy reconciled their paffions with their confcience, the defire of freedom with the profession of piety ". The trumpet of Roman liberty was first founded by Arnold of Brefcia<sup>20</sup>, whofe promotion in the church was confined to the loweft rank, and who wore the monaftic habit rather as a garb of poverty than as an uniform of obedience. His adverfaries could not deny the wit and eloquence which they feverely

<sup>17</sup> As a Roman citizen, Petrarch takes opinion of Arnold of Brefcia. In the vth leave to observe, that Bernard, though a faint, was a man; that he might be provoked by refentment, and possibly repent of his hafty paffion, &c. (Memoires fur la Vie de Petrarque, tom. i. p. 330.)

*8 Baronius, in his index to the xiith volume of his Annals, has found a fair and eafy excufe. He makes two heads, of Romani Cathelici, and Schifmatici: to the former he applies all the good, to the latter all the evil, that is told of the city.

19 The herefies of the xiith century may be found in Mosheim (Institut. Hist. Eccles. p. 419-427.), who entertains a favourable 1. iii. c. 5. p. 108.).

VOL. VI.

volume, I have defcribed the fect of the Paulicians, and followed their migration from Armenia to Thrace and Bulgaria, Italy and France.

20 The original pictures of Arnold of Brefcia, are drawn by Otho bishop of Frisingen (Chron. l. vii. c. 31. de Gestis Frederici I. 1. i. c. 27. l. ii. c. 21.), and in the iiid book of the Ligurinus, a poem of Gunther, who flourished A. D. 1200, in the monastery of Paris near Bafil (Fabric. Bibliot. Latin. med. et infimæ Ætatis, tom. iii. p. 174, 175.). The long paffage that relates to Arnold, is produced by Guilliman (de Rebus Helveticis, felt:

3 Y

refy of Ar-

LXIX. Land

C H A P. felt: they confess with reluctance the specious purity of his morals; and his errors were recommended to the public by a mixture of important and beneficial truths. In his theological fludies, he had been the difciple of the famous and unfortunate Abelard 21, who was likewife involved in the fufpicion of herefy : but the lover of Eloifa was of a foft and flexible nature; and his ecclefiaftic judges were edified and difarmed by the humility of his repentance. From this mafter, Arnold most probably imbibed fome metaphysical definitions of the Trinity, repugnant to the tafte of the times: his ideas of baptifm and the eucharift are loofely cenfured; but a political herefy was the fource of his fame and misfortunes. He prefumed to quote the declaration of Chrift, that his kingdom is not of this world: he boldly maintained, that the fword and the fceptre were entrusted to the civil magiftrate; that temporal honours and poffeffions were lawfully vefted in fecular perfons; that the abbots, the bifhops, and the pope himfelf, must renounce either their state or their falvation ; and that after the lofs of their revenues, the voluntary tithes and oblations of the faithful would fuffice, not indeed for luxury and avarice, but for a frugal life in the exercise of fpiritual labours. During a fhort time, the preacher was revered as a patriot; and the difcontent, or revolt, of Brescia against her bishop, was the first fruits of his dangerous leffons. But the favour of the people is lefs permanent than the refentment of the prieft; and after the herefy of Arnold had been condemned by Innocent the fecond 22, in the general council of the Lateran, the magistrates themfelves were urged by prejudice and fear to execute the fentence of the church. Italy could no longer afford a refuge; and the difciple of Abelard efcaped

> 21 The wicked wit of Bayle was amufed in composing, with much levity and learning, the articles of ABE'LARD, FOULQUES, HELOISE, in his Dictionnaire Critique. The dispute of Abelard and St. Bernard, of scholastic and politive divinity, is well understood by Motheim (Inflitut. Hift. Ecclef. p. 412-415.).

22 -Dampatus ab illo Præfule, qui numeros vetitum contingere noftros Nomen ab innocuá ducit laudabile vitá.

We may applaud the dexterity and correctnefs of Ligurinus, who turns the unpoetical name of Innocent II. into a compliment.

beyond

beyond the Alps, till he found a fafe and hospitable shelter in Zu- C H A P. rich, now the first of the Swifs cantons. From a Roman station ", a royal villa, a chapter of noble virgins, Zurich had gradually encreafed to a free and flourishing city; where the appeals of the Milanefe were fometimes tried by the Imperial commiffaries 24. In an age lefs ripe for reformation, the præcurfor of Zuinglius was heard with applaufe: a brave and fimple people imbibed and long retained the colour of his opinions; and his art, or merit, feduced the bishop of Constance, and even the pope's legate, who forgot, for his fake, the intereft of their mafter and their order. Their tardy zeal was quickened by the fierce exhortations of St. Bernard 25; and the enemy of the church was driven by perfecution to the desperate measure of erecting his standard in Rome itself, in the face of the fucceffor of St. Peter.

Yet the courage of Arnold was not devoid of difcretion ; he was He exhorts protected, and had perhaps been invited, by the nobles and people; and in the fervice of freedom, his eloquence thundered over the republic, feven hills. Blending in the fame difcourfe the texts of Livy and 1144-1154. St. Paul, uniting the motives of gofpel, and of claffic, enthufiafm, he admonifhed the Romans, how ftrangely their patience and the vices of the clergy had degenerated from the primitive times of the church and the city. He exhorted them to affert the inalienable rights of men and Chriftians; to reftore the laws and magistrates fis has been found at Zurich (d'Anville, but it is without fufficient warrant, that the and the line of the bishop of Frifingen, city and canton have usurped, and even monopolifed, the names of Tigurum and Pagus is repeated with pleafure by the antiquaries Tigurinus.

24 Guilliman (de Rebus Helveticis, l. ii. c. 5. p. 106.) recapitulates the donation (A. D. 833) of the emperor Lewis the Pious to his daughter the abbefs Hildegardis. Curtim noftram Turegum in ducatû Ala- vitæ. He owns that Arnold would be a vamanniæ in pago Durgaugenfi, with villages. luable acquifition for the church.

23 A Roman infeription of Statio Turicen- woods, meadows, waters, flaves, churches, &c. a noble gift. Charles the Bald gave the Notice de l'ancienne Gaule, p. 642-644.): jus monetæ, the city was walled under OthoI.

Nobile Turegum multarum copia rerum, of Zurich.

25 Bernard, epistol. cxcv, cxcvi. tom. i. p. 137-190. Amidft his invectives he drops a precious acknowledgment, qui, utinam quam fanæ effet doctrinæ quam diffrictæ eft

of

3 Y 2

the Romans to reflore the A. D.

LXIX. ____

C H A P. of the republic; to respect the name of the emperor; but to confine their fhepherd to the fpiritual government of his flock<sup>26</sup>. Nor could his fpiritual government efcape the cenfure and control of the reformer; and the inferior clergy were taught by his leffons to refift the cardinals, who had usurped a despotic command over the twentyeight regions or parishes of Rome<sup>27</sup>. The revolution was not accomplished without rapine and violence, the effusion of blood and the demolition of houses: the victorious faction was enriched with. the fpoils of the clergy and the adverfe nobles. Arnold of Brefcia enjoyed, or deplored, the effects of his miffion : his reign continued above ten years, while two popes, Innocent the fecond and Anastafius the fourth, either trembled in the Vatican, or wandered as exiles in the adjacent cities. They were fucceeded by a more vigorous and fortunate pontiff, Adrian the fourth<sup>28</sup>, the only Englifhman who has afcended the throne of St. Peter; and whofe merit emerged from the mean condition of a monk, and almoft a beggar, in the monastery of St. Albans. On the first provocation, of a cardinal killed or wounded in the ftreets, he caft an interdict on the guilty people; and from Christmas to Easter, Rome was deprived of the real or imaginary comforts of religious worship. The Romans had defpifed their temporal prince; they fubmitted with grief and terror to the cenfures of their fpiritual father; their guilt was expiated by penance, and the banishment of the feditious preacher was the price of their abfolution. But the revenge of Adrian was yet unfatisfied, and the approaching coronation of Frederic Barbaroffa was fatal to the bold reformer, who had offended, though not in an equal degree, the heads of the church and ftate. In their in-> 26 He advised the Romans. Confiliis armifque fua moderamina fumma-Arbitrio tractate fuo : nil juris in hac re Pontifici fummo, modicum concedere regi Suadebat populo. Sic læså flultus utrâque Majeftate, reum geminæ fe fecerat aulæ.

Nor is the poetry of Gunther different from the profe of Otho.

27 See Baronius (A. D. 1148, Nº 38, 39.)

from the Vatican MSS. He loudly condemns Arnold (A. D. 1141, Nº 3.) as the father of the political heretics, whofe influence then hurt him in France.

28 The English reader may confult the Biographia Britannica, ADRIAN IV. but our own writers have added nothing to the fame or merits of their countryman.

terview

terview at Viterbo, the pope reprefented to the emperor the furious C H A P. ungovernable spirit of the Romans: the infults, the injuries, the fears, to which his perfon and his clergy were continually exposed ; and the pernicious tendency of the herefy of Arnold, which muft fubvert the principles of civil, as well as ecclefiaftical, fubordination. Frederic was convinced by thefe arguments, or tempted by the defire of the Imperial crown; in the balance of ambition, the innocence or life of an individual is of small account; and their common enemy was facrificed to a moment of political concord. After his retreat from Rome, Arnold had been protected by the vifcounts of Campania, from whom he was extorted by the power of Cæfar : the præfect of the city pronounced his fentence; the martyr of freedom was burnt His execualive in the prefence of a carelefs and ungrateful people; and his A.D. 1155. ashes were cast into the Typer, left the heretics should collect and worthip the relics of their mafter 29. The clergy triumphed in his death : with his afhes, his fect was disperfed ; his memory still lived in the minds of the Romans. From his fehool they had probably derived a new article of faith, that the metropolis of the Catholic church is exempt from the penalties of excommunication and interdict. Their bishops might argue, that the supreme jurisdiction, which they exercifed over kings and nations, more fpecially embraced the city and diocefe of the prince of the apoftles. But they preached to the winds, and the fame principle that weakened the effect, must temper the abuse, of the thunders of the Vatican.

The love of ancient freedom has encouraged a belief, that as Refloration early as the tenth century, in their first struggles against the Saxon A. D. 1144, Othos, the commonwealth was vindicated and reftored by the fenate and people of Rome; that two confuls were annually elected among the nobles, and that ten or twelve plebeian magistrates revived the name and office of the tribunes of the commons<sup>30</sup>. But this venerable of the fenates.

533 LXIX.

----

tion.

<sup>29</sup> Belides the hiftorian and poet already ratori, Script. Rerum Ital. tom. iii. P. 3. quoted, the last adventures of Arnold are re- p. 441, 442.) lated by the Biographer of Adrian IV. (Mu- 3º Ducange, (Gloff, Latinitatis media, et infimæ

LXIX.

C II A P. rable ftructure difappears before the light of criticifm. In the darknefs of the middle ages, the appellations of fenators, of confuls, of the fons of confuls, may fometimes be discovered 31. They were beflowed by the emperors, or affumed by the most powerful citizens, to denote their rank, their honours<sup>32</sup>, and perhaps the claim of a pure and patrician descent : but they float on the furface, without a feries or a fubstance, the titles of men, not the orders of government<sup>33</sup>; and it is only from the year of Chrift one thousand one hundred and forty-four, that the establishment of the fenate is dated, as a glorious æra, in the acts of the city. A new conflitution was haftily framed by private ambition or popular enthufiafm; nor could Rome, in the twelfth century, produce an antiquary to explain, or a legiflator to reftore, the harmony and proportions of the ancient model. The affembly of a free, of an armed, people, will ever fpeak in loud and weighty acclamations. But the regular diftribution of the thirty-five tribes, the nice balance of the wealth and numbers of the centuries, the debates of the adverse orators, and the flow operation of votes and ballots, could not eafily be adapted by a > infimi Ætatis, DECARCHONES, tom. ii. p. 726.) gives me a quotation from Blondus (decad ii. l. ii.): Duo confules ex nobilitate quotannis fiebant, qui ad vetustum confulum exemplar fummæ rerum præeffent. And in Sigonius (de Regno Italia, l. vi. opp. tom. ii. p. 400.) I read of the confuls and tribunes of the xth century. Both blondus, and even Sigonius, too freely copied the claffic method of fupplying from reafon or fancy the deficiency of records.

31 In the panegyric of Berengarius (Muratori, Script. Rer. Ital. tom. ii. P. i. p. 408.), a Roman is mentioned as confulis natus in the beginning of the xth century. Muratori (differt. v.) difcovers in the years 952 and 956, Gratianus in Dei nomine conful et dux, Georgius conful et dux; and in 1015, Romanus, brother of Gregory VIII. proudly, but vaguely, flyles himfelf conful et dux et cum baculis. The fenate is mentioned in the omnium Romanorum fenator.

32 As late as the xth century, the Greek emperors conferred on the dukes of Venice, Naples, Amalphi, &c. the title of imaro:, or confuls (fee Chron. Sagornini, paffim); and the fucceffors of Charlemagne would not abdicate any of their prerogative. But in general, the names of conful and Senator, which may be found among the French and Germans, fignify no more than count and lord (Signeur, Ducange, Gloffar.). The monkish writers are often ambitious of fine claffic words.

33 The most conflicational form, is a diploma of Otho III. (A. D. 998), Confulibus senatûs populique Romani; but the act is probably fpurious. At the coronation of Henry I. A. D. 1014, the hift rian Dithmar (apud Muratori, differt. xxiii.) defcribes him, a fenatoribus duodecim vallatum, quorum fex rasi barbâ, alii prolixâ, mystice incedebant panegyric of Berengarius (p. 406.).

blind

blind multitude, ignorant of the arts, and infenfible of the benefits, C H A P. of legal government. It was propofed by Arnold to revive and diferiminate the equeftrian order; but what could be the motive or measure of fuch diffinction 34? The pecuniary qualification of the knights muft have been reduced to the poverty of the times: those times no longer required their civil functions of judges and farmers of the revenue; and their primitive duty, their military fervice on horfeback, was more nobly supplied by feudal tenures and the spirit of chivalry. The jurifprudence of the republic was ufelefs and unknown : the nations and families of Italy who lived under the Roman and Barbaric laws were infenfibly mingled in a common mafs; and fome faint tradition, fome imperfect fragments, preferved the memory of the Code and Pandects of Justinian. With their liberty the Romans might doubtlefs have reftored the appellation and office of confuls ; had they not difdained a title fo promifcuoufly adopted in the Italian cities, that it has finally fettled on the humble flation of the agents of commerce in a foreign land. But the rights of the tribunes, the formidable word that arrefted the public counfels, fuppofe or must produce a legitimate democracy. The old patricians were the fubjects, the modern barons the tyrants, of the flate; nor would the enemies of peace and order, who infulted the vicar of Chrift, have long refpected the unarmed fanctity of a plebeian magistrate 35.

In the revolution of the twelfth century, which gave a new ex- The Capitol. iftence and æra to Rome, we may observe the real and important events that marked or confirmed her political independence. I. The

π

Capitoline

<sup>34</sup> In ancient Rome, the equestrian order Brescia is thus stated by Gunther: was not ranked with the fenate and people as a third branch of the republic till the confulthip of Cicero, who affumes the merit of the eflabliftment (Plin. Hift. Natur. xxxiii. 3. Beaufort, Republique Romaine, tom. i. p. 144-155.).

Quin etiam titulos urbis renovare vetuftos; Nomine plebeio fecernere nomen equestre, Jura tribunorum, fanctum reparare fenatum, Et fenio feffas mutafque reponere leges. Lapfa ruinofis, et adhuc pendentia muris Reddere primævo Capitolia prifca nitori. But of these reformations, some were no 35 The republican plan of Arnold of more than ideas, others no more than words.

LXIX.

The coin.

C H A P. Capitoline hill, one of her feven eminences<sup>26</sup>, is about four hundred yards in length, and two hundred in breadth. A flight of an hundred fteps led to the fummit of the Tarpeian rock; and far fteeper was the afcent before the declivities had been fmoothed and the precipices filled by the ruins of fallen edifices. From the earlieft ages, the Capitol had been ufed as a temple in peace, a fortrefs in war: after the loss of the city, it maintained a fiege against the victorious Gauls; and the fanctuary of empire was occupied, affaulted, and burnt, in the civil wars of Vitellius and Vefpafian 37. The temples of Jupiter and his kindred deities had crumbled into duft; their place was fupplied by monafteries and houfes; and the folid walls, the long and fhelving porticoes, were decayed or ruined by the lapfe of time. It was the first act of the Romans, an act of freedom, to reftore the ftrength, though not the beauty, of the Capitol; to fortify the feat of their arms and counfels: and as often as they afcended the hill, the coldeft minds must have glowed with the remembrance of their anceftors. II. The first Cæfars had been invested with the exclusive coinage of the gold and filver; to the fenate they abandoned the bafer metal of bronze or copper<sup>38</sup>: the emblems and legends were inferibed on a more ample field by the genius of flattery; and the prince was relieved from the care of celebrating his own virtues. The fucceffors of Diocletian despifed even the flattery of the fenate: their royal officers at Rome, and in the provinces, affumed the fole direction of the mint; and the fame prerogative was inherited by the Gothic kings of Italy, and the long feries of the Greek, the French, and the German dynafties. After an abdi-

> <sup>36</sup> After many difputes among the antiquaries of Rome, it feems determined, that the fummit of the Capitoline hill next the river is strictly the Mons Tarpeius, the Arx; and that on the other fummit, the church and convent of Araceli, the barefoot friars of St. Francis, occupy the temple of Jupiter (Nardini, Roma Antica, l. v. c. 11-16.).

37 Tacit. Hift. iii. 69, 70.

38 This partition of the noble and bafer metals between the emperor and fenate, muft however be adopted, not as a politive fact, but as the probable opinion of the best antiquaries (fee the Science des Medailles of the Pere Joubert, tom. ii. p. 208-211. in the improved and scarce edition of the Baron de la Baffie).

cation

cation of eight hundred years, the Roman fenate afferted this ho- C H A P. nourable and lucrative privilege; which was tacitly renounced by the popes, from Pafchal the fecond to the eftablishment of their refidence beyond the Alps. Some of these republican coins of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, are flewn in the cabinets of the curious. On one of thefe, a gold medal, Chrift is depictured holding in his left hand a book with this infeription : " THE VOW OF " THE ROMAN SENATE AND PEOPLE: ROME THE CAPITAL OF " THE WORLD;" on the reverfe, St. Peter delivering a banner to a kneeling fenator in his cap and gown, with the name and arms of his family impressed on a shield 39. III. With the empire, the præ- The præfed fect of the city had declined to a municipal officer; yet he ftill exercifed in the laft appeal the civil and criminal jurifdiction; and a drawn fword, which he received from the fucceffors of Otho, was the mode of his inveftiture and the emblem of his functions 49. The dignity was confined to the noble families of Rome : the choice of the people was ratified by the pope; but a triple oath of fidelity must have often embarrassed the præfect in the conflict of adverse duties ". A fervant, in whom they poffeffed but a third fhare, was difmiffed by the independent Romans: in his place they elected a patrician; but this title, which Charlemagne had not difdained, was too lofty for a citizen or a fubject; and, after the first fervour of 39 In his xxviith differtation on the Antiqui- et orbis negotia spectant ad Romanum pontities of Italy (tom. ii. p. 559-569.), Muratori exhibits a feries of the fenatorian coins, which bore the obfcure names of Affortiati, Infortiati, Provifini, Paparini. During this period all the popes, without excepting Boniface VIII. abstained from the right of coining, which was refumed by his fucceffor Benedict XI. and regularly exercised in the court of Avignon.

4º A-German hiftorian, Gerard of Reicherfpeg (in Baluz. Mifcell. tom. v. p. 64. apud Schmidt, Hift. des Allemands, tom. iii. p. 265.), thus describes the constitution of ambonem sublevant .... confirmari eum in Rome in the xith century : Grandiora urbis urbe præfectum petunt.

VOL. VI.

ficem itemque ad Romanum imperatorem; five illius vicarium urbis præfectum, qui de fuâ dignitate respicit utrumque, videlicet dominum papam cui facit hominium, et dominum imperatorum a quo accipit fux potestatis infigne, feilicet gladium exertum.

47 The words of a contemporary writer (Pandulph, Pifan, in Vit, Pafchal, II. p. 357, 358.) describe the election and oath of the præfect in 1118, inconfultis patribus....loca præfectoria .... Laudes præfectoriæ .... comitiorum applaufum .... juraturum populo in rebellion,

3 Z

of the city.

537

LXIX. A. D. 1198-1216.

Number and choice of the fenate.

C H A P. rebellion, they confented without reluctance to the reftoration of the præfect. About fifty years after this event, Innocent the third, the most ambitious, or at least the most fortunate, of the pontiffs, delivered the Romans and himfelf from this badge of foreign dominion: he invefted the præfect with a banner inftead of a fword, and abfolved him from all dependence of oaths or fervice to the German emperors 42. In his place an ecclefiaftic, a prefent or future cardinal, was named by the pope to the civil government of Rome ; but his jurifdiction has been reduced to a narrow compass; and in the days of freedom, the right or exercise was derived from the fenate and people. IV. After the revival of the fenate 43, the confcript fathers (if I may use the expression) were invested with the legiflative and executive power; but their views feldom reached beyond the prefent day; and that day was most frequently diffurbed by violence and tumult. In its utmost plenitude, the order or affembly confifted of fifty-fix fenators 44, the most eminent of whom were diffinguished by the title of counfellors; they were nominated, perhaps annually, by the people; and a previous choice of their electors, ten perfons in each region or parifh, might afford a bafis for a free and permanent conftitution. The popes, who in this tempeft fubmitted rather to bend than to break, confirmed by treaty the eftablishment and privileges of the fenate, and expected from time, peace, and religion, the reftoration of their government. The motives of public and private interest might fometimes draw from the Romans an occafional and temporary facrifice of their claims; and they renewed their oath of allegiance to the fucceffor of St. Peter > 42 Urbis præfectum ad ligiam fidelitatem recepit, et per mantum quod illi donavit de præfectura eum publice investivit, qui usque ad id tempus juramento fidelitatis imperatori fuit obligatus et ab eo præfecturæ tenuit honorem (Gesta Innocent. III. in Muratori, tom. iii. P. i. p. 487.).

43 See Otho Frifing. Chron. vii. 31. de

Geft. Frederic. I. l. i. c. 27.

41 Our countryman, Roger Hoveden, speaks of the fingle fenators, of the Capuzzi family, &c. quorum temporibus melius regebatur Roma quam nunc (A. D. 1194) eft temporibus lvi. fenatorum (Ducange, Gloff. tom. vi. p. 191. SENATORES).

and

and Conftantine, the lawful head of the church and the re- C H A P. public 45.

The union and vigour of a public council was diffolved in a law- The office of lefs city ; and the Romans foon adopted a more ftrong and fimple mode of administration. They condenfed the name and authority of the fenate in a fingle magistrate, or two colleagues; and as they were changed at the end of a year, or of fix months, the greatness of the truft was compenfated by the flortnefs of the term. But in this transient reign, the fenators of Rome indulged their avarice and ambition : their juffice was perverted by the intereft of their family and faction; and as they punished only their enemies, they were obeyed only by their adherents. Anarchy, no longer tempered by the paftoral care of their bifhop, admonifhed the Romans that they were incapable of governing themfelves; and they fought abroad those bleffings which they were hopeless of finding at home. In the fame age, and from the fame motives, most of the Italian republics were prompted to embrace a meafure, which, however ftrange it may feem, was adapted to their fituation, and productive of the most falutary effects 46. They chose, in some foreign but friendly city, au impartial magistrate of noble birth and unblemished character, a foldier and a statefmen, recommended by the voice of fame and his country, to whom they delegated for a time the fupreme administration of peace and war. The compact between the governor and the governed was fealed with oaths and fubfcriptions; and the duration of his power, the measure of his flipend, the nature of publice Capitolio confistentis. It is there we find the difference of senatores confiliarii and fimple fenators (Muratori, differt, xlii. tom. iii. p. 787-789.).

46 Muratori (differt. xlv. tom. iv. p. 64-92.) has fully explained this mode of government; and the Occulus Pastoralis, which he fenator.

3Z 2

539

<sup>45</sup> Muratori (differt. xlii. tom. iii. p. 785- pliffimi ordinis fenatûs, acclamatione P. R. 788.) has published an original treaty: Concordia inter D. nostrum papam Clementem III. et fenatores populi Romani fuper regalibus et aliis dignitatibus urbis, &c. anno 44° senatûs. 'The fenate speaks, and speaks with authority : Reddimus ad præfens .... habebimus.....dabitis presbyteria .... jurabimus pacem et fidelitatem, &c. A chartula de has given at the end, is a treatife or fermon Tenimentis Tusculani, dated in the 47th year on the duties of these foreign magistrates. of the fame æra, and confirmed decreto am-

C H A P. their mutual obligations, were defined with fcrupulous precifion. They fwore to obey him as their lawful fuperior: he pledged his faith to unite the indifference of a ftranger with the zeal of a patriot. At his choice, four or fix knights and civilians, his affeffors in arms and juffice, attended the Podefla<sup>41</sup>, who maintained at his own expence a decent retinue of fervants and horfes : his wife, his fon, his brother, who might bias the affections of the judge, were left behind; during the exercise of his office he was not permitted to purchase land, to contract an alliance, or even to accept an invitation in the houfe of a citizen; nor could he honourably depart till he had fatisfied the complaints that might be urged against his government.

Brancaleone, A. D. 1252-1258.

It was thus, about the middle of the thirteenth century, that the Romans called from Bologna the fenator Brancaleone <sup>31</sup>, whofe fame and merit have been refcued from oblivion by the pen of an English historian. A just anxiety for his reputation, a clear forefight of the difficulties of the tafk, had engaged him to refuse the honour of their choice : the flatutes of Rome were fuspended, and his office prolonged to the term of three years. By the guilty and licentious he was accufed as cruel; by the clergy he was fuspected as partial; but the friends of peace and order applauded the firm and upright magiftrate by whom those bleffings were reftored. No criminals were to powerful as to brave, fo obscure as to elude, the justice of the fenator. By his fentence two nobles of the Annibaldi family were executed on a gibbet; and he inexorably demolifhed, in the city and neighbourhood, one hundred and forty towers, the ftrong fhelters of rapine and mischief. The bishop, as a simple bishop, was 47 In the Latin writers, at leaft of the filver in the Hiftoria Major of Matthew Paris, age, the title of Potestas was transferred from the office to the magistrate :

Hujus qui trahitur prætextam fumere mavis. An Fidenarum Gabio: umque effe Potestas.

p. 741. 757. 792. 797. 799. 810. 823. 833. 836. 840. The multitude of pilgrims and fuitors connected Rome and St. Alban's; and the refentment of the English clergy prompted (Juvenal. Satir. x. 99.) them to rejoice whenever the popes were 48 See the life and death of Brancaleone, humbled and oppreffed.

compelled

compelled to refide in his diocefe; and the flandard of Branealeone C H A P. was difplayed in the field with terror and effect. His fervices were repaid by the ingratitude of a people unworthy of the happinefs which they enjoyed. By the public robbers, whom he had provoked for their fake, the Romans were excited to depose and imprison their benefactor; nor would his life have been spared, if Bologna had not poffeffed a pledge for his fafety. Before his departure, the prudent fenator had required the exchange of thirty holtages of the nobleft families of Rome: on the news of his danger, and at the prayer of his wife, they were more flrictly guarded; and Bologna, in the caufe of honour, fuftained the thunders of a papal interdict. This generous refistance allowed the Romans to compare the prefent with the paft; and Brancaleone was conducted from the prifon to the Capitol amidft the acclamations of a repentant people. The remainder of his government was firm and fortunate; and as foon as envy was appealed by death, his head, enclosed in a precious vale, was deposited on a lofty column of marble 49.

The impotence of reafon and virtue recommended in Italy a more: Charles of effectual choice : inftead of a private citizen, to whom they yielded a voluntary and precarious obedience, the Romans elected for their 1265-1278. fenator fome prince of independent power, who could defend them from their enemies and themfelves. Charles of Anjou and Provence, the most ambitious and warlike monarch of the age, accepted at the fame time the kingdom of Naples from the pope, and the office of fenator from the Roman people 5°. As he paffed through

49 Matthew Paris thus ends his account: justitiæ imitator et amator (p. 840.). A bio-Caput vero ipfius Brancaleonis in vafe pre- grapher of Innocent IV. (Muratori, Script. tiolo super marmoream columnam collocatum, tom. iii. P. i. p. 591, 592.) draws a less faso The election of Charles of Anjou to the tioned by the hiftorians in the viiith volume of Jamfilla in fignum sui valoris et probitatis, quasi vourable portrait of this Ghibelline senator. reliquias, superstitiofe nimis et pompose fustulerunt. Fuerat enim superborum potentum office of perpetual senator of Rome, is menet malefactorum urbis malleus et exflirpator, et populi protector et defensor, veritatis et the Collection of Muratori, by Nicholas de Anjou, A. D.

<sup>C</sup> H A P. through the city, in his road to victory, he received their oath of LXIX. allegiance, lodged in the Lateran palace, and fmoothed in a fhort -----vifit the harfh features of his despotic character. Yet even Charles was exposed to the inconftancy of the people, who faluted with the fame acclamations the paffage of his rival, the unfortunate Conradin; and a powerful avenger, who reigned in the Capitol, alarmed the fears and jealoufy of the popes. The abfolute term of his life was fuperfeded by a renewal every third year; and the enmity of Nicholas the third obliged the Sicilian king to abdicate the government of Rome. In his bull, a perpetual law, the imperious pontiff afferts the truth, validity, and ufe, of the donation of Conftantine, not lefs effential to the peace of the city than to the independence of the church; eftablishes the annual election of the fenator; and formally difqualifies all emperors, kings, princes, and perfons of an eminent and confpicuous rank ". This prohibitory claufe was repealed in his own behalf by Martin the fourth, who humbly folicited the fuffrage of the Romans. In the prefence, and by the authority, of the people, two electors conferred, not on the pope, but on the noble and faithful Martin, the dignity of fenator, and the fupreme administration of the republic 52, to hold during his natural life, and to exercife at pleafure by himfelf or his deputies. About fifty years afterwards, the fame title was granted to the em-The emperor Lewis of Baperor Lewis of Bavaria; and the liberty of Rome was acknowledged by her two fovereigns, who accepted a municipal office in the government of their own metropolis.

Address of Rome to the emperors.

varia, A. D. 1328.

Pope Martin IV.

A. D. 1281.

In the first moments of rebellion, when Arnold of Brefcia had inflamed their minds against the church, the Romans artfully laboured (p.724.), Sabas Malaspina (l.ii. c. 9. p. 808.), and Ricordano Malefpini (c. 177. p. 999.).

51 The high-founding bull of Nicholas III. which founds his temporal fovereignty on the donation of Conflantine, is ftill extant; and as it has been inferted by Boniface VIII. in the Sexte of the Decretals, it must be received Jamfilla (p. 592.), the monk of Padua by the Catholics, or at least by the Papist, as a facred and perpetual law.

52 I am indebted to Fleury (Hift. Ecclef. tom. xviii. p. 306.) for an extract of this Roman act, which he has taken from the Ecclefiaftical Annals of Odericus Raynaldus, A. D. 1281, Nº 14, 15.

to

to conciliate the favour of the empire, and to recommend their C H A P. merit and fervices in the caufe of Cæfar. The ftyle of their ambaffadors to Conrad the third and Frederic the first, is a mixture of flat- A. D. 1144. tery and pride, the tradition and the ignorance of their own hiftory 53. After fome complaint of his filence and neglect, they exhort the former of these princes to pass the Alps, and assume from their hands the Imperial crown. " We befeech your majefty, not " to difdain the humility of your fons and vaffals, not to liften to " the acculations of our common enemies; who calumniate the " fenate as hoftile to your throne, who fow the feeds of difcord, " that they may reap the harveft of deftruction. The pope and the " Sicilian are united in an impious league to oppofe our liberty and " your coronation. With the bleffing of God, our zeal and courage " has hitherto defeated their attempts. Of their powerful and fac-" tious adherents, more efpecially the Frangipani, we have taken " by affault the houfes and turrets: fome of thefe are occupied by " our troops, and fome are levelled with the ground. The Milvian " bridge, which they had broken, is reftored and fortified for your " fafe paffage; and your army may enter the city without being " annoyed from the caftle of St. Angelo. All that we have done. " and all that we defign, is for your honour and fervice, in the loyal " hope, that you will speedily appear in person, to vindicate those " rights which have been invaded by the clergy, to revive the dig-" nity of the empire, and to furpals the fame and glory of your " predeceffors. May you fix your refidence in Rome, the capital " of the world ; give laws to Italy, and the Teutonic kingdom ; and " imitate the example of Conftantine and Juftinian<sup>54</sup>, who by the " vigour feven books, a Chronicle of the Times; in two, the Gefta Frederici I. the laft of which perhaps the nobleft of hiftorians: he was fon is inferted in the vith volume of Muratori's historians.

5+ We defire (faid the ignorant Romans) tempore

53 Thefe letters and speeches are preferved rad III. and Frederic I. He has left, in by Otho bifhop of Frifingen (Fabric. Bibliot. Lat. med. et infim. tom. v. p. 186, 187.), of Leopold marquis of Auftria, his mother, Agnes, was daughter of the emperor Henry IV. and he was half-brother and uncle to Con- to reftore the empire in eum statum, quo fuit 18

LXIX.

543

LXIX. Lanna

C H A P. " vigour of the fenate and people obtained the feeptre of the " earth "." But thefe fplendid and fallacious wifhes were not cherifhed by Conrad the Franconian, whofe eyes were fixed on the Holy Land, and who died without visiting Rome foon after his return from the Holy Land.

Frederic I. A. D. 1155.

His nephew and fucceffor Frederic Barbaroffa, was more ambitious of the Imperial crown; nor had any of the fucceffors of Otho acquired fuch abfolute fway over the kingdom of Italy. Surrounded by his ecclefiaftical and fecular princes, he gave audience in his camp at Sutri to the ambaffadors of Rome, who thus addreffed him in a free and florid oration : " Incline your ear to the queen of cities ; " approach with a peaceful and friendly mind the precincts of " Rome, which has caft away the yoke of the clergy, and is impa-" tient to crown her legitimate emperor. Under your aufpicious " influence, may the primitive times be reftored. Affert the prero-" gatives of the eternal city, and reduce under her monarchy, the " infolence of the world. You are not ignorant, that, in former " ages, by the wifdom of the fenate, by the valour and difcipline " of the equeftrian order, the extended her victorious arms to the " East and West, beyond the Alps, and over the islands of the " ocean. By our fins, in the absence of our princes, the noble in-" flitution of the fenate has funk in oblivion : and with our pru-" dence, our ftrength has likewife decreafed. We have revived the " fenate, and the equeftrian order; the counfels of the one, the " arms of the other, will be devoted to your perfon and the fervice " of the empire. Do you not hear the language of the Roman " matron ? You were a gueft, I have adopted you as a citizen ; a " Transalpine stranger, I have elected you for my fovereign 56; and " given you myfelf, and all that is mine. Your first and most facred

55 Otho Frifing, de Gestis Frederici I.

" duty,

tempore Constantini et Justiniani, qui totum 1. i. c. 28. p. 662-664. 56 Holpes eras, civem feci. Advena fuilti orbem vigore fenatûs et populi Romani fuis tenuere manibus. ex Transalpinis partibus; principem constitui.

" duty, is to fwear and fubfcribe, that you will fhed your blood C H A P. " for the republic; that you will maintain in peace and juffice, the " laws of the city and the charters of your predeceffors; and that " you will reward with five thousand pounds of filver the faithful " fenators who shall proclaim your titles in the Capitol. With the " name, affume the character, of Augustus." The flowers of Latin rhetoric were not yet exhausted; but Frederic, impatient of their vanity, interrupted the orators in the high tone of royalty and conquest. " Famous indeed have been the fortitude and wifdom " of the ancient Romans: but your fpeech is not feafoned with " wildom, and I could with that fortitude were confpicuous in your " actions. Like all fublunary things, Rome has felt the viciffitudes " of time and fortune. Your nobleft families were translated to the " Eaft, to the royal city of Conftantine; and the remains of your " ftrength and freedom have long fince been exhausted by the " Greeks and Franks. Are you defirous of beholding the ancient " glory of Rome, the gravity of the fenate, the fpirit of the knights. " the difcipline of the camp, the valour of the legions? you will " find them in the German republic. It is not empire, naked and " alone, the ornaments and virtues of empire have likewife mi-" grated beyond the Alps to a more deferving people<sup>57</sup>: they will " be employed in your defence, but they claim your obedience. "You pretend that myfelf or my predeceffors have been invited by " the Romans : you miftake the word, they were not invited ; they " were implored. From its foreign and domeftic tyrants, the city " was refcued by Charlemagne and Otho, whofe afhes repofe in our " country : and their dominion was the price of your deliverance. " Under that dominion your anceftors lived and died. I claim by " the right of inheritance and poffeffion, and who shall dare to ex-

VOL. VI.

" tort

<sup>57</sup> Non ceffit nobis audum imperium, vir- Cicero or Livy would not have rejected thefe tute fua amictum venit, ornamenta fua fecum images, the eloquence of a Barbarian born traxit. Penes nos funt confules tui, &c. and educated in the Hercynian foreft.

C H A P. " tort you from my hands? Is the hand of the Franks" and Ger-" mans enfeebled by age? Am I vanquished? Am I a captive? Am " I not encompafied with the banners of a potent and invincible " army? You impofe conditions on your mafter; you require oaths: " if the conditions are just, an oath is superfluous; if unjust, it is " criminal. Can you doubt my equity? It is extended to the " meaneft of my fubjects. Will not my fword be unsheathed in " the defence of the Capitol? By that fword the northern kingdom of " Denmark has been reftored to the Roman empire. You prefcribe " the meafure and the objects of my bounty, which flows in a co-" pious but a voluntary ftream. All will be given to patient merit; " all will be denied to rude importunity "." Neither the emperor nor the fenate could maintain these lofty pretensions of dominion and liberty. United with the pope, and fufpicious of the Romans, Frederic continued his march to the Vatican : his coronation was difturbed by a fally from the Capitol; and if the numbers and valour of the Germans prevailed in the bloody conflict, he could not fafely encamp in the prefence of a city of which he flyled himfelf the fovereign. About twelve years afterwards, he befiged Rome, to feat an antipope in the chair of St. Peter; and twelve Pifan gallies were introduced into the Tyber: but the fenate and people were faved by the arts of negociation and the progrefs of difeafe; nor did Frederic or his fucceffors reiterate the hoftile attempt. Their laborious reigns were exercifed by the popes, the crufades, and the independence of Lombardy and Germany; they courted the alliance of the Romans; and Frederic the fecond offered in the Capitol the great standard, the Caroccio of Milan ". After the extinction of the houfe

> 58 Otho of Frifingen, who furely underflood the language of the court and diet of Germany, speaks of the Franks in the xiith century as the reigning nation (Proceres Fianci, equites Franci, manus Francorum): he adds, however, the epithet of Teutonici.

59 Otho Frifing. de Gestis Frederici I. 1. ii. c. 22. p. 720-723. Thefe original and authentic acts I have translated and abridged with freedom, yet with fidelity.

<sup>60</sup> From the Chronicles of Ricobaldo and Francis Pipin, Muratori (differt. xxvi. tom. ii. P.492.)

546

house of Swabia, they were banished beyond the Alps; and their C H A P. last coronations betrayed the impotence and poverty of the Teutonic Cæfars ".

Under the reign of Adrian, when the empire extended from the Wars of the Euphrates to the ocean, from mount Atlas to the Grampian hills, against the a fanciful historian 62 amused the Romans with the picture of their ing cities. infant wars. " There was a time," fays Florus, " when Tibur and " Præneste, our summer retreats, were the objects of hostile vows " in the Capitol, when we dreaded the fhades of the Arician groves, " when we could triumph without a blufh over the namelefs villages " of the Sabines and Latins, and even Corioli could afford a title " not unworthy of a victorious general." The pride of his contemporaries was gratified by the contrast of the past and the prefent: they would have been humbled by the profpect of futurity; by the prediction, that after a thousand years, Rome, despoiled of empire and contracted to her primæval limits, would renew the fame hoftilities, on the fame ground which was then decorated with her villas and gardens. The adjacent territory on either fide of the Tyber was always claimed, and fometimes poffeffed, as the patrimony of St. Peter; but the barons affumed a lawlefs independence, and the cities too faithfully copied the revolt and difcord of the metropolis. In the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, the Romans inceffantly laboured

p. 492.) has transcribed this curious fact inferizione, &c. to the fame purpole as the with the doggrel verfes that accompanied the gift.

Ave decus orbis ave ! victus tibi deft nor, ave !

Currus ab Augusto Frederico Cæfare justo.

Væ Mediolanum! jam fentis fpernere vanum

Imperii vires, proprias tibi tollere vires.

Ergo triumphorum urbs potes memor effe priorum Quos tibi mittebant reges qui bella gerebant.

Ne fi dee tacere (I now use the Italian Differtations, tom. i. p. 444.) che nell' anno 1727, una copia deflo Caroccio in marmo dianzi ignoto fi scopri nel Campidoglio, presso alle carcere di quel luogo, dove Sifto V. l'avea deferved the praife of a man of genius (Œufalto rinchiudere. Stava effo posto sopra vres de Montesquieu, tom. ili. p. 634, 635. quatro colonne di marmo fino colla sequente quarto edition).

old infeription.

of The decline of the Imperial arms and authority in Italy, is related with impartial learning in the Annals of Muratori (tom. x, xi, xii.); and the reader may compare his narrative with the Hiftoire des Allemands (tom. iii, iv.), by Schmidt, who has deferved the effeem of his countrymen.

62 Tibur nunc fuburbanum, et æftivæ Præneste deliciæ, nuncupatis in Capitolio votis petebantur. The whole paffage of Florus (l. i. c. 11.) may be read with pleafure, and has

4A 2

LXIX.

Romans neighbour-

to 547

LXIX.

C H A P. to reduce or deftroy the contumacious vaffals of the church and fcnate; and if their headftrong and felfifh ambition was moderated by the pope, he often encouraged their zeal by the alliance of his fpiritual arms. Their warfare was that of the first confuls and dictators, who were taken from the plow. They affembled in arms at the foot of the Capitol; fallied from the gates, plundered or burnt the harvefts of their neighbours, engaged in tumultuary conflict, and returned home after an expedition of fifteen or twenty days. Their fieges were tedious and unfkilful: in the ufe of victory, they indulged the meaner paffions of jealoufy and revenge; and inftead of adopting the valour, they trampled on the misfortunes, of their adverfaries. The captives, in their fhirts, with a rope round their necks, folicited their pardon : the fortifications and even the buildings of the rival cities were demolished, and the inhabitants were fcattered in the adjacent villages. It was thus that the feats of the cardinal bifhops, Porto, Oftia, Albanum, Tufculum, Prænefte, and Tibur or Tivoli, were fucceffively overthrown by the ferocious hoftility of the Romans". Of thefe", Porto and Oftia, the two keys of the Tyber, are still vacant and defolate: the marshy and unwholefome banks are peopled with herds of buffalos, and the river is loft to every purpofe of navigation and trade. The hills which afford a fhady retirement from the autumnal heats, have again fmiled with the bleffings of peace : Frescati has arisen near the ruins of Tusculum: Tibur or Tivoli has refumed the honours of a city65, and the meaner towns of Albano and Palestrina are decorated with 64 For the flate or ruin of these suburban cities, the banks of the Tyber, &c. fee the lively picture of the P. Labat (Voyage en Espagne et en Italie), who had long refided

9

<sup>63</sup> Ne a feritate Romanorum, ficut fuerant in the neighbourhood of Rome; and the more accurate description of which P. Eschinard (Roma, 1750, in octavo) has added to the topographical map of Cingolani.

<sup>65</sup> Labat (tom. iii. p. 233.) mentions a recent decree of the Roman government, which has feverely mortified the pride and poverty of Tivoli: in civitate Tiburtina non vivitur civiliter.

the Hoftienses, Portuenses, Tusculanenses, Albananses, Labicenses, et nuper Tiburtini destruerentur (Matthew Paris, p. 757.). These events are marked in the Annals and Index (the xviiith volume) of Muratori.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

the villas of the cardinals and princes of Rome. In the work of C H A P. destruction, the ambition of the Romans was often checked and repulfed by the neighbouring cities and their allies : in the first fiege of Tibur, they were driven from their camp; and the battles of Battle of Tusculum<sup>66</sup> and Viterbo<sup>67</sup> might be compared in their relative ftate A. D. 1167. to the memorable fields of Thrafymene and Cannæ. In the first of thefe petty wars, thirty thousand Romans were overthrown by a thousand German horse, whom Frederic Barbarossa had detached to the relief of Tufculum; and if we number the flain at three, the prifoners at two, thousand, we shall embrace the most authentic and moderate account. Sixty-eight years afterward they marched againft Battle of Viterbo in the ecclefiaftical flate with the whole force of the city; A.D. 1234. by a rare coalition, the Teutonic eagle was blended, in the adverse banners, with the keys of St. Peter ; and the pope's auxiliaries were commanded by a count of Tholoufe and a bifhop of Winchefter. The Romans were difcomfited with fhame and flaughter; but the English prelate must have indulged the vanity of a pilgrim, if he multiplied their numbers to one hundred, and their lofs in the field to thirty, thousand men. Had the policy of the fenate and the discipline of the legions been reftored with the Capitol, the divided condition of Italy would have offered the faireft opportunity of a fecond conquest. But in arms, the modern Romans were not above, and in arts, they were far below, the common level of the neighbouring republics. Nor was their warlike fpirit of any long continuance; after fome irregular fallies, they fubfided in the national apathy, in the neglect of military inflitutions, and in the difgraceful and dangerous ufe of foreign mercenaries.

<sup>c6</sup> I depart from my usual method, of quoting only by the date the Annals of Mu- of Winchefter was Peter de Rupibus, who ratori, in confideration of the critical balance occupied the fee thirty-two years (A. D. 1206 in which he has weighed nine contemporary writers who mention the battle of Tufculum historian, as a foldier and a statesman (p. 178. (tom. x. p. 42-44.).

67 Matthew Paris, p. 345. This bishop -1238), and is defcribed, by the English 399.).

Ambition

LXIX.

Tufculum,

Viterbo.

C H A P. LXIX. The election of the popes.

Ambition is a weed of quick and early vegetation in the vineyard of Chrift. Under the first Christian princes, the chair of St. Peter was difputed by the votes, the venality, the violence, of a popular election : the fanctuaries of Rome were polluted with blood; and, from the third to the twelfth century, the church was diffracted by the mifchief of frequent fchifms. As long as the final appeal was determined by the civil magistrate, these mischiefs were transient and local: the merits were tried by equity or favour; nor could the unfuccefsful competitor long difturb the triumph of his rival. But after the emperors had been divested of their prerogatives, after a maxim had been established, that the vicar of Christ is amenable to no earthly tribunal, each vacancy of the holy fee might involve Chriftendom in controverfy and war. The claims of the cardinals and inferior clergy, of the nobles and people, were vague and litigious: the freedom of choice was over-ruled by the tumults of a city that no longer owned or obeyed a fuperior. On the deceafe of a pope, two factions proceeded in different churches to a double election : the number and weight of votes, the priority of time, the merit of the candidates, might balance each other : the most refpectable of the clergy were divided; and the diftant princes, who bowed before the spiritual throne, could not diffinguish the spurious, from the legitimate, idol. The emperors were often the authors of the fchifm, from the political motive of oppofing a friendly to an hoftile pontiff; and each of the competitors was reduced to fuffer the infults of his enemies, who were not awed by confcience; and to purchafe the fupport of his adherents, who were inftigated by avarice or ambition. A peaceful and perpetual fucceffion was afcertained by Alexander the third 68, who finally abolifhed the tumultuary votes of the clergy and people, and defined the right of election

Right of the cardinals eftablifhed by Alexander III. A. D. 1179.

in

 $<sup>^{68}</sup>$  See Mofheim, Inftitut. Hift. Ecclefiaft. preponderated by the weight of genius and p. 401. 403. Alexander himfelf had nearly learning which St. Bernard caft into the been the viftim of a contefled election; and fcale (fee his life and writings). the doubtful merits of Innocent had only in the fole college of cardinals "?. The three orders of bifhops, C H A P. priefts, and deacons, were affimilated to each other by this important privilege : the parochial clergy of Rome obtained the first rank in the hierarchy; they were indifferently chosen among the nations of Chriftendom ; and the poffession of the richeft benefices, of the most important bifhoprics, was not incompatible with their title and office. The fenators of the Catholic church, the coadjutors and legates of the fupreme pontiff, were robed in purple, the fymbol of martyrdom or royalty; they claimed a proud equality with kings; and their dignity was enhanced by the fmallnefs of their number, which, till the reign of Leo the tenth, feldom exceeded twenty, or twenty-five, perfons. By this wife regulation, all doubt and fcandal were removed, and the root of fchilm was fo effectually deftroyed, that in a period of fix hundred years a double choice has only once divided the unity of the facred college. But as the concurrence of two thirds of the votes had been made neceffary, the election was often delayed by the private interest and passions of the cardinals; and while they prolonged their independent reign, the Chriftian world was left deftitute of an head. A vacancy of almost three years had Inflitution preceded the elevation of Gregory the tenth, who refolved to prevent the future abuse; and his bull, after fome opposition, has been Gregory X. A. D. 1274. confecrated in the code of the canon law ". Nine days are allowed for the obfequies of the deceafed pope, and the arrival of the abfent cardinals: on the tenth, they are imprifoned, each with one domeffic, in a common apartment or conclave, without any feparation of walls or curtains; a finall window is referved for the introduction of neceffaries; but the door is locked on both fides, and guarded by the magistrates of the city, to feelude them from all <sup>69</sup> The origin, titles, importance, drefs, his vicar, the disciples of Chrift. precedency, &c. of the Roman cardinals, are very ably difcuffed by Thomassin (Difcipline de l'Eglife, tom. i. p. 1262-1237.); Law (l. i. tit. 6. c. 3.), a supplement to the but their purple is now much faded. The Decretals, which Boniface VIII. promulgated facred college was railed to the definite at Rome in 1298, and addreffed to all the number of feventy-two, to represent, under universities of Europe.

7º See the bull of Gregory X. (approbante facro concilio, in the Sexte of the Canon corre-

of the conclave by

551

C H A P. correspondence with the world. If the election be not confummated LXIX. in three days, the luxury of their table is contracted to a fingle difh at dinner and fupper; and after the eighth day, they are reduced to a fcanty allowance of bread, water, and wine. During the vacancy of the holy fee, the cardinals are prohibited from touching the revenues, or affuming, unlefs in fome rare emergency, the government, of the church : all agreements and promifes among the electors are formally annulled; and their integrity is fortified by their folemn oath and the prayers of the Catholics. Some articles of inconvenient or fuperfluous rigour have been gradually relaxed, but the principle of confinement is vigorous and entire: they are ftill urged, by the perfonal motives of health and freedom, to accelerate the moment of their deliverance; and the improvement of ballot or fecret votes has wrapt the ftruggles of the conclave" in the filky veil of charity and politeness <sup>22</sup>. By these institutions, the Romans were excluded from the election of their prince and bifhop; and in the fever of wild and precarious liberty, they feemed infenfible of the lofs of this ineftimable privilege. The emperor Lewis of Ba-A. D. 1328. varia revived the example of the great Otho. After fome negociation with the magistrates, the Roman people was assembled 73 in the fquare before St. Peter's; the pope of Avignon, John the twentyfecond, was depofed; the choice of his fuccefior was ratified by > right to paint a conclave (of 1655), in which he was a spectator and an actor (Memoires, tom. iv. p. 15-57.): but I am at a loss to appreciate the knowledge or authority of an anonymous Italian, whofe history (Conclavi de' Pontifici Romani, in 4to, 1667) has been continued fince the reign of Alexander VII. The accidental form of the work furnishes a leffon, though not an antidote, to ambition. From a labyrinth of intrigues, we emerge to the adoration of the fuccefsful candidate: but the next page opens with his funeral.

72 The expressions of cardinal de Retz are positive and picturesque: On y veçut toujours ensemble avec le mome respect, et la même

74 The genius of cardinal de Retz had a civilité que l'on observe dans le cabinet des rois, avec la même politesse qu'on avoit dans la cour de Henri III. avec la même familiarité que l'on voit dans les colleges; avec la même modeslie, qui se remarque dans les noviciats; et avec la même charité, du moins en apparence, qui pourroit être entre des freres parfaitement unis.

> 73 Rechiefti per bando (fays John Villani) fanatori di Roma, e 52 del popolo, et capitani de' 25. e confoli (confoli?), et 13 buone huomini, uno per rione. Our knowledge is too imperfect to pronounce, how much of this conflicution was temporary, and how much ordinary and permanent. Yet it is faintly illuftrated by the ancient flatutes of Rome.

> > their

552

their confent and applaufe. They freely voted for a new law, that C H A P. their bifhop fhould never be abfent more than three months in the year, and two days journey from the city; and that if he neglected to return on the third fummons, the public fervant flould be degraded and difmiffed 74. But Lewis forgot his own debility and the prejudices of the times : beyond the precincts of a German camp, his useles phantom was rejected; the Romans despised their own workmanship; the antipope implored the mercy of his lawful fovereign <sup>75</sup>; and the exclusive right of the cardinals was more firmly eftablished by this unfeasonable attack.

Had the election been always held in the Vatican, the rights of the fenate and people would not have been violated with impunity. But the Romans forgot, and were forgotten, in the absence of the fucceffors of Gregory the feventh, who did not keep as a divine precept their ordinary refidence in the city and diocefe. The care of that diocefe was lefs important than the government of the univerfal church; nor could the popes delight in a city in which their authority was always oppofed and their perfon was often endangered. From the perfecution of the emperors, and the wars of Italy, they efcaped beyond the Alps into the hospitable bosom of France; from the tumults of Rome they prudently withdrew to live and die in the more tranquil stations of Anagni, Perugia, Viterbo, and the adjacent cities. When the flock was offended or impoverished by the absence, of the shepherd, they were recalled by a stern admonition, that St. Peter had fixed his chair, not in an obfcure village, but in the capital of the world; by a ferocious menace that the Romans would march in arms to deftroy the place and people that fhould

VOL. VI.

4 B

dare

Ablence of the popes from Rome,

553

LXIX.

-----

<sup>74</sup> Villani (l. x. c. 68-71. in Muratori, is fluctuating and inconfiftent, Script. tom. xiii. p. 641-645.) relates this law, and the whole transaction, with much non, see the second original Life of John lefs abhorrence than the prudent Muratori. Any one conversant with the darker antipope, p. 145-152. and the laborious ages must have observed how much the notes of Baluze, p. 714, 715. fense (I mean the nonsense) of superflition

<sup>75</sup> In the ist volume of the Popes of Avig-XXII. p. 142-145. the confeilion of the

Boniface VIII. A. D. 1.294-1303.

C H A P. dare to afford them a retreat. They returned with timorous obedience; and were faluted with the account of an heavy debt, of all the loffes which their defertion had occafioned, the hire of lodgings. the fale of provisions, and the various expences of fervants and ftrangers who attended the court <sup>76</sup>. After a fhort interval of peace, and perhaps of authority, they were again banished by new tumults. and again fummoned by the imperious or respectful invitation of the fenate. In these occasional retreats, the exiles and fugitives of the Vatican were feldom long, or far, diftant from the metropolis; but in the beginning of the fourteenth century the apoftolic throne was transported, as it might feem for ever, from the Tyber to the Rhône; and the caufe of the transmigration may be deduced from the furious contest between Boniface the eighth and the king of France<sup>17</sup>. The fpiritual arms of excommunication and interdict were repulfed by the union of the three eftates, and the privileges of the Gallican church; but the pope was not against the carnal weapons which Philip the Fair had courage to employ. As the pope refided at Anagni, without the fufpicion of danger, hispalace and perfon were affaulted by three hundred horfe, who had been fecretly levied by William of Nogaret, a French minister, and Sciarra Colonna, of a noble but hoflile family of Rome. The cardinals fled; the inhabitants of Anagni were feduced from their allegiance and gratitude ; but the dauntless Boniface, unarmed and > lentes ultra fuam celare cupiditatem graviffimam contra papam movere cœperunt queftionem, exigentes ab eo urgentissime omnia quæ subierant per ejus absentiam damna et jacturas, videlicet in hofpitiis locandis, in mercimoniis, in ufuris, in redditibus, in provisionibus, et in aliis modis innumerabilibus. Quôd cum audisset papa, præcordialiter ingemuit et se comperiens muscipulatum, &c. Matt. Paris, p. 757. For the ordinary hiftory of the popes, their life and death, their re-

<sup>76</sup> Romani autem non valentes nec vo- fidence and absence, it is enough to refer to the ecclefiaftical annalists, Spondanus and Eleury.

77 Befides the general historians of thechurch of Italy and of France, we poffefs a valuable treatife composed by a learned friend of-Thuanus, which his laft and beft editors have published in the appendix (Histoire particuliere du grand Differend entre Boniface VIII. et Philippe le Bel, par Pierre du Puis, tom. vii. P. xi. p. 61-82.).

alone,

LXIX.

~

alone, feated himfelf in his chair, and awaited, like the confeript C H A P. fathers of old, the fwords of the Gauls. Nogaret, a foreign adverfary, was content to execute the orders of his mafter : by the domestic enmity of Colonna, he was infulted with words and blows; and during a confinement of three days his life was threatened by the hardships which they inflicted on the obstinacy which they provoked. Their ftrange delay gave time and courage to the adherents of the church, who refcued him from facrilegious violence; but his imperious foul was wounded in a vital part; and Boniface expired at Rome in a frenzy of rage and revenge. His memory is ftained with the glaring vices of avarice and pride; nor has the courage of a martyr promoted this ecclefiaftical champion to the honours of a faint; a magnanimous finner (fay the chronicles of the times), who entered like a fox, reigned like a lion, and died like a dog. He was fucceeded by Benedict the eleventh, the mildeft of mankind. Yet he excommunicated the impious emiffaries of Philip, and devoted the city and people of Anagni by a tremendous curfe, whole effects are still visible to the eyes of fuperstition 78.

After his decease, the tedious and equal fuspense of the conclave Translation was fixed by the dexterity of the French faction. A fpecious offer fee to was made and accepted, that, in the term of forty days, they would Avignon, A.D. 1309elect one of the three candidates who fhould be named by their opponents. The archbishop of Bourdeaux, a furious enemy of his king and country, was the first on the list; but his ambition was known; and his confcience obeyed the calls of fortune and the commands of a benefactor, who had been informed by a fwift melfenger that the choice of a pope was now in his hands. The terms were regulated in a private interview; and with fuch fpeed and fecrefy was the bufinefs tranfacted, that the unanimous conclave applauded of the holy

the 555

&lt;sup>28</sup> It is difficult to know whether Labat or vineyards, or olive-trees, are annually (tom. iv. p. 53-57.) be in jest or in earnest, blasted by nature, the obsequious handmaid of when he fuppofes that Anagni still feels the the popes. weight of this curfe, and that the corn-fields,

LXIX.

-----

C H A P. the elevation of Clement the fifth 79. The cardinals of both parties were foon aftonifhed by a fummons to attend him beyond the Alps; from whence, as they foon difcovered, they must never hope to return. He was engaged, by promife and affection, to prefer the refidence of France; and, after dragging his court through Poitou and Gafcogny, and devouring, by his expence, the cities and convents on the road, he finally repofed at Avignon <sup>80</sup>, which flourished above feventy years " the feat of the Roman pontiff and the metropolis of Christendom. By land, by fea, by the Rhone, the polition of Avignon was on all fides acceffible: the fouthern provinces of France do not yield to Italy itfelf; new palaces arofe for the accommodation of the pope and cardinals; and the arts of luxury were foon attracted by the treasures of the church. They were already posselied of the adjacent territory, the Venaissin county 22, a populous and fertile fpot; and the fovereignty of Avignon was afterwards purchafed from the youth and diffrefs of Jane, the first queen of Naples and countefs of Provence, for the inadequate price of fourfcore thousand florins<sup>83</sup>. Under the shadow of the French monarchy, > lani (l. viii. c. 63, 64. 80. in Muratori, tom. xiii.) the imprisonment of Boniface VIII and the election of Clement V. the laft of which, like most an idotes, is embarrasfed with fome difficulties.

> <sup>80</sup> The original lives of the eight popes of Avignon, Clement V. John XXII. Benedict XII. Clement VI. Innocent VI. Urban V. Gregory XI. and Clement VII. are published by Stephen Baluze (Vitæ Paparum Avenionenfium; Paris, 1693, 2 vols. in 4to) with copious and elaborate notes, and a fecond volume of acts and documents. With the true zeal of an editor and a patriot, he devoutly justifies or excuses the characters of his countrymen.

> * The exile of Avignon is compared by the Italians with Babylon, and the Babylonifh captivity. Such furious metaphors, more fuitable to the ardour of Petrarch than to the 79 See in the Chronicle of Giovanni Vil- judgment of Muratori, are gravely refuted in Baluze's preface. The abbé de Sade is diffracted between the love of Petrarch and of his country. Yet he modeftly pleads, that many of the local inconveniencies of Avignon are now removed; and many of the vices against which the poet declaims, had been imported with the Roman court by the ftrangers of Italy (tom. i. p. 23-28.).

> 82 The comtat Venaislin was ceded to the popes in 1273 by Philip III. king of France, after he had inherited the dominions of the count of Tholoufe. Forty years before, the herefy of count Raymond had given them a pretence of feizure, and they derived fome obfcure claim from the xith century to fome lands citra Rhodanum (Valesii Notitia Galliarum, p. 459. 610. Longuerue, Description de la France, tom. i. p. 376-381.).

83 If a possession of four centuries were not itself a title, fuch objections might annul the bargain ;

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

narchy, amidit an obedient people, the popes enjoyed an honour- C H A P. able and tranquil ftate, to which they long had been ftrangers : but Italy deplored their abfence; and Rome, in folitude and poverty, might repent of the ungovernable freedom which had driven from the Vatican the fucceffor of St. Peter. Her repentance was tardy and fruitlefs: after the death of the old members, the facred college was filled with French cardinals **, who beheld Rome and Italy with abhorrence and contempt, and perpetuated a feries of national, and even provincial, popes, attached by the most indiffoluble ties to their native country.

The progress of industry had produced and enriched the Italian Institution of republics : the æra of their liberty is the most flourishing period of or holy year, population and agriculture, of manufactures and commerce; and their mechanic labours were gradually refined into the arts of elegance and genius. But the polition of Rome was lefs favourable, the territory less fruitful; the character of the inhabitants was debafed by indolence and elated by pride; and they fondly conceived that the tribute of fubjects must for ever nourish the metropolis of the church and empire. This prejudice was encouraged in fome degree by the refort of pilgrims to the fhrines of the apoftles; and the laft legacy of the popes, the inftitution of the HOLY YEAR ", was not lefs beneficial to the people than to the clergy. Since the lofs of Paleftine, the gift of plenary indulgences, which had been applied refunded, for indeed it was paid. Civitatem Avenionem emit .... per ejufmodi venditionem pecunia redundantes, &c. (iida Vita Clement. VI. in Baluz. tom. i. p. 272. Muratori, Script. tom. iii. P. ii. p. 565.) The only temptation for Jane and her fecond hufband was ready money, and without it they could not have returned to the throne of Naples.

** Clement V. immediately promoted ten cardinals, nine French and one English (Vita iva, p. 63. et Baluz. p. 625, &c.). In bargain; but the purchase-money must be 1331, the pope refused two candidates recommended by the king of France, quod xx. Cardinales, de quibus xvii. de regno Franciæ originem traxiffe nofcuntur in memorato collegio existant (Thomassin, Discipline de l'Eglife, tom. i. p. 1281.).

85 Our primitive account is from cardinal James Caietan (Maxima Bibliot. Patrum, tom. xxv.); and I am at a loss to determine whether the nephew of Boniface VIII. be a fool or a knave: the uncle is a much clearer character.

the jubilee, A. D. 1300.

9

C H A P. to the crufades, remained without an object; and the most valuable treasure of the church was fequestered above eight years from public circulation. A new channel was opened by the diligence of Boniface the eighth, who reconciled the vices of ambition and avarice ; and the pope had fufficient learning to recollect and revive the fecular games, which were celebrated in Rome at the conclusion of every century. To found without danger the depth of popular credulity, a fermon was feafonably pronounced, a report was artfully fcattered, fome aged witneffes were produced; and on the first of January of the year thirteen hundred, the church of St. Peter was crowded with the faithful, who demanded the cuftomary indulgence of the holy time. The pontiff, who watched and irritated their devout impatience, was foon perfuaded by ancient teftimony of the juffice of their claim; and he proclaimed a plenary abfolution to all Catholics who, in the courfe of that year, and at every fimilar period, fhould refpectfully vifit the apoftolic churches of St. Peter and St. Paul. The welcome found was propagated through Christendom; and at first from the nearest provinces of Italy, and at length from the remote kingdoms of Hungary and Britain, the highways were thronged with a fwarm of pilgrims who fought to expiate their fins in a journey, however coftly or laborious, which was exempt from the perils of military fervice. All exceptions of rank or fex, of age or infirmity, were forgotten in the common transport; and in the ftreets and churches many perfons were trampled to death by the eagernefs of devotion. The calculation of their numbers could not be eafy nor accurate; and they have probably been magnified by a dextrous clergy, well apprifed of the contagion of example : yet we are affured by a judicious hiftorian, who affifted at the ceremony, that Rome was never replenished with lefs than two hundred thousand ftrangers; and another fpectator has fixed at two millions the total concourfe of the year. A triffing oblation from each individual would accumulate a royal treasure; and two priefts flood night and day, with with rakes in their hands, to collect, without counting, the heaps C H A P. LXIX. of gold and filver that were poured on the altar of St. Paul 56. It was fortunately a feafon of peace and plenty; and if forage wasfcarce, if inns and lodgings were extravagantly dear, an inexhauftible fupply of bread and wine, of meat and fifh, was provided by the policy of Boniface and the venal hospitality of the Romans. From a city without trade or industry, all cafual riches will speedily evaporate: but the avarice and envy of the next generation folicited Clement the fixth<sup>37</sup> to anticipate the diftant period of the century. The gracious pontiff complied with their wifnes; afforded Rome this poor confolation for his lofs; and juftified the change by the name and practice of the Mofaic Jubilee 88. His fummons was The fecond obeyed; and the number, zeal, and liberality, of the pilgrims did A. D. 1350. not yield to the primitive feftival. But they encountered the triple fcourge of war, peftilence, and famine : many wives and virginswere violated in the caftles of Italy; and many ftrangers were pillaged or murdered by the favage Romans, no longer moderated by the prefence of their bifhop <sup>89</sup>. To the impatience of the popes we may afcribe the fucceffive reduction to fifty, thirty-three, and twentyfive, years; although the fecond of thefe terms is commenfurate with: the life of Chrift. The profusion of indulgences, the revolt of the Protestants, and the decline of superstition, have much diminished the value of the jubilee : yet even the nineteenth and last festival was a year of pleafure and profit to the Romans; and a philosophic xiith, and the Chronicon Aftenfe, in the xith volume (p. 191, 192.) of Muratori's Collection. Papa innumera ilem pecuniam ab eifdem accepit, nam duo clerici, cum raftris, Sc.

87 The two bulls of Boniface VIII. and Clement VI. are inferted in the Corpus Juris Canonici (Extravagant. Commun. 1.v. tit. ix. C. 1, 2.).

88 The fabbatic years and jubilees of the Mofaic law (Car. Sigon. de Republica Hebræ-16 See John Villani (l. viii. c. 36.) in the orum, Opp. tom. iv. l. iii. c. 14, 15- p. 151, 152.), the fuspension of all care and labour, the periodical release of lands, dcbts, fervitude, &c. may feem a noble idea, but the execution would be impracticable in a preface republic; and I fhould be glad to learn that this ruinous feftival was observed by the Jewith, people.

> 89 See the Chronicle of Matteo Villani (l. i. c. 56.) in the xivth volume of Muratori, and the Memoires fur la Vie de Petrarque, tom. iii. p. 75-89.

fmile

jubilee,

LXIX. ____

The nobles or barons of Rome.

C H A P. fmile will not difturb the triumph of the prieft or the happiness of the people °°.

> In the beginning of the eleventh century, Italy was exposed to the feudal tyranny alike oppreffive to the fovereign and the people. The rights of human nature were vindicated by her numerous republics, who foon extended their liberty and dominion from the city to the adjacent country. The fword of the nobles was broken ; their flaves were enfranchifed; their caftles were demolished; they assumed the habits of fociety and obedience; their ambition was confined to municipal honours, and in the proudeft ariftocracy of Venice or Genoa, each patrician was fubject to the laws". But the feeble and diforderly government of Rome was unequal to the tafk of curbing her rebellious fons, who fcorned the authority of the magiftrate within and without the walls. It was no longer a civil contention between the nobles and plebeians for the government of the flate: the barons afferted in arms their perfonal independence; their palaces and cafiles were fortified against a fiege; and their private quarrels were maintained by the numbers of their vaffals and retainers. In origin and affection, they were aliens to their country 92: and a genuine Roman, could fuch have been produced, might have renounced thefe haughty ftrangers, who difdained the appellation of citizens, and proudly flyled themfelves the princes, of Rome<sup>33</sup>. After a dark feries of revolutions, all records of pedigree were loft; the diffinction of furnames was abolifhed; the blood of the nations was 9º The fubject is exhaufted by M. Chais, a French minister at the Hague, in his Lettres Hiftoriques et Dogmatiques, sur les Jubiles et les Indulgences; la Haye, 1751, 3 vols. in 12mo; an elaborate and pleafing work, had not the author preferred the character of a polemic to that of a philosopher.

9' Muratori (Differt. xlvii.) alleges the Annals of Florence, Padua, Genoa, &c. the analogy of the reft, the evidence of Otho of Frifingen (de Geft. Fred. I. l. ii. c. 13.), and the fubmifion of the marquis of Effe.

92 As early as the year S24, the emperor Lothaire I. found it expedient to interrogate the Roman people, to learn from each individual, by what national law he chofe to be governed (Muratori, Differt xxii.).

93 Petrarch attacks thefe foreigners, the tyrants of Rome, in a declamation or epifile, full of bold truths and abfurd pedantry, in which he applies the maxims, and even prejudices, of the old republic to the flate of the xisth century (Memoires, tom. iii. p. 157-169.).

mingled

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

iningled in a thousand channels; and the Goths and Lombards, the C H A P. Greeks and Franks, the Germans and Normans, had obtained the fairest possessions by royal bounty, or the prerogative of valour. Thefe examples might be readily prefumed : but the elevation of an Hebrew race to the rank of fenators and confuls, is an event without a parallel in the long captivity of these miserable exiles<sup>24</sup>. In the time of Leo the ninth, a wealthy and learned Jew was converted to chriftianity; and honoured at his baptifm with the name of his godfather, the reigning pope. The zeal and courage of Peter the Family of fon of Leo were fignalifed in the caufe of Gregory the feventh, who entrusted his faithful adherent with the government of Adrian's mole, the tower of Crefcentius, or, as it is now called, the caffle of St. Angelo. Both the father and the fon were the parents of a numerous progeny; their riches, the fruits of ulury, were shared with the nobleft families of the city; and fo extensive was their alliance. that the grandfon of the profelyte was exalted by the weight of his kindred to the throne of St. Peter. A majority of the clergy and people supported his cause; he reigned feveral years in the Vatican. and it is only the eloquence of St. Bernard, and the final triumph of Innocent the fecond, that has branded Anacletus with the epithet of antipope. After his defeat and death, the posterity of Leo is no longer confpicuous; and none will be found of the modern nobles ambitious of defcending from a Jewish stock. It is not my defign to enumerate the Roman families, which have failed at different periods, or those which are continued in different degrees of fplendour to the prefent time 95. The old confular line of the Frangipani dif-

4 C

VOL. VI.

"* The origin and adventures of this Jewifh turned into a reproach against the antipope.

95 Muratori has given two differtations cover

Leo the lew.

Family are noticed by Pagi (Critica, tom. iv. p. 435. A. D. 1124, N° 3, 4.), who draws (xli and xlii.) to the names, furnames, and his information from the Chronographus families of Italy. Some nobles, who glory Maurigniacenfis, and Arnulphus Sagienfis in their domeflic fables, may be offended de Schifmate (in Muratori, Script. Ital. with his firm and temperate criticism; yet tom.iii. P. i. p. 423-432.). The fact must furely fome ounces of pure gold are of more in some degree be true; yet I could with value than many pounds of base metal. that it had been coolly related, before it was <sup>C</sup> H A P. cover their name in the generous act of breaking or dividing bread in a time of famine; and fuch benevolence is more truly glorious than to have enclosed, with their allies the Corfi, a fpacious quarter of the city in the chains of their fortifications: the Savelli, as it fhould feem a Sabine race, have maintained their original dignity; the obfolete furname of the Capizucchi is inferibed on the coins of the first fenators; the Conti preferve the honour, without the eftate, of the counts of Signia; and the Annibaldi must have been very ignorant, or very modelt, if they had not defcended from the Carthaginian hero<sup>56</sup>.

The Colonna, But among, perhaps above, the peers and princes of the city, I diftinguifh the rival houfes of COLONNA and URSINI, whofe private ftory is an effential part of the annals of modern Rome. I. The name and arms of Colonna<sup>97</sup> have been the theme of much doubtful etymology; nor have the orators and antiquarians overlooked either Trajan's pillar, or the columns of Hercules, or the pillar of Chrift's flagellation, or the luminous column that guided the Ifraelites in the defert. Their firft hiftorical appearance in the year eleven hundred and four, attefts the power and antiquity, while it explains the fimple meaning, of the name. By the ufurpation of Cavæ, the Colonna provoked the arms of Pafchal the fecond; but they lawfully held in the Campagna of Rome, the hereditary fiefs of Zagarola

<sup>96</sup> The cardinal of St. George, in his poetical, or rather metrical, hiftory of the election and coronation of Boniface VIII. (Muratori, Script. Ital. tom. iii. P. i. p. 641, &c.), defcribes the flate and families of Rome at the coronation of Boniface VIII. (A. D. 1295):

Interea titulis redimiti fanguine et armis Iludrefque viri Romană a firpe trahentes Nomen în emeritos tantæ virtutis honores Intulerant fefe medios feftunque colebant Aurata fulgentes toga fociante catervâ. Ex ipîs devota domus præflantis ab Urađ E celefiæ, vultunque gerens demifiius altum Fefla Celomen jecis, necono Sztelliw mitis ; Stephanides senior, Comites, Anibalica proles, Præsectusque urbis magnum fine viribus nomen.

(l. ii. c. 5. 100. p. 647, 648.).

The ancient flatutes of Rome (l. iii. c. 59. p. 174, 175.) diftinguifh eleven families of barons, who are obliged to fwear in concilio communi, before the fenator, that they would not harbour or protect any malefactors, outlaws, &c.-- a feeble fecurity!

<sup>97</sup> It is pity that the Colonna themfelves have not favoured the world with a complete and critical hiflory of their illuftrious houfe. I adhere to Muratori (Differt. xlii. tom. iii. p. 647, 648.).

and

and Colonna; and the latter of thefe towns was probably adorned C H A P. with fome lofty pillar, the relic of a villa or temple<sup>98</sup>. They likewife poffeffed one moiety of the neighbouring city of Tufculum; a ftrong prefumption of their defcent from the counts of Tufculum, who in the tenth century were the tyrants of the apoftolic fee. According to their own and the public opinion, the primitive and remote fource was derived from the banks of the Rhine "; and the fovereigns of Germany were not ashamed of a real or fabulous affinity with a noble race, which in the revolutions of feven hundred years has been often illustrated by merit, and always by fortune "". About the end of the thirteenth century, the most powerful branch was composed of an uncle and fix brothers, all confpicuous in arms, or in the honours of the church. Of thefe, Peter was elected fenator of Rome, introduced to the Capitol in a triumphant car, and hailed in fome vain acclamations with the title of Cæfar; while John and Stephen were declared marquis of Ancona and count of Romagna, by Nicholas the fourth, a patron fo partial to their family, that he has been delineated in fatirical portraits, imprifoned as it were in a hollow pillar ". After his deceafe, their haughty behaviour provoked the displeasure of the most implacable of mankind. The two cardinals, the uncle and the nephew, denied the election of Boniface the eighth; and the Colonna were oppreffed for a moment by his 98 Pandulph. Pifan. in Vit. Pafchal. II. in confounded with the column. To maintain Muratori, Script. Ital. tom. iii. P. i. p. 335. The family has fill great poffettions in the Campagna of Rome; but they have alienated to the Rospigliosi this original fief of Colonna (Eschinard, p. 258, 259.).

99 Te longinqua dedit tellus et pascua Rheni, fays Petrarch; and, in 1417, a duke of or ovation of Marco Antonio Colonna, who Guelders and Juliers acknowledges (Lenfant, Hift. du Concile de Constance, tom. ii. p. 539.) his descent from the ancestors of Martin V. (Otho Colonna): but the royal author of the Memoirs of Brandenburg obferves, that the sceptre in his arms has been p. 216. 220.

the Roman origin of the Colonna, it was ingenioufly fuppofed (Diario di Monaldefchia in the Script. Ital. tom. xii. p. 533.), that a coufin of the emperor Nero efcaped from the city, and founded Mentz in Germany.

100 I cannot overlook the Roman triumph had commanded the pope's gallies at the naval victory of Lepanto (Thuan. Hift. 1. 7. tom. iii. p. 55, 56. Muret. Oratio x. Opp. toni.i. p. 180-190.).

"" Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. x.

4 C 2

temporal

LXIX.

LXIX.

C H A' P. temporal and spiritual arms102. He proclaimed a crusade against his personal enemies; their estates were confiscated; their fortress on either fide of the Tyber were belieged by the troops of St. Peter and those of the rival nobles; and after the ruin of. Palestrina or Prænefte, their principal feat, the ground was marked with a ploughshare, the emblem of perpetual desolation. Degraded, banished, proferibed, the fix brothers, in difguife and danger, wandered over Europe without renouncing the hope of deliverance and revenge. In this double hope, the French court was their fureft afylum : they prompted and directed the enterprife of Philip; and I should praife their magnanimity, had they respected the misfortune and courage of the captive tyrant. His civil acts were annulled by the Roman people, who reftored the honours and poffeffions of the Colonna; and fome eftimate may be formed of their wealth by their loffes, of their loffes by the damages of one hundred thousand gold florins which were granted them against the accomplices and heirs of the deceafed pope. All the fpiritual cenfures and difqualifications were abolished 103 by his prudent successors; and the fortune of the house was more firmly established by this transient hurricane. The boldness of Sciarra Colonna was fignalifed in the captivity of Boniface; and long afterwards in the coronation of Lewis of Bavaria; and by the gratitude of the emperor, the pillar in their arms was encircled with a royal crown. But the first of the family in fame and merit was the elder Stephen, whom Petrarch loved and efteemed as an hero fuperior

> "Detrarch's attachment to the Colonna, of Stephen to be now extinct. has authorifed the abbé de Sade to expatiate on the flate of the family in the fourteenth century, the perfecution of Boniface VIII. the character of Stephen and his fons, their quarrels with the Urfini, &c. (Memoires fur Petrarque, tom. i. p. 98-110. 146 -148. 174-176. 222-230. 275-280.) His criticism often rectifies the hearfay ftories of Villani, and the errors of the lefs diligent moderns. I understand the branch to his own times, and not unworthy of ancient Rome. Perfecution C H A P. and exile difplayed to the nations his abilities in peace and war; in his diftrefs, he was an object, not of pity, but of reverence ; the afpect of danger provoked him to avow his name and country : and when he was afked. " where is now your fortrefs ?" he laid his hand on his heart, and answered, " here." He supported with the fame virtue the return of prosperity; and, till the ruin of his declining age, the anceftors, the character, and the children of Stephen Colonna; exalted his dignity in the Roman republic, and at the court of Avignon. II. The Urfini migrated from Spoleto 104; and Urfinithe fons of Urfus, as they are flyled in the twelfth century, from fome eminent perfon who is only known as the father of their race. But they were foon diffinguished among the nobles of Rome, by the number and bravery of their kinfmen, the ftrength of their towers, the honours of the fenate and facred college, and the elevation of two popes, Celeftin the third and Nicholas the third, of their name and lineage 105. Their riches may be accufed as an. early abufe of nepotifm: the eftates of St. Peter were alienated in their favour by the liberal Celeftin 106; and Nicholas was ambitious for their fake to folicit the alliance of monarchs; to found new kingdoms in Lombardy and Tuscany; and to invest them with the perpetual office of fenators of Rome. All that has been observed of the greatness of the Colonna, will likewife redound to the glory of.

103 Alexander III, had declared the Colonna who adhered to the emperor Frederic I. incapable of holding any ecclefiaftical benefice (Villani, l. v. c. 1.); and the laft ftains of annual excommunication, were purified by Sixtus V. (Vita di Sifto V. tom. iii. p. 416.). Treafon, facrilege, and profeription, are often the best titles of ancient nobility.

304 -Vallis te proxima mifit Appenninigenæ quâ prata virentia fylvæ Spoletana metunt armenta greges protervi.

Monaldeschi (tom. xii. Script. Ital. p. 533.) gives the Urfini a French origin, which may be remotely true.

<sup>$05</sup> In the metrical life of Celeftin V. by the cardinal of St. George (Muratori, tom. iii. P: i. p. 613, &c.), we find a luminous, and not inelegant paffage (l. i. c. 3. p. 203, &c.): genuit quem nobilis Urfæ (Urfi?)

Progenies, Romana domus, veterataque magnis Fascibus in clero, pompasque experta senatús, Bellorumque manû grandi stipata parentum

Cardineos apices necnon fastigia dudum Papatûs iterata tenens..

Muratori (Differt. xlii. tom: iii. p. .) obferves, that the first Urfini pontificate of Celeftine III. was unknown: he is inclined to read Ursi progenies.

166 Filii Urfi, quondam Cœleftini papæ nepotes, de bonis ecclesiæ Romanæ ditati (Vit. Innocent. III. in Muratori, Script. tom. iii. P. i.). The partial prodigality of Nicholas III. is more confpicuous in Villani and Muratori. Yet the Urfini would difdain the nephews of a modern pope.

the

565

LXIX.

C H A P, the Urfini, their conftant and equal antagonifts in the long hereditary feud, which diftracted above two hundred and fifty years the ecclefiaftical state. The jealoufy of pre-eminence and power was the true ground of their quarrel; but as a specious badge of distinction, the Colonna embraced the name of Ghibelines and the party of the empire; the Urfini espoufed the title of Guelphs and the caufe of the church. The eagle and the keys were difplayed in their adverfe banners; and the two factions of Italy most furiously raged when the origin and nature of the difpute were long fince forgotten 107. After the retreat of the popes to Avignon, they difputed in arms the vacant republic: and the mifchiefs of difcord were perpetuated by the wretched compromife of electing each year two rival fenators. By their private hostilities, the city and country were defolated, and the fluctuating balance inclined with their alternate fuccefs. But none of either family had fallen by the fword, till the most renowned champion of the Urfini was furprifed and flain by the younger Stephen Colonna<sup>105</sup>. His triumph is flained with the reproach of violating the truce ; their defeat was bafely avenged by the affaffination, before the church door, of an innocent boy and his two fervants. Yet the victorious Colonna, with an annual colleague, was declared fenator of Rome during the term of five years. And the muse of Petrarch inspired a wish, a hope, a prediction, that the generous youth, the fon of his venerable hero, would reftore Rome and Italy to their priftine glory; that his juffice would extirpate the wolves and lions, the ferpents and bears, who laboured to fubvert the eternal basis of the marble COLUMN 109.

> 107 In his list Differtation on the Italian An- are lefs favourable to their arms. tiquities, Muratori explains the factions of the Guelphs and Ghibelines.

108 Petrarch (tom. i. p. 222-230.) has celebrated this victory according to the Colonna; but two contemporaries, a Florentine (Giovanni Villani, l. x. c. 220.), and a Roman (Ludovico Monaldeschi, p. 533, 534.), 109 The abbé de Sade (tom. i. Notes, p. 61-66.) has applied the vith Canzone of Petrarch, S; irto Gentil, &c. to Stephen Colonna the younger :

Orfi, lupi, leoni, aquile e ferpi Ad una gran marmorea colonna Fanno noja favente e à se damno.

LXIX. Their hereditary feuds.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

CHAP. LXX.

Character and Coronation of Petrarch.-Restoration of the Freedom and Government of Rome by the Tribune Rienzi.-His Virtues and Vices, his Expulsion and Death.-Return of the Popes from Avignon.-Great Schifm of the West.-Re-union of the Latin Church. -Last Struggles of Roman Liberty.-Statutes of Rome.-Final Settlement of the Ecclehastical State.

IN the apprehension of modern times, Petrarch' is the Italian C H A P. I fougster of Laura and love. In the harmony of his Tuscan rhymes, Italy applauds, or rather adores, the father of her lyric poetry: and his verse, or at least his name, is repeated by the enthusiasm, or affectation, of amorous fenfibility. Whatever may be the private tafte of a July 19. ftranger, his flight and fuperficial knowledge fhould humbly acquiefce in the tafte of a learned nation : yet I may hope or prefume, that the Italians do not compare the tedious uniformity of fonnets and elegies. with the fublime compositions of their epic muse, the original wildness of Dante, the regular beauties of Taffo, and the boundlefs variety of the incomparable Ariofto. The merits of the lover, I am still lefs qualified to appreciate : nor am I deeply interefted in a metaphyfical paffion for a nymph fo fhadowy, that her exiftence has been quef-

Petrarque (Amsterdam, 1764, 1767. 3 vols. in 4<sup>10</sup>), form a copious, original, and enter- of politeness and gallantry. In the preface to taining work, a labour of love, composed his first volume, he enumerates and weighs from the accurate fludy of Petrarch and his twenty Italian biographers, who have procontemporaries; but the hero is too often fessedly treated of the same subject. 18

* The Memoires fur la Vie de François loft in the general hiftory of the age, and the author too often languishes in the affectation tioned :

LXX. Petrarch, A. D. 1304, June 19-A. D. 1374,

C H A P. tioned<sup>2</sup>; for a matron fo prolific<sup>3</sup>, that fhe was delivered of eleven legitimate children<sup>4</sup>, while her amorous fwain fighed and fung at the fountain of Vaucluse<sup>s</sup>. But in the eyes of Petrarch, and those of his graver contemporaries, his love was a fin, and Italian verfe a frivolous amufement. His Latin works of philosophy, poetry, and eloquence, eftablished his ferious reputation, which was soon diffused from Avignon over France and Italy : his friends and difciples were multiplied in every city; and if the ponderous volume of his writings be now abandoned to a long repole, our gratitude must applaud the man, who by precept and example revived the fpirit and fludy of the Augustan age. From his earliest youth, Petrarch afpired to the poetic crown. The academical honours of the three faculties had introduced a royal degree of mafter or doctor in the art of poetry'; and the title of poet-laureat, which cuftom, rather than vanity, perpetuates in the English court®, was first invented

> <sup>2</sup> The allegorical interpretation prevailed in the xvth century; but the wife commentators were not agreed whether they fhould understand by Laura, religion, or virtue, or the bleffed Virgin, or ----. See the prefaces to the ist and iid volume.

<sup>3</sup> Laure de Noves, born about the year 1307, was married in January 1325 to Hugues de Sade, a noble citizen of Avignon, whole jealoufy was not the effect of love, fince he married a fecond wife within feven months of her death, which happened the 6th of April 1348, precifely one-and-twenty years after Petrarch had feen and loved her.

** Corpus crebris partubus exhauftum; from one of thefe is iffued, in the tenth degree, the abbé de Sade, the fond and grateful biographer of Petrarch; and this domestic motive most probably suggested the idea of his work, and urged him to enquire into every circumstance that could affect the history and character of his grandmother (fee particularly tom.i. p. 122-133. notes, p. 7-58. tom.ii. p. 455-495. not. p. 76-82.).

5 Vaucluse, fo familiar to our English travellers, is defcribed from the writings of Petrarch, and the local knowledge of his biographer (Memoires, tom.i. p. 340-359.). It was, in truth, the retreat of an hermit; and the moderns are much miftaken, if they place Laura and an happy lover in the grotto.

6 Of 1250 pages, in a close print, at Bahl in the xvith century, but without the date of the year. The abbé de Sade calls aloud for a new edition of Petrarch's Latin works; but 1 much doubt whether it would redound to the profit of the bookfeller, or the amufement of the public.

7 Confult Selden's Titles of Honour, in his works (vol. iii. p. 457-466.). An hundred years before Petrarch, St. Francis received the vifit of a poet, qui ab imperatore fuerat coronatus et exinde rex versuum dictus.

<sup>b</sup> From Augustus to Louis, the muse has too often been falfe and venal: but I much doubt whether any age or court can produce a fimilar eftablishment of a stipendiary poet, who in every reign, and at all events, is bound to furnish twice a year a measure of praise vented by the Cæfars of Germany. In the mufical games of anti- C H A P. quity, a prize was bestowed on the victor': the belief that Virgil and Horace had been crowned in the Capitol, inflamed the emulation of a Latin bard "; and the laurel" was endeared to the lover by a verbal refemblance with the name of his miftrefs. The value of either object was enhanced by the difficulties of the purfuit; and if the virtue or prudence of Laura was inexorable 12, he enjoyed, and might boaft of enjoying, the nymph of poetry. His vanity was not of the most delicate kind, fince he applauds the fuccess of his own labours; his name was popular; his friends were active; the open or fecret opposition of envy and prejudice, was furmounted by the dexterity of patient merit. In the thirty-fixth year of his age, he was folicited to accept the object of his wifnes: and on the fame day, in the folitude of Vauclufe, he received a fimilar and folemn invitation from the fenate of Rome and the university of Paris. The learning of a theological fchool, and the ignorance of a lawlefs city, were alike unqualified to beftow the ideal though immortal wreath which genius may obtain from the free applaule of the praife and verfe, fuch as may be fung in the chapel, and, I believe, in the prefence, of the fovereign. I fpeak the more freely, as the beft time for abolifhing this ridiculous cultom, is while the prince is a man of virtue, and the poet a man of genius.

9 Ifocrates (in Panegyrico, tom. i. p. 116, 117, edit, Battie, Cantab. 1729) claims for his native Athens the glory of first inflututing and recommending the αγατας και τα αδλα μεγισα μη μουσ ταχθς και ξωμης, αλλα και λογωτ και γραμας. The example of the Panathenaa was imitated at Delphi; but the Olympic games were ignorant of a mulical crown, till it was extorted by the vain tyranny of Nero (Sueton. in Nerone, c. 23.; Philoftrat, apud Cafaubon ad locum; Dion Caffus, or Xiphilin, 1. 1xiii. p. to32. to41. Potter's Greek Antiquities, vol. i. p. 445. 450.).

<sup>10</sup> The Capitoline games (certamen quinquenale, muficum, equefite, gymnicum), were of the grave and the fneers inflituted by Domitian (Sueton. c. 4.) in the (tom. ii. notes, p. 76–82.).

VOL. VI.

year of Chrift 86 (Cenforin. de Die Natali, c. 18, p. 100. edit. Havercamp), and were not abolifhed in the ivth century (Aufonius de Profefioribus Burdegal. V.). If the crown were given to fuperior merit, the exclution of Statius (Capitolia nottræ inficiata lyræ, Silv. I. jii. v. 31.) may do honour to the games of the Capitol; but the Latin poets who lived before Domitian were crowned only in the public opinion.

"Petrarch and the fenators of Rome were ignorant that the laurelwas not the Capitoline, but the Delphic, crown (Plin. Hift. Natur. xv. 39. Hift. Critique de la Republique des Lettres, tom.i. p. 150-220.). The victors in the Capitol were crowned with a garland of oak leaves (Martial, I. iv. epigram 54.).

<sup>12</sup> The pious grandfon of Laura has laboured, and not without fuccefs, to vindicate her immaculate chaftity against the confures of the grave and the fneers of the profane (tom. ii. notes, p. 76-82.).

4 D

public

LXX. _____

C H A P. public and of pofterity : but the candidate difmiffed this troublefome reflection, and, after fome moments of complacency and fuspense, preferred the fummons of the metropolis of the world.

His poetic coronation at Rome, A. D. 1341, April 8.

The ceremony of his coronation " was performed in the Capitol, by his friend and patron the fupreme magistrate of the republic. Twelve patrician youths were arrayed in fcarlet; fix reprefentatives of the most illustrious families, in green robes, with garlands of flowers, accompanied the proceffion; in the midft of the princes and nobles, the fenator, count of Anguillara, a kinfman of the Colonna, affumed his throne; and at the voice of an herald Petrarch arofe. After difcourfing on a text of Virgil, and thrice repeating his vows for the profperity of Rome, he knelt before the throne and received from the fenator a laurel crown, with a more precious declaration, " This is the reward of merit." The people should, " Long life " to the Capitol and the poet !" A fonnet in praife of Rome was accepted as the effusion of genius and gratitude; and after the whole proceffion had vifited the Vatican, the profane wreath was fufpended before the flirine of St. Peter. In the act or diploma " which was prefented to Petrarch, the title and prerogatives of poet laureat are revived in the Capitol, after the lapfe of thirteen hundred years; and he receives the perpetual privilege of wearing, at his choice, a crown of laurel, ivy, or myrtle, of affuming the poetic habit, and of teaching, difputing, interpreting, and composing, in all places whatfoever, and on all fubjects of literature. The grant was ratified by the authority of the fenate and people; and the character of citizen was the recompense of his affection for the Roman name. They did him honour, but they did him justice. In the familiar fociety of Cicero and Livy, he had imbibed the ideas of an ancient patriot :

<sup>33</sup> The whole process of Petrarch's corona- without mixing in this authentic narrative the more recent fables of Sannuccio Delbene. 14 The original act is printed among the notes, p. 1-13.) from his own writings, and Pieces Justificatives in the Memoires fur

tion is accurately defcribed by the abbé de Sade (tom. i. p. 425-435. tom. ii. p. 1-6. the Roman Diary of Ludovico Monaldeschi, Petrarque, tom. iii. p. 50-53.

patriot; and his ardent fancy kindled every idea to a fentiment, C H A P. and every fentiment to a paffion. The afpect of the feven hills and their majeftic ruins, confirmed thefe lively impressions; and he loved a country by whole liberal spirit he had been crowned and adopted. The poverty and debafement of Rome excited the indignation and pity of her grateful fon : he diffembled the faults of his fellow-citizens; applauded with partial fondnefs the laft of their heroes and matrons; and in the remembrance of the paft, in the hope of the future, was pleafed to forget the miferies of the prefent time. Rome was still the lawful mistress of the world: the pope and the emperor, her bifhop and general, had abdicated their flation by an inglorious retreat to the Rhône and the Danube; but if the could refume her virtue, the republic might again vindicate her liberty and dominion. Amidft the indulgence of enthufiafm and eloquence", Petrarch, Italy, and Europe, were aftonished by a revolution which realized for a moment his most splendid visions. The rife and fall of the tribune Rienzi will occupy the following pages 16: the fubject is interefting, the materials are rich, and the glance of a patriot-bard" will fometimes vivify the copious, but fimple, narrative of the Florentine ", and more especially of the Roman ", historian.

In

"5 To find the proofs of his enthufialm for Rome, I need only request that the reader would open, by chance, either Petrarch, or his French biographer. The latter has defcribed the poet's first visit to Rome (tom. i. p. 323-335.). But in the place of much idle rhetoric and morality, Petrarch might have amused the present and future age with an original account of the city and his coronation.

16 It has been treated by the pen of a Jefuit, the P. du Cerçeau, whole polthumous Rienzi Tyran de Rome, en 1347) was pub- xiii. p. 969, 970. 981-983. lished at Paris 1748, in 12mo. I am indebted to him for some facts and documents in John (p. 249-548.), Muratori has inserted the Hoclemius, canon of Liege, a contemporary Fragmenta Hiltoriæ Romanæ ab Anno 1327 historian (Fabricius, Bibliot. Latin. med. Ævi. tom, iii. p. 273. tom. iv. p. 85.).

17 The abbé de Sade, who fo freely expatiates on the hiftory of the xivth century, might treat, as his proper fubject, a revolution in which the heart of Petrarch was fo deeply engaged (Memoires, tom. ii. p. 50, 51. 320-417. notes, p. 70-76. tom. iii. p. 221-243. 366-375.). Not an idea or a fact in the writings of Petrarch has probably efcaped him.

18 Giovanni Villani, l. xii. c. 89. 104. in work (Conjuration de Nicolas Gabrini, dit de : Muratori, Rerum Italicarum Scriptores, tom.

19 In his iiid volume of Italian Antiquities 4 D 2 ulque

57x

CHAP. LXX.

Birth, character, and patriotic defigns of Rienzi.

In a quarter of the city which was inhabited only by mechanics and Jews, the marriage of an innkeeper and a washerwoman produced the future deliverer of Rome 20. From fuch parents Nicholas Rienzi Gabrini could inherit neither dignity nor fortune; and the gift of a liberal education, which they painfully beftowed, was the caufe of his glory and untimely end. The fludy of hiftory and eloquence, the writings of Cicero, Seneca, Livy, Cæfar, and Valerius Maximus, elevated above his equals and contemporaries the genius of the young plebeian : he perused with indefatigable diligence the manufcripts and marbles of antiquity; loved to difpenfe his knowledge in familiar language; and was often provoked to exclaim, " Where are now these Romans? their virtue, their juffice, " their power? why was I not born in those happy times "?" When the republic addreffed to the throne of Avignon an embaffy of the three orders, the spirit and eloquence of Rienzi recommended him to a place among the thirteen deputies of the commons. The orator had the honour of haranguing pope Clement the fixth, and the fatisfaction of converfing with Petrarch, a congenial mind : but his afpiring hopes were chilled by difgrace and poverty; and usque ad Annum 1354, in the original dia- the iid book of the hiftory in xxxviii smaller lect of Rome or Naples in the xivth century, and a Latin verfion for the benefit of strangers. It contains the most particular and authentic life of Cola (Nicholas) di Rienzi; which had been printed at Bracciano 1627, in 4to, under the name of Tomafo Fortifiocca, who is only mentioned in this work as having been punifhed by the tribune for forgery. Human nature is fcarcely capable of fuch fublime or flupid impartiality; but whofoever is the author of these Fragments, he wrote on the fpot and at the time, and paints, without defign or art, the manners of Rome and the character of the tribune.

20 The first and fplendid period of Rienzi, his tribunitian government, is contained in the xviiith chapter of the Fragments (p. 399 -479.), which, in the new division, forms chapters or fections.

21 The reader may be pleafed with a fpecimen of the original idiom : Fò da foa juventutine nutricato di latte de eloquentia, bono gramatico, megliore rettuorico, autorista bravo. Deh como et quanto era veloce leitore! moito ufava Tito Livio, Seneca, et Tullio, et Balerio Maffimo, moito li dilettava le magnificentie di Julio Cefare raccontare. Tutta la die fe speculava negl' intagli di marmo lequali iaccio intorno Roma. Non era altri che esso, che fapesse lejere li antichi patafii. Tutte scritture antiche vulgarizzava; quesse fiure di marmo justamente interpretava. Oh come fpesso diceva, " Dove " fuoco quelli buoni Romani? dove ene " loro fomma justitia? poleramme trovare in " tempo che quessi fiuriano !"

the

the patriot was reduced to a fingle garment and the charity of the C H A P. hospital. From this mifery he was relieved by the fense of merit or the finile of favour; and the employment of apoftolic notary afforded him a daily flipend of five gold florins, a more honourable and extensive connection, and the right of contrasting, both in words and actions, his own integrity with the vices of the flate. The eloquence of Rienzi was prompt and perfuafive : the multitude is always prone to envy and cenfure: he was ftimulated by the lofs of a brother and the impunity of the affaffins; nor was it poffible to excuse or exaggerate the public calamities. The bleffings of peace and justice, for which civil fociety has been inftituted, were banished from Rome : the jealous citizens, who might have endured every perfonal or pecuniary injury, were most deeply wounded in the diffionour of their wives and daughters 22: they were equally opprefied by the arrogance of the nobles and the corruption of the magistrates; and the abuse of arms or of laws was the only circumftance that diffinguished the lions, from the dogs and ferpents, of the Capitol. These allegorical emblems were variously repeated in the pictures which Rienzi exhibited in the ftreets and churches; and while the fpectators gazed with curious wonder, the bold and ready orator unfolded the meaning, applied the fatire, inflamed their paffions, and announced a diftant hope of comfort and deliverance. The privileges of Rome, her eternal fovereignty over her princes and provinces, was the theme of his public and private difcourfe; and a monument of fervitude became in his hands a title and incentive of liberty. The decree of the fenate, which granted the most ample prerogatives to the emperor Vespasian, had been inferibed on a copper-plate fiill extant in the choir of the church of St. John Lateran<sup>23</sup>. A numerous affembly of nobles and plebeians

was

Romans, with the eafy temper of the hufbands p. 242. and at the end of the Tacitus ot of Avignon (Memoires, tom. i. p. 330.).

&lt;sup>22</sup> Petrarch compares the jealoufy of the be found in the Inferiptions of Gruter, tom.i. Ernefti, with fome learned notes of the edi-23 The fragments of the Lex Regia may tor, tom. ii.

C H A P. was invited to this political lecture, and a convenient theatre was erected for their reception. The notary appeared, in a magnificent and mysterious habit, explained the infeription by a version and commentary<sup>24</sup>, and defcanted with eloquence and zeal on the ancient glories of the fenate and people, from whom all legal authority was derived. The fupine ignorance of the nobles was incapable of difcerning the ferious tendency of fuch reprefentations : they might fometimes chaftife with words and blows the plebeian reformer; but he was often fuffered in the Colonna palace to amufe the company with his threats and predictions; and the modern Brutus<sup>25</sup> was concealed under the mark of folly and the character of a buffoon. While they indulged their contempt, the reftoration of the good eflate, his favourite expression, was entertained among the people as a defirable, a poffible, and at length as an approaching, event; and while all had the difpofition to applaud, fome had the courage to affift, their promifed deliverer.

He affumes the government of Rome, A. D. 1347, May 20;

A prophecy, or rather a fummons, affixed on the church door of St. George, was the first public evidence of his defigns; a nocturnal affembly of an hundred citizens on mount Aventine, the first ftep to their execution. After an oath of fecrecy and aid, he reprefented to the confpirators the importance and facility of their enterprife; that the nobles, without union or refources, were ftrong only in the fear of their imaginary ftrength; that all power, as well as right, was in the hands of the people ; that the revenues of the apoftolical chamber might relieve the public diffrefs; and that the pope himfelf would approve their victory over the common 24 I cannot overlook a flupendous and laughable blunder of Rienzi. The Lex Regia empowers Vefpafian to enlarge the Pomœ-Jardino de Roma cioene Italia, and is copied regibus, hic tyrannis contemptus (Opp. by the lefs excufable ignorance of the Latin tranflator (p. 406.) and the French hiftorian

(p. 33.). Even the learning of Muratori has flumbered over the passage.

25 Priori (Bruto) tamen fimilior, juvenis rium, a word familiar to every antiquary. uterque, longe ingenio quam cujus fimula-It was not fo to the tribune; he confounds tionem induerat, ut fub hoc obtentu liberator it with pomarium an orchard, translates lo ille P. R. aperiretur tempbre fuo .... Ille p. 536.).

enemies

574

enemies of government and freedom. After fecuring a faithful C H A P. LXX. band to protect his first declaration, he proclaimed through the city, by found of trumpet, that on the evening of the following day all perfons should assemble without arms, before the church of St. Angelo, to provide for the re-establishment of the good estate. The whole night was employed in the celebration of thirty maffes of the Holy Ghoft; and in the morning, Rienzi, bareheaded, but in complete armour, iffued from the church, encompaffed by the hundred confpirators. The pope's vicar, the fimple bifhop of Orvieto, who had been perfuaded to fuftain a part in this fingular ceremony, marched on his right-hand; and three great ftandards were borne aloft as the emblems of their defign. In the first, the banner of liberty, Rome was feated on two lions, with a palm in one hand and a globe in the other : St. Paul, with a drawn fword, was delineated in the banner of juffice; and in the third, St. Peter held the keys of concord and peace. Rienzi was encouraged by the prefence and applaufe of an innumerable crowd, who underftood little, and hoped much ; and the proceffion flowly rolled forwards from the caffle of St. Angelo to the Capitol. His triumph was diffurbed by fome fecret emotions which he laboured to fupprefs : he afcended without opposition, and with feeming confidence, the citadel of the republic; harangued the people from the balcony; and received the moft flattering confirmation of his acts and laws. The nobles, as if destitute of arms and counfels, beheld in filent consternation this ftrange revolution; and the moment had been prudently chosen,. when the most formidable, Stephen Colonna, was absent from the city. On the first rumour, he returned to his palace, affected to defpife this plebeian tumult, and declared to the meffenger of Rienzi, that at his leifure he would caft the madman from the windows of the Capitol. The great bell inftantly rang an alarm, and fo rapid was the tide, fo urgent was the danger, that Colonna efcaped with precipitation to the fuburb of St. Laurence : from thence, after a moment's

LXX.

C H A P. ment's refreshment, he continued the same speedy career till he reached in fafety his caftle of Paleftrina; lamenting his own imprudence, which had not trampled the fpark of this mighty confla-A general and peremptory order was iffued from the gration. Capitol to all the nobles, that they fhould peaceably retire to their estates : they obeyed; and their departure secured the tranquillity of the free and obedient citizens of Rome.

But fuch voluntary obedience evaporates with the first transports of zeal; and Rienzi felt the importance of juftifying his usurpation by a regular form and a legal title. At his own choice, the Roman people would have difplayed their attachment and authority, by lavishing on his head the names of fenator or conful, of king or emperor : he preferred the ancient and modeft appellation of tribune ; the protection of the commons was the effence of that facred office; and they were ignorant, that it had never been invefted with any fhare in the legiflative or executive powers of the republic. In this character, and with the confent of the Romans, the tribune enacted the most falutary laws for the restoration and maintenance of the good eftate. By the first he fulfils the wish of honesty and inexperience, that no civil fuit should be protracted beyond the term of fifteen days. The danger of frequent perjury might justify the pronouncing against a falle accufer the fame penalty which his evidence would have inflicted : the diforders of the times might compel the legiflator to punish every homicide with death, and every injury with equal retaliation. But the execution of juffice was hopelefs till he had previoufly abolifhed the tyranny of the nobles. It was formally provided, that none, except the fupreme magistrate, should pollefs or command the gates, bridges, or towers, of the flate : that no private garrifons fhould be introduced into the towns or caftles of the Roman territory; that none fhould bear arms or prefume to fortify their houfes in the city or country; that the barons should be refponfible for the fafety of the highways and the free passage of 16 with the title and office of tribune.

Laws of the good eftate.

of provisions; and that the protection of malefactors and robbers C H A P. thould be expiated by a fine of a thousand marks of filver. But thefe regulations would have been impotent and nugatory; had not the licentious nobles been awed by the fword of the civil power. A fudden alarm from the bell of the Capitol, could still fummon to the ftandard above twenty thousand volunteers : the support of the tribune and the laws required a more regular and permanent force. In each harbour of the coaft, a veffel was flationed for the affurance of commerce; a ftanding militia of three hundred and fixty horfe and thirteen hundred foot was levied, cloathed, and paid in the thirteen quarters of the city : and the fpirit of a commonwealth may be traced in the grateful allowance of one hundred florins, or pounds, to the heirs of every foldier who loft his life in the fervice of his country. For the maintenance of the public defence, for the eftablishment of granaries, for the relief of widows, orphans, and indigent convents, Rienzi applied, without fear of facrilege, the revenues of the apoftolic chamber: the three branches of hearth-money, the falt-duty, and the cuftoms, were each of the annual produce of one hundred thousand florins<sup>26</sup>; and scandalous were the abuses, if in four or five months the amount of the falt-duty could be trebled by his judicious aconomy. After thus reftoring the forces and finances of the republic, the tribune recalled the nobles from their folitary independence; required their perfonal appearance in the Capitol; and imposed an oath, of allegiance to the new government, and of fubmiffion to the laws of the good eftate. Apprehenfive for their fafety, but still more apprchensive of the danger of a refusal, the princes and barons returned to their houfes at Rome in the garb of fimple and peaceful citizens: the Colonna and Urfini, the Savelli perfumante quatro folli, in another quatro 250,000 families; and I much fear, that the forini, an important variety, fince the florin former is more confiftent with the decay of

VOL. VI.

4E

and

&lt;sup>26</sup> In one MS. I read (l. ii. c. 4. p. 409.) give us a population of 25,000, the latter of was worth ten Roman folidi (Muratori, dif- Rome and her territory. fert. xxviii.). The former reading would

C H A P. and Frangipani, were confounded before the tribunal of a plebeiary LXX. of the vile buffoon whom they had fo often derided, and their difgrace was aggravated by the indignation which they vainly firuggled to difguife. The fame oath was fucceffively pronounced by the feveral orders of fociety, the clergy and gentlemen, the judges and notaries, the merchants and artifans, and the gradual defcent was marked by the encrease of fincerity and zeal. They swore to live and die with the republic and the church, whofe interest was artfully united by the nominal affociation of the bifhop of Orvieto, the pope's vicar, to the office of tribune. It was the boaft of Rienzi, that he had delivered the throne and patrimony of St. Peter from a rebellious ariftocracy; and Clement the fixth, who rejoiced in its fall, affected to believe the professions, to applaud the merits, and to confirm the title, of his trufty fervant. The fpeech, perhaps the mind, of the tribune, was infpired with a lively regard for the purity of the faith; he infinuated his claim to a fupernatural miffion from the Holy Ghoft: enforced by an heavy forfeiture the annual duty of confession and communion; and strictly guarded the spiritual as well as temporal welfare of his faithful people<sup>27</sup>.

Freedom and profperity of the Roman republic. Never perhaps has the energy and effect of a fingle mind been more remarkably felt than in the fudden, though transient, reformation of Rome by the tribune Rienzi. A den of robbers was converted to the difcipline of a camp or convent : patient to hear, fwift to redrefs, inexorable to punish, his tribunal was always acceffible to the poor and stranger; nor could birth, or dignity, or the immunities of the church, protect the offender or his accomplices. The privileged houses, the private fanctuaries in Rome, on which no officer of justice would prefume to trespass, were abolished; and he applied the timber and iron of their barricades in the fortifica-

<sup>27</sup> Hocfemius, p. 398. apud du Cerçeau, hiftorian (whom for brevity I fhall name) Hift. de Rienzi, p. 194. The fifteen tri- Fortifiocca, l. ii. c. 4. bunitian laws may be found in the Roman

. 1578

tions

tions of the Capitol. The venerable father of the Colonna was ex- C H A P. pofed in his own palace to the double fhame of being defirous, and of being unable, to protect a criminal. A mule, with a jar of oil, had been stolen near Capranica; and the lord, of the Ursini family. was condemned to reftore the damage, and to difcharge a fine of four hundred florins for his negligence in guarding the highways. Nor were the perfons of the barons more inviolate than their lands or houfes : and either from accident or defign, the fame impartial rigour was exercifed against the heads of the adverse factions. Peter Agapet Colonna, who had himfelf been fenator of Rome, was arrefted in the ftreet for injury or debt; and juffice was appealed by the tardy execution of Martin Urfini, who, among his various acts of violence and rapine, had pillaged a shipwrecked vessel at the mouth of the Tyber<sup>28</sup>. His name, the purple of two cardinals, his uncles, a recent marriage, and a mortal difeafe, were difregarded by the inflexible tribune, who had chofen his victim. The public officers dragged him from his palace and nuptial bed : his trial was fhort and fatisfactory: the bell of the Capitol convened the people: ftript of his mantle, on his knees, with his hands bound behind his back, he heard the fentence of death; and after a brief confession, Urfini was led away to the gallows. After fuch an example, none who were confcious of guilt could hope for impunity, and the flight of the wicked, the licentious, and the idle, foon purified the city and territory of Rome. In this time (fays the hiftorian) the woods began to rejoice that they were no longer infefted with robbers;

28 Fortifiocca, 1. ii. c. 11. From the account of this fhipwreck, we learn fome circumftances of the trade and navigation of the age. 1. The ship was built and freighted at Naples for the ports of Marfeilles and and the ifle of Œuaria, lefs skilful than those of Sicily and Genoa. 3. The navigation from Marfeilles was a coafting voyage to the mouth of the Tyber, where they took shelter in a florm, but, inftead of finding the current, unfortunately ran on a shoal: the vessel was stranded, the mariners escaped. 4. The cargo, which was pillaged, confifted of the Avignon. 2. The failors were of Naples revenue of Provence for the royal treasury, many bags of pepper and cinnamon, and bales of French cloth, to the value of 20,000 florins: a rich prize.

.

$

the

579

1

C H A P. the oxen began to plow; the pilgrims vifited the fanctuaries; the roads and inns were replenished with travellers; trade, plenty, and good faith were reftored in the markets; and a purfe of gold might be exposed without danger in the midft of the highway. As foon as the life and property of the fubject are fecure, the labours and rewards of industry spontaneously revive : Rome was still the metropolis of the Christian world; and the fame and fortunes of the tribune were diffused in every country by the ftrangers who had enjoyed the bleffings of his government.

> The deliverance of his country infpired Rienzi with a vaft, and perhaps vifionary, idea of uniting Italy in a great fœderative republic, of which Rome should be the ancient and lawful head, and the free cities and princes the members and affociates. His pen was not lefs eloquent than his tongue; and his numerous epiftles were delivered to fwift and trufty meffengers. On foot, with a white wand in their hand, they traverfed the forefts and mountains; enjoyed, in the most hostile states, the facred fecurity of ambasfadors; and reported, in the ftyle of flattery or truth, that the highways along their paffage were lined with kneeling multitudes, who implored Heaven for the fuccefs of their undertaking. Could paffion have liftened to reafon; could private intereft have yielded to the public welfare; the fupreme tribunal and confederate union of the Italian republic might have healed their inteffine difcord, and clofed the Alps against the Barbarians of the North. But the propitious feafon had elapfed; and if Venice, Florence, Sienna, Perugia, and many inferior cities, offered their lives and fortunes to the good eftate, the tyrants of Lombardy and Tufcany must defpife, or hate, the plebeian author of a free conftitution. From them, however, and from every part of Italy, the tribune received the most friendly and respectful answers: they were followed by the ambasfadors of the princes and republics; and in this foreign conflux, on all the occafions of pleafure or bufinefs, the low-born notary could affume the familiar 18

The tribune is respected in Italy, &c.

380

LXX.

~~

familiar or majeftic courtefy of a fovereign 29. The most glorious C H A P. circumftance of his reign was an appeal to his juffice from Lewis king of Hungary, who complained, that his brother, and her hufband, had been perfidioufly ftrangled by Jane queen of Naples 3°: her guilt or innocence was pleaded in a folemn trial at Rome; but after hearing the advocates 31, the tribune adjourned this weighty and invidious caufe, which was foon determined by the fword of the Hungarian. Beyond the Alps, more efpecially at Avignon, the revolution was the theme of curiofity, wonder, and applaufe. Pe- and celetrarch had been the private friend, perhaps the fecret counfellor, of Petrarch. Rienzi: his writings breathe the most ardent spirit of patriotism and joy; and all refpect for the pope, all gratitude for the Colonna, was loft in the fuperior duties of a Roman citizen. The poet-laureat of the Capitol maintains the act, applauds the hero, and mingles with fome apprehenfion and advice the moft lofty hopes of the permanent and rifing greatness of the republic 32.

While Petrarch indulged thefe prophetic visions, the Roman hero His vices and was fast declining from the meridian of fame and power; and the people, who had gazed with aftonifhment on the afcending meteor, began to mark the irregularity of its course, and the viciffitudes of light and obscurity. More eloquent than judicious, more enterprifing than refolute, the faculties of Rienzi were not balanced by 29 It was thus that Oliver Cromwell's old acquaintance, who remembered his vulgar and ungracious entrance into the Houfe of Commons, were aftonished at the ease and majeily of the protector on his throne (fee Harris's Life of Cromwell, p. 27-34. from Clarendon, Warwick, Whitelocke, Waller, &c.). The confciousnels of merit and power, will fometimes elevate the manners to the station.

3º See the caufes, circumftances, and effects of the death of Andrew, in Giannone (tom. iii. 1. xxiii, p. 220-229.), and the Life of Petrarch (Memoires, tom. ii. p. 143-148. 245-250.375-379. notes, p. 21-37.). The Abbé de Sade wishes to extenuate her guilt.

31 The advocate who pleaded against lane, could add nothing to the logical force and brevity of his mafter's epiftle. Johanna! inordinata vita præcedens, retentio potestatis in regno, neglecta vindicta, vir alter fusceptus, et excufatio subfequens, necis viri tui te probant fuisse participem et confortem. Jane of Naples, and Mary of Scotland, Have a fingular conformity.

32 See the Epistola Hortatoria de Capeffenda Republica, from Petrarch to Nicholas Rienzi (Opp. p. 535-540.), and the  $v^{th}$  eclogue or paftoral, a perpetual and obfcure allegory.

brated by follies.

581

cool

C H A P. cool and commanding reafon : he magnified in a tenfold proper-. tion the objects of hope and fear; and prudence, which could not have erected, did not prefume to fortify, his throne. In the blaze of profperity, his virtues were infenfibly tinctured with the adjacent vices; juffice with cruelty, liberality with profusion, and the defire of fame with puerile and oftentatious vanity. He might have learned, that the ancient tribunes, fo ftrong and facred in the public opinion, were not diffinguished in ftyle, habit, or appearance, from an ordinary plebeian 33; and that as often as they vifited the city on foot, a fingle viator, or beadle, attended the exercife of their office. The Gracchi would have frowned or fmiled, could they have read the fonorous titles and epithets of their fucceffor, " NICHOLAS, " SEVERE AND MERCIFUL; DELIVERER OF ROME; DEFENDER " OF ITALY<sup>34</sup>; FRIEND OF MANKIND, AND OF LIBERTY, PEACE, " AND JUSTICE; TRIBUNE AUGUST:" his theatrical pageants had prepared the revolution; but Rienzi abufed, in luxury and pride, the political maxim of fpeaking to the eyes, as well as the underftanding, of the multitude. From nature he had received the gift of an handfome perfon<sup>35</sup>, till it was fwelled and disfigured by intemperance; and his propenfity to laughter was corrected in the magiftrate by the affectation of gravity and fternnefs. He was cloathed, at leaft on public occafions, in a party-coloured robe of velvet or fattin, lined with fur, and embroidered with gold : the rod of juffice, which > (Opuscul. tom. i. p. 505, 506. edit. Græc. Hen. Steph.) flates, on the moft conflicutional principles, the fimple greatnefs of the tribunes, who were not properly magiftrates, but a check on magistracy. It was their duty and interest inoiso Jai oxymati, nai sony nai diaity דוו; בהודטי צמיצהו דשי הסאודשי .... צמדמהמדבוה-9x1 des (a faying of C. Curio) xas un σεμνον ειναι τη δημαρχου οψει....οσω δε μαλλου εκταπεινεται τω σωματι, τοσετώ μαλλον αυξιται τη δυναμsi, &c. Rienzi, and Petrarch himfelf, were tonna trionfale, a modo de uno Abbate Afiano, incapable perhaps of reading a Greek philo- or Afinino (1. iii. c. 18. p. 523.). fopher; but they might have imbibed the

<sup>33</sup> In his Roman Questions, Plutarch fame modest doctrines from their favourite Latins, Livy and Valerius Maximus.

34 I could not express in English the forcible, though barbarous title of Zelator Italia, which Rienzi affumed.

35 Era bell' homo (l. ii. c. 1. p. 399.). It is remarkable, that the rifo farcaftico of the Bracciano edition is wanting in the Roman MS. from which Muratori has given the text. In his fecond reign, when he is painted almost as a monster, Rienzi travea una ventresca

582

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

he carried in his hand, was a fceptre of polifhed fteel, crowned C H A P. with a globe and crofs of gold, and inclofing a fmall fragment of the true and holy wood. In his civil and religious proceffions through the city, he rode on a white fteed, the fymbol of royalty: the great banner of the republic, a fun with a circle of flars, a dove with an olive branch, was difplayed over his head; a shower of gold and filver was fcattered among the populace; fifty guards with halberds encompafied his perfon; a troop of horfe preceded his march; and their tymbals and trumpets were of maffy filver.

The ambition of the honours of chivalry 36 betrayed the meannels The pomp of of his birth, and degraded the importance of his office; and the hood, equestrian tribune was not less odious to the nobles, whom he August 1. adopted, than to the plebeians, whom he deferted. All that yet remained of treafure, or luxury, or art, was exhaufted on that folemn day. Rienzi led the proceffion from the Capitol to the Lateran : the tediousness of the way was relieved with decorations and games: the ecclefiaftical, civil, and military orders marched under their various banners; the Roman ladies attended his wife; and the ambaffadors of Italy might loudly applaud, or fecretly deride, the novelty of the pomp. In the evening, when they had reached the church and palace of Conftantine, he thanked and difmiffed the numerous affembly, with an invitation to the feftival of the enfuing day. From the hands of a venerable knight he received the order of the Holy Ghoft; the purification of the bath was a previous ceremony; but in no ftep of his life did Rienzi excite fuch fcandal and cenfure as by the prophane use of the porphyry vafe, in which Conftantine (a foolifh legend) had been healed of his leprofy by was not without a precedent. In the year in the Capitol, by the twenty-eight buoni 1327, two barons, a Colonna, and an Urfini, buomini. They afterwards received from Ro-the ufual balance, were created knights by the bert king of Naples the fword of chivalry Roman people: their bath was of rofe-water, (Hift. Rom. l. i. c. 2. p. 259.). their beds were decked with royal magnificence, <sup>36</sup> Strange as it may feem, this feftival and they were ferved at St. Maria of Araceli his knight-A. D. 1347,

583

pope

LXX.

C H A P. pope Sylvefter 37. With equal prefumption the tribune watched or repofed within the confecrated precincts of the baptiftery; and the failure of his flate-bed was interpreted as an omen of his approaching downfal. At the hour of worfhip he fhewed himfelf to the returning crowds in a majeftic attitude, with a robe of purple, his fword, and gilt fpurs; but the holy rites were foon interrupted by his levity and infolence. Rifing from his throne, and advancing towards the congregation, he proclaimed in a loud voice : " We " fummon to our tribunal pope Clement; and command him to " refide in his diocefe of Rome: we also fummon the facred col-" lege of cardinals<sup>33</sup>. We again fummon the two pretenders, " Charles of Bohemia and Lewis of Bavaria, who ftyle themfelves " emperors: we likewife fummon all the electors of Germany, to " inform us on what pretence they have usurped the inalienable " right of the Roman people, the ancient and lawful fovereigns of " the empire "." Unfheathing his maiden-fword, he thrice brandifhed it to the three parts of the world, and thrice repeated the extravagant declaration, " And this too is mine!" The pope's vicar, the bishop of Orvieto, attempted to check this career of folly; but his feeble proteft was filenced by martial mufic; and inftead of withdrawing from the affembly, he confented to dine with his brother tribune, at a table which had hitherto been referved for the fupreme pontiff. A banquet, fuch as the Carfars had given, was prepared for the Romans. The apartments, porticoes, and courts, of the La-> bath of Constantine (Petrarch, Epist. Famil. vi. 2.), and Rienzi justified his own conduct by observing to the court of Avignon, that a vafe which had been ufed by a Pagan, could not be profaned by a pious Chriftian. Yet this crime is fpecified in the bill of excommunication (Hocfemius, apud du Cerçeau, p. 189, 190.).

38 This verbal fummons of pope Clement VI. which refts on the authority of the 37 All parties believed in the leprofy and Roman historian and a Vatican MS. is difputed by the biographer of Petrarch (tom. ii. not. p. 70-76.) with arguments rather of decency than of weight. The court of Avignon might not chuse to agitate this delicate queflion.

39 The fummons of the two rival emperors, a monument of freedom and folly, is extant in Hocfemius (Cerceau, p. 163-166.).

teran

teran were fpread with innumerable tables for either fex, and every C H A P. condition; a stream of wine flowed from the nostrils of Constantine's brazen horfe; no complaint, except of the fcarcity of water, could be heard ; and the licentiousness of the multitude was curbed by difcipline and fear. A fubfequent day was appointed for the corona- and coronation of Rienzi *°; feven crowns of different leaves or metals were fucceffively placed on his head by the moft eminent of the Roman clergy; they reprefented the feven gifts of the Holy Ghoft; and he ftill professed to imitate the example of the ancient tribunes. These extraordinary spectacles might deceive or flatter the people; and their own vanity was gratified in the vanity of their leader. But in his private life he foon deviated from the ftrict rule of frugality and abstinence; and the plebeians, who were awed by the fplendour of the nobles, were provoked by the luxury of their equal. His wife, his fon, his uncle (a barber in name and profession), exposed the contraft of vulgar manners and princely expence; and without acquiring the majefty, Rienzi degenerated into the vices, of a king.

A fimple citizen defcribes with pity, or perhaps with pleafure, the Fear and humiliation of the barons of Rome. " Bareheaded, their hands nobles of " croffed on their breaft, they flood with downcaft looks in the " prefence of the tribune ; and they trembled, good God, how they " trembled " !" As long as the yoke of Rienzi was that of juffice and their country, their confcience forced them to effcem the man, whom pride and interest provoked them to hate : his extravagant conduct foon fortified their hatred by contempt; and they conceived the hope of fubverting a power which was no longer fo deeply rooted in the public confidence. The old animofity of the Colonna 4º It is fingular, that the Roman historian should have overlooked this sevenfold coro- tre sedeva, li baroni tutti in piedi ritti co le nation, which is fufficiently proved by inter- vraccia piecate, e co li capucci tratti. Deh nal evidence, and the teftimony of Hocfe- como flavano paurofi! (Hift, Rom 1. ii. c. 20. mius, and even of Rienzi (Cerçeau, p. 167 p. 439.) He faw them, and we fee them. -170. 229.).

VOL. VI.

4 F

4r Puoi fe faceva stare denante a fe, men-

and hatred of the Rome.

LXX.

tion.

C H A P. and Urfini was fufpended for a moment by their common difgrace : they affociated their wifnes, and perhaps their defigns; an affaffin was feized and tortured; he accufed the nobles; and as foon as Rieuzi deferved the fate, he adopted the fufpicions and maxims, of a tyrant. On the fame day, under various pretences, he invited to the Capitol his principal enemies, among whom were five members of the Urfini and three of the Colonna name. But inftead of a council or a banquet, they found themfelves prifoners under the fword of defpotifm or juffice; and the confcioufnefs of innocence or guilt might infpire them with equal apprehenfions of danger. At the found of the great bell the people affembled ; they were arraigned for a confpiracy against the tribune's life; and though fome might fympathife in their diftrefs, not a hand, nor a voice, was raifed to refcue the first of the nobility from their impending doom. Their apparent boldness was prompted by despair; they paffed in feparate chambers a fleeplefs and painful night; and the venerable hero, Stephen Colonna, ftriking against the door of his prifon, repeatedly urged his guards to deliver him by a fpeedy death from fuch ignominious fervitude. In the morning they underftood their fentence from the vifit of a confessor and the tolling of the bell. The great hall of the Capitol had been decorated for the bloody fcene with red and white hangings; the countenance of the tribune was dark and fevere; the fwords of the executioners were unfheathed; and the barons were interrupted in their dying fpeeches by the found of trumpets. But in this decifive moment, Rienzi was not lefs anxious or apprehenfive than his captives : he dreaded the fplendour of their names, their furviving kinfmen, the inconftancy of the people, the reproaches of the world; and, after rashly offering a mortal injury, he vainly prefumed that, if he could forgive, he might himfelf be forgiven. His elaborate oration was that of a Chriftian and a fuppliant ; and, as the humble minister of the commons, he entreated his mafters to pardon thefe noble criminals, for for whole repentance and future fervice he pledged his faith and C H A P. authority. " If you are fpared," faid the tribune, " by the mercy " of the Romans, will you not promife to support the good effate " with your lives and fortunes?" Aftonifhed by this marvellous clemency, the barons bowed their heads; and, while they devoutly repeated the oath of allegiance, might whilper a fecret, and more fincere, affurance of revenge. A prieft, in the name of the people, pronounced their abfolution : they received the communion with the tribune, affifted at the banquet, followed the proceffion; and, after every fpiritual and temporal fign of reconciliation, were difmiffed in fafety to their refpective homes, with the new honours and titles of generals, confuls, and patricians 42.

586

During fome weeks they were checked by the memory of their They oppofe danger, rather than of their deliverance, till the most powerful of arms. the Urfini, efcaping with the Colonna from the city, erected at Marino the ftandard of rebellion. The fortifications of the cafile were haftily reftored; the vaffals attended their lord; the outlaws armed against the magistrate; the flocks and herds, the harvests and vineyards, from Marino to the gates of Rome, were fwept away or deftroyed; and the people arraigned Rienzi as the author of the calamities which his government had taught them to forget. In the camp, Rienzi appeared to lefs advantage than in the roftrum : and he neglected the progress of the rebel barons till their numbers were ftrong and their caftles impregnable. From the pages of Livy he had not imbibed the art, or even the courage, of a general : an army of twenty thousand Romans returned without honour or effect from the attack of Marino : and his vengeance was amufed by painting his enemies, their heads downwards, and drowning two dogs (at, leaft they fhould have been bears) as the reprefentatives of

the Rienzi in .

<sup>42</sup> The original letter, in which Rienzi plays, in genuine colours, the mixture of justifies his treatment of the Colonna (Hoc- the knave and the madman. femius, apud du Cerçeau, p. 222-229.), dif-

C H A P. the Urfini. The belief of his incapacity encouraged their ope-LXX. rations: they were invited by their fecret adherents; and the barons attempted with four thousand foot and fixteen hundred horse, to enter Rome by force or furprife. The city was prepared for their reception: the alarm-bell rung all night; the gates were ftrictly guarded, or infolently open; and after fome hefitation they founded a retreat. The two first divisions had passed along the walls, but the profpect of a free entrance tempted the headftrong valour of the nobles in the rear; and after a fuccefsful fkirmifh, they were overthrown and maffacred without quarter by the crowds of the Roman people. Stephen Colonna the younger, the noble fpirit to Defeat and death of the whom Petrarch aferibed the reftoration of Italy, was preceded or Colonna. Nov. 20. accompanied in death by his fon John, a gallant youth, by his brother Peter, who might regret the eafe and honours of the church, by a nephew of legitimate birth, and by two baftards of the Colonna race; and the number of feven, the feven crowns, as Rienzi ftyled them, of the Holy Ghoft, was completed by the agony of the deplorable parent, of the veteran chief, who had furvived the hope and fortune of his houfe. The vision and prophecies of St. Martin and pope Boniface had been ufed by the tribune to animate his troops43: he difplayed, at leaft in the pursuit, the spirit of an hero; but he forgot the maxims of the ancient Romans, who abhorred the triumphs of civil war. The conqueror accended the Capitol; depolited his crown and fceptre on the altar; and boafted with fome truth, that he had cut off an ear which neither pope nor emperor had been able to amputate**. His bafe and implacable revenge denied > 43 Rienzi, in the above-mentioned letter, afcribes to St. Martin the tribune, Boniface VIII. the enemy of Colonna, himfelf, and the Roman people, the glory of the day, I fpeak only of the family of Stephen the which Villani likewife (l. xii. c. 104.) defcribes as a regular battle. The diforderly du Cerçeau, with his fon. That family was fkirmich, the flight of the Romans, and the extinguished, but the house has been perpecowardice of Rienzi, are painted in the tuated in the collateral branches; of which I fimple and minute narrative of Fortifiocca. or the anonymous Citizen (l. ii. c. 34-37.).

44 In defcribing the fall of the Colonna, elder, who is often confounded by the P. have denied the honours of burial; and the bodies of the Colonna, which C H A P. he threatened to expose with those of the vilest malefactors, were ----fecretly interred by the holy virgins of their name and family 45. The people fympathiled in their grief, repented of their own fury, and detefted the indecent joy of Rienzi, who vifited the fpot where these illustrious victims had fallen. It was on that fatal spot, that he conferred on his fon the honour of knighthood : and the ceremony was accomplished by a flight blow from each of the horfemen of the guard, and by a ridiculous and inhuman ablution from a pool of water, which was yet polluted with patrician blood 46.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

A fhort delay would have faved the Colonna, the delay of a fingle Fall and month, which elapfed between the triumph and the exile of Rienzi. tribune Rien-In the pride of victory, he forfeited what yet remained of his civil virtues, without acquiring the fame of military prowefs. A free Dec. 15. and vigorous opposition was formed in the city; and when the tribune propofed in the public council 47 to impofe a new tax, and to regulate the government of Perugia, thirty-nine members voted against his measures; repelled the injurious charge of treachery and corruption; and urged him to prove, by their forcible exclusion, that, if the populace adhered to his caufe, it was already difclaimed by the most respectable citizens. The pope and the facred college had never been dazzled by his fpecious profeffions; they were juftly offended by the infolence of his conduct; a cardinal legate was fent have not a very accurate knowledge. Circumfpice (fays Petrarch) familiæ tuæ ftatum, Columnienfium domos: folito pauciores habeat columnas. Quid ad rem? modo fundamentum stabile, folidumq; permaneat.

45 The convent of St. Silvester was founded, endowed, and protected by the Colonna cardinals, for the daughters of the family who embraced a monaftic life, and who, in the year 1318, were twelve in number. The others were allowed to marry with their kinfinen in the fourth degree, and the difpenfation was justified by the finall number and close alliances of the c. 31. p. 798-804.).

4

noble families of Rome (Memoires fur Petrarque, tom. i. p. 110. tom. ii. p. 401.).

46 Petrarch wrote a stiff and pedantic letter of confolation (Fam. l. vii. epift. 13. p.682, 683.). The friend was loft in the patriot. Nulla toto orbe principum familia carior : carior tamen respublica, carior Roma, carior Italia. Je rends graces aux Dieux de n'etre pas Romain.

47 This council and oppofition is obscurely mentioned by Pollistore, a contemporary writer, who has preferved fome curious and original facts (Rer. Italicarum, tom. xxv.

flight of the zi, A. D. 1347,

to

C H A P. to Italy, and after fome fruitlefs treaty, and two perfonal interviews, LXX. he fulminated a bull of excommunication, in which the tribune is degraded from his office, and branded with the guilt of rebellion, facrilege, and herefy 48. The furviving barons of Rome were now humbled to a fenfe of allegiance ; their intereft and revenge engaged them in the fervice of the church; but as the fate of the Colonna was before their eyes, they abandoned to a private adventurer the peril and glory of the revolution. John Pepin, count of Minorbino49 in the kingdom of Naples, had been condemned for his crimes, or his riches, to perpetual imprifonment; and Petrarch, by foliciting his releafe, indirectly contributed to the ruin of his friend. At the head of one hundred and fifty foldiers, the count of Minorbino introduced himfelf into Rome; barricaded the quarter of the Colonna; and found the enterprife as eafy as it had feemed impoffible. From the first alarm, the bell of the Capitol inceffantly tolled; but, inftead of repairing to the well-known found, the people was filent and inactive; and the pufillanimous Rienzi, deploring their ingratitude with fighs and tears, abdicated the government and palace of the republic.

Revolutions of Rome, A. D. 1347-1354.

Without drawing his fword, count Pepin reftored the ariftocracy and the church ; three fenators were chofen, and the legate affuming the first rank, accepted his two colleagues from the rival families of Colonna and Urfini. The acts of the tribune were abolifhed, his head was proferibed; yet fuch was the terror of his name, that the barons hefitated three days before they would truft themfelves in the city, and Rienzi was left above a month in the caftle of St. Angelo, from whence he peaceably withdrew, after labouring, without effect, Cerceau (p. 196. 232.) from the Ecclefiaftical Annals of Odericus Raynaldus (A. D. 1347, Nº 15. 17. 21, &c.), who found them in the archives of the Vatican.

48 The briefs and bulls of Clement VI. character, and death of this count of Minoragainst Rienzi, are translated by the P. du bino, a man da natura inconstante e fenza fede, whole grandfather, a crafty notary, was enriched and ennobled by the fpoils of the Saracens of Nocera (l. vii. c. 102, 103.). See his imprisonment, and the efforts of Pe-

49 Matteo Villani describes the origin, trarch, tom. ii. p. 149-151.

to

to revive the affection and courage of the Romans. The vision of C H A P. freedom and empire had vanished : their fallen spirit would have acquiefced in fervitude, had it been finoothed by tranquillity and order : and it was fearcely obferved, that the new fenators derived their authority from the Apoftolic See, that four cardinals were appointed to reform with dictatorial power the flate of the republic. Rome was again agitated by the bloody feuds of the barons, who detefted each other, and despifed the commons : their hostile fortresses, both in town and country, again role and were again demolished; and the peaceful citizens, a flock of fheep, were devoured, fays the Florentine historian, by thefe rapacious wolves. But when their pride and avarice had exhausted the patience of the Romans, a confraternity of the Virgin Mary protected or avenged the republic : the bell of the Capitol was again tolled, the nobles in arms trembled in the prefence of an unarmed multitude; and of the two fenators, Colonna efcaped from the window of the palace, and Urfini was ftoned at the foot of the altar. The dangerous office of tribune was fucceffively occupied by two plebeians, Cerroni and Baroncelli. The mildness of Cerroni was unequal to the time's; and after a faint ftruggle, he retired with a fair reputation and a decent fortune to the comforts of rural life. Devoid of eloquence or genius, Baroncelli was diffinguished by a resolute spirit : he spoke the language of a patriot, and trode in the footsteps of tyrants; his fuspicion was a fentence of death, and his own death was the reward of his cruelties. Amidft the public misfortunes, the faults of Rienzi were forgotten; and the Romans fighed for the peace and profperity of the good eftate 5°.

After an exile of feven years, the first deliverer was again reftored Adventures to his country. In the difguife of a monk or a pilgrim, he efcaped of Rienzi.

from

 $<sup>^{50}</sup>$  The troubles of Rome, from the de- c. 1-4.). I have flightly paffed over thefe parture to the return of Rienzi, are related fecondary characters, who imitated the oriby Matteo Villani (l. ii. c. 47. l. iii. c. 33. ginal tribune. 57. 78.) and Thomas Fortifiocca (1. iii.

LXX.

C H A P. from the caftle of St. Angelo, implored the friendship of the king of Hungary at Naples, tempted the ambition of every bold adventurer, mingled at Rome with the pilgrims of the jubilee, lay concealed among the hermits of the Apennine, and wandered through the cities of Italy, Germany, and Bohemia. His perfon was invisible, his name was yet formidable; and the anxiety of the court of Avignon fuppofes, and even magnifies, his perfonal merit. The emperor Charles the fourth gave audience to a ftranger, who frankly revealed himfelf as the tribune of the republic; and aftonifhed an affembly of ambaffadors and princes, by the eloquence of a patriot and the visions of a prophet, the downfal of tyranny and the kingdom of the Holy Ghoft ". Whatever had been his hopes, Rienzi found himfelf a captive ; but he fupported a character of independence and dignity, and obeyed, as his own choice, the irrefiftible fummons of the fupreme pontiff. The zeal of Petrarch, which had been cooled by the unworthy conduct, was rekindled by the fufferings and the prefence, of his friend; and he boldly complains of the times, in which the faviour of Rome was delivered by her emperor into the hands of her bishop. Rienzi was transported flowly, but in fafe cuftody, from Prague to Avignon: his entrance into the city was that of a malefactor; in his prifon he was chained by the leg; and four cardinals were named to enquire into the crimes of herefy and rebellion. But his trial and condemnation would have involved fome questions, which it was more prudent to leave under the veil of myftery: the temporal fupremacy of the popes; the duty of refidence; the civil and ecclefiaftical privileges of the clergy and people of Rome. The reigning pontiff well deferved the appellation of Clement : the ftrange viciffitudes and magnanimous fpirit of the captive excited his pity and efteem; and Petrarch believes > st These visions, of which the friends and that Christ was fucceeded by the Holy Ghost, enemies of Rienzi feem alike ignorant, are that the tyranny of the pope would be abolifhfurely magnified by the zeal of Polliftore, a ed, he might have been convicted of herefy Dominican inquifitor (Rer. Ital. tom. xxv. and treafon, without offending the Roman c. 36. p. 819.). Had the tribune taught, people. that that he respected in the hero the name and facred character of a C H A P. poet 52. Rienzi was indulged with an eafy confinement and the ufe of books; and in the affiduous fludy of Livy and the bible, he fought the caufe and the confolation of his misfortunes.

A prifoner at Avignon, A. D. 1351.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The fucceeding pontificate of Innocent the fixth opened a new Rienzi, fenaprospect of his deliverance and reftoration; and the court of Avignon A.D. 1354. was perfuaded, that the fuccefsful rebel could alone appeafe and reform the anarchy of the metropolis. After a folemn profession of fidelity, the Roman tribune was fent into Italy, with the title of fenator; but the death of Baroncelli appeared to fuperfede the ufe of his miffion; and the legate, cardinal Albornoz 53, a confummate statesman, allowed him with reluctance, and without aid, to undertake the perilous experiment. His first reception was equal to his wifhes : the day of his entrance was a public feftival; and his eloquence and authority revived the laws of the good effate. But this momentary funfhine was foon clouded by his own vices and those of the people: in the Capitol he might often regret the prifon of Avignon; and after a fecond administration of four months, Rienzi was maffacred in a tumult which had been fomented by the Roman barons. In the fociety of the Germans and Bohemians, he is faid to have contracted the habits of intemperance and cruelty: adverfity had chilled his enthufiafm, without fortifying his reafon or virtue; and that youthful hope, that lively affurance, which is the pledge of fuccefs, was now fucceeded by the cold impotence of diffruft and defpair. The tribune had reigned with abfolute dominion, by the

53 Ægidius, or Giles Albornoz, a noble

VOL. VI.

legate in Italy (A. D. 1353-1367), reflored, by his arms and counfels, the temporal dominion of the popes. His life has been feparately written by Sepulveda; but Dryden could not reasonably suppose, that his name, or that of Wolfey, had reached the cars of the Mufti in Don Sebaffian.

choice.

tor of Rome,

LXX.

-----

<sup>52</sup> The aftonifhment, the envy almoft, of Pe- Spaniard, archbishop of Toledo, and cardinal trarch is a proof, if not of the truth of this incredible fact, at least of his own veracity. The abbé de Sade (Memoires, tom. iii. p. 242.) quotes the vith epifile of the xiiith book of Petrarch, but it is of the royal MS. which he confulted, and not of the ordinary Bafil edition (p. 920.).

C H A P. choice, and in the hearts, of the Romans: the fenator was the fervile minister of a foreign court; and while he was suspected by the people, he was abandoned by the prince. The legate Albornoz, who feemed defirous of his ruin, inflexibly refuled all supplies of men and money; a faithful fubject could no longer prefume to touch the revenues of the apoftolical chamber; and the first idea of a tax was the fignal of elamour and fedition. Even his justice was tainted with the guilt or reproach of felfifh cruelty: the most virtuous citizen of Rome was facrificed to his jealoufy; and in the execution of a public robber, from whofe purfe he had been affifted, the magistrate too much forgot, or too much remembered, the obligations of the debtor 54. A civil war exhaufted his treafures, and the patience of the city : the Colonna maintained their hoffile flation at Paleftrina; and his mercenaries foon defpifed a leader whofe ignorance and fear were envious of all fubordinate merit. In the death as in the life of Rienzi, the hero and the coward were ftrangely mingled. When the Capitol was invefted by a furious multitude, when he was bafely deferted by his civil and military fervants, the intrepid fenator, waving the banner of liberty, prefented himfelf on the balcony, addreffed his eloquence to the various paffions of the Romans, and laboured to perfuade them, that in the fame caufe himfelf and the republic must either stand or fall. His oration was interrupted by a volley of imprecations and flones; and after an arrow had transpierced his hand, he funk into abject defpair, and fled weeping to the inner chambers, from whence he was let down by a fheet before the windows of the prifon. Deftitute of aid or hope, he was belieged till the evening: the doors of the Capitol were deftroyed with axes and fire ; and while the fenator attempted to efcape in a plebeian habit, he was difcovered and dragged to the platform.

<sup>54</sup> From Matteo Villani, and Fortifiocca, of an hero. At the head of a free company, the P. du Cerçeau (p. 344-394) has extracted the life and death of the chevalier and formidable: he had money in all the Montreal, the life of a robber and the death platform of the palace, the fatal scene of his judgments and execu- C H A P. tions. A whole hour, without voice or motion, he flood amidft the multitude half naked and half dead; their rage was hushed into curiofity and wonder; the laft feelings of reverence and compaffion yet ftruggled in his favour; and they might have prevailed, if a bold affaffin had not plunged a dagger in his breaft. He fell fenfe- His death, lefs with the first stroke; the impotent revenge of his enemies in- September 8. flicted a thousand wounds; and the fenator's body was abandoned to the dogs, to the Jews, and to the flames. Posterity will compare the virtues and failings of this extraordinary man; but in a long period of anarchy and fervitude, the name of Rienzi has often been celebrated as the deliverer of his country, and the laft of the Roman patriots 55.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

The first and most generous with of Petrarch was the restoration Petrarch inof a free republic; but after the exile and death of his plebeian hero, he turned his eyes from the tribune, to the king, of the Romans. The Capitol was yet flained with the blood of Rienzi, when Charles the fourth defcended from the Alps to obtain the Italian and Imperial crowns. In his paffage through Milan he received the vifit, and repaid the flattery, of the poet-laureat; accepted a medal of Augustus; and promised, without a smile, to imitate the founder of the Roman monarchy. A falfe application of the names and maxims of antiquity was the fource of the hopes and difappointments of Petrarch; yet he could not overlook the difference of times and characters; the immeafurable diftance between the firft Cæfars and a Bohemian prince, who by the favour of the clergy had been elected the titular head of the German ariftocracy. Inftead of reftoring to Rome her glory and her provinces, he had bound himfelf, by a fecret treaty with the pope, to evacuate the city on the day

4 G 2

595

LXX.

vites and upbraids the emperor Charles IV. A. D. 1355, lanuary-May.

<sup>55</sup> The exile, fecond government, and friend nor his enemy (1. iii. c. 12-25.). death of Rienzi, are minutely related by the Petrarch, who loved the tribune, was indif-anonymous Roman, who appears neither his ferent to the fate of the fenator.

LXX. -----

595

He folicits the popes of Avignon to fix their refidence at Rome.

C H A P. day of his coronation; and his fhameful retreat was purfued by the reproaches of the patriot bard 56.

> After the lofs of liberty and empire, his third and more humble with, was to reconcile the shepherd with his flock; to recal the Roman bifhop to his ancient and peculiar diocefe. In the fervour of youth, with the authority of age, Petrarch addreffed his exhortations to five fucceflive popes, and his eloquence was always infpired by the enthuliafm of fentiment and the freedom of language<sup>$7</sup>. The fon of a citizen of Florence invariably preferred the country of his birth to that of his education : and Italy, in his eyes, was the queen and garden of the world. Amidst her domestic factions, she was doubtlefs fuperior to France both in art and fcience, in wealth and politenefs; but the difference could fcarcely fupport the epithet of barbarous, which he promifcuoully beftows on the countries bevond the Alps. Avignon, the myftic Babylon, the fink of vice and corruption, was the object of his hatred and contempt; but he forgets that her fcandalous vices were not the growth of the foil, and that in every refidence they would adhere to the power and luxury of the papal court. He confesses, that the fuccessor of St. Peter is the bifhop of the univerfal church; yet it was not on the banks of the Rhône, but of the Tyber, that the apoftle had fixed his everlafting throne: and while every city in the Christian world was bleffed with a bifhop, the metropolis alone was defolate and forlorn. Since the removal of the Holy See, the facred buildings of the Lateran and the Vatican, their altars and their faints, were left in a flate of poverty and decay; and Rome was often painted under the image grapher, the application of Petrarch and Italy may be found (Opp. p. 1068-1085.).

<sup>56</sup> The hopes and the difappointment of Rome to Benedict XII. in the year 1334 (Memoires, tom. i. p. 261-265.), to Clement VI. in 1342 (tom. ii. p. 45-47.), and to Urban V. in 1366 (tom. iii. p. 677-691.): his praife (p.711-715.) and excufe (p.771.) of the last of these pontiffs. His angry con-57 See in his accurate and amufing bio- troverfy on the respective merits of France and of Petrarch, are agreeably defcribed in his own words by the French biographer (Memoires, tom. iii. p. 375-413.); but the deep, though fecret, wound, was the coronation of Zanubi the poet laureat by Charles IV.

of a disconfolate matron, as if the wandering husband could be re- C H A P. claimed by the homely portrait of the age and infirmities of his weeping spoufe 58. But the cloud which hung over the feven hills, would be difpelled by the prefence of their lawful fovereign : eternal fame, the profperity of Rome, and the peace of Italy, would be the recompence of the pope who should dare to embrace this generous refolution. Of the five whom Petrarch exhorted, the three first, John the twenty-fecond, Benedict the twelfth, and Clement the fixth, were importuned or amufed by the boldness of the orator; but the memorable change which had been attempted by Urban the fifth, was finally accomplifhed by Gregory the eleventh. The execution of their defign was opposed by weighty and almost insuperable obflacles. A king of France who has deferved the epithet of wife, was unwilling to releafe them from a local dependence : the cardinals, for the most part his fubjects, were attached to the language, manners, and climate, of Avignon; to their flately palaces; above all, to the wines of Burgundy. In their eyes, Italy was foreign or hoftile; Return of and they reluctantly embarked at Marfeilles, as if they had been fold or banished into the land of the Saracens. Urban the fifth refided October 16three years in the Vatican with fafety and honour : his fanctity was April 17. protected by a guard of two thousand horse; and the king of Cyprus, the queen of Naples, and the emperors of the Eaft and Weft devoutly faluted their common father in the chair of St. Peter. But the joy of Petrarch and the Italians was foon turned into grief and indignation. Some reafons of public or private moment, his own impatience or the prayers of the cardinals, recalled Urban to France; and the approaching election was faved from the tyrannic patriotifm of the Romans. The powers of heaven were interested in their caufe : Bridget of Sweden, a faint and pilgrim, difapproved the re-

58 Squalida fed quoniam facies, neglecta cultu Cæfaries; multifque malis laffata fenectus Eripuit folitam effigiem : vetus accipe nomen ; (Carm. 1. 2. p. 77.) Roma vocor. He fpins this allegory beyond all meafure or patience. The Epiftles to Urban V. in profe, are more fimple and perfuafive (Senilium, 1. vii. p. 811-827. 1. ix. epift. i. p. 844-854.), turn,

Urban V. A. D. 1367, A. D. 1370,

LXX.

LXX. Final return of Grego-ry XI. Á. D. 1377, January 17.

C H A P. turn, and foretold the death, of Urban the fifth; the migration of Gregory the eleventh was encouraged by St. Catherine of Sienna, the fpoufe of Chrift and ambaffadrefs of the Florentines; and the popes themfelves, the great mafters of human credulity, appear to have liftened to these visionary females "?. Yet those celeftial admonitions were supported by some arguments of temporal policy. The refidence of Avignon had been invaded by hoftile violence: at the head of thirty thousand robbers, an hero had extorted ranfom and abfolution from the vicar of Chrift and the facred college; and the maxim of the French warriors, to fpare the people and plunder the church, was a new herefy of the most dangerous import<sup>69</sup>. While the pope was driven from Avignon, he was ftrenuoufly invited to Rome. The fenate and people acknowledged him as their lawful fovereign, and laid at his feet the keys of the gates, the bridges, and the fortreffes; of the quarter at leaft beyond the Tyber 64. But this loyal offer was accompanied by a declaration, that they could no longer fuffer the fcandal and calamity of his abfence; and that his obflinacy would finally provoke them to revive and affert the primitive right of election. The abbot of mount Caffin had been confulted, whether he would accept the triple crown 52 from the clergy

6º This predatory expedition is related by Freisfard (Chronique, tom. i. p. 230), and in the life of du Guesclin (Collection Generale,des Memoires Historiques, tom. iv. c. 16. p. 107-113.). As early as the year 1361, dom. The three states of the church are rethe court of Avignon had been molefted by fimilar freebooters, who afterwards paffed the Alps (Memoires fur Petrarque, tom. iii. p. 563 -569.).

61 Fleury alleges, from the Annals of Odericus Raynaldus, the original treaty which was figned the 21st of December 1376, between Gregory XI. and the Romans (Hift. Ecclef. tom. xx. p. 275.).

62 The first crown or regnum (Ducange, Gloff. Latin. tom. v p. 702.) on the epifcopal mitre of the popes, is afcribed to the gift of Conftantine, or Clovis. The fecond was added by Boniface VIII. as the emblem not only of a spiritual, but of a temporal, kingpresented <sup>59</sup> I have not leifure to expatiate on the legends of St. Bridget or St. Catherine, the laft of which might furnifi fome amufing flories. Their effect on the mind of Gregory XI. is atteiled by the laft folemn words of the dying pope, who admonished the affiftants, ut caverent ab hominibus, five viris, five mulieribus, fub specie religionis loquentibus visiones sui capitis, quia per tales ipfe feductus, &c. (Baluz. Not. ad Vit. Pap. Avenionenfium, tom. i. p. 1223.).

elergy and people : " I am a citizen of Rome "," replied that vene- C H A P. rable ecclefiaftic, " and my first law is the voice of my country "."

If superstition will interpret an untimely death "; if the merit of His death, counfels be judged from the event; the heavens may feem to frown March 27. on a measure of such apparent reason and propriety. Gregory the eleventh did not furvive above fourteen months his return to the Vatican; and his decease was followed by the great schifm of the Weft, which diffracted the Latin church above forty years. The facred college was then composed of twenty-two cardinals: fix of thefe had remained at Avignon; eleven Frenchmen, one Spaniard, and four Italians, entered the conclave in the ufual form. Their choice was not yet limited to the purple; and their unanimous votes acqui- Election of esced in the archbishop of Bari, a subject of Naples, confpicuous April 9. for his zeal and learning, who afcended the throne of St. Peter under the name of Urban the fixth. The epiftle of the facred college affirms his free and regular election; which had been infpired, as ufual, by the Holy Ghoft : he was adored, invefted, and crowned. with the cuftomary rights; his temporal authority was obeyed at Rome and Avignon, and his ecclefiaftical fupremacy was acknowledged in the Latin world. During feveral weeks, the cardinals attended their new mafter with the fairest professions of attachment and loyalty; till prefented by the triple crown which was in- P. i. p. 610-712.). In the difputes of the troduced by John XXII. or Benedict XII. (Memoires fur Petrarque, tom. i. p. 258, 259.).

63 Baluze (Not. ad Pap. Avenion. tom. i. p. 1194, 1195.) produces the original evidence which attefts the threats of the Roman ambaffadors, and the refignation of the abbot of mount Callin, qui, ultro fe offerens, respondit fe civem Romanum effe, et illud velle ed a punifhment by those who believe in the quod ipfi vellent.

64 The return of the popes from Avignon to Rome, and their reception by the people, are relat. d in the original Lives of Urban V. and Gregory XI. in Caluze (Vit. Paparum Avenionenfium, tom. i. p. 363-486) and Murateri (Script. Rer. Italicarum, tom. iii. Argive youths.

fchifm, every circumstance was feverely, though partially, forutinifed; more especially in the great inqueft, which decided thes obedience of Caffile, and to which Baluze, in his notes, fo often and fo largely appeals, from a MS. volume in the Harlay library (p. 1281, &c.).

65 Can the death of a good man be effeemimmortality of the foul? They betray the inftability of their faith. Yet as a mere philofopher, I cannot agree with the Greeks, to os Boss Gideois ancheno es seos (Brunck, Poetre Gnomici, p. 231.). See in Herodotus (l. i. c. 31.) the moral and pleafing tale of the

599

A. D. 1378,

Urban VI.

the

LXX. -----

600

Election of ClementVII. Sept. 21.

C H A P. the fummer-heats permitted a decent efcape from the city. But as foon as they were united at Anagni and Fundi, in a place of fecurity, they caft afide the mafk, accufed their own falfehood and hypocrify, excommunicated the apoftate and antichrift of Rome, and proceeded to a new election of Robert of Geneva, Clement the feventh, whom they announced to the nations as the true and rightful vicar of Chrift. Their first choice, an involuntary and illegal act, was annulled by the fear of death and the menaces of the Romans; and their complaint is juftified by the ftrong evidence of probability and fact. The twelve French cardinals, above two-thirds of the votes, were mafters of the election; and whatever might be their provincial jealoufies, it cannot fairly be prefumed that they would have facrificed their right and intereft to a foreign candidate, who would never reftore them to their native country. In the various, and often inconfistent, narratives", the fliades of popular violence are more darkly or faintly coloured : but the licentioufnefs of the feditious Romans was inflamed by a fenfe of their privileges, and the danger of a fecond emigration. The conclave was intimidated by the fhouts, and encompaffed by the arms, of thirty thoufand rebels; the bells of the Capitol and St. Peter's rang an alarm; " Death, or an Italian pope!" was the universal cry; the fame threat was repeated by the twelve bannerets or chiefs of the quarters, in the form of charitable advice; fome preparations were made for burning the obfinate cardinals; and had they chofen a Transalpine fubject, it is probable that they would never have departed alive from the Vatican. The fame conftraint imposed the neceffity of diffembling in the eyes of Rome and of the world : the pride and cruelty of Urban prefented a more inevitable danger; and they foon difcovered the features of the tyrant, who could walk in his garden 66 In the first book of the Histoire du Con- The latter appear to be the most active and eile de Pife, M. Lenfant has abridged and loquacious, and every fa@ and word in the compared the original narratives of the ad- original Lives of Gregory XI. and Cle-

and

herents of Urban and Clement, of the Ita- ment VII. are supported in the notes of their lians and Germans, the French and Spaniards. editor Baluze.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

and recite his breviary, while he heard from an adjacent chamber C H A P. fix cardinals groaning on the rack. His inflexible zeal, which loudly cenfured their luxury and vice, would have attached them to the flations and duties of their parifhes at Rome; and had he not fatally delayed a new promotion, the French cardinals would have been reduced to an helples minority in the facred college. For these reafons, and in the hope of repaffing the Alps, they rafhly violated the peace and unity of the church ; and the merits of their double choice are yet agitated in the Catholic fchools 67. The vanity, rather than the interest, of the nation determined the court and clergy of France 68. The ftates of Savoy, Sicily, Cyprus, Arragon, Caftille, Navarre, and Scotland, were inclined by their example and authority to the obedience, of Clement the feventh, and, after his deceafe, of Benedict the thirteenth. Rome and the principal flates of Italy, Germany, Portugal, England 69, the Low Countries, and the kingdoms of the North, adhered to the prior election of Urban the fixth, who was fucceeded by Boniface the ninth, Innocent the feventh, and Gregory the twelfth.

From the banks of the Tyber and the Rhône, the hoftile pontiffs encountered each other with the pen and the fword : the civil and ecclefiaftical order of fociety was diffurbed; and the Romans had their full fhare of the mifchiefs of which they may be arraigned as the primary authors ". They had vainly flattered themfelves with 67 The ordinal numbers of the popes seem to the reasons of Clement, &c. ? to decide the queftion against Clement VII. and Benedict XIII. who are boldly fligmatifed as anti-popes by the Italians, while the French are content with authorities and reafons to plead the caufe of doubt and toleration (Baluz. in Prefat.). It is fingular, or rather it is not fingular, that faints, visions, and miracles, fhould be common to both parties.

68 Baluze ftrendoufly labours (Not. p.1271 -1280.) to justify the pure and pious motives of Charles V. king of France; he refused to hear the arguments of Uzban; but were not the Urbanills equally deaf of Rome.

VCL. VI.

(9 An epifile, or declamation, in the name of Edward III. (Baluz. Vit. Pap. Avenion. tom. i. p. 553.) difplays the zeal of the English nation against the Clementines. ' Nor was their zeal confined to words: the bifhop of Norwich led a crufade of 60,000 bigots beyond fea (Hume's Hiftory, vol. iii. p. 57, 58.).

<sup>70</sup> Befides the general historians, the Diaries of Delphinus Gentilis, Peter Antonius, and Stephen Infessura, in the great Collection of Muratori, represent the flate and misfortunes Great schifm of the Weft, A.D. 1378-1418.

601

the

C H A P. the hope of reftoring the feat of the ecclefiaftical monarchy, and of relieving their poverty with the tributes and offerings of the nations; -Calamities of but the feparation of France and Spain diverted the ftream of lucrative devotion; nor could the lofs be compenfated by the two jubilees which were crowded into the fpace of ten years. By the avocations of the fchifm, by foreign arms, and popular tumults, Urban the fixth and his three fucceffors were often compelled to interrupt their refidence in the Vatican. The Colonna and Urfini ftill exercifed their deadly feuds : the bannerets of Rome afferted and abufed the privileges of a republic: the vicars of Chrift, who had levied a military force, chaftifed their rebellion with the gibbet, the fword, and the dagger; and, in a friendly conference, eleven deputies of the people were perfidioufly murdered and caft into the ftreet. Since the invation of Robert the Norman, the Romans had purfued their domeftic quarrels without the dangerous interpolition of a ftranger. But in the diforders of the fchifm, an afpiring neighbour, Ladiflaus king of Naples, alternately supported and betrayed the pope and the people : by the former, he was declared gonfalonier, or general, of the church, while the latter fubmitted to his choice the nomination of their magistrates. Befieging Rome by land and water, he thrice entered the gates as a Barbarian conqueror; profaned the altars, violated the virgins, pillaged the merchants, performed his devotions at St. Peter's, and left a garrifon in the caffle of St. Angelo. His arms were fometimes unfortunate, and to a delay of three days he was indebted for his life and crown; but Ladiflaus triumphed in his turn, and it was only his premature death that could fave the metropolis and the ecclefiaftical flate from the ambitious conqueror, who had affumed the title, or at leaft the powers, of king of Rome ".

I have

LXX.

Rome,

<sup>7&#</sup>x27; It is supposed by Giannone (tom. iii. justified the reading of Rex Ramæ, of Rama, p. 292.) that he flyled himfelf Rex Romx, a an obfcure kingdom annexed to the crown of title unknown to the world fince the expul- Hungary. fion of Tarquin. But a nearer inspection has

I have not undertaken the ecclefiaftical hiftory of the fchifm; but C H A P. Rome, the object of thefe last chapters, is deeply interested in the Negociations disputed fucceffion of her fovereigns. The first counfels for the for peace and union, A.D. peace and union of Christendom arose from the university of Paris, 1392-1407. from the faculty of the Sorbonne, whofe doctors were efteemed, at least in the Gallican church, as the most confummate masters of theological fcience 72. Prudently waving all invidious enquiry into the origin and merits of the difpute, they propofed, as an healing meafure, that the two pretenders of Rome and Avignon should abdicate at the fame time, after qualifying the cardinals of the adverse factions to join in a legitimate election ; and that the nations should substract " their obedience, if either of the competitors preferred his own interest to that of the public. At each vacancy, these physicians of the church deprecated the mifchiefs of an hafty choice; but the policy of the conclave and the ambition of its members were deaf to reafon and entreaties; and whatfoever promifes were made, the pope could never be bound by the oaths of the cardinal. During fifteen years, the pacific defigns of the university were eluded by the arts of the rival pontiffs, the fcruples or paffions of their adherents, and the viciffitudes of French factions, that ruled the infanity of Charles the fixth. At length a vigorous refolution was embraced; and a folemn embaffy, of the titular patriarch of Alexandria, two archbishops, five bishops, five abbots, three knights, and twenty doctors, was fent to the courts of Avignon and Rome, to require, in the name of the church and king, the abdication of the two pretenders, of Peter de Luna, who ftyled himfelf Benedict doctor, was the author or the champion. Conftance.

72 The leading and decifive part which The proceedings of the university of Paris and the Gallican church were often prompted by his advice, and are copioufly difplayed in his given a valuable extract. John Gerfon acted 73 Of this measure, John Gerson, a stout an important part in the councils of Pifa and

4H 2

the

LXX.

-

France affumed in the fchifm, is flated by Peter du Puis in a separate history, extracted from authentic records, and inferted in the theological writings, of which Le Clerc (Biviith volume of the last and best edition of his bliotheque Choisie, tom. x. p. 1-78.) has friend Thuanus (P. xi. p. 110-184.).

60.1

LXX.

C H A P. the thirteenth, and of Angelo Corrario, who affumed the name of Gregory the twelfth. For the ancient honour of Rome, and the fuccefs of their commission, the ambassadors folicited a conference with the magistrates of the city, whom they gratified by a politive declaration, that the most Christian king did not entertain a wish of transporting the holy fee from the Vatican, which he confidered as the genuine and proper feat of the fucceffor of St. Peter. In the name of the fenate and people, an eloquent Roman afferted their defire to co-operate in the union of the church, deplored the temporal and fpiritual calamities of the long fchifm, and requefted the protection of France against the arms of the king of Naples. The answers of Benedict and Gregory were alike edifying and alike deceitful; and, in evading the demand of their abdication, the two rivals were animated by a common fpirit. They agreed on the neceffity of a previous interview, but the time, the place, and the manner, could never be afcertained by mutual confent. " If the one " advances," fays a fervant of Gregory, " the other retreats; the " one appears an animal fearful of the land, the other a creature " apprehensive of the water. And thus for a short remnant of life " and power, will thefe aged priefts endanger the peace and falva-" tion of the Christian world "."

Council of Pifa, A. D. 1409.

The Christian world was at length provoked by their obfinacy and fraud: they were deferted by their cardinals, who embraced each other as friends and colleagues; and their revolt was fupported by a numerous affembly of prelates and ambaffadors. With equal justice, the council of Pifa deposed the popes of Rome and Avignon; the conclave was unanimous in the choice of Alexander the fifth, and his vacant feat was foon filled by a fimilar election of John the Roman court, retired to the honourable 195.). office of chancellor of the republic of Florence 74 Leonardus Brunus Aretinus, one of the (Fabric, Bibliot, medii "Evi, tom. i. p. 290.). revivers of classic learning in Italy, who, Lenfant has given the version of this curious after ferving many years as fecretary in the epiftle (Concile de Pife, tom. i. p. 192-twenty-

. 9

twenty-third, the most profligate of mankind. But instead of ex- C H A P. tinguifhing the fchifm, the rafhness of the French and Italians had given a third pretender to the chair of St. Peter. Such new claims of the fynod and conclave were difputed : three kings, of Germany, Hungary, and Naples, adhered to the caufe of Gregory the twelfth: and Benedict the thirteenth, himfelf a Spaniard, was acknowledged by the devotion and patriotifm of that powerful nation. The rafh Council of proceedings of Pifa were corrected by the council of Conftance; the emperor Sigifmond acted a confpicuous part as the advocate or protector of the Catholic church; and the number and weight of civil and ecclefiaftical members might feem to conflitute the flates general of Europe. Of the three popes, John the twenty-third was the first victim : he fled and was brought back a prifoner : the most fcandalous charges were fuppreffed; the vicar of Chrift was only accufed of piracy, murder, rape, fodomy, and inceft; and after fubfcribing his own condemnation, he explated in prifon the imprudence of trufting his perfon to a free city beyond the Alps. Gregory the twelfth, whofe obedience was reduced to the narrow precincts of Rimini, defcended with more honour from the throne, and his ambaffador convened the feffion, in which he renounced the title and authority of lawful pope. To vanquish the obstinacy of Benedict the thirteenth or his adherents, the emperor in perfon undertook a journey from Constance to Perpignan. The kings of Castille, Arragon, Navarre, and Scotland, obtained an equal and honourable treaty : with the concurrence of the Spaniards, Benedict was depofed by the council; but the harmlefs old man was left in a folitary caftle to excommunicate twice each day the rebel kingdoms which had deferted his caufe. After thus eradicating the remains of the fchifm, the fynod of Conftance proceeded with flow and cautious fteps, to elect the fovereign of Rome and the head of the church. On this momentous occasion, the college of twenty-three cardinals was fortified with thirty deputies; fix of whom were chofen in each of the five great nations of Christendom, the Italian, the German, the French.

605

Constance,

A.D. 1414-1418.

LXX. Election of

Martin V.

C H A P. French, the Spanish, and the English 15: the interference of strangers was foftened by their generous preference of an Italian and a Roman; and the hereditary, as well as perfonal, merit of Otho Colonna recommended him to the conclave. Rome accepted with joy and obedience the nobleft of her fons, the ecclefiaftical flate was defended by his powerful family, and the elevation of Martin the fifth is the æra of the reftoration and establishment of the popes in the Vatican<sup>76</sup>.

Martin V. A. D. 1417. Eugenius IV. A. D. 1431. Nicholas V. A. D. 1447.

The royal prerogative of coining money, which had been exercifed near three hundred years by the fenate, was first refumed by Martin the fifth", and his image and fuperfcription introduce the feries of the papal medals. Of his two immediate fucceffors, Eugenius the fourth

75 I cannot overlook this great national caufe, which was vigoroufly maintained by the English ambassadors against those of France. The latter contended, that Chriftendom was effentially distributed into the four great nations and votes, of Italy, Germany, France, and Spain; and that the leffer kingdoms (fuch as England, Denmark, Portugal, &c.) were comprehended under one or other of these great divisions. The English afferted, that the British islands, of which they were the head, fhould be confidered as a fifth and co-ordinate nation, with an equal vote; and every argument of truth or fable was introduced to exalt the dignity of their country. Including England, Scotland, Wales, the four kingdoms of Ireland, and the Orknies, the British islands are decorated with eight royal crowns, and difcriminated by four or five languages, English, Welsh, Cornish, Scotch, Irish, &c. The greater island from north to fouth measures 800 miles, or 40 days journey; and England alone contains 32 counties, and 52,000 parish churches, (a bold account!) befides cathedrals, colleges, priories, and hospitals. They celebrate the million of St. Joseph of Arimathea, the birth of Constantine, and the legantine powers of the two primates, without forgetting the testimony of Bartholemy de Glanville (A. D. 1360), who reckons only four Christian kingdoms, 1. of Rome, 2. of Constantinople, 3. of Ireland, which had been transferred to the English monarchs, and, 4. of Spain. Our countrymen prevailed in the council, but the victories of Henry V. added much weight to their arguments. The adverfe pleadings were found at Constance by Sir Robert Wingfield, ambaffador from Henry VIII. to the emperor Maximilian I. and by him printed in 1517 at Louvain. From a Leipfic MS. they are more correctly published in the Collection of Von der Hardt, tom. v.; but I have only feen Lenfant's abstract of these acts (Concile de Conftance, tom. ii. p. 447. 453, &c.).

76 The histories of the three fucceffive councils, Pifa, Constance, and Basil, have been written with a tolerable degree of candour, industry, and elegance, by a Protestant minister, M. Lenfant, who retired from France to Berlin. They form fix volumes in quarto; and as Bafil is the worft, fo Constance is the best, part of the collection.

77 See the xxviith Differtation of the Antiquities of Muratori, and the ist Inftruction of the Science des Medailles of the Pere Joubert and the Baron de la Bastie. The Metallic Hiftory of Martin V. and his fucceffors, has been composed by two monks, Moulinet a Frenchman, and Bonanni an Italian: but I understand, that the first part of the feries is reftored from more recent coins.

was

606

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

was the last pope expelled by the tumults of the Roman people<sup>78</sup>, C H A P. and Nicholas the fifth, the last who was importuned by the prefence of a Roman emperor". I. The conflict of Eugenius, with the fathers Laft revolt of of Bafil, and the weight or apprehension of a new excise, em- A. D. 1434. boldened and provoked the Romans to usurp the temporal govern- October 26. ment of the city. They role in arms, elected feven governors of the republic, and a conftable of the Capitol; imprifoned the pope's nephew; befieged his perfon in the palace; and fhot vollies of arrows into his bark as he efcaped down the Tyber in the habit of a monk. But he still possessed in the castle of St. Angelo a faithful garrifon and a train of artillery : their batteries inceffantly thundered on the city, and a bullet more dextroufly pointed broke down the barricade of the bridge, and fcattered with a fingle fhot the heroes of the republic. Their conftancy was exhaufted by a rebellion of five months. Under the tyranny of the Ghibeline nobles, the wifeft patriots regretted the dominion of the church; and their repentance was unanimous and effectual. The troops of St. Peter again occupied the Capitol; the magistrates departed to their homes; the most guilty were executed or exiled; and the legate, at the head of two thousand foot and four thousand horse, was faluted as the father of the city. The fynods of Ferrara and Florence, the fear or refentment of Eugenius, prolonged his absence : he was received by a fubmiffive people; but the pontiff underftood from the acclamations of his triumphal entry, that to fecure their loyalty and his own repofe, he must grant without delay the abolition of the odious excife. II. Rome was reftored, adorned, and enlightened, by the peaceful reign of Nicholas the fifth. In the midft of these laudable occupa-

78 Befides the Lives of Eugenius IV. (Rerum Italic. tom. iii. P. i. p. 869. and tom. xxv. p. 256.), the Diaries of Paul Petroni and Stephen Inseffura are the best scribed by Lenfant (Concile de Basse, tom. ii. original evidence for the revolt of the Romans against Eugenius IV. The former, tator and actor in that splendid scene. who lived at the time and on the fpot, fpeaks the language of a citizen, equally afraid of prieftly and popular tyranny.

79 The coronation of Frederic III. is dep. 276-288.), from Æneas Sylvius, a spec-tions,

LXX.

Rome,

LXX. 1 march Laft coronamanemperor, Frederic III. A. D. 1452, March 18.

C H A P. tions, the pope was alarmed by the approach of Frederic the third of Auftria; though his fears could not be justified by the character tion of a Ger- or the power of the Imperial candidate. After drawing his military force to the metropolis, and imposing the best fecurity of oaths so and treaties, Nicholas received with a finiling countenance the faithful advocate and vaffal of the church. So tame were the times, fo feeble was the Auftrian, that the pomp of his coronation was accomplished with order and harmony : but the fuperfluous honour was fo difgraceful to an independent nation, that his fucceffors have excufed themfelves from the toilfome pilgrimage to the Vatican; and reft their Imperial title on the choice of the electors of Germany.

The flatutes and government of Rome.

A citizen has remarked, with pride and pleafure, that the king of the Romans, after paffing with a flight falute the cardinals and prelates who met him at the gate, diftinguished the drefs and perfon of the fenator of Rome; and in this laft farewel, the pageants of the empire and the republic were clasped in a friendly embrace <sup>$4</sup>. According to the laws of Rome <sup>82</sup>, her first magistrate was required to be a doctor of laws, an alien, of a place at leaft forty miles from the city; with whofe inhabitants he must not be connected in the third canonical degree of blood or alliance. The election was annual: a fevere fcrutiny was inflituted into the conduct of the departing fenator; nor could he be recalled to the fame office till after the expiration of two years. A liberal falary of three thoufand florins was affigned for his expence and reward; and his public <sup>80</sup> The oath of fidelity impofed on the emperor by the pope, is recorded and fanctified in the Clementines (l. ii. tit. ix.); and Æneas Sylvius, who objects to this new demand, could not forefee, that in a few years he should afcend the throne, and imbibe the maxims, of Boniface VIII.

<sup>84</sup> Lo fenatore di Roma, vestito di brocarto con quella beretta, e con quelle maniche, et ornamenti di pelle, co' quali va alle feste di Teffaccio e Nagone, might escape the eye of ter (c. :4-40.) of the second book.

Æneas Sylvius, but he is viewed with admiration and complacency by the Roman citizen (Diario di Stephano Infessura, p. 1133.).

82 See in the flatutes of Rome, the fenator and three judges (l. i. c. 3-14.), the confer-wators (1 i. c. 15, 16, 17. 1 iii. c. 4.), the caporioni (1. i. c. 18. l. iii. c. 3.), the fecret council (l. iii. c. 2.), the common council (l. iii. c. 3.). The title of feuds, defiances, acts of violence, &c. is fpread through many a chap-appearance

608 appearance represented the majefty of the republic. His robes were C H A P. of gold brocade or crimfon velvet, or in the fummer feafon of a lighter filk; he bore in his hand an ivory fceptre; the found of . trumpets announced his approach; and his folemn fteps were preceded at leaft by four lictors or attendants, whofe red wands were enveloped with bands or ftreamers of the golden colour or livery of the city. His oath in the Capitol proclaims his right and duty, to obferve and affert the laws, to control the proud, to protect the poor, and to exercise juffice and mercy within the extent of his jurifdiction. In thefe useful functions he was affifted by three learned ftrangers; the two collaterals, and the judge of criminal appeals: their frequent trials of robberies, rapes, and murders, are attefted by the laws; and the weaknefs of these laws connives at the licentiousnefs of private feuds and armed affociations for mutual defence. But the fenator was confined to the administration of justice : the Capitol, the treafury, and the government of the city and its territory were entrufted to the three confervators, who were changed four times in each year : the militia of the thirteen regions affembled under the banners of their respective chiefs, or caporioni; and the first of these was diftinguished by the name and dignity of the prior. The popular legiflature confifted of the fecret and the common councils of the Romans. The former was composed of the magistrates and their immediate predeceffors, with fome fifcal and legal officers, and three classes of thirteen, twenty-fix, and forty, counfellors; amounting in the whole to about one hundred and twenty perfons. In the common council all male citizens had a right to vote; and the value of their privilege was enhanced by the care with which any foreigners were prevented from ufurping the title and character of Romans. The tumult of a democracy was checked by wife and jealous precautions: except the magiftrates, none could propofe a queftion; none were permitted to speak, except from an open pulpit or tribunal; all diforderly acclamations were suppressed; the fense of the majority

VOL. VI.

C H A P. majority was decided by a fecret ballot; and their decrees were promulgated in the venerable name of the Roman fenate and people. -----It would not be eafy to affign a period in which this theory of government has been reduced to accurate and conftant practice, fince the establishment of order has been gradually connected with the decay of liberty. But in the year one thousand five hundred and eighty, the ancient flatutes were collected, methodifed in three books, and adapted to prefent ufe, under the pontificate, and with the approbation, of Gregory the thirteenth<sup>83</sup>: this civil and criminal code is the modern law of the city; and, if the popular affemblies have been abolished, a foreign fenator, with the three confervators, ftill refides in the palace of the Capitol 84. The policy of the Cæfars has been repeated by the popes; and the bishop of Rome affected to maintain the form of a republic, while he reigned with the abfolute powers of a temporal, as well as fpiritual, monarch.

Confpiracy of Porcaro, A. D. 1453, January 9.

It is an obvious truth, that the times must be fuited to extraordinary characters, and that the genius of Cromwell or Retz might now expire in obfcurity. The political enthufiafm of Rienzi had exalted him to a throne; the fame enthuliafm, in the next century, conducted his imitator to the gallows. The birth of Stephen Porcaro was noble, his reputation fpotlefs; his tongue was armed with eloquence, his mind was enlightened with learning; and he afpired, beyond the aim of vulgar ambition, to free his country and immortalife his name. The dominion of priefts is most odious to a liberal fpirit : every fcruple was removed by the recent knowledge of the fable and forgery of Conftantine's donation; Petrarch was now the oracle of the Italians; and as often as Porcaro revolved the ode

83 Statuta almæ Urbis Romæ Authoritate the rugged cruft of freedom and barbarifm. S. D. N. Gregorii XIII. Pont. Max. a Senatů Populoque Rom. reformata et edita. Romæ, 1580, in folio. The obfolete, repugnant statutes of antiquity, were confounded in five books, and Lucas Pætus, a lawyer and antiquarian, was appointed to act as the modern Tribonian. Yet I regret the old code, with 84 In my time (1765), and in M. Grofley's (Observations fur l'Italie, tom. ii. p. 361.), the fenator of Rome was M. Bielke, a noble Swede, and a profelyte to the Catholic faith. The pope's right to appoint the fenator and the confervator is implied, rather than affirmed, in the Statutes. which which defcribes the patriot and hero of Rome, he applied to himfelf C H A P. the visions of the prophetic bard. His first trial of the popular feelings was at the funeral of Eugenius the fourth : in an elaborate fpeech he called the Romans to liberty and arms; and they liftened with apparent pleafure, till Porcaro was interrupted and anfwered by a grave advocate, who pleaded for the church and flate. By every law the feditious orator was guilty of treafon; but the benevolence of the new pontiff, who viewed his character with pity and efteem, attempted by an honourable office to convert the patriot into a friend. The inflexible Roman returned from Anagni with an encrease of reputation and zeal; and, on the first opportunity, the games of the place Navona, he tried to inflame the cafual difpute of fome boys and mechanics into a general rifing of the people. Yet the humane Nicholas was still averfe to accept the forfeit of his life; and the traitor was removed from the fcene of temptation to Bologna, with a liberal allowance for his fupport, and the eafy obligation of prefenting himfelf each day before the governor of the city. But Porcaro had learned from the younger Brutus, that with tyrants no faith or gratitude fhould be obferved : the exile declaimed against the arbitrary fentence; a party and a confpiracy was gradually formed; his nephew, a daring youth, affembled a band of volunteers; and on the appointed evening a feaft was prepared at his house for the friends of the republic. Their leader, who had escaped from Bologna, appeared among them in a robe of purple and gold : his voice, his countenance, his geftures, befpoke the man who had devoted his life or death to the glorious caufe. In a ftudied oration, he expatiated on the motives and the means of their enterprife : the name and liberties of Rome ; the floth and pride of their ecclefiaftical tyrants; the active or paffive confent of their fellowcitizens; three hundred foldiers, and four hundred exiles, long exercifed in arms or in wrongs; the licence of revenge to edge their fwords, and a million of ducats to reward their victory. It would be

610

LXX.

4I2

612

LXX.

C H A P. be eafy (he faid), on the next day, the festival of the Epiphany, to feize the pope and his cardinals before the doors, or at the altar, of St. Peter's; to lead them in chains under the walls of St. Angelo; to extort by the threat of their inftant death a furrender of the caffle; to afcend the vacant Capitol; to ring the alarm-bell; and to reftore in a popular affembly the ancient republic of Rome. While he triumphed, he was already betrayed. The fenator, with a ftrong guard, invefted the houfe : the nephew of Porcaro cut his way through the crowd; but the unfortunate Stephen was drawn from a cheft, lamenting that his enemies had anticipated by three hours the execution of his defign. After fuch manifest and repeated guilt, even the mercy of Nicholas was filent. Porcaro, and nine of his accomplices, were hanged without the benefit of the facraments; and amidft the fears and invectives of the papal court, the Romans pitied, and almost applauded, these martyrs of their country<sup>85</sup>. But their applaufe was mute, their pity ineffectual, their liberty for ever extinct; and, if they have fince rifen in a vacancy of the throne or a fcarcity of bread, fuch accidental tumults may be found in the bofom of the moft abject fervitude.

Last diforders of the nobles of Rome.

But the independence of the nobles, which was fomented by difcord, furvived the freedom of the commons, which must be founded in union. A privilege of rapine and oppreffion was long maintained by the barons of Rome; their houles were a fortrefs and a fanctuary: and the ferocious train of banditti and criminals whom they protected from the law, repaid the hospitality with the fervice of their fwords and daggers. The private intereft of the pontiffs, or their nephews, fometimes involved them in these domestic feuds.

rative of Machiavel (Istoria Fiorentina, 1. vi. ments of the courtier and citizen. Facinus Opere, tom. i. p. 210, 211. edit. Londra, prosecto quo .... neque periculo horribilius, 1747, in 410), the Porcarian confpiracy is neque audacia detestabilius, neque crudelirelated in the Diary of Stephen Infessura tate tetrius, a quoquam perditifimo uspiam (Rer. Ital. tom. iii. P. ii. p. 1134, 1135.), excogitatum fit .... Perdette la vita quell' and in a separate tract by Leo Baptista Al- huomo da bene, e amatore dello bene et liberti (Rer. Ital. tom. xxv. p. 609-614.). bertà di Roma.

85 Befides the curious though concife nar- It is amufing to compare the ftyle and fenti-

Under

Under the reign of Sixtus the fourth, Rome was diffracted by the C H A P. battles and fieges of the rival houses: after the conflagration of his palace, the protonotary Colonna was tortured and beheaded; and Savelli, his captive friend, was murdered on the fpot, for refufing to join in the acclamations of the victorious Urfini ". But the popes no longer trembled in the Vatican : they had ftrength to command, if they had refolution to claim, the obedience of their fubjects; and the ftrangers, who observed these partial diforders, admired the eafy taxes and wife administration of the ecclefiastical fate ".

The fpiritual thunders of the Vatican depend on the force of The popes opinion : and, if that opinion be supplanted by reason or passion, absolute dothe found may idly wafte itfelf in the air ; and the helples prieft is Rome, exposed to the brutal violence of a noble or a plebeian adversary. A. D. 1500, But after their return from Avignon, the keys of St. Peter were guarded by the fword of St. Paul. Rome was commanded by an impregnable citadel: the use of cannon is a powerful engine against popular feditions : a regular force of cavalry and infantry was enlifted under the banners of the pope : his ample revenues fupplied the refources of war; and, from the extent of his domain, he could bring down on a rebellious city an army of hoftile neighbours and loyal fubjects**. Since the union of the dutchies of Ferrara and mais très souvent en advient de grands et. cruels meurtres et pilleries.

<sup>26</sup> The diforders of Rome, which were et feroient toujours bien conduits (car toumuch inflamed by the partiality of Sixtus IV. jours les papes font fages et bien confeillés); are exposed in the Diaries of two spectators, Stephen Infessura, and an anonymous citizen. See the troubles of the years 1484, and the death of the protonotary Colonna, in tom. iii. P. ii. p. 1083. 1158.

87 Est toute la terre de l'eglise troublée pour cette partialité (des Colonnes et des Urfins), come nous dirions Luce et Grammont, ou en Hollande Houc et Caballan; et quand ce ne feroit ce differend la terre de l'eglife feroit la plus heureuse habitation pour les fujets, qui foit dans tout le monde (car ils ne payent ni tailles ni gucres autres autres chofes), must have gained fome nominal encreafe.

88 By the economy of Sixtus V. the revenue of the ecclefiaftical flate was raifed to two millions and a half of Roman crowns (Vita, tom. ii. p. 291-296.); and fo regular was the military establishment, that in one month Clement VIII. could invade the duchy of Ferrara with three thousand horse and twenty thousand foot (tom. iii. p. 64.). Since that time (A. D. 1597.), the papal arms are happily rufted; but the revenue

Urbino,

acquire the minion of

LXX.

C H A P. Urbino, the ecclefiaftical flate extends from the Mediterranean to LXX. the Adriatic, and from the confines of Naples to the banks of the ----Po; and as early as the fixteenth century, the greater part of that fpacious and fruitful country acknowledged the lawful claims and temporal fovereignty of the Roman pontiffs. Their claims were readily deduced from the genuine, or fabulous, donations of the darker ages: the fucceffive fteps of their final fettlement would engage us too far in the transactions of Italy, and even of Europe; the crimes of Alexander the fixth, the martial operations of Julius the fecond, and the liberal policy of Leo the tenth, a theme which has been adorned by the pens of the nobleft historians of the times<sup>89</sup>. In the first period of their conquests, till the expedition of Charles the eighth, the popes might fuccefsfully wreftle with the adjacent princes and states, whole military force was equal, or inferior, to their own. But as foon as the monarchs of France, Germany, and Spain, contended with gigantic arms for the dominion of Italy, they fupplied with art the deficiency of ftrength; and concealed, in a labyrinth of wars and treaties, their afpiring views, and the immortal hope of chacing the Barbarians beyond the Alps. The nice balance of the Vatican was often fubverted by the foldiers of the North and Weft, who were united under the ftandard of Charles the fifth : the feeble and fluctuating policy of Clement the feventh exposed his perfon and dominions to the conqueror; and Rome was abandoned feven months to a lawlefs army, more cruel and rapacious than the Goths and Vandals 5°. After this fevere leffon, the popes contracted their ambition, which was almost fatisfied, refumed the character of a common parent, and abstained from all offenfive hostilities,

> "9 More efpecially by Guicciardini and the prize with Italy herfelf. Machiavel; in the general hiftory of the former, in the Florentine hiftory, the Prince, and the political discourses of the latter. jects of Charles V. (vol. iii. p. 242-244.); Thefe, with their worthy fucceffors, Fra-Paolo and Davila, were justly effeemed the tar conquests, I indulged with the less scruple, first historians of modern languages, till, in as I could fearcely hope to reach the concluthe prefent age, Scotland arole, to dispute fion of my work.

90 In the hiftory of the Gothic fiege, I have compared the Barbarians with the fuban anticipation, which, like that of the Tar-except

except in an hafty quarrel, when the vicar of Chrift and the Turkifh C H A P. fultan were armed at the fame time against the kingdom of Naples". The French and Germans at length withdrew from the field of battle : Milan, Naples, Sicily, Sardinia, and the fea-coaft of Tuscany, were firmly possessed by the Spaniards; and it became their interest to maintain the peace and dependence of Italy, which continued almost without disturbance from the middle of the fixteenth to the opening of the eighteenth century. The Vatican was fwayed and protected by the religious policy of the Catholic king: his prejudice and interest disposed him in every dispute to support the prince against the people; and instead of the encouragement, the aid, and the afylum, which they obtained from the adjacent states, the friends of liberty, or the enemies of law, were enclosed on all fides within the iron circle of defpotifm. The long habits of obedience and education fubdued the turbulent fpirit of the nobles and commons of Rome. The barons forgot the arms and factions of their anceftors, and infenfibly became the fervants of luxury and government. Instead of maintaining a crowd of tenants and followers, the produce of their effates was confumed in the private expences, which multiply the pleafures, and diminish the power, of the lord 92. The Colonna and Urfini vied with each other in the decoration of their palaces and chapels; and their antique fplendour was rivalled or furpaffed by the fudden opulence of the papal families. In Rome the voice of freedom and difcord is no longer heard ; and, inftead of the foaming torrent, a fmooth and ftagnant lake reflects the image of idlenefs and fervitude.

92 This gradual change of manners and expence, is admirably explained by Dr. Adam Smith (Wealth of Nations, vol. i. p. 495-504.), who proves, perhaps too feverely,

A Chriftian,

615

<sup>94</sup> The ambitious and feeble hoftilities of decently applied to protect his defeat. the Caraffa pope, Paul IV. may be feen in Thuanus (I. xvi-xviii.) and Giannone (tom. iv. p. 149-163.). Those Catholic bigots, Philip II. and the duke of Alva, prefumed to feparate the Roman prince from that the most falutary effects have flowed the vicar of Chrift: yet the holy character, from the meanest and most felfish caufes. which would have fanctified his victory, was

A Chriftian, a philosopher ", and a patriot, will be equally fcan-CHAP. dalized by the temporal kingdom of the clergy; and the local majefty of Rome, the remembrance of her confuls and triumphs, may feem to embitter the fenfe, and aggravate the fhame, of her flavery. If we calmly weigh the merits and defects of the ecclefiaftical government, it may be praifed in its prefent flate as a mild, decent, and tranquil fystem, exempt from the dangers of a minority, the fallies of youth, the expences of luxury, and the calamities of war. But thefe advantages are overbalanced by a frequent, perhaps a feptennial, election of a fovereign, who is feldom a native of the country: the reign of a young statesman of threefcore, in the decline of his life and abilities, without hope to accomplish, and without children to inherit, the labours of his transitory reign. The fuccessful candidate is drawn from the church, and even the convent; from the mode of education and life the most adverse to reason, humanity, and freedom. In the trammels of fervile faith, he has learned to believe becaufe it is abfurd, to revere all that is contemptible, and to defpife whatever might deferve the efteem of a rational being; to punish error as a crime, to reward mortification and celibacy, as the first of virtues; to place the faints of the kalendar<sup>94</sup> above the heroes of Rome and the fages of Athens; and to confider the millal, or the crucifix, as more ufeful inftruments than the plough or the loom. In the office of nuncio, or the rank of cardinal, he may acquire fome knowledge of the world, but the primitive flain will adhere to his mind and manners; from fludy and experience he may fufpect the mystery of his profession; but the facerdotal artist will imbibe fome portion of the bigotry which he inculcates. The > 93 Mr. Hume (Hift. of England, vol. i. p. 389.) too haftily concludes, that if the civil and ecclefiaftical powers be united in the fame perfon, it is of little moment whether he be styled prince or prelate, fince the temporal character will always predominate.

94 A protestant may difdain the unworthy preference of St. Francisor St. Dominic, but he will not rashly condemn the zeal or judgment of Sixtus V. who placed the flatues of the apofiles, St. Peter and St. Paul, on the vacant columns of Trajan and Antonine.

genius

616

LXX. The ecclefiaffical government.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

genius of Sixtus the fifth 95 burft from the gloom of a Francifcan C H A F. cloifter. In a reign of five years, he exterminated the outlaws and banditti, abolished the profane fanctuaries of Rome 96, formed a naval and military force, reftored and emulated the monuments of antiquity, and after a liberal use and large encrease of the revenue, left five millions of crowns in the caftle of St. Angelo, But his juffice was fullied with eruelty, his activity was prompted by the ambition of conquest; after his decease, the abuses revived; the treasure was diffipated; he entailed on pofterity thirty-five new taxes and the venality of offices; and, after his death, his ftatue was demolifhed by an ungrateful, or an injured, people 97. The wild and original character of Sixtus the fifth ftands alone in the feries of the pontiffs: the maxims and effects of their temporal government may be collected from the politive and comparative view of the arts and philosophy, the agriculture and trade, the wealth and population, of the ecclefiaftical flate. For myfelf, it is my wifh to depart in charity with all mankind; nor 95 A wandering Italian, Gregorio Leti, has given the Vita di Sisto-Quinto (Amstel. 1721, 3 vols. in 12mo), a copious and amufing work, but which does not command our abfolute confidence. Yet the character of the man, and the principal facts, are fupported by the Annals of Spondanus and Muratori (A. D. 1585-1590), and the contemporary hiftory of the great Thuanus (l. lxxxii. c. 1, 2. l. lxxxiv. c. 10. 1. c. c. S.).

96 Thefe privileged places, the quartieri or franchifes, were adopted from the Roman nobles by the foreign ministers. Julius II. had once abolished the abominandum et detestandum franchitiarum hujusmodi nomen; and after Sixtus V. they again revived. I cannot difcern either the justice or magnanimity of Louis XIV. who in 1687 fent his ambaffador, the marquis de Lavardin, to Rome, with an armed force of a thousand officers, guards, and domeftics, to maintain this iniquitous claim, and infult pope Innocent XI. in the heart of his capital (Vita di Sifto V. tom. iii. p. 260-278. Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. xv. p. 494-496. and Voltaire, Siecle de Louis XIV. tom. ii. c. 14. p. 58, 59.).

VOL. VI.

97 This outrage produced a decree, which was inferibed on marble, and placed in the Capitol. It is expressed in a style of manly fimplicity and freedom : Si quis, five privatus, five magistratum gerens de collocanda vivo pontifici statuâ mentionem facere ausit, legitimo S. P. Q. R. decreto in perpetuum infamis et publicorum munerum expers efto. MDXC. menfe Augusto (Vita di Sisto V. tom. iii. p. 469.). I believe that this decree is still observed, and I know that every monarch who deferves a statue, should himself impole the prohibition.

LXX. Sixtus V. A. D. 1585-1590.

4 K

am

LXX.

C H A P. am I willing, in these last moments, to offend even the pope and clergy of Rome 98.

> 98 The histories of the church, Italy, and Chriftendom, have contributed to the chapter which I now conclude. In the original Lives of the Popes, we often difcover the city and republic of Rome; and the events of the xivth and xvth centuries are preferved in the rude and domefic chronicles which I have carefully infpected, and fhall recapitulate in the order of time.

- 1. Monaldeschi (Ludovici Boncomitis) Fragmenta Annalium Roman. A. D. 1328, in the Scriptores Rerum Italicarum of Muratori, tom. xii. p. 525. N. B. The credit of this fragment is fomewhat hurt by a fingular interpolation, in which the author relates his own death at the age of 115 years.
- 2. Fragmenta Hiftoriæ Romanæ (vulgo Thomas Fortifioccæ), in Romana Dialecto vulgari (A. D. 1327-1354, in Muratori, Antiquitat. medii Ævi Italiæ, tom. iii. p. 247-548.): the authentic ground-work of the hiftory of Rienzi.
- 3. Delphini (Gentilis) Diarium Romanum (A. D. 1370-1410), in the Rerum Italicarum, tom. iii. P. ii. p. 846.
- A. Antonii (Petri) Diarium Rom. (A. D. 1404-1417 ), tom. xxiv. p. 969.
- 5. Petroni (Pauli) Miscellanea Historica Romana (A. D. 1433-1446), tom. xxiv. p. 1101.
- 6. Volaterrani (Jacob.) Diarium Rom. (A.D. 1472-1484), tom. xxiii. p. 81.
- 7. Anonymi Diarium Urbis Romæ (A.D. 1481-1492), tom. iii. P. ii. p. 1069.
- 8. Infeffuræ (Stephani) Diarium Romanum (A. D. 1294, or 1378-1494.), tom. iii. P. ii. p. 1109.
- 9. Hiftoria Arcana Alexandri VI. five Excerpta ex Diario Joh. Burcardi (A. D. 1492-1503), edita a Godefr. Gulielm. Leibnizio, Hanover, 1697, in 4to. The large and valuable Journal of Burcard might be completed from the MSS. in different libraries of Italy and France (M. de Foncemagne, in the Memoires de l'Acad. des Infcript. tom. xvii. p. 597 -606.).

Except the laft, all thefe fragments and diaries are inferted in the Collections of Muratori, my guide and mafter in the hiftory of Italy. His country, and the public, are indebted to him for the following works on that fubject: 1. Rerum Italicarum Scriptores (A. D. 500-1500), quorum potisima pars nune primum in lucem prodit, &c. xxviii vols. in folio, Milan, 1723-1738. 1751. A volume of chronological and alphabetical tables is still wanting as a key to this great work, which is yet in a diforderly and defective state. 2. Antiquitates Italiæ medii Ævi, vi vols. in folio, Milan, 1738-1743, in lxxv curious differtations on the manners, government, religion, &c. of the Italians of the darker ages, with a large fupplement of charters, chronicles, &c. 3. Differtioni fopra le Antiquita Italiane, iii vols. in 4to, Milano, 1751, a free version by the author, which may be quoted with the fame confidence as the Latin text of the Antiquities. 4. Annali d'Italia, xviii vols. in octavo, Milan, 1753-1756, a dry, though accurate and useful, abridgement of the history of Italy from the birth of Chrift to the middle of the xviiith century. 5. Dell' Antichita Estense ed Italiane, ii vols. in folio, Modena, 1717. 1740. In the history of this illustrious race, the parent of our Brunfwick kings, the critic is not feduced by the loyalty or gratitude of the fubject. In all his works, Muratori approves himfelf a diligent and laborious writer, who afpires above the prejudices of a Catholic prieft. He was born in the year 1672, and died in the year 1750, after paffing near fixty years in the libraries of Milan and Modena (Vita del Proposto Ludovico Antonio Muratori, by his nephew and fucceffor Gian. Francesco Soli Muratori, Venezia, 1756, in 4to).

618

CHAP. LXXI.

Prospect of the Ruins of Rome in the Fifteenth Century. -Four Causes of Decay and Destruction.-Example of the Colifeum.-Renovation of the City.-Conclusion of the whole Work.

TN the last days of pope Eugenius the fourth, two of his fervants, C H A P. L the learned Poggius' and a friend, afcended the Capitoline hill; repofed themfelves among the ruins of columns and temples; and viewed from that commanding fpot the wide and various profpect of defolation ?. The place and the object gave ample fcope for moralifing on the viciffitudes of fortune, which fpares neither man nor the proudeft of his works, which buries empires and cities in a common grave; and it was agreed, that in proportion to her former greatness, the fall of Rome was the more awful and deplorable. " Her primæval state, fuch as she might appear in a remote age, " when Evander entertained the stranger of Troy', has been de-" lineated by the fancy of Virgil. This Tarpeian rock was then a " favage and folitary thicket : in the time of the poet, it was " crowned with the golden roofs of a temple ; the temple is over-" thrown, the gold has been pillaged, the wheel of fortune has ac-mentioned the age, character, and writings of Poggius; and particularly noticed the date of this elegant moral lecture on the varieties of fortune.

<sup>2</sup> Confedimus in ipfis Tarpeiæ arcis ruinis, pone ingens portæ cujusdam, ut puto, templi, early sudies allow us to fympathise in the marmoreum limen, plurimasque passim con- feelings of a Roman.

* I have already (not. 50, 51. on chap. 65.) fractas columnas, unde magna ex parte prospectus urbis patet (p. 5.).

<sup>3</sup> Æneid viii. 97-369. This ancient picture, fo artfully introduced, and fo exquifitely finished, must have been highly interefting to an inhabitant of Rome; and our

4 K 2

" complifhed

LXXI. View and discourse of Poggius from the Capitoline hill, A. D. 1430.

C H A P. " complifhed her revolution, and the facred ground is again dif-LXXI. " figured with thorns and brambles. The hill of the Capitol, on -----" which we fit, was formerly the head of the Roman empire, the " citadel of the earth, the terror of kings; illustrated by the foot-" fteps of fo many triumphs, enriched with the fpoils and tributes " of fo many nations. This fpectacle of the world, how is it " fallen ! how changed ! how defaced ! the path of victory is obli-" terated by vines, and the benches of the fenators are concealed " by a dunghill. Caft your eyes on the Palatine hill, and feek " among the fhapelefs and enormous fragments, the marble theatre, " the obelifks, the coloffal flatues, the porticoes of Nero's palace : " furvey the other hills of the city, the vacant fpace is interrupted " only by ruins and gardens. The forum of the Roman people, " where they affembled to enact their laws and elect their magif-" trates, is now enclosed for the cultivation of pot-herbs, or thrown " open for the reception of fwine and buffaloes. The public and " private edifices, that were founded for eternity, lie proftrate, " naked, and broken, like the limbs of a mighty giant; and the " ruin is the more visible, from the stupendous relics that have ", furvived the injuries of time and fortune "."

His defcription of the ruins. These relics are minutely described by Poggius, one of the first who raifed his eyes from the monuments of legendary, to those of classic, superflittion<sup>5</sup>. I. Besides a bridge, an arch, a sepulchre, and the pyramid of Cestius; he could discern, of the age of the republic, a double row of vaults in the falt-office of the Capitol, which were inscribed with the name and munificence of Catulus. 2. Eleven temples were visible in some degree, from the perfect form of the Pantheon, to the three arches and a marble column of the temple of peace, which Vespasian crected after the civil wars and the

Jewish

620

* Capitolium adeo....immutatum ut vineæ dera....cæteros colles perluftra omnia vacua in fenatorum fubfellia fuccefferint, flercorum ædificiis, ruinis vineifque oppleta confpicies ac purgamentorum receptaculum factum. (Poggius de Varietat. Fortunæ, p. 21.). Refpice ad Palatinum montem....vafta ru- <sup>5</sup> See Poggius, p. 8-22.

Jewish triumph. 3. Of the number, which he rashly defines, of C H A P. feven thermæ or public baths, none were fufficiently entire to reprefent the use and distribution of the feveral parts; but those of Diocletian and Antoninus Caracalla still retained the titles of the founders, and aftonished the curious spectator, who, in observing their folidity and extent, the variety of marbles, the fize and multitude of the columns, compared the labour and expence with the ufe and importance. Of the baths of Conftantine, of Alexander, of Domitian, or rather of Titus, fome veftige might yet be found. 4. The triumphal arches of Titus, Severus, and Conftantine, were entire, both the ftructure and the inferiptions; a falling fragment was honoured with the name of Trajan; and two arches, then extant, in the Flaminian way, have been ascribed to the baser memory of Faustina and Gallienus. 5. After the wonder of the Colifeum, Poggius might have overlooked a finall amphitheatre of brick, moft probably for the use of the prætorian camp: the theatres of Marcellus and Pompey were occupied in a great measure by public and private buildings; and in the Circus, Agonalis and Maximus, little more than the fituation and the form could be inveftigated. 6. The columns of Trajan and Antonine were still erect; but the Egyptian obelisks were broken or buried. A people of gods and heroes, the workmanship of art, was reduced to one equestrian figure of gilt brafs, and to five marble flatues, of which the most confpicuous were the two horfes of Phidias and Praxiteles. 7. The two maufoleums or fepulchres of Augustus and Hadrian could not totally be loft ; but the former was only vilible as a mound of earth ; and the latter, the caftle of St. Angelo, had acquired the name and appearance of a modern fortrefs. With the addition of fome feparate and nameless columns, such were the remains of the ancient city: for the marks of a more recent ftructure might be detected in the walls, which formed a circumference of ten miles, included three hundred and feventy-nine turrets, and opened into the country by thirteen gates. 8

LXXI.

This

C H A P. LXXI. Gradual decay of Rome.

This mclancholy picture was drawn above nine hundred years after the fall of the Western empire, and even of the Gothic kingdom of Italy. A long period of diffress and anarchy, in which empire, and arts, and riches, had migrated from the banks of the Tyber, was incapable of reftoring or adorning the city; and, as all that is human must retrograde if it do not advance, every fucceffive age muft have haftened the ruin of the works of antiquity. To measure the progress of decay, and to ascertain at each æra the state of each edifice, would be an endlefs and a ufelefs labour, and I fhall content myfelf with two obfervations which will introduce a fhort enquiry into the general caufes and effects. I. Two hundred years before the eloquent complaint of Poggius, an anonymous writer composed a description of Rome ". His ignorance may repeat the fame objects under strange and fabulous names. Yet this barbarous topographer had eyes and ears, he could obferve the visible remains, he could liften to the tradition of the people, and he diftinctly enumerates feven theatres, eleven baths, twelve arches, and eighteen palaces, of which many had difappeared before the time of Poggius. It is apparent, that many flately monuments of antiquity furvived till a late period ', and that the principles of deftruction acted with vigorous and encreasing energy in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. 2. The fame reflection must be applied to the three laft ages; and we fhould vainly feek the Septizonium of Severus*, which is celebrated by Petrarch and the antiquarians of

<sup>6</sup> Liber de Mirabilibus Romæ, ex Registro bitur qui Romanis antiquitatibus indagandis icolai Cardinalis de Arragoniâ, in Biblio- operam navabit (p. 283.).

the

&lt;sup>6</sup> Liber de Mirabilibus Romæ, ex Regifto Nicolai Cardinalis de Arragonià, in Bibliothecà St. Ifidori Armario IV. N° 69. This treatife, with fome fhort but pertinent notes, has been publihed by Montfaucon (Diarium Italicum, p. 283-301.), who thus delivers his own critical opinion : Scriptor xilimi circiter fæculi, ut ibidem notatur; antiquariæ rei imperitus, et, ut ab illo ævo, nugis et anilibus fabellis refertus: fed, quia monumenta quæ iis temporibus Romæ fupererant pro modulo recenfet, non parum inde lucis mutua-

&lt;sup>7</sup> The Pere Mabillon (Analecta, tom. iv. p. 502.) has published an anonymous pilgrim of the ixth century, who, in his visit round the churches and holy places of Rome, touches on feveral buildings, especially porticoes, which had disappeared before the xilitth century.

&lt;sup>8</sup> On the Septizonium, fee the Memoires fur Petrarque (tom. i. p. 325.), Donatus (p. 338.), and Nardini (p. 117. 414.).

the fixteenth century. While the Roman edifices were still entire, C H A P. the first blows, however weighty and impetuous, were refisted by the folidity of the mais and the harmony of parts; but the flighteft touch would precipitate the fragments of arches and columns, that already nodded to their fall.

After a diligent enquiry, I can difcern four principal caufes of the Four caufes ruin of Rome, which continued to operate in a period of more tion: than a thousand years. I. The injuries of time and nature. II. The hoftile attacks of the Barbarians and Chriftians. III. The use and abufe of the materials. And, IV. The domestic quarrels of the Romans.

I. The art of man is able to conftruct monuments far more per- I. The injumanent than the narrow fpan of his own existence : yet these mo- ture; numents, like himfelf, are perishable and frail; and in the boundlefs annals of time, his life and his labours must equally be meafured as a fleeting moment. Of a fimple and folid edifice, it is not eafy however to circumfcribe the duration. As the wonders of ancient days, the pyramids ° attracted the curiofity of the ancients : an hundred generations, the leaves of autumn ", have dropt into the grave; and after the fall of the Pharaohs and Ptolemies, the Cæfars and caliphs, the fame pyramids ftand creft and unfhaken above the floods of the Nile. A complex figure of various and minute parts is more acceffible to injury and decay; and the filent lapfe of time hurricanes is often accelerated by hurricanes and earthquakes, by fires and in- and earthquakes; undations. The air and earth have doubtlefs been fhaken; and the lofty turrets of Rome have tottered from their foundations : but the feven hills do not appear to be placed on the great cavities of the globe; nor has the city, in any age, been exposed to the convul-

9 The age of the pyramids is remote and dynasties would fix them about 2000 years unknown, fince Diodorus Siculus (tom. i. I. i. c. 44. p. 72.) is unable to decide wheyears before the clxxxth Olympiad. Sir John Marsham's contracted scale of the Egyptian

fions

622 of destruc-

ries of na-

LXXI.

before Chrift (Canon. Chronicus, p. 47.). <sup>10</sup> See the speech of Glaucus in the Iliad ther they were confiructed 1000, or 3400, (Z. 146.). This natural but melancholy image is familiar to Homer.

624

LXXI. ----fires;

C H A P. fions of nature, which, in the climate of Antioch, Lifbon, or Lima. have crumbled in a few moments the works of ages into duft. Fire is the most powerful agent of life and death: the rapid mischief may be kindled and propagated by the industry or negligence of mankind; and every period of the Roman annals is marked by the repetition of fimilar calamities. A memorable conflagration, the guilt or misfortune of Nero's reign, continued, though with unequal fury, either fix, or nine days". Innumerable buildings, crowded in clofe and crooked ftreets, fupplied perpetual fewel for the flames; and when they ceafed, four only of the fourteen regions were left entire ; three were totally deftroyed, and feven were deformed by the relics of fmoking and lacerated edifices 12. In the full meridian of empire, the metropolis arofe with fresh beauty from her ashes; yet the memory of the old deplored their irreparable loffes, the arts of Greece, the trophies of victory, the monuments of primitive or fabulous antiquity. In the days of diffrefs and anarchy, every wound is mortal, every fall irretrievable; nor can the damage be reftored either by the public care of government or the activity of private intereft. Yet two caufes may be alleged, which render the calamity of fire more deftructive to a flourishing than a decayed city. I. The more combustible materials of brick, timber, and metals, are first melted or confumed; but the flames may play without injury or effect on the naked walls, and maffy arches, that have been defpoiled of their ornaments. 2. It is among the common and plebeian habitations, that a mifchievous fpark is most easily blown to a 12 Quippe in regiones quatuordecim Roma dividitur, quarum quatuor integræ manebant, tres solo tenus dejéctæ: septem reliquis pauca tectorum vestigia supererant, lacera et femiusta. Among the old relics that were irreparably lost, Tacitus enumerates the temple of the moon of Servius Tullius; the fane and altar confectated by Evander præfenti Herculi; the temple of Jupiter Stator, a vow of Romulus; the palace of Numa; the temple of Vesta cum Penatibus populi Romani. He then deplores the opes tot victoriis quæsitæ et Græcarum artium decora .... multa quæ seniores meminerant, quæ reparari nequibant (Annal. xv. 40, 41.).

confla-

&quot; The learning and criticifm of M. des Vignoles (Hiftoire Critique de la Republique des Lettres, tom. vili. p. 74-118. ix. p. 172 -187.) dates the fire of Rome from A. D. 64, July 19, and the fublequent perfecution of the Christians from November 15, of the fame year.

conflagration; but as foon as they are devoured, the greater edifices C H A P. which have refifted or efcaped, are left as fo many illands in a ftate of folitude and fafety. From her fituation, Rome is exposed to the inundadanger of frequent inundations. Without excepting the Tyber, the rivers that defcend from either fide of the Apennine have a fhort and irregular courfe : a shallow stream in the summer heats ; an impetuous torrent, when it is fwelled in the fpring or winter, by the fall of rain, and the melting of the fnows. When the current is repelled from the fea by adverse winds, when the ordinary bed is inadequate to the weight of waters, they rife above the banks, and overspread, without limits or control, the plains and cities of the adjacent country. Soon after the triumph of the first Punic war, the Tyber was encreafed by unufual rains; and the inundation, furpaffing all former measure of time and place, deftroyed all the buildings that were fituate below the hills of Rome. According to the variety of ground, the fame mifchief was produced by different means; and the edifices were either fwept away by the fudden impulfe, or diffolved and undermined by the long continuance, of the flood". Under the reign of Augustus, the fame calamity was renewed : the lawlefs river overturned the palaces and temples on its banks"; and, after the labours of the emperor in cleanfing and widening the bed that was incumbered with ruins's, the vigilance of his fucceffors was exercifed by fimilar dangers and defigns. The project

*3 A. U. C. 507, repentina fubversio ipsius the calamities of the pagan world. Romæ prævenit triumphum Romanorum .... diversæ ignium aquarumque clades pene abfamfere urbem. Nam Tiberis infolitis auctus imbribus et ultra opinionem, vel diurnitate vel magnitudine redundans, omnia Romæ ædificia io plano pofita delevit. Diverfæ qualitates locorum ad unam convenere perniciem : quoniam et quæ segnior inundatio tenuit madefacta dissolvit, et quæ cursus torrentis invenit impulfa dejecit (Orofius, Hift. 1. iv. c. 11. p. 244. edit. Havercamp). Yet we may observe, that it is the plan and fludy of the Christian apologist, to magnify

VOL. VI.

14 Vidimus flavum Tiberim, retortis

Littore Etrufco violenter undis

Ire dejectum monumenta Regis

Templaque Veftæ. (Horat. Carm. I. 2.) If the palace of Numa, and temple of Vefta, were thrown down in Horace's time, what was confumed of those buildings by Nero's fire could hardly deferve the epithets of vetustifima or incorrupta.

15 Ad coercendas inundationes alveum Tiberis laxavit, ac repurgavit, completum.olim ruderibus, et ædificiorum prolapfionibus coarctatum (Suetonius in Augusto, c. 30.).

4L

LXXI.

of

LXXI.

C H A P. of diverting into new channels the Tyber itfelf, or fome of the dependent ftreams, was long oppofed by fuperflition and local interefts 16; nor did the ufe compensate the toil and coft of the tardy and imperfect execution. The fervitude of rivers is the nobleft and most important victory which man has obtained over the licentiousnefs of nature "; and if fuch were the ravages of the Tyber under a firm and active government, what could oppofe, or who can enumerate, the injuries of the city after the fall of the Weftern empire? A remedy was at length produced by the evil itfelf: the accumulation of rubbish and the earth, that has been washed down from the hills, is fuppofed to have elevated the plain of Rome, fourteen or fifteen feet, perhaps, above the ancient level"; and the modern city is lefs acceffible to the attacks of the river ".

II. The hostile attacks of the Barbarians and Chriftians.

II. The crowd of writers of every nation, who impute the deftruction of the Roman monuments to the Goths and the Christians, have neglected to enquire how far they were animated by an hoftile principle, and how far they poffeffed the means and the leifure to fatiate their enmity. In the preceding volumes of this Hiftory, I have defcribed the triumph of barbarifm and religion; and I can only refume, in a few words, their real or imaginary connection with the ruin of ancient Rome. Our fancy may create, or adopt, a pleafing romance, that the Goths and Vandals fallied from Scandinavia, ardent to avenge the flight of Odin<sup>20</sup>, to break the chains, and 15 Tacitus (Annal. i. 79.) reports the petitions of the different towns of Italy to the fenate against the measure; and we may appland the progrefs of reafon. On a fimilar occasion, local interests would undoubtedly be confulted: but an English house of commons would reject with contempt the arguments of fuperflition, " that nature had affign-" ed to the rivers their proper course, &c."

17 See the Epoques de la Nature of the eloquent and philosophic Buffon. His picture of Guyana in South America, is that of a new and favage land, in which the waters are abandoned to themfelves, without being regulated by human industry (p. 212. 561. quarto edition).

18 In his Travels in Italy, Mr. Addifon (his works, vol. ii. p. 98. Bafkerville's edition) has observed this curious and unquestionable fact.

19 Yet in modern times, the Tyler has fometimes damaged the city; and in the years 1530, 1557, 1598, the Annals of Muratori record three mischievous and memorable in undations(tom.xiv. p.2(8.429.tom.xv. p.99, &c.). 20 I take this opportunity of declaring, that in the course of twelve years I have forgotten, and to chaftife the oppreffors, of mankind ; that they wished to burn the records of claffic literature, and to found their national architesture on the broken members of the Tufcan and Corinthian orders. But in fimple truth, the northern conquerors were neither fufficiently favage, nor fufficiently refined, to entertain fuch afpiring ideas of destruction and revenge. The shepherds of Scythia and Germany had been educated in the armies of the empire, whofe difcipline they acquired, and whofe weaknefs they invaded : with the familiar use of the Latin tongue, they had learned to reverence the name and titles of Rome; and, though incapable of emulating, they were more inclined to admire, than to abolish, the arts and studies of a brighter period. In the transient possession of a rich and unrefifting capital, the foldiers of Alaric and Genferic were flimulated by the paffions of a victorious army; amidit the wanton indulgence of luft or cruelty, portable wealth was the object of their fearch; nor could they derive either pride or pleasure from the unprofitable reflection, that they had battered to the ground the works of the confuls and Cæfars. Their moments were indeed precious; the Goths evacuated Rome on the fixth<sup>21</sup>, the Vandals on the fifteenth, day<sup>22</sup>; and, though it be far more difficult to build than to deftroy, their hafty affault would have made a flight impreffion on the folid piles of antiquity. We may remember, that both Alaric and Genferic affected to fpare the buildings of the city; that they fubfifted in ftrength and beauty under the aufpicious government of Theodoric<sup>23</sup>; and that the momentary refentment of Totila<sup>24</sup> was difarmed by his own temper and the advice of his friends and enemies. From these innocent Barbarians, the reproach may be transferred to the Catholics of Rome. The statues, altars, and houfes, of gotten, or renounced, the flight of Odin from Azoph to Sweden, which I never very ferioufly believed (vol. i. p. 294.). The Goths are apparently Germans: but all beyond Cxfar and Tacitus, is darknefs or fable, in the antiquities of Germany.

om <sup>21</sup> Hiftory of the Decline, &c. vol. iii. p. 246. <sup>22</sup> ______ vol. iii. p. 440. <sup>23</sup> ______ vol. iv. p. 23 <sup>24</sup> ______ vol. iv. p. 289. <sup>293.</sup> 4 L 2 the 627

C H A P. LXXI.

LXXI.

628

C H A P. the dæmons were an abomination in their eyes; and in the abfolute command of the city, they might labour with zeal and perfeverance to eraze the idolatry of their anceftors. The demolition of the temples in the East<sup>25</sup> affords to them an example of conduct, and to us an argument of belief; and it is probable, that a portion of guilt or merit may be imputed with juffice to the Roman profelytes. Yet their abhorrence was confined to the monuments of heathen fuperstition; and the civil structures that were dedicated to the bufinefs or pleafure of fociety might be preferved without injury or fcandal. The change of religion was accomplifhed, not by a popular tumult, but by the decrees of the emperors, of the fenate, and of time. Of the Christian hierarchy, the bishops of Rome were commonly the most prudent and least fanatic: nor can any positive charge be opposed to the meritorious act of faving and converting the majeftic ftructure of the Pantheon 26.

III. The ufe and abufe of the materials.

III. The value of any object that fupplies the wants or pleafures of mankind, is compounded of its fubftance and its form, of the materials and the manufacture. Its price must depend on the number of perfons by whom it may be acquired and ufed; on the extent of the market; and confequently on the eafe or difficulty of remote exportation, according to the nature of the commodity, its local fituation, and the temporary circumftances of the world. The Barbarian conquerors of Rome usurped in a moment the toil and treafure of fucceflive ages; but, except the luxuries of immediate confumption, they must view without defire all that could not be removed from the city in the Gothic waggons or the fleet of the Van-

c. xxviii. p. 79-82.

26 Eodem tempore petiit a Phocate principe templum, quod appellatur Pantheon, in quo fecit ecclefiam Sanctæ Mariæ femper Virginis, et omnium martyrum; in quâ ecclesiæ princeps multa bona obtulit (Anastafius vel potius Liber Pontificalis in Bonifacio IV. in 25 Hiftory of the Decline, &c. vol. iii, Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. iii. P. i. p. 135.). According to the anonymous writer in Montfaucon, the Pantheon had been vowed by Agrippa to Cybele and Neptune, and was dedicated by Boniface IV. on the calends of November to the Virgin, quæ eft mater omnium fanctorum (p. 297, 298.).

dals.

dals<sup>27</sup>. Gold and filver were the first objects of their avarice; as in C H A P. LXXI. every country, and in the fmalleft compais, they reprefent the moft ample command of the industry and possessions of mankind. A vafe or a statue of those precious metals might tempt the vanity of some Barbarian chief; but the groffer multitude, regardlefs of the form, was tenacious only of the fubftance; and the melted ingots might be readily divided and flamped into the current coin of the empire. The lefs active or lefs fortunate robbers were reduced to the bafer plunder of brafs, lead, iron, and copper : whatever had efcaped the Goths and Vandals was pillaged by the Greek tyrants; and the emperor Constans, in his rapacious visit, stripped the bronze tiles from the roof of the Pantheon 28. The edifices of Rome might be confidered as a vaft and various mine ; the first labour of extracting the materials was already performed; the metals were purified and caft; the marbles were hewn and polifhed; and after foreign and domeftic rapine had been fatiated, the remains of the city, could a purchafer have been found, were still venal. The monuments of antiquity had been left naked of their precious ornaments, but the Romans would demolifh with their own hands the arches and walls, if the hope of profit could furpals the coft of the labour and exportation. If Charlemagne had fixed in Italy the feat of the Weftern empire, his genius would have afpired to reftore, rather than to violate, the works of the Cæfars: but policy confined the French monarch to the forefts of Germany; his tafte could be gratified only by deftruction; and the new palace of Aix la Chapelle was decorated with the marbles of 27 Flaminius Vacca (apud Monfaucon, the heirs of the Gothic conquerors. p. 155, 155. His Memoir is likewife printed, pp. 21. at the end of the Roma Antica of civitatis deposuit : fed et ecclesiam B. Mariæ Nardini), and feveral Romans, doctrina graves, were perfuaded that the Goths buried their treasures at Rome, and bequeathed The base and facrilegious Greek had not the fecret marks filiis nepotibulque. He even the poor pretence of plundering an hearelates fome anecdotes to prove, that in then temple; the Pantheon was already a Cahis own time, thefe places were vifited tholic church, and rifled by the Transalpine pilgrims, 28 Omnia quæ erant in ære ad ornatum ad martyres quæ de tegulis æreis cooperta. discooperuit (Anast. in Vitalian. p. 141.).

Ravenna

630

LXXI.

C H A P. Ravenna<sup>29</sup> and Rome<sup>30</sup>. Five hundred years after Charlemagne, a king of Sicily, Robert, the wifeft and moft liberal fovereign of the Land age, was supplied with the fame materials by the easy navigation of the Tyber and the fea; and Petrarch fighs an indignant complaint, that the ancient capital of the world fhould adorn from her own bowels the flothful luxury of Naples<sup>31</sup>. But thefe examples of plunder or purchafe were rare in the darker ages; and the Romans, alone and unenvied, might have applied to their private or public ufe the remaining ftructures of antiquity, if in their prefent form and fituation they had not been useles in a great measure to the city and its inhabitants. The walls ftill defcribed the old circumference, but the city had defcended from the feven hills into the Campus Martius; and fome of the nobleft monuments which had braved the injuries of time were left in a defert, far remote from the habitations of mankind. The palaces of the fenators were no longer adapted to the manners or fortunes of their indigent fucceffors : the > marmora) fee the original grant of pope Adrian I. to Charlemagne (Codex Carolin. epist. lxvii. in Muratori, Script. Ital. tom. iii. P. ii. p. 223.).

3º I shall quote the authentic testimony of the Saxon poet (A. D. 887-899), de Rebus geftis Caroli magni, I. v. 437-440. in the Hiftorians of France (tom. v. p. 180.):

Ad quæ marmoreas præftabat Roma columnas,

Quafdam præcipuas pulchra Ravenna dedit De tam longinquâ poterit regione vetustas.

Illius ornatum Francia feire tibi.

And I shall add, from the Chronicle of Sigebert (Historians of France, tom. v. p. 378.), extruxit etiam Aquifgrani bafilicam plurimæ pulchritudinis, ad cujus structuram a ROMA et Ravenna columnas et marmora devehi fecit.

3' I cannot refuse to transcribe a long paflage of Petrarch (Opp. p. 536, 537. in Epistolà hortatoria ad Nicolaum Laurentium); it is fo frong and full to the point : Nec pudor aut pietas continuit quominus impii spoliata Dei

29 For the spoils of Ravenna (musiva atque templa, occupatas arces, opes publicas regiones urbis, atque honores magiftratuum inter fe divisos; (babeant?) quam una in re, turbulenti ac feditiofi homines et totius reliquæ vitæ confiliis et rationibus discordes, inhumani foederis stupenda focietate convenerant, in pontes et mænia atque immeritos lapides defreirent. Denique post vi vel fenio collapía palatia, quæ quondam ingentes tenuerunt viri, post diruptos arcus triumphales (unde majores horum forfitan corrucrunt), de ipfius vetuflatis ac propriæ impietatis fragminibus vilem questum turpi increimonio captare non puduit. Itaque nunc, heu dolor! heu fcelus indignum! de vestris marmoreis columnis, de liminibus templorum (ad quæ nuper ex orbe toto concurfus devotisfimus fiebat), de imaginibus fepulchrorum fub quibus patrum vestrorum venerabilis civis (cinis?) erat, ut reliquas fileam, defidiosa Neapolis adornatur. Sic paullatim ruinæ ipfæ deficiunt. Yet king Robert was the friend of Petrarch.

ufe

use of baths<sup>32</sup> and porticoes was forgotten : in the fixth century, the C H A P. games of the theatre, amphitheatre, and circus, had been interrupted : fome temples were devoted to the prevailing worfhip; but the Christian churches preferred the holy figure of the crofs; and fashion, or reason, had distributed after a peculiar model the cells and offices of the cloyfter. Under the ecclefiaftical reign, the number of these pious foundations was enormously multiplied; and the city was crowded with forty monafteries of men, twenty of women, and fixty chapters and colleges of canons and priefts 33, who aggravated, inflead of relieving, the depopulation of the tenth century. But if the forms of ancient architecture were difregarded by a people infenfible of their use and beauty, the plentiful materials were applied to every call of neceffity or fuperfitition; till the faireft columns of the Ionic and Corinthian orders, the richeft marbles of Paros and Numidia, were degraded, perhaps to the fupport of a convent or a ftable. The daily havock which is perpetrated by the Turks in the cities of Greece and Afia, may afford a melancholy example; and in the gradual deftruction of the monuments of Rome, Sixtus the fifth may alone be excufed for employing the ftones of the Septizonium in the glorious edifice of St. Peter's 34. A fragment, a ruin, howfoever mangled or profaned, may be viewed with pleafure and regret; but the greater part of the marble was deprived of fubftance, as well as of place and proportion; it was burnt to lime for the purpole of cement. Since the arrival of Poggius, the temple of Concord 35, and many capital ftructures, had vanished from his eyes; and 32 Yet Charlemagne washed and fwam at Aix la Chapelle with an hundred of his courtiers (Eginhart, c. 22. p. 108, 109.), and Muratori defcribes as late as the year $14, the public baths which were built at Spoleto in Italy (Annali, tom. vi. p. 416.).

<sup>33</sup> See the Annals of Italy, A. D. 988. For this and the preceding fact, Muratori himfelf is indebted to the Benedicline hiftory of Pére Mabillon.

34 Vita di Sisto Quinto, da Gregorio Leti, tom. iii. p. 50.

35 Porticus ædis Concordiæ, quam cum primum ad urbem accessi vidi fere integram opere marmoreo admodum specioso: Romani pofimodum ad calcem ædem totam et porticus partem disjectis columnis sunt demoliti (p. 12.). The temple of Concord was therefore not destroyed by a fedition in the xilith century, as I have read in a MS. treatife del" Governo-

THE DECLINE AND FALL

C H A P. and an epigram of the fame age expresses a just and pious fear, that the continuance of this practice would finally annihilate all the monuments of antiquity 36. The finallness of their numbers was the fole check on the demands and depredations of the Romans. The imagination of Petrarch might create the prefence of a mighty people<sup>37</sup>; and I hefitate to believe, that, even in the fourteenth century, they could be reduced to a contemptible lift of thirty-three thousand inhabitants. From that period to the reign of Leo the tenth, if they multiplied to the amount of eighty-five thousand 38, the encreafe of citizens was in fome degree pernicious to the ancient city.

IV. The domeftic quar-rels of the Romans.

IV. I have referved for the laft, the most potent and forcible caufe of destruction, the domestic hostilities of the Romans themselves. Under the dominion of the Greek and French emperors, the peace of the city was diffurbed by accidental, though frequent, feditions: it is from the decline of the latter, from the beginning of the tenth century, that we may date the licentioufness of private war, which 1 violated with impunity the laws of the Code and the Gofpel; without respecting the majesty of the absent fovereign, or the prefence and perfon of the vicar of Chrift. In a dark period of five hundred years, Rome was perpetually afflicted by the fanguinary quarrels of the nobles and the people, the Guelphs and Ghibelines, the Colonna and Urfini; and if much has escaped the knowledge, and much is unworthy of the notice, of hiftory, I have exposed in the two preceding chapters, the caufes and effects of the public diforders. At fuch Governo civile di Rome, lent me formerly at Rome, and afcribed (I believe falfely) to the celebrated Gravina. Poggius likewife affirms, that the fepulchre of Cæcilia Metella was burnt for lime (p. 19, 20.).

36 Composed by Æneas Sylvius, afterwards pope Pius II. and published by Mabillon from a MS. of the queen of Sweden (Mufæum Italicum, tom. i. p. 97.).

Oblectat me, Roma, tuas spectare ruinas;

Ex cujus lapsû gloria prifca patet.

Sed tuus hic populus muris defosia vetuftis

Calcis in obsequium marmora dura coquit Impia tercentum fi fic gens egerit annos Nullum hinc indicium nobilitatis erit.

37 Vagabamur pariter in illa urbe tam magna; que, cum propter spatium vacua videretur, populum habet immensum (Opp. p. 605. Epift. Familiares, ii. 14.).

<sup>38</sup> Thefe states of the population of Rome at different periods, are derived from an ingenious treatife of the phyfician Lancifi, de Romani Cœli Qualitatibus (p. 122.).

a time.

632

a time, when every quarrel was decided by the fword; and none C H A P. could trust their lives or properties to the impotence of law; the powerful citizens were armed for fafety or offence, against the domeffic enemies, whom they feared or hated. Except Venice alone, the fame dangers and defigns were common to all the free republics of Italy; and the nobles usurped the prerogative of fortifying their houses, and erecting ftrong towers 32 that were capable of refifting a fudden attack. The cities were filled with these hoftile edifices; and the example of Lucca, which contained three hundred towers; her law, which confined their height to the measure of fourfcore feet, may be extended with fuitable latitude to the more opulent and populous flates. The first step of the fenator Brancaleone in the eftablishment of peace and justice, was to demolish (as we have already feen) one hundred and forty of the towers of Rome; and, in the laft days of anarchy and difcord, as late as the reign of Martin the fifth, forty-four still stood in one of the thirteen or fourteen regions of the city. To this mischievous purpose, the remains of antiquity were most readily adapted : the temples and arches afforded a broad and folid bafis for the new ftructures of brick and ftone; and we can name the modern turrets that were raifed on the triumphal monuments of Julius Cæfar, Titus, and the Antonines ". With fome flight alterations, a theatre, an amphitheatre, a maufoleum, was transformed into a ftrong and spacious citadel. I need not repeat, that the mole of Adrian has affumed the title and form of the caftle of St. Angelo "; the Septizonium of Severus was capable at Rome, and in other free cities of Italy, may be found in the laborious and entertaining compilation of Muratori, Antiquitates Italiæ medii Ævi, differtat. xxvi. (tom. ii. p. 493-496. of the Latin, tom. i. p. 446. of natorum, turres de Bratis; arcus Antonini, the Italian work).

4º As for inftance, Templum Jani nunc dicitur, turris Centii Frangapanis; et sane Romanorum injuria ..... disturbavit : quod  $_{4}$  M VOL. VI.

39 All the facts that relate to the towers Jano impositæ turris lateritiæ confpicua hodieque vestigia supersont (Montfaucon Diarium Italicum, p. 186.). The anonymous writer (p. 285.) enumerates, arcus Titi, turris Cartularia; Arcus Julii Cæfaris et Seturris de Cosectis, &c.

> 41 Hadriani molem ..... magna ex parte certe

THE DECLINE AND FALL

LXXI.

-----

634

C H A P. capable of ftanding againft a royal army<sup>42</sup>; the fepulchre of Metella has funk under its outworks43; the theatres of Pompey and Marcellus were occupied by the Savelli and Urfini families 44; and the rough fortrefs has been gradually foftened to the fplendour and elegance of an Italian palace. Even the churches were encompassed with arms and bulwarks, and the military engines on the roof of St. Feter's were the terror of the Vatican and the fcandal of the Christian world. Whatever is fortified will be attacked; and whatever is attacked may be deftroyed. Could the Romans have wrefted from the popes the caftle of St. Angelo, they had refolved by a public decree to annihilate that monument of fervitude. Every building of defence was exposed to a fiege; and in every fiege the arts and engines of deftruction were laborioully employed. After the death of Nicholas the fourth, Rome, without a fovereign or a fenate, was abandoned fix months to the fury of civil war. " The houfes," fays a cardinal and poet of the times 45, " were crushed by the weight and velocity of enormous " flones"; the walls were perforated by the ftrokes of the batter-" ing-ram; the towers were involved in fire and fmoke; and the > certe funditus evertiffent, fi eorum manibus pervia, absumptis grandibus faxis, reliqua moles exflicifiet (Poggius de Varietate Fortunes, p. 12.).

> 42 Against the emperor Henry IV. (Muratori, Annali d'Italia, tom. ix. p. 147.).

43 I must copy an important passage of Montfaucon: Turris ingens rotunda .... Cæciliæ Metellæ .... fepulchrum erat, cujus muri tam folidi, ut fpatium perquam minimum intus vacuum fuperfit: et Torre di Bove dicitur, a boum capitibus muro inferiptis. Huic sequiori ævo, tempore intestinorum bellorum, ceu urbecula adjuncta fuit, cujus mœnia et turres etiamnum visuntur; ita ut fepulchrum Metellæ quafi arx oppiduli fuerir. Ferventibus in urbe partibus, cum Urfini atque Columnenses mutuis cladibus perniciem inferrent civitati, in utriusve partis ditionem cederet magni momenti erat (p. 142.).

44 See the testimonies of Donatus, Nardini, and Montfaucon. In the Savelli palace, the remains of the theatre of Marcellus are still great and confpicuous.

45 James cardinal of St. George, ad velumaurcum, in his metrical Life of Pope Celeftin V. (Muratori, Script. Ital. tom. i. P. iii.

p. 621. l. i. c. t. ver. 132, &c.) Hoc dixiste fit eft, Romam caruiste Senatů Menfibus exactis heu fex; belloque vocatum (vocatos) In fcelus, in focios fraternaque vulnera patros: Tormentis jecisfe viros immania faxa; Perfodiffe domus trabibus, feciffe ruinas Ignibus; incenfas turres, obfcurataque fumo Lumina vicino, quo fit fpoliata fupellex.

46 Muratori (Differtazione fopra le Antiquitá Italiane, tom. i. p. 427-431.) finds, that ftone bullets of two or three hundred pounds weight were not uncommon; and they are fometimes computed at xii or xviii cantari of Genoa, each contaro weighing 150 pounds.

" affailants were ftimulated by rapine and revenge." The work was C H A P. confummated by the tyranny of the laws; and the factions of Italy alternately exercifed a blind and thoughtlefs vengeance on their adverfaries, whofe houfes and caftles they razed to the ground 47. In comparing the days of foreign, with the ages of domestic, hostility, we must pronounce, that the latter have been far more ruinous to the city, and our opinion is confirmed by the evidence of Petrarch. " Behold," fays the laureat, " the relics of Rome, the image of her " priftine greatnefs ! neither time nor the Barbarian can boaft the " merit of this flupendous deftruction: it was perpetrated by her " own citizens, by the most illustrious of her fons; and your an-" ceftors (he writes to a noble Annibaldi) have done with the bat-" tering-ram, what the Punic hero could not accomplish with the " fword "." The influence of the two last principles of decay must in fome degree be multiplied by cach other; fince the houfes and towers, which were fubverted by civil war, required a new and perpetual fupply from the monuments of antiquity.

Thefe general obfervations may be feparately applied to the amphitheatre of Titus, which has obtained the name of the COLI-SEUM *º, either from its magnitude or from Nero's coloffal flatue : an edifice, had it been left to time and nature, which might perhaps have claimed an eternal duration. The curious antiquaries, 47 The vith law of the Vifconti prohibits this common and mifchievous practice; and firictly enjoins, that the houfes of banifhed citizens should be preferved pro communi utilitate (Gualvaneus de la Flamma, in Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xii. p. 1011.).

48 Petrarch thus addreffes his friend who, with shame and tears, had shewn him the mœnia, laceræ specimen miserabile Romæ, and declared his own intention of reftoring them (Carmina Latina, l. ii. epist. Paulo Annibalenfi, xii. p. 97, 98.):

Nec te parva manet fervatis fama ruinis Quanta quod integræ fuit olim gloria Romæ Reliquiæ teftantur adhuc; quas longior ætas Frangere non valuit; non vis aut ira cruenti Hoftis, ab egregiis franguntur civibus heu! heu! Quod ille nequivit (Hannibal) Perficit hic aries.

49 The fourth part of the Verona Illustrata of the Marquis Maffei, professedly treats of amphitheatres, particularly those of Rome and Verona, of their dimensions, wooden galleries, &c. It is from magnitude that he derives the name of Coloffeum, or Colifeum: fince the fame appellation was applied to the amphitheatre of Capua, without the aid of a coloffal statue; fince that of Nero was erected in the court (in atrio) of his palace, and not in the Colifeum (P. iv. p. 15-19. l. i. c. 4.).

who

4 M 2

The Colifeum or amphitheatre of Titus.

LXXI. -----

THE DECLINE AND FALL

636

LXXI. ----

C H A P. who have computed the numbers and feats, are difposed to believe. that above the upper row of ftone fteps, the amphitheatre was encircled and elevated with feveral ftages of wooden galleries, which were repeatedly confumed by fire, and reftored by the emperors. Whatever was precious, or portable, or profane, the flatues of gods and heroes, and the coftly ornaments of fculpture, which were caft in brafs, or overfpread with leaves of filver and gold, became the first prey of conquest or fanaticism, of the avarice of the Barbarians or the Chriftians. In the maffy ftones of the Colifeum, many holes are difcerned; and the two most probable conjectures reprefent the various accidents of its decay. These stores were connected by folid links of brafs or iron, nor had the eye of rapine overlooked the value of the bafer metals 5°: the vacant space was converted into a fair or market; the artifans of the Colifeum are mentioned in an ancient furvey; and the chafms were perforated or enlarged to receive the poles that fupported the fhops or tents of the mechanic trades 5". Reduced to its naked majefty, the Flavian amphitheatre was contemplated with awe and admiration by the pilgrims of the North; and their rude enthusiasm broke forth in a sublime proverbial expression, which is recorded in the eighth century, in the fragments of the venerable Bede : " As long as the Colifeum ftands, " Rome shall stand; when the Colifeum falls, Rome will fall; " when Rome falls, the world will fall "." In the modern fyftem of war, a fituation commanded by three hills would not be chofen for a fortrefs; but the ftrength of the walls and arches could refift 52 Quamdiu stabit Colyfeus, stabit et Roma; quando cadet Colyfeus, cadet Roma; quando cadet Roma, cadet et mundus (Beda in Excerptis seu Collectaneis apud Ducange Gloffar. med. et infimæ Latinitatis, tom. ii. p. 407. edit. Bafil). This faying must be afcribed to the Anglo-Saxon pilgrims who visited Rome before the year 735, the æra of Bede's death; for I do not believe that our <sup>51</sup> Donatus, Roma Vetus et Nova, p. 285. venerable monk ever passed the fea.

the

<sup>5</sup>º Joseph Maria Suarés, a learned bishop, and the author of an hiftory of Præneste, has composed a separate differtation on the seven or eight probable caufes of these holes, which has been fince reprinted in the Roman Thefaurus of Sallengre. Montfaucon (Diarium, p. 233.) pronounces the rapine of the Barbarians to be the unam germanamque causam foraminum.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

the engines of affault; a numerous garrifon might be lodged in the C H A P. enclofure; and while one faction occupied the Vatican and the Capitol, the other was intrenched in the Lateran and the Colifeum 53.

The abolition at Rome of the ancient games must be understood Games of with fome latitude; and the carnival fports, of the Teftacean mount and the Circus Agonalis<sup>54</sup>, were regulated by the law <sup>55</sup> or cuftom of the city. The fenator prefided with dignity and pomp to adjudge and distribute the prizes, the gold ring, or the pallium 56, as it was ftyled, of cloth or filk. A tribute on the Jews fupplied the annual expence<sup>57</sup>; and the races, on foot, on horfeback, or in chariots, were ennobled by a tilt and tournament of feventy-two of the Roman youth. In the year one thousand three hundred and thirty- A bull-feaft two, a bull-feaft, after the fashion of the Moors and Spaniards, was feum, celebrated in the Colifeum itself; and the living manners are painted A. D. 1332, September 3. in a diary of the times s8. A convenient order of benches was reftored; and a general proclamation, as far as Rimini and Ravenna.

53 I cannot recover in Muratori's original Lives of the Popes (Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. iii. P. i.) the paffage that attefts this hostile partition, which must be applied to the end of the xith or the beginning of the xiith century.

54 Although the structure of the Circus Agonalis be deftroyed, it still retains its form and name (Agona, Nagona, Navona): and the interior space affords a fufficient level for the purpole of racing. But the Monte Testaceo, that strange pile of broken pottery, feems only adapted for the annual practice of hurling from top to bottom fome waggonloads of live hogs for the diversion of the populace (Statuta Urbis Romæ, p. 186.).

55 See the Statuta Urbis Romæ, 1. iii. c. 87, 88, 89. p. 185, 186. I have already given an idea of this municipal code. The races of Nagona and Monte Teffaceo are likewise mentioned in the Diary of Peter ever fanciful they may feem, they are deeply Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xxiv. p.1124.).

56 The Pallium, which Menage fo foolifhly derives from Palmarium, is an eafy extension of the idea and the words, from the robe or cloak, to the materials, and from thence to their application as a prize (Muratori, differt. xxxiii.).

57 For thefe expences, the Jews of Rome paid each year 1130 florins, of which the odd thirty reprefented the pieces of filver for which Judas had betrayed his mafter to their anceftors. There was a foot-race of Jewifh, as well as of Christian youths (Statuta Urbis. ibidem).

58 This extraordinary bull-feast in the Colifeum, is defcribed from tradition, rather than memory, by Ludovico Buonconte Monaldesco, in the most ancient fragments of Roman annals (Muratori, Script. Rerum Italicarum, tom. xii. p. 535, 536.): and how-Antonius from 1404 to 1417 (Muratori, marked with the colours of truth and nature.

invited

637

Rome.

THE DECLINE AND FALL

C H A P. invited the nobles to exercife their skill and courage in this perilous adventure. The Roman ladies were marshalled in three squadrons, and feated in three balconies, which on this day, the third of September, were lined with fcarlet cloth. The fair Jacova di Rovere led the matrons from beyond the Tyber, a pure and native race, who still represent the features and character of antiquity. The remainder of the city was divided as ufual between the Colonna and Urfini: the two factions were proud of the number and beauty of their female bands: the charms of Savella Urfini are mentioned with praife; and the Colonna regretted the abfence of the youngest of their houfe, who had fprained her ancle in the garden of Nero's tower. The lots of the champions were drawn by an old and refpectable citizen; and they defcended into the arena, or pit, to encounter the wild-bulls, on foot as it fhould feem, with a fingle fpear. Amidft the crowd, our annalist has felected the names, colours, and devices, of twenty of the most confpicuous knights. Several of the names are the most illustrious of Rome and the ecclesiastical state; Malatefta, Polenta, della Valle, Cafarello, Savelli, Capoccio, Conti, Annibaldi, Altieri, Corfi; the colours were adapted to their tafte and fituation; the devices are expressive of hope or despair, and breathe the fpirit of gallantry and arms. " I am alone, like the " youngeft of the Horatii," the confidence of an intrepid ftranger: " I live disconfolate," a weeping widower: " I burn under the " ashes," a difereet lover: " I adore Lavinia, or Lucretia," the ambiguous declaration of a modern paffion : " My faith is as pure," the motto of a white livery : " Who is ftronger than myfelf ?" of a lion's hide : " If I am drowned in blood, what a pleafant death," the wifh of ferocious courage. The pride or prudence of the Urfini reftrained them from the field, which was occupied by three of their hereditary rivals, whofe inferiptions denoted the lofty greatnefs of the Colonna name: " Though fad, I am ftrong:" " Strong as I " am great :" " If I fall," addreffing himfelf to the spectators, " you " fall

638

LXXI.

-

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

" fall with me:"-intimating (fays the contemporary writer) that C H A P. while the other families were the fubjects of the Vatican, they alone were the fupporters of the Capitol. The combats of the amphitheatre were dangerous and bloody. Every champion fucceffively encountered a wild bull; and the victory may be afcribed to the quadrupedes, fince no more than eleven were left on the field, with the loss of nine wounded and eighteen killed on the fide of their adverfaries. Some of the nobleft families might mourn, but the pomp of the funerals, in the churches of St. John Lateran and St. Maria Maggiore, afforded a fecond holiday to the people. Doubtlefs it was not in fuch conflicts that the blood of the Romans should have been fhed; yet in blaming their rafhnefs, we are compelled to applaud their gallantry; and the noble volunteers, who difplay their magnificence, and rifk their lives, under the balconies of the fair, excite a more generous fympathy than the thousands of captivesand malefactors who were reluctantly dragged to the fcene of flaughter 5%.

This use of the amphitheatre was a rare, perhaps a fingular, fel- Injuries, tival: the demand for the materials was a daily and continual want. which the citizens could gratify without reftraint or remorfe. In the fourteenth century, a fcandalous act of concord fecured to both factions the privilege of extracting ftones from the free and commonquarry of the Colifeum "; and Poggius laments that the greater part of these flones had been burnt to lime by the folly of the Romans ". To check this abufe, and to prevent the nocturnal crimes that might be perpetrated in the vaft and gloomy recefs, Eugenius the fourth the abbé Barthelemy (Memoires de l'Academie des Inscriptions, tom. xxviii. p. 585.) has mentioned this agreement of the factions of the xivth century, de Tiburtino faciendo archives of Rome.

64 Colifeum .... ob stultitiam Romanorum 60 In a concife but instructive memoir, majori ex parte ad calcem deletum, fays the indignant Poggius (p. 17.): but his expreffion, too firong for the prefent age, must be very tenderly applied to the xvth century.

furrounded

639

<sup>59</sup> Muratori has given a separate differta- in the Coliseum, from an original act in the tion (the xxixth) to the games of the Italians in the middle ages.

THE DECLINE AND FALL

640

LXXI.

C H A P. furrounded it with a wall; and, by a charter long extant, granted both the ground and edifice to the monks of an adjacent convent 62, After his death, the wall was overthrown in a tumult of the people : and had they themfelves refpected the nobleft monument of their fathers, they might have justified the resolve that it should never be degraded to private property. The infide was damaged; but in the middle of the fixteenth century, an æra of tafte and learning, the exterior circumference of one thousand fix hundred and twelve feet was still entire and inviolate; a triple elevation of fourscore arches, which rofe to the height of one hundred and eight feet. Of the prefent ruin, the nephews of Paul the third are the guilty agents; and every traveller who views the Farnefe palace may curfe the facrilege and luxury of these upftart princes 63. A fimilar reproach is applied to the Barberini; and the repetition of injury might be dreaded from every reign, till the Colifeum was placed under the fafeguard of religion, by the most liberal of the pontiffs, Benedict the fourteenth, who confecrated a fpot which perfecution and fable had ftained with the blood of fo many Christian martyrs 64.

Ignorance and barbarifm of the Romans.

and confecration of theColifeum.

When Petrarch first gratified his eyes with a view of those monuments, whole fcattered fragments lo far furpals the most eloquent descriptions, he was aftonished at the supine indifference 55 of the

(p. 142.) affirms this fact from the memorials of Flaminius Vacca (Nº 72.). They still hoped, on fome future occasion, to revive faucon thus deprecates the ruin of the Coliand vindicate their grant.

63 After measuring the priscus amphitheatri gyrus, Montfaucon (p. 142.) only adds, that it was entire under Paul III.; tacendo clamat. Muratori (Annali d'Italia, tom. xiv. p. 371.) more freely reports the guilt of the Farnefe pope, and the indignation of the Roman people. Against the nephews of ever shall demolish any ancient edifice, ne Urban VIII. I have no other evidence than ruinis civitas deformetur, et ut antiqua ædithe vulgar faying, " Quod non fecerunt " Barbari, fecere Barbarini," which was

<sup>62</sup> Of the Olivetan monks, Montfaucon perhaps fuggested by the refemblance of the words.

> 64 As an antiquarian and a prieft, Montfeum : Quôd fi non fuopte merito atque pulchritudine dignum fuisset quod improbas arceret manus, indigna res utique in locum tot martyrum cruore facrum tantopere fævitum effe.

> 65 Yet the Statutes of Rome (1. iii. c. 81. p. 182.) impose a fine of 500 aurei on wholoficia decorem urbis perpetuo representent.

> > Romans

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

Romans themfelves 66; he was humbled rather than clated by the C H A P. difcovery, that, except his friend Rienzi and one of the Colonna, a stranger of the Rhône was more conversant with these antiquities than the nobles and natives of the metropolis 67. The ignorance and credulity of the Romans are elaborately difplayed in the old furvey of the city which was composed about the beginning of the thirteenth century; and, without dwelling on the manifold errors of name and place, the legend of the Capitol 48 may provoke a fmile of contempt and indignation. " The Capitol," fays the anonymous writer, " is fo named as being the head of the world; where the " confuls and fenators formerly refided for the government of the " city and the globe. The ftrong and lofty walls were covered with " glafs and gold, and crowned with a roof of the richeft and moft " curious carving. Below the citadel flood a palace, of gold for the " greateft part, decorated with precious ftones, and whofe value " might be efteemed at one third of the world itfelf. The fta-" tues of all the provinces were arranged in order, each with a " fmall bell fufpended from its neck; and fuch was the contrivance " of art magic ", that if the province rebelled against Rome, the 66 In his first visit to Rome (A. D. 1337. See Memoires fur Petrarque, tom. i. p. 322, &c.), Petrarch is ftruck mute miraculo rerum tantarum, et stuporis mole obrutus .... Præfentia vero, mirum dictû, nihil imminuit : vere major fuit Roma majoresque funt reliquiæ quam rebar. Jam non orbem ab hac urbe domitum, fed tam fero domitum, miror (Opp. p. 605. Familiares, ii. 14. Joanni Columnæ).

67 He excepts and praifes the rare knowledge of John Colonna. Qui enim hodie magis ignari rerum Romanarum, quam Romani cives? Invitus dico nufquam minus Roma cognoscitur quam Romæ.

68 After the description of the Capitol, he adds, ftatuæ erant quot funt mundi provinciæ; et habebat quælibet tintinnabulum ad collum. Et erant ita per magicam artem dispositæ, ut quando aliqua regio Romano Imperio rebellis for the difcovery of hidden treasures.

VOL. VI.

erat, statim imago illius provinciæ vertebat fe contra illam ; unde tintinnabulum refonabat quod pendebat ad collum ; tuncque vates Capitolii qui erant custodes senatui, &c. He mentions an example of the Saxons and Suevi, who, after they had been fubdued by Agrippa, again rebelled : tintinnabulum fonuit.; facerdos qui erat in fpeculo in hebdomadâ senatoribus nuntiavit : Agrippa marched back and reduced the ----- Perfians (Anonym. in Montfaucon, p. 297, 298.).

69 The fame writer affirms, that Virgil captus a Romanis invisibiliter exiit, ivitque Neapolim. A Roman magician, in the xith century, is introduced by William of Malmfbury (de Gestis Regum Anglorum, l. ii. p. 86.); and in the time of Flaminius Vacca (Nº 81. 103.) it was the vulgar belief that the ftrangers (the Goths) invoked the dæmons

4 N

" ftatue

THE DECLINE AND FALL

C H A P. " flatue turned round to that quarter of the heavens, the bell rang, " the prophet of the Capitol reported the prodigy, and the fenate " was admonifhed of the impending danger." A fecond example of lefs importance, though of equal abfurdity, may be drawn from the two marble horfes, led by two naked youths, which have fince been transported from the baths of Constantine to the Quirinal hill. The groundless application of the names of Phidias and Praxiteles may perhaps be excufed; but thefe Grecian fculptors should not have been removed above four hundred years from the age of Pericles to that of Tiberius: they should not have been transformed into two philosophers or magicians, whose nakedness was the symbol of truth and knowledge, who revealed to the emperor his moft fecret actions; and, after refufing all pecuniary recompense, folicited the honour of leaving this eternal monument of themfelves". Thus awake to the power of magic, the Romans were infenfible to the beauties of art : no more than five statues were visible to the eves of Poggius; and of the multitudes which chance or defign had buried under the ruins, the refurrection was fortunately delayed till a fafer and more enlightened age ". 'The Nile, which now adorns the Vatican, had been explored by fome labourers in digging a vineyard near the temple, or convent, of the Minerva; but the impatient proprietor, who was tormented by fome vifits of curiofity, reftored the unprofitable marble to its former grave 73. The difcovery of a flatue > juftly obferves, that if Alexander be reprefented, thefe flatues cannot be the work of Phidias (Olympiad lxxxiii.) or Praxiteles (Olympiad civ.), who lived before that conqueror (Plin. Hift. Natur. xxxiv. 19.).

74 William of Malmfbury (l. ii. p. 86, 87.) relates a marvellous discovery (A. D. 1046) of Pallas, the fon of Evander, who had been flain by Turnus; the perpetual light in his dies magis concurrerent, frepitum adeuntium fepulchre, a Latin epitaph, the corpfe, yet fastidiumque pertæsus, horti patronus conentire, of a young giant, the enormous gestâ humo texit (Poggius de Varietate Forwound in his breaft (pectus perforat ingens), tunz, p. 12.).

<sup>70</sup> Anonym. p. 289. Montfaucon (p. 191.) &c. If this fable refts on the flighteft foundation, we may pity the bodies, as well as the flatues, that were exposed to the air in a barbarous age.

72 Prope porticum Minervæ, flatua eft recubantis, cujus caput integrà effigie, tantæ magnitudinis, ut figna omnia excedat. Quidam ad plantandos arbores scrobes faciens detexit. Ad hoc visendum cum plures in

6.12

LXXI.

of

of Pompey, ten feet in length, was the occasion of a law-fuit. It C H A P. had been found under a partition-wall : the equitable judge had pronounced, that the head fhould be feparated from the body to fatisfy the claims of the contiguous owners; and the fentence would have been executed, if the interceffion of a cardinal, and the liberality of a pope, had not refcued the Roman hero from the hands of his barbarous countrymen <sup>73</sup>.

But the clouds of barbarifm were gradually difpelled; and the Refloration peaceful authority of Martin the fifth and his fucceffors, reftored the ments of the ornaments of the city as well as the order of the ecclefiaftical flate. A. D. 1420, The improvements of Rome, fince the fifteenth century, have not &c. been the fpontaneous produce of freedom and industry. The first and most natural root of a great city, is the labour and populousness of the adjacent country, which supplies the materials of subfistence, of manufactures, and of foreign trade. But the greater part of the Campagna of Rome is reduced to a dreary and defolate wildernefs: the overgrown effates of the princes and the clergy are cultivated by the lazy hands of indigent and hopelefs vaffals; and the fcanty harvefts are confined or exported for the benefit of a monopoly. A fecond and more artificial caufe of the growth of a metropolis, is the refidence of a monarch, the expence of a luxurious court, and the tributes of dependent provinces. Those provinces and tributes had been loft in the fall of the empire : and if fome ftreams of the filver of Peru and the gold of Brafil have been attracted by the Vatican; the revenues of the cardinals, the fees of office, the oblations of pilgrims and clients, and the remnant of ecclefiaftical taxes, afford a poor and precarious fupply, which maintains however the idlenefs of the court and city. The population of Rome, far below the

4 N 2

and orna-

<sup>73</sup> See the Memorials of Flaminius Vacca, N° 57. p. 11, 12. at the end of the Roma Antica of Nardini (1704, in 4to). meafure

THE DECLINE AND FALL

C H A P. measure of the great capitals of Europe, does not exceed one hundred and feventy thousand inhabitants 7+; and within the spacious inclofure of the walls, the largest portion of the feven hills is overfpread with vineyards and ruins. The beauty and fplendour of the modern city may be afcribed to the abufes of the government, to the influence of fuperstition. Each reign (the exceptions are rare) has been marked by the rapid elevation of a new family, enriched by the childless pontiff at the expence of the church and country. The palaces of thefe fortunate nephews are the most costly monuments of elegance and fervitude; the perfect arts of architecture, painting, and fculpture, have been profituted in their fervice, and their galleries and gardens are decorated with the most precious works of antiquity, which tafte or vanity has prompted them to collect. The ecclefiaftical revenues were more decently employed by the popes themfelves in the pomp of the Catholic worfhip; but it is fuperfluous to enumerate their pious foundations of altars, chapels, and churches, fince these leffer stars are eclipsed by the fun of the Vatican, by the dome of St. Peter, the most glorious structure that ever has been applied to the use of religion. The fame of Julius the fecond, Leo the tenth, and Sixtus the fifth, is accompanied by the fuperior merit of Bramante and Fontana, of Raphael and Michael-Angelo: and the fame munificence which had been difplayed in palaces and temples, was directed with equal zeal to revive and emulate the labours of antiquity. Proftrate obelifks were raifed from the ground, and erected in the most confpicuous places; of the eleven aqueducts of the Cæfars and confuls, three were reftored ; the artificial rivers were conducted over a long feries of old, or of new,

644

&lt;sup>74</sup> In the year 1709, the inhabitants of p. 217, 218.). In 1740 they had increafed Rome (without including eight or ten thoufand Jews) amounted to 138,568 fouls (Labat, Voyages en Efpagne et en Italie, tom. iii.

OF THE ROMAN EMPIRE.

new, arches, to difcharge into marble bafins a flood of falubrious and refreshing waters : and the spectator, impatient to ascend the steps of St. Peter's, is detained by a column of Egyptian granite, which rifes between two lofty and perpetual fountains, to the height of one hundred and twenty feet. The-map, the defcription, the monuments of ancient Rome, have been elucidated by the diligence of the antiquarian and the fludent 75 : and the footfleps of heroes, the relics, not of fuperflition, but of empire, are devoutly vifited by a new race of pilgrims from the remote, and once favage, countries of the North.

Of these pilgrims, and of every reader, the attention will be excited Final conby an hiftory of the decline and fall of the Roman empire; the greateft, perhaps, and most awful scene, in the history of mankind. The various caufes and progreffive effects are connected with many of the events most interesting in human annals : the artful policy of the Cæfars, who long maintained the name and image of a free republic; the diforders of military defpotifm; the rife, eftablifhment, 75 The Pere Montfaucon distributes his own observations into twenty days, he should have flyled them weeks, or months, of his vifits to the different parts of the city (Diarium Italicum, c. 8-20. p. 104-301.). That learned Benedictine reviews the topographers of ancient Rome; the first efforts of Blondus, Fulvius, Martianus, and Faunus, the fuperior labours of Pyrrhus Ligorius, had his learning been equal to his labours; the writings of Onuphrius Panvinius, qui omnes obfcuravit, and the recent but imperfect books of Donatus and Nardini. Yet Montfaucon - still fighs for a more complete plan and defcription of the old city, which must be attained by the three following methods: 1. The measurement of the space and intervals of the ruins. 2. The fludy of infcriptions, and the places where they were found. 3. The investigation of all the acts, charters, diaries of the middle ages, which name any spot or building of Rome. The laborious work, fuch as Montfaucon defired, must be promoted by princely or public munificence: but the great modern plan of Nolli (A.D. 1748) would furnish a folid and accurate basis for the ancient topography of Rome.

clufion.

CHAP. LXXI.

and

THE DECLINE AND FALL, &c.

C H A P. and fects of Chriftianity; the foundation of Conftantinople; the di-LXXI. vision of the monarchy; the invasion and fettlements of the Barbarians of Germany and Scythia; the inftitutions of the civil law;

barians of Germany and Scythia; the inflitutions of the civil law; the character and religion of Mahomet; the temporal fovereignty of the popes; the reftoration and decay of the Weftern empire of Charlemagne; the crufades of the Latins in the Eaft; the conquefts of the Saracens and Turks; the ruin of the Greek empire; the ftate and revolutions of Rome in the middle age. The hiftorian may applaud the importance and variety of his fubject; but, while he is confcious of his own imperfections, he muft often accufe the deficiency of his materials. It was among the ruins of the Capitol, that I first conceived the idea of a work which has amufed and exercifed near twenty years of my life, and which, however inadequate to my own wifnes, I finally deliver to the curiofity and candour of the Public.

LAUSANNE, June 27, 1787.

646

GENERAL INDEX.

N. B. The Roman Numerals refer to the Volume, and the Figures to the Page.

A A B A N, the Saracen, heroism of his widow, v. 306.

Abbaffides, elevation of the house of, to the office of caliph of the Saracens, v. 412.

- Abdallab, the Saracen, his excursion to plunder the fair of Abyla, v. 312. His African expedition,
- Abdalmalek, caliph of the Saracens, refuses tribute to the emperor of Constantinople, and establishes a national mint, v. 396.
- Abdalrahman, the Saracen, establishes his throne at Cordova in Spain, v. 417. Splendour of his court, 420. His estimate of his happines, 421.
- Abdelazir, the Saracen, his treaty with Theodemir the Gothic prince of Spain, v. 375. His death, 378.
- Abderame, his expedition to France, and victories there, v. 407. His death, 411.
- Abdol Motalleb, the grandfather of the prophet Mahomet, his history, v. 197-
- Abgarus, inquiry into the authenticity of his cor-refpondence with Jefus Chrift, v. 92. Abgarus, the laft king of Edeffa, fent in chains to
- Rome, i. 252.
- Ablavius, the confidential præfect under Conftantine the Great, a confpiracy formed against him on that emperor's death, ii. 97. Is put to death,
- Abu Ayub, his history, and the veneration paid to his memory by the Mahometans, v. 395. vi. 509.
- Abubeker, the friend of Mahomet, is one of his first converts, v. 220. Flies from Mecca with him, 224. Succeeds Mahomet as caliph of the Sara-cens, 258. His character, 279. Abu Caab commands the Andalulian Moors who
- fubducd the ifland of Crete, v. 436.

- Abu Sophian, prince of Mecca, confpires the death of Mahomet, v. 224. Battles of Beder and Ohud, 232. Befieges Medina without fuccefs, 234. Surrenders Mecca to Mahomet, and receives him as a prophet, 238.
- Abu Taber, the Carmathian, pillages Mecca, v. 451. Abulfeda, his account of the spleudour of the caliph
- Moctader, v. 420. Abulpharogius, primate of the Eastern Jacobites, fome account of, iv. 604. His encomium on wif-
- dom and learning, v. 423. Abundantius, general of the Eaft, and patron of the eunuch Eutropius, is difgraced and exiled by him, iii. 288. Abyla, the fair of, plundered by the Saracens,
- v. 313. Abyfinia, the inhabitants of, defcribed, iv. 267.
- Their alliance with the emperor Juffinian, 269. Ecclefiaftical hiftory of, 615.
- Acacius, bishop of Amida, an uncommon instance of epifcopal benevolence, iii. 323.
- Achaia, its extent, i. 29. Acre, the memorable fiege of, by the crufaders, vi. 102. Final lofs of, 119. Adions, inflitutes of Julinian refpecting, iv. 393.
- Actium, a review of Roman affairs after the battle of, i. 72.
- Adauctus, the only martyr of diffinction during the perfecution under Diocletian, i. 692.
- Adolphus, the brother of Alaric, brings him a reinforcement of troops, iii. 224. Is made count of the domeflics to the new emperor Attalus, 231. Succeeds his brother as king of the Goths, and concludes a peace with Honorius, 250.
- Adoption, the two kinds of, under the Greek empire. vi. 35. note.

Adoration

- Adoration of the Roman emperor, cuftom of, and derivation of the term, v. 487.
- Adorno, the Genoele governor of Phocza, conveys Amurath II. from Afia to Europe, vi. 368. Adrian I. pope, his alliance with Charlemagne
- against the Lombards, v. 117. His reception of Charlemagne at Rome, 121. Asserts the fictitious donation of Conftantine the Great, 125
- Adultery, diffinctions of, and how punished by Augustus, iv. 406. By the Christian emperors, 408.
- Ælia Capitolina founded on mount Sion by Hadrian, i. 545. Ælius Pætus, his Tripartite, the oldest work of Ro-
- man jurifprudence, iv. 350. Æmilianus, governor of Pannonia and Mæssa, routs
- the barbarous invaders of the empire, and is declared emperor by his troops, i. 306.
- Æneas of Gaza, his atteftation of the miraculous gift of fpeech to the Catholic confessors of Tipafa, whole tongues had been cut out, iii. 546.
- Eneas Sylvius, his account of the impracticability of an European crufade against the Turks, vi. 515. His epigram on the deftruction of ancient buildings in Rome, 632. note.
- Æra of the world, remarkable epochas in, pointed out, iv. 121. note.
- Gelalzan, of the Turks, when fettled, v. 670.
- Aerial tribute, in the Eastern empire, what, iv. 83.
- Etius, furnamed the Atheift, his character and adventures, ii. 256. 267. 284. note.
- -, The Roman general under Valentinian III. his character, iii. 332. His treacherous fcheme to ruin count Boniface, 334. Is forced to retire into Pannonia, 345. His invitation of the Huns into the empire, 355. Seizes the administration of the Western empire, 393. His character as given by Renatus a cotemporary historian, 394. Employs the Huns and Alani in the defence of Gaul, 396. Concludes a peace with Theodoric, 390. Raifes the fiege of Orleans, 408. Battle of Chalons, 410. His prudence on the invafion of Italy by Attila, 423. Is murdered by Valentinian, 430.
- Africa, its fituation and revolutions, i. 31. Great revenue raifed from, by the Romans, 195. Progrefs of Christianity there, 609.
- -, Is diffracted with religious difcord in the time of Constantine the Great, ii. 233. Character and revolt of the Circumcellions, 300. Oppreffions of, under the government of count Ro-
- manus, 533. General flate of Africa, 538. —, Revolt of count Boniface there, iii. 334. Arrival of Genferic king of the Vandals, 336. Persecution of the Donatists, 338. Devastation of, by the Vandals, 341. Carthage furprised by Genferic, 347. Persecution of the Catholics, 536.

of, fettled by Justinian, 147. Revolt of the troops there, under Stoza, 273. Devastation of the war, 277.

- Africa, invation of, by the Saracens, v. 349. Conquest of, by Akbah, 355. Decline and extinction of Christianity there, 386. Revolt and independence of the Saracens there, 453.
- Aglabites, the Saracen dynasty of, v. 453
- Aglae, a Roman lady, patronifes St. Boniface, i. 694.
- Agricola, review of his conduct in Britain, i. 5.
- Agriculture, great improvement of, in the western countries of the Roman empire, i. 63. State of, in the Eastern empire, under Justinian, iv. 70. Ajax, the sepulchre of, how distinguished, ii. 9.
- Aiznadin, battle of, between the Saracens and the - Greeks, v. 302.
- Akbah, the Saracen, his exploits in Africa, v. 355.
- Alani, occasion of these people invading Alia, i. 391. Conquest of, by the Huns, ii. 586. Join the Goths who had emigrated into Thrace, 608. See Goths, and Vandals.
- Alaric, the Goth, learns the art of war under Theodofius the Great, iii. 61. Becomes the leader of the Gothic revolt, and ravages Greece, 135. Efcapes from Stilicho, 141. Is appointed matter general of the Eastern Illyricum, 143. His in-valion of Italy, 144. Is defeated by Suilicho at Pollentia, 151. Is driven out of Italy, 154. Is, by treaty with Honorius, declared master-general of the Roman armies throughout the præfecture of Illyricum, 178. His pleas and motives for marching to Rome, 192. Encamps under the walls of that city, 194. Accepts a ranfom, and raifes the fiege, 223. His negociations with the emperor Honorius, 225. His fecond fiege of Rome, 229. Places Attalus on the Imperial throne, 231. Degrades him, 234. Seizes the city of Rome, 235. His fack of Rome compared with that by the emperor Charles V. 244. Re-tires from Rome, and ravages Italy, 246. His death and burial, 249.
- Alaric II. king of the Goths, his overthrow by Clovis king of the Franks, iii. 574.
- Alberic, the fon of Marozia, his revolt, and government of Rome, v. 156.
- Albigeois of France, perfecution of, v. 535. Alboin, king of the Lombards, his hiftory, iv. 421. His alliance with the Avars against the Gepidæ, 423. Reduces the Gepidæ, 424. He undertakes the conqueft of Italy, 425. Overruns what is now called Lombardy, 428. Assume the regal title there, 429. Takes Pavia, and makes it his capital city, 430. Is murdered at the in-fligation of his queen Rofamond, 432.
- Alchemy, the books of, in Egypt, deftroyed by Diocletian, i. 441.
- Aleppo, fiege and capture of, by the Saracens, v. 323. Is recovered by the Greeks, 461.

Is taken and facked by Tamerlane, vi. 346. Alexander III. pope, establishes the papal election in the college of cardinals, vi. 550.

Alexander archbishop of Alexandria, excommuni-

- cates Arius for his herefy, ii. 247. Alexander Severus, is declared Cæfar by the emperor Elagabalus, i. 180. Is raifed to the throne, 182. Examination into his pretended victory over Artaxerxes, 253. Shewed a regard for the Christian religion, 670.
- Alexandria, a general maffacre there, by order of the emperor Caracalla, i. 166. The city defcribed, 339. Is ruined by ridiculous inteffine commotions, 340. By famine and peltilence, 342. Is believed and taken by Diocletian, 430. The befieged and taken by Diocletian, 439. Christian theology reduced to a fystematical form in the fchool of, 607. Number of martyrs who fuffered there in the perfecution by Decius, 654.
- -, The theological fystem of Plato taught in the school of, and received by the Jews there, ii. 238. Questions concerning the nature of the trinity, agitated in the philosophical and Christian schools of, 242. 247. Hiftory of the archbiftop St. Atha-nafius, 269. Outrages attending his expulsion and the effablifhment of his forceflor, George of Cappadocia, 286. The city diffracted by pious factions, 293. Difgraceful life and tragical death of George of Cappadocia, 400. Refloration of Athanafius, 406. Athanafius banished by Julian, 407. Suffers greatly by an earthquake, 562.
- -, Hiftory of the temple of Serapis there, iii. 82. This temple, and the famous library, destroyed by bishop Theophilus, 84.

- Is taken by Amrou the Saracen, v. 339. The famous library deftroyed, 342. Alexius Angelus, his ufurpation of the Greek empire,

- and character, vi. 132. Flies before the crufaders, 152.
- Aiexius I. Comnenus, emperor of Constantinople, v. 64. New titles of dignity invented by him, 484. Battle of Durazzo, 616. Solicits the aid of the emperor Henry III. 620.
- Solicits the aid of the Christian princes against the Tarks, vi. 5. His fuspicious policy on the arrival of the crufaders, 32. Exacts homage from them, 34. Profits by the fuccels of the crufaders, 72. Alexius II. Comnenus, emperor of Conftantinople,
- v. 72. Alexius Strategopulus, the Greek general, retakes Constantinople from the Latins, vi. 204.
- Alexius, the fon of Ifaac Angelus, his escape from his uncle, who had deposed his father, vi. 133. His treaty with the crufaders for his reftoration, 144. Reftoration of his father, 155. His death, 161.

Alfred fends an embaffy to the fhrine of St. Thomas in India, iv. 599.

- Algebra, by whom invented, v. 427. Ali, joins Mahomet in his prophetical miffion, VOL. VI. 40

v. 221. His heroism, 234. 236. His character, 256. Is chosen caliph of the Saracens, 259. Devotion paid at his tomb, 265. His posterity, 266.

Aligern, defends Cuinæ, for his brother Teias, king of the Goths, iv. 305. Is reduced, 307.

- Allectus murders Caraufius, and ufurps his station, 1 434.
- Allemanni, the origin and warlike spirit of, i. 313. Are driven out of Italy by the fenate and people, 314. Invade the empire under Aurelian, 357. Are totally routed, 360. Gaul delivered from their depredations by Constantius Chlorus, 437.
- Invade and establish themselves in Gaul, ii. 161. Are defeated at Strafburgh by Julian, 167. Are reduced by Julian in his expeditions beyond the Rhine, 172. Invade Gaul under the emperor Valentinian, 515. Are reduced by Jovinus, 517. And chaftifed by Valentinian, 519.
- Are fubdued by Clovis king of the Franks, iii. 563.
- Alp Arflan, fultan of the Turks, his reign, v. 6;9. Alypius, governor of Britain, is commissioned by the
- emperor Julian to rebuild the temple of Jerufalem, ii. 387.
- Amala, king of the Goths, his high credit among them, i. 296.
- Amalasontha, queen of Italy, her history and cha-racter, iv. 161. Her death, 165.
- Amalphi, defcription of the city, and its commerce, v. 605.
- Amazons, improbability of any fociety of, i. 376. note.
- Ambition, reflections on the violence, and various operations of that paffion, v. 85.
- Ambrofe, St. composed a treatife on the trinity, for the nfe of the emperor Gratian, iii. 3. note. His birth, and promotion to the archbishopric of Milan, 29. Opposes the Arian worship of the empress Justina, 30. Refuses obedience to the Imperial power, 34. Controls the emperor Theodofius, 52. Impofes penance on Theodofius for his cruel treatment of Theffalonica, 54. Employed his influence over Gratian and Theodofius, to infpire them with maxims of perfecution, 69. Opposes Symmachus, the advocate for the old Pagan religion, 75. Comforts the citizens of Florence with a dream, when befieged by Radagaisus, 165.
- Amida, fiege of, by Sapor king of Persia, ii. 154. Receives the fugitive inhabitants of Nisibis, 473. Is befieged and taken by Cabades king of Perfia, iv. 108.
- Amir, prince of Ionia, his character, and paffage into Europe, vi. 315.
- Ammianus the historian, his religious character of the emperor Constantius, ii. 266. His remark on the enmity of Christians toward each other, 304. His account of the fiery obstructions to refloring the temple of Jerufalem, 389. His account of the hoftile conteft of Damafus and Urfinus for the bishopric shopric of Rome, 512. Testimony in favour of his historical merit, 627. His character of the nobles of Rome, iii. 202.

- Ammonius, the mathematician, his measurement of the circuit of Rome, iii. 217.
- Ammonius, the monk of Alexandria, his martyrdom, iv. 548.
- Anorium, fiege and destruction of, by the caliph
- Motaffem, v. 444. Amphilochus, bifhop of Iconium, gains the favour of the emperor Theodofius by an orthodox bon mot, iii, 12.
- Amphitheatre at Rome, a description of, i. 417. vi. 635.
- Amrou, his birth and character, v. 331. His invafion and conquett of Egypt, 333. His administration there, 345. His defeription of the country, 347.
- Amurath I. fultan of the Turks, his reign, vi. 319.
- Amurath II. fultan, his reign and character, vi. 440. Anachorets, in monkish history, described, iii. 523.

Anacletus, pope, his Jewish extraction, vi. 561.

- Anastasius I. marries the empress Ariadne, iv. 5. His war with Theodoric, the Offrogoth king of Italy, 19. His aconomy celebrated, 79. His long wall from the Propontis to the Euxine, 101. Is humbled by the Catholic clergy, 576.
- Anastafius II. emperor of Constantinople, v. 19. His preparations of defence against the Saracens, 397
- Anastasius, St. his brief history and martyrdom,
- iv. 504. note. Anatho, the city of, on the banks of the Euphrates, defcribed, ii 431.
- Andalusia, derivation of the name of that province, v. 364. note.
- Andronicus, prefident of Lybia, excommunicated by Synefius bifhop of Ptolemais, ii. 225.
- Andronicus Commenus, his character, and first adventures, v. 72. Seizes the empire of Constantinople, 81. His unhappy fate, 83.
- Andronicus the Elder, emperor of Constantinople, his fuperstition, vi. 257. His war with his grandfon, and abdication, 262.
- Andronicus the Younger, emperor of Constantinople, his licentious character, vi. 260. His civil war against his grandfather, 262. His reign, 265. Is vanquished and wounded by fultan Orchan 317. His private application to pope Benedict XII. of Rome, 379. Angera, battle of, between Tamerlane and Bajazet,
- vi. 349. Anianus, bishop of Orleans, his pious anxiety for the relief of that city when belieged by Attila the Hun, iii. 407.

Anician family at Rome, brief history of, ili. 197.

Anne Comnena, character of her hiltory of her father, Alexius I. emperor of Constantinople, v. 64. Her conspiracy against her brother John, 67.

Anthemius, emperor of the Welt, his descent, and investiture by Leo the Great, iii. 471. His election confirmed at Rome, 472. Is killed in the fack of Rome by Ricimer, 489.

- Anthemius, prafect of the East, character of his administration, in the minority of the emperor Theodofius the younger, iii. 313
- Anthemius the architect, inflances of his great know-ledge in mechanics, iv. 90. Forms the defign of the church of St. Sophia at Conflantinople, 92.
- Anthony, St. father of the Egyptian monks, his hiftory, iii. 507.
- Anthropomorphites, among the early Christians, perfonifiers of the Deity, iv. 539
- Antioch, taken and destroyed by Sapor king of Persia, i. 328. Flourishing state of the Christian church
- there, in the reign of Theodofius, 605. -, Hiltory of the body of St. Babylas, bishop of, ii. 399. The cathedral of, fhut up, and its wealth confilcated, by the emperor Julian, 400. Licentious manners of the citizens, 416. Popular difcontents during the refidence of Julian there, 417.
- -, Sedition there, against the emperor Theodo-flus, iii. 45. The city pardoned, 49.
- Is taken, and ruined, by Chofroes king of Persia, iv. 245. Great destruction there by an earthquake, 326. Is again feized by Chofroes II. 501.
- -, Is reduced by the Saracens, and ranfomed, v. 325. Is recovered by the Greeks, 461.
- -----, Befieged and taken by the first crufaders, vi 46.
- Antonina, the wife of Belifarius, her character, iv. 129. Examines and convicts pope Sylverius of treachery, 187. Her activity during the fiege of Rome, 189. Her secret history, 204. Founds a convent for her retreat, 319.
- Antoninus, a Roman refugee at the court of Sapor king of Perfia, ftimulates him to an invation of the Roman provinces, ii. 152.
- Antoninus Pius, his character, and that of Hadrian, compared, i, 9 Is adopted by Hadrian, 92.
- Antoninus Marcus, his defensive wars, i. 10. Is adopted by Pius at the inftance of Hadrian, 93. His character, 102. His war against the united Germans, 286. Suspicious story of his edict in favour of the Chriftians, 667.
- Aper, Arrius, prætorian præfect, and father-in-law to the emperor Numerian, is killed by Diocletian as the prefumptive murderer of that prince, i. 421.
- Apharban, the Ferfian, his embaffy from Narfes king of Perfia, to the emperor Galerius, i. 450.
- Afocalypje, why now admitted into the canon of the - Scriptures, i. 563. note. Apccaucus, admiral of Conflantinople, his confederacy against John Cantacuzene, vi. 269. His death, 272.
- Apollinaris, bishop of Laodicea, his hypothesis of the divine incarnation of Jefus Chrift, iv. 542.

Apollinaris, patriarch of Alexandria, butchers his flock flock in defence of the Catholic doctrine of the incarnation, iv. 611.

- Apollonius of Tyana, his doubtful character, i. 369. note. Apotheofis of the Roman emperors, how this cultom was introduced, i. 84.
- Apfimar dethrones Leontius emperor of Constantinople, and usurps his place, v. 15.
- Apulia, is conquered by the Normans, v. 592. Is confirmed to them by papal grant, 598.
- Aquileia, befieged by the emperor Maximin, i. 223. Is taken and deflroyed by Attila king of the Huns, iii. 418.
- Aquitain, is fettled by the Goths, under their king Wallia, iii. 270. Is conquered by Clovis king of the Franks, 578.
- Arabia, its fituation, foil, and climate, v. 171. Its division into the Scardy, the Stony, and the Happy, 173. The pafforal Arabs, 174. Their horfes and camels, 175. Cities of, 176. Manners and cuftoms of the Arabs, 178. Their language, 186. Their benevolence, 188. Hiftory and defoription of the Caaba of Mecca, 190. Religions, 194. Life and doftrine of Mahomet, 197. Conqueft, 6, by Mahomet, 240. Character of the caliphs, 270. Rapid conquefts of, 282. Limits of their conquefts, 392. Three caliphs eftablished, 417. Introduction of learning among the Arabians, 423. Their progrefs in the fciences, 425. Their literary deficiencies, 430. Becline and fall of the caliphs, 452.
- Arbetio, a veteran under Constantine the Great, leaves his retirement to oppose the usurper Procopius, ii. 494.
- Arbogastes, the Frank, his military promotion under Theodosius in Gaul, and conspiracy against Valentinian the Younger, iii. 59. Is defeated and killed by Theodosius, 64.
- Arcadius, fon of the emperor Theodofius, fucceeds to the empire of the Eaft, iii. 104. His magnificence, 282. Extent of his dominions, 283. Adminifiration of his favourite eunuch Eutropius, 284. His cruel law againft treafon, 290. Signs the condemnation of Eutropius, 295. His interview with the revolters Tribigild and Gainas, 297. His death, and fuppofed teftament, 311.
- Architesture, Roman, the general magnificence of, indicated by the existing ruins, i. 53.
- Ardaburius, his expedition to Italy, to reduce the usurper John, iii. 329.
- Argonauts, the object of their expedition to Colchos, iv. 252.
- Ariadne, daughter of the emperor Leo, and wife of Zeno, her character, and marriage afterward with Anastasius, iv. 5.
- Arii, a tribe of the Lygians, their terrific mode of waging war, i. 398.
- Arinthau, is appointed general of the horfe by the emperor Julian on his Persian expedition, ii. 429. Diltinguisthes himfelf against the usurper Proceptus, 494.

- Ariovi/lus feizes two-thirds of the lands of the Sequani in Gaul, for himfelf and his German followers, iii. 591.
- Ariflobulus, principal minister of the house of Carus, is received into confidence by the emperor Diocletian, i. 425.
- Ariflotle, his logic better adapted to the detection of error, than for the discovery of truth, v. 427.
- Ariu, is excommunicated for heretical notions concerning the Trinity, ii. 247. Strength of his party, 248. His opinions examined in the council of Nice, 230. Account of Arian feds, 255. Council of Rimini, 259. His banithment and recal, 262. His fulfpicious death, 263.
- , The Arians perfecute the Catholics in Africa, iii. 536.
- Armenia, is feized by Sapor king of Perfia, i. 326. Tiridates reflored, 443. He is again expelled by the Perfians, 446. Is refigned to Tiridates by treaty between the Romans and Perfians, 454.
- —, Is rendered tributary to Persia, on the death of Tiridates, ii. to3. Character of Arlaces Tiranus king of, and his conduct toward the emperor Julian, 426. Is reduced by Sapor to a Persian province, 541. —, Its diffractions and division between the Per-
- -----, Its diffractions and division between the Perfians and the Romans, iii. 323.
- Armies of the Eastern empire, state of, under the emperor Maurice, iv. 488.
- Armorica, the provinces of, form a free government independent on the Romans, iii. 274. Submits to Clovis king of the Franks, 568. Settlement of Britons in, 617.
- Armour, defensive, is laid aside by the Romans, and adopted by the Barbarians, iii. 67.
- Arnold of Brescia, his herefy, and history, vi. 529.
- Arragon, derivation of the name of that province, i. 24. note.
- i. 24. note. Arrian, his vifit to, and defeription of, Colchos, iv. 256.
- Arface: Tiranus, king of Armenia, his character, and difaftection to the emperor Julian, ii. 426. Withdraws his troops treacheroufly from the Roman fervice, 446. His difaftrous end, 541.
- Arfenius, patriarch of Constantinople, excommunicates the emperor Michael Palzologus, vi. 235. Faction of the Arfenites, 236.
- Artaken, king of Parthia, is defeated and flain by Artaxerxes king of Perfia, i. 239.
- Artaban, his conspiracy against the emperor Justinian, iv. 293. Is intrusted with the conduct of the armament fent to Italy, 296.
- Artafires, king of Armenia, is deposed by the Persians at the infligation of his own subjects, iii. 325.
- Artawafdes, his revolt against the Greek emperor Constantine V. at Constantinople, v. 101.
- Artaxerxes, reftores the Persian monarchy, i. 239. Prohibits every worship but that of Zoroatter, 2 246.

40 2

246. His war with the Romans, 253. His character and maxims, 256.

- Artemius, duke of Egypt under Conftantius, is condemned to death under Julian, for cruelty and corruption, ii. 346.
- corruption, ii. 346. Arthur, king of the Britons, his history obscured by monkish fictions, iii. 618.
- Arvandus, prætorian præfect of Gaul, his trial and condemnation by the Roman fenate, iii. 482.
- Afcalon, battle of, between Godfrey king of Jerufalem, and the fultan of Egypt, vi. 62.
- Afcetics, in ecclefiaftical hiftory, account of, iii. 506. Afclepiodatus reduces and kills the British usfurper Allectus, i. 435.
- Afia, fummary view of the revolutions in that quarter of the world, i. 237.
- Afia Minor deferibed, i. 29. Amount of its tribute to Rome, 194. Is conquered by the Turks, v. 673. Afiarch, the nature of this office among the ancient
- Afarch, the nature of this office among the ancient Pagans, i. 6co.
- A/par is committioned by Theodofius the Younger to conduct Valentinian III. to Italy, iii. 320. Places his fleward Leo on the throne of the Eaftern empire, 470. He and his fons murdered by Leo, iv. 4.
- Affaffins, the principality of, destroyed by the Moguls, vi. 299.
- Aljemblies of the people abolished under the Roman emperors, i. 82. The nature of, among the ancient Germans, 272.
- Affria, the province of, deferibed, ii 432. Is invaded by the emperor Julian, 434. His retreat, 453
- Affarte, her image brought from Carthage to Rome, as a fpouse for Elagabalus, i. 178.
- Aftolphus, king of the Lombards, takes the city of Ravenna, and attacks Rome, v. 115. Is repelled by Pepin king of France, 116.
- Afridogy, why cultivated by the Arabian aftronomers, v. 428.
- Athalaric, the fon of Amalafontha queen of Italy, his education and character, iv. 163.
- Athanaric the Gothic chief, his war against the emperor Valens, ii. 551. His alliance with Theodofius, his death and funeral, 632.
- Athanafus, St. confeffes his understanding bewildered by meditating on the divinity of the Logos, ii. 243. General view of his opinions, 253. Is banished, 263. His character and adventures, 268. 406. 479. 507. Was not the author of the famous creed under his name, iii. 544.
- Achanafus, patriarch of Constantinople, his contests with the Greek emperor Andronicus the Elder, vi. 257.
- Athenais, daughter of the philosopher Leontius. See Eudocia.
- Athens, the libraries in that city, why faid to have been fpared by the Goths, i. 326. Naval firength of the republic of, during its profperity, 529. note.

3

- Athens is laid under contribution by Alaric the Goth, iii 137.
- ..., Review of the philosophical history of, iv. 112. The schools of, filenced by the emperor Justinian, 118.
- Athos, mount, beatific visions of the monks of, vi. 278.

Atlantic Ocean, derivation of its name, i. 32.

- Attacotti, a Caledonian tribe of cannibals, account of, ii. 530.
- Attalus, præfect of Rome, is chofen emperor by the fenate, under the influence of Alaric, iii. 231. Is publicly degraded, 234. His future fortune, 263.
- Attalus, a noble youth of Auvergne, his adventures, iii 6:0.
- Attila, the Hun, iii. 356. Defeription of his perfon and character, 357. His conquefts, 360. His treatment of his captives, 567. Impofes terms of peace on Theodolius the Younger, 372. Opprefiles Theodolius by his ambafadors, 375. Defeription of his royal refidence, 381. His reception of the ambafadors of Theodolfus, 383. His behaviour on difcovering the fcheme of Theodolfus to get him affafinated, 388. His haughty meffages to the emperors of the Eaft and Welt, 393. His invalion of Gaul, 406. His oration to his troops on the approach of Actius and Theodoric, 412. Battle of Chalons, 413. His invalion of Italy, 417. His retreat purchafed by Valentinian, 424. His death, 426.
- Atys and Cybele, the fable of, allegorifed by the pen of Julian, ii. 362.
- Avars, are difcomfited by the Turks, iv. 227. Their embaffy to the emperor Juffinian, 228. Their embaffy to Juffin II. 419. They join the Lombards against the Gepidæ, 423. Pride, policy, and power, of their chagan Baian, 481. Their conquests, 485. Invest Constantinople, 519.
- Averroes, his religious infidelity, how far justifiable, v. 431. note.
- Averfa, a town near Naples, built as a fettlement for the Normans, v. 590.
- Augurs, Roman, their number and peculiar office, iii. 70.
- Augufin, his account of the miracles wrought by the body of St. Stephen, iii. 98. Celebrates the piety of the Goths in the facking of Rome, 237. Approves the perfecution of the Donatifls of Africa, 330. His death, character, and writings, 343. Hiltory of his relies, iv. 146. mote.
- 343. Hillory of his relies, iv. 146. note. Angushulus, fon of the patrician Orefles, is cholen emperor of the Welt, iii. 493. Is deposed by Odoacer, 494. His banishment to the Lucullan villa in Campania, 497.
- Augustus, emperor, his moderate exercise of power, i. 2.

i. z. Is imitated by his fucceffors, 3. His naval regulations, 22. His division of Gaul, 24. His fituation after the battle of Actium, 72. He reforms the fenate, 73. Procures a fenatorial grant of the Imperial dignity, 74. Division of the provinces between him and the fenate, 77. Is allowed his military command and guards in the city of Rome, 78. Obtains the confular and tribunitian offices for life, 79. His character and policy, 80. Adopts Tiberius, 90. Formed an accurate register of the revenues and expences of the empire, 194. Taxes infituted by him, 197. His naval establishments at Ravenna, iii. 158.

- Augustus and Casar, those titles explained and difcriminated, i. 85.
- Avienus, his character and embaffy from Valentinian III. to Attila king of the Huns, iii. 424.
- Avignon, the holy fee how transferred from Rome to that city, vi. 555. Return of pope Urban V. to Rome, 597.
- to Rome, 597. Avitus, his embaffy from Ætius to Theodoric king of the Vifigoths, ili. 409 Affumes the empire, 444. His deposition and death, 450.
- Aurelian, emperor, his birth and fervices, i. 353. His expedition againft Palmyra, 369. His triumph, 375. His cruelty, and death, 381.
- Aurengzebe, account of his immense camp, i. 250. note.
- Aureolus is invefted with the purple on the Upper Danube, i. 343.
- Aufonius, the tutor of the emperor Gratian, his prcmotions, iii. 3. note.
- Autharis, king of the Lombards in Italy, his wars with the Franks, iv. 442. His adventurous gallantry, 449.
- lantry, 449. Autun, the city of, flormed and plundered by the legions in Gaul, i. 365.
- Auvergne, province and city of, in Gaul, revolutions of, iii. 597.
- Auxiliaries, Barbarian, fatal confequences of their admiffion into the Roman armies, ii. 49.
- Axuch, a Turkifh flave, his generous friendship to the princes Anne Comnena, v. 67. And to Manuel Comnenus, 69.
- Azimuntium, the citizens of, defend their privileges against Peter, brother of the Eastern emperor Maurice, iv. 487.
- Azimus, remarkable spirit shewn by the citizens of, against Attila and his Huns, iii. 374.

В

Baalbec, description of the ruins of, v. 315.

- Babylas, St. bithop of Antioch, his polihumous hiftory, ii. 399.
- Bagaudæ, in Gaul, revolt of, its occafion, and fupprefion by Maximian, i. 429.
- Bagdad becomes the royal refidence of the Abbnffides, v. 418. Derivation of the name, 419. note. The fallen flate of the caliphs of, 456.

The city of, flormed and facked by the Moguls vi. 300.

- Babran, the Perfian general, his character and exploits, iv. 471. Is provoked to rebellion, 473. Dethrones Choficos, 476. His ufurpation and death, 478.
- Baian, chagan of the Avars, his pride, policy, and power, iv. 481. His perfidious feizure of Sirmium and Singidunum, 484. His conquets, 485. His treacherous attempt to feize the emperor Heraclius, 508. Invelts Conflantinople in conjunction with the Perfians, etc. Retires, ezo.
- conjunction with the Perfians, 519. Retires, 520. Bajazet I. fultan of the Turks, his reign, vi. 321. His correspondence with Tamerlane, 343. Is defeated and captured by Tamerlane, 350. Inquiry into the flory of the iron cage, 353. His fons, 364.
- Balbinus elected joint emperor with Maximus, by the fenate, on the deaths of the two Gordians, i. 219.
- Baldwin, count of Flanders, engages in the fourth crufade, vi. 136. Is cholen emperor of Confantinople, 176. Is taken prifoner by Calo-John, king of the Bulgarians, 186. His death, 188.
- Baldwin II. emperor of Conflantinople, vi. 196. His diffreffes and expedients, 198. His expulsion from that city, 206.
- Baldwin, brother of Godfrey of Bouillon, accompanies him on the first crusade, vi. 22. Founds the principality of Edeffa, 45.
- Baltic Sea, progressive subsidence of the water of, i. 260. note. How the Romans acquired a knowledge of the naval powers of, ii. 523. note.
- Baptifm, theory and practice of, among the primitive Christians, ii. 205.
- Barbary, the name of that country, whence derived, v. 361. note. The Moors of, converted to the Mahometan faith, 363.
- Barbatio, general of infantry in Gaul under Julian, his milconduct, ii. 166.
- Barchochebas, his rebellion against the emperor Hadrian, i. 623.
- drian, i. 623. Bards, Celtic, their power of exciting a martial enthufiafm in the people, i. 281.
- Bards, British, their peculiar office and duties, iii. 624.
- Bardas, Cæfar, one of the reftorers of learning, v. 512.
- Bari is taken from the Saracens by the joint efforts of the Latin and Greek empires, v. 581.
- Barlaam, a Calabrian monk, his difpute with the Greek theologians about the light of mount Thabor, vi. 270. His embaffy to Rome, from Andronicus the Younger, 370. His literary character, 418.
- Bafil I. the Macedonian, emperor of Constantinople, v. 38. Reduces the Paulicians, 530.
- Baffl II. emperor of Conftantinople, v. 52. His great wealth, 478. His inhuman treatment of the Bulgarians, 547.

Bafil;

- Bafil, archbishop of Casfarea, no evidence of his having been perfecuted by the emperor Valens, ii. 509. Infults his friend Gregory Nazianzen, under the appearance of promotion, iii. 15. The father of the monks of Pontus, 510.
- Bafilifcus, brother of the empress Verina, is entrusted with the command of the armament fent against the Vandals in Africa, iii. 477. His fleet deftroyed by Genferic, 479. His promotion to the empire, and death, iv. 5. Baffianus, high priest of the sun, his parentage,
- i. 173. Is proclaimed emperor at Emefa, ibid. See Elagabalus.
- Baffianus, brother-in-law to Conftantine, revolts against him, i. 519. Baffora, its foundation and fituation, v. 286.
- Baths, public, of Rome defcribed, iii. 214.
- Baina, reception of the emperor Julian there, ii. 423.
- Beafts, wild, the variety of, introduced in the circus,
- for the public games at Rome, i. 415. Beaufobre, M. de, character of his Hiftoire Critique
- du Manicheisme, iv. 533. note. Beder, battle of, between Mahomet and the Koreifh of Mecca, v. 232.
- Bedoweens of Arabia, their mode of life, v. 174.
- Bees, remarks on the ftructure of their combs and cells, v. 424. note.
- Belifarius, his birth and military promotion, iv. 127. Is appointed by Justinian to conduct the African war, 129. Embarkation of his troops, 132. Lands in Africa, 134. Defeats Gelimer, 138. Is received into Catthage, 139. Second defeat of Gelimer, 144. Reduction of Africa, 146. Surrender of Gelimer, 151. His triumphant return to Constantinople, 152. Is declared fole conful, 153. He menaces the Offrogoths of Jtaly, 161. He feizes Sicily, 166. Invades Italy, 170. Takes Naples, 172. He enters Rome, 175. He is befieged in Rome by the Goths, 176. The fiege railed, 192. Caules Constantine, one of his generals, to be killed, 193. Siege of Ravenna, 198. Takes Ravenna by stratagem, 200. Returns to Constantinople, 202. His character and behaviour, 203. Scandalous life of his wife Antonina, 204. His difgrace and fub-million, 200. Is fent into the Eaft to oppofe Chofroes king of Perfia, 247. His politic re-cention of the Perfia, 247. His politic reception of the Persian ambassadors, 248. His fecond campaign in Italy, 282. His ineffectual attempt to raife the fiege of Rome, 286. Diffuades Totila from deftroying Rome, 289. Re-covers the city, 290. His final recal from Italy, 292. Rescues Constantinople from the Bulgarians, 316. His difgrace and death, 319.

Benefice, in feudal language, explained, iii. 593. Benevento, battle of, between Charles of Anjou, and Mainfroy the Sicilian usurper, vi. 243.

Beneventum, anecdotes relating to the fiege of, v. 585. Benjamin of Tudela, his account of the riches of Constantinople, v. 478.

- Beræa, or Aleppo, reception of the emperer Julian there, ii. 423.
- Bernard, St. his character and influence in prometing the fecond crufade, vi. 83. His character of the Romans, 528.
- Berytus, account of the law fchool established there. in. 40. Is deftroyed by an earthquake, iv. 326.
- Bernier, his account of the camp of Aurengzebe, i. 250. note.
- Beffarion, cardinal, his character, vi. 425.
- Beffas, governor of Rome for Justinian, his rapacity during the fiege of that city by Totila the Goth,
- iv. 284. Otcahons the loss of Rome, 286. Bezabde, is taken and garrifoned by Sapor king of Perfia, it. 158. Is ineffectually belieged by Constantius, 159.
- Bindoes, a Saffanian prince, depofes Hormouz king of Perfia, iv. 473.
- Birthright the leaft invidious of all human diffinc-
- tions, i. 205. Bi/hops, among the primitive Christians, the office of, explained, i. 583. Progrefs of epifcopal authority, 587. Astumed dignity of epifcopal government, 598.
- -, Number of, at the time of Constantine the Great, ii. 213. Mode of their election, 214. Their power of ordination, 216. The ecclefiastical revenue of each diocefe how divided, 221. Their civil jurifdiction, 222. Their fpiritual centures, 224. Their legiflative affemblies, 228. Bifleops, rural, their rank and duties, ii. 214.
- Biffextile, superstitious regard to this year by the Romans, ii. 486.
- Bithynia, the cities of, plundered by the Goths, i. 320. Blemmyes, their revolt against the emperor Diocletian, i. 439.

Boccace, his literary character, vi. 421.

- Boethius, the learned fenator of Rome, his hiftory, iv. 33. His imprisonment and death, 38.
- Bohemond, the fon of Robert Guiscard, his character and military exploits, v. 619. vi. 25. His route to Constantinople on the crusade, 31. His flattering reception by the emperor Alexius Comne-nus, 35. Takes Antioch, and obtains the prin-cipality of it, 48. His fublequent transactions, and death, 73. Boniface, St. his history, i. 694.

- Boniface, count, the Roman general under Valentinian III. his character, iii. 332. Is betrayed into a revolt by Ætius, 334. His repentance, 340. Is befieged in Hippo Regius by Genseric king of the Vandals, 342. Returns to Italy, and is killed by Ætius, 344. Boniface VIII. pope, his violent contest with Philip
- the Fair king of France, and his character, vi. 554. Institutes the jubilee, 557. Boniface, marquis of Montferrat, is chosen general
- of the fourth crufade to the Holy Land, vi. 142. Is made king of Macedonia, 179. Is killed by the Bulgarians, 189.

Bosphorus,

8

- Bosphorus, revolutions of that kingdom, i. 316. Is feized by the Goths, 317. The strait of, defcribed, ii. 4. Bo/ra, fiege of, by the Saracens, v. 298.
- Botheric, the Imperial general in Theffalonica, murdered in a sedition, iii. 50.
- Boucicault, marshal, desends Constantinople against Bajazet, vi. 329.
- Boulogne, the port of, recovered from Caraufius, by Constantius Chlorus, i. 434.
- Bowides, the Perfian dynasty of, v. 455.
- Brancalcone, fenator of Rome, his character, vi. 540. Bretagne, the province of, in France, fettled by Britons, iii, 617.
- Britain, reflections on the conquest of, by the Romans, i. 4. Defcription of, 25. Colonies plant-ed in, 44. note. A colony of Vandals fettled
- there by Probus, 402. Revolt of Caraufius, 431. --, How first peopled, ii. 526. Invasions of, by the Scots and Picts, 529. Is reflored to peace by Theodofius, 531
- -, Revolt of Maximus there, iii. 6. Revolt of the troops there against Honorius, 173. Is abandoned by the Romans, 274. State of, until the arrival of the Saxons, 275. Defcent of the Savons on, 611. Establishment of the Saxon heptarchy, 614. Wars in, 615. Saxon devafta-tion of the country, 610. Manners of the inde-pendent Britons, 623. Defcription of, by Pro-
- copius, 626. -, Conversion of the Britons by a mission from
- pope Gregory the Great, iv. 459. The doctrine of the incarnation received there, 590.
- Brutus the Trojan, his colonization of Britain now given up by mielligent historians, ii. 526. note.
- Buffon, M. his extraordinary burning mirrors, iv. 89. note.
- Bulgarians, their character, iv. 218. Their in-roads on the Eastern empire, 221. Invation of, under Zabergan, 314. Repulfed by Eelifarius, 316. -, The kingdom of, deftroyed by Bafil II. the - Greek emperor, v. 53. 547. , Revolt of, from the Greek empire, and fub-
- million to the pope of Rome, vi. 131. War with the Greeks under Calo-John, 184.
- Bull-feast, in the Colifeum at Rome, defcribed, vi. 637.
- Burgundians, their fettlement on the Elbe, and maxims of government, ii. 520. Their fettlement in Gaul, iii. 271. Limits of the kingdom of, under Gundobald, 569. Are fubdued by the Franks, 573.
- Burnet, character of his Sacred Theory of the Earth, i. 5' 5. note.
- Burrampooter, fource of that river, vi. 341. note
- Busir, in Egypt, four feveral places known under this name, v. 415. note.
- Buzurg, the philolophical preceptor of Hormouz king of Perfia, his high reputation, iv. 469. note.

- Byzantine historians, list and character of, vi. 517. note.
- Byzantium, fiege of, by the emperor Scverus, i. 147. Is taken by Maximin, 515. Siege of, by Conftantine the Great, 531. Its fituation described, ii. 3. By whom founded, ibid. note. See Conftantinople.

- Caaba, or temple of Mecca, described, v. 190. The idols in, deftroyed by Mahomet, 239.
- Cabades, king of Perfia, befieges and takes Amida, iv. 108. Seizes the straits of Caucafus, 111. Viciffitudes of his reign, 233.
- Cadefia, battle of, between the Saracens and the Persians, v. 284.
- Cadijab, her marriage with Mahomet, v. 199. Is converted by him to his new religion, 220. Her death, 223. Mahomet's veneration for her memory, 255.
- Cacilian, the peace of the church in Africa diffurbed by him and his party, ii. 233-
- Cacilius, the authority of his account of the famous vision of Constantine the Great, inquired into, ii. 196.
- Cælestian, fenator of Carthage, his distrefs on the taking of that city by Genseric, iii. 349. Cæfar, Julius, his inducement to the conquest of - Britain, i. 4. Degrades the fenatorial dignity, 73. note. Affumes a place among the tutelar deities of Rome, in his lifetime, 84. His addrefs in appeafing a military fedition, 191. note. His prudent application of the coronary gold presented to him, ii. 72.
- Cafar and Augustus, those titles explained and difcriminated, i. 85.
- Cæjars, of the emperor Julian, the philosophical fable of that work delineated, ii. 412.
- Ciefarea, capital of Cappadocia, taken by Sapor king of Perfia, i. 329. Is reduced by the Saracens, v. 327.
- Cabina, queen of the Moors of Africa, her policy to drive the Arabs out of the country, v. 362.
- Cairoan, the city of, founded in the kingdom of Tunis, v. 358.
- Caled, deferts from the idolatrons Arabs to the party of Mahomet, v. 238. His gallant conduct at the battle of Muta, 244. His victories under the caliph Abubeker, 283. Attends the Saracen army on the Syrian expedition, 298. His valour at the fiege of Damafeus, 301. Diftinguishes himself at the battle of Aiznadin, 305. His cruel treatment of the refugees from Damascus, 311. Joins in plundering the fair of Abyla, 313. Commands the Saracens at the battle of Yermuk, 313. His death, 329.
- Caledonia, and its ancient inhabitants, described.
- ii. 527. Caledonian war, under the emperor Severus, an account of, i. 156.

Caliph:

C

- Caliphs of the Saracens, character of, v. 279. Their rapid conquests, 281. Extent and power of, 390. Triple division of the office, 417. They patronife learning, 423. Decline and fall of their empire, 452. vi. 300.
- Callinicum, the punishment of a religious sedition in that city, oppofed by St. Ambrofe, iii. 52.
- Callinicus of Heliopolis, affifts in defending Confantinople against the Saracens, by his chymical inflammable compositions, v. 402.
- Calmucks, black, recent emigration of, from the confines of Ruffia to those of China, ii. 585.
- Calo-John, the Bulgarian chief, his war with Baldwin, the Latin emperor of the Greeks, vi. 184. Defeats, and takes him prifoner, 186. His favage character and death, 190.
- Calocerus, a camel-driver, excites an infurrection in the ifland of Cyprus, ii. 89.
- Calphurnius, the machinery of his eclogue on the accession of the emperor Carus, i. 409.
- Calvin, the reformer, his doctrine of the Eucharift, v. 536. Examination of his conduct to Servetus, 538.
- Camel, of Arabia, defcribed, v. 175
- Camifards of Languedoc, their enthufiafm compared with that of the Circumcellions of Numidia, ii. 302.
- Campania, the province of, defolated by the ill policy of the Roman emperors, ii. 65. Description of the Lucullan villa in, iii. 498.
- Canada, the prefent climate and circumstances of, compared with those of ancient Germany, i. 262.
- Cannon, enormous one of the fultan Mahomet II. defcribed, vi. 475. Burfts, 485.

Canoes, Ruffian, a description of, v. 567.

- Cantacuzene, John, character of his Greek Hiftory, vi. 259. His good fortune under the younger Andronicus, 267. Is driven to assume the purple, 270. His lively distinction between foreign and civil war, 272. His entry into Constantinople, and reign, 274. Abdicates, and turns monk, 277. His war with the Genoefe factory at Pera, 283. Marries his daughter to a Turk, 310. His negociation with pope Clement VI. 381.
- Cantemir's History of the Ottoman Empire, a cha- racter of, vi. 312. note. Capelianus, governor of Mauritania, defeats the younger Gordian, and takes Carthage, i. 218.
- Capitation tax, under the Roman emperors, an account of, ii. 65.
- Capito, Ateius, the civilian, his character, iv. 354. Capitol of Rome, burning and restoration of,
- i. 642. Cappadocia, famous for its fine breed of horfes, ii. 57.
- Capraria, ille of, character of the monks there, iii. 127.
- Captives, how treated by the Barbarians, iii. 367. 595.

Caracalla, fon of the emperor Severus, his fixed antipathy to his brother Geta, i. 156. Succeeds to the empire jointly with him, 160. Tendency of his edict to extend the privileges of Roman citizens to all the free inhabitants of his empire, 193. His view in this transaction, 201. Doubles the tax on legacies and inheritances, 202.

- Caracorum, the Tartar fettlement of, defcribed, vi. 305.
- Carawans, Sogdian, their route to and from China, for filk, to fupply the Roman empire, iv. 4.
- Caraufius, his revolt in Britain, i. 431. Is acknowledged by Diocletian and his colleagues, 433.
- Carbeas, the Paulician, his revolt from the Greek emperor to the Saracens, v. 528.
- Cardinals, the election of a pope vefted in them, vi. 550. Inflitution of the conclave, 551.
- Cardnene, fituation and hiftory of that territory, i. 453.
- Carinus, the fon of Carus, fucceeds his father in the empire, jointly with his brother Numerian, i. 412.
- Carizmians, their invafion of Syria, vi. 113.
- Carlovingian race of kings, commencement of, in France, v. 119.
- Carmath, the Arabian reformer, his character, v. 449. His military exploits, 450.
- Carmelites, from whom they derive their pedigree, iii. 507. note.
- Carpathian mountains, their fituation, i. 260.
- Carthage, the bishopric of, bought for Majorinus, 1. 673. note.
- tions of Cæcilian and Donatus, ii. 234.
- -, The temple of Venus there, converted into a Christian church, iii. St. Is furprised by Genferic king of the Vandals, 347.
- -, The gates of, opened to Belifarius, iv. 139. Natural alterations produced by time in the fitua-tion of this city, 140. note. The walls of, retion of this city, 140. note. The walls of, re-paired by Belifarius, 142. Infurrection of the Roman troops there, 273.
- -, Is reduced and pillaged by Haffan the Saracen, v. 359. Subsequent history of, 360.
- Carthagena, an extraordinary rich filver mine worked there for the Romans, i. 195. Carus, emperor, his election and character, i. 408.
- Caspian and Iberian gates of mount Caucafus, diftinguished, iv. 110.
- Caffians, the party of, among the Roman civilians,
- explained, iv. 355. Caffiodorus, his Gothic hiftory, i. 291. His account of the infant state of the republic of Venice, iii. 421. His long and prosperous life, iv. 23.
- Castriot, George; see Scanderbeg.
- Catalans, their fervice and war in the Greek empire, vi. 248.
- Catholic church, the doctrines of, how difcriminated from the opinions of the Platonic fchool, ii. 243. The authority of, extended to the minds of mankind, 246. Faith of the Western or Latin church, 258.

258. Is distracted by factions in the cause of Athanafius, 271. The doxology, how intro-duced, and how perverted, 293. The revenue duced, and how perverted, 293. of, transferred to the heathen priefts, by Julian, 391

- , Edict of Theodofius for the establishment of the Catholic faith, iii. 11. The progressive steps of idolatry in, 93. Perfecution of the Catholics in Africa, 536. Pious frauds of the Catholic clergy, 544.
- -, How bewildered by the doctrine of the incarcarnation, iv. 544. Union of the Greek and Latin churches, 590.
- -, Schifm of the Greek church, vi. 121.
- Celestine, pope, espoufes the party of Cyril against Neftorius, and pronounces the degradation of the latter from his episcopal dignity, iv. 553.
- Cellic language, driven to the mountains by the Latin, i. 45, 46. note.
- Cenfor, the office of, revived under the emperor Decius, i. 301. But without effect, 302.
- Ceos, the manufacture of filk, first introduced to - Europe from that island, iv. 72. Cerca, the principal queen of Attila king of the Huns, her reception of Maximin the Roman ambasfador, iii. 382.
- Cerintbus, his opinion of the twofold nature of Jefus Chrift, iv. 540.
- Ceylon, ancient names given to that island, and the imperfect knowledge of, by the Romans, ii. 414. note.
- Chalcedon, the injudicious fituation of this city fligmatifed by proverbial contempt, ii. 5. A tribunal erected there by the emperor Julian, to try and punish the evil ministers of his predecessor
- Conftantius, 344. -, A stately church built there by Rufinus, the infamous minister of the emperor Theodofius, iii. 108.
- -, Is taken by Chofroes II. king of Perfia, iv. 503.
- Chalcondyles, the Greek hiftorian, his remarks on the feveral nations of Europe, vi. 391.
- Chalons, battle of, between the Romans and Attila king of the Huns, iii. 410.
- Chamavians reduced and generoufly treated by Julian, ii. 170.
- Chancellor, the original and modern application of this word compared, i. 414.
- Characters, national, the diffinctions of, how formed, ii. 563.
- Chariots of the Romans defcribed, iii. 204. note.
- Charlemagne conquers the kingdom of Lombardy, v. 117. His reception at Rome, 121. Eludes fulfilling the promifes of Pepin and himfelf to the Roman pontiff, 124. His coronation at Rome by the pope Leo III. 135. His reign and character, 136. Extent of his empire, 140. His neighbours and enemies, 144. His fucceffors, 146. His negociations and treaty with the VCL. VI.

Eastern empire, 149. State of his family and dominions in the tenth century, 505.

- Charles the Fat emperor of the Romans, v. 147. Charles of Anjou fubdues Naples and Sicily, vi. 243. The Sicilian Vefpers, 247. His charafter as a fenator of Rome, 541.
- Charles IV. emperor of Germany, his weakness and poverty, v. 166. His public oftentation,
- 167. Contraît between him and Aguflus, 168. Charles V. emperor, parallel between him and Diocletian, i. 466. And between the fack of Rome by him, and that by Alaric the Goth. iii. 244.
- Chaftity, its high efteem among the ancient Germans, i. 276. And the primitive Christians, 578.

Chemistry, the art of, from whom derived, v. 429.

- Cherjonefus, Thracian, how fortified by the emperor Justinian, iv. 101.
- Chersonites assist Constantine the Great against the Goths, ii. 93. Are cruelly perfecuted by the Greek emperor Justinian II. v. 17.
- Chefs, the object of the game of; and by whom invented, iv. 241. Childeric, king of France, deposed under papal
- fanction, v. 119.
- Children, the exposing of, a prevailing vice of antiquity, iv. 373. Natural, according to the Roman laws, what, 382.
- China, how diftinguished in ancient history, i. 444. note. Great numbers of children annually exposed there, 595. note.
- -, Its fituation, it 575. The high chronology claimed by the hiftorians of, 576. The great wall of, when erected, 578. Was twice conquered by the northern tribes, 580. -, The Romans supplied with filk by the cara-
- vans from, iv. 73. --, Is conquered by the Moguls, vi. 297. 3c6.
- Expulsion of the Moguls, 307.

Chivalry, origin of the order of, vi. 26.

- Chnodomar, prince of the Alemanni, taken prifoner by Julian at the battle of Strafburg, ii. 168.
- Chofrees, king of Armenia, affafinated by the emiflaries of Sapor king of Perfia, i. 326. Chofrees, fon of Tiridates, king of Armenia, his
- character, ii. 104
- Chofrees 1. king of Perfia, protects the laft furviving philosophers of Athens, in his treaty with the emperor Justinian, iv. 110. Review of his hifchiperon Jutaman, W. 119. Review of his hif-tory, 234. Sells a peace to Juffinian, 241. His invalion of Syria, 244. His negociations with Juffinian, 264. His profperity, 266. Battle of Melitene, 467. His death, 488. Chofras II. king of Perfa, is raifed to the throne on the depolition of his father Hormouz, in any Is reduced to impleme the addition of the second secon
- iv. 475. Is reduced to implore the affiftance of the emperor Maurice, 477. His reftoration and policy, 479. Conquers Syria, 501. Palestine, 502. Egypt and Afia Minor, 503. His reign and and magnificence, 504. Rejects the Mahometan religion, 506. Imposes an ignominious peace on the emperor Heraclius, 509. His flight, deposition, and death, 525. Chozars, the hord of, fent by the Turks to the affistance of the emperor Heraclius, iv. 521.

Chrift, the festival of his birth, why fixed by the Romans at the winter folftice, ii. 326. note.

Christians, primitive, the various fects into which they branched out, i. 544. Afcribed the Pagan idolatry to the agency of dæmons, 552. Believed the end of the world to be near at hand, 561. The miracolous powers afcribed to the primitive church, 567. Their faith fironger than in modern times, 571. Their fuperior virtue and aufterity, 572. Repentance a virtue in high effect among them, 573. They difclaim war and government, 580. Were active however in the interest covernment of their own forciety r.84. internal government of their own fociety, 581. Bishops, 583. Synods, 586. Metropolitans and and primates, 588. Bishop of Rome, 589. Their probable proportion to the Pagan fubjects of the empire before the conversion of Constantine the Great, 613. Enquiry into their perfecutions, 620. Why more odious to the governing powers than the Jews, 624. Their religious meetings fufpected, 629. Are perfecuted by Nero, as the incendiaries of Rome, 637. Inftructions of the emperor Trajan to Pliny the Younger for the regulation of his conduct toward them, 647. Remained exposed to popular referitment on pub-lic feftivities, 648. Legal mode of proceeding against them, 650. The ardour with which they courted martyrdom, 661. When allowed to crect places for public worship, 669. Their perfecution under Diocletian and his affociates, 682. An edict of toleration for them published by Galerius just before his death, 695. Some of the Christian morality to Constantine, 186. Theory and practice of paffive obedience, 187. Their loyalty and zeal, 190. The facrament of baptifm, how administered in early times, 205. Extraordinary propagation of Chriftianity after it obtained the Imperial fanction, 208. Becomes the eftablished religion of the Roman empire, 211. Spiritual and temporal powers diffinguished, 212. Review of the episcopal order in the church, 213. The ecclesiaftical revenue of each diocefe, how divided, 221. Their legiflative affemblies, 228. Edict of Constantine the Great against heretics, 232. Mysterious doctrine of the Trinity, 242. The doctrines of the Catholic church, how difcriminated from the opinions of the Platonic school, 243. General character of the Christian sects, 304. Christian schools prohibited by the emperor Julian, 392. They are removed from all offices of truft, 393. Are obliged to reinstate the Pagan temples, 394. Their imprudent and irregular zeal against idolatry, 409.

- Christians, distinction of, into vulgar and ascetic, iii. 505. Conversion of the barbarous nations, 527.
- Christianity, enquiry into the progress and establithment of, 535. Religion and character of the Jews, 537. The Jewith religion the bafis of Chriffianity, 541. Is offered to all mankind, 542. The fects into which the Christians divided, 544. The theology of, reduced to a fystematical form in the school of Alexandria, 607. Injudicious conduct of its early advocates, 617. Its perfecu-tions, 620. First erection of churches, 669.
- -, The fystem of, found in Plato's doctrine of the Logos, ii. 240.
- -, Salutary effects refulting from the conversion of the barbarous nations, iii. 532.
- -, Its progress in the north of Europe, v. 576.
- Chrysaphius the Eunuch, engages Edecon, to alfassinate his king Attila, iii. 387. Is put to death by the empress Pulcheria, 390. Assisted at the fecond council of Ephefus, iv. 564.
- Chryfocheir, general of the revolued Paulicians, over-runs and pillages Afia Minor, v. 529. His death, 530.
- Chryfoloras, Manuel, the Greek envoy, his character, vi. 423. His admiration of Rome and Con-
- stantinople, 434. Chrysopolis, battle of, between Constantine the Great and Licinius, i. 532.
- Chryfostom, St. his account of the pompous luxury of the emperor Arcadius, iii. 282. Protects his fugitive patron the eunuch Eutropius, 296. Hiftory of his promotion to the archiepifcopal fee of Constantinople, 301. His character and admini-stration, 302. His perfecution, 305. His death, 309. His relics removed to Constantinople, 310. His encomium on the monastic life, 512. note.
- Churches, Christian, the first erection of, i. 669. Demolition of, under Diocletian, 688. Splendour of, under Conflantine the Great, ii. 220. Seven, of Afia, the fate of, vi. 314. Cibaliz, battle of, between Conflantine the Great - and Licinius, i. 521. Cicero, his view of the philosophical opinions as to the immortality of the foul, i. 556. His encomium on the fludy of the law, iv. 338. System
- of his republic, 351. Cimmerian darknefs, the expression of, whence derived, iii. 206. note.
- Circumcellions of Africa, Donatift schifmatics, hiftory of their revolt, ii. 300. Their religious fuicides, 303. Perfecution of, by the emperor Honorius, iii. 338.
- Circumcifion of both fexes, a physical custom in Æthiopia, unconnected with religion, iv. 619.

Circus.

- Circus, Roman, the four factions in, described, iv. 60. Constantinople, and the Eastern empire, distracted by these factions, 61. Cities in the Roman empire enumerated, i. 58.
- of, v. 160.
- Citizens of Rome, motive of Caracalla for extending the privileges of, to all the free inhabitants of the empire, i. 193. 202. Political tendency of this grant, 203.
- City, the birth of a new one, how celebrated by the Romans, ii. 11. note.
- Civilians of Rome, origin of the profession, and the three periods in the history of, iv. 348.
- Civilis, the Batavian, his fuccessful revolt against the Romans, i. 283.
- Claudian the poet, and panegyrift of Stilicho, his works fupply the deficiencies of history, iii. 114. Celebrates the murder of Rufinus, 120. His death and character, 187. His character of the eunuch Eutropius, 286.
- Claudius, emperor, chosen by the Pretorian guards, without the concurrence of the fenate, i. 88.
- Claudius, emperor, successor to Gallienus, his character and elevation to the throne, i. 345.
- Cleander, minister of the emperor Commodus, his history, i. 110. Clemens, Flavius, and his wife Domitilla, why dif-
- tinguished as Christian martyrs, i. 645
- Clement III. pope, and the emperor Henry III. mutually confirm each other's fovereign characters, v. 622.
- Clement V. pope, transfers the holy fee from Rome
- to Avignon, vi. 556. Clergy, when first distinguished from the laity, i. 590. ii. 212.
- The ranks and numbers of, how multiplied, ii. 218. Their property, 219. Their offences only cognifable by their own order, 223. Valentinian's edict to restrain the avarice of, 510.
- Clodion, the first of the Merovingian race of kings of the Franks in Gaul, his reign, iii. 401.
- Clodius Albinus, governor of Britain, his steady fidelity during the revolutions at Rome, i. 133. De-
- clares himfelf againft Julianus, 135. Clotilda, niece of the king of Burgundy, is married to Clovis king of the Franks, and converts her Pagan husband, iii. 565. Exhorts her husband
- to the Gothic war, 574. Clovis, king of the Franks, his descent, and reign, iii. 559.
- Cluverius, his account of the objects of adoration among the ancient Germans, i. 278. note.
- Cochineal, importance of the difcovery of, in the art of dying, iv. 71. nore.
- . Code of Juffinian, how formed, iv. 359. New edi- tion of, 365. Codicils, how far admitted by the Roman law refpecting teftaments, iv. 392.1

Canobites, in monkish history, described, iii. 523. Coinage, how regulated by the Roman emperors, vi. 536.

- Colchos, the modern Mingrelia, defcribed, iv. 250. Manners of the natives, 252. Revolt of, from the Romans to the Perfians, and repentance, 258.
- Colchian war, in confequence, 261. Colifeum, of the emperor Titus, obfervations on, vi. 635. Exhibition of a bull feaft in, 637.
- Collyridian heretics, an account of, v. 203.
- Colonies, Roman, how p'anted, i. 43
- Colonna, history of the Roman family of, vi. 562.
- Coloffus of Rhodes, fome account of, v. 331.
- Columns of Hercules, their fituation, i. 32.
- Comana, the rich temple of, suppressed, and the revenues confifcated, by the emperors of the Eaft, ii. 56.
- Combat, judicial, origin of, in the Salic laws, iii. 589. The laws of, according to the affize of Jerufalem, vi. 68. Apology for the practice of, 229. note.
- Comets, account of those which appeared in the reign of Justinian, iv. 322.
- Commentiolus, his difgraceful warfare against the Avars, iv. 487.
- Commodus, emperor, his education, character, and reign, i. 103.
- Commeni, origin of the family of, on the throne of Constantinople, v. 57. Its extinction, vi. 511.

Conception, immaculate, of the Virgin Mary, the doctrine of, from whence derived, v. 206.

- Concubine, according to the Roman civil law, explained, iv. 382.
- Conflagration, general, ideas of the primitive Chriftians, concerning, i. 564.
- Conquest, the vanity of, not so justifiable as the defire of spoil, ii. 530. Is rather atchieved by art, than perfonal valour, iii. 358.
- Conrad III. emperor, engages in the fecond crufade, vi. 75. His difattrous expedition, 80.
- Conrad of Montferrat, defends Tyre against Saladin, vi. 100. Is affassinated, 104.

Constance, treaty of, v. 161.

Constans, the third fon of Constantine the Great, is fent to govern the western provinces of the empire, ii. 88. Division of the empire among him and his brothers, on the death of their father, 100. Is invaded by his brother Constantine, 110. Is killed, on the ufurpation of Magnentius, 112. Espoused the cause of Athanafius against his brother Constantius, 277.

- Conftans II. emperor of Conftantinople, v. 10. Conftantia, princels, grand-daughter of Conftantine the Great, is carried by her mother to the camp Narrowly of the ufurper Procopius, ii. 493. escapes falling into the hands of the Quadi, 554. Marries the emperor Gratian, 558.
- Constantina, daughter of Constantine the Great, and widow of Hannibalianus, places the diadem on the head of the general Vetranio, ii. 113. Is 4 P 2 matried married to Gallus, 129. Her character, 130. Dies, 134.

Conflantina, widow of the Eastern emperor Maurice, the cruel fate of, and her daughters, iv. 496.

- Conflantine the Great, the feveral opinions as to the place of his birth, i, 480. His hiftory, 481. He is faluted emperor by the Britifh legions on the death of his father, 483. Marries Faulta, the daughter of Maximian, 489. Puts Maximian to death, 495. General review of his adminifiration in Gaul, 498. Undertakes to deliver Rome from the tyranny of Maxentius, 502. Defeats Maxentius, and enters Rome, 510. His alliance with Licinius, 514 Defeats Licinius, 520. (22. Peace concluded with Licinius, 523. His laws, 524. Chaftifes the Goths, 526. Second civil war with Licinius, 528.
- -, Motives which induced him to make Byzantium the capital of his empire, ii. 3. Declares his determination to fpring from divine command, 11. Despoils other cities of their ornaments to decorate his new capital, 15. Ceremony of de-dicating his new city, 22. Form of civil and military administration established there, 23. Separates the civil from the military administration, 43. Corrupted military difcipline, 44. His character, 74. Account of his family, 78. His jealoufy of his fon Crifpus, 81. Myfterious deaths of Crifpus and Licinius, 83. His repentance and acts of atonement inquired into, 84. His fons and nephews, 86. Sends them to Superintend the feveral provinces of the empire, 88. Afifts the Sarmatians, and provokes the Goths, 92. Reduces the Goths to peace, 94. His death, 96. Attempt to afcertain the date of his converfion to Christianity, 180. His Pagan Superftition, 182. Protects the Christians in Gaul, Publishes the edict of Milan, 184. Motives which recommended the Chriflians to his favour, 186. Exhorts his fubjects to embrace the Chriftian profession, 190. His famous standard the Labarum described, 194. His celebrated vision previous to his battle with Maxentius, 196. Story of the miraculous crofs in the air, 199. His converfion accounted for, from natural and probable causes, 201. His theological discourses, 203. His devotion and privileges, 204. The delay of his baptism accounted for, 205. Is commemorated as a faint by the Greeks, 207. His edict against heretics, 231. Favours the cause of Cæcilian against Donatus, 235. His sensible letter to the bifhop of Alexandria, 260. How prevailed on to ratify the Nicene creed, 26t. His levity in religion, 263. Granted a toleration to his Pagan fubjects, 305. His reform of Pagan abufes, 306. Was affociated with the Heathen Deities after his death, by a decree of the fenate, 308. His discovery of the holy sepulchre, 383.

-, Publication of his fictitious donation to the bishops of Rome, v. 1-5. Fabulous interdiction of marriage with strangers, ascribed to him, 491.

Conflantine II. the fon of Conflantine the Great, is fent to prefide over Gaul, ii. 88. Division of the empire among him and his brothers, on the death of their father, too. Invades his brother Conflans, and is killed, 110.

Constantine 111. emperor of Constantinople, v. 8.

- Conflantine IV. Pogonatus, emperor of Conflantinople, v. 12. Conflantine V. Copronymus, emperor of Conflan-
- Conflantine V. Copronymus, emperor of Conflantinople, v. 21. Fates of his five fons, 23. Revolt of Artavaídes, and troubles on account of image workip, 101. Abolifhes the monkifh order, 102.
- Constantine VI. emperor of Constantinople, v. 24.
- Conflantine VII. Porphyrogenitus, emperor of Conflantinople, v. 45. His cautions againft difcovering the fecret of the Greek fire, 404. Account of his works, 464. Their imperfections pointed out, 466. His account of the ceremonies of the Byzantine court, 490. Judifies the marriage of his fon with the prince's Bertha of France, 492.

Constantine VIII. emperor of Constantinople, v. 46.

- Conflantine IX. emperor of Conftantinople, v. 52.
- Conflantine X. Monomachus, emperor of Conflan, tinople, v. 56.
- Conflantine XI. Ducas, emperor of Conflantinople, v 60.
- Conflantine Palæologus, the laft of the Greek emperors, his reign, vi. 459.
- perors, his reign, vi. 459. Conflantine Sylvanus, founder of the Paulicians, his death, v. 526.
- Conflantine, a private foldier in Britain, elected emperor, for the fake of his name, iii. 174. He reduces Gaul and Spain, 175. 258. His reduction and death, 239.
- Conflantine, general under Belifarius in Italy, his death, iv. 193.
- death, iv. 193. Conflaminople, its futuation deferibed, with the motives which induced Conflamine the Great to make this city the capital of his empire, ii. 3. Its local advantages, 9. Its extent, 12. Progrefs of the work, 14. Principal edifices, 15. How furnifhed with inhabitants, 18. Privileges granted to it, 20. Its dedication, 21. Review of the new form of civil and military administration effablished there, 23. Is allotted to Conflamine the Younger, in the division of the empire, on the emperor's death, 100. Violent conteffs there between the rival bifloops, Paul and Macedonius, 296. Bloody engagement between the Athanafians and Arians on the removal of the body of Conflamine, 298. Triumphaut entry of the emperor Julian, 336. The fenate of, allowed the fame powers and honours as that at Rome, 350. Arrival of Valens, as emperor of the Eaf, 480. Revolt of Procopius, 491.
- Line Eafly, 489. Revolt of Procopius, 491.
   —, Continued the principal feat of the Arian herefy, during the reigns of Conflattius and Valens, iii. 13. Is purged from Arianifm by the

a

the emperor Theodofius, 17. Council of, 20. Is enriched by the bodies of faints and martyrs, 95. Infurrection against Gainas and his Arian Goths, 298. Perfecution of the archbifhop, St. Chryfoftom, 305. Popular tumults on his account, 306. Earthquake there, 366.

- ----, The city and eaftern empire diftrafted by the factions of the circus, iv. 61. Foundation of the church of St Sophia, 91. Other churches erefted there by Jufinian, 96. Triumph of Belifarius over the Vandals, 152. The walls of, injured by an carthquake, 315. State of the armies, under the emperor Maurice, 488. The armies and city revolt againft him, 491. Deliverance of the city from the Perfians and Avars, 519. Religious war about the Trifagion, 575.
- ligious war about the Trifagion, 575. —, Profpectus of the remaining hittory of the Eaflern empire, v. 1. Summary review of the five dynafties of the Greek empire, 85. Tumults in the city to oppofe the deftruction of images, 100. Abolizion of the monkifh order by Conflantine, 102. Firlf fiege of, by the Saracens, 393. Second fiege by the Saracens, 397. Review of the provinces of the Greek empire, in the tenth century, 468. Riches of the city of Conflantinople, 478. The imperial palace of, 480. Officers of flate, 485. Military character of the Greeks, 500. The name and character of Romans, fupported to the laft, 510. Decline, and revival of literature, 511. The city menaced by the Turks, 556. Account of the Varangians, 561. Naval expeditions of the Ruffians again! the city, 566.
- -----, Origin of the feparation of the Greek and Latin churches, vi. 121. Maffacre of the Latins, 120. Invafion of the Greek empire, and conquelt of Conflantinople by the crufaders, 149. The city taken, and Ifaac Angelus reflored, 157. Part of the city burned by the Latins, 150. Second fiege of the city by the Latins, 162. Is pillaged, 165. Account of the flatues deftroyed, 171. Partition of the Greek empire by the French and Venetians, 174. The Greeks rife againft their Latin conquerors, 185. The city retaken by the Greeks, 204. The fuburb of Galata, affigned to the Genoefe, 280. Hoftilities between the Genoefe and the emperor, 283. How the city efcaped the Moguls, 308. Is befieged by the fultan Amurath II. 371. Is compared with Rome, 434. Is befieged by Mahomet II. fultan of the Turks, 477. Is flormed and taken, 500. Becomes the capital of the Turkin empire. co8.
- capital of the Turkifh empire, 508. Conflantius Colorus, governor of Dalmatia, was intended to be adopted by the emperor Carus, in the room of his vicious fon Carinus, i. 414. Is affectated as Cafar by Diocletian in his adminifiration, 427. Affumes the title of Augufus, on the abdication of Diocletian, 476. His death, 482. Granted a toleration to the Christians, 691.

Conflantius, the fecond fon of Constantine the Great, his education, if. 87. Is fent to govern the Eaftern provinces of the empire, 88. Seizes Constantinople on the death of his father, 98. Confpires the deaths of his kinfmen, 99. Division of the empire among him and his brothers, 100. Reftores Chofroes king of Armenia, 104. Battle of Singara with Sapor king of Perfia, 105. Rejects the offers of Magnentius and Vetranio, on the plea of a vision, 114. His oration to the Illyriau troops at the interview with Vetranio, 116. Defeats Magnentius at the battle of Murfa, 120. His councils governed by eunuchs, 126. Education of his coufins Gallus and Julian, 128. Difgrace and death of Gallus, 134. Sends for Julian to court, 139. Invests him with the title of Cæfar, 141. Visits Rome, 144. Prefents an obelifk to that city, 146. The Qua-dian and Sarmatian wars, 147. His Perlian negociations, 150. Milmanagement of affairs in the East, 158. Favours the Arians, 264. His religious character by Ammianus the hitlorian, 266. His reftless endeavours to establish an uniformity of Chrillian dottrine, 267. Athana-fus driven into exile by the council of Antioch, 275. Is intimidated by his brother Conflans, and invites Athanafus back again, 278. His fevere treatment of those bishops who refused to concur in depofing Athanahus, 282. His fcrupulous orthodoxy, 284. His cautious conduct in expelling Athanafius from Alexandria, 285. His ftrenuous efforts to feize his perfon, 288. Athanafius writes invectives to expose his character, 291. Is conditained to reftore Liberius bifhop of Rome, 295. Supports Macedonius, bishop of Conflantinople, and countenances his perfecutions of the Catholics and Novatians, 299. His con-duct toward his Pagan fubjects, 307. Envies the fame of Julian, 312. Recals the legions from Gaul, 313. Negociations between him and Ju-lian, 324. Ilis preparations to oppole Julian,

- 333. His death and character, 335. Conflantius, general, relieves the British emperor Constantine when beforged in Arles, iii. 259. His character and victories, 260. His marriage with Placidia, and death, 327.
- Conflantius, fecretary to Attila king of the Huns, his matrimonial negociation at the court of Conflantinople, iii. 376.
- flantinople, iii. 376. Conful, the office of, explained, i. 79. Alterations this office underwent under the emperors, and when Conflantinople became the feat of empire, ii. 26. The office of, supprefied by the emperor Jufinian, iv. 119. Is now funk to a commercial agent, vi. 535.

Contracts, the Roman laws respecting. iv. 395.

Copts of Egypt, brief hiltory of, iv. 610.

Corintb, reviving as a Roman colony, celebrates the Idhmian games, under the emperor Julian, ii. 340. The ithmus cf, fortified by the emperor fußinian, iv. 101.

Corvinus,

9

Corvinus, Matthias, king of Hungary, his character, vi. 453. Cornwal, reduction of, by the Saxons, iii. 617.

Coronary gold, nature of those offerings to the Roman emperors, ii. 71.

- Cosmas Indicopleustes, account of his Christian topography, iv. 79. note. 596. note.
- Cosmo of Medicis, his character, vi. 430.

Councils and fynods of Antioch, ii. 275.

Arles, ii. 280.

Bafil, vi. 399.

Carthage, iii. 539. iv. 147.

Chalcedon, iii. 306. iv. 566.

Clermont, vi. 6.

Constance, vi. 394. 398. 605.

Conflantinople, iii. 20. iv. 584. 588. v. 98.

vi. 125.

Ephefus, iv. 554. 564. Ferrara, vi. 406.

Florence, vi. 407.

Frankfort, v. 131.

Lyons, iii. 570. vi. 198. 240.

Milan, ii. 280.

Nice, ii. 250. v. 129.

Pifa, vi. 398.604.

Placentia, vi. 4.

Rimini, ii. 259.

Sardica, ii. 276.

Toledo, iii. 551. 553. 609.

- Tyre, ii. 272. Count, great difference between the ancient and modern application of this title, ii. 43. By whom first invented, 44. Of the facred largesses, under Constantine the Great, his office, 55. Of the domestics in the Eastern empire, his office, 57. Courtenay, history of the family of, vi 211.
- Crescentius, conful of Rome, his vicifitudes, and difgraceful death, v. 158.
- Crete, the isle of, fubdued by the Saracens, v. 436. Is recovered by Nicephorus Phocas, 458. Is purchafed by the Venetians, vi. 178.
- Crimes, how diffinguished by the penal laws of the
- Romans, iv. 406. Criffus, fon of Conflantine the Great, is declared Diftinguishes his valour against Cæfar, i. 523. the Franks and Alemanni, 526. Forces the paf-fage of the Hellespont, and defeats the fleet of Licinius, 531. His character, ii. 79. His mysterious death, 83.
- Cri/pus, the Patrician, marries the daughter of Phocas, and contributes to depose him, iv. 497. Is obliged to turn monk, 499.

Croatia, account of the kingdom of, v. 544.

Crofs, the different fentiments entertained of this infrument of pusifilment, by the Pagan and Chriftian Romans, ii. 193. The famous fland-ard of, in the army of Conflantine the Great de-fribed, 194. His visions of, 196. 199. The holy fepulchre and crofs of Chrift difforced, 384. The crofs of Chrift undiminished by distribution to pilgrims, 385.

- Crown of thorns, its transfer from Constantinople to Paris, vi. 200.
- Crowns, mural and oblidional, the diffinction between, ii. 440. note.
- Crusade, the first reiolved on at the council of Clermont, vi. 8. Enquiry into the justice of the holy war, 9. Examination into the private motives of the crufaders, 14. Departure of the crufaders, 17. Account of the chiefs, 21. Their march to Confantinople, 29. Review of their numbers, 38. They take Nice, 41. Battle of Dorylaum, 42. They take Antioch, 46. Their diftreffes, 49. Are relieved by the difco-very of the holy lance, 52. Siege and conqueft of Jerulalem, 57. Godfrey of Bouillon chofen king of Jerualem, 61. The fecond crufade, 75. The crufaders ill treated by the Greek emperors, 78. The third crufade, 100. Siege of Acre, 102. Fourth and fifth crufades, 109. Sixth cru-fade, 113. Seventh crufade, 116. Recapitula-tion of the fourth crufade. 141. General confequences of the crufades, 206.
- Ctefiphon, the city of, plundered by the Romans, i. 251. Its fituation defcribed, ii. 44t. Julian declines the fiege of that city, 446. Is facked by the Saracens, v. 287.

Cublai, emperor of China, his character, vi. 306.

- Curopalata, his office under the Greek emperors, v. 485.
- Customs, duties of, imposed by Augustus, i. 197.
- Cycle of indictions, the origin of, traced, and how now employed, ii. 62. note.
- Cyprian, bishop of Carthage, his history and martyrdom, i. 654.
- Cyprus, the kingdom of, bestowed on the house of Lusignan, by Richard I. of England, vi. 131.
- Cyrene, the Greek colonies there finally exterminated by Chofroes II. king of Perfia, iv. 503.
- Cyriades, an obscure fugitive, is set up by Sapor the Perfian monarch, as emperor of Rome,
- i. 328. Cyril, bishop of Jerusalem, his pompous relation of the miraculous appearance of a celeflial crofs, ii. 265. His ambiguous character, 385.
- Cyril, patriarch of Alexandria, his life and character, iv. 545. Condemns the herefy of Nefto-rius, 553. Procures the decifion of the council of Ephefus against Nestorius, 555. His court intrigues, 559.
- Cyzicus, how it escaped destruction from the Goths, i. 321. Is at length ruined by them, 322. The island and city of, feized by the usurper Procopius, ii. 492.

Dacia, conquest of, by the emperor Trajan, i. 6. Its fituation, 28. Is over-run by the Goths, 298. Is refigned to them by Aurelian, 356.

3

Dæmons,

- Damons, supposed to be the authors and objects of Pagan idolatry, by the primitive Christians, i. 552.
- Dagisteur, general of the emperor Justinian, befieges Petra, iv. 259. Commands the Huns in Italy under Narfes, 300.
- Daimbert, archbishop of Pifa, installed patriarch of Jerufalem, vi. 63.
- Dalmatia described, i. 28. Produce of a filver mine there, 196. nots.
- Created Cæfar, ii. 87. Is fent to govern the Gothic frontier, 88. Is cruelly deftroyed by Conftantius, 99.
- Damascus, fiege of, by the Saracens, v. 300. The city reduced both by ftorm and by treaty, 307. Remarks on Hughes's tragedy of this fiege, 310. note. Taken and deftroyed by Tamerlane,
- vi. 347. Dama/us, bishop of Rome, edict of Valentinian addreffed to him, to reftrain the crafty avarice of the Roman clergy, ii. 510. His bloody contest with Urfinus for the epifcopal dignity, 513.
- Dames, the Arab, his gallant enterprise against the caftle of Aleppo, v. 324. Damietta, is taken by Louis IX. of France, vi. 115.

- Damophilus, archbishop of Constantinople, refigns his fee, rather than fubfcribe the Nicene creed, iii. 17.
- Dandalo, Henry, doge of Venice, his character, vi. 139. Is made despot of Romania, 177.
- Danicl, first bishop of Winchester, his instructions to St. Boniface, for the conversion of infidels, iii. 531.
- Danielis, a Grecian matron, her prefents to the emperor Bafil, v. 475. Her visit to him at Con-stantinople, 482. Her testament, 483. stantinople, 482.
- Danube, courfe of the river, and the provinces of, defcribed, i. 26.
- Daphne, the facred grove and temple of, at An-tioch, defcribed, ii. 396. Is converted to Chriftian purpoles by Gallus, and reflored to the Pagans by Julian, 399. The temple burned, 400.
- Dara, the fortification of, by Justinian, described, iv. 109. The demolition of, by the Persians, prevented by peace, 24t. Is taken by Chofroes king of Perfia, 466.
- Darius, his scheme for connecting the continents of Europe and Afia, ii. 5.
- Darkness, præternatural, at the time of the passion, is unnoticed by the heathen philosophers and historians, i. 618.
- Dastagard, the Persian royal feat of, plundered by the emperor Heraclius, iv. 524. Datianus, governor of Spain, yields ready obedience - to the Imperial edicts against the Christians, i. 691.
- Datius, bishop of Milan, instigates the revolt of the Ligurians to Justinian, iv. 190. Escapes to Constantinople on the taking of Milan by the Burgundians, 196.

1

- Debtors, infolvent, cruel punifhment of, by the law of the twelve tables, iv. 401. Decemvirs, review of the laws of their twelve
- tables, iv. 335. Thefe laws superfeded by the perpetual edict, 349. Severity of, 399.
- Decius, his exaltation to the empire, i. 290. Was a persecutor of the Christians, 671.
- Decurions, in the Roman empire, are feverely treated by the Imperial laws, ii. 63.
- Deification of the Roman emperors, how this species of idolatry was introduced, i. 84.
- Delators, are encouraged by the emperor Commodus, to gratify his hatred of the fenate, i. 107. Are suppressed by Pertinax, 122.
- Delphi, the facred ornaments of the temple of, removed to Conftantinople by Conftantine the Great, ii. 16. note.
- Democracy, a form of government unfavourable to freedom in a large state. i. 41.
- Demosthenes, governor of Cæsarea, his gallant defence against, and heroic escape from, Sapor king
- of Perfia, i. 329. Deogratias, bishop of Carthage, humanely succours the captives brought from Rome by Genferic king of the Vandals, iii. 442.
- Derar the Saracen, his character, v. 303. Defiderius, the last king of the Lombards, conquered by Charlemagne, v. 118.
- Deffot, nature of that title in the Greek empire, v. 485.
- Despotism originates in superstition, i. 272. note.
- Diadem affumed by Diocletian, what, i. 462.
- Diamonds, the art of cutting them, unknown to the ancients, i. 198. note.
- Didius Julianus, purchases the imperial dignity at a public auction, i. 131.
- Diocefes of the Roman empire, their number and government, ii. 36.
- Diocletian, the manner of his military election to the empire, i 421. his birth and character, 423-Takes Maximian for his colleague, 425. Affo-ciates as Carfars, Galerius, and Conflantius Chlorus, 427. His triumph in conjunction with Maximian, 455. Fixes his court at the city of Nicomedia, 457. Abdicates the empire, 465. Nicomedia, 457. Parallel between him and the emperor Charles V. 466. Passes his life in retirement at Salona, 468. His impartial behaviour toward the Christians, 676. Caufes that produced the perfecution of the Christians under his reign, 677.
- Dion Caffius the historian, screened from the fury of the foldiers, by the emperor Alexander Severus, i. 189.
- Diofcorus, patriarch of Alexandria, his outrageous behaviour at the fecond council of Ephefus, iv. 564. Is deposed by the council of Chalcedon, 568.
- Disabul, great khan of the Turks, his reception of the ambassadors of Justinian, iv. 231.

Divorse,

- Divorce, the liberty and abufe of, by the Roman laws, iv. 377. Limitations of, 379.
- Docetes, their peculiar tenets, ii. 241. iv. 537. Derivation of their name, ii. 242. note.
- Dominic, St. Loricatus, his forticude in flagellation, vi. 13.
- Dominus, when this epithet was applied to the Roman emperors, i. 460.
- Domitian, emperor, his treatment of his kinfmen Flavius Sabinus, and Flavius Clemens, i. 644.
- Domitian, the Oriental prefect, is fent by the emperor Constantius, to reform the state of the East, then oppressed by Gallus, ii. 132. Is put to - death there, 133. Donatus, his conteft with Cæcilian for the fee of Carthage, ii. 234. Hiftory of the fchilim of the Donatifts, 235, 300. Perfecution of the Donatifts by the emperor Honorius, iii. 338.
- Dorylæum, battle of, between fultan Soliman and
- the first crusaders, vi. 43. Dexology, how introduced in the church-fervice, and how perverted, ii. 293.
- Dramatic representations at Rome, a character of, iii. 216.
- Dreams, the popular opinion of the preternatural origin of, favourable to that of Constantine pre- vious to his battle with Maxentius, ii. 197. Dromedary, extraordinary speed of this animal, 1. 372. note.
- Dromones of the Greek empire, described, v. 498.
- Druids, their power in Gaul suppressed by the emperors Tiberius and Claudius, i. 39.
- Druses of mount Libanus, a character of, v. 680. note.
- Duke, derivation of that title, and great change in the modern, from the ancient application of it, 11. 43.
- Durazzo, fiege of, by Robert Guifcard, v. 612. Battle of, between him and the Greek emperor Alexius, 616.
  - E
- Earthquake, an extraordinary one over great part of the Roman empire, ii. 56t. Account of those that happened in the reign of Jullinian, iv. 326.
- East India, the Roman commercial intercourse with that region, i. 66. Commodities of, taxed by Alexander Severus, 198.

Ebionites, account of that fect, i. 546.

- -, A confutation of their errors, fuppofed by the primitive fathers, to be a particular object in the writings of St. John the Evangelift, ii. 240. ----, Their ideas of the perfon of Jefus Chrift, iv. 533.
- Ecclefiastes, the book of, why not likely to be the production of king Solomon, iv. 153. note.
- Ecclefiastical and civil powers, diffinguished, by the fathers of the Chriftian church, ii. 212.
- Ecdicius, fon of the emperor Avitus, his gallant conduct in Gaul, iii. 482.

Ectbefis of the emperor Heraclius, iv. 587.

- Edda, of Iceland, the fystem of mythology in, i. 293:
- Edecon, is fent from Attila king of the Huns, as his ambaffador to the emperor Theodofius the Younger, iii. 377. Engages in a propofal to affaffinate Attila, 387. His fon Odoacer, the firft Barbarian king of Italy, 494.
- Eddfa, the purell dialect of the Syriac language fpoken there, i. 251. note. The property of the Christians there, conficated by the emperor Ja-lian, for the diforderly conduct of the Arians, ii. 404. Revolt of the Roman troops there, iv. 4 9. Account of the fchool of, 594 Hiltory of the Account of the fchool of, 594 Hillory of the famous image there, v. 93. The city and prin-cipality of, feized by Baldwin the Crufader, vi. 45. Is retaken by Zenghi, 87. The counts of, 212.
- Edict of Milan, published by Constantine the Great, ii. 184.
- Edicts of the prætors of Rome, under the republic, their nature and tendency, iv. 341.
- Edom, why that name was applied to the Roman empire by the Jews, i. 624. note.-Edrifites, the Saracen dynasty of, v. 453.
- Edward 1. of England, his crufade to the Holy Land, vi. 118.
- Egidius, his character, and revolt in Gaul, iii. 466. His fon Syagrius, 561.
- Egypt, general description of, i. 31. The fuperflitions of, with difficulty tolerated at Rome, 39. Amount of its revenues, 195. Public works ex-cuted there by Probus, 406. Conduct of Dioclefian there, 439. Progrefs of Christianity there,
- 607. —, Edict of the emperor Valens, to reftrain the number of recluse monks there, ii. 510.
- -. The worship of Scrapis how introduced there, iii. 82. This temple, and the Alexandrian library deflroyed by bishop Theophilus, 84. Origin of monkish institutions in, 507.
- -, Great fupplies of wheat furnished by, for the city of Conflantinople, in the time of Juffinian,
- -, Reduced by the Saracens, v. 333. Capture of Alexandria, 240 Adminiation of Alexandria of Alexandria, 339. Administration of, 345. Defeription of, by Amrou, 346. ----, The Egyptians take Jerufalem from the
- Turks, vi. 55. Egypt conquered by the Turks, Government of the Mamalukes there, 89. 117
- Elagabalus, is declared emperor by the troops at Emefa, i. 174. Was the first Roman who wore garments of pure filk, iv. 73. Elephants, enquiry into the numbers of, brought
- into the field by the ancient princes of the Eaft, i. 253. note. With what view introduced in the circus at Rome in the first Punic war, 417.
- Eleufinian mysteries, why tolerated by the emperor Valentinian, ii. 505.

Elizabeth,

Elizabeth, queen of England, the political use the made of the national pulpits, ii. 227. note.

Emigration of the ancient northern nations, the nature and motives of, examined, i. 271.

- Of Constantinople, their pomp and luxury, 479. Officers of the palace, state, and army, 485. Adoration of the emperor, mode of, 487. Their moration the chipped and the chipped and the chipped and the chipped and chipp
- the Western empire, iii. 494.
- Encampment, Roman, defcribed, i. 19. Ennodius, the fervile flatterer of Theodoric the Oftrogoth king of Italy, is made bishop of Pavia, iv. 13. note.
- Epagathus, leader of the mutinous prætorians, who murdered their præfect Ulpian, punished by the emperor Alexander Severus, i. 189.
- Ephefus, the famous temple of Diana at, destroyed by the Goths, i. 324. Council of, iv. 554. Episcopal riots there, 557.
- Epicurus, his legacy to his philosophical disciples at
- Athens, iv. 115. Epirus, defpots of, on the difmemberment of the Greek empire, vi. 183.
- Equitius, master general of the Illyrian frontier, is defeated by the Sarmatians, ii. 555.

Erasmus, his merit as a reformer, v. 539.

- Esenians, their diffinguishing tenets and practices, i. 6c6.
- Eucharist a knotty fubject to the first reformers, v. 536.
- Eudes; duke of Aquitain, repels the first Saracen invation of France, v. 406. Implores the aid of Charles Martel, 409. Recovers his dukedom, 412.
- Eudocia, her birth, character, and marriage, with the emperor Theodofius the Younger, iii. 318. Her difgrace and death, 321.
- Eudoxia, her marriage with the emperor Arcadius, iii. 112. Stimulates him to give up his favourite Eutropius, 295. Perfecutes St. Chryfoftom, 305. Her death and character, 310.
- Eudoxia, the daughter of Theodofius the Younger, is betrothed to the young emperor Valenti-nian III. of the Weft, iii. 331. Her character, 431. Is married to the emperor Maximus, 438. Invites Genferic king of the Vandals to Italy, 439.
- Eudoxus, bishop of Constantinople, baptifes the emperor Valens, ii. 506.
- Eugenius the Rhetorician is made emperor of the West by Arbogasles the Frank, iii. 59. Is de-feated and killed by Theodosius, 64. Vol. VI. 4 Q

- Eugenius, IV. pope, his contest with the council of Bafil, vi. 399. Procures a re-union of the Latin and Greek churches, 412. Forms a league
- against the Turks, 443. Revolt of the Roman citizens against him, 607.
- Eumenius the Orator, some account of, i. 474. note. Eunapius the Sophift, his character of monks, and
- of the objects of their worthip, iii. 93. Eunomians, punishment of, by the edict of the em-
- peror Theodofius against heretics, iii. 25.
- Eunuchs, enumerated in the lift of Eastern commodities imported and taxed in the time of Alexander Severus, i. 198. They infeft the palace of - the third Gordian, 231. , Their afcendency in the court of Conflan-tius, ii. 126. Why they favoured the Arians, 264. note. Procure the banifhment of Liberius bifhop of Rome, 294. -, A confpiracy of, difappoint the fchemes of
- Rufinus, and marry the emperor Arcadius to Eudoxia, iii. 112. They diftract the court of the emperor Honorius, 228. And govern that of Arcadius, 284. Scheme of Chryfaphius to affaf-finate Attila king of the Huns, 387.
- -, The bishop of Seez and his whole chapter
- caftrated, vi. 525. note. Euric, king of the Vifigoths in Gaul, his conqueits in Spain, iii. 481. Is vested with all the Roman conquests beyond the Alps by Odoacer king of Italy, 558.
- Europe, evidences that the climate of, was much colder in ancient than in modern times, i. 260. This alteration accounted for, 261.
- -, Final division of, between the Western and Eastern empires, iii. 104. Is ravaged by Attila king of the Huns, 365. Is now, one great republic, 634.
- Eusebia, empress, wife of Constantius, her steady friendship to Julian, ii. 137. 139. Is accused of arts to deprive Julian of children, 142.
- Eusebius, his character of the followers of Artemon, i. 614. His own character, 699. His ftory of the miraculous appearance of the crofs in the fky to Constantine the Great, ii. 199.
- Eutropius the Eunuch, great chamberlain to the emperor Arcadius, concerts his marriage with Eudoxia, in opposition to the views of Rufinus, iii. 112. Succeeds Rufinus in the emperor's confidence, 121. His character and administration, 284. Provides for his own fecurity, in a new law againft treafon, 290. Takes fanctuary with St. Chryfoftom, 296. His death, 297. Eutyches, his opinion on the fubject of the incarna-
- tion fupported by the fecond council at Ephefus, And adhered to by the Armenians, iv. 564. 608.
- Euxine Sea, description of the veffels used in navi- gating, i. 317. Exaltation of the crofs, origin of the annual feffival of, iv. 529.

Exarch,

Gennadius, the monk, his denunciation against a Greek union with the Latin church, vi. 482.

- Gennerid, the Roman general, under the emperor Honorius, his character, iii. 227.
- Genoefe, their mercantile citablifhment in the fuburb of Pera at Conftantinople, vi. 280. Their war with the emperor Cantacuzenus, 284.
- with the emperor Cantacuzenus, 284. Genferic, king of the Vandals in Spain, his charaêter, ili, 335. Goes over to Africa on the invitation of count Boniface, 336. His fucceffes there by the affiftance of the Donatifts, 339. Devafation of Africa by his troops, 344. Befieges Boniface in Hippo Regius, 342. His treacherous furprifal of Carthage, 347. Strengthens himfelf by an alliance with Attila king of the Huns, 363. His brutal treatment of his fon's wife, daughter of Theodoric, 400. Raifes a naval force, and invades Italy, 436. His fack of Rome, 440. Deftroys the fleet of Majorian, 463. His naval depredations on Italy, 467. His claims on the Eaftern empire, 468. Deftroys the Roman fleet under Bafilicus, 479. Was an Arian, and perfecuted his Catholic fubjects, 356.
- Geoponics of the emperor Conftantine Porphyrogenitus, account of, v. 465.
- George of Cappadocia fuperfedes Athanafius in the fee of Alexandria, ii. 287. Itis feandalous hiftory, and tragical death, 400. Becomes the tutelar faint of England, 404.
- Gepidæ, their incroachments on the Eastern empire checked by the Lombards, iv. 215. Are reduced by them, 424.
- Germanus, nephew of the emperor Justinian, his character and promotion to the command of the army fent to Italy, iv. 297. His death, 298.
- Germany, the rude inflictutions of that country the original principles of European laws and manners, i. 250. Its ancient extent, 260. How peopled, 263. The natives unacquainted with letters in the time of Tacitus, 265. Had no cities, 266. Manners of the ancient Germans, 268. Population, 270. State of liberty among them, 271. Authority of their magiftrates, 274. Conjugal faith and chafity, 276. Their religion, 278. Arms and difcipline, 282. Their feuds, 285. General idea of the German tribes, 287. Probus carries the Roman arms into Germany, 390. A frontier wall built by Probus, from the Rhine to the Danube, 401.
- ____, Invalions of Gaul by the Germans, ii. 160.
- 515. , State of, under the emperor Charlemagne, v. 142. The Imperial crown eftablifhed in the name and nation of Germany, by the first Otho, 149. Division of, among independent princes, 162. Formation of the Germanic confliction, 164. State asflumed by the emperor, 167.
- Gerontius, count, fets up Maximus as emperor in Spain, and lofes his life in the attempt, iii. 258.

Geta and Caracalla, fons of the emperor Severus, their fixed antipathy to each other, i. 156.

Gbebers of Perfia, hittory of, v. 383.

- Gibraltar, derivation of the name of, v. 368.
- Gildo the Moor, his revolt in Africa, iii. 123. His defeat and death, 129.
- Gladiators, defperate enterprize and fate of a party of, referved for the triumph of Probus, i. 466. The combats of, abolished by the emperor Honorius, iii. 157.
- Glycerius is first emperor of Rome, and then bishop of Salona, iii. 491. Murders Julius Nepos, and is made archbishop of Milan, 492.
- Gnoffics, character and account of the feet of, i. 547. Principal feets into which they divided, 550. Their peculiar tenets, ii. 241. iv. 537.
- Godfrey of Bouillon, his character, and engagement in the first crufade, vi. 22. His route to Confiantinople, 29. 33. Is elected king of Jerufalem, 61. Compiles the Alfize of Jerufalem, 66. Form of his administration, 67.
- Gog and Magog, the famous rampart of, defcribed, iv. 111.
- Goifvintha, wife of Leovigild, king of Spain, her pious cruelty to the princels Ingundis, iii. 548.
- Gold of affliction, the tax fo denominated in the Eastern empire abolished by the emperor Anaflatius, iv. 80.
- Golden horn, why the Bosphorus obtained this appellation in remote antiquity, ii. 6.
- Gordianus, proconful of Africa, his character and elevation to the empire of Rome, i. 213. His fon affociated with him in the imperial dignity, 214.
- Gordian, the third and youngeft, declared Cæfar, i. 221. Is declared emperor by the army, on the murder of Maximus and Balbinus, 230.
- the murder of Maximus and Balbinus, 230. Goths of Scandinavia, their origin. i. 291. Their religion, 293. The Goths and Vandals fuppofed to be originally one great people. 295. Their emigrations to Prufia and the Ukraine, ibid. They invade the Roman provinces, 298. They receive tribute from the Romans, 305. They fubdue the Bofphorus, 317. Plunder the cities of Bithynia, 320. They ravage Greece, 323. Conclude a treaty with the emperor Aurelian, 355. They ravage Illyricum, and are chaftied by Conftantine the Great, 526.
- , Their war with the Sarmatians, ii. 92. Are again routed by Conflantine, 93. Gothic war under the emperors Valentinian and Valens, 548. Are defeated by the Huns, 588. They implore the protection of the emperor Valens, 592. They are received into the empire, 594. They are opprefied by the Roman governors of Thrace, 597. Are provoked to hoftilities, and defeat Lupicinus, 600. They ravage Thrace, 601. Battle of Salices, 603. They are firengthened by fresh fwarms of their countrymen, 6c6. Battle of Inderianople, 613. Scour Scour the country from Hadrianople to Conftan-Maffacre of the Gothic youth tinople, 618. in Afia, 621. Their formidable union broken by the death of Fritigern, 631. Death and funeral of Athanaric, 632. Invafion and defeat of the Offrogoths, 633. Are fettled in Thrace by Theodofius, 636. Their hoftile fentiments, 638.

- , Revolt of the Goths under Honorius, iii. 134. They ravage Greece, under the command of Alaric, 136. They invade Italy, 144. The fack of Rome by, 235. Death of Alaric, 249. Victories of Wallia in Spain, 269. They are fettled in Aquitain, 270. See Gaul, and Theo-doric. Conqueft of the Vifigoths in Gaul and Spain, 481. How the Goths were converted to
- the Christian religion, 527-550. —, Reign of Theodoric king of the Offrogoths, iv. 1. The Goths in Italy, extinguished, 313.
- Government, civil, the origin of, i. 272.
- Governors of provinces, under the emperors, their great power and influence, ii. 42.
- Gratian was the first emperor who refused the pon-tifical robe, ii. 309. note. Marries the princess Constantia, and succeeds to the empire, 558. Defeats the Alemanni in Gaul, 609. Inveits Theodofius with the empire of the Eaft, 623.

-, His character and conduct, iii. 1. His flight from Maximus, and death, 7. Overthrew the ecclefiastical establishment of Paganism, 72.

- Greece, is ravaged by the Goths, i. 323. Is over-run by Alaric the Goth, iii. 136. Is reduced by the Turks, vi. 512.
- Greek church, origin of the schism of, vi. 121. 412.

437. Greek empire. See Constantinople.

Greeks, why averfe to the Roman language and manners, i. 46. The Greek becomes a fcientific language among the Romans, 47. Character of the Greek language of Constantinople, vi. 415. When first taught in Italy, 423.

Greek learning, revival of, in Italy, vi. 417

- Gregory the Great, pope, his pious prefents to Recared king of Spain, iii. 551. Exhorts Theodelinda queen of the Lombards to propagate the Nicene faith, ibid. His enmity to the venerable buildings and learning of Rome, iv. 454. His birth and early profession, 456. His elevation to the pontificate, 458. Sends a mission to convert the Britons, 460. Sanctifies the ulurpation of the emperor Phocas, 494.
- Gregory II. pope, his epiftles to Leo III. emperor of Constantinople, V. 105. Revolts against the Greek emperor, 108.
- Gregory VII. pope, his ambitious schemes, v. 155. His contest with the emperor Henry III. 621. His retreat to Salerno, 623. VI. 525
- Gregory, præfect of Africa, hiftory of him and his daughter, V. 351.

Gregory Nazianzen, his lamentation on the difgraceful difcord among Christians, ii. 304. Loads the memory of the emperor Julian with invective, 356. Cenfures Constantius for having spared his life, 368. note.

- Gregory Nazianzen is prefented to the wretched fee of Safima, by his friend archbishop Bafil, iii. 15. His mission to Constantinople, 16. Is placed on the archiepiscopal throne by Theodosius, 18. His
- refignation and character, 23. Grumbates, king of the Chionites, attends Sapor king of Perfia, in his invafion of Mefopotamia, ii. 153. Lofes his fon at the fiege of Amida, 154. Returns home in grief, 157.
- Guardianship, how vefled and exercised, according - to the Roman civil laws, iv. 383. Gubazes, king of Colchos, his alliance with Chofroes king of Persia, iv. 258. Returns to his former connexion with the emperor Justinian, 259. Is treacheroufly killed, 263.
- Guelphs and Ghibelines, the parties of, in Italy, v. 162. vi. 566.
- Guilt, the degrees of, in the penal laws of the Romans, iv. 406.
- Guiscard, Robert, his birth and character, v. 598. Acquires the dukedom of Apulia, 601. His Italian conquests. 603. Belieges Durazzo, 611. Defeats the Greek emperor Alexius there, 616. Engages in the caufe of pope Gregory VII. 622. His fecond expedition to Greece, and death, 623.
- Gundobald, king of the Burgundians, is reduced by Clovis king of the Franks, iii. 571. His mode of juftifying the judicial combat, 590.
- Gunpowder, the invention and use of, vi. 375.
- Guy of Lufignan, king of Jerufalem, his character, vi. 96. Is defeated and taken prifoner by Saladin, 97.
- Gyarus, a fmall island in the Ægean fea, an instance of its poverty, i. 196.

H

- Hadrian, emperor, relinquistes the eastern conquests of Trajan, i. 9. Their characters compared, ibid. His character contrasted with that of Antoninus Pius, ibid. His feveral adoptions of fucceffors, 92. Founds the city of Ælia Capitolina on mount Sion, 545.
- -, Reforms the laws of Rome in the perpetual
- edict, iv. 343. Hadrianople, battle of, between Constantine the Great, and Licinius, i. 529. Is ineffectually befieged by Fritigern the Goth, ii. 602. Battle of, between the emperor Valens and the Goths, 613.
- Hakem, caliph of the Saracens, affumes a divine character to supplant the Mahometan faith, v. 680.
- Hamadanites, the Saracen dynasty of, in Mesopotamia, v. 455:

Hannibal, review of the flate of Rome when he befieged that city, iii. 194.

Hannibalianus.

- Hannibalianus, nephew of Constantine the Great, is dignified with the title of king, ii. 87. Provinces affigned to him for a kingdom, 88. Is
- cruelly deftroyed by Constantius, 99. Happiness, instance how little it depends on power
- and magnificence, v. 421. Harmozan, the Persian fatrap, his interview with
- the caliph Omar, v. 291. Harpies, in ancient mythologic history, Le Clerc's
- conjecture concerning, ii. 4. note. Harun al Rashid, caliph, his friendly correspondence - with the emperor Charlemagne, v. 145. His wars with the Greek empire, 431. Haffan, the Saracen, conquers Carthage, v. 359.
- Hawking, the art and fport of, introduced into Italy, by the Lombards, iv. 448. Hegira, the æra of, how fixed, v. 225.
- Helena, the mother of Constantine, her parentage afcertained, i. 480. Was converted to Chriftianity by her fon, ii. 182. note.
- Helena, fifter of the emperor Constantius, married to Julian, if. 139. Is reported to be deprived of children by the arts of the emprefs Eufebia, 142. Her death, 324.
- Heliopolis taken by the Saracens, v. 316.
- Hell, according to Mahomet, defcribed, v. 217.
- Hellespont described, ii. 7.
- Helvetia, amount of its population in the time of Cæfar, i. 270. note.
- Hengist, his arrival in Britain, with fuccours for Vortigern, against the Caledonians, iii. 611. His establishment in Kent, 612. 615.
- Henoticon of the emperer Zeno, character of, iv. 572.
- Henry ucceeds his brother Baldwin as emperor of Constantinople, vi. 188. His character and administration, 190.
- Henry III. emperor, his contest with pope Gregory VII. v. 621. Takes Rome, and fets up pope Clement III. 622.
- Henry VI. emperor, conquers and pillages the ifland of Sicily, v. 642.
- Henry the fowler, emperor of Germany, defeats the
- Turkift invaders, v. 557. Heptarchy, Saxon, eftabliftment of, in Britain, iii. 614. Review of the flate of, 622. Heraclian, count of Africa, retains that province in
- obedience to Honorius, ili 234. His cruel ulage of the refugees from the fack of Rome by Alaric, 243. His revolt and death, 256.

Heracleanas, emperor of Conftantinople, v. 8.

Heraclius, depoies the Eastern ufurper Phocas, and is cholen emperor, iv. 498. Conquelts cf Chol-roes II. king of Perfia, 501. His dittrefsful fi-tuation, 506. Accepts an ignominious peace from Cholroes, 500. His first expedition againft the Perfians, 511. His fecond Perfian expedition, 514. Strengthens himself by an alliance with the Turks, 521. His third Persian expedition, 522. His treaty of peace with Perfia, 528. His triumph and pilgrimage to Jerusalem, 529. Ilis theological inquiries, $86.

- Heraclius marries his niece Martina, v. 7. Leaves his two fons joint fucceffors to the empire, 8. Invalion of his provinces by the Saracens, 302. Flies from Syria, 327.
- Heraclius the priefect, his expedition against the Vandals in Africa, iii. 476.
- Heraclius the cunuch, infligates the emperor Valentinian III. to the murder of the patrician Ætius, iii. 429. His death, 432.
- Herbelot, character of his Bibliotheque Orientale v. 283. note.
- Hercynian foreft, the extent of, unknown in the time
- of Cæfar, i. 261. note. Herefy in religion, the origin of, traced, i. 549. Edict of Constantine the Great, against, ii. 232.
- Hermanrie king of the Offrogoths, his conquefts, ii. 546. His death, 590.
- Hermenegild prince of Boetica, his marriage with Ingundis princels of Auftrafia, and conversion to the Nicene faith, iii. 548. Revolt and death, 549.
- Hermits of the East, their mortified course of life, iii. 524. Miracles performed by them and their relics, 526.
- Hermodorus, the Ephelian, affifts the Romans in compiling their twelve tables of laws, iv. 336.
- Hermogenes, master general of the cavalry, is killed in the attempt to banish Paul, bishop of Constan-
- tinople, iii. 297. Hero and Leander, the ftory of, by whom controverted and defended, ii. 7. note.
- Herodian, his life of Alexander Severus, why preferable to that in the Augustan history, i. 192. note.
- Herodes Atticus, his extraordinary fortune and munificence, i. 54.
- Herodotus, his character of the Persian worship, i. 242.
- Heruli, of Germany and Poland, their character, iv. 17.
- Hilarion, the monk of Palestine, account of, iii. 510.
- Hilary, bishop of Poitiers, his remarkable observations on the diverfity of Christian doctrines, ii. 254. His exposition of the term Homoiousion,
- 257. Hilary, pope, cenfures the emperor Anthemius for
- his tolerating principles, iii. 474. Hilderic the Vandal king of Africa, his indulgence to his Catholic fubjects difpleafes both the Arians and Athanafians, iv. 123. Is deposed by Gelimer, 124. Is put to death, 139
- Hindoos of the Eaft, not the disciples of Zoroaster, v. 383. note.
- Hindostan, conquest of, by Tamerlane, vi. 339.
- Hippo Regius, fiege of, by Genferic king of the Vandals, iii. 342.
- History, the principal subjects of, i. 287.
- Holy war, the justice of it enquired into, vi. 9. Homicide,

Homicide, how commuted by the Salic laws, iii. 586.

Homooufion, origin, and use of that term at the council of Nice, ii. 251. And Homoioufion, the diffinction between, 257.

Honain, war of, v. 240.

- Honoratus, archbishop of Milan, is, with his clergy, driven from his fee, by the Lombards, iv. 429.
- Honoria, princefs, fifter of the emperor Valentinian
- III. her hiftory, iii. 403. Honorius, fon of Theodofius the Great, is declared emperor of the Weft, by his dying father, iii. 65. Marries Maria, the daughter of Stilicho, 131. His character, 132. Flies from Milan on the invasion of Italy by Alaric, 149. His triumphant entry into Rome, 155. Abolifhes the combats of gladiators, 157. Fixes his refidence at Ravenna, 159. Orders the death of Stilicho, 184. His impolitic measures, and cruelty unite his barbarian foldiers against him under Alaric, 191. His councils diffracted by the eunuchs, 228. His abject overtures to Attalus and Alaric, 232. His laß acts, and death, 257. His triumph for the reduction of Spain by Wallia the Goth, 270. Is fuspected of incest with his fifter Placidia, 328. His perfecution of the Donatifts in Africa, 338.
- Honour, the new ranks of, introduced in the city of Constantinople, ii. 25. v. 484.
- Hormisdas, a fugitive Perfian prince, in the court of the emperor Conflantius, his remarks on the city of Rome, ii. 146. note. His hiftory, and
- station under Julian, 429. Hormouz, the fon of Chofroes, king of Persia, his accellion, iv. 468. His character, 470. Is depofed, and at length killed, 474.

Horses, of Arabia, their peculiar qualities, v. 175.

- Hofsin, the fon of Ali, his tragical death, v. 267. Hofsitallers, knights, of St. John of Jerufalem,
- popularity and character of the order of, vi. 65.
- Hostilianus, the minor fon of the emperor Decius, elected emperor, under the guardianship of Gallus, i. 304.
- Hugh, king of Burgundy, his marriage with Marozia, and expulsion from Rome by Alberic, v. 156.
- Hugh, count of Vermandois, engages in the first crufade, vi. 23. Is shipwrecked and made captive by the Greek emperor Alexius Comnenus, 32. His return, 51.

Human nature, its natural propensities, i. 575.

- Hume, Mr. his natural history of religion, the best commentarry on the polytheifm of the ancients, i. 35. note. His difficulty as to the extent of the Imperial palace at Rome, refolved, 161. note. Charges the most refined and philosophic fects with intolerancy, 246. note.
- L'ungary, establishment of the Huns in, iii. 355. State of, under the emperor Charlemagne, v. 143. Terror excited by their first approach to Europe,
- 548. Their character, 552. Huniades, John, his exploits against the Turks, vi. 446. His defence of Belgrade, and death, 453.

- Hunneric, the fon of Genferic, king of the Vandals, persecutes his Catholic subjects, iii. 536. His cruelty to the Catholics of Tipafa, 546.
- Huns, their original feat, and their conquefts, ii. 577. Their decline, 580. Their emigrations, 583. Their victories over the Goths, 588.
- 590. -, They drive other barbarous tribes before them, upon the Roman provinces, iii. 161. Their eftablifhment in Hungary, 355. Charafter of their king Attila, 357. Their invalion of Perfia, 362. The empire of, extinguished by the death of Attila, 427. Hunting of wild beafts, when a virtue, and when a
- vice, i. 114. Is the fchool of war, ii. 570.
- Hypatia, the female philosopher, murdered in the church at Alexandria, iv. 549.

Hypatius, fedition of, at Constantinople, iv. 67.

I and J

Jacobites of the East, history of the fect of, iv. 602.

James, St. his legendary exploits in Spain, i. 611.

Janizaries, first institution of those troops, vi. 320.

- Iberian and Cafpian gates of mount Caucafus, diftinguished, iv. 110. The Iberian gates occu- pied by Cabades king of Perfia, 111. Idatius, his account of the misfortunes of Spain by an irruption of the barbarous nations, iii. 266.
- Idolatry ascribed to the agency of dæmons, by the primitive Christians, i. 552. Derivation of the term, and its fucceflive applications, ii. 309. note.
- Jerom, his extravagant reprefentation of the devastation of Pannonia by the Goths, ii. 620. His influence over the widow Paula, iii. 513.
- Jerusalem, its fituation, destruction, and profanation, ii. 382. Pilgrimages to, and curious relics preferved there, 383. Abortive attempt of theemperor Julian to rebuild the temple, 386.
- -, A magnificent church erected there to the-Virgin Mary by Justinian, iv. 96. The veffels of the temple brought from Africa to Conftantinople by Belifarius, 152. Is conquered by Chofroes II. king of Perfia, 502. Infurrestion of: the monks there, 571.
- -, The city conquered by the Saracens, v. 320. Great refort of pilgrims to, 677. Conquest of, by the Turks, 682.
- -, Is taken from the Turks by the Egyptians, vi. 55. Is taken by the crufaders, 60. Is crected. into a kingdom under Godfrey of Bouillon, 61. Succeffion of its Christian princes, 95. Is pillaged by the Carizmians, 113.
- Jerusalem, New, defcribed according to the ideas of the primitive Christians, i. 562.
- Jefuits, Portuguele, perfecute the Eastern Chrif-tians, iv. 601. Their labours in, and expalsion from Abysinia, 619.
- Jews, an obscure, unsocial, obstinate race of men. i. 537...

i. 537. Review of their hiftory, 538. Their religion the bafis of Christianity, 541. The promifes of divine favour extended by Chriftianity to all mankind, 542. The immortality of the foul not inculcated in the law of Moles, 560. Why there are no Hebrew gospels extant, 603. Provoked the perfecutions of the Roman emperors, 622.

- Jews, those of a more liberal spirit adopted the theological fystem of l'lato, ii. 238. Their condition under the emperors Constantine and Constantius, 381. Abortive attempt of Julian to re-
- build the temple of Jerufalem, 386. —, Miraculous convertion of a number of, at Minorca, iii. 100. note. Perfecution of, in Spain, 552.
- -, Are perfecuted by the Catholics in Italy, iv. 32. And by Cyril at Alexandria, 548. How
- plagued by the emperor Juffinian, 581. -, Thofe in Arabia fubdued by Mahomet, v. 235. Affift the Saracens in the reduction of Spain, v. 371.

-, Maffacres of, by the first crufaders, vi. 18.

- Jezdegerd, king of Perfia, is faid to be left guardian to Theodofius the Younger, by the emperor Arcadius, iii. 312. His war with Theodofius, 322.
- Igilium, the fmall island of, ferves as a place of refuge for Romans who flew from the fack of Rome
- by Alaric, iii. 242. Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, the Christian fortitude displayed in his epistles, i. 661.

Iksbidites, the Saracen dynasty of, v. 455.

Illustrious, the title of, how limited in the times of Roman fimplicity, and how extended when Conftantinople became the feat of empire, ii. 25.

- Illyricum described, i. 27. Images, introduction of, into the Christian church, v. 89. The worship of, derived from Paganism, 90. Are condemned by the council of Confantinople, 98. The adoration of, justified by pope Gregory II. 105. And fanctified by the fecond council of Nice, 129.
- Imperator, in the Roman history, explained, i. 75. note. The Imperial prerogatives, 80. The court, 83. The fense of this appellation altered by long use, 460.
- Incarnation, theological hiftory of the doctrine of, iv. 533.
- Incest, natural, and arbitrary, diftinguished, iv. .381.

India, account of the Christians of St. Thomas in, Perfecution of, by the Portuguefe, iv. 599. 600.

- Indictions, the memorable æra of, whence dated, i. 508. note. The name and use of, in the middle ages, whence derived, ii. 62.
- Indulgences in the Romifh church, the nature of, explained, vi. 12.
- Ingundis, princels of Australia, is married to Herme. 8

negild prince of Boetica, and cruelly treated by his mother Goifvintha, iii. 548.

- Inheritance, paternal, fubject to parental diferetion among the Romans, i. 199. The Roman law of, iv. 387. Testamentary dispositions of property, 390. The Voconian law, how evaded, 393.
- Injuries, review of the Roman laws for the redrefs
- of, iv. 397. Innocent III. pope, enjoyed the plenitude of papal power, vi. 109.
- Inquifition, the first crection of that tribunal, vi. 109. Institutes of Justinian, an analysis of, iv. 367.
- Interest of money, how regulated by the Roman laws, iv, 396.
- Toan, pope, the flory of, fictitious, v. 154.
- John, principal fecretary to the emperor Honorius, usurps the empire after his death, iii. 329.
- John the almfgiver, archbishop of Alexandria, relieves the Jewish refugees when Jerusalem was taken by the Persians, iv. 502. His extraordinary liberality of the church treasure, 612. John, bithop of Antioch, arrives at Ephesus after
- the meeting of the council, and, with his bishops, decides against Cyril, iv. 557. Coalition between him and Cyril, 558.
- John of Apri, patriarch of Constantinople, his pride, and confederacy against John Cantacuzene, vi. 260.
- John of Brienne emperor of Constantinople, vi. 196.
- John of Cappadocia, prætorian præfect of the East, under the emperor Justinian, his character, iv. 86. Is difgraced by the empress Theodora, and becomes a bishop, 87. Opposes the African war, 126. His fraud in fupplying the army with bread, 133.
- John Comnenus emperor of Constantinople, v. 67.
- John Damastenus, St. his hiftory, v. to1. note. John of Lycopolis, the hermit, his character and oracular promife to the emperor Theodofius the Great, iii. 61.
- John, the Monophysite bishop of Asia, is employed by the emperor Justinian to root out Pagans and heretics, iv. 580.
- John XII. pope, his flagitious character, v. 154.
- John XXIII. pope, his profligate character, vi.
- 605. John, St. the evangelift, reveals the true fense of Plato's doctrine of the Logos, ii. 240.
- John the Sanguinary, feizes the Gothic treasures in Picenum, and obliges Vitiges to raife the fiege of Rome, iv. 191.
- John Zimisces, murders the Greek emperor Nicephorus, and fucceeds him, v. 50. His Eaftern victories, 459. Defeats Swatoflaus, czar of Ruffia, 572.
- Jona, one of the Hebride islands, its ancient monastic eminence, iii. 511.
- Jonas, renegado of Damascus, flory of, v. 310.
- Jordan, character of his work, De Originibus Sciavicis, v. 543. note.

Joseph

Joseph the Carizmian, governor of Berzem, kills the fultan Alp Arflan, v. 667.

- Josephus, the mention of Jefus Chriff in his hiftory, a forgery, i. 630. note. His opinion, that Plato derived knowledge from the Jews, controverted, ii. 237. note.
- Jovian is elected emperor by the troops of Julian, on their retreat from Affyria, ii. 461. His treaty with Sapor king of Perfia, 464. His death, 482.
- Jovians and Herculians, new bodies of guards infituted to fuperfede the Prætorian bands, i. 459.
- Jovinian of Verona, his punifiment by a Roman fynod, for herefy, iii. 145.
- Jovinus reduces the Alemanni, who had invaded Gaul, ii. 517.
- -----, Account of his revolt against the emperor Honorius in Germany, iii. 202.
- Jovius, prætorian præfect under the emperor Honorius, fucceeds Olympius as his confidential minifer, iii. 226. His negociations with Alaric obfructed, 228. Deferts Honorius, and goes over to Alaric, and the new emperor Attalus, 233.
- Irene, her marriage with the Greek emperor Leo, v. 2.4. Her ambition, and barbarity to her fon Conttantine, 25. Reftores images to public devotion, 128.
- Ireland was first colonifed from Scotland, ii. 528. Derivation of the name of its tutelar faint, Patrick, iii. 498. note.
- trick, iii. 498. note. Ifaac I. Comnenus, emperor of Constantinople, v. 57.
- v. 57. Iface II. Angelus, emperor of Conflantinople, v. 84. His character and reign, vi. 130. Is depofed by his brother Alexius, 132. Is reflored by the crufaders, 155. His death, 161.
- Ifaac, archbishop of Armenia, his apology for the vices of king Artaures, iii. 325.
- vices of king Artaures, iii. 325. Ifauria, the rebellion there against the emperor Gallienus, i. 340.
- Isaurians, reduction of, by the Eastern emperors, iv. 102.
- Ifidore, cardinal, his ill treatment in Ruffia, vi. 439. Receives an act of union from the Greek clergy at Conftantinople, 481.
- Ifocrates, his price for the tuition of his pupils, iv. 115.
- Italy, the dominion of, under Odoacer, fucceeds the extinction of the Weflern empire, iii. 494. Its miferable flate at this æra, 502. Convertion of the Lombards of, to the Nicene faith, 551.
- —, Is reduced by Theodoric the Offrogoth, iv. 12. His adminification, 14. Government of, according to the Roman law, by Theodoric, &1. Its flourifhing flate at this time, 26. How fupplied with filk from China, 72. Hiftory of Amalafontha, queen of Italy, 161. Invafion of, by Belifarius, 170. Siege of Rome by the Goths, 176. Invafion of Italy by the Franks, 195. Revolt of the Goths, 277. Expedition of the eunuch Narfes, 298. Invafion of, by the Franks Vot. VI. 4 and Alemanni, 303. Government of, under the exarchs of Ravenna, 312. Conqueffs of Alboin king of the Lombards in, 428. Diffrefs of, 440. How divided between the Lombards, and the exarchs of Ravenna, 443.

- Italy, growth of the papal power in, v. 102. Revolt of, againît the Greek emperors, 103. The exarchate of Ravenna granted to the pope, 122. Extent of the dominion of Charlemagne there, 142. The power of the German Carfars deftroyed by the rife of the commercial cities there, 150. Fadions of the Guelphs and Ghibelins, t62. Conflict of the Saracens, Latins, and Greeks in, 581.
- , Revival of Greek learning in, vi. 417. Authors confulted for the hiftory of, 618. note. Jubilee, popifh, a revival of the fecular games,
- Jubilee, popifh, a revival of the fecular games, i. 234. note. vi. 557. The return of, accelerated, 559.
- 559. Jude, St. examination of his grandfons before the tribunal of the procurator of Judæa, i. 644.
- Judgments of God, in the Salic laws, how determined, iii. 588.
- Judgments, popular, of the Romans, difplayed, iv. 410.
- Julia Domna, wife of the emperor Severus, her character, i. 156. Her death, 173.
- Julian, the nephew of Constantine the Great, his education, ii. 128. His dangerous fituation on the death of his brother Gallus, 136. Is fent to Athens, where he cultivates philosophy, 137. Is recalled by Conftantius, 140. Is invefted with the title of Cæfar, 141. Is appointed to the government of Gaul, 161. His first campaign, 163. Battle of Strafburgh, 167. Reduces the Franks at Toxandria, 170. His three expeditions beyond the Rhine, 171. Reftores the cities of Gaul, 173. His civil administration, 174. His account of the theological calamities of the emaccount of the theological calamities of the em-pire under Conflantius, 300. Conflantius grows jealous of him, 312. The Gaulifh legions are ordered into the Eaft, 313. Is faluted emperor by the troops, 318. His embaffy and epittle to Conflantius, 321. His fourth and fifth expedi-tions beyond the Rhine, 322. Declares war a-gainft Conflantius, and abjures the Chriftian re-ligion ac6. His match from the Phina into ligion, 326. His march from the Rhine into Illyricum, 328. Enters Sirmium, 331. Publishes apologies for his conduct, 332. His triumphant entry into Conftantinople on the death of Conftantius, 336. His private life and civil govern-ment, 337. His reformations in the Imperial palace, 340. Becomes a floven to avoid foppery, Erects a tribunal for the trial of the evil 343. ministers of Constantius, 344. Dismisters the spices and informers employed by his predecessor, 347. His love of freedom and the republic, 348. His kindneffes to the Grecian cities, 350. His abi-lities as an orator, 352. And as a judge, 353. His character, ibid. His apollacy accounted for, 357.

4 R

357. Adopts the Pagan mythology, 359. His theological fystem, 362. His initiation into the Eleufinian mysteries, and his fanaticism, 365. His hypocritical duplicity, 367. Writes a vin-dication of his apoltacy, 369. His edict for a general toleration, 371. His Pagan fuperfittious zeal, 372. His circular letters for the reformation of the Pagan religion, 375. His industry in gaining profelytes, 379. His address to the Jews, 381. Hiftory of his attempt to rebuild the temple at Jerufalem, 386. Transfers the revenues of the Christian church, to the heathen priest, 391. Prohibits Christian schools, 392. Obliges the Christians to reinstate the Pagan temples, 394. Restores the facred grove and temple of Daphne, 399. Punishes the Christians of Antioch for burning that temple, 400. His treatment of the cities of Edessa and Alexandria, 405. Banishes Athanafins, 407. The philosophical fable of his Cae fars, delineated, 412. Meditates the conquest of Perfia, 415. Popular difcontents during his refidence at Antioch, 417. Occasion of writing his Misopagon, 420. His march to the Euphrates, 423. He enters the Perfian territories, 428. Invades Affyria; 434. His perfonal conduct in this enterprife, 438. His addrefs to his difcon-tented troops, 440. His fuccelsful paffage over the Tigris, 443. Burns his fleet, 449. His retreat and diffress, 452. His death, 456. His funeral, 475.

- Julian, count, offers to betray Spain into the hands of the Arabs, v. 364. His advice to the victorious Turks, 370.
- Julian, the papal legate, exhorts Ladiflaus king of Hungary and Poland to breach of faith with the Turks, vi. 447. His death and character, 451.
- Julius, master-general of the troops in the Eastern empire, concerts a general maffacre of the Gothic youth in Afia, ii. 622.
- Jurisprudence, Roman, a review of, iv. 332. Was polished by Grecian philosophy, 351. Abuses of, 414.
- Justin the Elder, his military promotion, iv. 43. His elevation to the empire, and character, 44. His death, 48.
- Juftin II. emperor, fucceeds his uncle Justinian, iv. 418. His firm behaviour to the ambassadors of the Avars, 420. His abdication, and investiture of Tiberius, as his fucceffor, 435.
- Justin Martyr, his decision in the cafe of the Ebionites, i. 546. His extravagant account of the progrefs of Christianity, 611. Occasion of his own conversion, 614.
- Justina, the popular flory of her marriage with the emperor Valentinian examined, ii. 557. Her infant fon Valentinian II. invested with the imperial enfigns, on the death of his father, 559. Her conteit with Ambrofe archbishop of Milan, iii. 30. Flies from the invation of Maximus, with her fon, 37.

- Justinian, emperor of the East, his birth and promotion, iv. 43. His orthodoxy, 46. Is invefted with the diadem by his uncle Justin, 48. Marries Theodora, 55. Patronizes the blue faction of the circus, 62. State of agriculture and manufacture in his provinces, 70. Introduces the culture of the filk worm, and manufacture of filk, into Greece, 77. State of his revenue, 79. His avarice and profusion, 80. Taxes and monopolies, 83. His ministers, 86. His public build-ings, 88. Founds the church of St. Sophia at Conftantinople, 92. His other public works, 96. His European fortifications, 98. His Afiatic fortifications, 104. He suppresses the schools of Athens, 112. And the confular dignity, 119. Purchafes a peace from the Perfians, 123. 241. Purchales a peace from the remains, 1-83, 24t. Undertakes to reftore Hilderic king of Carthage, 124. Reduction of Africa, 146. His infruc-tions for the government of, 147. His acqui-fitions in Spain, 159 His deceitful negociations in Italy, 165. Weaknefs of his empire, 212. In Itary, 105. Weakness of ans empire, 212. Receives an embaffy from the Avars, 228. And from the Turks, 230. Perfian war, 247. His negociations with Chofroes, 264. His alliance with the Abyfinians, 268. Neglects the Italian war under Belifarius, 284. Settles the government of Italy under the exarch of Ravenna, 312. Difgrace and death of Belifarius, 319. His death and character, 320. Comets and calamities in his reign, 322. His Code, Pandects, and Institutes, 332. His theological character and government, 577. His perfecuting spirit, 579. His orthodoxy, 582. Died a heretic, 585. Justinian II. emperor of Constantinople, v. 13.
- Justinian, the fon of Germanus, his confpiracy with
- the empress Sophia, and fucceffes against the Perfians, iv. 437.
- Juvenal, his remarks on the crowded state of the inhabitants of Rome, iii. 218.

Κ

- Khan, import of this title in the northern parts of Afia, ii. 572. iii. 161.
- King, the title of, conferred by Conftantine the Great on his nephew Hannibalianus, ii. 87.
- Kindred, degrees of, according to the Roman civil
- law, iv. 388. Knighthood, how originally conferred, and its obligations, vi. 26.
- Koran of Mahomet, account and character of, v. 208.
- Koreifb, the tribe of, acquire the cuftody of the Caaba at Mecca, v. 191. Pedigree of Mahomet, 197. They oppose his pretensions to a prophetical character, 222. Flight of Mahomet, 224. Battle of Beder, 232. Battle of Ohud, 233. Mecca furrendered to Mahomet, 238.

L

Labarum, or flandard of the crofs, in the army of Constantine the Great, described, ii. 194.

4

Labes.

- Labeo, the civilian, his diligence in bufinefs and composition, iv. 350. His professional character, 354.
- Lactantius, difficulties in afcertaining the date of his Divine Institutions, ii. 179. note. His flattering prediction of the influence of Christianity among mankind, 187. Inculcates the divine right of Constantine to the empire, 189.
- Ladiflaus, king of Hungary and Poland, leads an army against the Turks, vi. 445. His breach of - faith with them, 447. Ladiflaus king of Naples, haraffes Rome during the
- fchifm of the papacy, vi. 600. Lætus, prætorian præfect, confpires the death of Commodus, and confers the empire on Pertinax, i. 118.
- Laity, when first distinguished from the clergy, i. 590.
- Lampadius, a Roman fenator, boldly condemns the treaty with Alaric the Goth, iii. 180.
- Lance, holy, narrative of the miraculous discovery of, vi. 52.
- Land, how affeffed by the Roman emperors, ii. 63. How divided by the Barbarians, iii. 591. Allo-dial. and Salic, diftinguished, 594. Of Italy, dial, and Salic, diffinguished, 594. Of Italy, how partitioned by Theoderic the Offrogoth, iv. 14.
- Laodicea, its ancient splendor, i. 60.
- Lascaris, Theodore, establishes an empire at Nice, vi. 181. His character, 221.
- Lascaris, Theodore II. his character, vi. 224.
- Lascaris, Janus, the Greek grammarian, his character, vi. 426.
- Latin church, occasion of its separation from the Greek church, vi. 121. Corruption and fchifm of, 398. Reunion of, with the Greek church, 412. The fubfequent Greek fchifm, 437.
- Latium, the right of, explained, i. 44. Laura, in monkish history, explained, iii. 524.
- Law, review of the profession of, under the em-
- perors, ii. 40. Laws of Rome, a review of, iv. 332. Those of the kings, 334. Of the twelve tables, 335. Of the people, 339. Decrees of the fenate, and edicts of the prætors, 341. Conflitutions of the emperors, 343. Their refcripts, 245. The three codes of, 345. The forms of, 346. Succeffion of civil lawyers, 348. Reformation of, by Julinian, 356. Abolition and revival of the penal laws, 402.
- Lazi, the tribe of, in Colchos, account of, iv. 256.
- Le Clerc, character of his ecclesiastical history, iv. 533. note.
- Legacies and inheritances taxed by Augustus, i. 199. How regulated by the Roman law, iv. 391.
- Legion, in the Roman army under the emperors, defcribed, i. 15. General distribution of the le-gions, 21. The fize of, reduced by Constantine the Great, ii. 46.
- Leo of Thrace is made emperor of the Eaft, by his master Aspar, iii. 470. Was the first Christian potentate who was crowned by a prieft, ibid. Confers the empire of the West on Anthemius, 471. His armament against the Vandals in Africa, 476. Murders Afpar and his fons,

- iv. 4. Leo III. emperor of Constantinople, v. 19. His edicts against images in churches, 97. Revolt of Italy, 108.
- Leo IV. emperor of Constantinople, v. 23.
- Leo V. emperor of Constantinople, v. 29. Leo VI. the philosopher, emperor of Constantinople, v. 43. Extinguishes the power of the fenate, 495
- Leo, bishop of Rome, his character and embasfy from Valentinian III. to Attila king of the Huns, iii. 424. Intercedes with Genferic king of the Vandals for clemency to the city of Rome, 440. Calls the council of Chalcedon, iv. 566.
- Leo III. pope, his miraculous recovery from the affaults of affaffins, v. 134. Crowns Charlemagne emperor of the Romans, 135.
- Les IV. pope, his reign, v. 440. Founds the Leonine city, 442.
- Leo IX. pope, his expedition against the Normans of Apulia, v. 596. His treaty with them, 598. Leo, archbishop of Thessalonica, one of the re-
- storers of Greek learning, v. 512.
- Leo, general of the East, under the emperor Arcadius, his character, iii. 294.
- Leo Pilatus, first Greek profestor at Florence, and in the West, his character, vi. 421.
- Leo, the Jew proselyte, history of his family, vi. 561.
- Leonas, the quæstor, his embasfy from Constantius to Julian, ii. 325.
- Leonine city at Rome founded, v. 442.
- Lcontius is taken from prifon, and chofen emperor of Conftantinople, on the deposition of Juffinian II. v. 14
- Leovigild, Gothic king of Spain, his character, iii. 548. Revolt and death of his fon Hermenegild, 549. Letters, a knowledge of, the teft of civilization in a
- people, i. 265.
- Lewis the Pious, emperor of the Romans, v. 147.
- Lewis II. emperor of the Romans, v. 147. His epiftle to the Greek emperor Bafil I. 582.
- Libanius, his account of the private life of the emperor Julian, ii. 338. And of his divine visions, 366. Applauds the diffimulation of Julian, 368. His character, 421. His eulogium on the em-peror Valens, 616.
- Liberius, bishop of Rome, is banished by the emperor Constantins, for refusing to concur in depofing Athanafius, ii. 283. 294.
- Liberty, public, the only fure guardians of, against an afpiring prince, i. 72.
- Licinius is invefted with the purple by the emperor Galerius, i. 493. His alliance with Conftantine 4 R 2 the the Great, 514. Defeats Maximin, 515. His cruelty, 516. Is defeated by Conflantine at Cibalis, 520. And at Mardia, 522. Peace concluded with Conflantine, 523. Second civil war with Conflantine, 528. His humiliation, and death, 532.

- death, 533. Licinius, fate of his fon, ii. 83. Concurred with Conflantine in publifting the edict of Milan, 184. Violated this engagement by oppreffing the Christians, 190. Cacilius's account of his vision, 107.
- Lieutenant, Imperial, his office and rank, i. 77.
- Lightning, fuperflition of the Romans with reference to perfons and places flruck with, i. 412.
- Limigantes, Sarmatian flaves, expel their masters, and usurp possession of their country, ii. 95. Extinction of, by Constantius, 149.
- Literature, revival of, in Italy, vi. 417. Ancient, use and abuse of, 431.

Lithuania, its late conversion to Christianity, v. 577.

- Litorius, count, is defeated and taken captive, in Gaul by Theodoric, iii. 398.
- Gaul by Theodoric, iii. 398. Lintprand, king of the Lombards, attacks the city of Rome, v. 114.
- Liutprand, bifhop of Cremona, ambaffader to Conftantinople, ceremony of his audience with the emperor, v. 48°.
- Loger, Plato's doctrine of, ii. 238. Is expounded by St. John the Evangelift, 240. Athanafus confeffes himfelf unable to comprehend it, 243. Controverfies on the cternity of, 247.
- Logothete, great, his office under the Greek emperors, v. 485.
- Lombardy, ancient, defcribed, i. 25. Conquest of, by Charlemagne, v. 117.
- Lombards, derivation of their name, and review of their hiftory, iv. 215. Are employed by the emperor Juffinian to check the Gepidæ, 217. Actions of their king Alboin, 421. They reduce the Gepidæ, 424. They over-run that part of Italy now called Lombardy, 428. Extent of their kingdom, 445. Language and manners of the Lombards, ibid. Government and laws, 450.
- Longinus, his reprefentation of the degeneracy of his age, i. 71. Is put to death by Aurelian, 373.
- 373. , is fent to fuperfede Narfes, as exarch of Ravenna, iv. 427. Receives Rofamond the fugitive queen of the Lombards, 432.

Lothaire I. emperor of the Romans, v. 147.

- Louis VII. of France is refcued from the treachery of the Greeks by Roger king of Sicily, v. 632. Undertakes the fecond crufade, vi. 75. His difaftrous expedition, 81.
- Louis IX. of France, his crufades to the Holy Land, vi. 113. His death, 117. Procured a valuable flock of relics from Conftantinople, vi. 201.
- Lucian, the feverity of his fatire against the Heathen mythology, accounted for, i. 37.

- Lucian, count of the Eaft, under the emperor Arcadius, his cruel treatment by the præfect Rufinus, iii. 111.
- Lucian, prefbyter of Jerufalem, his miraculous difcovery of the body of St. Stephen, the fift Chriftian martyr, iii. 97.
- Lucilian, governor of Iliyricum, is furprifed, and kindly treated by Julian, ii. 330. His death, 481.
- Lucilla, fifter of the emperor Commodus, her attempt to get him affaffinated, i. 106.
- Lucius II. and III. popes, their difattrous reigns, vi. 527.
- Lucrine lake described, with its late destruction, iii. 205. note.
- Lucullan villa in Campania, its defeription and history, iii. 498.
- Lupercalia, the feast of, defcribed, and continued under the Christian emperors, iii. 474.
- Lupicinus, the Roman governor of Thrace, oppreffes the Gothic emigrants there, ii. 597. Rafhly provokes them to hoftilities, 599. Is defeated by them, 600.
- Lustral contribution in the Roman empire, explained, ii. 70.

Luther, Martin, his character as a reformer, v. 536.

- Luxury the only means of correcting the unequal diffribution of property, i. 65.
- Lygians, a formidable German nation, account of, i. 398.
- Lyons, battle of, between the competitors Severus and Albinus, i. 145.

Μ

- Macedonius, the Arian bifhop of Conflantinople, his contefts with his competitor Paul, ii. 296. Fatal confequences on his removing the body of the emperor Conflantine to the church of St. Acacius, 298. His cruel perfections of the Catholics and Novatians, 299. His exile, iv. 576.
- Macrianus, prætorian præfect under the emperor Valerian, his character, i. 327.
- Macrianus, a prince of the Alemanni, his fleady alliance with the emperor Valentinian, ii. 521.
- Macrinus, his fucceffion to the empire predicted by an African, i. 168. Accelerates the completion of the prophecy, ibid. Purchafes a peace with Parthia, 249.
- Madayn, the capital of Perfia, facked by the Satacens, v. 287.
- Mæonius of Falmyra affaffinates his uncle Odenathus, i. 367.

Mafia, its fituation, i. 28.

3

- Magi, the worthip of, in Perfia, reformed by Artaxerxes, i. 240. Abridgement of the Perfian. theology, 241. Simplicity of their worthip, 242. Ceremonics and moral precepts, 243. Their power, 245.
- Magic, fevere profecution of perfons for the crime of, at Rome and Antioch, ii. 497.

Magnentius

- Magnentius affumes the empire in Gaul, ii. 111. Death of Conftans, 112. Sends an embaffy to Conftantius, 114. Makes war againft Conftantius, 118. Is defeated at the battle of Murfa, 119. Kills himfelf, 125.
- Mahmud, the Gaznevide, his twelve expeditions into Hindostan, v. 646. His character, 610.
- Mahomet, the prophet, his embaffy to Chofroes II. king of Perfia, iv. 506.
- -, His genealogy, birth, and education, v. 197. His perion and character, 199. Affumes his prophetical miffion, 202. Inculcated the unity of God, 204. His reverential mention of Jefus Chrift, 206. His Koran, 208. His miracles, 210. His precepts, 212. His Hell, and Paradife, 216. The best authorities for his history, 210. note. Converts his own family, 220. Preaches publicly at Mecca, 221. Escapes from the Koreishites there, 224. Is received as prince of Medina, 226. His regal dignity, and facerdotal office, 227. Declares war againfi infidels, 229. Battle of Beder, 232. Battle of Ohud, 233. Subdues the Jews of Arabia, 235. Submiffion of Mecca to him, 238. He conquers Arabia, 240. His fickness and death, 246. His character, 249. His private life, 251. His wives, 253. His children, 255. His posterity, 269. Remarks on the great fpread and permanency of his religion, 272.
- " Mabomet, the fon of Bajazet, his reign, vi. 367.
  - Mabomet II. fultan of the Turks, his character, vi. 464. His reign, 466. Indications of his hoftile intentions againit the Greeks, 468. He besieges Constantinople, 477. Takes the city by florm, 500. His entry into the city, 506. Makes it his capital, 508. His death, 516.
  - Mahometifm, by what means propagated, v. 381. Toleration of Christianity under, 383.
  - Majorian, his hiftory, character, and elevation to the Weftern empire, iii. 452. His epiftle to the fenate, 454. His falutary laws, 455. His pre-parations to invade Africa, 459. His fleet de-ftroyed by Genferic, 463. His death, 464. Malaterra, his character of the Normans, v. 593.

  - Malek Shab, fultan of the Turks, his protperous reign, v. 668. Reforms the Eastern calendar, 670. His death, 671.
  - Mallius Theodorus, the great civil honours to which he attained, ii. 41. note.
  - Mamalukes, their origin and character, vi. 116. Their eftablishment in Egypt, 117.
  - Mamaa, mother of the young emperor Alexander Severus, acts as regent of the empire, i. 182. Is put to death with him, 209. Her conference with Origen, 669.

Mamgo, an Armenian noble, his history, i. 444.

Man the only animal that can accommodate himfelf to all climates, i. 263. note.

Ъ

Mancipium, in the Roman law, explained, iv. 386.

- Manichaans are devoted to death, by the edict of Theodofius against heretics, iii. 25.
- Manuel Comnenus, emperor of Constantinople, v. 69. He repulses the Normans, 633. But fails in his fcheme of fubduing the Wettern empire, 636. His ill treatment of the crufaders, vi. 78.
- Maogamalcha, a city of Affyria, reduced and destroyed by the emperor Julian, ii. 436.
- Marble, the four fpecies of, most effected by the Romans, i. 214. note.
- Marcellinus, count of the facred largeffes under the emperor Conftans in Gaul, affifts the ufurpation of Magnentius, ii. 111. His embasty to Constantius, 114. Was killed in the battle of Murfa,
- Marcellinus, His revolt in Dalmatia, and character, iii. 465. Joins the emperor Anthemius, and expels the Vandals from Sardinia, 476. His death, 480.
- Marcellinus, fon of the præfect Maximin, his treacherous murder of Gabinius king of the Quadi,
- ii. 553. Marcellus the centurion martyred for defertion, i. 680.
- Marcellus, bishop of Rome, exiled to restore peace to the city, i. 693.
- Marcellus, bishop of Apamea in Syria, lofes his life in destroying the Pagan temples, iii. 80. Marcia, the concubine of the emperor Commodus,
- a patronels of the Christians, i. 667.
- Marcian, fenator of Constantinople, marries the empress Pulcheria, and is acknowledged emperor, iii. 390. His temperate refufal of the demands of Attila the Hun, 392.
- Marcianapolis, the city of, taken by the Goths, i. 299.
- Marcomanni are fubdued and punished by Marcus Antoninus, i. 286. Alliance made with, by the emperor Gallienos, 315.
- Marcus, elected bishop of the Nazarenes, i. 545.
- Mardia, battle of, between Constantine the Great
- and Licinius, i. 522. Margus, battle of, between Diocletian and Carinus, i. 422.
- Margus, bishop of, betrays his episcopal city into the hands of the Huns, iii. 364.
- Maria, daughter of Eudæmon of Carthage, her remarkable adventures, iii. 349. Mariana, his account of the misfortunes of Spain,
- by an irruption of the barbarous nations, iii. 266.
- Marinus, a fubaltern officer, chofen emperor by the legions of Mæsia, i. 289.
- Marius the armourer, a candidate for the purple among the competitors against Gallienus, his cha- racter, i. 334. Mark, bifhop of Arethufa, is cruelly treated by the emperor Julian, ii. 395.
- Maronga, engagement there between the emperor Julian, and Sapor king of Perha, ii. 453

Maronites

- Maronites of the Eaft, character and history of, iv. 605.
- Marozia, a Roman profitute, the mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother, of three popes, v. 154.
- Marriage, regulations of, by the Roman laws, iv. 374. Of Roman citizens with ftrangers, profcribed by their jurifprudence, v. 491.
- Martel, Charles, duke of the Franks, his character, v. 400 His politic conduct on the Saracen invalion of France, 410. Defeats the Saracens, 411. Why he was configned over to hell flames by the clergy, 412.
- Martin, bishop of Tours, destroys the idols and Pagan temples in Gaul, iii. 80. His monkish institutions there, 510.
- Martina marries her uncle, the emperor Heraclius, v. 7. Endeavours to fhare the Imperial dignity with her fons, 8. Her fate, 10.
- Martinianus receives the title of Cæfar, from the emperor Licinius, i. 532.
- Martyrs, primitive, an inquiry into the true hiftory of, i. 620. The feveral inducements to martyr-dom, 659. Three methods of escaping it, 663. Marks by which learned Catholics diffinguish the relics of the martyrs, 654 note. The worship of, and their relics, introduced, iii. 93.
- Mary, Virgin, her immaculate conception, borrowed from the Koran, v 206.
- Mascazel, the perfecuted brother of Gildo the moor, takes refuge in the Imperial court of Honorius, iii. 126. Is intrusted with troops to reduce Gildo, ibid. Defeats him, 129. His fuspicious death, 130.
- Master of the offices, under Constantine the Great, his functions, ii. 52.
- Maternus, his revolt and confpiracy against the emperor Commodus, i. 109.
- Matthew, St. his gofpel originally composed in Hebrew, i. 603. note. iv. 535. note.
- Maurice, his birth, character, and promotion to the Eaftern empire, iv. 439. Reflores Chofroes II. king of Perfia, 477. His war againd the Avars, 486. State of his armies, 438. His abdication and death, 492
- Mauritania, ancient, its fituation and extent, i. 32. Character of the native Moors of, iii. 337.
- Maxentius, the fon of Maximian, declared emperor at Rome, i. 487. His tyranny in Italy and Africa, 498. The military force he had to oppofe Constantine, 502. His defeat and death, 510. His politic humanity to the Christians, 602.
- Maximian, affociate in the empire with Diocletian, his character, i. 425 Triumphs with Diocletian, 455. Holds his court at Milan, 457. Abdicates the empire along with Diocletian, 468. He re-fumes the purple, 487. Reduces Severus, and puts him to death, 488. His fecond refignation, and unfortunate end, 494. His averfion to the Christians accounted for, 679.

- Maximilianus, the African, a Christian martyr. i. 680.
- Maximin, his birth, fortune, and elevation to the empire of Rome, i. 206. Why deemed a perfecutor of the Christians, 670.
- Maximin is declared Cæfar, on the abdication of Diocletian, i. 479. Obtains the rank of Augustus, from Galerius, 493. His defeat and death, 515. Renewed the perfecution of the Christians after the toleration granted by Galerius, 697.
- Maximin, the cruel minister of the emperor Valentinian, promoted to the præfecture of Gaul, ii. 501.
- Maximin, his embaffy from Theodofius the Younger, to Attila king of the Huns, iii. 377.
- Maximus and Balbinus elected joint emperors by the fenate, on the deaths of the two Gordians, i. 219.
- Maximus, his character and revolt in Britain, iii. 6. His treaty with the emperor Theodofius, 10. Persecutes the Priscillianists, 26. His invasion of Italy, 36. His defeat and death, 40.
- Maximus, the Pagan preceptor of the emperor Julian, initiates him into the Elcufinian mysteries, ii. 365. Is honourably invited to Constantinople by his Imperial pupil, 377. Is corrupted by his refidence at court, 378.
- Maximus, Petronius, his wife ravished by Valentinian III. emperor of the Weft, iii. 431. His character, and elevation to the empire, 436.
- Mebodes, the Perfian general, ungratefully treated by Chofroes, iv. 236.
- Mecca, its fituation, and defcription, v. 177. The Caaba, or temple of, 190. Its deliverance from Abrahah, 197. The doctrine of Mahomet op-poled there, 222. His elcape, 224. The city of, furrendered to Mahomet, 238. Is pillaged hy Abu Taher, 451.
- Medina, reception of Mahomet there, on his flight from Mecca, v. 225.
- Megalefia, the festival of, at Rome, described, i. 100. note.
- Meletians, an Egyptian fect, perfecuted by Athanafius, ii. 272.
- Melitene, battle of, between the Eaftern emperor Tiberius, and Chofroes king of Perfia, iv. 467.
- Melo, citizen of Bari, invites the Normans into Italy, v. 589.
- Memphis, its fituation, and reduction by the Sara-
- cens, v. 334. Merovingian kings of the Franks in Gaul, origin of, iii. 400. Their domain and benefices, 592. Mervan, caliph of the Saracens, and the laft of
- the houfe of Ommiyah, his defeat and death, v. 415.
- Melopotamia, invasion of by the emperor Julian, ii. 429. Deferibed by Xenophon, 430. Meffala, Valerius, the first præfect of Rome, his - high character, ii. 34. note.
- Meffiab, under what character he was expected by the the Jews, i. 542. His birth-day, how fixed by the Romans, ii. 326. note.

- Metals and money, their operation in improving the human mind, i. 268.
- Metellus Numidicus, the cenfor, his invective against - women, i. 183. note. Metius Falconius, his artful speech to the emperor Tacitus in the fenate on his election, i. 388.
- Metrothanes of Cyzicus, is made patriarch of Constancinople, vi. 438.
- Metz, cruel treatment of, by Attila king of the Huns, iii. 407.
- Michael I. Rhangabe, emperor of Constantinople, v. 28.
- Michael II. the Stammerer, emperor of Conftantinople, v. 31.
- Michael III. emperor of Constantinople, v. 35. Is defeated by the Paulicians, 529.
- Michael IV. the Paphlagonian, emperor of Constantinople, v. 55.
- Michael V. Calaphates, emperor of Constantinople, v. 56. Michael VI. Stratioticus, emperor of Conflantinople,
- v. 57
- Michael VII. Parapinaces, emperor of Constantinople, v. 61.
- Milan, how the Imperial court of the Western empire came to be transferred from Rome to that city, i. 457. , Famous edict of Constantine the Great in
- favour of the Christians, published there, ii. 184.
- -, St. Ambrose elected archbishop of that city, iii. 29. Tumults occasioned by his refusing a church for the Arian worfhip of the empress Justina and her fon, 31. —, Revolt of, to Justinian, iv. 190. Is taken
- and deftroyed by the Burgundians, 196.
- -, Is again deftroyed by Frederic I. v. 161.
- Military force, its ftrength and efficacy dependent on a due proportion to the number of the people, i. 127.
- Military officers of the Roman empire at the time of Constantine the Great, a review of, ii. 42.
- Millenium, the doctrine of, explained, i. 562.
- Mingrelia. See Colchos.
- Minority, two diffinctions of, in the Roman law, iii. 117. note.
- Miracles, those of Christ and his apostles, escaped the notice of the heathen philosophers and hiftorians, i. 618. Account of those wrought by the body of St. Stephen, iii. 97.
- Miraculous powers of the primitive church, an en- quiry into, i. 567. Mifitheus, chief minister and father-in-law of the third Gordian, his character, i. 231.
- Milopogon of the emperor Julian, on what occasion written, ii. 420.

Missorium, or great golden dish of Adolphus king of the Vifigoths, hiftory of, iii. 254.

Maawiyab, affumes the title of caliph, and makes war against Ali, v. 263. His character and reign, 265. Lays fiege to Conftantinople, 393. Modar, prince of the Amali, feduced by the em-

- peror Theodofius, turns his arms against his own countrymen, ii. 631.
- Moguls, primitive, their method of treating their conquered enemics, iii. 367. Reign and con-quefts of Zingis, vi. 289. Conquefts of his fuc-ceffors, 296. See Tamerlane.
- Moguntiacum, the city of, furprifed by the Alemanni,. 11. 518.
- Mokawkas the Egyptian, his treaty with the Saracen
- Amrou, v. 337. Monarchy defined, i. 72. Hereditary, ridiculous in theory, but falutary in fact, 204. The peculiar objects of cruelty and of avarice under, ii. 61.
- Monaftic inftitutions, the feeds of, fown by the primitive Christians, i. 579. Origin, progress, and confequences of, iii. 505.
- Money, the standard and computation of, under Constantine the Great, and his fuccesfors, ii. 66. note.
- Monks have embellished the fufferings of the pri-
- mive martyrs by fictions, i. 6 1. —, Character of, by Eunapius, iii. 94. By Ru-tilius, 127. Origin and hiftory of, 506. Their induftry in making profelytes, 512. Their obe-dience, 514. Their drefs and habitations, 516. Their diet, 517. Their manual labour, 518. Their riches, 520. Their folitude, 521. Their devotion and vifions, 522. Their divident devotion and visions, 522. Their division into the classes of Coenobites and Anachorets, 523.
- -, Supprefiion of, at Constantinople, by Con-flantine V. v. 102.
- Monophyfites of the East, history of the fift of, iv. 602.
- Monothelite controverfy, account of, iv. 586.
- Montesquieu, his description of the military government of the Roman empire, i. 233. His opinion that the degrees of freedom in a flate are mea-
- fured by taxation, controverted, ii. 61. Montius, quastor of the palace, is fent by the emperor Constantius, with Domitian, to correct the administration of Gallus in the East, ii. 132. Is put to death there, 133.
- Moors of Barbary, their milerable poverty, iv. 149. Their invation of the Roman province punished by Solomon the Eunuch, 159.
- Morea is reduced by the Turks, vi. 512.
- Morofini, Thomas, elected patriarch of Conflantinople by the Venetians, vi. 176.
- Moseilama, an Arabian chief, endeavours to rival Mahomet in his prophetical character, v. 277.
- Mofes, the doctrine of the immortality of the foul not inculcated in his law, i. 560. His tanguinary laws compared with those of M homet, v. 229.
- Mosheim, character of his work De rebus Christianis ante Constantinum, iv. 533. note. Mostemab the Saracen besieges Constantinople,
- v. 398.

Mota fem-

- Motaffem, the laft caliph of the Saracens, his wars with the Greek emperor Theophilus, v. 443. Is killed by the Moguls, vi. 300.
- Mourzoufle, ulurps the Greek empire, and deftroys Isaac Angelus, and his fon Alexius, vi. 161. Is driven from Constantinople by the Latins, 165. His death, 180.
- Moufa, the fon of Bajazet, invefted with the kingdom of Anatolia, by Tamerlane, vi. 353. His reign, 366.
- Mozarabes, in the hiftory of Spain, explained, v. 387.
- Municipal cities, their advantages, i. 44.
- Muratori, his literary character, vi. 618. note.
- Murfa, battle of, between the emperor Constantius, and the usurper Magnentius, ii. 119.
- Mufa the Saracen, his conqueft of Spain, v. 373-His difgrace, 376. His death, 378. Mufapha, the fuppoled fon of Bajazet, his flory,

vi. 365.

- Muta, battle of, between the forces of the emperor
- Heraclius and those of Mahomet, v. 243. Mygdonius, river, the course of, stopped by Sapor king of Perfia, at the fiege of Nifibis, ii. 108.

- Narbonne is befieged by Theodoric, and relieved by count Litorius, iii. 398.
- Nacoragan, the Perfian general, his defeat by the Romans, and cruel fate, iv. 262.
- Naisus, battle of, between the emperor Claudius and the Goths, i. 351.
- Naples is befieged and taken by Belifarius, iv. 171. Extent of the dutchy of, under the exarchs of Ravenna, 444.
- Narfes, his embaffy from Sapor king of Perfia to the emperor Constantius, ii. 151.
- Narfes, king of Perfia, prevails over the pretenfions of his brother Hormuz, and expels Tiridates king of Armenia, i. 445. Overthrows Galerius, 446. Is furprised and routed by Galerius, 449. Articles of peace between him and the Romans, 453.
- Narfes, the Persian general of the emperor Maurice, reftores Chofroes 11. king of Perfia, iv. 477. His revolt against Phocas, and cruel death, 501.
- Narfes, the eunuch, his military promotion, and diffenfion with Belisarius, iv. 194. His character and expedition to Italy, 298. Battle of Ta-gina, 302. Takes Rome, 304. Reduces and kills Teias, the laft king of the Goths, 306. Defeats the Franks and Alemanni, 309. Governs Italy in the capacity of exarch, 312. His difgrace, and death, 425
- Naulobatus, a chief of the Heruli, enters into the Roman service, and is made conful, i. 323.
- Navy of the Roman empire described, i. 22.
- Nazarene church at Jerufalem, account of, i. 544.
- Nazarius the Pagan orator, his account of miraculous appearances in the fky in favour of Conftan
  - tine the Great, ii. 199.

- Nebridius, prætorian præfect in Gaul, is maimed and superseded, by his indiferet opposition to the troops of Julian, ii. 328.
- Negroes of Africa, evidences of their intellectual interiority to the reft of mankind, ii. 540.
- Neclarius is chosen archbishop of Constantinople, iii. 23.
- Nennius, his account of the arrival of the Saxons in Britain, different from that of Gildas, Bede, and Witikind, iii. 611. note.
- Nepos, Julius, is made emperor of the West by Leo the Great, iii. 490.
- Nepotian, account of his revolt in Italy, ii. 122.
- Nero perfecutes the Christians as the incendiaries of Rome, i. 637.
- Nerva, emperor, his character, and prudent adoption of Trajan, i. 91.
- Neftorius, archbishop of Constantinople, his character, iv. 551. His herefy concerning the incar-nation, 552. His difpute with Cyril of Alexan-dria, 553. Is condemned, and degraded from his episcopal dignity, by the council of Ephefus, 556. Is exiled, 561. His death, 563. His opinions still retained in Persia, 593. Missions of his disciples in the East Indies, 596.
- Nevers, John count of, difastrous fate of him and his party at the battle of Nicopolis, vi. 324.
- Nice becomes the capital refidence of fultan Soliman, v. 675. Siege of, by the first crufaders, vi. 40.
- Nicephorus I. emperor of Conftantinople, v. 27. His wars with the Saracens, 433. His death, 545.
- Nicephorus II. Phocas, emperor of Constantinople, v. 48. His military enterprizes, 458.
- Nicephorus III. Botaniates, emperor of Conftantinople, v. 63. Was raifed to the throne by fultan Soliman, 674.
- Nicetas, fenator of Conflantinople, his flight, on the capture of the city by the Latins, vi. 168. His brief history, 170. note. His account of the ftatues deftroyed at Conftantinople, 171.
- Nicholas, patriarch of Constantinople, opposes the fourth marriage of the emperor Leo the philofopher, v. 44.
- Nicholas V. pope, his character, vi. 429. How in-
- terefled in the fall of Conftantinople, 477. Nicomedia, the court of Diocletian held there, and the city embellifhed by him, i. 457. The church of, demolifhed by Diocletian, 682. His palace fired, 686.
- Nicopolis, battle of, between fultan Bajazet, and Sigifmond king of Hungary, vi. 323.
- Nika, the fedition of, at Conftantinople, iv. 64.
- Nineveh, battle of, between the emperor Heraclius, and the Perfians, iv. 523.
- Nifibis, the city of, described, and its obstinate defence against the Persians, ii. 107. Is yielded to Sapor by treaty, 465.
- Nizam, the Perfian vizir, his illuftrious character, and unhappy fate, v. 671.

Noah,

- Ncob, his ask very convenient for refolving the difficulties of Molaic antiquarians, i. 203.
- Nobilifimus, a title invented by Conftantine the Great, to diffinguish his nephew Hannibalianus, ii. 87.

- Normans, their fettlement in the province of Normandy in France, v. 588. Their introduction to Italy, 589. They ferve in Sicily, 591. They conquer Apulia, 592. Their character, 593. Their treaty with the pope, 597. Novatians are exempted by Conflatine the Great,
- in a particular edict from the general penalties of herefy, ii. 233. Are cruelly perfecuted by Macedonius bishop of Constantinople, 299.
- Novels of Jultinian, how formed, and their character, iv. 366.
- Noureddin, faltan, his exalted character, vi. 87.

- Nubia, convertion of, to Christianity, iv. 615. Numerian, the fon of Carus, fucceeds his father in the empire, in conjunction with his brother Carinus, i. 412.
- Numidia, its extent at different æras of the Roman history, i. 32.

- Oafis, in the deferts of Lybia, defcribed, iii. 289. note. Three places under this name pointed out, iv. 562. note.
- Obedience, passive, theory and practice of the Christian doctrine of, ii. 187.
- Obelishs, Egyptian, the purpose of their crection, ii. 146.

Oblations to the church, origin of, i. 591.

- Obligations, human, the fources of, iv. 393. Laws of the Romans respecting, 394.
- Cdenathus, the Palmyrene, his fuccefsful opposition to Sapor king of Perfia, i. 330. Is affoeiated in the empire by Gallienus, 337. Character and fate of his queen Zenobia, 365.
- Odin, the long reign of his family in Sweden, i. 272. note. His hiltory, 293. Odeacer the first Barbarian king of Italy, iii. 494.
- His character and reign, 500. Refigns all the - Roman conquefts beyond the Alps, to Euric king of the Viligoths, 558. Is reduced and killed by Theodoric the Offrogoth, iv. 10.
- Ohud, battle of, between Mahomet and Abu So-phian prince of Mecca, v. 233.
- Olga, princefs of Ruffia, her baptifm, v. 574.
- Olive, its introduction into the western world, i. 64.
- Olybrius is raifed to the Western empire by count Ricimer, iii. 488.
- Olympic games compared with the tournaments of
- the Goths, vi. 28. Olympiodorus, his account of the magnificence of the city of Rome, iii. 199. His account of the marriage of Adolphus king of the Vifigoths, with the princess Placidia, 253.
- Olympius, favourite of the emperor Honorius, alarms 4 S VOL. VI.

him with unfavourable fuspicions of the deligns of Stilicho, iii. 181. Caufes Stilicho to be put to death, 184. His difgrace, and ignominious death; 226.

- Omar, caliph of the Saracens, v. 258. His cha-racter, 280. His journey to Jerufalem, 321.
- Ommiyab, elevation of the house of, to the office of ealiph of the Saracens, v. 265. Why not the objects of public favour, 413. Deftruction of,
- Oracles, Heathen, are filenced by Conflantine the
- Great, ii. 306. Orchan, emir of the Ottomans, his reign, vi. 312. Marries the daughter of the Greek emperor Canthcuzene, 316.
- Ordination of the clergy in the early ages of the church, an account of, ii. 216.
- Orefles is fent ambaffador from Attila king of the Huns, to the emperor Theodofius the Younger, iii. 377. His hiftory and promotion under the Western emperors, 492. His fon Augustulus, the last emperor of the West, 493.
- Orefles, prætor of Egypt, is infulted by a monkish mob in Alexandria, iv. 548.
- Origen declares the number of primitive martyrs to be very inconfiderable, i. 653. His con-ference with the empress Mammæa, 669. His memory perfecuted by the emperor Juffinian and
- his clergy, iv. 583. Orleans belieged by Attila king of the Huns, and relieved by Ætius and Theodoric, iii. 407.
- Offus, bishop of Cordova, his great influence with Constantine the Great, ii. 202. Prevails on Constantine to ratify the Nicene creed, 261. with difficulty prevailed on to concur in deposing Athanafius, 283.
- Ofrhoene, the fmall kingdom of, reduced by the Romans, i. 251.
- Offian, his poems, whether to be connected with the invasion of Caledonia by the emperor Severus, i. 158. Is faid to have disputed with a Christian missionary, 612. note.
- QAia, the port of, defcribed, iii, 230, '
- Oshman, caliph of the Saracens, v. 250.
- Othman, the father of the Ottomans, his reign, vi. 311.
- Otho 1. king of Germany, reftores and appro-priates the Weftern empire, v. 148. Claims by treaty the nomination of the pope of Rome, 153. Defeats the Turks, 557.
- Otho II. deposes pope John XII. and chastifes his party at Rome, v. 157.
- Otho, bishop of Frisingen, his character as an historian, vi. 543. note.
- Ottomans, origin and history of, vi. 310. They obtain an establishment in Europe, 318. Ovid is banished to the banks of the Danube,
- ii. 92.
- Oxyrinchus, in Egypt, monkish piety of that city. iii. 50g.

Pacatus,

Noricum described, i. 27.

P

- Pacatus, his encomium on the emperor Theodosius the Great, iii. 44.
- Pæderafty, how punished by the Scatinian law, iv. 407. By Justinian, 409.
- Pagan, derivation and revolutions of the term, ii. 309. note.
- Paganism, the ruin of, fulpended by the divisions among the Christians, ii. 307. Theological system of the emperor Julian, 362.
- of the emperor Julian, 362. —, General review of the ecclefinitical eftablifhment and jurifdicition of, before it was fubverted by Christianity, iii. 70. Is renounced by the Roman fenate, 76. The Pagan facrifices prohibited, 78. The temples demolifhed, 80. The ruin of, deplored by the fophifts, 93. Pagan ceremonies revived in Christian churches, tot.
- Palæologus, Conflantine, Greek emperor, his reign, vi. 459. Is killed in the florm of Conflantinople by the Turks, 499.
- Palaeologus, John, emperor of Conftantinople, vi. 267. Marries the daughter of John Cantacuzene, 274. Takes up arms againft Cantacuzene, and is reduced to flight, 276. His refloration, 277. Difcord between him and his fons, 327. His treaty with pope Innocent VI. 383. His vifit to pope Urban V. at Rome, 385.
- Urban V. at Rome, 385. Palralogus, John II. Greek emperor, his zeal, vi. 396. His voyage to Italy, 400.
- Palaeologus, Manuel, affociated with his father John, in the Greek empire, vi. 327. Tribute exacted from him by fultan Bajazet, 329. His treaties with Soliman and Mahomet, the fons of Bajazet VI. 369. His vifit to the courts of Europe, 387. Private motives of his European negociations explained, 305. His death, 396.
- tions explained, 395. His death, 396. Palaelogus, Mickael, emperor of Nice, his brief replies to the negociations of Baldwin II. emperor of Conflantinople, vi. 203. His family and charafter, 226. His elevation to the throne, 228. His return to Conflantinople, 232. Blinds and banifhes his young affociate John Lafcaris, 234. He is excommunicated by the patriarch Arfenias, 235. Affociates his fon Andronicus in the empire, 237. His union with the Latin church, 238. Infligates the revolt of Sicily, 245.
- Palatines and Borderers, origin and nature of these diffinctions in the Roman troops, ii. 45.

Palermo taken by Belifarius by firatagem, iv. 167. Palessine, a character of, i. 30.

Palladium of Rome, described, iii. 70. note.

- Palladius, the notary, fent by Valentinian to Africa to inquire into the government of count Romanus, connives with him in opprefing the province, il. 533.
- vince, ii. 533. Palmyra, defeription of, and its destruction by the emperor Aurelian, i. 370.
- Panætius was the first teacher of the Stoic philosophy at Rome, iv. 352. note.
- Pandects of Jultinian, how formed, iv. 359.

Panbypersebastos, import of that title in the Greek empire, v. 484.

Pannonia defcribed, i. 27.

- Pantbeon at Rome, by whom erected, i. 53. note. Is converted into a Christian church, iii. 81. Pantomimes, Roman, deferibed, iii. 216.
- Paper, where and when the manufacture of, was first found out. v. 295.
- firft found out, v. 295. Pafinian, the celebrated lawyer, created prætorian præfect, by the emperor Severus, i. 152. His death, 165.
- Papirius, Caius, reafons for concluding that he could not be the author of the Jus Papirianum, iv. 335. note.
- Payifi, proportion their number bore to that of the Proteflants in England, at the beginning of the Iaft century, ii. 191. note.
- Para, king of Armenia, his hiftory, ii. 544. Is treacheroufly killed by the Romans, 546.

Parabolani of Alexandria, account of, iv. 547. note. Paradile, Mahomet's, described, v. 218.

- Paris, description of that city, under the government of Julian, ii. 177. Situation of his palace, 317. note. Parthia, subdued by Artaxerxes king of Persia,
- Parthia, fubdued by Artaxerxes king of Perfia, i. 247. Its conflictuion of government fimilar to the feudal fyftem of Europe, 248. Recapitulation of the war with Rome, 249.

Paschal II. pope, his troublefome pontificate, vi. 526. Pastoral manners, much better adapted to the fierce-

- nefs of war, than to peaceful innocence, ii. 564. Paternal authority, extent of, by the Roman laws,
- iv. 370. Succeffive limitations of, 372.
- Patras, extraordinary deliverance of, from the Sclavonians and Saracens, v. 473.
- Patricians, the order of, under the Roman republic, and under the emperors, compared, ii. 29. Under the Greek empire, their rank explained, v. 120.
- Patrick, the tutelar faint of Ireland, derivation of his name, iii. 498. note.
- Pavia, maffacie of the friends of Stilicho there, by the indigations of Olympius, iii. 183. Is taken by Alboin king of the Lombards, who fixes his refidence there, iv. 429.
- Paul of Samofata, bifhop of Antioch, his character and hiftory, i, 673.
- and hiftory, i. 673. Paul, archbifhop of Conftantinople, his fatal contest with his competitor Macedonius, ii. 296.
- Paula, a Roman widow, her illustrious descent, iii. 196. Was owner of the city of Nicopolis, 200. Her monastic zeal, 513.
- Paulicians, origin and character of, v. 521. Are perfecuted by the Greek emperors, 526. They revolt, 528. They are reduced, and tranfplanted to Thrace, 530. Their prefent flate, 533.
- Paulina, wife of the tyrant Maximin, foftens his ferocity by gentle counfels, i. 211. note.
- Paulinus, mafter of the offices to Theodofius the Younger, his crime, and execution, ili. 320.
- Paulinus, bishop of Nola, his history, iii. 246.
- Paulinus, patriarch of Aquileia, flies from the Lom-13 hards bards with his treasure, into the island of Grado, iv. 429.

- Pegafians, the party of, among the Roman civilians, explained, iv. 355. Pekin, the city of, taken by Zingis the Mogul em-
- peror, vi. 294.
- Pelagian controverfy agitated by the Latin clergy, iti. 172. And in Britain, 278.
- Pella, the church of the Nazarenes fettled there on the destruction of Jerufalem, i. 547.
- Peloponnefas, state of, under the Greek empire, v. 472. Manufactures, 475.
- Penal laws of Rome, the abolition, and revival of, iv. 402.

Pendragon, his office and power in Britain, iii. 278.

Penitentials, of the Greek and Latin churches, hiftory of, vi. 11.

- Pepin, king of France, affifts the pope of Rome against the Lombards, v. 116. Receives the title of king by papal fanction, 119. Grants the exarchate to the pope, 122. Pepin, John, count of Minorbino, reduces the tri-
- bune Rienzi, and reftores ariftocracy and church government at Rome, vi. 590.
- Pepper, its high estimation and price at Rome, iii. 223. note.
- Perennis, minister of the emperor Commodus, his great exaltation and downfal, i. 108.
- Perifabor, a city of Affyria, reduced and burned by the emperor Julian, ii, 435.
- Perozes, king of Perfia, his fatal expedition against the Nephthalites, iv. 107.
- Perfecutions, ten, of the primitive Christians, a review of, i. 665.
- Perfeus, amount of the treasures taken from that prince, i. 194.
- Perfia, the monarchy of, reftored by Artaxerxes, i. 239. The religion of the magi reformed, 240. Abridgment of the Persian theology, 241. Simplicity of their worship, 242. Ceremonies and moral precepts, 243. Every other mode of worship prohibited but that of Zoroaster, 246. Extent and population of the country, 2;8. Its military power, 256. Account of the audience given by the emperor Carus to the ambassadors of Varanes, 410. The throne of, disputed by the brothers Narles and Hormuz, 445. Galerius defeated by the Perfians, 446. Narles overthrown in his turn by Galerius, 449. Articles of peace agreed on between the Perfians and the
- Conflantius, ii. 104. Battle of Singara, 105. Sapor invades Mesopotamia, 153. The Perlian territories invaded by the emperor Julian, 428. Paffage of the Tigris, 443. Julian haraffed in his retreat, 453. Treaty of peace between Sapor and the emperor Jovian, 464. Reduction of Armenia, and death of Sapor, 541.

through Perfia, for the fupply of the Roman em-pite, iv. 74. Death of Perozes, in an expedition against the white Huns, 107. Review of the reigns of Cabades, and his fon Chofroes, 233. Anarchy of, after the death of Choiroes II. 528. Ecclefinitical hiftory of, 593.

Perfia, invation of, by the caliph Abubeker, v. 283. Battle of Cadefia, 284. Sack of Ctefiphon, 287. Conqueit of, by the Saracens, 200. The magian religion supplanted by Mahometism, 384. The power of the Arabs crushed by the dynasty of the Bowides, 455. Perfia fubdued by the Turks,

- 653. , Conquest of, by the Moguls, vi. 299. By Tamerlanc, 335
- Pertinax, his character, and exaltation to the Imperial throne, i. 118. His funeral and apotheofis, 142.
- Pescennius Niger, governor of Syria, affumes the Imperial dignity on the death of Pertinax, i. 135.
- Petavius, character of his Dogmata Theologica, iv. 533. note.
- Peter, brother of the Eastern emperor Maurice, his injurious treatment of the citizens of Azimuntium. and flight from thence, iv. 487.
- Peter I. czar of Ruflia, his conduct toward his fon, contrasted with that of Constantine the Great,
- ii. 84. Peter of Arragon, affumes the kingdom of Sicily, vi. 247.
- Peter Bartholemy, his miraculous discovery of the Holy Lance, vi. 52. His strange death, 54.
- Peter of Courtenay, emperor of Conftantinople, vi. 192.
- Peter the hermit, his character and fcheme to recover the Holy Land from the infidels, vi. 1. Leads the first crufaders, 18. Failure of his zeal. 51.
- Peira, the city of, taken by the Perfians, iv. 258. Is befieged by the Romans, 259. Is demolifhed, 261.
- Petrarch, his studies and literary character, vi. 419. And hiftory, 567. His account of the ruin of the ancient buildings of Rome, 635.
- Pfeffel, character of his hiltory of Germany, v. 163. note.
- Phalanx, Grecian, compared with the Roman legion, i. 16.
- Pharamond, the actions, and foundation of the French monarchy by him, of doubtful authority, iii. 271.
- Pharas commands the Heruli, in the African war. under Belifarius, iv. 130. Pursues Gelimer, 149. His letter to Gelimer, 150.
- Pharifees, account of that fect among the Jews, i. 560.
- Phasis, river, its course described, iv. 250.

4 S 2

Philelphus,

Pheasant, derivation of the name of that bird, iv. 251.

- Philelphus, Francis, his character of the Greek language of Conftantinople, vi. 415.
- Philip I. of France, his limited dignity and power, vi. 6.
- Philip Augustus of France engages in the third crusade, vi. 103.
- Philip, prætorian præfect under the third Gordian, raifed to the empire on his death, i. 232. Was a favourer of the Christians, 671.
- Pbilip, prætorian præfect of Conftantinople, conveys the bifhop Paul into banifhment clandeftinely, ii. 297.
- Philippicu's, emperor of Constantinople, v. 18.
- Philippopolis taken and facked by the Goths, i. 300.
- Philo, a character of his works, ii. 239.
- Philosophy, Grecian, review of the various fects of, i. 36.
- Phineus, the fituation of his palace, ii. 4.
- Phocea is fettled by Genoese, who trade in allum, vi. 368.
- Phocas, a centurion, is chofen emperor by the difaffected troops of the Eattern empire, iv. 491. Murders the emperor Maurice, and his children, 493. His character, 495. His fall, and death, 498.
- Phænicia described, i. 30.
- Photius, the fon of Antonina, diffinguishes himfelf at the fiege of Naples, iv. 205. Is exiled, 206. Betrays his mother's vices to Belifarius, 207. Turns monk, 209.
- Photius the patrician, kills himfelf to escape the perfecution of Justinian, iv. 580.
- Photius, patriarch of Constantinople, character of his library, v. 513. His quarrel with the pope of Rome, vi. 124.
- Phranza, George, the Greek hiftorian, fome account of, vi. 305. note. His embaffies, 460. His fate on the taking of Conftantinople by the Turks, 502.
- Picardy, derivation of the name of that province, vi. 1. note.
- Pilate, Pontius, his testimony in favour of Jefus Christ, much improved by the primitive fathers, i. 666.
- Pilpay's fables, history and character of, iv. 240.
- Pinna marina, a kind of filk manufactured from the threads fpun by this fifh, by the Romans, iv. 73.
- Pipa, a princefs of the Marcomanni, efpoufed by the emperor Gallienus, i. 315.
- Pije, Calphurnius, one of the competitors against Gallienus, his illustrious family and character, i. 335.
- Pityus, the city of, deftroyed by the Goths, i. 318. Placidia, daughter of Theodofius the Great, her hittory, and marriage with Adolphus king of the Goths, iii. 252. Is injurioully treated by the ufurper Singeric, after the death of her hufband, 268. Her marriage with Conflantius, and retreat

- to Conftantinople, 327. Her administration in the Weft, as guardian of her fon the emperor Valentinian III. 332. History of her daughter Honoria, 403. Her death and build, 429. note.
- Plague, origin and nature of this difeafe, iv. 327. Great extent, and long duration of that in the reign of Juffinian, 331.
- reign of Juffinian, 331. Plato, his theological fyftem, ii. 237. Is received by the Alexandrian Jews, 239. And expounded by St. John the Evangelift, 240. The theological fyftem of the emperor Julian, 362.
- Platonic philosophy introduced into Italy, vi. 428.
- Platonifis, new, an account of, i. 474. Unite with the heathen priefts to oppose the Christians, 679.
- Plautianus, prætorian præfect under the emperor Severus, his hiftory, i. 152.
- verus, his hiftory, i. 152. Plebeians of Rome, flate and character of, iii. 211. Pliny the Younger, examination of his conduct toward the Chriftians, i. 646.
- Poet laureat, a ridiculous appointment, vi. 563. note.
- Peggius, his reflections on the ruin of ancient Rome, vi. 610.
- vi. 619. Poitiers, battle of, between Clovis king of the Franks, and Alaric king of the Goths, iii. 577.
- Pellentia, battle of, between Stilicho the Roman general, and Alaric the Goth, iii. 150.
- Polytheifm of the Romans, its origin, and effects, i. 35. How accounted for by the primitive Chriftians, 552. Scepticifm of the people at the time of the publication of Chriftianity, 601. The Chriftians, why more odious to the Pagans than the Jews, 624.
- ----, The ruin of, fuspended by the divisions among Christians, ii. 309. Theological system of the emperor Julian, 362.
- -----, Review of the Pagan ecclefiaftical eftablishment, iii. 70. Revival of, by the Christian monks, 99.
- Pompeianus, præfect of Rome, propofes to drive Alaric from the walls by fpells, iii. 221.
- Pompeianus, Ruricius, general under Maxentius, defeated and killed by Conftantipe the Great, i. 507.
- Pompey, his diferential exercise of power during his command in the Eaft, i. 76. Increase of the tributes of Asra by his conquests, 194.
- Pontiffs, Pagan, their jurifdiction, iii. 70.
- Pontifex Maximus, in Pagan Rome, by whom that office was exercifed, ii. 211.
- Popes of Rome, the growth of their power, v. 102. Revolt of, from the Greek emperors, 107. Origin of their temporal dominion, 122. Publication of the Decretals, and of the fictitious donation of Conftantine the Great, 125. Authority of the German emperors in their election, 151. Violent diffractions in their election, 153.
- Foundation of their authority at Rome, vi. 521. Their mode of election fettled, 550. Schifm in the papacy, 599. They acquire the abfelute, absolute dominion of Rome, 613. The ecclefiaffical government, 616.

Population of Rome, a computation of, iii. 217.

- Porcaro. Stephen, his confpiracy at Rome, vi. 610.
- Postburkus, the Roman general under the emperor Gallienus, defends Gaul against the incursions of the Franks, i. 311. Is killed by his mutinous troops, 363.
- Power, abfolute, the exercise of, how checked, v. 496.
- Prafest of the facred bed-chamber, under Conftantine the Great, his office, ii. 51.
- Prafess of Rome and Constantinople, under the emperors, the nature of their offices, ii. 34. The office revived at Rome, vi. 537. Prætextatus, præfect of Rome under Valentinian,
- his character, ii. 514. Prætorian bands, in the Roman army, an account
- of, i. 128. They fell the empire of Rome by public auction, 130. Are difgraced by the em-peror Severus, 141. A new eftabliftment of them, 151. Authority of the pratorian praceca, 152. Are reduced, their privileges abolifted, and their place supplied, by the Jovians and Her-culeans, 459. Their desperate courage under
- culeans, 459. Maxentius, 510. Are totally suppressed by Constantine the Great, 513.
- Prætorian prætect, revolutions of this office under the emperors, ii. 31. Their functions when it became a civil office, 33.
- Prætors of Rome, the nature and tendency of their edicts explained, iv. 341. Preaching, a form of devotion unknown in the - temples of Paganism, ii. 226. Use, and abuse of, 227.
- Predeflination, influence of the doctrine of, on the Saracens and Turks, v. 231.
- Preflyters, among the primitive Christians, the ofnce explained, i. 583.
- Prester, 'john, origin of the romantic stories concerning, iv. 597.
- Priefts, no diffinct order of men among the ancient Pagans, i. 600. ii. 212.
- Priefley, Dr. the ultimate tendency of his opinions, pointed out, v. 540. note.
- Primogeniture, the presogative of, unknown to the Roman law, iv. 388.
- Prince of the waters, in Persia, his office, iv. 237. note.
- Priscillian, bishop of Avila in Spain, is, with his foilowers, put to death for herefy, iii. 20.
- Prifcas the historian, his conversation with a captive Greek, in the camp of Attila, iii. 370. His character, 377, note.
- Prifcus, the Greek general, his fuccesses against the Avars, iv. 488.
- Proba, widow of the præfect Petronius, her flight
- from the fack of Rome by Alaric, iii. 243. Probus affumes the Imperial dignity in opposition to Florianus, i. 393. His character and history, 394.

- Probus, prætorian præfect of Illyricum, preferves Sirmium from the Quadi, ii. 554.
- Probus, Sicorius, his embaffy from the emperor Diocletian to Narfes king of Perfia, i. 451.
- Procida, John of, infligates the revolt of Sicily from John of Anjou, vi. 247. Proclus, flory of his extraordinary brazen mirror,
- iv. 8g.
- Proclus, the platonic philosopher of Athens, his fuperstition, iv. 117
- Proconfuls of Afia, Achaia, and Africa, their office, ii. 36.
- Procopia, wife of the Greek emperor Michael I. her martial inclinations, v. 28.
- Precopius, his hiltory, and revolt against Valens, emperor of the East, ii. 489. Is reduced, and put to death, 495. His account of the testament of the emperor Arcadius, iii. 311. His account of Britain, 626. Character of his histories, iv. 48. Accepts the office of fecretary under Belifarius, 127. His defence of the Roman archers, 130. His account of the defolation of the African province by war, 277
- Proculians, origin of the fect of, in the Roman civil law, iv. 354. Proculus, his extraordinary character, and his rebel-
- lion against Probus in Gaul, i. 405.
- Prodigies in ancient hiltory, a philotophical refolution of, ii. 193.
- Promifes, under what circumstances the Roman law enforced the fulfilment of, iv. 394.
- Promotus, master-general of the infantry under Theodofius, is ruined by the enmity of Rufinus, iii. 106.
- Property, perfonal, the origin of, iv. 384. How afcertained by the Roman laws, 355. Teftamentary dispositions of, how introduced, 390.
- Prophets, their office among the primitive Chriftians, i. 583.
- Propontis described, ii. 6.
- Proterias, patriarch of Alexandria, his martial epif-
- copacy, and violent death, iv. 571. Protestants, their resistance of oppression, not confiltent with the practice of the primitive Christians, ii. 188. Proportion of their number, to that of the Catholics, in France, at the beginning of the laft century, 191. nose. Eftimate of their reformation of Popery, v. 536.
- Protofebastos, import of that title in the Greek em- pire, v. 484. Proverbs, the book of, why not likely to be the production of king Solomon, iv. 153. note.
- Provinces of the Roman empire described, i. 23. Distinction between Latin and Greek provinces, 45. Account of the tributes received from, 194. Their number and government after the feat of empire was removed to Conflantinople, ii. 37.
- Prufa, conquest of, by the Ottomans, vi. 312.

Pruffia, emigration of the Goths to, i. 295. Pulcheria, fifter of the emperor Theodofius the Younger, Younger, her character and administration, iii 314. Her leffons to her br ther, 316. Her contells with the empress Eudocia, 320. Is proclaimed empress of the Ealt, on the death of Theodolius, 390. Her death and canonization, 469.

- Purple, the royal colour of, among the ancients, far furpaffed by the modern difcovery of cochineal, iv. 71. note.
- Pygmies of Africa, ancient fabulous account of, 11. 539.

Q

Quadi, the inroads of, punished by the emperor Conftantius, ii. 147. Revenge the treacherous murder of their king Gabinius, 554.

Quaftor, hiltorical review of this office, ii. 53.

- Question, criminal, how exercised under the Roman
- emperors, ii. 59. Quintilian brothers, Maximus and Condianus, their hiftory, i. 107.
- Quintilius, brother of the emperor Claudius, his ineffectual effort to fucceed him, i. 353.
- Quintus Curtius, an attempt to decide the age in - which he wrote, i. 230 note. Quirites, the effect of that word when opposed to Soldiers, i. 191. note.

- Radagai/us, king of the Goths, his formidable invation of Italy, iii. 162. His favage character, 165. Is reduced by Stilicho, and put to death, 167.
- Radiger, king of the Varni, compelled to fulfil his matrimonial obligations by a British heroine, iii. 626.
- Ramadan, the month of, how observed by the Turks, v. 214.
- Rando, a chieftain of the Alemanni, his unprovoked
- attack of Moguntiacum, ii. 518. Ravenna, the ancient city of, defcribed, iii. 157. The emperor Honorius fixes his refidence there, 159. Invalion of, by a Greek fleet, v. 109. Is taken by the Lombards, and recovered by the Venetians, 114. Final conqueft of, by the Lombards, 115. The exarchate of, bellowed by Pepin on the pope, 122.
- Raymond of Tholoufe, the crufader, his character, vi. 24. His route to Constantinople, 30. His bold behaviour there, 36.
- Raymend, count of Tripoli, betrays Jerusalem into the hands of Saladin, vi. 96.

Raynal, Abbé, miftaken in afferting that Conftantine the Great fuppreffed Pagan worship, ii. 304.

Rebels, who the most inveterate of, v. 528. Recared, the first Catholic king of Spain, converts

- his Gethic subjects, iii. 550. Reformation from popery, the amount of, estimated, v. 536. A fecret reformation fill working in the
- reformed churches, 539. Rein-deer, this animal driven northward by the improvement of climate from cultivation, i. 261.

- Relics, the worship of, introduced by the monks, iii. 94. A valuable cargo of, imported from Constantinople by Louis IX. of France, vi. 201.
- Remigius, bishop of Rheims, converts Clovis king of the Franks, iii. 565.
- Repentance, its high efteem, and extensive operation, among the primitive Chriftians, i. 573
- Refurrection, general, the Mahometan doctrine of, v. 215.
- Retiarius, the mode of his combat with the fecutor, in the Roman amphitheatre, i. 116.
- Revenues of the primitive church, how distributed, i. 594. ii 221 Of the Roman empire, when removed to Conftantinople, a review of, ii. 6t.

Rhæteum, city of, its fituation, ii. 9.

- Rhæt a described, i. 27.
- Rhazates, the Persian general, defeated and killed by the emperor Heraclius, iv. 523.
- Rhetoric, the fludy of, congenial to a popular flate, iv. 113.
- Rhine, the banks of, fortified by the emperor Valentinian, ii. 520.
- Rhodes, account of the coloffus of, v. 331. The knights of, vi. 314. Richard I. of England, engages in the third crufade,
- vi. 103. Beltows the island of Cyprus on the house of Lusignan, 131. His reply to the exhortations of Fulk of Neuilly, 135.
- Richard, monk of Cirencester, his literary character, iii. 275. note.
- Ricimer, count, his history, iii. 451. Permits Majorian to affume the Imperial dignity in the Weftern empire, 453. Enjoys fupreme power under cover of the name of the emperor Libius Severus, 464. Marries the daughter of the emperor Anthemius, 472. Sacks Rome, and kills Anthemius, 489. His death, 490.
- Rienzi, Nicholas di, his birth, character, and hiftory, vi. 572.
- Roads, Roman, the construction and great extent of, i. 61.
- Robert of Courtenay, emperor of Constantinople, vi. 194.
- Robert, count of Flanders, his character and engagement in the first crufade, vi. 23.
- Robert, duke of Normandy, his character and engagement in the first crusade, vi. 23. Recalled by the cenfures of the church, 51.
- Roderic, the Gothic king of Spain, his defeat and death by Tarik the Arab, v. 368.
- Rodugune, probable origin of her character, in Rowe's Koyal Convert, in. 626.
- Roger, count of Sicily, his exploits, and conquest of
- that island, v. 606. Roger, fon of the former, the first king of Sicily, v. 626. His military atchievements in Africa and Greece, 629.
- Roger de Flor, engages as an auxiliary in the fervice of the Greek emperor Andronicus, vi. 249. His affaffination, 251.

Romanus

Remanxs I. Lecapenus, emperor of Confiantinople, v. 45.

Remanur III. Argyrus, emperor of Conflantinople, v. 54.

- Romanus IV. Diogenes, emperor of Conflantinople, v. 61. Is defeated and taken prifoner by the Turkith fultan Alp Arflan, 662. His treatment, deliverance, and death, 664.
- Romanus, count, governor of Africa, his corrupt administration, ii. 533.
- ministration, ii. 533. Romanus, governor of Bosra, betrays it to the Saracens, v. 300.
- Rome, the three periods of its decline pointed out, i. Preface. Its prosperous circumstances in the fecond century, t. The principal conquests of, atchieved under the republic, 2. Conquests unatchieved under the republic, 2. Conqueits un-der the emperors, 4. Military effablihment of the emperors, 11. Naval force of the empire, 22. View of the provinces of the empire, 23. Its general extent, 33. The union and internal profperity of the empire, in the age of the Anto-nines, accounted for, 34. Treatment of the provinces, 42. Benefits included in the freedom of the day accounted hereas the Letter of the city, 45. Distinction between the Latin and Greek provinces, ibid. Prevalence of the Greek, as a fcientific language, 47. Numbers and condition of the Roman flaves, 48. Populoufne's of the empire, 51. Unity and power of the government, 52. Monuments of Roman architecture, 53. The Roman magnificence chiefly displayed in public buildings, 57. Principal cities in the empire, 58. Public roads, 61. Great improvements of agriculture in the western countries of the empire, 63. Arts of luxury, 65. Commerce with the East, 66. Contemporary reprefentation of the prosperity of the empire, 68. Decline of courage and genius, 69. A review of public affairs after the battle of Actium, 72. The Imperial power and dignity confirmed to Augustus by the fenate, 74. The various characters and powers welled in the emperor, 78. General idea of the Imperial fystem, 83. Abortive attempt of the fenate to refume its rights after the murder of Caligula, 87. The emperors affociate their intended fuccessors to power, 90. The most happy period in the Roman hiltory pointed out, 96. Their peculiar mifery under their tyrants, 97. The empire publicly fold by außton by the prætorian guards, 130. Civil wars of the Romans, how generally decided, 146. When the army first received regular pay, 193. How the citizens were relieved from texation, 194. General estimate of the Roman revenue from the provinces, 195. Miferies flowing from the fucceffion to the empire being elective, 205. A fummary review of the Roman hiftory, 235. Recapitulation of the war with Parthia, 249. Invation of the provinces by the Goths, 29%. The office of cenfor revived by the emperor De-cius, 301. Peace purchased of the Goths, 305. The emperor Valerian taken prifoner hy Sapor king of l'erfia, 327. The popular conceit of the thirty tyrants of Rome investigated, 333. Famine and peffilence throughout the empire, 341. The city fortified against the inroads of the Alemanni, 362. Remarks on the alleged fedition of the officers of the mint under Aurelian, 378. Obfer. ations on the peaceful interregnum after the death of Aurelian, 384. Colonies of barbarians introduced into the provinces by Probus, 402. Exhibition of the public games by Ca-rinus, 415. Treaty of peace between the Per-fians and the Romans, 453. The laft trianph celebrated at Rome, 455. How the Imperial courts came to be transferred to Milan and Nicomedia, 457. The prætorian bands fuperfeded by the Jovian and Herculean guards, 459. The power of the fenate annihilated, ibid. Four divisions of the empire under four conjunct princes, 464. Their expensive establishments call for more burdensome taxes, ibid Diocletian and Maximian abdicate the empire, 465. Six em-perors exiling at one time, 493. The fenate and people apply to Constantine to deliver them and people apply to Containing to containing to contain from the tyranny of Maxentius, 502. Confian-tine enters the city victorious, 511. Laws of Confiantine, 524. Confiantine remains fole em-peror, 534. Hiltory of the progress and efta-bliftment of Chriftianity, 535. Pretentions of the bishop of Rome, whence deduced, 589. State of the church at Rome at the time of the perfecution by Nero, 608. Narrative of the fire of Rome, in the reign of Nero, 636. The Chrittians perfectuted as the incendiaries, 637. The memorable edicts of Diocletian and his affociates against the Christians, 683.

—, Account of the building and effablishment of the rival city of Conflantinople, ii. 3. New forms of administration established there, 23. Division of the empire among the fons of Conflantine, 100. Effablishment of Christianity as the national religion, 211. Tumults excited by the rival bishops, Libeitus and Fælix, 294. Paganism reflored by Julian, 371. And Christianity by Jovian, 478. The empire divided into the East and Wey, by the emperor Valentinian, 489. Civil infitutions of Valentinian, 502. The crafty avarice of the clergy restrained by Valentinian, 510. Bloody contest of Damafus and Urfinus for the bishopric of Rome, 513. Great earthquake, 561.

f The emperor Theodofius visits the city, iii. 42. Inquiry into the canfe of the corruption of morals in his reign, 66. Review of the Pagan eftablishment, 70. The Pagan religion reasonced by the fenate, 76. Sacrifices prohibited, 78 The Pagan religion prohibeted, 88. Triumph of Honorius and Stilicho, over Alaric the Gosh, 155. Alaric encamps under the walls of the city, 194. Retrofped Remanus II. emperor of Conflantinople, v. 48.

Retrospect of the state of the city when befieged by Hannibal, 194. Wealth of the nobles, and magnificence of the city, 199. Character of the nobles of, by Ammianus Marcellinus, 202. State and character of the common people, 211. Public distributions of bread, &c. 212. Public baths, 214. Games and speciacles, 215. Attempts to afcertain the population of the city, 217. The citizens fuffer by famine, 220. Plague, 221. The retreat of Alaric purchafed by a ranfom, 223. Is again befieged by Alaric, 230. The fenate unites with him in electing Attalus emperor, 231. The city feized by Alaric, and plundered, 235. Comparison between this event, and the fack of Rome by the emperor Charles V. 244. Alaric quits Rome, and ravages Italy, 246. Laws paffed for the relief of Rome, and Italy, 255. Triumph of Honorius for the re-duction of Spain by Wallia, 270. Is preferved Alaric quits Rome, and ravages Italy, from the hands of Attila by a ranfom, 424. Indications of the ruin of the empire, at the death of Valentinian III. 432. Sack of the city by Gén-feric king of the Vandals, 440. The public buildings of, protected from depredation by the laws of Majorian, 457. Is facked again by the patrician Ricimer, 489. Augustulus, the last emperor of the Weft, 493. The decay of the Roman further marked, 500. Hildry of mo-Roman fpirit remarked, 500. Hiltory of mo-naftic inftitutions in, 509. General obfer-vations on the hiftory of the Roman empire, 629.

Rome - Italy conquered by Theodoric the Offrogoth, iv. 10. Prosperity of the city under his government, 23. Account of the four factions in the circus, 60. First introduction of filk among the Romans, 72. The office of conful fupprefied by Juffinian, 19. The city receives Belifarius, 175. Siege of, by the Goths, 176. Diftrelsful fiege of, by Totila the Goth, 284. Is taken, 287. Is recovered by Belifarius, 290. Is again taken by Totila, 295. Is taken by the cunuch Narfes, 304. Extinction of the fenate, 305. The city degraded to the fecond rank under the exarchs of Ravenna, 313. A review of the Roman laws, 332. Extent of the dutchy of, under the exarchs of Ravenna, 444. Miferable flate of the city, 453. Pontificate of Gregory the Great,

458. The government of the city new modelled under the popes, after their revolt from the Greek emperors, v. 111. Is attacked by the Lombards, and delivered by king Pepin, 114. The office and rank of exarchs and patricians explained, 120. Reception of Charlemagne by pope Adrian I. 121. Origin of the temporal power of the popes, 122. Mode of electing a pope, 152. Is menaced by the Saracens, 438. Profperous pontificate of Leo IV. 440. Is be-fieged and taken by the emperor Henry III. 621. Great part of the city burnt by Robert Guifcard, in the caufe of pope Gregory VII. 623.

- Rome, the hiftory of, refumed, after the capture of Conftantinople by the Turks, vi. 518. French and German emperors of, 519 Authority of the popes, 521. Reftoration of the republican form popes, 521. Reitoration of the republican form of government, 533. Office of femator, 539. Wars againt the neighbouring cities, 547. In-flitution of the Jubilee, 557. Revolution in the city, by the tribune Reazi, 572. Calamities flowing from the fchi/m of the papacy, 600. Statutes and government of the city, 608. Por-caro's confpiracy, 640. The ecclefialtical go-vernment of, 646. Reflections of Peggius en . the ruin of the city, 649. Four principal caules of its ruin fpecified. 622. The Coliferm of of its ruin specified, 623. The Colifeum of Titus, 635. Restoration and ornaments of the city, 643.
- Romilda, the betrayer of Friuli to the Avars, her cruel treatment by them, iv. 507
- Rosamond, daughter of Cunimund king of the Gepidæ, her marriage with Alboin king of the Lombards, iv. 422. Confpires his murder, 431. Her flight and death, 432. Roum, the Seljukian kingdom of, formed, v. 675.
- Rudbeck, Olaus, fummary abridgment of the argument in his Atlantica, i. 264
- Rufinus, the confidential minister of the emperor Theodofius the Great, flimulates his cruelty against Thessalonica, iii. 5 . His character and administration, 105. His death, 119. Rugilas the Hun, his fettlement in Hungary, iii.
- 355.
- Runic characters, the antiquity of, traced, i. 265. note.
- Ruffa, origin of the monarchy of, v. 560. Geo-graphy and trade of, 563. Naval expeditions of the Ruffians against Constantinople, 566. Reign of the ezar Swatoslaus, 570. The Ruf-fiane converted to Christian era Is confians converted to Christianity, 574. Is conquered by the Moguls, vi. 302.
- Ruftan, a Persian nobleman, a faying of his, ex-pressive of the danger of living under despots, i. 98.
- Rutilius, his character of the monks of Capraria, iii. 127.

S

- Sabellius the herefiarch, his opinions afterward adopted by his antagenifis, ii. 246. His doctrine of the Trinity, 250. The Sabellians unite with the Tritheifts at the council of Nice to overpower the Arians, 252.
- Sabians, their aftronomical mythology, v. 194.
- Sabinian obtains the command of the Eaftern provinces from Conftantius, ii. 158.
- Sabinian, general of the East, is defeated by Theodoric the Offrogoth king of Italy, iv. 19.
- Sabinians, origin of the feft of, in the Roman civil law, iv. 354.

Sadducees,

Sadducees, account of that fect among the Jews, i. 560.

Saladin, his birth, promotion, and character, vi. 92. Conquers the kingdom of Jerufalem, 97. His ineffectual fiege of Tyre, too. Siege of Acre, 102. His negociations with Richard I. of England, 106. His death, 108.

Salerno, account of the medical fchool of, v. 604. Salic laws, history of, iii. 583.

- Sallus, the præfect, and friend of the emperor Julian, declines the offer of the diadem on his death, ii. 461. Declines it again, on the death of Jovian, 484. Is retained in his employment by the emperor Valentinian, 488.
- Salluft, the historian, by what funds he raifed his palace on the Quirinal hill, iii. 241. note.
- Salona, the retreat of the emperor Diocletian, defcribed, i. 470.
- Salvian, his account of the diffrefs and rebellion of the Bagaudæ, iii. 434. note.
- Samanides, the Saracen dynafty of, v. 454-
- Samaritans, perfecution and extinction of, by the emperor Justinian, iv. 581. Samuel the prophet, his athes conveyed to Constan-
- tinople, iii. 95. Safer, king of Persia, procures the assassion of Chofroes king of Armenia, and feizes the coun-try, i. 326. Defeats the emperor Valerian, and takes him prisoner, 327. Sets up Cyriades as fucceffor to Valerian in the Roman empire, 328. Over-runs Syria, Cilicia, and Cappadocia, ibid. His death, 372.
- Sapor, the fon of Hormouz, is crowned king of Perfia before his birth, il. 101. His character and early heroism, 102. Harasses the eastern provinces of the Roman empire, 104. Singara, againft the emperor Conflantius, 105. His fon brutally killed by Conflantius, 106. On brutally killed by Conflanting, 106. cludes a truce with Conftantius, 109. His haughty propolitions to Conflantius, 151. Invades Mefopotamia, 153. Reduces Amida, 156. Re-turns home, 157. His peaceful overtures to the emperor Julian, 415. His conflernation at the fucceffes of Julian, 447. Haraffes the retreat of the Romans, 453. His treaty with the emperor Jovian, 464. His reduction of Armenia, and death, 541.
- Saracen, various definitions of that appellation, v. 181. note.
- Saracens, fuccessions of the caliphs of, v. 258. Their rapid conquests, 281. Conquest of Persia, 290. Siege of Damascus, 300. Battle of Yermuck, and conquest of Syria, 317. Of Egypt, 331. Invations of Africa, 349. Their military character, 502.
- Sarbar, the Perfian general, joins the Avars in befieging Constantinople, iv. 519. Revolts to the emperor Heraclius, 522.
- Sardinia, expulsion of the Vandals from, by Mar-T VOL. VI. 4 cellinus, iii. 477. Is conquered by Zano, the brother of Gelimer king of the Vandals, iv. 142. Is furrendered to Belifarius, 146.

- Sarmatians, memorable defeat of, by the emperor Carus, i. 410. Their manners deferibed, ii. 89. Brief history of, 01. They apply to Constantine the Great for affiftance against the Goths, 92. Are expelled their country by the Limigantes, 94. Are restored by Constantius, 150.
- Savage manners, a brief view of, i. 268. Are more uniform than those of civilifed nations, ii. 564.
- Sarus the Goth plunders the camp of Stilicho, and drives him into the hands of the emperor at Ravenna, iii. 183. Infults Alaric, and occasions the facking of Rome, 235. Is killed by Adolphus king of the Vifigoths, 263.
- Saturninus, one of the competitors for empire against Gallienus, his obfervation on his investiture, i. 336.
- Saturninus, lieutenant under the emperor Probus, in the Eaft, is driven into rebellion by his troops, i. 404.
- Saxons, ancient, an account of, ii. 522. Their piratical confederations, 523. Their invalions of Gaul checked by the Romans, 524. How converted to Chriftianity, iii. 530. Defeent of the Saxons on Britain, 611. Their brutal defolation of the country, 620.
- Scanderbeg, prince of Albania, his hiftory, vi. 454.
- Scatinian law of the Romans, account of, iv. 407.
- Scaurus, the patrician family of, how reduced under the emperors, ii. 30. note.
- Schifm in religion, the origin of, traced, i. 549. Science reducible to four classes, v. 426.
- Sclavonians, their national character, iv. 219. Their barbarous inroads on the Eastern empire, 222.
- Of Dalmatia, account of, v. 544. Scots and Picls, the nations of, how diffinguished,
- si, 527. Invafions of Britain by, 529.
   Scythians, this name vaguely applied to mixed tribes of barbarians, i. 324. Their paftoral manners, ii. 563. Extent and boundaries of Scythia, 574. Revolutions of, iii. 160. Their mode of war,
- Sebastian, master-general of the infantry under the emperor Valens, his fuccelsful expedition against the Goths, ii. 611. Is killed in the battle of Hadrianople, 616.
- Sebastian, the brother of the usurper Jovinus, is affociated with him in his affomed Imperial dignities, iii. 263.
- Sebastocrator, import of that title in the Greek empire, v. 484.
- Seez, in Normandy, the bishop, and chapter of,
- all castrated, vi. 525. note Segestan, the princes of, support their independency obstinately against Artaxerxes, i. 248. note.
- Segued, emperor of Abyffinia, is with his whole court, converted by the Jefuits, iv. 619.

Selden,

- Selden, his fententious character of transubstantiation, v. 88. note.
- Seleucia, the great city of, ruined by the Romans, i. 250.
- Scleucus Nicator, number of cities founded by him, i. 247. note. Seljuk, Turkish dynasty of the house of, v. 654.
- Seljuk, Turkish dynasty of the house of, v. 654. Division of their empire, 672.
- Serjeant, legal and military import of that term, vi. 151. note.
- Severus, Septimius, general of the Pannonian legions, affumes the purple on the death of Pertinax, i. 137. His conduct toward the Christians, 668.
- Senate of Rome is reformed by Auguftus, i. 73. Its legiflative and judicial powers, 82. Abortive attempt of, to refume its rights after the murder of Caligula, 87. Its legal jurifdiction over the emperors, 121. Is fubjected to military defpotifm, by Severus, 153. Women excluded from this affembly by a folemn law, 183. The form of a fecret meeting, 216. Meafures taken to fupport the authority of the two Gordians, 217. The fenate elect Maximus and Balbinus emperors on the deaths of the Gordians, 219. They drive the Alemanni out of Italy, 314. The fenators forbid to exercife military employments by Gallienus, ibid. Elect Tacitus, the father of the fenate, emperor, 386. Prerogatives gained to the fenate, by this election, 389. Their power and authority annihilated by Diocletian, 458.
- —, Amount of the coronary gold, or cultomary free gift of, to the emperors, ii. 72. The claim of Julian to the empire admitted, 333. —, Petitions of, to the emperors, for the reflora-
- —, Petitions of, to the emperors, for the refloration of the altar of victory, iii. 73. The Pagan religion renounced, 76. Debates of, on the propofals of Alaric the Goth, 179. Genealogy of the fenators, 195. Paffes a decree for putting to death Serena the widow of Stilicho, 220. Under the influence of Alaric, elects Attalus emperor, 231. Trial of Arvandus, prætorian præfect of Gaul, 482. Surrenders the fovereign power of Italy to the emperor of the Eaft, 496.
- , Refloration of, in the twelfth century, vi. 533. The affembly refolved into fingle magistrates, 539. 608.
- Serapion, his lamentation for the loss of a personified deity, iv. 540.
- Serapis, hiftory of his worfhip, and of his temple at Alexandria, iii. 82. The temple deflroyed, 84.
- Serena, niece of the emperor Theodofius, married to his general Stilicho, iii. 116. Is cruelly firangled by order of the Roman fenate, 220.
- Severinus, St. encourages Odoacer to affume the dominion of Italy, iii. 495. His body, how difpoled of, 499. note.

- Severus is declared Cæfar on the abdication of Diocletian and Maximian, i. 479. His defeat and death, 488.
- Severus is appointed general of the cavalry in Gaul under Julian, ii. 165.
- Shepherds and warriors, their respective modes of life compared, ii. 564.
- Sbiites, a fect of Mahometans, their diffinction from the Sonnites, v. 260.
- Siberia, extreme coldnefs of the climate, and miferable flate of the natives of, ii. 576. Is feized and occupied by the Tartars, vi. 304.
- Sicily, reflections on the distractions in that ifland, i. 338. Is conquered by the Saracens, v. 437. Introduction of the filk manufacture there, 477. Exploits of the Normans there, 501. Is conquered by count Roger, 606. Roger, fon of the former, made king of, 626. Reign of William the Bad, 638. Reign of William the Good, 630. Conqueft of, by the emperor Henry VI. 642. Is fubdued by Charles of Anjou, vi. 243. The Sicilian Vefters, 247.
- Sidonius Apollinaris the poet, his humourous treatment of the capitation tax, ii. 67. His character of Theodoric king of the Vifigoths in Gaul, iii. 445. His panegyric on the emperor Avitus, 450. His panegyric on the emperor Anthemius, 473.
- Sigifmond, king of the Burgundians, murders his fon, and is canonifed, iii. 572. Is overwhelmed by an army of Franks, 573.
- Silentiarius, Paul, his account of the various fpecies of ftone and marble, employed in the church of St. Sophia at Constantinople, iv. 94. note.
- Silk, first manufactured in China, and then in the fmall Grecian island of Ceos, iv. 72. A peculiar kind of filk procured from the pinna marina, 73. The filk worm, how introduced to Greece, 77. Progress of the manufacture of, in the tenth century, v. 476.
- the tenth century, v. 476. Simeon, perfecutor of the Paulicians, becomes a profelyte to their opinions, v. 526.
- Simeon, king of Bulgaria, his exploits, v. 546.
- Simeon Stylites, the hermit, his extraordinary mode of life, iii. 525.
- Simony, an early instance of, i. 673. note.
- Simplicius, one of the laft furviving Pagan philofophers of Athens, his writings, and character, iv. 119.
- Singara, battle of, between the emperor Conflantus, and Sapor king of Perna, ii. 105. The city of, reduced by Sapor, 158. Is yielded to him by Jovian, 465.
- Singeric, brother of Sarus, is made king of the Goths, iii. 268.
- Singidunum is perfidioufly taken by Baian chagan of the Avars, iv. 484.
- Sirmium is perfidioufly taken by Baian chagan of the Avars, iv. 484.
- Sirees depofes and murders his father Chofroes II. king king of Perfia, iv. 527. His treaty of peace with the emperor Heraclius, 528.

- Sijebut, a Gothic king of Spain, perfecutes the Jews there, iii. 553;
- Sixtus V. pope, character of his administration, vi. 617.
- Slave, strange perversion of the original fense of that appellation, v. 544.
- Slaves, among the Romans, who, and their condition described, i. 48.
- Slavery, perfonal, imposed on captives by the barbarous nations, iii. 595.
- Sleepers, feven, narrative of the legendary tale of, iii. 350.
- Smyrna, capture of, by Tamerlane, vi. 351.
- Society, philosophical, reflections on the revolutions of, iii. 638.
- Soffarides, the Saracen dynafty of, v. 454. Soldiers, Roman, their obligations and difcipline, When they first received regular pay, i. 12. 193.
- Soliman, fultan, conquers Afia Minor, v. 674. Fixes his refidence at Nice, 675. Nice taken by the first crusaders, vi. 41. Battle of Dorylæum, 42.
- Soliman, the fon of Bajazet, his character, vi. 366. His alliance with the Greek emperor Manuel Palæologus, 369.
- Solomon, king of the Jews, not the author of the book which bears the name of his Wifdom, ii. 239. Reafons for supposing he did not write either the book of Ecclefiastes or the Proverbs, iv. 153. note.
- Solomon the eunuch relieves the Roman province in Africa, from the depredations of the Moors, iv. 157. Revolt of his troops at Carthage, 273. Is defeated and killed by Antalus the Moor, 276.
- Solyman, caliph of the Saracens, undertakes the fiege of Constantinople, v. 397. His enormous appetite and death, 400.
- Sonnites, in the Mahometan religion, their tenets, v. 260.
- Sopator, a Syrian philosopher, beheaded by Constantine the Great, on a charge of binding the - wind by magic, ii. 274. note. Sophia, the widow of Juftin II. her confpiracy againft the emperor Tiberius, iv. 437.
- Sophia, St. foundation of the church of, at Constantinople, iv. 91. Its description, 93. Is converted into a mosch, vi. 506.
- Sophian, the Arab, commands the first fiege of Constantinople, v. 393.
- Sophronia, a Roman matron, kills herfelf to escape the violence of Maxentius, i. 500. note. Sortes Sanctorum, a mode of Christian divination,
- adopted from the Pagans, iii. 576. note.
- Soul, uncertain opinions of the ancient philofophers as to the immortality of, i. 556. This doctrine more generally received among the barbarous nations, and for what reafon, 559.

Was not taught by Mofes, 560. Four different prevailing doctrines as to the origin of, iv. 536. note.

- Sozopetra deftroyed by the Greek emperor Theophilus, v. 443.
- Spain, the province of, defcribed, i. 23. Great revenues railed from this province by the Romans, 195. Is ravaged by the Franks, 311.
- Review of the history of, iii. 264. Is in-The invavaded by the barbarous nations, 266. ders conquered by Wallia king of the Goths, 269. Succeffes of the Vandals there, 334. Expedition of Theodoric king of the Viligoths into, 448. The Christian religion received there, 547. Revolt and martyrdom of Hermenegild, 548. Perfecution of the Jews in, 552. Legiflative affemblies of, 607.
- -, Acquisitions of Justinian there, iv. 159.
- v. 141. First introduction of the Arabs into the country, 364. Defeat and death of Roderic the Gothic king of, 368. Conquest of, by Musa, 373. Its profperity under the Saracens, 379. The Christian faith there, fupplanted by that of Mahomet, 387. The throne of Cordova filled by Abdalrahman, 417.
- Stadium, Olympic, the races of, compared with those in the Roman circus, iv. 59.
- Stauracius, emperor of Conitantinople, v. 27.
- Stephen, a freedman of Domitilla, affaffinates the emperor Domitian, i. 646.
- Stephen, count of Chartres, his character and engagement in the first crufade, vi. 23. Deferts
- his standard, 51. Stephen, St. the first Christian martyr, miraculous difcovery of his body, and the miracles worked by it, iii. 97.
- Stephen the Savage, fent by the Greek emperor Juftinian II. to exterminate the Cherfonites, v. 17.
- Stephen III. pope, folicits the aid of Pepin king of France, against the Lombards, under the character of St. Peter, v. 116. Crowns king Pepin, 110.
- Stilicho, the great general of the Western empire under the emperor Honorius, his character, iii. 114. Puts to death Rufinus the tyrannical præfect of the Eatl, 118. His expedition againft Alaric in Greece, 140. His diligent endeavours to check his progrefs in Italy, 147. Defeats Alaric at Pollentia, 151. Drives him out of Italy, 154. His triumph at Rome, 155. His preparations to oppose the invasion of Radagaifus, 163. Reduces and puts him to death, 167. Supports the claims of Alaric in the Roman fenate, 179. Is put to death at Ravenna, 184. His memory perfecuted, 185.
- Stoza heads the revolted troops of the emperor Justinian in Africa, iv. 273.
- Strafburgh, battle of, between Julian and the Alemanu1, ii. 167.

4 T 2

Successianus

- Successianus defends the Roman frontier against the Goths, i. 313.
- Suevi, the origin and renown of, i. 312.
- Suicide applauded and pitied by the Romans, iv. 413.
- Sulpicius, Servius, was the highest improver of the - Roman jurisprudence, iv. 350. Sultan, origin and import of this title of Eastern fovereignty, v. 646.
- Sumnat, description of the pagoda of, in Guzarat, and its destruction by Sultan Mahmud, v. 648.
- Sun, the worship of, introduced at Rome by the emperor Elagabalus, i. 177. Was the peculiar object of the devotion of Constantine the Great, before his conversion, ii. 182. And of Julian, after his apoftacy, 372.
- Sufa, the city of, taken by Conflantine the Great, i. 504.
- Swatoflaus, czar of Ruffia, his reign, v. 570.
- Swijs cantons, the confederacy of, how far fimilar to that of the ancient Franks, 1. 310.
- Savord of Mars, the facred weapon of the Huns,
- hiftory of, iii. 359. Syagrius, king of the Franks and Burgundians, his character, iii. 561. Is conquered by Clovis, 562.
- Sylla the dictator, his legislative character, iv. 404.
- Syllanus the conful, his speech to the fenate, recommending the election of the two Gordians to their approbation, i. 215.
- Sylvania, fifter of the præfect Rufinus, her uncommon fanctity, iii. 120. note.
- Sylvanus, general in Gaul under Constantius, is ruined by treachery, ii. 143.
- Sylverius, pope, is degraded and fent into exile by Belifarius for an attempt to betray the city of Rome to the Goths, iv. 187. His death, 280. note.
- Symmachus, his account of the Pagan conformity of the emperor Constantius, during his visit to Rome, ii. 308. Pleads in behalt of the ancient Pagan religion of Rome, to the emperor Valentinian, iii. 73.
- Synefius, bishop of Ptolemais, excommunicates the prefident Andronicus, ii. 225. His extraordi-nary character, ibid. note. His advice to the Eaftern emperor Arcadius, iii. 142.
- Synods, provincial, in the primitive churches, inftitution of, i. 586. Nature of those affemblies, ii. 228. See Councils.
- Syria, its revolutions and extent, i. 30. Is reduced by Chofroes II. king of Perfia, iv. 501. General description of, v. 314. Is conquered by the Sa-racens, 316. Invation of, by Tamerlane, vi.
- 344. Syriac language, where spoken in the greatest purity, 1. 251. note.
- Syrianus, duke of Egypt, furprifes the city of Alexandria, and expels Athanafius the primate of Egypt, ii. 286.

T

- Tabari, the Arabian historian, account of his work, v. 282. note.
- Tabenne, the island of, in upper Thebais, is fettled with monks, by Pachonius, iii. 508.
- Table of emerald, in the Gothic treasury in Spain. account of, iii. 255.
- Tacitus, emperor, his election and character, i. 386. Tacitus the historian, his character of the principles of the portico, i. 95. note. The intention of his episodes, 237. His character as a historian, 259. His account of the ancient Germans, 265. His hiltory how preferved and transmitted down to us, 387. note. His account of the perfecution of the Christians as the incendiaries of Rome, 637.
- Tactics of Leo and Constantine, character of, v. 467. Military character of the Greeks, 500.
- Tagina, battle of, between the eunuch Narfes, and Totila king of the Goths in Italy, iv. 302.
- Taberites, the Saracen dynasty of, v. 453.
- Tamerlane, his birth, reign, and conquelts, vi. 332. His letter to Bajazet, 343. His conference with the doctors of the law, at Aleppo, 346. Defeats and takes Bajazet prifoner, 350. How kept out of Europe, 357. His triumph at Samarcand, 359. Dies on a march to China, 360. His cha- racter, 361. Tancred the crusader, his character, vi. 25. His bold behaviour at Constantinople, 36.
- Tarafius, fecretary to the empress Irene, made patriarch of Constantinople, v. 128. Presides at, and frames the decrees of, the fecond council of Nice, 129.
- Tarik, the Arab, his descent on Spain, v. 368. Defeats and kills Roderic the Gothic king of,
- 369. His difgrace, 373, 378. Tarragona, the city of, almost destroyed by the Franks, 311.
- Tartars, fee Scythians.
- Tartary, Eastern, conquest of, by Tamerlane, vi.
- Tatian, and his fon Proculus, destroyed by the bafe arts of Rufinus, the confidential minister of the emperor Theodofius, iii. 107.
- Taarus, the conful, is banished by the tribunal of Chalcedon, ii. 345.
- Taxes, how the Roman citizens were exonerated from the burden of, i. 194. Account of those inflituted by Augustus, 197. How raised under Constantine the Great, and his successfors, ii. 62.
- Tayef, fiege of, by Mahomet, v. 241. Teiaz, the last king of the Goths, defeated and killed by the eunuch Narfes, iv. 305.
- Telemachus, an Afiatic monk, loses his life at Rome, in an attempt to prevent the combat of the gla-
- diators, iii. 157. Temple of Jerusalem, burned, i. 642. History of the emperor Julian's attempt to reftore it, ii. 386. Temugin. See Zingis.

Tephrice

Tephrice is occupied and fortified by the Paulicians, v. 528.

- Tertullian, his pious evultation in the expected damnation of all the Pagan world, i. 566. Suggeils defertion to Christian foldiers, 580. His suspi-cious account of two edicts of Tiberius and Marcus Antoninus, in lavour of the Chridlians, 666.
- Testaments, the Roman laws for regulating, iv. 390. Codicils, 392.
- Tetricus afformes the empire in Gaul, at the inftigation of Victoria, i. 364. Betrays his legions into the hand of Aurelian, 365. Is led in triumph by Aurelian, 376.
- Thabor, mount, dispute concerning the light of, vi. 278.
- Thanet, the island of, granted by Vortigern, as a fettlement for his Saxon auxiliaries, iii. 612
- Theatrical entertainments of the Romans defcribed, 111. 216.
- Thebæan legion, the martyrdom of, apocryphal, j. 680.
- Theft, the Roman laws relating to, iv. 398, 403. 405.
- Themes, or military governments of the Greek empire, account of, v. 469.
- Themissius, the orator, his encomium on religious toleration, ii. 480.
- Theodatus, his birth and elevation to the throne of Italy, iv. 164. His difgraceful treaties with the emperor Justinian, and revolt against them, 168. His deposition and death, 174.
- Theodebert, king of the Franks in Auftrafia, joins the Goths in the fiege and celtrution of Milan, iv. 195. Invades Italy, 196. His death, 198. Theodemir, a Gothic prince of Spain, copy of his
- treaty of fubmiflion to the Saracens, v. 3;
- Theodora, cmprefs, her birth, and early history, iv. 51. Her marriage with Justinian, 54. Her tyranny, 56. Her virtues, 57. Her death, 59. Her fortitude during the Nika fedition, 68. Account of her palace and gardens of Heraum, 98. Her pious concern for the conversion of Nubia, 615,
- Theodora, wife of the Greek emperor Theophilus, her history, v. 35. Restored the worship of images, 130. Provokes the Paulicians to rebellion, 528.
- Theodora, daughter of the Greek emperor Conflan-tine IX her hiltory, v. 54. Theodora, widow of Baldwin III. king of Jerufalem,
- her adventures as the concubine of Andronicus Comnenus, v. 77
- Theodore Angelus, despot of Epirus, feizes Peter of Courtenay, emperor of Constantinople, prisoner, vi. 193. Posseffes himself of Thestalonica, 194.
- Theodoric acquires the Gothic fceptre by the murder of his brother Torilmond, iii. 445. His character by Sidonius, ibid. His expedition into Spain, 448.

Theodoric, the fon of Alaric, his profperous reign over the Viligoths in Gaul, iii. 397. Unhappy fates of his daughters, 400. Is prevailed on by Ætius to join his forces against Attila, 409. Is killed at the battle of Chalons, 414-

- Theadoric the Offrogoth, his birth and education, iv. 2. Is forced by his troops into a revolt against the emperor Zeno, 6. He undertakes the conqueft of Italy, 9. Reduces and kills Odoacer, 12. Is acknowledged king of Italy, 13. Review of his administration, 14. His visit to Rome, and care of the public buildings, 24. His religion, 28. His remorfe, and death, 40.
- Theodofiopolis, the city of, in Armenia, built, iii. 324.
- Thoodofius the Great, his diffinction between a Roman prince and a Parthian monarch, ii. 73. note. The province of Mæfia preferved by his valour, 555. Is affociated by Gratian as emperor of the East, 624. His birth and character, 625. His prudent and fuccefsful conduct of the Gothic war, Defeats an invation of the Offrogoths, 629. 633.
- -, His treaty with Maximus, iii. 10. His baptifm, and edict to establish orthodox faith. 11. Purges the city of Constantinople from Arianism, 17. Enforces the Nicene doctrine throughout the Eaft, 19. Convenes a council at Conflanti-nople, 20. His edicls againft herefy, 24. Re-ceives the fugitive family of Valentinian, and and visits Rome, 41. His character, 42. His lenity to the city of Antioch, 47. 'His cruel treatment of Theffalonica, 50. Submits to the penance imposed by St. Ambrole, for his feverity to Theffalonica, 54. Reftores Valentinian, 56. Confults John of Lycopolis the hermit on the intended war against Eugenius, 60. Defeats Eugenius, 62. His death, 65. Procured a fenatorial renunciation of the Pagan religion, 76. Abolishes Pagan rites, 78. Prohibits the Pagan religion, 88.
- Theodofius the Younger, his birth, iii. 310. Is faid to be left by his father Arcadius, to the care of Jezdegerd king of Persia, 312. His education and character, 316. His marriage with Eudocia, 3.18. His war with Persia, 321. His pious joy on the death of John, the usurper of the West, 330. His treaty with the Huns, 356. His armies defeated by Attila, 365. Is reduced to accept a peace dictated by Attila, 372. Is opprefied by the embafics of Attila, 375. Embaffy of Maxi-min to Attila, 377. Is privy to a fehreme for the affificient of Attila, 278. Attilate embedies to affaffination of Attila, 387. Attila's embasiy to him on that occasion, 388. His death, 389. -, His perplexity at the religious feuds between Cyril and Nettorius, iv. 558. Banifhes Neftorius, 562.

- Theodofius III. emperor of Constantinople, v. 10.
- Theodofius, the father of the emperor, his fuccefsful expedition to Britain, ii. 531. Suppresses the revolt volt of Firmus the moor, in Africa, 536. Is be-

- headed at Carthage, 538. Theodofius, patriarch of Alexandria, his competition with Gaian, how decided, iv. 610. His negociations at the court of Byzantium, 612.
- Theodofius, the deacon, grandson of the emperor Heraclius, murdered by his brother Constans II. V. 11.
- Theodofius, the lover of Antonina, detected by Be-lifarius, iv. 205. Turns monk to efcape her, 206. His death, 208.
- Theodofius, prefident of the council of Hierapolis under Conftantius, his ridiculous flattery to that
- emperor, ii. 334. Theophano, wife of the Greek emperor Romanus II. poitons both him and his father, v. 48. Her connexion with Nicephorus Phocas, 49. His murder, and her exile, 51. Theophilus, emperor of Conftantinople, v. 32. His
- Amorian war with the caliph Motaffem, 443.
- Theophilus, archbishop of Alexandria, destroys the temple of Serapis, and the Alexandrian library, iii. 84. Affifts the perfecution of St. Chryfoftom, His invective against him, 309. note. 305.
- Theophilus, his pious embaffy from the emperor Constantius to the East Indies, ii. 210.
- Theophobus, the Perfian, his unfortunate hiftory, v. 33.

Therapeutæ, or Essenians, fome account of, i. 606.

- Thermopyle, the firaits of, fortified by the emperor Juffinian, iv. 100.
- Theffalonica, fedition and maffacre there, iii. 49. Cruel treatment of the citizens, 50. Penance of Theodofius for this fevetity, 54.
- Theudelinda, princefs of Bavaria, married to Autharis king of the Lombards, iv. 450.
- Thibaut, count of Champagne, engages in the fourth crufade, vi. 135.
- Thomas the Cappadocian, his revolt against the Greek emperor Michael II. and cruel punifhment, v. 31.
- Thomas of Damafcus, his exploits against the Saracens when belieging that city, v. 306.
- Thomas, St. account of the Christians of, in India, iv. 599. Perfecution of, by the Portugueze, 600. Thrace'is colonifed by the Bastarnæ, in the reign of Probus, i. 402. The fugitive Goths permitted to fettle there by the emperor Valens, ii. 503. Is ravaged by them, 601. The Goths fettled there by Theodofius, 636.
- Thrasimund king of the Vandals, his character, iii. 537.
- Three Chapters, the famous dispute concerning, iv. 583.
- Thundering Legion, the ftory concerning, of fulpicious veracity, i. 667.
- Tiberius is adopted by Augustus, i. 90. Reduces the Pannonians, 136. Reduces Cappadocia, 198. note. Sufpicious ftory of his edict in favour of the Chriftians, 666.
- Tiberius is invefted by Juftin II. as his fucceffor in 9 the empire of the East, iv. 435. His character and death, 438. Timafius, mafter-general of the army under the em-

- peror Theodolius, is difgraced and exiled under Arcadius, iii. 288.
- Timothy the Cat confpires the murder of Proterius archbishop of Alexandria, and fucceeds him, iv. 572.
- Tipafa, miraculous gift of speech bestowed on the Catholics, whofe tongues had been cut out there, iii. 546
- Tiridates king of Armenia, his character and hiftory. i. 442. Is reftored to his kingdom by Diocletian, 443. Is expelled by the Perfians, 446. Is re-flored again by treaty between the Romans and Perfians, 454. His conversion to Christianity, and death, ii. 103.
- Titus admitted to share the Imperial dignity with his father Vespasian, i. 90
- Togrul Beg, fultan of the Turks, his reign and character, v. 654. He refcues the caliph of Bagdad from his enemies, 657.
- Toledo taken by the Arabs under Tarik, v. 370.
- Toleration, univerfal, its happy effects in the Roman empire, i. 34. What fects the most intolerant, 2.16. note.
- Tollius, objections to his account of the vision of Antigonus, ii. 197. note.
- Torifmond, fon of Theodoric king of the Vifigoths, attends his father against Attila king of the Huns, iii. 410. Battle of Chalons, 413. Is acknow-ledged king on the death of his father in the field, 416. Is killed by his brother Theodoric, 445.
- Torture, how admitted in the criminal law of the Romans under the emperors, ii. 59.
- Totila is elected king of Italy by the Goths, iv. 278. His justice and moderation, 281. Befieges and takes the city of Rome, 284. Is induced to fpare Rome from destruction, at the instance of Belifarius, 289. Takes Rome again, 295. Plunders Sicily, 296. Battle of Tagina, 302. His death, 303.
- Toulunides, the Saracen dynasty of, v. 455.
- Tournaments preferable exhibitions to the Olympic games, vi. 28.
- Tours, battle of, between Charles Martel and the
- Saracens, v. 410. Toxandria, in Germany, is overrun and occupied by the Franks, ii. 161.
- Traditors, in the primitive church, who, i. 687.
- Trajan, emperor, his conquest of Dacia, i. 6. His conquefts in the Eaft, 7. Contraft between the characters of him and Hadrian, 9. His pillar defcribed, 57. Why adopted by the emperor Nerva, 91. His influctions to Pliny the Younger for his conduct toward the Christians, 647. Defcription of his famous bridge over the Danube, iv. 99. note.
- Trajan, count, his treacherous murder of Para king of Armenia, ii. 546.

Transub-

- Transubstantiation, the doctrine of, when established, vi. 109.
- Trebizond, the city of, taken and plundered by the Goins, i. 318. The dukes of, become independent on the Greek empire, vi. 182. Is yielded to
- the Turks, 513. Tribigild the Offrogoth, his rebellion in Phrygia against the emperor Arcadius, iii. 292. Tribune, the office of, explained, i. 79.
- Tribonian, his genius and character, iv. 357. Is employed by Justinian to reform the code of Roman laws, 359.
- Trinity, the myllerious doctrine of, ii. 242. Is violently agitated in the schools of Alexandria, 247. Three systems of, 248. Decisions of the council of Nice concerning, 251. Different forms of the doxology, 293. Frauds used to support the doctrine of, iii. 544.
- Tripoli, the confederacy of, cruelly oppreffed under the government of count Romanus, ii. 533.
- Trifagion, religious war concerning, iv. 575. Troops, Roman, their difcipline, i. 12. When they first received pay, 193. Cause of the difficulty in levying them, ii. 48. See Jovians, Palatines, and Prætorian bands.
- Troy, the fituation of that city, and of the Grecian camp of befiegers, defcribed, ii. 8.
- Turin, battle of, between Constantine the Great and the lieutenants of Maxentius, i. 505.
- Turifund, king of the Gepidæ, his honourable reception of Alboin the Lombard, who had flain his son in battle, iv. 421.
- Turks, their origin, iv. 223. Their primitive infti-tutions, 225. Their conquefts, 226. Their al-liance with the emperor Juffinian, 231. Send
- auxiliaries to Heraclius, 521. —, They grow powerful and licentious under the Saracens, v. 447. Terror excited by their me-nating Europe, 548. Their military character, 552. They extend themfelves over Afia, 645. Reign of Mahmud the Gaznevide, 646. Their manners and emigration, 651. They fubdue Perfia, 653. Dynafty of the Seljukians, 654. They invade the provinces of the Greek empire, 658. Reformation of the Eastern calendar, 670. They conquer Afia Minor, 673.
- , Their capital city, Nice, taken by the crufaders, vi. 40. The feat of government removed to Iconium, 74. Valour and conquefts of Zenghi, 86. Character of fultan Noureddin, 87. Con-queft of Egypt, 89. Origin and hiftory of the Ottomans, 310. Their firth paffage into Europe, 315. Their education and discipline, 373. Em-basily from, to the emperor Sigismond, 400. Take the city of Constantinople, 500.
- Turpin, the romance of, by whom, and when written, vi. 5. note.
- Twelve Tables, review of the laws of, iv. 335. Their feverity, 399. How the criminal code of, sunk into disuse, 402.

- Tyrants of Rome, the popular conceit of the thirty investigated, i. 333
- Tore is befieged by Saladin, vi. 100.
- Tythes affigned to the clergy as well by Zoroafter as by Moles, i. 245. Were first granted to the church by Charlemagne, v. 139.

- Vadomair, prince of the Alemanni, is fent prifoner to Spain by the emperor Julian, ii. 323. His fon murdered by the Romans, 518.
- Valens, general of the Illyrian frontier, receives the title of Cæfar from Licinius, i. 521. Lofes his
- new title and his life, 523. Valens, the brother of the emperor Valentinian, is affociated with him in the empire, ii. 487. Obtains from his brother the Eastern portion of the empire, 489. His timidity on the revolt of Pro-copius, 494. His charafter, 499. Is baptifed by Eudoxus, and patronifes the Arians, 506. Is vindicated from the charge of perfecution, 508. His edift againfi the Egyptian monks, 510. His war with the Goths, 549. Receives the fuppliant Goths into the Roman territories, 592. His war with them, 603. Is defeated and killed at the battle of Hadrianople, 613. His eulogium by Libanius, 616.
- Valens, the Arian bishop of Murfa, his crafty pretenfion to divine revelation, ii. 264.
- Valentia, a new province in Britain, fettled by Theodofius, ii. 532. Valentinian I. his election to the empire, and cha- racter, ii. 484. Affociates his brother Valens with him, 487. Divides the empire into the Eaft and Wcf, and retains the latter, 489. His cruelty, 499. His civil inflitutions, 502. His edicts to restrain the avarice of the clergy, 510. Chaftifes the Alemanni, and fortifies the Rhine. 519. His expedition to Illyricum, and death, 555. Is vindicated from the charge of polygamy, 557.
- Valentinian II. is invefted with the Imperial ornaments in his mother's arms, on the death of his father, ii. 559. Is refufed, by St. Ambrofe, the privilege of a church for him and his mother Justina, on account of their Arian principles, iii. 31. His flight from the invalion of Maxi-mus, 37. Is reflored by the emperor Theo-dofius, 56. His character, ibid. His death, 58.
- Valentinian III. is established emperor of the West, by his coufin Theodofius the Younger, iii. 331. Is committed to the guardianship of his mother Placidia, 332. Flies, on the invation of Italy by Attila, 423. Sends an embaffy to Attila to purchafe his retreat, 424. Murders the patri-cian Ætius, 430. Ravifhes the wife of Petronius Maximus, 431. His death, and character, 432. Valentinians, their confused ideas of the divinity of Jesus Christ, iv. 540. note.

Valeria,

Valeria, empress, widow of Galerius, the unfortunate fates of her and her mother, i. 516.

Valerian is elected cenfor under the emperor Decius, i. 301. His elevation to the empire file his character, 308. Is defeated and taken pri-foner by Sapor king of Perfia, 327. His treat-ment, 331. His inconfilent behaviour toward the Cheiler. the Chrillians, 672.

Vandals. See Goths.

- -, Their succession Spain, iii. 334. Their expedition into Africa under Genseric, 336. They raife a naval force and invade Italy, 436. Sack of Rome, 440. Their naval depredations on the coafts of the Mediterranean, 467. Their conversion to the Christian religion, 529. Per-
- convertion to the Catholics, 536. -, Expedition of Beliarius againft Gelimer, Connect of 146. Their name and iv. 132. Conquest of, 146. Their name and distinction lost in Africa, 154. Remains of their nation still found in Germany, 155.
- Varanes. Sce Babram.
- Varangians of the north, origin and history of, v. 561.
- Varronian, the infant fon of the emperor Jovian, his
- hiftory, ii. 483. Vataces, John, his long and prosperous reign at Nice, vi. 194. 202. His character, 222.
- Vegetius, his remarks on the degeneracy of the Roman discipline at the time of Theodosius the Great, iii. 67.
- Veii, the fiege of that city, the æra of the Roman army first receiving regular pay, i. 193. Venice, foundation of that republic, iii. 420. Its
- infant state under the exarchs of Ravenna, iv. 444. Its growth and profperity at the time of the fourth crufade, vi. 137. Alliance with France, 139. Divides the Greek empire with the French, 174.
- Veratius, his mode of obeying the law of the twelve tables refpecting perfonal infults, iv. 399.
- Verina, empress, the widow of Leo, deposes Zeno, iv. 4. Her turbulent life, 5.
- Verona, fiege of, by Constantine the Great, i. 506. Battle of, between Stilicho the Roman general, and Alaric the Goth, iii. 154.
- Verres, why his punishment was inadequate to his offences, iv. 404.
- Vefpafian, his prudence in fharing the Imperial dignity with his fon Titus, i. 90.
- Vestals, Roman, their number, and peculiar office, iii. 70.
- Vetranio, the Roman general in Illyricum, affumes the purple, and enters into an alliance with the Gaulish usurper Magnentius, ii. 113. Is reduced to abdicate his new dignity, 117.
- Victoria exercifes the government over the legions and province of Gaul, i. 364.
- Victory, her flatue and altar, in the fenate houfe at Rome, defcribed, iii. 72. The fenate petitions the Christian emperors to have it restored, 73.

Vigilantius, the prefbyter, is abufed by Jerom for oppofing monkish superstition, iii. 95. note.

- Vigilius, interpreter to the embafly from Theodofius the younger to Attila, is privy to a fcheme for the affaffination of Attila, iii. 377. Is de- tected by Attila, 388. Figilias purchafes the papal chair of Belifarius and his wife, iv. 187. Inftigates the emperor Juftinian to refume the conquest of Italy, 296.
- Vine, its progrefs, from the time of Homer, i. 64.
- Virgil, his fourth eclogue interpreted into a prophecy of the coming of the Meffiah, ii. 203. Is the most ancient writer who mentions the manufacture - of filk, iv. 72. Vitalian, the Gothic chief, is treacheroufly murdered at Constantinople, iv. 46.
- Vitalianus, prætorian præfect under the emperor Maximin, put to death by order of the fenate, i. 217.
- Vitellius, emperor, his character, i. 97. Vitiges, general of the Barbarians under Theodatus king of Italy, is by his troops declared king of Italy, iv. 174. He belieges Belifarius in Rome, 176. Is forced to raife the fiege, 192. He is befieged by Belifarius in Ravenna, 198. Is taken prisoner in Ravenna, 201. Conforms to the Athanafian faith, and is honourably settled in His embaffy to Chofroes king of Afia, 202. Perfia, 242.
- Vitruvius the architect, his remarks on the buildings of Rome, iii. 217.
- Vizir, derivation of that appellation, v. 221. note. Ukraine, description of that country, i. 298.
- Uldin, king of the Huns, reduces and kills Gainas the Goth, ili, 300. Is driven back by the vigi-lance of the Imperial ministers, 313. Ulphilas, the apostle of the Goths, his pious la-
- bours, iii. 528. Propagated Arianism, 534.
- Ulpian, the lawyer, placed at the head of the council of state, under the emperor Alexander Seve-Is murdered by the Prætorian rus, i. 184.
- guards, 188. Voconian law abolished the right of female inheritance, iv. 389. How evaded, 393. Voltaire prefers the labarum of Constantine to the
- angel of Licinius, ii. 197. note. His reflections on the expences of a fiege, iii. 637. note.
- Vortigern, king of South Britain, his invitation of the Saxons for affiftance against his enemies, iii. 611.
- Vouti, emperor of China, his exploits against the Huns, ii. 581.
- Upfal, anciently famous for its Gothic temple, i. 293.
- Urban II. pope, patronifes Peter the Hermit in his project for recovering the Holy Land, vi. 2. Exhorts the people to a crusade, at the council of Clermont, 7.
- Urban V. pope, removes the papal court from Avignon to Rome, vi. 597.
- Urban VI. pope, his disputed election, vi. 599.
- Urfacius, master of the offices under the emperor Valentinian, occasions a revolt of the Alemanni by his parfimony, ii. 515.

Urficinus,

Urficinus, a Roman general, his treacherous conduct to Sylvanus in Gaul, ii. 143. Is superseded in his command over the Eastern provinces, 158. Is fent back again to conduct the war with Persia under Sabinian, 159. Is again difgraced, ibid. Urfini, hillory of the Roman family of, vi. 565.

Ursulus, treasurer of the empire under Constantius, unjustly put to death by the tribunal of Chalcedon, ii. 345.

Usury. See Interest of money.

w

- Walachians, the prefent, descendents from the Roman fettlers in ancient Dacia, i. 357. note.
- Wales is fettled by British refugees from Saxon tyranny, iii. 617. 620. The bards of, 624.
- Wallia is chosen king of the Goths, iii. 268. He reduces the barbarous invaders of Spain, 269.
- ls fettled in Aquitain, 270. War and robbery, their difference, v. 184. Evolutions and military exercise of the Greeks, 500. Military character of the Saracens, 502. Of the
- Franks and Latins, 504. Warburton, bishop of Gloucester, his literary character, ii. 386. note. His labours to establish the miraculous interruption to Julian's building the temple of Jerufalem, 388. notes.
- Warna, battle of, between the fultan Amurath II. and Ladiflaus king of Hungary and Poland, vi. 449.
- Werdan, the Greek general, defeated by the Sara-
- cens at Aiznadin, v. 303. Wheat, the average price of, under the fucceffors of Constantine the Great, ii. 417. note.
- Whitaker, Mr. remarks on his account of the Irifh defcent of the Scottish nation, ii. 528. note.
- White, Mr. Arabic professor at Oxford, character
- of his fermons at Bampton's lecture, v. 409. note. Wilfrid, the apolle of Suffex, his benevolent effa-blifhment at Selfey, iii. 622. William I. the Bad, king of Sicily, v. 638.
- William II. the Good, king of Sicily, v. 639.
- Windmills, the use of, from whence derived, vi. 208.
- Wine, the use of, expressly prohibited by Mahomet, v. 215.
- Wildom of Solomon, when, and by whom that book was written, ii. 239.
- Wolodomir, great prince of Ruffia, marries Anne, daughter of the emperor Romanus, v. 494. His conversion to Christianity, 576.
- Women, in hereditary monarchies, allowed to exercife fovereignty, though incapable of fubordinate fate offices, i. 183. How treated by the Roman civil laws, iv. 374. The Voconian law, how evaded, 393. Are not excluded from Paradife by Mahomet, v. 219.

Xenophon, his defcription of the defert of Melopotamia, ii. 430.

Xerxes, the fituation of his bridge of boats for paffing over to Europe, pointed out, ii. 7.

- Yermuk, battle of, between the Greeks and the Saracens, v. 318.
- Yezdegerd, king of Persia, his reign the zera of the fall of the Saffanian dynasty, and of the religion of Zoroaller, v. 285.

Tezid, caliphrof the Satacens, v. 266.

Z

- Zabergan invades the Eastern empire with an army of Bulgarians, iv. 314. Is repulsed by Belifarius, 316.
- Zachary, pope, pronounces the deposition of Chil-deric king of France, and the appointment of Pepin to fucceed him, v. 119.
- Zeno, brother of Gelimer the Vandal usurper, conquers Sardinia, iv. 142. Is recalled to affift his brother, 143. Is killed, 144.
- Zara, a city on the Sclavonian coaft, reduced by the erufaders for the republic of Venice, vi. 143. Zenghi, fultan, his valour and conquests, vi. 86.
- Zano, emperor of the Eaft, receives a furrender of the Imperial government of the Western empire, from
- the fenate of Rome, iii. 496. The vicifitudes of his life and reign, iv. 4. His Henoticon, 572. Zenobia, queen of Palmyra, her character and hif-
- tory, i. 365. Zingis, first emperor of the Moguls and Tartars, parallel between him and Attila, king of the Huns, iii. 358. His propofal for improving his
- military exploits, vi. 289. His birth and early military exploits, vi. 289. His laws, 290. His invalion of China, 293. Carifme, Tranfoxiana, and Perfia, 294. His death. 296.
- Zizais, a noble Sarmatian, is made king of that nation by the emperor Conftantius, ii. 150.
- Zobeir, the Saracen, his bravery in the invation of Africa, v. 352.
- Zoe, first the concubine, becomes the fourth wife of the emperor Leo the philosopher, v. 44. Zoe, wife of Romanus III. and Michael IV. em-
- perors, v. 55. Zoroafter, the Persian prophet, his high antiquity,
- i. 240. note. Abridgement of his theology, 241. Provides for the encouragement of agriculture, 244. Affigns tythes to the priefts, 245.
- Zofimus, his representation of the oppression of the luftral contribution, ii. 71.
- Zuinglius the reformer, his conceptions of the Eucharitt, v. 536.
- Zurich, brief hillory of that city, vi. 531.

VOL. VI.

ТНЕ END.

4 U

E R R A T A.

VOL. IV.

Page 13. Note 22. line 2, 3. for dorepor Tromw-read dorego roome.

20. Note 46. line 5. for dromonibas-read dromonibus. 22. Note 55. line 8. for Cotlian-read Cottian.

30. line 4. for, When at his fummons the chair of St. Peter was disputed by Symmachus and Laurence, they appeared, &c.-read, When the chair of St. Peter was difputed by Symmachus and Laurence, they appeared at his fummons, &c.

112. line 22. for and his pupils—read, and that his pupils, &c. 129. line 23. for patrons—read patron. 553. line 2 from the bottom, for partia—read partial.

568. Note 63. line 1. for maps Bontos-read maps Contos. 569. ibid. line 14. for Espapa-read Espan.

VOL. V.

Page 247. line 13. for bid-read bade.

VOL. VI.

Page 42. Note 82. line 3. for Herman-read Hernan. 57. line 27. for defcribed-read defcried. 93. line 15. for defpoifed-read defpoiled. 219. line 16. for difpife-read defpife.

302. line 12. for haftened-read haftening.

303. line 15. for Bata-read Bela. 324. Note 53. line 7. dele afterwards. 331. Note 1. line 2. read Ali, a native of Yezd.

360. line 21. for intranquil-read in the tranquil.

361. line 3. for haft-read has.

567. line 15. for tafte-read judgment.

XX ADAMS 33,3 U16

